S.F.T.S
LIBRARY

THE
BOOK REVIEW DIGEST

FORTY-FIFTH ANNUAL CUMULATION

MARCH 1949 TO FEBRUARY 1950 INCLUSIVE

EDITED BY MERTICE M. JAMES DOROTHY BROWN
AND GLADYS M. DUNN

Property of Graduate Theological Union
Return to San Francisco Theological Seminary

LIBRARY

NEW YORK
THE H. W. WILSON COMPANY
1950

Published 1950
Printed in the United States of America

Publications from which Digests of Reviews are made

Am Anthropol—American Anthropologist. $6. American Anthropological Association, 13 E. 71st St, New York 21

Am Chem Soc J—Journal of the American Chemical Society. $10. American Chemical Society, 1155 16th St, NW, Washington 6, D.C.

Am Econ R—American Economic Review. Paul T. Homan, managing ed. $5; free to members. American Economic Assn, Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.

Am Hist R—American Historical Review. Guy Stanton Ford, managing ed. $5; free to members of the American Historical Assn. Macmillan Co, 60 Fifth Av, New York 11

Am J Pub Health—American Journal of Public Health and The Nation's Health. C.-E. A. Winslow, ed. $7. American Public Health Assn, 1790 Broadway, New York 19

Am J Soc—American Journal of Sociology. Herbert Blumer, ed. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Am Pol Sci R—American Political Science Review. Frederic A. Ogg, managing ed. $6.60; free to members. American Political Science Assn, 450-458 Ahnaip St, Menasha, Wis.

Am Soc R—American Sociological Review. $4.50 (membership dues including subscription $6) American Sociological Society, 450 Ahnaip St, Menasha, Wis.

Ann Am Acad—Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. Thorsten Sellin, ed. $5; free to members. American Academy of Political and Social Science, 3817 Spruce St, Philadelphia 4

Atlantic—Atlantic Monthly. $6. Atlantic Monthly Co, 8 Arlington St, Boston 16

Booklist—Booklist. $5. American Library Assn, 50 E Huron St, Chicago 11

Bookmark—Bookmark. $1. New York State Library. University of the State of New York press, Albany 1

Canadian Forum—Canadian Forum. Northrop Frye, managing ed. $3. Canadian Forum, Ltd, 16 Huntley St, Toronto 5

Canadian Hist R—Canadian Historical Review. $3. University of Toronto Press, Toronto 5

Cath World—Catholic World. John B. Sheerin, ed. $4 Missionary Society of St Paul the Apostle, 411 W 59th St, New York 19

Chem & Eng N—Chemical and Engineering News. $4. American Chemical Society, 1155 16th St, NW, Washington 6, D.C.

Chem Eng—Chemical Engineering with Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering. $3. McGraw-Hill Pub. Co. Inc. 330 W. 42d St, New York 18

Chicago Sun—Chicago Sun-Times, $14.40. Chicago Sun-Times, 400 W Madison St, Chicago 6, Ill.

Chicago Sunday Tribune—Chicago Sunday Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Christian Century—Christian Century. Paul Hutchinson, ed. $6. Christian Century Foundation. 407 S. Dearborn St, Chicago 5

Christian Science Monitor (Atlantic ed)—Christian Science Monitor. $14. Christian Science Publishing Society, 1 Norway St, Boston 15

Churchman—Churchman. Guy Emery Shipler, ed. $5. The Associates, Inc, 425 Fourth Av, New York 16

Commonweal—Commonweal. Edward S. Skillin and Philip Burnham, eds. $7. Commonweal Pub. Co, Inc, 386 Fourth Av, New York 16

Crozer Q—Crozer Quarterly. $2.50. Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Pa.

Current Hist—Current History. D. G. Redmond, ed. $4. Events Pub. Co, Inc, 108-10 Walnut St, Philadelphia 6

El School J—Elementary School Journal. R. W. Tyler and others, eds. $4.50. Dept. of Education Publications, University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Eng N—Engineering News-Record. $6. McGraw-Hill Publishing Co, Inc, 330 W 42d St, New York 18

Ethics—Ethics. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Foreign Affairs—Foreign Affairs. Hamilton Fish Armstrong, ed. $5. Council on Foreign Relations, Inc, 58 E 68th St, New York 21

Geog R—Geographical Review. $5. American Geographical Society, Broadway & 156th St, New York 32

Hibbert J—Hibbert Journal. George Allen & Unwin, Ltd, 40 Museum St, London WC 1 ($3.50. Leroy Phillips, 178 Tremont St, Boston)

Horn Bk—Horn Book. Bertha E. Mahony Miller, ed. $3. Horn Book, Inc, 248 Boylston St, Boston 16

J Geol—Journal of Geology. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

J Home Econ—Journal of Home Economics. Lillian L. Steckman, ed. $5. American Home Economics Assn, 700 Victor Bldg, Washington 1, D.C.

J Philos—Journal of Philosophy. $5. Journal of Philosophy, Inc, 515 W 116th St, New York 27

J Pol Econ—Journal of Political Economy. Earl J. Hamilton and others, eds. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

J Religion—Journal of Religion. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Kirkus—Bulletin from Virginia Kirkus' Bookshop Service. Service basis, 38 Bank St, New York

Library J—Library Journal, Karl Brown, ed. $6. R. R. Bowker Co, 62 W 45th St, New York 19

Library Q—Library Quarterly. $5. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Management R—Management Review. M. J. Dooher, ed. $6. American Management Assn, 330 W 42d St, New York 18

Manchester Guardian—Manchester Guardian. 91s. Manchester Guardian and Evening News, Ltd, 3 Cross St, Manchester; Guardian Newspapers, Inc, 53 East 51st St, New York 22

Mod Philol—Modern Philology. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Music Lib. Assn. Notes—Music Library Association, Inc. Robert S. Hall, ed. $3. Music Library Association, Inc., Library of Congress, Washington 25, D.C.

Nation—Nation. Freda Kirchwey, ed. $7. Nation Associates, Inc, 20 Vesey St, New York 7

New Eng Q—New England Quarterly. $4. H. Brown, Hubbard Hall, Brunswick, Me.

New Repub—New Republic. Michael Straight. ed. $6.50. Editorial Publications, Inc, 40 E 49th St, New York 17

New Statesman & Nation—New Statesman and Nation. 32s 6d New Statesman & Nation pub. co. 10 Great Turnstile, London, WC 1 ($7 International News Co, 131 Varick St, New York 13)

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R—New York Herald Tribune Book Review. $2. N Y Herald Tribune, Inc. Publisher, 230 W 41st St, New York

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R. See N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Published 1950
Printed in the United States of America

Publications from which Digests of Reviews are made

Am Anthropol—American Anthropologist. $6. American Anthropological Association, 13 E. 71st St, New York 21

Am Chem Soc J—Journal of the American Chemical Society. $10. American Chemical Society, 1155 16th St, NW, Washington 6, D.C.

Am Econ R—American Economic Review. Paul T. Homan, managing ed. $5; free to members. American Economic Assn, Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.

Am Hist R—American Historical Review. Guy Stanton Ford, managing ed. $5; free to members of the American Historical Assn. Macmillan Co, 60 Fifth Av, New York 11

Am J Pub Health—American Journal of Public Health and The Nation's Health. C.-E. A. Winslow, ed. $7. American Public Health Assn, 1790 Broadway, New York 19

Am J Soc—American Journal of Sociology. Herbert Blumer, ed. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Am Pol Sci R—American Political Science Review. Frederic A. Ogg, managing ed. $6.60; free to members. American Political Science Assn, 450-458 Ahnaip St, Menasha, Wis.

Am Soc R—American Sociological Review. $4.50 (membership dues including subscription $6) American Sociological Society, 450 Ahnaip St, Menasha, Wis.

Ann Am Acad—Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. Thorsten Sellin, ed. $5; free to members. American Academy of Political and Social Science, 3817 Spruce St, Philadelphia 4

Atlantic—Atlantic Monthly. $6. Atlantic Monthly Co, 8 Arlington St, Boston 16

Booklist—Booklist. $5. American Library Assn, 50 E Huron St, Chicago 11

Bookmark—Bookmark. $1. New York State Library. University of the State of New York press, Albany 1

Canadian Forum—Canadian Forum. Northrop Frye, managing ed. $3. Canadian Forum, Ltd, 16 Huntley St, Toronto 5

Canadian Hist R—Canadian Historical Review. $3. University of Toronto Press, Toronto 5

Cath World—Catholic World. John B. Sheerin, ed. $4 Missionary Society of St Paul the Apostle, 411 W 59th St, New York 19

Chem & Eng N—Chemical and Engineering News. $4. American Chemical Society, 1155 16th St, NW, Washington 6, D.C.

Chem Eng—Chemical Engineering with Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering. $3. McGraw-Hill Pub. Co. Inc. 330 W. 42d St, New York 18

Chicago Sun—Chicago Sun-Times, $14.40. Chicago Sun-Times, 400 W Madison St, Chicago 6, Ill.

Chicago Sunday Tribune—Chicago Sunday Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Christian Century—Christian Century. Paul Hutchinson, ed. $6. Christian Century Foundation. 407 S. Dearborn St, Chicago 5

Christian Science Monitor (Atlantic ed)—Christian Science Monitor. $14. Christian Science Publishing Society, 1 Norway St, Boston 15

Churchman—Churchman. Guy Emery Shipler, ed. $5. The Associates, Inc, 425 Fourth Av, New York 16

Commonweal—Commonweal. Edward S. Skillin and Philip Burnham, eds. $7. Commonweal Pub. Co, Inc, 386 Fourth Av, New York 16

Crozer Q—Crozer Quarterly. $2.50. Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Pa.

Current Hist—Current History. D. G. Redmond, ed. $4. Events Pub. Co, Inc, 108-10 Walnut St, Philadelphia 6

El School J—Elementary School Journal. R. W. Tyler and others, eds. $4.50. Dept. of Education Publications, University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Eng N—Engineering News-Record. $6. McGraw-Hill Publishing Co, Inc, 330 W 42d St, New York 18

Ethics—Ethics. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Foreign Affairs—Foreign Affairs. Hamilton Fish Armstrong, ed. $5. Council on Foreign Relations, Inc, 58 E 68th St, New York 21

Geog R—Geographical Review. $5. American Geographical Society, Broadway & 156th St, New York 32

Hibbert J—Hibbert Journal. George Allen & Unwin, Ltd, 40 Museum St, London WC 1 ($3.50. Leroy Phillips, 178 Tremont St, Boston)

Horn Bk—Horn Book. Bertha E. Mahony Miller, ed. $3. Horn Book, Inc, 248 Boylston St, Boston 16

J Geol—Journal of Geology. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

J Home Econ—Journal of Home Economics. Lillian L. Steckman, ed. $5. American Home Economics Assn, 700 Victor Bldg, Washington 1, D.C.

J Philos—Journal of Philosophy. $5. Journal of Philosophy, Inc, 515 W 116th St, New York 27

J Pol Econ—Journal of Political Economy. Earl J. Hamilton and others, eds. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

J Religion—Journal of Religion. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Kirkus—Bulletin from Virginia Kirkus' Bookshop Service. Service basis, 38 Bank St, New York

Library J—Library Journal, Karl Brown, ed. $6. R. R. Bowker Co, 62 W 45th St, New York 19

Library Q—Library Quarterly. $5. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Management R—Management Review. M. J. Dooher, ed. $6. American Management Assn, 330 W 42d St, New York 18

Manchester Guardian—Manchester Guardian. 91s. Manchester Guardian and Evening News, Ltd, 3 Cross St, Manchester; Guardian Newspapers, Inc, 53 East 51st St, New York 22

Mod Philol—Modern Philology. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Music Lib. Assn. Notes—Music Library Association, Inc. Robert S. Hall, ed. $3. Music Library Association, Inc., Library of Congress, Washington 25, D.C.

Nation—Nation. Freda Kirchwey, ed. $7. Nation Associates, Inc, 20 Vesey St, New York 7

New Eng Q—New England Quarterly. $4. H. Brown, Hubbard Hall, Brunswick, Me.

New Repub—New Republic. Michael Straight. ed. $6.50. Editorial Publications, Inc, 40 E 49th St, New York 17

New Statesman & Nation—New Statesman and Nation. 32s 6d New Statesman & Nation pub. co. 10 Great Turnstile, London, WC 1 ($7 International News Co, 131 Varick St, New York 13)

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R—New York Herald Tribune Book Review. $2. N Y Herald Tribune, Inc. Publisher, 230 W 41st St, New York

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R. See N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

N Y New Tech Bks—New Technical Books. $1.50 N Y Public Library, Fifth Av & 42d St, New York

N Y Times—New York Times Book Review. $3. N Y Times Co, Pub, 229 W 43d St, New York 18

New Yorker—New Yorker. $7. The New Yorker Magazine, Inc. 25 W 43d St, New York 18

Pacific Affairs—Pacific Affairs. $4. Institute of Pacific Relations, 1 East 54th St, New York 22

Poetry—Poetry. Marion Strobel [and others] eds. $5. Modern Poetry Assn, 232 E Erie St, Chicago 11

Pol Sci Q—Political Science Quarterly. John A. Krout, managing ed. $5; free to members. Academy of Political Science, Columbia University, New York 27

San Francisco Chronicle—San Francisco Chronicle. P. C. Smith, ed. $21. Chronicle Pub Co, 901 Mission St, San Francisco 19

Sat R of Lit—Saturday Review of Literature. Norman Cousins, ed. $6. Saturday Review Associates, Inc, 25 W 45th St, New York 19

School & Society—School and Society. $7. Society for the Advancement of Education, Inc, 15 Amsterdam Av, New York 23

School Arts—School Arts. Pedro deLemos, ed. $4. The Davis Press, Inc, Worcester 8, Mass.

School R—School Review. R. W. Tyler and others, eds. $4.50. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Social Educ—Social Education. L. P. Todd, ed. $3. National Council for the Social Studies, 1201 Sixteenth St, NW, Washington 6, D.C.

Social Forces—Social Forces. $5. Williams & Wilkins Co, Baltimore 2

Social Studies—Social Studies. Arthur C. Bining, ed. $2.50. McKinley Publishing Co, 809-811 N 19th St, Philadelphia

Special Libraries—Special Libraries. $7. Special Libraries Assn, 31 East Tenth St, New York 3

Spec—Spectator. 30s. The Spectator, Ltd, 99 Gower St, London, WC 1 ($7. International News Co, 131 Varick St, New York 13)

Springf'd Republican—Springfield Republican. $5. Republican pub. co, 32 Cypress St, Springfield, Mass.

Subscription Bks Bul—Subscription Books Bulletin. $2.50. American Library Assn, 50 E Huron St, Chicago 11

Survey—Survey, Paul Kellogg, ed. $5. Survey Associates, Inc, 112 E 19th St, New York 3

Theatre Arts—Theatre Arts. Charles MacArthur, ed. $5. Stage Publications, Inc, 130 West 56th, St, New York 19

Time—Time. T. S. Matthews, ed. $6. Time, Inc, 540 N. Michigan Av, Chicago 11

Times [London] Lit Sup—Times Literary Supplement. 19s 6d. Times Publishing Co. Ltd, Printing House Square, London, E.C. 4; $4.15. The Times (London), North American Office, 280 Broadway, New York

U S Quarterly Bkl—United States Quarterly Book List. Joseph P. Blickensderfer, ed. $3.50. The Rutgers Univ. Press, New Brunswick, N.J.

Weekly Book Review. See N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Yale R n s—Yale Review. David M. Potter, ed. $3.50. Yale Review. 143 Elm St, New Haven 7, Conn.

In addition to the above list the Book Review Digest sometimes quotes from Cleveland Open Shelf; Columbia Law Review; Harvard Law Review; Publishers' Weekly; Review of Scientific Instruments; Wisconsin Library Bulletin; Yale Law Journal; and other bulletins and papers.

Explanations

The descriptive note is separated from critical notices of a book by a dash.

The plus and minus signs preceding the name of the magazine indicate the degree of favor or disfavor of the entire review.

In reference to a magazine, the first number refers to the volume, the next to the page, the letters to the date and the last figure to the number of words in the review.

Publishers' Directory will be found at the end of this number.

Book Review Digest

Devoted to the Valuation of Current Literature

Cumulation of monthly numbers March 1949—Eebruary 1950

ABBEY, BARBARA. Susan Bates presents 101 ways to improve your knitting [tech il. by John Westlake]. 62p $1.65; pa $1.25 Studio

746.43 Knitting 49-6404

Designed to help the knitter understand instructions, etc. Takes up equipment, yarns, measurements, gauge, stitches, etc. It is based on the questions asked the author when she was an instructor in a needlework shop in New York.

"A small and practical volume."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p29 N 6 '49 60w

Wis Lib Bul p8 D '49

ABELL, SIR WESTCOTT STILE. Shipwright's trade. 219p il $4.50 Macmillan (for Cambridge univ. press)

623.8 Shipbuilding—History [49-14862]

An account of shipbuilding from the ancient river ships built by the Egyptians, thru the great age of building in England under the Tudors and Stuarts, to the coming of iron and steel ships in the nineteenth century, and the present days of mass production. The author is an Englishman, an honorary vice president of the Institute of Naval Architects, and a past Master of the Worshipful company of Shipwrights. Index.

"It is quite evident that in this book an effort was made to provide a text suitable for both layman and professional, and in general this result has been attained. However, there are occasional lapses into technical descriptions which are too abstruse for those who have little knowledge of ships or ship construction." F. L. Oliver

Christian Science Monitor p16 Ap 8 '49 550w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:104 N '49

Times [London] Lit Sup p580 O 16 '48 700w

ACTON, JOHN EMERICH EDWARD DALBERG-ACTON, 1st baron. Essays on freedom and power: selected and with an introd. by Gertrude Himmelfarb; pref. by Herman Finer. 452p $5 Beacon press

323.44 Liberty 48-8530

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"The experience of the last decades makes Acton's work appear in a different light: on balance, his contribution as a historian seems to be less significant than the moral emphasis which characterizes his work. . . But while Acton's historiography hardly appears as an original contribution, his moral philosophy assumes an increasing importance." Herbert Marcuse

+ Am Hist R 54:557 Ap '49 1200w

"Miss Gertrude Himmelfarb has supplied a succinct critical and biographical introduction which puts Acton admirably into the setting of his age and ours. Acton is usually classified as a historian, but the classification is misleading. He was a tremendously erudite scholar, well trained in the school of meticulous historical research that grew up first in nineteenth-century Germany. But, apart from a few learned reviews, he never really produced the work one expects from a professional historian." Crane Brinton

Ann Am Acad 262:206 Mr '49 360w

"Acton's thoughts are not always easy to unravel; and his style is often obscure. This fact extenuates the editor's failure to make the most of her opportunities. To be sure her fifty-page introduction conveys considerable information and gives clues to much more; but she has not organized her work in such a way as to give that outline of Acton's career and that summary of his philosophy which a reader might reasonably anticipate. The shortcoming is of most importance when there is question of Acton's religious faith. Most timely are those pages which present Acton's pronouncements upon political democracy. Joseph McSorley

— + Cath World 169:238 Je '49 350w

Reviewed by McAlister Coleman

Churchman 163:15 Mr 1 '49 420w

"These essays by the great British historian have long been out of print, and this collection is not only the first to appear in many years but it is the first to be produced by an American scholar. Miss Gertrude Himmelfarb on a fellowship from the University of Chicago spent a year at Cambridge University gathering her materials. Not only has she made a wise choice from the abundance of the author's works but she has written an illuminating introduction of insight and understanding." R. E. E. Harkness

+ Crozer Q 24:169 Ap '49 1050w

Reviewed by Charles Wegener

Ethics 59:146 Ja '49 1850w

"The value of this volume is greatly increased by its editing. Mr. Hoselitz has compiled in twenty-five pages the most complete bibliography available of Acton's work. And with regard to the phases of Acton's political theory Miss Himmelfarb's fifty-page essay is the best-informed and most suggestive discussion in English. It is curious that Acton's papers have remained so long unexploited. This first fruit of Miss Himmelfarb's studies in Cambridge is a most promising earnest of her results." J. H. Nichols

+ J Religion 29:167 Ap '49 200w

"These ten essays by the historian Lord Acton are intensely interesting even if their style makes for somewhat difficult reading." L. O. Kattsoff

+ Social Forces 28:102 O '49 550w

ADAM, COLIN GURDON FORBES. Life of Lord Lloyd; with a foreword by Winston S. Churchill. 318p il $6 Macmillan

B or 92 Lloyd, George Ambrose Lloyd, 1st baron [49-873]

"Lord Lloyd, born into a family which for generations had lived in the quiet tradition

ADAM, C. G. F.—Continued
of the Quakers, was at the time of his death in 1941 a figure of international reputation, Colonial Secretary and Government Leader in the House of Lords. This book tells, as far as possible in words taken from his diaries and letters, the story of his life of adventurous travel and unremitting work, and of his devoted love and service of his country and Empire." (Publisher's note) Index.

Foreign Affairs 27:689 Jl '49 30w

"Lord Lloyd wrote an excellent book, 'Egypt Since Cromer.' This will preserve his memory more effectively than his new biography. Mr. Adam has written a curiously dull history of what was a vivid career." G. W.

Manchester Guardian p3 N 15 '48 300w

Reviewed by H. J. Laski
New Statesman & Nation 36:444 N 20 '48 1000w

"As a tribute to a combative man's high sense of responsibility, the book fulfills its purpose. But as a study of a governing personality during a period of transition, it leaves something to be desired." P. W. W.
N Y Times p14 F 13 '49 360w

Reviewed by James Lees-Milne
Spec 182:88 Ja 21 '49 900w

"Here is an authorized biography, written from his private papers, with his wife's concurrence, in a reserved, confident style that matches the character of the man described. It is a study in the British aristocratic tradition."
Times [London] Lit Sup p648 N 20 '48 1100w

ADAMS, A. ELWOOD, and WALKER, EDWARD EVERETT. Living in the city. 216p il $1.96 McGraw 323.352 Cities and towns 49-542

"A comprehensive study of the problems, weaknesses, strengths, and reforms existing in the leading cities of the United States. . . In the language of the junior or senior high school student Adams and Walker present the results of their extensive research in such aspects of city life as transportation, food, housing, special services (public health, police protection, fire prevention), business, educational agencies, recreation, and government. Not only does the book interpret trends and changes but it attempts to look into the future in the chapter entitled 'Planning the Cities of the Future.' . . A book list, a list of audio-visual aids, and an appendix of population data complete the text." Social Studies

"The style and presentation of Living in the City should be within the reading range of most junior high school pupils. It could be used to advantage as general background material for the study of community civics along with pamphlets or mimeographed material on the local community for specific information. Used alone, it would provide material for approximately one semester of study. There is one regrettable omission in this book. Little is said about the extensive decentralization going on in urban communities." L. A. Vitcha
+ — Social Educ 13:350 N '49 250w

"The authors have recommended the book for junior high or senior high levels. Probably it will be better adapted to the junior high grades. The student should find enjoyable reading and informative material in Living in the City." Bertha Hirzel
+ Social Studies 40:332 N '49 330w

ADAMS, GEORGE MATTHEW. Better than gold; introd. by Robert R. Updegraff. 274p $2.50 Duell 814 49-10450

"For many years the brief, daily essays of George Matthew Adams have been popular with newspaper readers. Concerned with such varied topics as first editions, prayer, friendship, roads, dogs, anger, pie, immortality and pencils, the articles have appeared in hundreds of American and Canadian papers. Now 250 of these pieces have been gathered into book form." N Y Times

"Widely read, widely known in the literary world, Mr. Adams brings to these short studies, a true honesty and homeliness of observation. . . Gift book—guest room bedside table sort of item."
+ Kirkus 17:347 Jl 1 '49 150w

"Total effect is repetitious, sentimental, and far from convincing. Not recommended." R. P. Tubby
— Library J 74:1086 Ag '49 80w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 O 30 '49 100w

"Here are revealed the humanity, the cheerful optimism and wide-ranging interest in all of life that are the source of Mr. Adams' popularity. Some of the essays are little more than an anecdote about a famous or an obscure person, embellished with a few sentences of pointed comment by Mr. Adams. Most have a very definite moral." N. K. B.
+ N Y Times p23 S 18 '49 150w

"Mr. Adams does not write literary causeries; he merely sets down a simple, honest, authentic philosophy of human relationships which is an accurate and understandable expression of his own personal credo. Much has been written about the decline in prestige of the newspaper editorial page, here are editorials that do get read and do have influence. One hopes the rumor that Mr. Adams is projecting an autobiography turns out to be true."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:12 O 1 '49 230w

ADAMS, JOEY. Curtain never falls. 315p $3 Fell 49-11067

"The life-story of Jackie Mason who goes from amateur nights through whistle-stop stands and the Borscht Belt to Broadway and Hollywood as a comic. In becoming the greatest comedian in the world, Jackie tramples on those who might have a chance to take the spotlight from him. He is always on the stage, no matter where he is. The curtain never falls for him. He must be always on the top, and he has to work continually at reminding people there is no other great guy like him." San Francisco Chronicle

Kirkus 17:561 O 1 '49 220w

"Recommended for pay collections as well as for theatre, cinema and radio collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:1759 N 15 '49 80w

"Jackie Mason, for all of the writer's knowledge of backstage folklore and mores, is a singularly shadowy and one-dimensional figure. As is the fate of so many novels where protagonist and author seem to overlap on every other page, Mr. Adams' abundant local color is far more interesting than his story." A. H. Weiler
— + N Y Times p16 D 18 '49 400w

"Adams dissects cruelly the world of Broadway and Hollywood for everybody to see. He presents a good clinical picture, but in doing so, gives the strange impression of a burlesque dancer stopping her routine at the most important moment to explain her technique. . . Adams would have done much better in incorporating the really interesting bits of showlore in a straight book. As it is, his novel inevitably suffers when compared wth another book of the same type, Budd Schulberg's 'What Makes Sammy Run?' " A. B. S.
San Francisco Chronicle p24 N 6 '49 260w

ADLER, ALEXANDRA. Guiding human misfits; a practical application of individual psychology. new & rev ed 114p $2.75 Philosophical lib.
616.8 Psychology, Pathological. Personality, Disorders of 49-8697

"An elementary presentation for the layman of experiences in psychotherapy and the use of Adlerian psychology. A chapter on posttraumatic neuroses in war and peace has been added." (Booklist) Index. For first edition see Book Review Digest 1938.

Booklist 45:356 Je 15 '49
School & Society 69:286 Ap 16 '49 30w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich
Springf'd Republican p8C My 15 '49 180w

ADRIAN, MARY. Mystery nature stories; pictures by Elizabeth P. Korn. 94p $2 Rinehart

Animals, Legends and stories of 48-3501

Twelve stories for young readers, each based on real happenings in nature. The stories are about familiar birds and animals; but each has a small element of mystery. Some of the titles are The trial of Timothy Crow; The phantom of the forest; The strange whistle; and The riddle of the black snake. Bibliography.

"Fascinating material for nature lovers, everywhere of any age."
+ Kirkus 16:363 Ag 1 '48 130w

"Charming, imaginative stories. . . Recommended for ages 6-10." J. F. Kennedy
+ Library J 73:1600 N 1 '48 70w

"The facts are well chosen; there is plenty of action, and good description. The way the animals talk to each other is very irritating to adults, but it has been so popularized by Mr. Burgess that small children now take it for granted. On the whole, the writing is superior to much else in this field, always excepting the work of Dr. Edith Patch." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 F 27 '49 180w

ADVENTURES of Lindamira, a lady of quality; ed. by Benjamin Boyce. 167p $3 Univ. of Minn.

49-8987

"The English novel arose from many literary sources. One of them was the French romance of the seventeenth century, with its preposterous love intrigues and emotional shadowboxing. 'Lindamira' is a sort of transition piece between these exalted heroics and the bourgeois punctiliousness of Richardson's 'Pamela.' Issued originally in 1702, it spins out its formless plot by means of Lindamira's letters to her otherwise undistinguished friend Indamora. . . At the end, after a burst of intrigue, Lindamira finds happiness (and marriage) in the arms of her beloved Cleomidon. . . [The editor] modernizes the text and supplies a short informative introduction." Sat R of Lit

"This tale, a shining mirror of the aspirations of the well-healed but poorly educated, an anthology of the popular literary influences of the day, is indisputably a document of the first importance to literary and social historians. But when we have said this, we have set the widest limits to its appeal. The ordinary reader, looking for another lusty eighteenth-century classic, a 'Moll Flanders' or 'Tom Jones,' will not find it here. He will be bored by the heavy, sanctimonious style." Donald Barr
N Y Times p5 Jl 10 '49 400w

"Professor Boyce overestimates the charm, and probably the importance, of the book, but that is an understandable excess in an editor. Especially noteworthy are the handsome format and makeup." Robert Halsband
Sat R of Lit 32:34 Je 25 '49 230w

AESOP. Fables; introd. by Angelo Patri; il. by Glen Rounds. 162p $2.50 Lippincott

398 Fables

"The translations of Thomas James and George Tyler Townsend have been used for this edition. Glen Rounds' pictures admirably fit the old fables. . . There is an introduction by Angelo Patri." Horn Bk

Booklist 46:70 O 15 '49

"Beautiful edition, distinguished for its vigorous, earthy, colorful drawings, its design by Helen Gentry, its translation by Thomas James and George Tyler Townsend, its introduction by Angelo Patri." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun p17 D 10 '49 60w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:544 N '49 60w

"Recommended." E. A. Groves
+ Library J 74:1683 N 1 '49 100w

AGE of Johnson; essays presented to Chauncey Brewster Tinker [ed. by Frederick W. Hilles]. 426p $5 Yale univ. press

820.9 Johnson, Samuel. English literature—History and criticism. Tinker, Chauncey Brewster 49-8185

"Professor Tinker, who retired several years ago, is the American dean of eighteenth-century scholarship in English literature. From his seminar in the age of Johnson a generation of Yale graduate students has gone out to teach and to continue research. To make up a Festschrift some of them have now contributed these papers. They are arranged in four groups: 'The Club' (referring to the group of intellectual leaders who enjoyed the friendship of the 'clubbable' Dr. Johnson), 'The Novelists,' 'The Poets,' and 'Other Aspects of the Age' (including philosophy, art, typography, music)." (Sat R of Lit) Index.

"While the editors of the book would not claim that this symposium gives a complete and balanced survey of the glamorous century, it does cover a vast variety of topics, and on many of them it makes original and exciting contributions." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:790 Je 29 '49 240w

"If Professor Tinker ever suffered from that occupational disease of teachers—doubt as to whether he was really accomplishing anything or not—this volume should enable him in his retirement to lay that doubt to rest forever. Here is humane scholarship at its best." De Lancey Ferguson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ag 28 '49 550w

"The remarkable consistency of attitude among these articles, the creation of personalities, the astonishingly successful evocations of human beings and of living passions, are testimonies not only to how well these disciples learned from their master but to how great a master they had." Perry Miller
+ N Y Times p20 S 11 '49 450w

"The thirty-six essays cover the widest range of what may be accomplished through traditional approaches in literary research, and their style is notable for grace and urbanity. As one might expect, their excellence varies, in topic and in treatment, but their motive is uniformly admirable: to honor an outstanding scholar and teacher." Robert Halsband
+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 Je 25 '49 150w

"The book is not designed to be a complete portrait of the age, but it is full of new facts and provides fresh insights into some of the leading writers of the last half of the eighteenth century. The quality of the essays as a whole is high."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:153 Je '49 320w

Reviewed by George Sherburn
+ Yale R n s 39:182 autumn '49 950w

AIKEN, CONRAD POTTER. Divine pilgrim [poems]. 288p $4.50 Univ. of Ga.

811 49-10774

"When writing The Charnel Rose in 1915 Aiken already had in mind a series of philosophical symphonies which were completed in 1925 but published separately. His theme was the problem of personal identity, 'the struggle of the individual for an awareness of what it is that constitutes his consciousness; an attempt to place himself, to relate himself to the world of which he feels himself to be at once an observer and an integral part.' After considerable revision they have now been brought together as a single monumental poem." Library J

AIKEN, CONRAD P.—Continued
Reviewed by Peter Viereck
Atlantic 184:69 O '49 270w
Reviewed by Gerald McDonald
Library J 74:1326 S 15 '49 110w
Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ja 8 '50 90w

"The 'abstractions' interfere with the construction of 'The Divine Pilgrim.' Mood follows mood with little intellectual appeal. Although there are many extraordinary episodes, their integration with the epic theme is too diffuse. It is only in 'Senlin: A Biography' with its compulsive quickening pace that the reader is snared in the net of disbelief; the biography remains a masterpiece, the union of wish-fulfilment and exaltation still incomplete. Like Prufrock, Senlin, his psyche darkened, examines the 'I' in relation to his universe." I. L. Salomon
— + Sat R of Lit 32:32 O 22 '49 360w

AIKEN, CONRAD POTTER. Skylight one; fifteen poems. 48p $2.50 Oxford 811 49-10426

Seven long poems and eight short ones, on various themes from the American scene to a group of love poems.

Booklist 46:120 D 1 '49
Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun p53 D 5 '49 130w

"A noteworthy book by one of our leading poets, one of the very few who can—and does—write good love poetry in which our current literature is poverty-stricken." M. S. C.
+ Kirkus 17:493 S 1 '49 160w

"This group of poems, mature in skill, sensuous in imagery and ironic in outlook, reveals his continued growth in strength and originality." Gerald McDonald
+ Library J 74:1326 S 15 '49 50w

"Perceptive, craftsmanlike, exhibiting a clear intelligence and an attractive sensibility, these poems are sometimes rather too quiet and casually speculative to be memorable or impressive, but they are always skillful and genuine, and there is none that cannot be read with pleasure. On the whole, the shorter poems are better than the seven long ones, for in the former image and idea combine to distill a single mood, while in the longer poems the discursive element sometimes lowers the temperature unduly." David Daiches
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 N 20 '49 400w

"The book is full of delight: sunlight, flowers, leaves, rain, wind, 'the natural magic of natural things.' Aiken's thought may be metaphysical, but his imagery is elemental and compelling. 'O how to see and say, in these near things as much as heaven,' he exclaims. The 'near things' speak out in this volume in living language, firm and beautiful." Charles Weir
+ N Y Times p12 O 2 '49 500w

"Nothing is especially profound, but nothing is really shallow, either, and no harshness intrudes anywhere."
New Yorker 25:130 D 17 '49 60w

"'Skylight One' is admirable proof that poetry for our time is being written." I. L. Salomon
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 O 22 '49 170w

ALBERT, ARTHUR LEMUEL. Radio fundamentals. 595p il $4.50 McGraw 621.384 Radio 48-9393

"An elementary presentation for radio technicians, radio amateurs and other persons who have a serious interest in the subject. Advanced mathematics is avoided in the presentation; nevertheless rather advanced topics are discussed. For example, approximately sixty pages are devoted to antenna characteristics and radiation patterns. The basic principles and unusual features of specialized apparatus, such as point-to-point transmitters, also are explained. The book is organized for use as a text in extension and vocational courses, but it is also suitable for home study." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Bookmark 9:11 O '49 10w
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:478 Mr 15 '49 50w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:92 N '48

ALBERT, MRS LILLIAN SMITH, and SCHWERKE, KATHRYN. Complete button book; with a foreword by Carl W. Drepperd. 409p il $10 Doubleday
391.4 Buttons 49-10667

The first section deals with methods of manufacturing buttons from various media: metal; bone, wood, and leather; ceramic materials; enamel; mosaic; fabric; glass; pearl; plastics; cinnabar; and vegetable ivory; and concludes with a chapter on the hobby of button collecting. Part two is made up of black-and-white illustrations of hundreds of buttons. The appendix lists American button makers and outfitters. No index.

Booklist 46:59 O 15 '49
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '49
Kirkus 17:348 Jl 1 '49 110w

"Plate after plate of photographs make it possible to identify a dazzlingly large number of these dangerously fascinating objects. For at any moment one may catch the germ. It is a library in itself invaluable to the clan. How large this clan is may be inferred from the tremendous list of collectors who have aided and encouraged this work."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p54 D 4 '49 310w

"The beginning collector is likely to find in this book a little of nearly everything he wants. If you have a button, and want to see it authenticated and perhaps commented on, the chances are very strongly in favor of your discovering it somewhere in 'The Complete Button Book' if you look long enough. . . If this book has an underlying fault, it is a somewhat half-hearted attempt to combine art, curiosity, and the antique, so that in vigorously pursuing any one of the three elements you soon come up against a blank wall. In a book of this size and price, the lack of an index is almost incredible." Barrows Mussey
+ — N Y Times p14 S 25 '49 360w
San Francisco Chronicle p31 O 23 '49 210w

ALBRAND, MARTHA, pseud. See Loewengard, H. H. F.

ALDANOV, MARK, pseud. See Landau, M. A.

ALDEN, JOHN LESLIE. Design of industrial exhaust systems. 2d ed 252p $3.50 Industrial press
621.5 Exhaust systems. Compressed air 48-9629

"A manual prepared for the guidance of engineers, factory supervisors and others responsible for the selection, design or construction of exhaust systems used in the removal of industrial dusts and fumes. The volume stresses the practical aspects of the subject, but contains considerable data on air flow and other theoretical aspects. The chapters on hoods for fume, smoke and vapor control; and axial flow fans, have been added in this edition." (N Y New Tech Bks) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1939.

"Since its appearance in 1939 this excellent book has been a very useful source of simple, concise and authoritative information on the design of industrial exhaust systems. The principal additions in this new edition are a chapter on axial flow fans and a much broader treatment of exhaust hoods, including numerous additional examples of hood designs from a diversified list of industries." M. W. First + Chem Eng 56:311 F '49 450w
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 74:200 F 1 '49 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:87 N '48

ALDINGTON, RICHARD. Strange life of Charles Waterton, 1782-1865. 231p il $3 Duell

B or 92 Waterton, Charles [49-48628]

"A biography, written with evident relish, of a famous British eccentric, a Catholic Yorkshire squire who was an explorer in Guiana; ornithologist (he established the first bird sanctuary); and a taxidermist who caricatured his enemies in weird creations such as The Nondescript." (Library J) Index.

"Aldington's portrait of this appealing eccentric is marvelously entertaining, and more than that: tact, wit, and stylistic elegance make it a distinguished biography."
+ Atlantic 185:88 F '50 180w

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 25 '49 600w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin
Christian Science Monitor p16 Ja 6 '50 290w

Kirkus 17:458 Ag 15 '49 300w

"Mr. Aldington who takes Norman Douglas, Edith Sitwell, and Philip Gosse to task for errors in previous studies of Waterton, himself confuses President Theodore Roosevelt with T. R., Jr. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ — Library J 74:1193 S 1 '49 100w

"Mr. Aldington's life of this remarkable character, charmingly written with a raciness appropriate to its subject and with a careful regard for all available material previously published, succeeds in showing us a man of endearing qualities, while at the same time poking fun at many of his extravagances." A. W. Boyd
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 19 '49 270w

"An admirable full-length study of [Waterton's] life and character; with the fantastic episodes of his career arranged in the probable order of their occurrence; and a caustic commentary (for which Mr. Aldington's bluff style is well qualified) on human nonsense in general and Waterton's unorthodox brand of it in particular." Ralph Partridge
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:205 Ag 20 '49 500w

Reviewed by E. W. Teale
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ja 1 '50 1100w

"The author of the present volume, a well-known British novelist and poet, has done a masterly job in this life of Waterton, for in spite of his literary skill the result might well have merited, to a considerable degree, the stigma of 'anecdotal.'" William Beebe
+ N Y Times p7 N 27 '49 650w

"Although Mr. Aldington hasn't completely succeeded in explaining away the contradictions in the character of his subject, his biography is not only extremely divertingly written but a monument of documentation as well."
+ New Yorker 25:125 D 17 '49 240w

Reviewed by Derek Hudson
Spec 183:118 Jl 22 '49 430w

"Although this is an entertaining book it is an altogether inadequate biography of a curious and distinguished personality."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p554 Ag 26 '49 750w

ALDIS, DOROTHY (KEELEY) (MRS GRAHAM ALDIS). Miss Quinn's secret; il. by Rowena Fry. 164p $2.50 Putnam

49-2339

"Nora was about nine when she 'firmly settled down with the pioneers of Illinois and Indiana' in her library reading. This led the very engaging librarian, whose activities we share with pleasure throughout, to show her the secret hoard of old pioneer relics in the library basement. Nora did not keep the secret. With a group of young friends whose different characters are made most real, she determines that these treasures shall have a home in the light of day. This leads to much adventure, accompanied by story telling by Miss Quinn. How the perfect house was found, in two old pioneer cabins, and set up in the courthouse yard, makes a happy ending." N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R

"Miss Quinn is a librarian. How pleasant to read a story about a librarian, how clever to have the boys and girls share in her plans. Perhaps this book will persuade other children and other librarians to make permanent collections of the historical material in their own home towns." F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 O 11 '49 170w

"Here's a good idea that never gets across in a scrambled story that cries for a firm editorial hand."
Kirkus 17:28 Ja 15 '49 190w

"It is [the] framework of the plot only which seems forced, with stories interrupted for conversation. Recommended for large libraries." Anne Izard
+ — Library J 74:895 Je 1 '49 70w

"The book offers a fresh way to present local history which might have remained in the archives, or hidden in the minds of the old residents who revealed it to the author. She has made Nora a believable child, both bookish and lively, and her Miss Quinn is a triumph. . . This may be a rather special book for Illinois and Indiana, but possibly it will also interest children of other states, too, who are studying pioneers." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 1 '49 320w

"Dorothy Aldis has not lost her magic. . . The book will be enjoyed by children of 8-to-11 age group. Incidentally, it offers an excellent insight into the career of library work with children." A. N. Fedder
+ N Y Times p28 My 22 '49 180w

Sat R of Lit 32:39 Jl 9 '49 30w

Wis Lib Bul 45:90 My '49

ALDRICH, MRS BESS (STREETER). Journey into Christmas, and other stories; il. by James Aldrich. 265p $2.75 Appleton

49-6500

Nine short stories, and excerpts from the author's novels A Lantern in Her Hand, and Song of Years, all about Christmas. The closing chapter is about the author's childhood in Iowa.

"The bulk of the book is Christmas to the core. The publishers do not err when they call it 'the ideal gift book.'" V. P. Hass
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 20 '49 300w

Kirkus 17:520 S 15 '49 160w

"For those who cherish the folksy, lamplit, teakettle-warmth of Bess Streeter Aldrich's stories, this year's gift problem is solved far ahead of the holiday. . . [The stories] are good reading, if only as a reminder that popcorn was once part of a festival instead of something disgorged by a slot machine."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p50 D 4 '49 140w

"'It is as old-fashioned as the dripping tallow candles on Christmas trees in the Eighties and as sentimental as a candy heart,' Mrs Aldrich says of one of her stories. This might well apply to the book as a whole." Hilda Osterhout
N Y Times p58 D 4 '49 130w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 D 25 '49 200w

Sat R of Lit 33:12 Ja 28 '50 140w

"For family reading aloud."
+ Wis Lib Bul p8 N '49

ALEICHEM, SHALOM, pseud. See Rabinowitz, S.

ALEKSEEV, KONSTANTIN SERGEEVICH (CONSTANTIN STANISLAVSKI, pseud). Building a character; tr. by Elizabeth Reynolds Hapgood; introd. by Joshua Logan. 292p $3.50 Theatre arts

792 Acting 49-5265

"This is a sequel to An Actor Prepares. Originally intended to appear side-by-side with that classic work on acting, it is the second half of Stanislavski's techniques for the creation of character and the general stimulation of imagination. It covers characterization in physical terms—speech and voice, movement, gesture, tempo and rhythm, perspective on a character and a whole play—and the training that will make these components convincing." Publisher's note

ALEKSEEV, K. S.—Continued

Booklist 46:9 S 1 '49

Reviewed by John Beaufort
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 8 '49 800w

"Essential to any student of the theatre and to any actor from beginner to the Lunts." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:1100 Ag '49 70w

"Indispensable for the actor, stimulating for the layman. To read it is to understand Stanislavski's preeminence as a director."
+ Nation 169:238 S 3 '49 50w

"The chapters on voice production, speech, intonation and pauses are especially excellent. At other times really simple things are made to appear exceedingly involved. . . The wise student of this book will use it, as Stanislavski would have wished, as a stimulus to his own search. It can provide the experienced actor with sign-posts and suggestions as to how he can continue to work even when he is 'out of work.' But he should remember always the author's own words: 'It is not possible to invent a system. We are born with it inside us, with an innate capacity for creativeness.' " Margaret Webster
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 25 '49 1000w

Reviewed by Lewis Funke
N Y Times p13 Ja 1 '50 360w

School & Society 70:303 N 5 '49 30w

ALEXANDER, FRANZ. Fundamentals of psychoanalysis. 312p $3.75 Norton

131.34 Psychoanalysis 48-11644

"This latest contribution from the Chicago Institute of Psychoanalysis is a rather adequate summary of psychoanalytic theory, orthodox in tone—with some of the more recent modifications toward briefer therapy and ego psychology." (Nation) Bibliography. Index.

"It is lucidly written, but offers little new material to the informed reader. To the uninformed, seeking some orientation in the field, without any brash popularization, this volume may serve as an authoritative beginning."
+ Nation 168:220 F 19 '49 90w

" 'Fundamentals of Psychoanalysis' is must reading for all those interested in any phase of mental health." F. G. Slaughter
+ N Y Times p21 D 12 '48 500w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 Mr 13 '49 320w

Reviewed by Patrick Mullahy
Sat R of Lit 32:35 O 15 '49 430w

ALEXANDER, FRANZ, and others. Studies in psychosomatic medicine; an approach to the cause and treatment of vegetative disturbances. 568p $7.50 Ronald

616.8 Medicine, Psychosomatic 48-9394

"This book consists of a collection of thirty-four papers which were written by the staff of the Chicago Institute for Psychoanalysis and which deal with the emotional factors involved in disturbances of the various vegetative functions." Am J Pub Health

"In general, the book is highly recommended to all physicians, public health workers, and those engaged in programs for medical care. The subject is important, the approach scientific, and the exposition clear." W. A. Davis
+ Am J Pub Health 39:680 My '49 270w

"Dr. Franz Alexander states the new credo of medical science. He is eminently qualified to perform this function, for he has consistently been in the forefront of the small group of pioneers, much maligned at first, who had the courage to state that not all disease has its cause in living or mineral invaders. . . 'Studies of Psychosomatic Medicine' forms an important addition to the growing list of publications in its most important field, strengthening the link already forged by the Chicago school between psychoanalysis and the treatment and prevention of most of man's diseases." F. G. Slaughter
+ N Y Times p15 Ja 2 '49 650w

"The volume succeeds in its purpose of presenting rather comprehensive information on psychosomatic disorders to medical men of general and special interests. It should do much to enlighten the physician whose training has not included dynamic psychiatry, and should suggest the value of psychotherapy for functional disorders."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:249 Je '49 310w

ALEXIS, STEPHEN MESMIN. Black liberator; the life of Toussaint Louverture; tr. from the French by William Stirling [il. by Jack Matthew]. 227p $5 Macmillan

B or 92 Toussaint Louverture, Pierre Dominique 49-9931

A new biography of the liberator of the Haitian people, Toussaint Louverture. The book is based on and translated from a French text which has not been previously published in English. Index.

"If the prose and structure are no match for the matter of this biography, it still is readable and a worthy addition to library shelves bare of much material on the Caribbean." Margaret Hubbard
+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 S 6 '49 480w

"M. Alexis has told the story in a very restrained manner, not concealing admiration for the national hero but also not concealing the hero's ambition and the unscrupulous way in which he played off his rivals against each other. Altogether this is a successful book both in theme and in manner." A. J. P. T.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Je 17 '49 190w

"There will always be welcome for a retelling of the strange tale of Toussaint L'Ouverture. . . There will be a special welcome for this retelling, with new material, by a Haitian writer." Hubert Herring
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ag 14 '49 950w

"The story has yet to be adequately told. . . Stephen Alexis, a distinguished Haitian scholar and diplomat, writes with sufficient fervor and with a disarming perspective regarding his hero's complex motives, but wobbles confusingly between history and fiction. . . Since 'Black Liberator' is admittedly an abridgement in English of a much longer biography in French, it is difficult to determine whether weaknesses in construction and interpretation result from bad editing. . . The book is handsomely printed and bound, but it contains an extraordinary number of typographical errors." Selden Rodman
N Y Times p4 Ag 14 '49 850w

"Mr. Alexis is a warm admirer of his hero . . . but he leaves Toussaint's personality something of a riddle. Very readable, nonetheless."
+ — New Yorker 25:113 S 17 '49 110w

"Despite the publishers' claim that this book contains 'much hitherto unpublished material,' it must be said that it does not appear to add anything substantial to our knowledge of Toussaint. . . The English text is stated to have been considerably reduced in length by the omission, with the author's consent, of many of his reflections on Toussaint and the destiny of the Negro race. It seems likely that some historical matter dealing with the early history of Hispaniola has also been sacrificed. The reflections of so distinguished a Negro as M. Alexis would, of course, have been very interesting, even if they delayed the narrative. It would, however, be churlish to complain when the fare provided for the general reader is so palatable. This book affords the best account of Toussaint's career which has yet appeared in English. It is a minor blemish that the two maps of Hispaniola which are inserted as end papers indicate no scale and no political boundaries. But they serve their purpose, and

Mr. William Stirling's translation, which cannot be checked against the original, reads very well." Philip Magnus
+ — Spec 183:150 Jl 29 '49 800w

ALGREN, NELSON. Man with the golden arm. 343p $3 Doubleday
49-10533

A realistic story of Chicago's underworld. The chief character, the man with the golden arm, is Frankie Machine, a card dealer, an ex-veteran who has brought back from the war a Good Conduct medal and a Purple Heart.

Booklist 46:97 N 15 '49

Kirkus 17:309 Je 15 '49 210w

"Mr. Algren knows this world all too well, and he is wrenched with pity by what he sees. Almost desperately, it seems, he tries to lift the pall of horror from these slums by the sheer flight of words. Often he speaks in floods of poetic rhetoric somewhat reminiscent of Thomas Wolfe, and these, while not always successful, yet manage to import a dignity to material which would be merely sordid in the hands of a lesser writer." J. J. Maloney
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 S 11 '49 600w

"'The Man with the Golden Arm' is a powerful book, illuminated by flashes of Algren's grisly, antic, almost horrifying humor, by passages of finely poetic writing, and by his love and understanding, which are, at times, almost morbidly compassionate. It has certain faults —Algren doesn't trust his artistic powers and, as a result, drama occasionally slides off into melodrama, humor inherent in the material is sometimes alloyed with comedians' humor. . . But these are minor criticisms." A. C. Spectorsky
+ — N Y Times p8 S 11 '49 650w

"Mr. Algren's poetic prose sometimes spills over into corn, and his plot, with its motivations of guilt and doom, seems contrived, but these faults are overshadowed by his virtues."
+ — New Yorker 25:105 S 17 '49 180w

"If you want a novel of escape, avoid this one like the plague, for reading it is like stepping into the arms of an octopus. From the first scene on, you will be caught up in one of the most unpleasant novels you can imagine, but you won't be able to put it down." M. R.
San Francisco Chronicle p27 O 9 '49 470w

"It is the first half of this richly vivid novel which stands out as a constantly varying, many threaded, and ribald saga of the lowly and the fallen. Mr. Algren loves them all, sees them with a passionate warmness. . . It's the latter half of the book that tends to fall a litttle too much into the cops-and-robbers pattern." Hollis Alpert
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:22 O 8 '49 700w

"One of the finest novels so far this year. Readers with queasy stomachs may shrink from an environment in which the unbelievably sordid has become a way of life. They will also come away with some of Algren's own tender concern for his wretched, confused and hopelessly degenerate cast of characters. In that, Writer Algren scores a true novelist's triumph."
+ Time 54:104 S 12 '49 700w

ALINSKY, SAUL DAVID. John L. Lewis, an unauthorized biography. 387p il $4 Putnam
B or 92 Lewis, John Llewellyn 49-11806

Biography of the leader of the coal miners' union, who has been in the news considerably during the last thirty years. The author writes from personal acquaintance with his subject, and has been permitted to use Lewis's own files. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:140 D 15 '49

"Whatever its faults, this biography contains so much first-hand information and such a fair picture of Lewis' actual accomplishments that it should be read. It is only regrettable that an author with Alinsky's access to original material should not have taken the time and pains to write a balanced rather than a partisan, biography." Emmett Dedmon
+ — Chicago Sun N 3 '49 800w

Reviewed by Walter Trohan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 20 '49 650w

"Mr. Alinsky's intensely interesting book suffers from certain technical defects. The most conspicuous is that the author frequently turns his pen over to his model and lets him sketch in the facial lines. The trouble is that Mr. Lewis wields Mr. Alinsky's pen as though it were a baton. . . It is fascinating reading. But it is not always objective biography." Harlan Trott
+ — Christian Science Monitor p16 N 9 '49 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '49

"If the recent book on Mayor Curley of Boston and this one on John L. Lewis serve as sufficient evidence, the term, 'unauthorized,' means just the reverse of a balanced appraisal. The chief difference from the sort of biography that is as official and authorized as any public figure could ask is that the Alinsky type of chronicle makes livelier reading. For his mild gestures in the direction of negative criticism are soon swallowed up by page after page of admiration for the man." E. S. Skillin
Commonweal 51:218 N 25 '49 600w

"The author confesses his bias in favor of labor, in friendship with Lewis, but he manages to present Lewis convincingly, with his complicated personality, his inconsistencies, his dynamic power, his ruthless use of any means to his end."
+ Kirkus 17:600 O 15 '49 130w

"Controversial but essential." R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1820 D 1 '49 140w

Reviewed by McAlister Coleman
Nation 169:521 N 26 '49 700w

"The book is good reading, often fascinating reading. It is an important contribution to the saga—and what one day may be the folk legend —of John L. Lewis. If it does not fully explain what makes him tick, it helps to do so. And there remains a strange fascination about the man however strongly one may disapprove of him and almost everything he does." F. R. Dulles
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 11 '49 1350w

"This is a lively, dramatic and entertaining but somewhat uneven book. . . As history, the book leaves something to be desired. It tends to present events through the eyes of its central figure. However, the chief value of the volume also comes from this close association with Mr. Lewis, notably in first-hand accounts by Mr. Lewis regarding certain events of consequence, such as his break with President Roosevelt." Louis Stark
+ — N Y Times p6 N 6 '49 950w

New Yorker 25:123 D 17 '49 170w

ALLAIS, EMILE. How to ski by the French method; tr. from the French by Agustin R. Edwards. 109p il $6 New directions
796.93 Skis and ski running [49-17010]

"Introducing a new style by means of gorgeous photographs (some in color), diagrams, and a minimum of text." Library J

"Basic for skiing collections." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:379 Mr 1 '49 30w

"Emile Allais has done a grand job in presenting his 'French Techniques,' in his 'How To Ski' book. Whether one agrees or disagrees with the congenial Frenchman, whether or not his method can be used universally, one can't help but feel that this graphic book is the best to have been written in a decade." Frank Elkins
N Y Times p21 Mr 6 '49 180w

ALLEN, FREDERICK LEWIS. Great Pierpont Morgan. 306p $3.50 Harper

B or 92 Morgan, John Pierpont 49-8274

This new biography of a famous figure in nineteenth-century America, is more a character study than a fully detailed narrative. In it the author has tried to steer a middle course between the over-laudatory biographers and the critical. Sources and obligations. Index.

"J. Pierpont Morgan was one of the great world figures of his day, yet thirty-six years after his death a 282-page essay by Historian-journalist Frederick Lewis Allen represents the only scholarly, well-balanced interpretation of his career." T. C. Cochran

+ Am Hist R 55:167 O '49 800w

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 183:78 My '49 800w

Booklist 45:293 My 1 '49

Reviewed by Herman Kogan
Chicago Sun Ap 7 '49 470w

Christian Century 66:738 Je 15 '49 420w

"The author's expressed intention to write a biography without painting his subject as a saint or as a sinner has been achieved. . . When did Morgan really apply the rule of character and when did he give it merely as a reason for his actions? The biography falls down at this critical point. It does not draw the lines of definition sufficiently sharply to tell us whether Morgan really believed in the worth of character or whether this was, perhaps, only 'a good reason' for defending his career in 1912." Roland Sawyer

+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 19 '49 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '49

"When the subject of a three hundred-page study is as much of a legend as J. P. Morgan and his biographer, as in this case, prefers 'to respect the privacy of private life,' the result is inevitably little more than an account of an astounding financial career. What saves concentration on business from turning into a dreary business here is that throughout Mr. Allen is quietly, carefully, intelligently weighing the evidence on the ethics of the Morgan business code. . . On balance J. P. Morgan's reputation is the better for Mr. Allen's dispassionate appraisal, which in its considered, sparing way builds up a convincing portrait of bold dimensions." E. S. Skillin

+ Commonweal 50:16 Ap 15 '49 650w

"A rich and rewarding biography of a man who was a symbol of his times."

+ Kirkus 17:77 F 1 '49 450w

"Definitely an addition to American biography." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 74:490 Mr 15 '49 100w

Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 30 '49 240w

"The book is always lively reading, exceptionally well written, and often genuinely dramatic. It is carefully documented and well indexed, and it contains a good bibliography for those who may wish to check it against other points of view. The portrait of Morgan which emerges is of a man who was certainly awe-inspiring, able, and likable in some respects if not in all." C. E. Noyes

+ — Nation 168:394 Ap 2 '49 900w

"Mr. Allen has given us an interesting biography, written with his customary grace and skill. Reacting perhaps too sharply against the harsh judgments of other Morgan biographers, in his effort to be fair, and seeking to convey an impression of Morgan as a man rather than as the domineering financier, Mr. Allen has been more than fair; his finished portrait is surprisingly sympathetic." Norman MacKenzie

+ New Statesman & Nation 38:203 Ag 20 '49 1150w

"One reason why Mr. Allen has edited 'Harper's Magazine' with such success is that he is himself fascinated by the American scene. . . To this biography of Pierpont Morgan he brings the qualities remarked and praised in his earlier books—a lively and generous curiosity, a scrupulous documentation, considerable skill in organizing his material and a real gift for story-telling. His life of Morgan is his most ambitious work thus far. . . [However one] thing that emerges from this biography is a sense of the futility of defending the moral position of Morgan the man. Like Allan Nevins in his life of the elder Rockefeller, Mr. Allen tries at one and the same time to acknowledge and to condone Morgan's ruthlessness, and he fails because he keeps his eye on the man and not on the historic figure." Lewis Galantiere

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ap 3 '49 1150w

"Mr. Allen has not attempted to write either history or biography, but rather an essay in interpretation. That is, he has attempted to explain what kind of man Pierpont Morgan was. Yet this approach has its limitations. It leads to concentration on motives, which is interesting but not very significant. It means that the interpreter must, to a large extent, accept Morgan on his own terms, judge him on his own standards, be content with his own interests. This is entirely legitimate. . . But it makes irrelevant most of those broader tests, those more profound inquiries, which the student interested in Morgan's place in history naturally makes. This is, in short, the literary equivalent of a Sargent portrait, not of an Eakins." H. S. Commager

+ — N Y Times p3 Ap 3 '49 1700w

New Yorker 25:104 Ap 2 '49 160w

"The reader will realize, very likely with some relief, that Mr. Allen has ignored the 'debunking' techniques which have distinguished so much biographical writing in recent years, and has tried straightforwardly to show a great man as he was, without prejudice, without special pleading on either side, without the smart 'needling' so many biographers have made pay so well. This alone makes his 'The Great Pierpont Morgan' a refreshing addition to contemporary biography." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 29 '49 1050w

"This short biography is a delightful piece of personal portraiture, expert, incisive, and graphic; a study absorbing in its analysis of the traits of a man as versatile, human, and unpredictable as he was agressive and dominating." Allan Nevins

+ Sat R of Lit 32:9 Ap 2 '49 1600w

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 24 '49 600w

"Mr. Frederick Lewis Allen's new biography of John Pierpont Morgan is refreshingly unpretentious, and although it makes no attempt to sketch the social background of America after the Civil War it does set out to answer an interesting question which must be faced if one is to understand that great age of capitalist expansion and accumulation in the United States."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p535 Ag 19 '49 1850w

ALLEN, MERRITT PARMELEE. Battle lanterns; decorations by Ralph Ray, jr. 279p $2.50 Longmans

49-7567

An adventure story of Revolutionary days for older boys. The hero is Bill Barlow from New York, who is hunting for treasure buried by his father on an island off the South Carolina coast. When the boy is shipwrecked he joins Francis Marion for a time. Later he is kidnapped and works as a slave on a West Indies plantation. After three years he makes his escape, taking with him the slave Luke, and the two join General Marion and fight with him during a part of the Revolution.

Booklist 45:247 Mr 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun Ag 20 '49 40w

Reviewed by H. F. Griswold
Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 9 '49 250w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:215 My '49 120w

"Exciting presentation of material that should be good supplementary reading for history."

+ Kirkus 17:61 F 1 '49 110w

"A fine collection of villainous Tories. Vivid and exciting. For older readers." R. M. McEvoy
+ Library J 74:557 Ap 1 '49 70w

"The faithful Negro, Luke, is a fine character, and Francis Marion becomes a living figure. The sufferings of this part of the South in the war, the relation of Marion to the campaigns of other generals, are all movingly described." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 1 '49 100w

"Dealing with one of the more colorful phases of our War for Independence, this book contains enough action, suspense and color to satisfy the most demanding reader. The historical background is not always accurate in particulars, but is satisfactory in its over-all impression." R. A. Brown
+ — N Y Times p26 Mr 20 '49 180w

"This is a book that leaves a deep impression of people and of events that made our history. Bill and Luke and the irrepressible young Scotsman, MacDonald, live and move through the story, making background and action a living reality. It is exciting, often moving, without being in the least melodramatic. It should have a long life in the homes and schools and libraries of America."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:37 Mr 12 '49 250w
Springf'd Republican p8C My 15 '49 120w
Wis Lib Bul 45:50 Mr '49

ALLEN, ROBERT SHARON, ed. Our sovereign state. 413p $5 Vanguard

353.9 Corruption (in politics). State governments 49-11566

An indictment of state government in the United States as a whole, with twelve states studied as specimens. Contents: Massachusetts, by W. V. Shannon; New York, by R. G. Spivack; Pennsylvania, by H. A. Lowe; Georgia, by Tarleton Collier; Ohio, by R. L. Maher; Illinois, by D. E. Chamberlain; Wisconsin, by W. T. Evjue; Louisiana, by R. S. O'Leary; Nebraska, by J. E. Lawrence; Texas, by Hart Stilwell; Utah, by Ernest Linford; California, by R. V. Hyer. No index.

Booklist 46:114 D 1 '49

Reviewed by A. C. Ames
Chicago Sunday Tribune p24 N 13 '49 380w

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '49

"An explosive book packed with dynamite—a book which should be read by every citizen who is inclined to feel that state politics are none of his concern. . . Very good reading."
+ Kirkus 17:593 O 15 '49 140w

"Editor's vitriolic introduction weakens objectivity of factual narratives. An index would increase value. But should be widely circulated. A citizenry must be informed to be aroused." R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1753 N 15 '49 140w

"Some of the chapters are sketchy. Some of them deal too extensively with men and material so current that both the men and the events will be forgotten tomorrow. Despite these shortcomings, the book as a whole is a convincing argument that something is rotten in a lot of states other than Denmark and that the individual voter will have to get as angry as the authors if he ever expects anything to be done about it." Bert Andrews
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 27 '49 750w

"The book is done in the best muckraking tradition, and ought to open the eyes and inflame the civic anger of those complacent citizens who reason that politics should be left to the politicians." Cabell Phillips
+ N Y Times p47 N 13 '49 550w

Reviewed by Robert de Roos
San Francisco Chronicle p23 N 6 '49 800w

" 'Criticism without a fulcrum' makes for uneasy enjoyment. I admit, with a sort of sense of guilt, that I enjoyed reading this book. These journalists (ten of the twelve contributors are professional newsmen) know how to write; how to make things clear, vivid, and lurid. The vividness and clarity arise chiefly from oversimplification and the luridity comes from emphasis upon what is adverse to civic virtue, if not downright politically perverse. . . Something is missing from the picture, something to explain why a governmental entity so hideous can yet win homage. It is experience with that 'something' here missing which leaves tinged with guilt my enjoyment of this muckraking book." T. V. Smith
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:17 Ja 14 '50 700w
Wis Lib Bul p6 N '49

ALLEN, WALTER ERNEST. Arnold Bennett. (English novelists ser) 107p $2 Swallow, A.

B or 92 Bennett, Arnold 49-9423

A brief biographical study of Arnold Bennett, which is also an analytical study of his novels. Includes a list of biographical dates, and an index.

Booklist 45:394 Jl 15 '49

Reviewed by Joseph Kraft
Nation 169:187 Ag 20 '49 90w

"Walter Allen's book on Arnold Bennett is probably the best so far of the series. . . If The English Novelists Series could sustain the standards of this book it would be a different matter altogether." John Farrelly
+ New Repub 121:19 Jl 4 '49 290w

"A sympathetic and well-balanced study." P. H. Newby
+ New Statesman & Nation 36:400 N 6 '48 1000w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 28 '49 350w

"Sympathetic, while quite aware of Bennett's faults and limitations, tactfully alternating biography and criticism without mistaking one for the other, Mr. Allen makes his points quietly and sensibly. If we feel that sometimes he cannot make up his mind on the stature of his subject, . . . this is the result of intellectual honesty rather than of intellectual confusion." David Daiches
+ N Y Times p17 Jl 24 '49 460w

New Yorker 25:110 S 24 '49 60w

"Sifting the wheat from the chaff is hardly a delicate critical operation in Arnold Bennett's case, but it is one that Mr. Allen performs deftly and with authority." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 32:19 Ag 20 '49 280w

"Mr. Walter Allen has written a very good book, full of insight and truly appreciative of a novelist who since his death in 1931 has suffered excessive decline in reputation. It is certainly the best existing criticism of Bennett, and it shows, not only the quality of Mr. Allen's mind, but the rise of a new and timely attitude towards a great novelist. . . The book begins badly with a travesty of Bennett's appearance and activities in the last ten years of his life. . . I do not always agree with his estimates. I think that he too readily accepts Wells as a witness concerning Bennett's young manhood, that he takes too Viennese a view of extroverts, and that he perhaps misses the importance of The Pretty Lady and Lord Raingo as involuntary revelations of Bennett's horror of (among other features of total war) the smart and the official worlds of 1914-18. . . But I should not wish to end this brief comment on Mr. Allen's performance without saying that I read almost the whole of his book with admiration. It is a very good book, the work of a very good critic." Frank Swinnerton
+ — Spec 181:404 S 24 '48 800w
Times [London] Lit Sup p168 Mr 12 '49 3200w

ALLEN, WALTER ERNEST, ed. The writer on his art. [Eng title: Writers on writing]. (Whittlesey house publication) 285p $3.50 McGraw

808 Authorship 49-11283

"In his preface Walter Allen says that he has tried to make the kind of book which would have stimulated and helped him when he began to write, a collection of comments on the nature and practice of poetry and fiction. He calls it a commonplace book, meaning a private anthology of jottings which a writer might salvage from his reading. Mr. Allen includes no theories of those writers whom he calls pure critics. His contributors are all creative writers, poets and novelists, who have chosen at moments to reflect about the art they practice and to probe a little into their intentions and their methods of work." (N Y Times) Among the authors quoted are: Jane Austen, S. T. Coleridge, Guy de Maupassant, T. S. Eliot, Henry James, Ben Jonson, John Keats, Marcel Proust, P. B. Shelley, Anton Tchehov, Walt Whitman, W. B. Yeats. Indexes.

"Those who value the literary heritage left by Puritan, romantic, and Victorian, and who share the old desire (once popular among English speaking peoples) to be both literate and Christian, will welcome this anthology." A. C. Ames

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 D 4 '49 230w

"If the young writer be too submissive amid this din of voices—all authoritative and most of them persuasive—he may well be more distracted than helped. But if he will be guided firmly by his sympathies, and not attempt to be omnivorous, he should find the book invaluable; while for the reader who has a general interest in the psychology of the artist, in the processes of invention, and in personal revelations that throw interesting sidelights on famous work, there is absorbing material here." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 17 '49 650w

Kirkus 17:454 Ag 15 '49 100w

"Should prove most stimulating alike to other writers and to the intelligent reader who would enrich his creative response. Mr. Allen draws his extracts from the sixteenth century to the present day. They are as diverse in tone and approach as their authors, and as creative." H. I'A. F.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 29 '48 190w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p56 D 4 '49 50w

"A book not commonplace in the usual associations of that word, collected by a writer with an uncommon range of reading, especially in the section on the novel. . . I doubt that any writer who has clipped and copied paragraphs and pages, for his own commonplace book ever sits down to read the notes from cover to cover. . . He should use 'The Writer on His Art' in that way, as a reference book to remind him that however solitary he may feel as a writer, others have gone his way. He should not, as a reviewer, try to read the book consecutively. Keep it at hand, and in hours of flagging creative work, turn through its pages." Helen Hull

+ N Y Times p12 O 30 '49 450w

"[The book] contains a great deal of fascinating, often contradictory, theorising by poets and novelists on the nature and technique of their work, and some pleasant parochial near-gossip. Mr. Allen expresses a hope that this book will help and stimulate. That it will stimulate everyone who buys it is beyond question. Whether it could possibly be of the slightest help to anyone is a different matter. The effect of reading straight through this book in which the greatest literary minds of the last five hundred years thrash about in the coils of academic analysis is to make one feel that it all adds up to very little that they didn't know intuitively anyway. The important thing about these people, one feels, is that they created masterpieces, with which academic analysis, though an interesting by-product, has little to do." Robert Kee

+ — Spec 181:876 D 31 '48 430w

Times [London] Lit Sup p710 D 18 '48 850w

ALLEN, MRS WINIFRED Y., and CAMPBELL, DORIS L. Creative nursery center; a unified service to children and parents. 171p $2.75 Family service association of America, 122 E. 22d st, N.Y. 10

362.71 Nursery schools. Day nurseries 48-11541

"The nursery center as a part of a total community program, and some of the ways in which this part of the program may be implemented are the subjects of this volume. Chapter I sketches the historical background of the day care movement for children, and indicates some of the new goals toward which nursery centers are now directing their efforts. Chapters II and III center attention upon the needs of young children, and upon the ways in which the nursery school can strengthen and support the family in satisfying these needs. The remaining chapters, IV-X, discuss the structure and functioning of the nursery center in practical detail." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography.

Survey 85:287 My '49 20w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:105 Mr '49 210w

ALLINGHAM, MARGERY (MRS. P. YOUNGMAN CARTER). Deadly duo. 188p $2.25 Doubleday

49-8851

Two mystery novelettes: Wanted: someone innocent; and Last act.

Booklist 45:355 Je 15 '49

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun My 20 '49 30w

"English expertness, accomplished and buttersmooth."

+ Kirkus 17:122 Mr 1 '49 60w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 My 15 '49 180w

"Suave and well written as one would expect. . . Both stories rate high for neat plot and interesting personalities." B. S.

+ N Y Times p31 My 8 '49 160w

"Both stories have a slick, contrived quality better suited to publication in a woman's magazine than in a book."

New Yorker 25:120 My 14 '49 70w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 15 '49 140w

"Diverting."

Sat R of Lit 32:43 My 7 '49 40w

ALLINGHAM, MARGERY (MRS P. YOUNGMAN CARTER). More work for the undertaker. 253p $2.50 Doubleday

49-7505

Detective story.

Booklist 45:263 Ap 1 '49

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun F 18 '49 20w

"The feats of Albert Campion are good news to his followers. There is a more marked kinship here to Dorothy Sayers and her type of crime detection novels. . . Superior fare for special tastes."

+ Kirkus 16:649 D 15 '48 100w

"Not even Albert Campion can save this one." E. H.

— New Repub 120:26 Mr 21 '49 20w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge

New Statesman & Nation 37:305 Mr 26 '49 130w

"You can hardly go wrong with this literate, highly readable item." Will Cuppy

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 F 13 '49 140w

"This is a top-notch Margery Allingham murder mystery—that is to say, full of keen characterization, humor, old English atmosphere, a charmingly decadent family and a few sudden deaths. And Albert Campion, shrewd, scholarly crime detector, is there to check the widely scattered clues and put the pieces of the puzzle together." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p27 Mr 6 '49 140w

"An exhausting performance, on the whole, although all the loose ends are tied up with the neatness one expects of Miss Allingham."

— + New Yorker 24:95 F 19 '49 140w

"Rather on the tedious side. . . Mebbe the lowering Gothic atmosphere got in our hair." E. D. Doyle

— San Francisco Chronicle p15 Mr 6 '49 170w

"Tale rambles at times—but rather pleasantly. Good."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 F 12 '49 40w

Wis Lib Bul 45:89 My '49

ALLIS, MARGUERITE. The bridge. 307p $3 Putnam

49-10796

Historical novel about a business crisis in a Connecticut town, at the time in the 1840's when the maritime industry was beginning to be superseded by the railroads. The Lord family were vitally concerned, one branch operating a steamboat service to New York; the other firmly convinced of a need for a railroad bridge. It took a freshet in the year 1876 to heal the feud in the Lord family.

Kirkus 17:437 Ag 15 '49 160w

"'The Bridge' is faithful to history, but as a work of fiction it is somewhat labored. The author's research needs more nutmeg." George Conrad

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p46 S 25 '49 320w

"The writing and tone reminded this reader for all the world of the forgotten morality tales ground out wholesale sixty and seventy years ago by pious New England ladies." Leon Dorais

N Y Times p43 O 2 '49 180w

Reviewed by N. L. Rothman

Sat R of Lit 32:47 N 19 '49 230w

"Told against a background of authentic history, 'The Bridge' is a novel that New Englanders and especially those of the Connecticut Valley will enjoy. . . Miss Allis has done considerable research to provide the background, and her interest as a historian shows throughout the work." R. J. Collins

+ Springf'd Republican p19A O 23 '49 180w

ALMAN, DAVID. World full of strangers. 306p $3 Doubleday

49-9296

The scene of this novel is a section of New York city inhabited largely by first and second generation foreigners. A case worker for a social agency on his return from the army becomes a policeman. The idea of bribery and corruption is at first repulsive to him, but in time he succumbs to it and becomes more ruthless than the others. In the course of his work he destroys a girl who had borne him a son, and the story describes the impact of this tragedy upon a young Italian who had loved the girl.

"The book is interesting and contains some brilliant dialogue and moving descriptions of situations but it is at the same time disappointing. Its main fault lies perhaps in a scarcity of background material in the portrayal of most of the characters, particularly of John Guss and Christine. Tony comes alive and remains authentic throughout." Elspeth Latimer

+ — Canadian Forum 29:143 S '49 250w

Cath World 169:480 S '49 150w

"There is great compassion in this young author. . . There are no answers in this book except perhaps that the basis for all our sorrows is that the world is too full of strangers." Willard Motley

Chicago Sun Jl 12 '49 650w

"So unrelieved in its sordidness, that it lacks the ring of authenticity."

— Kirkus 17:240 My 1 '49 260w

"The picture of weariness and defeat in a poor neighborhood, and description of a strike at the shipyard are well done, but the novel as a whole does not come alive. Of limited appeal. Recommended for large fiction collections only." E. S. Brown

Library J 74:1023 Jl '49 140w

"The denouement of the Christine-Tony relationship, which at last brings Tony to himself and provides the finale of the novel, is one of the harshest, yet most inevitable and persuasive pieces of horror that any novelist has produced in many a day. And, like everything else in the novel, it has the smell of truth. 'World Full of Strangers' is a thoughtful, purposeful book." F. H. Bullock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Jl 10 '49 850w

"As an exciting story or as a social document—the author makes them inseparable—this is good fiction." Herbert Mitgang

+ N Y Times p4 Jl 10 '49 270w

"As a writer, Mr. Alman shows incisive skill, but the uniform despair of his New York slum dwellers results not only in a fevered sort of monotony but in a lack of the sociological exactness he seemingly wants to achieve. Most of the minor characters, despite their moroseness, are first-rate. The two main ones . . . are warped beyond plausibility. The last scene is fully as sadistic as the finale in 'The Young Manhood of Studs Lonigan.'"

New Yorker 25:61 Jl 9 '49 130w

"After a strangely faltering start . . . David Alman gets his novel moving, and his people, speaking at the top of their bent. Then we are present at the unraveling of a modern tragedy, one that moves us with compassion for its victim and rage at her fate, and one also that probes cleanly and with knowledge into the corrupt social culture where the tragic seed is nurtured. A book that aims this high and comes within view of this kind of achievement is important. . . Mr. Alman has been a social worker and a parole officer in New York, and he writes out of knowledge. There are questions here that must be answered, if mayors and attorneys and aldermen read novels." N. L. Rothman

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:15 Jl 9 '49 700w

ALMEDINGEN, MARTHA EDITH VON. Golden sequence [Eng title: Inmost heart]. 252p $3 Presbyterian bd.

49-11134

"Grim picture of peasant life near a French monastery in the Middle Ages. Walafrid, the hero, goes through many tormenting experiences. After he has been blinded and crippled, he finally achieves salvation by composing a long autobiographical hymn of joy—The Golden Sequence." Library J

"It is a beautiful story." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 66:1459 D 7 '49 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '49

"It is an interesting story, because the reader is always trying to discover what sort of a person this Walafrid is, and why anyone would want to write a book about him. There is neither Catholic nor Protestant 'slant' to the book."

+ Kirkus 17:547 O 1 '49 230w

"Atmosphere is skillfully created, characters are sympathetically portrayed, details are often appealing, but the story as a whole lacks conviction. Not a 'must' book for every collection." R. P. Tubby

+ — Library J 74:1200 S 1 '49 80w

"Miss Almedingen's story convinces and pleases as long as it is confined to narrative and descriptions of peasant and monastic life. The conviction fails when she attempts to enter the minds of the characters." Elizabeth Jenkins

+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 29 '49 130w

ALMEDINGEN, M. E. VON—Continued

"The novel is thick with medieval lore and with an even greater thing—communicated Christian charity. But Miss Almedingen's language, sometimes facile and banal, has no matching distinction." L. T. Nicholl
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p29 N 6 '49 370w

"A historical novel of unusual pattern—as mystical, poetical and fascinating as a fairy tale or Bible story." Barbara Bond
+ N Y Times p53 O 30 '49 110w

ALMOND, GABRIEL ABRAHAM, ed. Struggle for democracy in Germany [by] Eugene N. Anderson [and others]. 345p $4 Univ. of N.C. press

943.086 Democracy. Germany—Politics and government. Germany—History—Allied occupation, 1945- 49-3205

Seven experts here combine their efforts in an attempt to describe the background and present condition of Germany. The book is divided into two sections: The historic potential, and Occupation policy. The three essays in section one are: Freedom and authoritarianism in German history, by E. N. Anderson; Resistance and repression under the Nazis, by W. H. Kraus and G. A. Almond; The social composition of the German resistance, by G. A. Almond. Section two contains four essays: Germany's economic situation and prospects, by F. H. Sanderson; The reconstruction of government and administration, by Hans Meyerhoff; Political party developments, by V. F. Eliasberg; The problem of reorientation, by Clara Menck. Index.

"Able editing, careful writing, and broad documentation have produced a fair-minded round-up of the most important obstacles, accomplishments, and potentialities in the field of German democratization down to about the end of 1948." R. W. Van Wagenen
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:1057 O '49 700w

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook
Current Hist 17:35 Jl '49 2000w

Reviewed by M. A. Kelly
J Pol Econ 57:450 O '49 1200w

"While symposium [is] somewhat uneven, certain chapters, such as those on the resistance movement and problems of reorientation, count among the best presentation of these subjects as yet published in this country. Treatment of controversial topics remarkably unbiased, showing real insight into the many intangible psychological factors. . . Recommended." H. H. Bernt
+ Library J 74:893 Je 1 '49 130w

"Any study which enlightens the American public on conditions in Germany is a great boon; and this one is particularly welcome because it is written by a group of experts who are remarkably free of ideological bias and have a thorough understanding both of present German realities and of their historical background." Reinhold Niebuhr
+ Nation 168:713 Je 25 '49 650w

"Few people are aware of the extent to which the German problem has changed since the early days of 1945. . . Mr. Almond and his co-authors have rendered us a most valuable service by their description of this change and by their thoughtful analysis of its causes and trends and of some of the historical factors that have made German political life different from that of other nations." H. M. Spitzer
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Jl 3 '49 950w

Reviewed by Samuel Lubell
N Y Times p14 Ag 7 '49 750w

Reviewed by J. P. C. Carey
Survey 85:618 N '49 650w

ALMY, RUTH CASE. Simulated stained glass for amateurs, using the Frengosi method. 141p il $3.50 Harper

748.5 Glass painting and staining 49-7380

"For teachers or amateur craftsmen with an adventurous spirit, stained glass designs offer a method for studying the effects of light and color. However, actual stained glass production is an intricate art which requires technical knowledge and special equipment. Ruth Almy presents the 'Frengosi' (French-Gothic-simulated) method as a substitute, to give the student an opportunity to work with glass without becoming involved in a difficult project. Several chapters relating the history of stained glass will appeal to all students interested in this art." (School Arts) Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:206 F 15 '49

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1029 Jl '49 70w

School Arts 48:12a Ap '49 100w

"Simulated stained glass has many uses; even children's classes can make 'stained glass' windows for their worship centers, medalions, and curtain pulls, while adults can work out more elaborate designs. Every step is fully described and illustrated with designs." Ethel Dexter
Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 240w

ALSBERG, HENRY GARFIELD, ed. American guide; a source book and complete travel guide for the United States. 1348p maps $7.50 Hastings house

917.3 U.S.—Description and travel. Automobile touring—Road guides 49-10425

" 'The American Guide' is the logical extension of the Works Progress Administration's Federal Writers' Project of the Thirties. That project whipped up separate guide books for the individual states, and now essentially the same kind of information has been compressed into one big volume. . . Mr. Alsberg divides the country into regions and offers motor tours along main highways through each region." (N Y Times) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:28 S 15 '49

Chicago Sun p8X O 2 '49 50w

"It is more useful as a brief reminder of places visited than as a guide for trips in process. The source of the work is the WPA State Guide series, and much of their value is retained."
Commonweal 50:590 S 23 '49 70w

Kirkus 17:378 Jl 15 '49 170w

"The best test of a guidebook is to use it. This reviewer did so, on a trip from New York to Buffalo, and from Detroit to a resort on Lake Michigan. He found that unless the motorist takes the longest route from New York to Buffalo,—via Albany—and unless he uses highways other than the excellent parkways north of New York City, only sections of the trip are covered in 'The American Guide.' . .The fundamental problem is that the United States is too vast to be described in any one guidebook. This volume is a noble effort to cope with the problem, but the interested reader will find he needs supplementary reading." Beach Conger
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 O 23 '49 550w

Reviewed by P. J. C. Friedlander
N Y Times p13 Ag 14 '49 300w

" 'The American Guide,' as I have noted is actually a guidebook. It is also probably the most detailed and informative guidebook ever put together in this country." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ag 17 '49 350w

"There is no doubt that 'The American Guide' is a monumental compilation of data concerning the country's communities, the historical memories and recreational facilities they hold, and the routes which connect them." Horace Sutton
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:32 Ag 27 '49 600w

ALTAMIRA Y CREVEA, RAFAEL. History of Spain, from the beginning to the present day; tr. by Muna Lee [from the 2d Spanish edition]. 748p il maps $6.75 Van Nostrand

946 Spain—History 49-11695

A history of Spain and the Spanish people, by an octogenarian still (1949) on the staff of El Colegio de México. Between the years 1900 and 1911 the author brought out a four-volume history of Spain. "The present volume is not a translation of that great work but a manual primarily for the use of university classes and the educated layman." (Nation) Selected bibliographies. Chronologies. Index.

Booklist 46:156 Ja 1 '50

"The qualities of a painstaking scholar are not always those of a popular historian. In this book we hear much too little about the great values of Spanish civilization. The chapters on art and poetry are mostly an enumeration of names without emphasizing the special characteristics of the periods and their influence on the Spanish nation. . . Many chapters are too overburdened with details to make good reading. One of the best features of the book is an appendix, paralleling the events of Spanish history with those of other European countries. Professor Altamira's work is written with an honest desire for objectivity, but the venerable exile's reflections on present conditions in Spain are rather vague." Max Fischer
+ — Commonweal 51:326 D 23 '49 260w

"The appearance of the present work is a noteworthy event. . . In breaking away from the old-fashioned political chronicle Altamira was indeed the innovator, and the appearance of his four-volume history between 1900 and 1911 was, quite strictly, an epoch-making event. . . The foreign student without Spanish will not have access to the finest guide to the Spanish story until the great four-volume history is completed and translated, but until then this present work will be one of the best available." Ralph Bates
+ Nation 169:550 D 3 '49 750w

ALTENA, JOHAN QUIRIJN VAN REGTEREN. See Regteren Altena, J. Q. van

ALTICK, RICHARD DANIEL. The Cowden Clarkes. 268p pl $4.50 Oxford

B or 92 Clarke, Charles Cowden. Clarke, Mary Cowden (Mrs Charles Cowden Clarke). English literature—History and criticism [49-7626]

A biographical study of a Victorian "literary couple" Charles and Mary Cowden Clarke. List of the writings of Charles and Mary Cowden Clarke. Index.

"Ordinarily, one hesitates to use the words 'charming,' 'delightful,' and 'appealing' to describe an unfictionized, authentic piece of research, but these are the adjectives that spring into thought as one makes his pleasant way through 'The Cowden Clarkes.'" C. T. Houpt
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 26 '49 420w

"If their story, as Mr. Altick has so skilfully put it together, were not so full of comedy and anecdote, such lavish amiability might prove a little cloying. But they mixed with so many great figures of the nineteenth century that the book is a delightful mosaic of social reminiscence." H. I'A. F.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 23 '48 180w

"Professor Altick has a scholar's thoroughness; his big book is full of matter—but he sees all the fun." K. John
+ New Statesman & Nation 37:108 Ja 29 '49 1200w

"Plenty of research has gone into this handsome book on the Cowden Clarkes, and it may be ungrateful to suggest that when Mr. Altick is criticizing them for their use of the language he might himself have spared us 'cockneyized' and 'vocabularistic libertarianism.'" A. C. Sprague
N Y Times p6 Mr 13 '49 650w

"Professor Altick's book is first rate in every respect. He treats his subjects with a neat proportion of affection, humor, and objectivity." Robert Halsband
+ Sat R of Lit 32:13 Ap 30 '49 190w

Reviewed by Una Pope-Hennessy
Spec 181:706 N 26 '48 800w

"Mr. Altick is bent on shaping a satiric comedy. Even his Shakespearian chapter-headings—'I know him for a man divine,' 'Her infinite variety,' and so on—are arranged to carry irony. He is caught in his own toils, for the subject matter has built itself into just such a book as he discountenances—a rich tangle of small arabesque and ornament, more distasteful, it may be to himself than to the rest of us."
Times [London] Lit Sup p728 D 25 '48 800w

ALTPETER, DOROTHY, and others. How to make braided rugs [line il. by George Strano; phot. by Joseph Kunz]. 53p $1.50 Harper

746.7 Rugs 49-11833

"Material which first appeared some years ago in pamphlet form has been rewritten and augmented, with detailed instructions easily understood by the novice and suggestions to aid the adept, including the method of joining the ends of the braids by interweaving. Line drawings illustrate every step of the process, from rags to rugs, in this useful and profitable hobby." Springf'd Republican

Bookmark 9:51 D '49 40w
Springf'd Republican p7D D 11 '49 70w
Wis Lib Bul p8 D '49

ALTROCCHI, JULIA (COOLEY) (MRS RUDOLPH ALTROCCHI). Spectacular San Franciscans. (Society in America ser) 398p il $4.50 Dutton

979.461 San Francisco—Social life and customs 49-3785

San Francisco's society, customs, and activities from 1776 to 1947. There are also anecdotes of some of the more colorful people. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:345; 352 Je 15 '49

Reviewed by Neil Martin
Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 28 '49 700w

"Colorful, dramatic, good reading."
+ Kirkus 17:225 Ap 15 '49 260w

"Ordinary, everyday life is pretty well ignored in this emphasis on the high life, but the story is an interesting and lively one. It is arranged chronologically and with an index, makes a useful reference book of a popular nature. A good bibliography and list of sources adds to the value of the book. Recommended." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 74:954 Je 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by Oscar Lewis
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Je 19 '49 900w

"No social feathers will be ruffled around the San Francisco Bay area by Mrs. Altrocchi's book. Rather, everyone will be pleased and happy. The struggle of San Francisco social forces against the rough and tumble backdrop of the gold rush and then the railroad era is authentically recorded, but there is no doubt about the author's desire to present only the happy side." Jack Foisie
+ N Y Times p12 Jl 24 '49 430w
New Yorker 25:115 S 17 '49 40w

"A painstaking job with a scholarly approach. Mrs. Altrocchi is no novice in the writing business and she handles herself like a veteran. Furthermore, she never loses sight of her assignment." M. B. Robbins
+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 Je 19 '49 950w

Reviewed by Kathleen Norris
Sat R of Lit 32:17 Jl 9 '49 900w

AMBERG, GEORGE. Ballet in America; the emergence of an American art. 244p il $6 Duell

792.8 Ballet 49-1689

Historical and critical sketch of the ballet in America, beginning more than a century ago and covering the history to the present era of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo and the Ballet Theatre. The author is the theatre arts consultant of the Museum of modern art. Includes a chronology and index.

AMBERG, GEORGE—Continued

Booklist 45:277 Ap 15 '49

"Is a serious study of the development of ballet in the United States, showing how the classic dance grew from porcelain rarity into part and parcel of American life. Dr. Amberg, versed in the theater arts, gives an excellent critical appraisal of the scene. He is as aware of the shortcomings as of the points of progress." Margaret Lloyd
+ Christian Science Monitor p13 Je 2 '49 180w

"Admirably told. . . This is a splendid reference work for the scholar and an intensely interesting book for all who enjoy the ballet." W. P. Sears + Churchman 163:15 Ap 15 '49 110w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '49

"A book for the average balletophile as well as the ardent follower of all mattters of ballet, this provides a useful history and a worthwhile discussion of the art."
+ Kirkus 17:23 Ja 1 '49 170w

"Highly recommended." George Freedley
Library J 74:1604 O 15 '49 60w

Reviewed by Paul Magriel
Music Lib Assn Notes 7:111 D '49 500w

"Not everybody will be able to accept Dr. Amberg's premises. He seems inclined to underestimate the past, overestimate the present, and view the future with inordinate optimism. What is American ballet and what is merely ballet in America may also provide grounds for controversy. . . The book is a short one, entertainingly written, with some fine photographs and a valuable schedule of the repertoires of the various companies. Whether it presents a balanced picture of the ballet in America is another matter." John Martin
+ — N Y Times p22 Jl 10 '49 550w

"Balletomanes should carefully read Mr. Amberg's dissertation on the two greatest of contemporary choreographers (in America, at any rate)—Balanchine and Tudor. He is broad-minded enough to see them in proper perspective, unlike many critics who are biased toward one or the other, and his study of Tudor is a brilliant piece of work. . . If there is one fault in the book, it is Mr. Amberg's tendency towards somewhat indiscriminate praise, at times almost to the point where he sounds like a professional apologist." Rosalyn Krokover
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:28 Ag 27 '49 270w

AMBROSE, KAY. Ballet-lover's companion; aesthetics without tears for the ballet-lover; il. by the author. 80p $1.95 Knopf

792.8 Ballet 49-7381

Describes and analyses the technical steps and terms used in the ballet, and illustrates their application with tiny line drawings.

Booklist 45:222 Mr 1 '49

Reviewed by Margaret Lloyd
Christian Science Monitor p13 Je 2 '49 80w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '49

"The subtleties of training that result in the subtleties of performance, the basic physical and mechanical training, the practical science of dancing, stage perspective, line, music and decor, style and characterization, etc., are described and explained in sufficient detail to amplify audience knowledge, to clarify a student approach. Examples are given from ballet performances, and technical as well as aesthetic principles are explored. A handbook for the seriously interested, this should not have as wide appeal as the earlier book."
+ Kirkus 17:21 Ja 1 '49 130w

Reviewed by George Freedley
Library J 74:664 Ap 15 '49 30w

"More for the dancer than for the spectator . . with its anything but lucid discussion of technical matters, and its illustrations that are not as delightful as the ones in her 'Ballet-Lover's Pocket-Book.' " B. H. Haggin
Nation 168:222 F 19 '49 30w

"The word 'esthetics' covers much ground, and so, indeed, does this little study; but esthetics can wander off into hazy territory. When it does, the author goes with it, and at those times the book has more enthusiasm than organization. For the most part it is general rather than technical, though it presupposes a minimum of knowledge that the novitiate can obtain from books like Vaganova's 'Fundamentals of the Classic Dance'. . . Nevertheless this is a helpful, unpretentious book, full of hints, warnings, suggestions, admonitions, and good, practical advice for the student and incipient balletomane. The illustrations, drawn in ink by the author are superior to most others of their genre." Rosalyn Krokover
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:21 Ap 30 '49 230w

School & Society 69:214 Mr 19 '49 30w

AMERICAN ACADEMY OF PEDIATRICS. Committee for the study of child health services. Child health services and pediatric education; report of the Committee; with the coop. of the U.S. public health service and the U.S. children's bureau. 270p $3.50 Commonwealth fund

618.92 Children—Charities, protection, etc. Medical education. Children—Care and hygiene 49-2785

"First nationwide survey of child care services currently available; with analysis of present day pediatric education." (Survey) Bibliography. No index.

"This report is a volume demanding the attention and study of conscientious public health workers. It disturbs complacency by its clear, persuading facts but it is encouraging in its details of 'attainable levels of performance.' " R. P. Kandle
+ Am J Pub Health 39:802 Je '49 270w

Survey 85:408 Jl '49 20w

AMERICAN COUNCIL ON EDUCATION. American junior colleges; ed. by Jesse P. Bogue. 2d ed 537p $6.50 The council

378 Junior colleges

"American Junior Colleges, the first edition of which appeared in 1940 [Book Review Digest 1940] complements, without duplication, the fifth edition of American Universities and Colleges. It is similar in plan to that work and is divided into two main parts. In the first part, the editor and other authorities discuss various aspects of junior colleges including types of such colleges and the development, present status, and trends of the junior college movement. Most of the space in this part is devoted to official statements of the 'Accreditation Standards and Practices' of various agencies. Part II describes 564 accredited junior colleges. The descriptions follow the general pattern set in American Universities and Colleges, giving for most of the entries statistical information on Accreditation, History, Calendar, Requirement for Admission and Graduation, Fees, Staff, Fields of Instruction, Recent Developments, Graduates, Enrollment, Foreign Students, Veterans, Library, Publications, Student Aid, Finances, Buildings and Grounds, and Administrative Officers. . . Appendices include classified lists of junior colleges, and a table of the curricula offered by the various institutions." Subscription Bks Bul

Booklist 44:384 Jl 15 '48

"Alert high school librarians, teachers of social studies and counselors will see that this book is made available to their students." M. R. Brown
+ Social Studies 40:94 F '49 430w

"American Junior Colleges is the most comprehensive reference work available on this type of institution. It gives full descriptions of many more schools of this type than the Educational Directory, published by the United States Office of Education. In authority and accuracy, American Junior Colleges appears to measure up to its companion volume. It is recommended."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 20:1 Ja '49 300w

AMERICAN COUNCIL ON EDUCATION. American universities and colleges; ed. by A. J. Brumbaugh; Mary Irwin, assistant editor. 5th ed 1054p $8 The council

378 Colleges and universities—U.S. 48-6695

"Earlier editions of this work, by different editors but under the same sponsorship, appeared in 1928, 1932, 1936, and 1940. War conditions prevented publication in 1944. The 1948 edition is composed of two parts and six special appendices. The contents of Part I are divided into five chapters: Education in the United States, The American College, The American University, Professional Education, and The Foreign Student in the United States. These chapters give good background information. . . By far the larger part of the volume is taken up by Part II, Institutional Exhibits. Some 820 universities and colleges accredited by the Association of American Universities, the American Association of Teachers Colleges (now the American Association of Colleges of Teacher Education), or one of the regional associations, are described in a uniform style. . . The typical sketch includes a statement of the general type of the college; its environment and control; a brief history; a calendar giving dates of regular and summer sessions and information on the school's quarter or semester system; requirements for admission and graduation; fees; departments of instruction and the number and rank of the faculty in each; statistics of degrees granted, of enrollment, of foreign students, of the library, of scholarships, and of institutional finances; special information for veterans; noteworthy special programs; publications; and finally, a list of administrative officers." Subscription Bks Bul

---

Booklist 44:354 Je 15 '48

"American Universities and Colleges is the best single source of information about institutions of higher education in the United States. Since it includes only accredited colleges and does not appear every year, it does not supersede for directory purposes more inclusive or more frequently published lists such as that issued by the United States Office of Education. . . Like its predecessors, the 1948 edition of American Universities and Colleges will be a standard reference book in school, college, and all but the smallest public libraries. It is recommended."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 20:2 Ja '49 650w

AMERICAN COUNCIL ON EDUCATION. Committee on the study of teaching materials in intergroup relations. Intergroup relations in teaching materials; a survey and appraisal; report. 231p $3 The council

370.19 Intercultural education 49-2046

"To the traditional three 'rs in American education there has definitely been added a fourth. They are now reading, 'riting, 'rithmetic, and relations. . . The Council examined more than 300 textbooks in various fields for accuracy, adequacy, and impact in their treatment of racial groups. Its diagnosis: fairness, for the most part; errors of omission by writers; room for improvement in writing instructional materials." (Library J) List of teaching materials examined.

"Considering the resources and the top-heavy organization, the report is weak and meager. Granting that the study was eminently worth while, a single person could have accomplished as much in the same length of time." A. M. Rose

Ann Am Acad 265:217 S '49 400w

Reviewed by J. M. Yard

Christian Century 66:680 Je 1 '49 800w

"Highly recommended as companion piece to March '46 issue of the Annals." Nathaniel Stewart

+ Library J 74:663 Ap 15 '49 130w

"It would be helpful to our democracy if the textbook authors and publishers examined some of the constructive criticisms made in this survey. Obviously it is not enough that our schools take a negative stand. They must take the lead in the struggle to make the United States a pattern for a way of life that works for all. This survey can prove of value to parents, educators, administrators and others who are concerned with the improvement of group relations." Benjamin Fine

+ N Y Times p12 My 1 '49 900w

"The study makes a contribution to a field in which evaluation is particularly difficult because of the lack of objective criteria and because of lurking confusion on the subject of goals."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:201 Je '49 260w

AMERICAN POLITICAL SCIENCE ASSOCIATION. Research committee. Research in political science; ed. by Ernest S. Griffith. 238p $3 Univ. of N.C. press

320.72 Political science 49-574

"The work of the panels of the Committee." (Subtitle) "The Director of Legislative Reference Service, Library of Congress, edited the work of the panels of the Research Committee, American Political Science Association, and reflectively pointed up significant aspects and trends observed through the panel's work." (Ann Am Acad) No index.

"This book makes, on the whole, depressing reading, because the contents, which are accurately described in the subtitle, fall so far short of the hopes stirred by the advance billing in the main title. . . It is no one person's fault, perhaps no one's fault, that the panel project came off so lamely. The terms of reference were ambitious and necessarily vague; three hundred capable people were enlisted, but were practically without logistic support; the timing, as it turned out, meant inevitably that most of them could give the project only a low and intermittent priority; philosophical anarchy is better suited to the conduct of scholarly discussions than to the preparation of arresting programs. The exchanges of ideas here reported are now mostly between three and six years old. It seems unnecessary to make a book at this stage." H. C. Mansfield

— Am Pol Sci R 43:585 Je '49 750w

"This book should be of interest to students in the field of political science and to those within the profession who are interested in the most intimate procedures for research." V. E. Keye

Ann Am Acad 266:226 N '49 360w

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF MAGAZINE PHOTOGRAPHERS. See Photo-graphic, 1949

AMES, DELANO L. She shall have murder. 245p $2.50 Rinehart

49-10952

Detective story.

"Deftly developed plot and smooth polish of humor captured reader's interest irresistibly."

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 N 20 '49 50w

"Engaging."

+ Kirkus 17:410 Ag 1 '49 60w

"Add a new amateur detective to your list of desirables. This one is Dagobert Brown, who hates work and has hobbies. . .Delano Ames is an American living in England. He combines the merits of both the English and American schools in the new mystery. It's as breezy as the best of the American ones, and has the sophistication and wit of any top-notch Britisher."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 16 '49 230w

"This is an amiable British mystery, with the sleuthing done by two ingratiating amateurs, Jane Hamish . . . and her fiancé, Dagobert Brown. . . Some of Dagobert's escapades in the line of detection are almost overpoweringly whimsical, but there is a shining vitality about Jane's and Dagobert's love for each other, they are honestly concerned with seeing justice done, and the case they are working on is a complexly sordid and unpleasant one well worth solving." E. B.

AMES, D. L.—Continued
+ N Y Times p43 O 30 '49 130w

AMES, RUSSELL. Citizen Thomas More and his Utopia. 230p $3.50 Princeton univ. press
321.07 More, Sir Thomas, Saint—Utopia 49-8051

"Treats Sir Thomas More as a practical political and economic reformer. Mr. Ames stresses More's connection with the London merchants and ably demonstrates that 'Utopia' is a 'product of capitalism's attack on feudalism.' " Nation

"The importance of More's middle-class background and his zeal for radical reform needed re-examination, and Dr. Ames carries out his task with scholarly knowledge, acumen, and fair-mindedness. . . Dr. Ames's study is continually helpful, though it is avowedly one-sided in its theme and emphasis." Douglas Bush
+ — Am Hist R 54:917 Jl '49 320w

Reviewed by Margaret Spahr
Am Pol Sci R 43:859 Ag '49 150w

Reviewed by Preston Slosson
Ann Am Acad 264:175 Jl '49 320w

Commonweal 49:598 Mr 25 '49 20w

"A well-written and well-made book."
Nation 168:368 Mr 26 '49 40w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 120:27 My 2 '49 230w

Reviewed by H. R. Trevor-Roper
New Statesman & Nation 37:564 My 28 '49 850w

"Even within the chosen limitations of his study, Mr. Ames has not been altogether successful. It is difficult to bring a whole man to life, but it is no easier to bring only his right leg to life, and cutting away More the martyr, the courtier, the wit and the man of letters has not made More the practical social reformer any more vivid." M. M. Ahern
N Y Times p17 Ap 10 '49 600w

"Mr. Ames' accomplishment may be said to be a triumph of his analysis, humanity and intellect over the irrationality, prejudice and personal convenience of the many people who cannot reconcile humor, humanity and social reforms to sainthood." W. R. White
+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 My 1 '49 650w

"This study, as the author points out, deals with only one of several significant influences which played upon More as he set down his famous description of the ideal society; it will, therefore, be read most appreciatively by those who already know a good deal about the great humanist's many-sided mind."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:167 Je '49 240w

AMIS, EDWARD STEPHEN. Kinetics of chemical change in solution. 332p $5 Macmillan
541.39 Chemical reactions. Solution (chemistry) 49-7897

"[Study of the] fundamental principles of rate processes in solution, and such related topics as the activity coefficients of ions, polar moments in solution, and dielectric constants of liquids. The book is written for advanced chemistry students and the mathematical calculations involved in the development of kinetic and rate equations, require a sound knowledge of differential and integral calculus. Emphasis is placed on the theoretical aspects of the subject, but practical applications of solution processes are briefly discussed." N Y New Tech Bks

"Amis has chosen a very interesting set of reactions to treat and has done the job well. This book is a valuable addition to the literature of reaction kinetics." Henry Eyring
+ Am Chem Soc J 71:3268 S '49 150w

"A concise yet thorough presentation."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 34:19 Mr '49

ANDERS, WLADYSLAW. Army in exile; the story of the Second Polish corps; with a foreword by Viscount Alexander of Tunis; and an introd. by Harold Macmillan. 319p il maps $5 Macmillan 940.5412438 Poland. Army. Second corps. World war, 1939-1945—Poland [49-5681]

"General Anders was the able and gallant commander of the Second Polish Corps—the Poles of Cassino,—and his book is in the first place a tribute to his men. . . But it is more than that. It is the General's reminiscences of action from 1939 until the dissolution of his corps." (Manchester Guardian) Index.

"The author has told the sad story of the army that could not go home after victory with simplicity and remarkable restraint." E. S. P.
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 O 31 '49 550w

"Succinct and very clear account." R. T. Clark
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Je 3 '49 420w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman
New Statesman & Nation 38:176 Ag 13 '49 850w

Reviewed by Walter Kerr
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 23 '49 1100w

"This book belongs with the basic documents of World War II. It was time that General Anders told the full story of that savagely efficient Polish Second Corps, which planted in blood the Allied flags atop the Cassino monastery, and time that Anders spoke his own mind." Eric Sevareid
+ N Y Times p4 Jl 31 '49 900w

"The book is written straightforwardly but shows some restrained anger at the Western Allies' treatment of Poland during and after the war."
New Yorker 25:109 S 24 '49 220w

" 'An Army in Exile' is an extremely well written, tense drama, and a story which drives home Russian perfidy with far greater impact than any work of the season." C. W. Weinberger
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 Ag 14 '49 400w

"This is a simple, straightforward and valuable account of General Anders' personal record during the Second World War rather than the story of the Second Polish Corps. It expresses the emotions of a very gallant Polish officer of the traditional type." Elizabeth Wiskemann
+ Spec 183:184 Ag 5 '49 450w

"In a bookstore window, this 'Story of the Second Polish Corps' may look like just another war book. On the contrary, it is one of the most remarkable personal histories of World War II. . . General Anders' tragic story is written with simplicity, frankness and dignity."
+ Time 54:82 Jl 25 '49 1150w

"General Anders's book is an important contribution to the history of the period because there is no one else who could have covered all this ground."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p415 Je 24 '49 1350w

ANDERSEN, HANS CHRISTIAN. Emperor's new clothes; il. by Virginia Lee Burton. 44p $2 Houghton 49-10479

A detailed illustrated version of this Andersen tale for ages seven to ten.

Booklist 46:51 O 1 '49

"An enchanting edition of an old favorite. . . The great variety of costume will lure every artist, designer, doll and theatre lover, as well as children." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun S 3 '49 140w

"There is an extraordinary feeling for rhythm and balance in Miss Burton's work. This might well be the inspiration for some school pageant." F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 N 15 '49 170w

"Her gift for imparting personality to strange houses and people in any land is peculiarly her own and one to be cherished. As in all her books, Miss Burton sees to it that the integrity of her design has been fully preserved in the finished book." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 25:523 N '49 80w

"For this beloved and familiar story Virginia Burton has made the most entrancing and satisfying pictures it has ever had. Her sense of pageantry sets forth in beautiful colors the magnificence of the Emperor's domain and entourage; her sense of humor brings out rightly the ridiculous situation with all its implications." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:524 N '49 100w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker
Library J 74:1533 O 15 '49 40w

"Humorous, colorful, and most satisfying are the pictures." N. L. Rathbun
+ Library J 74:1612 O 15 '49 30w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 20 '49 110w

New Yorker 25:162 D 3 '49 60w

ANDERSEN, HANS CHRISTIAN, and SCUDDER, HORACE ELISHA. Letters; Hans Christian Andersen's correspondence with Horace Elisha Scudder. 181p $7.50 Univ. of Calif.

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-9769

The letters of Hans Christian Andersen to his American editor-publisher, who also translated numbers of his stories. The book is "edited, with translations and explanatory notes, by Waldemar Westergaard; with an introduction by Jean Hersholt and an interpretative essay by Helge Topsöe-Jensen." Index.

"The Andersen-Scudder letters should be eagerly received by students of literature and lovers of Andersen's tales. Mr. Westergaard's explanatory notes add interesting side lights. . . Those familiar with Hans Christian Andersen's life and character will resavor in these letters both his lovable and eccentric qualities, his never appeased vanity, his incurable loneliness, tormenting imagination and ingenuous heart. Though presenting nothing of new, factual importance, this book is immensely welcome for the added light it sheds on a beloved 19th century figure." C. B. Burnett
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 5 '49 600w

Reviewed by Marvin Lowenthal
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ag 7 '49 850w

ANDERSON, MRS BARBARA (TUNNELL). Southbound. 339p $3 Farrar, Straus 49-7988

Novel about the struggles of a light-skinned blue-eyed Negro girl, Amanda Crane. Her grandmother was determined that Amanda should go to France to study music, because there would be less racial prejudice there. After her grandmother's death the girl managed to have her year in Paris; but when she returned to America it was to teach music among her own people.

Booklist 45:201; 241 F 15 '49; Mr 15 '49

Reviewed by Edith Fowke
Canadian Forum 29:119 Ag '49 350w

Christian Science Monitor p15 Ap 7 '49 130w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '49

"The portrait of Amanda, quiet, contained, and maintaining her integrity is a moving one, and her story—if less combustible than The Other Room, may attract some of that audience."
+ Kirkus 17:13 Ja 1 '49 170w

"Sketchy characterization and contrived situations make this an unconvincing book." A. H. Wagner
Library J 74:311 F 15 '49 90w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Jenkins
Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 19 '49 150w

"The flaw in this mosaic is Mrs. Anderson's failure to make Amanda as real as her environment. . . A skillful narrative style makes 'Southbound' a novel to be read for pleasure. Its sociological verity is prevalent but rarely obtrusive. There's a lesson for all Americans, however, in the Abraham Lincoln School Laura will not let Amanda attend; segregation built up in the North while we try to tear it down in the South is widening that chasm between the intelligent of both races." W. T. Hedden
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Mr 27 '49 550w

"The first half of the book—up to page 215, to be exact—is excellent. Here is naturalistic writing at its best. The opening section (Alabama and Ohio) is not only truthfully presented but underwritten with so much dignity and with such heart-wrenching episodes that one feels one is up against absolute truth. A writer can't make up a story like that. Unfortunately, the novelist drops her naturalistic style when she comes to the section on France. For no discernible reason she plunges into a rococo-romantic style of writing." Betty Smith
+ — N Y Times p10 Mr 20 '49 450w

New Yorker 25:104 Ap 2 '49 180w

"Barbara Anderson has made one more contribution toward the cause of racial tolerance. Her plea is all the more pointed for being utterly calm, utterly proud, and instinctively dignified. Stripped of physical violence, the torture she depicts has a lethal subtlety sometimes more venomous than the lash." C. M. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 Ap 30 '49 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p565 S 2 '49 360w

ANDERSON, CLARENCE WILLIAM. Bobcat; il. by [the author]. 99p $2.50 Macmillan

Horses—Legends and stories 49-49187

The hero is the horse Bobcat, who has appeared in two other books by this author. "Now a proud, independent 6-year-old, Bobcat has become too fast in the steeplechase for his own good. He has speed and stamina. At his age can he be made into a track racer? That's the problem which his owner, young Patsy, and the devoted groom, Holley, have to face." (N Y Times)

Booklist 46:190 F 1 '50

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p13 Ja 26 '50 110w

"One of the best horse stories Anderson has done, and illustrated by his beautiful drawings."
+ Kirkus 17:468 S 1 '49 110w

"The color, activity, and excitement of the race track are caught in this story of the dramatic record of a great chestnut racer." Alice McQuaid
+ Library J 74:1539 O 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 29 '50 50w

"There are warmth, wisdom and understanding and a lot of story between the covers of this slim book. The illustrations have sensitivity and strength." A. N. Fedder
+ N Y Times p12 Ja 1 '50 90w

ANDERSON, FRANK MALOY. Mystery of a public man; a historical detective story [including The diary of a public man]. 256p $3.75; text ed $3 Univ. of Minn.

973.71 Ward, Samuel. U.S.—History—Civil war—Sources. Diary of a public man 48-9962

"This little book is an attempt to clear up one of the long-standing mysteries of American history. In 1879 the North American Review published in four installments 'The Diary of a Public Man.' It was or purported to be a diary kept during the Secession Winter of 1860-1861. Not all the diary was published. Extracts for twenty-one days lying between December 28, 1860, and March 15, 1861, were included. . . Interest in this real or purported diary lies chiefly in two things. If genuine, it is a Lincoln document of capital importance. It is also important and of absorbing interest for its portrayal of leading men and its narration of significant events at Washington during the critical days just before the outbreak of the Civil War." (p.3) This volume is an account of the author's years of detective work, in his efforts to discover the identity of the diarist. Index.

ANDERSON, F. M.—Continued

"As an example of the search for and sifting of evidence the volume is a text for every seminar in historical method and should be required reading for graduate students majoring in history." F. L. Bullard
+ Am Hist R 54:627 Ap '49 750w

Reviewed by William Barrett
Atlantic 183:92 Mr '49 300w

Booklist 45:259 Ap 1 '49

"Students of Lincolniana will be especially interested."
+ Current Hist 16:231 Ap '49 60w

Reviewed by Norman MacKenzie
New Statesman & Nation 37:539 My 21 '49 1200w

"Anderson's narration of the steps by which he examined and cleared scores of Ward's fellow suspects, one by one, and the slow, microscopic maneuvers with which Ward was at last cornered will, I suspect, be alternately interesting and tediously repetitive to the lay reader, but his case against Ward is one that no student of Lincoln can ignore." Lloyd Lewis
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ja 30 '49 1150w

"There may be skeptics who will challenge the premise upon which Mr. Anderson's case is built. There may be sentimentalists who will admit that the testimony is sufficient to secure a conviction, but deplore the absence of an outright and gratifying confession. There probably will be faultfinders who will dispute and deny and even, perhaps, destroy particular minutiae of the argument. But Mr. Anderson's presentation is strong and honest enough to endure modification without risk of substantial change." D. C. Mearns
+ N Y Times p29 Ja 16 '49 900w

New Yorker 24:93 F 12 '49 180w

"The fascinating details by which Mr. Anderson locates and presents this 1879 contributor to the North American Review form the climax of the book. Who was he? He tells you convincingly, but suspense is of the essence. Read the book. You shouldn't miss it." J. G. Randall
+ Sat R of Lit 32:13 Ja 15 '49 650w

School & Society 69:214 Mr 19 '49 70w

"The Mystery of 'A Public Man' is amusing as a description of the trials and errors of an academic detective. It also unmasks some historical fairy tales. The diary has been one of the sources of the stories of Lincoln's homespun humor. This book shows that many of them were no more valid than the legends about Calvin Coolidge."
+ Time 53:62 Ja 3 '49 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p284 Ap 30 '49 1000w

"This book, clearly written and always interesting, interweaves substantive criticism and the narrative of its author's searches and discoveries in a manner testimonial to his own good sense of proportion."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:68 Mr '49 340w

ANDERSON, FULTON HENRY. Philosophy of Francis Bacon. 312p $4 Univ. of Chicago press
192.1 Bacon, Francis, Viscount St. Albans 48-3607

"A study of Bacon's writing as philosophy, in contradistinction to the many volumes on the literary level. Professor Anderson (Philosophy, University of Toronto), thinks the historians and scholars have failed to grasp the importance of this angle." (Current Hist) Indexes

"A scholarly work for philosophy students."
+ Current Hist 15:166 S '48 50w

"To read this study of Bacon's philosophy is to enter intimately into Bacon's own thought and language, in a manner which can scarcely fail to give the reader a deepened respect for this first English philosopher of modern times. The doctrine is revealed in its inner coherence, its amplitude of vision, and its balance of judgment, and through his doctrine Bacon himself is revealed in his steadfast loyalty to the mission of philosophy." E. A. Moody
+ J Philos 46:246 Ap 14 '49 2400w

School & Society 69:63 Ja 22 '49 50w

"The almost complete absence of critical discussion is a matter of intention. . . But Professor Anderson is surely mistaken in thinking that this is the best way to put a great philosopher before the contemporary reader. The truth is that Professor Anderson has written a prodigiously dull book. In part this is a consequence of his unfortunate prose style. . . Much more, the dullness springs from the absence of any principle of selection. . . It must be said that Professor Anderson's book will become indispensable. There is no other survey comparable in scope and no other book from which the diligent student who has no time and perhaps no incliniation to read the works themselves can derive so just a notion of the content of Bacon's writings. But the charm, the fascination, the enigma of Bacon, these are not there."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p476 Jl 22 '49 600w

ANDERSON, JOHN EDWARD. Psychology of development and personal adjustment. 720p $3.25 Holt
136 Psychology 49-3874

Textbook for college freshmen and sophomores. It is auxiliary to psychology and other general studies and is based upon lectures in a course in Human development and personal adjustment, given in the General College of the University of Minnesota. Bibliography. Index.

"The merit of John Anderson's book lies in his steady effort to hold together the experimental and clinical aspects of psychology. He frankly tries to be helpful. But he never gets far from the findings of psychological investigation. Advice is always rooted in fact. The result is a book as unexciting as it is thorough." Huston Smith
+ — Christian Century 66:1456 D '49 700w

School & Society 69:374 My 21 '49 30w

Survey 85:408 Jl '49 20w

ANDERSON, LUTHER A. Hunting the American game field. 311p il $3.50 Ziff-Davis
799.2 Hunting 49-10962

"It is the purpose of this volume to assist the devotee to reap the real and enduring thrills of hunting—to help in the selection of sporting arms, ammunition, and accessories, and their most effective use." (Foreword) Emphasizes safety factors and good sportsmanship. Index.

Booklist 46:118 D 1 '49

"There have been so many general books on fishing and specialized books on hunting, that it is rather a surprise to find one like this that covers so wide a range. I should think it would be an excellent choice for the small bookshop that needs only one stock item in this field, or the small public library that cannot cover all facets of the subject."
+ Kirkus 17:381 Jl 15 '49 190w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1205 S 1 '49 60w

ANDERSON, MAXWELL, and SOLT, ANDREW P. Joan of Arc; text and pictures from the screen play. 170p $2.95 Sloane
792 Jeanne d'Arc, Saint—Drama 48-9444

Photographs and snatches of text selected from the screen play of Joan of Arc, starring

Ingrid Bergman. The pictures follow Joan from her home to the moment when she is awaiting her death at the stake.

"The book is interesting only as a pictorial record of an actress who appears to be extraordinarily adapted physically to the role of the Maid, and whose face wears the mask of dedication." W. P. Eaton
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 F 13 '49 110w
Springf'd Republican p9B F 6 '49 130w

ANDERSON, SHERWOOD. Portable Sherwood Anderson; ed, and with an introd. by Horace Gregory. (Viking portable lib) 631p $2 Viking 49-856

Includes the whole of the novel Poor White; seven episodes from Winesburg, Ohio; six other short stories, among them The Egg, and A Meeting South; five portraits; and some newspaper writing and letters.

Booklist 45:226 Mr 1 '49
Chicago Sun p8X Ap 3 '49 110w
Reviewed by Alexander Klein
New Repub 121:18 Ag 15 '49 2100w

"In 'The Portable Sherwood Anderson' the reader will find the best of the writings of Mr. Anderson. Horace Gregory has edited the book with sensitivity and love." Harvey Breit
+ N Y Times p19 Ap 17 '49 400w

"A volume well worth owning." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 32:40 Ap 23 '49 100w
Time 53:96 F 28 '49 500w

ANDREAS, OSBORN. Henry James and the expanding horizon; a study of the meaning and basic themes of James's fiction. 179p $3.50 Univ. of Wash.
813 James, Henry 49-319

"By comparing the themes of all James's stories and novels and proceeding with a discerning logic in which the reader shares, the author uncovers the basic meaning common to all James's fiction." School & Society

"The author of this book, a retired industrial engineer and executive and a lifelong student of James, gives us a provocative introduction to the works of Henry James and a suggestive interpretation of them." L. E. Cannon
+ Christian Century 66:438 Ap 6 '49 340w

"Worthy of a desirable but slightly downfield spot on your James shelf, assuming you've started one."
+ New Yorker 25:99 F 26 '49 100w
School & Society 69:46 Ja 15 '49 30w

"The critical method of the book is pleasantly unpretentious. . . In hands less sensitive than those of Mr. Andreas, a method so apparently superficial would have resulted in a series of mere synopses. Yet, although it does not account for the whole of Henry James—for none of his poetry or structure and not always for his real meaning—this book has much of insight and wisdom in it."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:12 Mr '49 340w

ANDREWS, FRANK EMERSON. For Charlemagne! front. by Joseph Karov. 207p $2.50 Harper 49-11567

Story of Sigmund of Fulda, who came to the court of King Charles, later called Charlemagne, to study at the school of Alcuin. A plot is formed to overthrow the king, and Sigmund with other students contrives to outwit the plotters. For older boys and girls.

Booklist 46:144 D 15 '49

"An unusual and fine historical story." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 25:418 S '49 80w

"Absorbing reading."
+ Kirkus 17:511 S 15 '49 130w

"Although most of the book is sheer action, there is a strong feeling of respect for learning, and realization that fighting does not always determine the right and wrong of things." Esther Gorey
Library J 74:1546 O 15 '49 80w

"Fascinating material well handled." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 13 '49 270w

"It is an 'imperative' book for school libraries of the sixth grade up." Howard Pease
+ N Y Times p12 Ja 1 '50 170w

"The vivid background of Europe in 789 gives this historical value." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:46 N 12 '49 60w

"A fine historical story of a little written-about period."
+ Wis Lib Bul p12 N '49

ANDREWS, ROBERT DOUGLAS. Legend of a lady; the story of Rita Martin. 342p $3 Coward-McCann 49-8995

This novel relates the story of a dainty but ruthless woman who forced her way to the top in an advertising business, with its attendant radio soap operas, crushing everybody who attempted to block her progress.

Booklist 45:335 Je 1 '49
Reviewed by Bruce Taylor
Chicago Sun p6X Jl 3 '49 130w
Kirkus 17:158 Mr 15 '49 210w

"A cool, objective picture. . . Should appeal to women with its lonely little boy, its unloved wife, and plentiful love interest. Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 74:817 My 15 '49 90w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 S 11 '49 150w

"Mr. Andrews shows no mercy as he lays his victims on the operating table and exposes their stony hearts. . . It is unfortunate that Mr. Andrews has chosen to tell his story in the very vocabulary he decries: most of his dialogue and situations, including his whipsawed finale, could go on the air with almost no revision, so far as style is concerned. It is doubly unfortunate (for Mr. Andrews obviously knows his milieu) that most of his people are so unrelievedly one-track-minded, and so hastily documented, that they soon grow more boring than baleful. However, any reader who stays to the end will be equipped to face television unafraid." James MacBride
— N Y Times p10 My 29 '49 200w

"Mr. Andrews, who is reputed to have written as many soap operas as anyone else alive, presents some readable prose on the birth of the genre and the intrigues that go on around it."
New Yorker 25:97 My 28 '49 140w
Reviewed by C. M. Brown
— Sat R of Lit 32:26 Jl 23 '49 200w

"Played against a background of advertising and radio soap operas, the story of Rita Martin is maneuvered inexorably to its melodramatic conclusion, but the climax is lacking in conviction since Rita herself is never quite real enough to encompass the all too human frailty that overtakes her. The singleness of purpose evident in Andrews' novel is admirable, but the puppetlike precision with which each character responds to authorial string pulling is so completely obvious that the result is a diagram rather than an actual story, mechanically clever, but entirely artificial." L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p6D Je 19 '49 300w

ANDREWS, ROBERT HARDY. See Andrews, R. D.

ANGELO, VALENTI. Bells of Bleecker street; il. by [the author]. 186p $2.50 Viking 49-8136

Story of life in New York city's Bleecker Street section. Joey Enrico and his friend Pete the Squeak go thru many small exciting adventures in this story for ages eight to twelve. The time is near the end of the war.

ANGELO, VALENTI—Continued

Booklist 45:265 Ap 1 '49

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 170:213 D '49 50w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun My 7 '49 130w

"Valenti Angelo has never given us a more satisfying and realistic picture of a neighborhood than in this story of New York's Little Italy." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:212 My '49 120w

"There's a nice sense of family life and a real boy story, with scrapes and adventures galore, against a colorful background of the atmosphere of the countries from which the boys came."
+ Kirkus 17:110 Mr 1 '49 130w

"Recommended for boys and girls 8-12." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 74:738 My 1 '49 80w

"Here Mr. Angelo's many abilities combine in a complete success: his feeling for a place (this time Little Italy in New York), his remarkable insight into the hearts of small boys, his love of all people who do things well with their hands, his understanding of the Italian temperament, his keen artist's eye for detail, and his ability to write fluid, lively good English." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Mr 20 '49 450w

"Only grand opera, I have always felt, could do full justice to New York's Bleecker Street—its myriad sounds, its bustle and its neighborliness—but Mr. Angelo has come very close to it in this story of Joey Enrico. . . Some of the incidents are slight in themselves, but taken together they add up to a book full of warmth, vitality and fun." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p29 Ap 3 '49 180w

New Yorker 25:177 D 3 '49 70w

"A vivid, humorous tale of a typical New York boy."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 Jl 9 '49 110w

Wis Lib Bul 45:68 Ap '49

ANSHEN, RUTH NANDA (MRS RALPH HOWARD BRODSKY), ed. Family: its function and destiny. (Science of culture ser) 443p $6; college ed $4.50 Harper

392 Family 49-7466

A synthesis in which the editor and several other authors take up various aspects of the family. Partial contents: The family in transition, by R. N. Anshen; The family in Islam, by Arthur Jeffery; The family in China, by F. L. K. Hsu; The family in India, by David Mandelbaum; The family in Russia, by Maurice Hindus; The family in Latin America, by Arturo Torres-Rioseco; The Negro family, by E. F. Frazier; The family: genus Americanum, by Ruth Benedict; The social structure of the family, by Talcott Parsons; The emotional structure of the family, by Therese Benedek; Education and the family: certain unsolved problems, by K. N. Llewellyn; Housing and the family, by Charles Abrams and J. P. Dean; The crisis of the modern couple, by Denis De Rougemont; Sex and character, by Erich Fromm; Religious values, by A. L. Swift; The family: conveyance of tradition, by Paul Schrecker; The conservation of family values, by R. N. Anshen. Index.

Reviewed by M. M. Tumin
Am J Soc 55:307 N '49 1750w

"A symposium is often a curious phenomenon. It may tempt the invited authors to offer a refurbished manuscript that has languished in their files; to issue with some modifications a piece that has already been published elsewhere; or it may represent a chapter of a forthcoming book, whether pertinent to the symposium or not. In this collection by twenty-one eminent social scientists few such pot-boiling contributions appear, and the book does achieve considerable unity." M. F. Nimkoff
+ Am Soc R 14:695 O '49 750w

Reviewed by H. L. Jacobs
+ Christian Century 66:436 Ap 6 '49 350w

"It is a well organized and interesting survey."
+ Current Hist 16:230 Ap '49 50w

"If primarily for a sociological market, this is of wider potential interest."
+ Kirkus 16:638 D 1 '48 160w

Reviewed by Mirra Komarovsky
N Y Times p16 Ap 17 '49 650w

"A most valuable book." M. F. Ashley-Montagu
+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 F 19 '49 450w

School & Society 69:87 Ja 29 '49 40w

"It is a remarkable book, distinguished both for its integration and coherence as a whole and for the excellence of the individual pieces. . . Among so many valuable insights presented for the consideration of the thoughtful reader it is impossible to say of any one chapter 'This is the best' or 'This is the most important.' The book should be read by everyone who is interested in synthesizing and evaluating the best and most significant thought on one aspect of our cultural heritage." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p10B F 13 '49 360w

ANTHONY, HERBERT DOUGLAS. Science and its background. 304p il maps $3 Macmillan

509 Science—History [49-3366]

An attempt to "state . . . some of the achievements of science as a whole, in relation to the background of history, the progress of European civilization, and the life of today." Index.

"No thoughtful person can read this book without enlarging both his humility and his self-respect as a human being. Perhaps a little too much emphasis is placed on the contributions of British scientists during the past one hundred years, but this is understandable, as are some minor points as to exact dates. This book may have been written for school-age readers, but it provokes at any age thought and contemplation, eased by the simplicity and directness of the presentation." M. P. Tuve
+ Am Hist R 54:649 Ap '49 400w

"A small, simple and well-written book." Julian Sohon
+ Library J 74:821 My 15 '49 40w

ANTHONY, KATHARINE SUSAN. Dolly Madison; her life and times. 426p $4.50 Doubleday

B or 92 Madison, Dorothy (Payne) Todd 49-7197

A detailed life history of the wife of President James Madison. Besides being a description of Dolly Madison's long life (1768-1849) the book serves as a history of the United States thru two of its wars: the Revolution and the War of 1812, and several periods of Washington society. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:129; 191 D 15 '48; F 1 '49

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 28 '49 700w

"Classify this as history as well as biography, for it is an enlightening segment in the history of the young nation. . . The general public will find this excellent reading, with so much that is dramatic in period and personalities that the story swings right along."
+ Kirkus 16:635 D 1 '48 220w

"Filled with vivid, biographical sketches of all-important and interesting figures of this period . . . it gives a fascinating picture of our country and especially of Washington, D.C. Many letters and direct quotations are included to document, give emphasis and add color. . . Important, entertaining, highly recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 74:124 Ja 15 '49 140w

"At last this good subject and this good biographer have met. We are fortunate. . . The main criticism to be made of Miss Anthony's books is one inherent in her being a footloose student. . . In 'Dolly Madison' such short-cuts are now and then, sometimes painfully, apparent. . . But such things are little enough to forgive in a really important talent, as Miss Anthony's talent for biography surely is." E. H. Smith

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ja 23 '49 1800w

"Such a life cannot be separated from its historic background, and in this biography at times the heroine is almost invisible on the larger stage. But Miss Anthony has written the fullest and best account of Dolly Madison which has yet appeared in print. She attaches no such notes as professors do; but the honesty of her book is manifest." Dumas Malone

+ N Y Times p6 Ja 23 '49 1200w

"Miss Anthony, who has always done a sound and thoughtful job in her biographies of famous women . . . does equally well with Dolly, but her intense concentration on her heroine makes the other characters a bit shadowy."

+ — New Yorker 24:95 F 5 '49 100w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ap 17 '49 500w

"Her book is evidently meant for the general biography-reading public. It is, on the whole, forthright writing. It will and should pleasure that public, who, meanwhile, cannot be offended to learn that there is solid ground for this enjoyable feminine saga." Adrienne Koch

+ Sat R of Lit 32:25 Ja 29 '49 950w

Wis Lib Bul 45:46 Mr '49

APPLEBY, PAUL HENSON. Policy and administration. 173p $2.50 Univ. of Ala. press

353 Public administration. U.S.—Politics and government 49-9327

"This little book by the Dean of the Maxwell Graduate School is a compilation of a series of lectures delivered at the University of Alabama. Dr. Appleby's thesis is that public administration is not merely policy execution; in a very real sense it is policy formulation as well. Public administrators make policy both before and after law making. Before enactment, they advise the legislative branch on what the legislation should be; after enactment, they determine what the law is and what it means in terms of action. Thus the powers of the courts and even the powers of the legislative branch itself are in the main reserve powers." (Ann Am Acad) Index.

"The book will make an excellent central theme for a graduate seminar, an in-service training course, a civic discussion group; a valuable ally in general courses in government. Its teachings will modify ideas of public administration and of government generally." J. M. Gaus

+ Am Pol Sci R 43:1035 O '49 1050w

"Dr. Appleby is an able scholar and a brilliant writer. This book should be read not only by all students of public administration and all students of politics, but by all citizens who fear government." E. A. Helms

+ Ann Am Acad 265:177 S '49 360w

ARCHER, FRED ROBERT. On portraiture. 220p 210il $5.75 Camera craft

778.92 Photography—Portraits 49-7682

"A book of 'tricks of the trade' used by the author to secure excellent portraits. They involve posing, lights and lighting, exposure and developing, make-up, retouching, and glamour. Of value to both amateur and professional photographer." Library J

Booklist 45:206 F 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '49

Reviewed by Julian Sohon

Library J 74:550 Ap 1 '49 50w

ARCO PUBLISHING COMPANY, NEW YORK. Photography for fun and profit. 313p il $2.50 Arco

770.2 Photography—Handbooks, manuals, etc. 49-2456

"Reviews basic photographic principles and techniques. Includes chemistry, sensitized materials, optics, filters, photographic sensitometry, cameras, negative making, printing, copying, lantern slides, color photography and dark room practice." (Library J) Glossary of photographic terms. Index.

Reviewed by Julian Sohon

Library J 74:1032 Jl '49 30w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 10 '49 120w

"Almost in the category of a 'must' for the novice in photography who wishes to make something of his avocation." P. A. R.

+ Springf'd Republican p8C My 1 '49 180w

ARDIZZONE, EDWARD. Paul, the hero of the fire. 40p il $1 Houghton

49-7874

Picture storybook for young readers, describing the adventures of a little boy named Paul who took a job at the circus to help the family out of financial difficulties. When he saved the lives of children and animals during a fire he became the hero of the hour.

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun Je 18 '49 130w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p12 Jl 12 '49 90w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 25:129 Mr '49 70w

"Not very original or very satisfying, but illustrations are full of humor and color, and the flavor of the circus is satisfying. Because of the pictures, libraries will want at least one copy even though the binding will take very few circulations." N. L. Rathbun

Library J 74:499 Mr 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 My 8 '49 50w

"All told in that matter-of-fact fashion with which Mr. Ardizzone describes the most exciting or improbable events. This is a manner convincing to young children and satisfying to grown-ups who will likely have to read this story again and again. All ages will enjoy his fine pictures of life under the big top." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p24 Mr 13 '49 100w

"There is nothing very original about this story, but the drawings are original—and delightful. They are in color, and they have atmosphere and action. The background, the circus people, and the animals all have the quality that appeals to almost all boys and girls. . . Mr. Ardizzone has been careful to add the details that children seek." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:43 F 12 '49 230w

ARDIZZONE, EDWARD. Tim to the rescue. [48p] il $2.50 Oxford

49-48087

Story of Tim's adventures as second ship's boy. He gives lessons to the crew and rescues the ship's cat and the first ship's boy from drowning. For ages 5—8.

Booklist 46:103 N 15 '49

Chicago Sun p9X N 13 '49 80w

Reviewed by E. W. Kunkle

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 N 13 '49 120w

"The pictures are wonderful, full of humor and action, and comic book fans among the young readers will be enchanted with the running strips of pictures showing words coming out of the characters' mouths. . . The text —in manuscript type—is easy to read and runs in and out of the pictures in engaging manner."

ARDIZZONE, EDWARD—Continued
+ Kirkus 17:586 O 15 '49 170w

"Though not as large a book as Little Tim and the Brave Sea Captain, there is the same sense of the breadth and power of the sea and the same feeling of space. Humor, imagination and plausibility are happily blended in text and picture." A. G. Zebker
+ Library J 74:1531 O 15 '49 80w

"Vigorous, salty humor and the sweep of sky and sea are a part of this lively tale of high adventure for the young. Recommended." Mary Strang
+ Library J 74:1916 D 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by Mary Crozier
Manchester Guardian p4 N 29 '49 70w

Reviewed by Naomi Lewis
New Statesman & Nation 38:662 D 3 '49 70w

"This book is smaller in size than the earlier Tim books, and less dramatic. Neither story nor pictures is as good as in the preceding books. But this is not to say it is not well worth owning, and a happy continuing of the tale of Tim, an intrepid sea-loving Englishman." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 13 '49 150w

"Mr. Ardizzone develops all this charming foolishness in a decorous Victorian style which makes it all the funnier. He paints the wettest sea you ever saw. His illustrations are a joy to child and adult." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p12 N 13 '49 130w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:22 N 12 '49 50w

Reviewed by Honore Croome
Spec 183:848 D 9 '49 40w

ARLEY, NIELS. On the theory of stochastic processes and their application to the theory of cosmic radiation. 240p $5 Wiley

535 Cosmic rays. Probabilities 49-6503

"Monograph in both mathematics and physics. In the first part, the mathematical theory of stochastic (or random) processes is extended so as to make it applicable to the fluctuation problem in cosmic ray studies, but the methods presented have application also to other statistical problems which involve the prediction or measurement of random events. In the second part, the application of mathematical theory and method is illustrated explicitly, and comparisons are made between calculated predictions and observed experimental results. The work was first published in Denmark in 1943. This is the first American edition." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 34:71 S '49

"The book is an interesting and useful contribution to the literature of mathematical physics, which can be recommended to all physicists who can afford it." A. S. Wightman
+ R of Scientific Instruments 20:691 S '49 320w

ARMITAGE, MERLE, comp. Igor Stravinsky; ed. by Edwin Corle [works of art by: Pablo Picasso, and others; articles and essays by: Boris de Schloezer, and others]. 245p $6 Duell

B or 92 Stravinskii, Igor Fedorovich 49-10931

"Direct descendant of collection of essays edited in 1936 by Merle Armitage who is the designer of this book. Five of fifteen here are carryovers; the rest, new or reprints from other sources." (Library J) Some of the contributors to the anthology are: Edwin Corle, Jean Cocteau, Erik Satie, Eugene Goossens. Contains a discography and a list of Stravinsky's works.

Booklist 46:95 N 15 '49

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 12 '50 450w

"Quality and interest [of the essays] are extremely variable but worth having. I must criticize this as 'a fine book' because I cannot help thinking that it should have been published at a lower price. The pages of text are generally satisfactory but the type of the table of contents is ridiculously small." Leonard Burkat
+ — Library J 74:1604 O 15 '49 130w

"The impression of the whole is of a series of fugitive pieces, all good enough for newspaper or magazine publication, but scarcely of sufficient value to be taken up again between solid covers. . . Exceptions to the generalization made above are De Schloezer's long analytical article, translated by Ezra Pound, which is way out of date, but still of some interest; and Nicholas Nabokov's amusing account of a visit to Stravinsky in Beverly Hills." Alfred Frankenstein
— + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 18 '49 350w

Reviewed by Howard Taubman
N Y Times p5 N 27 '49 400w

"Few of the contributors seem to realize that it is no longer necessary to belabor the robust reputation of Richard Wagner in order to establish the thesis that Stravinsky is a composer of considerable distinction. Nor is it necessary today to wave the banner of the neo-classicists in order to explain his gifts. . . The one piece in the book that avoids both gush and aesthetic soapboxing is a delightfully humorous account by the composer Nicolas Nabokoff of a visit he paid recently to Stravinsky's home in Hollywood."
— + New Yorker 25:127 O 22 '49 220w

"All of this makes for pleasant, often fascinating, browsing, but it does not carry us from A to Z." Roland Gelatt
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:64 N 26 '49 220w

ARMSTRONG, MRS LUCILE. Dances of Portugal [il. by the author; music arr. for the piano by Ferdinand Rauter]. (Handbooks of European national dances) 40p $1.25 Chanticleer

793.31 Dancing—Folk and national dances 49-8034

Begins with introductory matter about the geography, traditions, costumes, and music of Portugal. Then follows the basic steps for four Portuguese dances, with piano accompaniments. Bibliographies.

Reviewed by Maria Cimino
+ Library J 74:668 Ap 15 '49 40w

"The material is useful to those interested in the topic, and the specialist will have no trouble in working out the dance analyses proper." Rosalyn Krokover
+ Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ap 30 '49 40w

ARMSTRONG, MAURICE WHITMAN. Great awakening in Nova Scotia, 1776-1809. (Studies in church history) 141p $3 Am. soc. of church hist.

269 Revivals 49-956

"Before the American Revolution and right afterward Nova Scotia was colonized chiefly from New England, and so the church history of Nova Scotia is a projection of that of New England. . . By 1775 half the Congregational pulpits were vacant, and the war added to the loss of ministers. With the failure of organized religion, a vigorous unorganized religion sprang up. It was more suited to the needs of the crude social environment, and it provided spiritual compensation for the enforced neutrality of these Yankees. This was 'The Great Awakening,' the work of Henry Alline, a young man whose schooling had stopped when, as a lad of twelve, he migrated with his parents from Rhode Island. From the commencement of his wandering mission in 1776 until his death in 1784 his impassioned preaching remade the religious life of the province." Am Hist R

"This careful study is an interesting illustration of how American history overlaps Canadian history." A. L. Burt
+ Am Hist R 55:202 O '49 300w

"Professor Armstrong has handled well a difficult subject. He was confronted with a paucity of source materials on a topic which requires unusual skill and perspicacity in interpretation. His contribution, which fills a gap in Canadian-American church history, will be welcomed by students in the field." W. M. Gewehr
+ J Religion 29:319 O '49 800w

ARNO, PETER. Sizzling platter. 118p il $2.95 Simon & Schuster
741.5 Caricatures and cartoons 49-48754

Collection of Arno cartoons, many of them reprinted from the New Yorker. A few have not been published previously.

"A number of quick sketches from the artist's pen are included—quick with life, that is, and of slashing vigor. As for the humor, it is unfaltering in every caption and line—a pectoral revue." Lisle Bell
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 4 '49 500w

Reviewed by George Biddle
N Y Times p7 D 18 '49 360w

San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 27 '49 80w

Time 54:90 N 28 '49 330w

ARNOBIUS, of SICCA. Case against the pagans; newly tr. and annot. by George E. McCracken; 2v bks. 1-7. (Ancient Christian writers; the works of the fathers in translation). v1 $3.50; v2 $3.25 Newman press
281.3 (49-8648)

"Before his conversion Arnobius, like Augustine, was a North African professor of rhetoric. Lactantius was one of his pupils while both were still pagans. He wrote his famous polemic, Adversus Nationes, about 300 A.D. Its Latin text has been many times printed (first in 1542), and the one previous English translation was included in the collection of 'Ante-Nicene Fathers' (1871). The present edition gives a new translation based on a fresh study of the text, with an extended introduction and very copious notes." Christian Century

"It is a fine piece of scholarly work throughout." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 66:1266 O 26 '49 900w

"While these pages from the past are not of a nature to rival the Imitatio Christi as a vade mecum of Christian devotion, they may still be read and pondered with profit as well as with interest." M. S. Enslin
+ Crozer Q 26:363 O '49 900w (Review of v 1)

ARNOLD, ELLIOTT. Deep in my heart. 511p $4.50 Duell
B or 92 Romberg, Sigmund 49-11092

"A story based on the life of Sigmund Romberg." (Subtitle) The author covers all aspects of Romberg's life from his boyhood in Hungary: his coming to America; and his years here as composer, conductor, radio star, and concert performer. Lists of Romberg shows, musical numbers and songs. Indexes.

Booklist 46:81 N 1 '49

"It is difficult to tell how much of 'Deep in My Heart' is fact, how much is fiction, but one thing is certain: whether Elliott Arnold is writing about Belisce or Vienna or Broadway, he manages to project the spirit of the time and place to the printed page." Ben Kartman
+ Chicago Sun O 20 '49 500w

"An effortless and enjoyable fairy tale narrative guaranteed to entertain any reader who likes Old Vienna and/or theater life and who does not demand of it deeper substance than the author has intended or than indeed is suitable to the subject." Fitzroy Davis
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 6 '49 500w

"There's something here of the appeal of Goodnight Sweet Prince (though Romberg lacks the glamor of Barrymore as a person). But chiefly the market is for those who like theatre background books—good popular music—that audience that immediately spots the title as from Romberg's first big hit, The Student Prince."
+ Kirkus 17:319 Je 15 '49 250w

"I can recommend it only as a reference tool in the field of the subject's chief activity since it contains a detailed list of works and publishers." Leonard Burkat
Library J 74:1604 O 15 '49 100w

"Mostly 'Deep in My Heart' is a personal story told by a skilled novelist who knows how to make artful use of the quotation mark. . . To insure that 'Deep in My Heart' will remain the standard source-book on Romberg, Mr. Arnold has included a copious index, a full list of his shows and movies, and an alphabetical compendium of song titles which is as complete, if not as choice, as the Koechel catalogue." Herbert Kupferberg
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 O 30 '49 500w

Reviewed by Mimi Wallner
— N Y Times p26 D 11 '49 180w

"Mr. Arnold has mixed fact and fiction in his narrative, particularly at the beginning where he discusses Romberg's youth. Nevertheless, if this isn't out-and-out biography, it is at least one writer's interpretation of Romberg the man and musician. The forewarned reader will enjoy it for what it is. . . Mr. Arnold's story of the man and his work is a glittering parade of American show business—a narrative in which the reader will encounter all sorts of happy reminders of shows he has seen, music he has heard, names he has known. There can be little question that this portion of the book is close to definitive biography. Mr. Arnold, working with Romberg himself, has got the facts in detail, and a brave and vivid tale it all makes. One is not so certain when it comes to character interpretation." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 10 '49 950w

"'Deep in My Heart' begins with something of the atmosphere of a juvenile biography, full of clearly manufactured dialogue and artless references to people and things that we now know to have been exceedingly significant. But the story gathers conviction as it progresses, particularly after the scene changes to the United States." Sigmund Spaeth
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:20 N 26 '49 750w

ARNOLD, HENRY HARLEY. Global mission. 626p il $5 Harper
940.544973 World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939-1945—Aerial operations. U.S. Air forces 49-10894

The former head of the Army air force combines his autobiography with the history of military aviation in the United States, and describes the part he and that organization played in World war II. Index.

Booklist 46:45 O 1 '49

Bookmark 9:26 N '49 30w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun O 25 '49 280w

"This book is analogous to General Arnold's bombers: it's big. Reading it is rather like piloting a B-29: one requires a navigator. Interspersed through 615 pages containing some 270,000 words are important facts and interesting stories. . . This book requires careful reading, and more time than most people can give. . . Many of his anecdotes, incidents, impressive facts and personal views of World War II, from his extremely authoritative position, are fascinating as one comes upon them amidst a good deal of extraneous material; but not all of them." Roland Sawyer
Christian Science Monitor p18 S 29 '49 450w

Current Hist 17:285 N '49 70w

Kirkus 17:377 Jl 15 '49 210w

ARNOLD, H. H.—Continued

"General Arnold has written one of the best books to come out of this war, from the personal as well as the strategic standpoint. . . Recommended." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 74:1461 O 1 '49 130w

Nation 169:354 O 8 '49 50w

"The book has the virtues and weaknesses of its author, which were in large measure the virtues and weaknesses of the Air Force high command which he directed. It is bubbling with energy, personal, with a fierce loyalty to the Air Force idea . . . and a passionate devotion to preconceived strategic theory. . . This book is for the most part easy reading in itself, and it will be an essential for any future student of air power in the second world war. But as the testament of one of the top generals of the world's greatest conflict, it is disappointing." Walter Millis

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p25 S 25 '49 1450w

"This is a delightful book; it brings out so strongly the lovable personality of 'Hap' Arnold. It is an important book; it fills in some gaps in our air history and adds to the martial literature of the twentieth century. It contains judgments and opinions that, no matter how controversial, should be read by all because of the wealth of the author's experience. And yet there is much that is disappointing in this record of a trust well performed. You can't help but like its author. You admire his compelling attributes—drive, faith in his arm and his weapon, the likable honesty and friendliness of a small boy, humor, directness. But Arnold's weaknesses emerge as well." H. W. Baldwin

+ — N Y Times p4 S 25 '49 1350w

"An important book and an easy one to read."

+ New Yorker 25:108 O 8 '49 200w

"It is a big, sprawling, rather disorganized, talkative but immensely readable book. It is General Arnold's personal autobiography, it is his collection of his best after-dinner stories, and it is, above all, an invaluable source book for history and historians." C. W. Weinberger

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 O 2 '49 1050w

"All that Arnold has to say is interesting and much of it is engaging and entertaining. And what he has not said is, at any rate, significant. He was in and out of such a variety of dog houses during his Army-and-Air-Force career that one can understand and sympathize with his evident desire to avoid, in this memoir written in the contented autumn of his hard-hitting life, the kind of uncompromising honesty that made him famous—and out of which most of those dog houses he used to live in were constructed." St. Clair McKelway

+ Sat R of Lit 32:19 O 29 '49 1350w

Springfield Republican p8C N 27 '49 420w

Time 54:102 S 26 '49 1050w

ARNOLD, LEWIS, pseud. See Evans, D.

ARNOLD, MATTHEW. Portable Matthew Arnold; ed. and with an introd. by Lionel Trilling. (Viking portable lib) 659p $2 Viking

828 49-9982

Selections from the poems, critical essays, political works, and letters of Matthew Arnold.

Booklist 46:64 O 15 '49

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 O 23 '49 50w

New Yorker 25:115 S 17 '49 60w

"Mr. Trilling begins his capital introduction to the present volume with the assertion that 'of the literary men of the great English nineteenth century there are few who have stayed quite so fresh, so immediate, and so relevant as Matthew Arnold,' and this statement is fully justified by the six hundred and more pages of poetry and prose that follow. Arnold is fresh and immediate and relevant because his predicament is ours—he merely knew it a little earlier." B. R. Redman

+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 Ag 27 '49 290w

ARNOLD-FORSTER, WILLIAM. Shrubs for the milder counties; foreword by Lord Abercon-way; with a chapter on magnolias by G. H. Johnstone [pub. under the auspices of the Cornwall branch of the Council for the preservation of rural England]. 367p pl $10 Scribner

635.976 Shrubs 49-8005

The counties of the title refers to the southern counties of England, especially Cornwall, altho parts of Wales and West Scotland are included. The book presents lists and descriptions of shrubs and some trees suitable to these parts of Britain. Illustrated with photographs. Index.

"Chiefly this will interest specialists in the field, rather than the individual home owner, as a contribution to a wider knowledge of some of the developments in the famous gardens of England under adverse conditions of weather, and exposure, as well as some of the things that are being done in public highway and community housing planting. . . Very limited in appeal."

Kirkus 17:136 Mr 1 '49 150w

"Clearly an importation from England, written for England and far more applicable there than on this side of the Atlantic." R. S. Lemmon

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 N 6 '49 50w

"It is wholly devoted to the many shrubs that can be grown in the warmer parts of Britain, for which reason it may well be of interest to those West Coast gardeners whose climates—one thinks of Oregon and Washington, but parts of California would fit—approximate more or less the conditions of the English counties in which the author has done his research. . . Those who have the problem of a windy garden will note that Mr. Arnold-Forster's personal and private gardening is done, with huge success, on one of the windiest heights on the Cornish coast." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 2 '49 170w

ARNOW, MRS HARRIETTE LOUISA (SIMPSON). Hunter's horn. 508p $3.50 Macmillan

49-8978

"A poor white subsistence farmer, aroused by the depredations of a fox, obsessed by determination to kill it, urged by natural love of the chase, handicapped by a weakness for moonshine, almost brings his farm and family to ruin. Unforgettable, many-sided picture of family and community life in Kentucky hills." Library J

Booklist 45:273; 313 Ap 15 '49; My 15 '49

Bookmark 9:5 O '49 40w

"It is a pity that frequent lapses in good taste and a pessimistic underlying philosophy prevent the wholehearted recommendation of a novel that has a good story to tell and a real feeling for the Kentucky countryside and its people."

Cath World 169:401 Ag '49 240w

"It's hard to say just how Miss Arnow did it, but she did, and we have now one of the best pictures, one of the most real portraits, of that section of America. . . The book is filled with poetry; it reads as if it should be read aloud a chapter an evening. Perhaps even should be chanted. 'Hunter's Horn' is a book that should be savored over a long period of time." Felke Feikema

+ Chicago Sun Je 2 '49 290w

"Harriette Arnow has invested her story of the Kentucky hills with a tenderness that takes away the sting of its realism. . . Artistically speaking, there are too many birth-scenes, except as they make unequivocal the primitive ways and the situation of women on those farms of the hillsides and creek valleys. For the evocation of a time and a place it would be hard to match in today's novels the part of Mrs. Arnow's first chapter that tells about the way evening came on Little Smokey Creek."

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 16 '49 180w

"This is a pastoral of the Kentucky hills and one of the finest 'grass roots' novels written in many a year." Harold Preece

+ Churchman 163:18 S 1 '49 100w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '49

"A novel of compelling charm. This despite several big obstacles. Mrs. Arnow's constant folksy dialogue has long been spoiled by strips such as Li'l Abner. It includes one rude phrase in particular, repeated on every conceivable occasion by one and all. . . There are times when Mrs. Arnow's sense of pity verges on sentimentality. Even the improvident Nunn seems to arouse lively sympathy on the most unaccountable occasions. The author engenders throughout a feeling akin to charity toward all her untutored hill people. But whatever the full explanation, 'Hunter's Horn' is a story in which it is easy to lose yourself." E. S. Skillin

+ — Commonweal 50:226 Je 10 '49 650w

"The interrelated affairs of an isolated community are lusty, often very funny, and not without sentiment."

Kirkus 17:158 Mr 15 '49 220w

"A really remarkable regional novel—our candidate for the Pulitzer Prize. . . Characters amazingly real, incident after breathless incident alternating in elation and despair, and just enough humor to make it perfect." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 74:735 My 1 '49 100w

"Unfortunately, the fox fails to pull the book together. As a continuous narrative, it is lost in the multiplicity of incident; as a symbol, the fox is inadequately and only intermittently developed. In spite of these strictures, Hunter's Horn is an unusually good book of its kind." John Farrelly

+ — New Repub 121:26 Ag 1 '49 460w

"A fresh, intimate novel about a close little group of Kentucky mountain people. It is outstanding in that it is quite grown up, fully mature in its philosophy of life. The values to which as a novelist she commits herself in the weaving of her tale are subject to the realities of the life of the Ballew family under a rigidly exacting culture and a hard environment. Her close observation of the ways of her mountain people, her sensitive awareness of what goes on inside and amongst the various members of the Ballew family, and her skill in recording it all give 'Hunter's Horn' its delightful narrative appeal. But it is the underlying philosophy—the willingness to accept and present life as it is—which fits the novel into its fine, strong frame of universality." F. H. Bullock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Je 5 '49 800w

"The truest feat of the imagination in fiction is to create and people a private world, which is what the good novel always does. To accomplish this with no apparent effort, so that the reader simply loses sight of how the thing is done in his enjoyment of what it is, may very well be called the supreme test of the maker of fiction. It is a test Mrs. Arnow passes with flying colors. She writes, or seems to write, as effortlessly as a bird sings, and the warmth, the beauty, the sadness and the ache of life itself are not even once absent from her pages." Herschel Brickell

+ N Y Times p4 My 29 '49 600w

Reviewed by Hamilton Basso

New Yorker 25:87 Je 4 '49 200w

"If you read your novels with an eye to symbols, you'll have a time for yourself with King Devil. But how you choose to interpret matters in this story is not important. What matters in this story is its staying power. In it you will find that union of pattern and freedom that helps to explain the quality of beauty in a novel." Jane Voiles

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Je 6 '49 850w

"In these pages Harriette Arnow has brought to glowing life a people, a way of life and a culture. Neither William Faulkner nor Jesse Stuart, I think, has done better for the people of the South, and it is my guess that Mrs. Arnow's book will have wider appeal for people everywhere than the books of either." V. P. Hass

+ Sat R of Lit 32:20 Je 25 '49 750w

Time 54:96 Jl 11 '49 450w

ARTHUR, MRS JULIETTA K. How to make a home business pay. 330p $2.95 Prentice-Hall

650.2 Business. Woman—Occupations
49-48445

"A comprehensive book covering the development and operation of a business in the home from the germ of an idea in a woman's mind, through investigation of procedures, sources of materials and equipment, legal requirements, where and how to find a market, problems of packaging and shipping. Deals with services conducted from the home, the more common marketing of the products of the kitchen, dairy and garden, and with handicrafts arts." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:137 D 15 '49

"A sound and thoroughly investigated consideration of what women may do at home to supplement their incomes moderately."

+ Kirkus 17:415 Ag 1 '49 130w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 74:1754 N 15 '49 100w

+ San Francisco Chronicle p29 Ja 8 '50 120w

"As in her previous book, 'Jobs for Women over 35,' Mrs. Arthur has spared no effort to secure every detail of practical help. For instance if the kitchen is to be the work center, she gives not only detailed costs, but such facts as best working heights for sinks and cupboards." H. S. N.

+ Springf'd Republican p10B D 25 '49 120w

"Based on actual experiences, and definitely valuable."

+ Wis Lib Bul p7 D '49

ASCH, SHALOM. Mary; tr. by Leo Steinberg. 436p $3.50 Putnam

Mary, Virgin—Fiction. Jesus Christ—Fiction
49-10817

The final volume of the author's trilogy completing the story begun in The Nazarene and The Apostle (Book Review Digest, 1939, 1943). This follows the story of Mary and her Son from Mary's marriage to Joseph to the Crucifixion and Resurrection.

Booklist 46:25; 47 S 15 '49; O 1 '49

Bookmark 9:29 N '49 40w

"The novel is embellished with many descriptive details of Jewish life and custom that make the reading enjoyable as well as instructive. While his attitude toward her seems to be one of reverence and love, Asch's Mary is not the Mary of the Gospels and Christian tradition. . . The book will undoubtedly enjoy a wide circulation because of Asch's ability as a storyteller. Since he has relied to such a large extent upon his imagination and upon apocryphal sources, it will, however, occasion many misunderstandings about the true Mary and her role in the religion established by her Divine Son." R. B. Farley

+ — Cath World 170:318 Ja '50 400w

"Beautifully written, finely detailed novel." Emmett Dedmon

+ Chicago Sun p25X O 9 '49 500w

Reviewed by Pierre Van Paassen

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 D 25 '49 90w

"The human picture he has given of the life of the times he portrays is deeply impressive. . . Certain of the individual portraits are very satisfying—notably, the Joseph. Others seem disappointing. . . The true value of such books lies in their enrichment of the human background of Bible times, which must turn the thoughtful reader back to the Bible records with deeper appreciation of their great beauty and their spiritual import." O. D. Hormel

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 O 13 '49 800w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '49

"This is a great book in the tradition of its predecessors, The Nazarene and The Apostle, and many will find it easier reading than either of these. Rooted in scholarship, in thorough absorption in place and period, this story of the Mother of Jesus succeeds in keeping Mary

ASCH, SHALOM—Continued
(or Miriam as she is called in the Hebrew tradition) at the core, the heart of the whole."
+ Kirkus 17:436 Ag 15 '49 500w

"A novel of great beauty. . . Added to The Nazarene and The Apostle a gifted scholarly author has completed a powerful trilogy. For all libraries." L. R. Miller
+ Library J 74:1460 O 1 '49 190w

"Sholem Asch has lavished nearly two thousand pages in the last decade or two on the lives and times of the few first Christians, but there is no evidence here of the flagging interest and very few signs of the waning inspiration, of a vein running out, that often marks the work of those who have written too much and too long on one subject. 'Mary' is rather a coda that restates all preceding themes, adding and transforming as it goes, achieving in the end an impact and a magic force all its own." Milton Rugoff
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 O 9 '49 1050w

"With this new novel Sholem Asch completes a trilogy begun in 'The Nazarene' and continued in 'The Apostle' that represents by far the most distinguished work in the New Testament field." Edmund Wagenknecht
+ N Y Times p5 O 9 '49 700w
New Yorker 25:105 O 8 '49 70w

"Contrary to an older tradition in biographies of Jesus and the Holy Family, Sholem Asch does not balk at miracles. His scene of the annunciation is extremely powerful and in the account of the wedding at Cana of Galilee there is no hesitation about the water turning into wine. Interesting enough, however, the three kings, in Christian tradition representative of the gentile races, become for him the three kingly patriarchs of Israel, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. The great quality of this book is that Jesus and Mary and Joseph are firmly rooted in Jewish soil. It is a Judaism that is a living and vital religion finding its focus in its promised Messiah, not a dead religion supplanted by Christianity." E. M. Tainton
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 O 23 '49 450w

"Sholem Asch's finished trilogy is an epic work in the grand tradition, intellectually, spiritually, and in literary stature. Among Biblical re-creations only Thomas Mann's is its equal, with Gladys Schmitt's 'David the King' deserving honorable mention. By contrast with the nearly fool-proof elements in the drama of Jesus, 'The Apostle' is the grandest in scale, the most difficult, probably the most notable achievement of Asch's trilogy. 'Mary,' however, in its simplicity and tenderness, is likely to move its readers the most deeply." Edmund Fuller
+ Sat R of Lit 32:19 O 8 '49 950w

"'Mary' is both an exquisite, delicate pastoral, preserving all the tender tradition of Christian faith . . . and an intensely dramatic and tragic story of a mother who witnesses and suffers with her son's agony. Out of such superb essence, Asch has written a vibrant and human account of those precious events that are so large a part of the Christian heritage and concept, yet in the writing he has preserved and glorified his story in the genuine Hebrew tradition. Thus it is, in reality, that Mary, so dear to Christians, is also clearly and tenderly Miriam, in whose heart and bosom are locked the keys of salvation for the House of David." L. S. Munn
+ Springf'd Republican p8C O 30 '49 800w
Time 54:100 N 7 '49 700w
+ Wis Lib Bul p8 N '49

ASCOLI, MAX Power of freedom. 173p $2.75 Farrar, Straus
321.8 Democracy. Liberty. World politics 49-7212

The author is an Italian-born political exile, now a citizen of the United States. In his book he attempts to prove that the democratic position in the present world is stronger than we realize, but it is jeopardized by the fact that our thinking on the subject has become cliché-ridden and out-of-date. The book is in three parts: the world civil war; freedom; and politics. No index.

Booklist 45:204 F 15 '49
Reviewed by W. F. Morse
Chicago Sun p6X Ja 30 '49 320w
Reviewed by L. J. Wollemborg
Commonweal 50:100 My 6 '49 600w
Current Hist 16:230 Ap '49 50w
Foreign Affairs 27:679 Jl '49 20w

"This is a book that will make thoughtful readers reexamine their thinking, as we face a new and adult world. . . Important."
+ Kirkus 16:610 N 15 '48 280w

"Not light reading, it is nevertheless an important discussion of some of the things, aside from dollars, which America has to contribute." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 74:124 Ja 15 '49 130w

"This is a thinker's book—by a thinker and for thinkers. In literary style it is something special, Max Ascoli's own—epigrammatic, picturesque, masterful. One is tempted on every page to lift some sentence to tuck away in one's cardfile of colorful quotations. But one reading is not enough for full comprehension of 'The Power of Freedom,' only enough to light a flame of interest. Thinkers will want that flame refueled by rereading. This book should be required reference for every class in political science and a handbook for every concerned citizen." B. J. Hovde
+ Nation 168:640 Je 4 '49 1400w

"A relatively short book, free of scholarly encumbrances or historical digressions. In style it is gnomic, didactic, sometimes repetitious and obscure, yet lit by keen insights and haunting phrases." August Heckscher
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ja 30 '49 750w

"This brief volume [is] scarcely more than an essay, but [is] always challenging and frequently brilliant." L. D. Baldwin
+ N Y Times p23 Ja 23 '49 700w

"A readable and cheering book."
+ New Yorker 24:69 Ja 29 '49 100w
Reviewed by David Hecht
San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 27 '49 500w

"A vigorous and optimistic book. . . Perhaps other readers who see more clearly than I will find in Mr. Ascoli's pages more suggestions than I do of the political action that should be taken. All readers will find 'sweeps' of excellent rhetoric." Lindsay Rogers
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:12 Ja 22 '49 700w
Wis Lib Bul 45:44 Mr '49

ASHTON, HELEN (MRS ARTHUR JORDAN). Parson Austen's daughter. 337p $3 Dodd
Austen, Jane—Fiction 49-5073

Biographical novel retelling the story of Jane Austen. Based on family papers, letters, and biographies, it follows the whole course of her life, from Steventon parsonage in 1775 to the lodging in Winchester, where she died in 1817.

Booklist 45:382; 46:13 Jl 15 '49; S 1 '49.
Bookmark 9:5 O '49 30w

"Intended primarily for the pleasure of Janeites, they will probably be the most disappointed in Parson Austen's Daughter. . . In this picture of the garb, food, parlor games and watering-places of Jane Austen's day, her sisters and her cousins and her aunts are carefully portrayed, but more could be learned about Jane herself by a re-reading of one of Elizabeth Bennett's exchanges with Mr. Darcy." Clorinda Clarke
— + Cath World 170:157 N '49 200w
Reviewed by James Brown
Chicago Sun N 16 '49 420w

"As a novel Miss Ashton's book tells very quietly an absorbing story, evinces a just and delicate perception of character, and a fine sense of period. As a conception of Jane, it certainly deserves the most respectful consideration." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 29 '49 480w

Reviewed by E. V. R. Wyatt

+ Commonweal 51:47 O 21 '49 230w

"Book is not for the casual novel reader but rather for the Janeite who will take it for its contribution to the beloved subject." K. T. Willis

Library J 74:1023 Jl '49 80w

"Miss Ashton, the experienced author of a score of novels, has created with exquisite skill a fictional portrait of Jane Austen and her world which is not only more vivid but in a deep sense more true than most biographies. She has added nothing to the story revealed in the author's letters and the successive memoirs written by members of the Austen family, but she has so deftly chosen angles of vision best calculated to bring out implicit values and so tactfully illumined each scene with delicate understanding that the record comes alive under her hands." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 S 4 '49 1000w

"Miss Ashton has fallen into what must be the greatest fault of a biography based on fiction—all the excitement, the inspiration, the interest, lies in the novels, and the second-hand characters who creep into the biography are stale and lifeless beside their fictional counterparts. It seems only sensible to believe that Jane Austen was a creature of far more stature and intensity than this sharp-tongued, literary, maiden aunt of the Austen family, and that she should be beaten into mediocrity with her own novels is more than unkind. Both Miss Ashton and Miss Bonavia-Hunt deal, in their own fashions, with a personality and a body of fiction they love dearly; both their books are labors of affection and familiarity; both their hearts are in right places. The trouble is, I think, that while imitation is, of course, the sincerest flattery, pastiche is not." Shirley Jackson

N Y Times p9 S 11 '49 320w

"The pattern followed by Mrs. Ashton is one that shows Jane Austen as she appeared to her sister Cassandra, to her brothers, to her nieces and nephews and to her friends. This method tends to make the texture of the story a little uneven in places but it succeeds in giving a rounded portrait of Jane herself." J. V.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p32 N 20 '49 550w

"Miss Ashton's hybrid book is plainly a work of love and admiration, but it adds nothing to Jane Austen's portrait as it exists in the avowed biographies, or to our understanding of her art."

— + Sat R of Lit 32:10 D 10 '49 280w

"Miss Ashton, who does this kind of fictionalised literary biography with uncommon skill, grace and integrity, seems to have assimilated every bit of knowledge about Jane Austen that scholarship provides. And not about Jane Austen only. What she has produced is rather a history within a lightly constructed period framework, of Jane's family and its circle." R. D. Charques

+ Spec 182:734 My 27 '49 190w

Springf'd Republican p5D O 2 '49 550w

"Miss Ashton has set herself a very difficult task in trying to make a novel out of what was outwardly a most uneventful life; and has added a heavy handicap by voluntarily leaving out all but the most passing reference to Jane Austen's writing. . . Miss Ashton's peculiar system of punctuation, relying almost entirely on the comma, induces a feeling of breathlessness and a surprising monotony and lack of emphasis. The book has obviously been a labour of piety and love, involving much careful research, so that it is a pity that it falls between the two stools of serious biography and frivolous fiction."

Times [London] Lit Sup p377 Je 10 '49 270w

ASSOCIATION FOR SUPERVISION AND CURRICULUM DEVELOPMENT. Building America textbook series; Frances M. Foster, editor. 5v il maps ea $4.95 Building Am, 2 W. 45th st, N.Y. 19

300 Social problems. U.S.—Social conditions 48-228

"Building America, according to the publisher, 'is a series of pictorial studies of vital modern problems. Each study unit deals with some important aspect of our social, political, economic, cultural, or international life, and treats America's modern problems frankly and objectively.' . . Aspects of American life, and of international problems affecting America, are presented in study units developed primarily for students of social studies in the seventh through the ninth grades. The editors state their approach is that 'the nation's historical achievements are reported, the present shortcomings and problems are noted, and various proposals for bettering conditions are set forth.' Each unit follows this pattern as far as possible. . . At the end of each unit is an extensive, annotated, well-planned bibliography. Books, pamphlets, and periodicals are included as well as names of organizations which distribute free and inexpensive materials on the various subjects. Some of the references are selected for their readability and appeal to the students in the seventh through the ninth grades, but a number, especially of books, are apparently for the use of the teacher." Subscription Bks Bul

---

"Those who do not agree with the editors, and who feel that only the nation's achievements should be presented to young people, will be occasionally distressed at the emphasis on the less attractive side of American life, for instance, in the article on Housing. On the whole, however, the writing is interesting, facts carefully substantiated, the good and the bad points fairly balanced, and the material well within the reading level of the prospective users. . . Building America in this present edition continues to fulfill successfully its purpose as stated at the beginning of this review. The carefully planned and presented units should be helpful in schools for actual classroom use, but also should be of value in school libraries and for younger readers in public libraries. The set will also be helpful for adults with reading or language difficulty, as the language is simple but not juvenile. Since separate bound volumes may be purchased, they should be considered for library circulation, and will undoubtedly be much more used for this purpose than for reference. Building America is recommended."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 20:3 Ja '49 1450w

ATKINS, STUART PRATT. Testament of Werther in poetry and drama. 322p $4.50 Harvard univ. press

832.62 Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von—Werther 49-7987

"Story of Goethe's Werther, its influence on the literature of Germany, France, and England, and its use as the basis for other literary works. Professor Atkins (Harvard) analyzes the original Werther story as well as some of the tales drawn from it." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Atkins interprets a great wealth of material, some of which he has newly brought to light. His bibliography (83 pages) inspires awe. This is an informative and interesting study in the field of comparative literature." Hanna Spencer

+ Canadian Forum 29:71 Je '49 280w

Current Hist 16:289 My '49 40w

"A superb work of scholarship." T. H. Ferril

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 29 '49 120w

Reviewed by Robert Halsband

Sat R of Lit 32:13 My 28 '49 250w

U S Quarterly 5:153 Je '49 170w

ATKINSON, ORIANA (TORREY) (MRS JUSTIN BROOKS ATKINSON). Big eyes; a story of the Catskill mountains. 294p $3 Appleton 49-6109

Story of a life in a remote Catskill mountain village in the early 1900's. The heroine is a determined small person, called Eyzie Miles, who fixes her mind on two things: the old Wall house and Bo Bedell. It took her years to realize her ambition, and her morals slipped more than once on the way, but to the scandal of the good people of the village, she achieved both the house and the husband.

"A refreshingly funny, in a wry way, regional novel."
+ Kirkus 17:439 Ag 15 '49 200w

"Unfortunately, the account of [the heroine's] unconventional actions may exclude this book from many public libraries." H. S. Taylor
Library J 74:1320 S 15 '49 60w

"In telling the story of Eyzie, Mrs. Atkinson lays before the reader a whole town, its tough, ironic way of talking, its sharpness and unfriendliness, its prejudices and its humor. The author does not attempt any very serious exploration of people and why they act as they do in this novel, but with an excellent ear for local speech and a suitably brisk, ironic narrative style, she has made Eyzie and the people of Atta clear and memorable."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 O 16 '49 320w

"A large part of the novel's charm derives from the authentic backwoods atmosphere which the author creates through vividly drawn minor characters. Mrs. Atkinson brings to her novel the same kind of astute observation of mores which marked her account of everyday life in Soviet Russia, 'Over at Uncle Joe's.' Eyzie seems to lack the contradictions of a universal type. But she does illustrate, in her own way, that unique American ideal—the pursuit of happiness." Nona Balakian
+ N Y Times p42 O 2 '49 380w

"Mrs. Atkinson's people are relatively uncomplicated and some adhere a bit closely to familiar type, but this doesn't prove much of a handicap for this tale, in which everything that happens is rather taller than life-size. Fortunately, its Eyzie's story all the way through and, every time those eyes of hers get a speculative look in them, something is inevitably bound to happen. The ensuing ruckus in the Catskills makes good reading." Hollis Alpert
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:55 O 8 '49 650w
— Time 54:114 O 10 '49 170w

ATTWATER, DONALD, ed. See A Catholic dictionary

ATTWOOD, WILLIAM H. The man who could grow hair; or, Inside Andorra; drawings by Roger Duvoisin. 240p $2.75 Knopf

818 Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-9186

A collection of reports made by an American foreign correspondent who was in Europe and Africa from 1946 to 1948. They are mostly amusing, whether he is engaged in research on prostitution in Paris, visiting Andorra, or attending a Socialist barbecue in the French Sudan. Three of the chapters first appeared in the New Yorker.

Booklist 45:372 Jl 1 '49

"A couple of years as a foreign correspondent seems to bring out the book in a man. In the case of William Attwood, young Paris correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune in 1946-48, the book is a collection of amusing autobiographical stories which show the lighter, brighter—and one must say slighter—side of postwar Europe and Africa." R. N.
Christian Science Monitor p16 Jl 9 '49 310w

"In spite of the grim shambles of the Continent he learned that there is a time for laughter, in spite of the threats of the future, he found guts and resiliency, and although there is levity, there is warm sympathy and understanding. Not for the too serious minded but sure fire for a special audience."
Kirkus 17:170 Mr 15 '49 300w

"Uneven but usually very funny book, handsomely made, deftly illustrated by Duvoisin, which will convince you that life in Europe is not all gloom." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:890 Je 1 '49 110w

"Mr. Attwood did well to write this book, which does in its pleasant way succeed in answering and challenging quite a few of the banalities and untruths we are all too prone to utter upon the subject. More than that, it is vivid, good-hearted and full of fun." Iris Barry
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Je 12 '49 600w

" 'The Man Who Could Grow Hair' is never a bitter book, nor even a critical one, though the author has a few sharp words for Communists, foreign and domestic, and for red baiters too. But the severest attack in the book is one never made in so many words: Mr. Attwood gives the lie direct to those who aver that Europeans are a beaten and inert people, that the humor has gone out of them, and with it the spice of European life." D. M. Mankiewicz
+ N Y Times p10 Jl 24 '49 390w
New Yorker 25:101 Je 11 '49 120w

Reviewed by William Hogan
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 6 '49 650w

Reviewed by Lee Rogow
Sat R of Lit 32:20 Jl 30 '49 500w

ATWATER, MONTGOMERY MEIGS. Smoke patrol. 214p $2.50 Random house 49-10417

The hero of Hank Winton, Smokechaser (Book Review Digest 1947) here embarks on a career of firefighting in the parachute division. For grades seven to nine.

Booklist 46:36 S 15 '49

"All in all, the career aspects outweigh the fictional, but the story carries the reader along."
Kirkus 17:270 Je 1 '49 130w

"The details of the training are interestingly related and compensate for the weak character development and unsatisfactory plot." M. A. Herr
— + Library J 74:1610 O 15 '49 60w

Reviewed by Creighton Peet
N Y Times p18 Ja 22 '50 140w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:29 N 12 '49 20w

AUBREY, JOHN. Brief lives, and other selected writings; ed. with an introd. and notes by Anthony Powell. 409p $3.75 Scribner

920 Great Britain—Biography 49-10871

Brief notes and comments on the lives of Englishmen of the seventeenth century, with a few notes on men of earlier times. The author was an English antiquary, who was born in 1626, and died in 1697. These biographical jottings are based on Clark's two-volume edition of the Brief Lives (1898). Included are selections from Aubrey's Wiltshire Collections, from his Miscellanies, and other writings. Index.

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p20 D 4 '49 220w
Kirkus 17:537 S 15 '49 90w
+ Manchester Guardian p4 S 9 '49 80w

"Mr. Powell's edition is scholarly, sensible and balanced—Aubrey has not been gutted for his scandals and fantasies—and it is obviously the book for the general reader. To the Lives themselves have been added Aubrey's remarkable survey of English history and habits, a vivid, rapid and crotchety essay which contains a brilliant analysis of the South Wilts and North Wilts character." V. S. Pritchett
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:222 Ag 27 '49 1900w

"The outstanding feature of this collection is Mr. Powell's introductory brief life of Aubrey himself, which makes quite as good reading as Aubrey's own succinct jottings."

+ New Yorker 25:135 N 5 '49 190w

"Readers who do not know Aubrey have missed much pleasure. He is a bubbling source of information, misinformation, and entertainment. Some will value him chiefly for his scandalous anecdotes and gossip . . . while others will read him for the light he casts on many famous and less than famous characters, and the glimpses he gives us of a long since vanished way of life." B. R. Redman

+ Sat R of Lit 32:39 N 5 '49 140w

AUDUBON, JOHN JAMES. American birds [16 col. pl] from [his] plates; with an introd. and notes by Sacheverell Sitwell. 12p $1.50 Batsford

598.2 Birds—North America

Reproductions of sixteen plates from Audubon's The Birds of America, with an introduction by Sacheverell Sitwell, containing information on Audubon himself, as well as on ornithological subjects. Brief notes point out the significance of each plate.

Library J 74:1562 O 15 '49 20w

"Enthusiastically recommended." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 74:1821 D 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by A. W. Boyd

+ Manchester Guardian p4 O 21 '49 120w

"The color printing, done in Holland, is striking; the appreciative commentary by Mr. Sitwell, which takes up as much space as the drawings, is perhaps no less so."

+ New Yorker 25:111 S 10 '49 50w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 4 '49 150w

"In the dozen pages of Mr. Sitwell's highly literate introduction there is much engrossing information about the ornithologists, artists, painters, and engravers who contributed to early books on birds." L. R. Sander

+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 N 5 '49 80w

AUGUSTINE, SAINT, bp of HIPPO. Basic writings; ed. with an introd. and notes by Whitney J. Oates. 2v $10 Random house

281.4 Theology 49-62

"These volumes contain Saint Augustine's Confessions and twelve representative treatises, besides a major portion of The City of God and On the Trinity." New Repub

"These two volumes are a feast for mind and eye."

+ Cath World 169:320 Jl '49 160w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '49

Nation 168:165 F 5 '49 20w

"These volumes will inevitably be valuable as reference books for students, and it is unfortunate, therefore, that they don't contain The City of God, at least, complete. But such collections have their limitations, and anyone interested in the subject will be grateful that so much material has been gathered from sources remote or inaccessible to the general reader." John Farrelly

New Repub 120:27 Ja 31 '49 900w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 Ja 16 '49 180w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 32:17 Mr 12 '49 370w

School & Society 69:47 Ja 15 '49 90w

AUL, HENRY B. How to beautify and improve your home ground. 320p il $3.50 Sheridan

712.6 Landscape gardening 49-11628

Plans and practical advice for landscaping the small place, written and illustrated by the assistant horticultural editor of the New York Herald Tribune. Partial contents: "Making the most of the small property"; Modern design for a deep narrow property; Garden featuring covered bench and pool; A garden equipped with garden kitchen; Garden space conserved by fences and hedges; Designed to gain privacy from street; A two-terrace plan to provide all year comfort; Traditional house —contemporary garden; Design to fit a shallow back yard; Careful planning creates a miniature estate; Making the most of an irregular-shaped lot; City garden designed to overcome obstacles; Planned seclusion and simplicity; Porch transformed into garden lounge; Tidy work center simplifies garden tasks. Index.

Booklist 46:118 D 1 '49

"Perhaps the book as a whole will appeal most strongly to readers who are already confirmed gardening enthusiasts, by nature if not through actual experience. Others, whose interest in plans is on the casual side, may question whether the emphasis laid on the physical volume of thrifty flowers, shrubs and vegetables is not a bit too strong for their taste. Certainly no one need doubt to which of these classes Mr. Aul belongs, for from cover to cover his book bears the stamp of a real gardener who knows his plants and loves to have them in abundance." R. S. Lemmon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p40 D 4 '49 290w

AULAIRE, MRS INGRI (MORTENSON) D', and AULAIRE, EDGAR PARIN D'. Foxie. [39p] $2 Doubleday

49-11020

The adventures of a little dog with a head like a fox and a tail like a cinnamon roll, told in prose and pictures for ages three to six.

Booklist 46:85 N 1 '49

"The d'Aulaires have surpassed themselves in these drawings."

+ Chicago Sun p9X N 13 '49 140w

"A captivating story and lively series of lithografs by the d'Aulaires. The 3 to 6 year olds will love having this one read to them." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 20 '49 110w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 15 '49 160w

Commonweal 51:189 N 18 '49 20w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:524 N '49 80w

Kirkus 17:549 O 1 '49 90w

Reviewed by F. W. Butler

Library J 74:1917 D 15 '49 70w

"Foxie's adventures will appeal to the picture-book age." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 25 '49 140w

"The robust and mischievous humor of these fine lithographs on stone are admirably carried out by the text." Elena Baker

+ N Y Times p26 O 16 '49 150w

New Yorker 25:166 D 3 '49 80w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:22 N 12 '49 50w

AULT, NORMAN, ed. Elizabethan lyrics from the original texts. 3d ed 560p $5 Sloane

821.08 English poetry—Collections 49-8434

"Mr. Ault's anthology, first published in 1925 [Book Review Digest 1925] has been revised in the light of recent scholarship; additions have been made in the way of new pieces, and there is now also an appendix with brief biographies of the poets of the period." Nation

Booklist 45:315 My 15 '49

"How refreshing are the lyrics which Norman Ault has chosen from the prodigal writings of Elizabethan poets. Major and minor poets alike wrote to be read and sung and declaimed. . . In the age of expansion and exploration, granted, a race of giants wrote magnificently in the dirty little town of London, but among the giants were lesser poets too, and their fewer roses glow brightly with the rest." Leo Kennedy

+ Chicago Sun My 2 '49 400w

Kirkus 16:565 O 15 '48 100w

AULT, NORMAN—Continued

"It is one of the finest collections of English poetry, centering on the period of its highest attainment. I believe that wholly fifty percent of my own favorite poems can be found in this one volume." Gerald McDonald

+ Library J 74:958 Je 15 '49 70w

"Of interest and value not only to the special student of Elizabethan letters but also to the general reader." Rolfe Humphries

+ Nation 168:507 Ap 30 '49 140w

"The anthology has been a favorite with all who knew or had it, but the undistributed copies were destroyed by bombing in 1940, and this distinguished volume, worthy of its shining contents, is in a way something new as well as beautiful."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 My 22 '49 360w

"The range of the six hundred and thirty-nine lyrics, including anonymous ballads, is as wide as the material is rich. All have now been revised and corrected according to the most recent textual and bibliographical discoveries."

+ New Yorker 25:104 My 28 '49 80w

"One of the finest books to come my way in a long time." T. H. Ferril

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 29 '49 60w

"While scholars rejoice in the range of Mr. Ault's discoveries and the accuracy of his text, mere lovers of poetry will delight in the myriad-throated voice of such a swarm of singing birds as has graced this earth but once." B. R. Redman

+ Sat R of Lit 32:41 Je 25 '49 150w

AUSTIN, ALEINE. Labor story; a popular history of American labor, 1786-1949. 244p $2.50 Coward-McCann

331.88 Labor and laboring classes—U.S. Trade unions 49-48947

"From an experience as worker, teacher of union members, and not too academic research student, the author has gained an insight into the meaning of labor in American history. While strongly convinced of the need for a strong union organization, she shows how employer tactics all the way from the founding of the Republic have made our industrial history the stormiest of the world. . . Selected bibliography, index." Library J

Booklist 46:151 Ja 1 '50

"Her qualifications as a historian include a Columbia university masters degree, experience as a labor educator and CIO staff member, and seasoning at the work bench, in the union meeting and on the picket line. The book has no footnotes and it avoids scholarly hair splitting." L. T. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p42 D 4 '49 90w

"Not as objective as Dulles' Labor in America, and occasionally too emotional, but all in all, a worthwhile book for those who want a quick overall picture."

+ — Kirkus 17:569 O 1 '49 130w

"Discerning, balanced, deploring the excesses of labor no less than the repressive measures of employers and governments, this is a useful outline for general reading." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 75:46 Ja 1 '50 100w

AUSTIN, HUGH, pseud. See Evans, H. A.

AUSTIN, MRS MARGOT. Poppet; il. by [the author]. [40p] $1.25 Dutton 49-10283

The adventures of a little boy named Poppet, who went out hunting a bear one summer night, with his dog for company and a bag and a flashlight for equipment. After several wrong starts they captured a bear—a stuffed one which Poppet had left under the hammock. For ages three to seven.

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun S 24 '49 90w

Commonweal 51:189 N 18 '49 30w

Kirkus 17:424 Ag 15 '49 120w

"Small children will be delighted with the clever, funny pictures and the ridiculously amusing things the three 'bag' in the dark. Miss Austin's characteristic illustrations never seem to disappoint her young public. Recommended for ages 3-7." D. M. Blasco

+ Library J 74:1333 S 15 '49 70w

"This artist's pictures are well known from her popular 'Peter Churchmouse' and 'Gabriel Churchkitten.' They may not be much as art, but they are gay and nonsensical and very appealing to four and five year olds like Poppet. His little adventure after dark will make good bed-time reading, with only amusing dreams to follow." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 13 '49 140w

Reviewed by Elena Baker

N Y Times p24 Ag 28 '49 180w

New Yorker 25:167 D 3 '49 80w

AVERILL, ESTHER. Jenny's moonlight adventure; il. by [the author]. 31p $1.50 Harper 49-8288

The fourth book about the little black cat named Jenny Linsky. This adventure shows Jenny on Hallowe'en, braving the dogs of Mulligan street to help a sick friend.

Booklist 45:320 My 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun My 7 '49 110w

"Although the events of the tale take place on Halloween (this little book will be remembered gratefully next October), 'Jenny's Moonlight Adventure' has in it the spirit of spring and that quality of childlike, effortless make-believe which distinguishes Esther Averill's writing for children. The delightful drawings (with each book Miss Averill's work gains strength), type and page, make a charming and harmonious whole." A. T. Eaton

+ Christian Science Monitor p2 My 31 '49 180w

Horn Bk 25:207 My '49 70w

"I think these books about Jenny, the black Greenwich Village cat are delightful, and the fourth in the series is again good fantasy."

+ Kirkus 17:178 Ap 1 '49 70w

"Miss Averill's delightful drawings are a perfect complement to the text of this charming little story. . . Recommended for children 7-10." H. M. Brogan

+ Library J 74:738 My 1 '49 80w

"A good deal of charm is here packed into a small space." L. S. Betchel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 1 '49 90w

"Told with the same mingling of gentle fun and fantasy, the same precision of prose, which has distinguished the other three stories in this series. Miss Averill's illustrations are, if anything, better than ever." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p30 My 8 '49 130w

+ New Yorker 25:171 D 3 '49 80w

San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 13 '49 90w

"There is endless pleasure and amusement in the chronicles of Miss Linsky. This will be a particularly good choice for a Hallowe'en story hour." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:39 Je 11 '49 140w

Wis Lib Bul 45:89 My '49

AVERILL, LAWRENCE AUGUSTUS. The psychology of the elementary-school child. 459p $4 Longmans

370.15 Child study. Educational psychology 48-9419

"Mr. Averill writes on that period of the child's life from six to twelve years because he feels that this period, corresponding roughly to the elementary-school years, has been neglected. . . The author maintains the mental-hygiene point of view throughout the book, and the volume is well structured to meet the needs of the groups for whom he is writing—teachers in training, teachers in service, and those who wish to refresh themselves by additional study." (El School J) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"The treatment is sound, and the book is well documented; for the author is able to draw upon more than thirty years of experience as a trainer of teachers and as a consulting psychologist specializing in childhood problems. His book is not a warmed-over textbook, either in child psychology or in the psychology of elementary-school subjects." W. J. Moore

+ El School J 49:361 F '49 800w

School & Society 69:46 Ja 15 '49 60w

"Dr. Averill's book is a carefully written presentation of the development, the problems, and the sensible treatment of the child from six to twelve—the elementary school age. It will answer the questions and the needs of the thousands of teachers in training or in service who deal with the 20 million or more children in our elementary schools. While the book makes no claim to scholarly research or emphasis on theory, it does present a sound, mental-hygiene point of view." M. R. Brown

+ Social Educ 41:45 Ja '50 350w

AVIRETT, MRS BARBARA (DENNIS). Hear the cock crow. 245p $3 Dodd

49-10963

Chronicles the life of the Childress family, once wealthy and prominent, now trying to keep up a front in their decaying Maryland mansion. The conflict of the novel is between the bride of one brother, a girl from a different class of people, and the brother who is given to ancestor worship.

Booklist 46:124 D 1 '49

"This is a first novel in which Mrs. Avirett tells her story smoothly."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 O 9 '49 150w

"Well-wrought, fascinating novel of a decaying county family. . . The picture of the decay of the old house is beautifully done, accenting its shabby, aristocratic charm and its stifling insulation against reality. The quick, sure characterization of the Childresses is admirably conveyed, and cements the neat architecture of the plot. A notable first novel." Barbara Bond

+ N Y Times p36 N 6 '49 230w

Springf'd Republican p19A O 23 '49 120w

AZOY, ANASTASIO CARLOS MARIANO. Paul Revere's horse. 256p maps $2.50 Doubleday

973 U.S.—History 49-11550

A series of behind-the-scenes anecdotes about some of the best known episodes in American history: the Boston tea party; Paul Revere's ride; the Battle of Bunker Hill; Molly Pitcher's heroism; the sinking of the Maine; etc. Bibliography.

Booklist 46:140 D 15 '49

"Provocative and entertaining history."

+ Kirkus 17:499 S 1 '49 110w

"By-and-large the colonel sticks close to well established sources, like Walter Millis's 'The Martial Spirit' for his stories out of our affray in Cuba, and Esther Forbes's equally classic 'Paul Revere and the World He Lived In' for the Boston Tea Party and the ride to Lexington. When he has his choice between details, of course, Colonel Azoy takes that which pleases him most in the interest of brittle action or homely flavor with a touch of spice." E. B. Davis

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 27 '49 750w

"Told with accuracy in a racy journalistic style. . . Mr. Azoy is a good storyteller—perhaps a better storyteller than historian. He has fictionalized his episodes by improvising conversation and describing the personal reactions of the characters; but he has done a lot of research to find out what the essential facts were in each incident, and he has not departed from them in any essential way." Max Savelle

+ N Y Times p46 N 13 '49 270w

"Unhappily, from a debunking point of view, most of these episodes seem to have been thoroughly authenticated by previous historians. . . Twelfth-grade stuff, rather divertingly presented."

New Yorker 25:170 N 19 '49 140w

B

BAAB, OTTO JUSTICE. Theology of the Old Testament. 287p $3.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

221.6 Bible. Old Testament—Theology

49-9217

"On the basis of the belief that most of what the Bible presents as true is valid for today, Dr. Baab writes of God, man, sin, salvation, the Kingdom of God, death and the hereafter, and evil, as presented in the Old Testament, with a last chapter on the validity of Old Testament theology." (Christian Century) Bibliography. Indexes.

"Otto Baab's new book on the Old Testament is important as an indication of the change that has taken place among Bible scholars during the last ten years in scriptural interpretation. The contrast may best be seen by comparison with such a book as A Guide to Understanding the Bible, written by Harry Emerson Fosdick in 1938. At that time the main thesis of Bible interpretation was that there was a progressiveness and a development in biblical ideas. . . Dr. Baab does not repudiate entirely this point of view of progressiveness. He defends the findings of liberal historical study. Yet he believes that it has real limitations." P. L. Hulsander

+ Christian Century 66:1172 O 5 '49 900w

"A useful and scholarly book. The reviewer recommends it highly, even though he finds himself not always in agreement with its conclusions. . . It is a volume of import for biblical scholars, ministers, and laymen. For those who would do further study, a short bibliography is appended, and there is a useful index of biblical passages and subjects." H. G. May

+ — Crozer Q 26:342 O '49 1900w

BABCOCK, ELISABETH S. (THOMPSON). The expandable pig; pictured by [the author]. 114p $2 Scribner

49-10268

Humorous fantasy for young readers. When Gary wished to go to England to visit Howard, Pig, their mutual friend, found a way to furnish transportation not only for Gary but also for the three dogs Nemo, Barnaby, and Wiggles.

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun Ag 27 '49 80w

Reviewed by Agatha Shea

Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 D 4 '49 40w

Horn Bk 25:410 S '49 90w

"It is genuinely funny and the pictures will delight American and English children to whom this wise little book offers the incomparable gift of laughter across the Atlantic." A. C. Moore

+ Horn Bk 25:436 S '49 40w

"Watch this and buy cautiously, for the first impression is of another Dr. Doolittle's Gub-Gub—or a Walter Brooks' type of story, but in final analysis we feel it just doesn't come off, and children are relentless critics in cases like this."

Kirkus 17:323 Jl 1 '49 190w

"A glimpse of the pictures of The Expandable Pig is enough to make one understand the type of delightful nonsense that is to be found in this spontaneous and whimsical book." Alice McQuaid

+ Library J 74:1541 O 15 '49 50w

"Humorous in spots, but on the whole disappointing as humor or fantasy." M. J. Meade

— + Library J 74:1760 N 15 '49 40w

BABCOCK, E. S.—Continued

"This nonsense fantasy for younger readers has much lively conversation and clever line drawings. . . But to me, this book is just not funny enough. I have often watched children laugh at just the things in 'Alice' that do not make adults laugh, and remain solemn at Carroll's word play and wit. So this may not appeal to me, but perhaps the children will find Pig very funny." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ag 28 '49 200w

"It is not—with apologies to Pig—top-flight fantasy. Some of the whimsy seems a little forced, lacking something of that indefinable inevitability which underlies the best make-believe. Nevertheless, any imaginative child should reap a fine crop of chuckles from the story and also the author's pictures." E. L. Buell

+ — N Y Times p18 Ag 14 '49 180w

New Yorker 25:171 D 3 '49 80w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:24 N 12 '49 40w

BACH, CARL PHILIPP EMANUEL. Essay on the true art of playing keyboard instruments; tr. and ed. by William J. Mitchell. 449p $6 Norton

786.3 Piano—Instruction and study

48-9749

"The present edition of Bach's 'Versuch über die wahre Art das Clavier zu spielen' is the first complete English translation, having been preceded only by excerpts and sections which appear principally in books by Dannreuther, Dolmetsch, and Arnold. . . The present translation combines the original and revised editions of the eighteenth century. All of Bach's alterations, additions, and footnotes have been incorporated into the main text, but are identified in the editor's notes. For the rest, the organization of material in Part One follows the German text in all details. Part Two, however, has been slightly altered in order to make it more accessible to the reader." (Pref) Bibliography. No index.

"A welcome counter-balance to the mass of diluted plagiarisms by native musical journalists and heavy potboilers by foreign scholars which are being palmed off indiscriminately on the American public. Professor Mitchell has performed his task with meticulous care. . . As one who has learned more from Bach's Essay than from any other similar source, this reviewer found Professor Mitchell's treatment of it particularly sympathetic. With imaginative scholarship and impeccable taste he far exceeds the demands of mere accuracy and informative completeness. He explains clearly the relationship of Bach's treatise to the musical culture which it represents, and he supplements it with well-chosen excerpts from contemporary works." Willi Apel

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 6:301 Mr '49 2000w

Reviewed by B. H. Haggin

Nation 169:68 Jl 16 '49 160w

Reviewed by Winton Dean

New Statesman & Nation 28:626 N 26 '49 650w

Reviewed by H. G. Laurence

N Y Times p15 Mr 13 '49 450w

"Professor Mitchell's translation is clear and readable and his introduction puts the author and his work into their historical setting. Any work which, like this essay, has been a classic for half a century or more has an interest beyond its own immediate scope and this English edition fills a gap in the musicological writing of the English-speaking world."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p719 N 4 '49 900w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:150 Je '49 240w

BACH, MARCUS LOUIS. Dream gate. 318p $3 Bobbs

49-10583

A novel about life among the Hutterians, who live "according to the Gospel and not according to the world." It is a simple story of the visit of a former member, and the problems which the visit brought to Little Mike, the hero. At the close of the novel Little Mike has to choose between his desire to go "outside" or to continue living the Hutterian way. The scene is the Old Portage Colony in South Dakota.

Booklist 46:124 D 1 '49

"There probably won't be any great sale for a novel of this sort. Mr. Bach is writing about good people who are trying to do right, and there doesn't seem to be much demand for that sort of thing these days. But for those who have an interest in a type of religious devotion as real as that of any contemplative monk, and as stark in its challenge to our contemporary world, this novel can be highly recommended. Technically, as a piece of writing, it is well done, as anything by Marcus Bach is sure to be." P. H.

+ Christian Century 66:1296 N 2 '49 420w

"Notable for fine character study and highly dramatic incidents. Recommended." L. R. Miller

+ Library J 74:1200 S 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by J. H. Holmes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 O 16 '49 410w

Reviewed by Andrea Parke

+ N Y Times p31 S 25 '49 180w

"Dr. Bach has wisely chosen to tell this story through a child's eyes. Viewed from the loving little boy's angle, the way of life so alien to most contemporaries offers warmth and security and dignity." Pamela Taylor

+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 Ja 7 '50 310w

BAECK, LEO. Essence of Judaism [rendition by Irving Howe based on tr. from the German by Victor Grubenwieser and Leonard Pearl]. rev ed 288p $4 Schocken

296 Jews—Religion 49-154

"An exposition of Jewish religious philosophy by an eminent Jewish scholar. This is a revised version of the first English edition." (Booklist) Guide to rabbinical quotations and other references. Index.

Booklist 45:315 My 15 '49

"The analysis in this masterly volume is set on a high level of historical knowledge, integrity of thinking and religious insight. . . His book is not always easy reading. Its concentrated thought has to be digested slowly." D. D. Pool

+ N Y Times p6 F 6 '49 900w

BAEKELAND, GEORGE. Gunner's guide. 115p il $1.95 Macmillan

799.21 Shooting. Shotguns Agr48-296

Treatise on shotguns. Includes advice on selection and care of guns. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:309 My 15 '49

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:1668 N 15 '48 30w

"Good technical handbook for the novice." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 74:379 Mr 1 '49 10w

BAER, HOWARD. O, huge angel. 161p $2.50 Roy pubs.

49-4282

"The hero is a Negro seaman who, on the eve of a voyage to Panama, stumbles across a murdered man and thereafter goes rapidly to pieces because of his unfounded and not entirely credible fear that he himself is being pursued for the crime. In the course of his ravings, he assaults a member of his crew, spends a night in the Panama jungle, and murders a harmless Indian." New Yorker

"This story of terror and violence chiefly communicates distaste, relies for its fury on profane expostulation. . . There's a certain primitive-poetic intention here (tautological in technique), but in any case the book is not for a popular (and certainly not for a public library) following."

Kirkus 17:238 My 1 '49 120w

"Following the twistings of a man's mind is a complicated task, but Mr. Baer relates his story simply, telling what happened and leaving the whys to the reader's imagination. . . It is a strange world that Mr. Baer writes about, full of half-people and half-thoughts. Like a bad dream, it is compelling enough when one is in the midst of it, but one touch of sunlight is enough to dispel it." Herbert Kupferberg
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 29 '49 430w

"Although Mark's history holds us as we read it, it cannot be said that Mr. Baer's study is without serious flaws. In spite of Mark's huge lineaments there is no stature to the man and no quality. He moves almost solely by animal impulse. Not enough humanity has gone into the making of this character to involve us in his plight. He emerges from these pages less as a man under torment than as a Negro gone berserk, and although to watch him in this disintegration is a frightful thing, our final reaction is one we would have to a limping dog: we simply wish it were not so—and pass on." Thomas Lask
N Y Times p22 Je 12 '49 310w

"A Dostoevskian story of flight from guilt, which makes up to some extent for its lack of motivation by its headlong intensity. . . The furious irrationality of [the hero's] behavior deprives the story of any broad pertinence, but Mr. Baer's narrative of the sailor's berserk actions is tight and impassioned."
— + New Yorker 25:97 My 28 '49 120w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 32:15 Jl 2 '49 150w

BAER, JULIUS BERNARD, and SAXON, OLIN GLENN. Commodity exchanges and futures trading; principles and operating methods. 324p $5 Harper

332.64 Produce trade. Speculation 49-7144

Revision of a book by Mr Baer and George P. Woodruff, first published in 1929 under the title Commodity Exchanges. "It provides a detailed study of the history, operations and significance of the various commodity markets of the country. The scope of the book is such that it can be used equally well by a student who has nothing more than an academic interest or by the businessman." (Chicago Sun) Table of cases. Bibliography. Index.

"This is a book which makes some important contributions to its subject; it may serve a useful purpose as a popular presentation of defenses of futures trading; but as a college text or reference work, it has serious shortcomings, which require that it be carefully supplemented." Holbrook Working
+ — Am Econ R 39:1043 S '49 800w

"A clear, well-written description of the mechanics of futures trading on the American exchanges, and a good summary of the law governing futures trading in this country. Beyond this, it has little to offer the serious student. Its historical sections are sketchy and not always to the point, its economic analysis is fragmentary and often superficial, and it entirely omits some very important topics." Reavis Cox
— + Ann Am Acad 263:247 My '49 260w
Chicago Sun p8X Ap 10 '49 50w

BAGBY, GEORGE A., pseud. See Stein, A. M.

BAILEY, CYRIL. Hugh Percy Allen. 178p il $3 Oxford

B or 92 Allen, Sir Hugh Percy [49-8396]

"Here is a biography of a very remarkable character, and of a man whose life and work have left an indelible mark upon English music. Not perhaps a great performer, although he held several important organ appointments, and upon many occasions essayed the piano parts of the great works in chamber literature . . . nor was he a composer of eminence. Yet he was a superlatively great musician whose influence made a lasting impression upon those who came into contact with his dynamic personality. The various phases of his many activities are dealt with in order by Mr. Bailey. . . The book also contains many anecdotes and quotations from the diaries of his friends." Music Lib Assn Notes

Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 21 '49 170w

"The book is easy to read and has obviously been written by one who held Sir Hugh in high esteem and warm affection. The section devoted to his several organ appointments, leading up to his final post as Organist of New College, Oxford, is interesting reading and might be read and taken to heart with profit by many a young aspiring student. . . Cyril Bailey has given a book of real interest and charm to the many who knew Sir Hugh, and a book of real value to the many who, perhaps unconsciously, are now enjoying the results of his life-work. It is an all too brief account of a man, fearless and humane, to whom music was life." Healey Willan
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 6:623 S '49 650w

"'Though the details are so various, Dr. Bailey makes it all 'add up.' Like the strokes of a fine artist's pencil everything combines to make a definite picture. In this the book is like the splendid portrait-drawing by Sargent which is reproduced as a frontispiece. In both, Allen's friends will see those qualities which in the telling sound so inconsistent—humour and rollicking fun, tremendous energy and concentration, terrifying ferocity, waywardness, warm-heartedness and a large capacity for deep and enduring affection." Reginald Lennard
+ Spec 182:58 Ja 14 '49 800w

"Dr. Bailey is a humanist, and his insight into the character of his friend is expressed in the measured terms of one who understands under-emphasis as a means of conveying to those who did not know the man who for a generation dominated the English musical scene, a portrait which those more fortunate ones who did know him will recognize as just."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p23 Ja 8 '49 800w

BAILEY, FLORA L. Between the four mountains; decorations by Ralph Ray. 197p $2.50 Macmillan

49-11596

"A sequel to 'Summer at Yellow Singers' [Book Review Digest 1948] in which Jon and Judy and the two Indian children live the life of the Navaho Indians and help discover a treasure in a burial cave." Sat R of Lit

"Thinly veiled mystery to carry a rich diet of factual material. . . The story bogs down from time to time in details of fascinating ritual and custom of the New Mexican background and one wonders if the average child can be persuaded to read it."
Kirkus 17:512 S 15 '49 90w

"A sympathetic and authentic picture of the life and customs of the Navaho Indians. . . The plot fails to measure up to the substance of the setting." Alice McQuaid
Library J 74:1538 O 15 '49 70w

"Miss Bailey is an anthropologist with a special interest in Indians of the Southwest and the material around which she wraps her interesting plot is authentic and first hand."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 N 13 '49 90w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:27 N 12 '49 30w

BAILEY, THOMAS ANDREW. The man in the street; the impact of American public opinion on foreign policy. 334p $5 Macmillan

327.73 U.S.—Foreign policy. Public opinion —U.S. 48-6857

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Foreign Affairs 27:157 O '48 30w

"With no pretense at objectivity, Professor Bailey's self-styled broadly interpretative treatment of his subject is liberally sprinkled with moral exhortations, admonitions to the man in the street to let the experts alone, pontifications on the conduct of foreign relations, and gratuitous advice to newspapers, churches, and other groups on how to run their affairs. The style is self-consciously breezy, with heavy reliance on sarcasm and the wisecrack. Nevertheless, the study should prove valuable for its specific information on American foreign policy."

BAILEY, T. A.—Continued

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 4:350 S '48 280w

"Professor Bailey's study of the impact of opinion on American foreign policy is based upon his wide knowledge of the past, and upon much shrewd observation of the way things actually work out in practice. Professor Bailey writes incisively, and with vivacity. It seems to the reviewer that in this particular case he may have been a bit too lively, and too severe. The tone of this book is almost journalistic." Dexter Perkins

+ — Yale R n s 38:554 spring '49 900w

BAINBRIDGE, HENRY CHARLES. Peter Carl Fabergé; goldsmith and jeweller to the Russian imperial court and principal crowned heads of Europe; an il. record and review of his life, 1846-1920. 169p 126il 18col il lib ed $35; ltd de luxe ed lea $70 Batsford

B or 92 Faberge, Peter Carl

"Affluent European royalty during the Edwardian era had little trouble thinking up unusual gifts for their fortunate friends and colleagues who 'really had everything.' They handed the whole problem, if they had the proper entree—and a blank check to Peter Carl Fabergé of old St. Petersburg, fabricator of jeweled fantasies extraordinary to the last Czars, Alexander III and Nicholas II. In return . . . they received fabulously wrought objects of crystal, gold, enamel, silver, jade and other precious materials. As if from a fairy-tale toy-land, these objects elaborated themselves into golden peacocks that would strut, eggs that shed shell after shell to disclose royal coaches and crowns in jeweled miniatures, rose-quartz Buddhas that had ruby tongues and swaying heads of chalcedony. These latter-day curiosa, and the man who furnished them, are the subject of this volume by an Englishman who spent his youth working for Fabergé." N Y Times

---

Reviewed by W. G. Dooley
N Y Times p5 D 18 '49 430w

"Mr. Bainbridge has arranged his work carefully, but unfortunately the sound basic construction is obscured by the inclusion of a quantity of irrelevant matter. This is the more to be regretted because the book is full of interest and amusing anecdotes about that golden age of high society which came to an end in 1914, and the picture of the artist is very sympathetically drawn though rather uncritical. The illustrations are excellent." Charles Oman

+ — Spec 183:700 N 18 '49 900w

"As the author worked with Fabergé as his London representative, he is the man best fitted to write this book. He has done it well, and if it tells more about Fabergé's work than the man himself, that is what its subject would have desired and considered important."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p806 D 9 '49 900w

BAKER, ELIZABETH WHITEMORE. Sonny-Boy Sim; il. by Susanne Suba. 31p $1 Rand McNally

49-84

A story of the southern piney woods, and a boy and his dog who lived there. Sonny-Boy Sim liked to dance to the tunes his grandfather played on the fiddle, but he and his dog also liked to chase the forest animals. The story tells how the animals turned the tables on Sonny-Boy Sim, his dog and grandfather and grandmother, and what happened then.

Booklist 45:320 My 15 '49

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 170:209 D '49 80w

"The tunes seem to have skipped right into Suba's drawings too. I've always thought she could draw the finest hound-dogs in the country, but now she makes every animal in the whole woods step out and dance." M. B. King

+ Chicago Sun Ap 9 '49 230w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 25:283 Jl '49 60w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:285 Jl '49 120w

Kirkus 17:177 Ap 1 '49 80w

"A perfect story for reading aloud, a perfect story for telling. The folk flavor is unmistakable, the language rhythmic. . . Would have to be prebound for library use, but well worth it." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 74:666 Ap 15 '49 70w

"Miss Baker's imitation of a folk-tale has rhythm and nonsensical reality, which is delightfully caught in Miss Suba's pictures. A cheerful book, breathing of the southern woods, modest yet unforgettable. A good story to tell aloud." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 My 8 '49 140w

+ N Y Times p26 Ap 10 '49 70w

New Yorker 25:176 D 3 '49 70w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:34 Ag 13 '49 200w

Wis Lib Bul 45:107 Je '49

BAKER, MOSES NELSON. Quest for pure water; the history of water purification from the earliest records to the twentieth century. 527p il $5 Am. water works assn, 500 5th av, N.Y. 18

628.16 Water—Purification. Water supply engineering 48-10469

"Examining the records of man's interest in improving water quality, Mr. Baker takes us back to 2000 B.C. In Sanskrit medical lore we are told, 'It is good to keep water in copper vessels, to expose it to sunlight, and filter through charcoal.' Almost forty centuries later, as revealed in a closing chapter, there is good reason for lauding the usefulness today of charcoal in the form of activated carbon for producing better water. In the 22 chapters that comprise the book every form of water treatment is discussed. . . The final chapter is devoted to mass medication by means of water supply, a topic that is uppermost in the minds of those who today are charged with water treatment practices." Eng N

"It will save hours of research time for those who are looking for background material, and prove fascinating reading to anyone interested in safe water supplies. It is generously illustrated and thoroughly documented." F. B. Elder

+ Am J Pub Health 39:938 Jl '49 230w

"Indefatigable research by a man possessed with a passion for accurate reporting has produced one of the notable engineering reference books of our time. In 'The Quest for Pure Water', M. N. Baker has given us a history so organized and richly documented that in any future quests for information on water-purification practice the paths of the past can be easily traced."

+ Eng N 141:111 N 11 '48 360w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1821 D 15 '48 20w

BAKER, MRS NINA (BROWN). Ten American cities, then and now; il. by Josephine Haskell. 226p $2.50 Harcourt

973 Cities and towns—U.S. U.S.—History 49-10043

Brief appraisals of ten American cities: Boston, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, St. Louis, New Orleans, San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Seattle, Dallas, Chicago. Each includes a brief historical introduction, then the story of some major historical episode about the city, and a little on the city's present status. For junior and senior high school. Chapter bibliographies.

Booklist 46:15 S 1 '49

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 20 '49 110w

Commonweal 51:192 N 18 '49 140w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:420 S '49 120w

"The exact usefulness of a book such as this is a little hard to define, but the incidents—dramatic per se—lend historical action and interest."
Kirkus 17:363 Jl 15 '49 110w

"Emphasis on the 'then' is satisfactory. The 'now' represented by two or three paragraphs about each city seems inadequate, superficial, and not always accurate." M. B. Snow
Library J 74:1208 S 1 '49 80w

"[The stories of Boston, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, San Francisco, and New Orleans have] been told many times, often more interestingly and more accurately than here. The others, especially the chapter on Seattle, present colorful information that will be new to many readers. The contemporary descriptions are brief and thin, but should appeal to curious youngsters of 12 and up who have never visited these cities." R. A. Brown
+ — N Y Times p13 S 4 '49 180w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:46 N 12 '49 40w

Springf'd Republican p10B Ja 1 '50 330w

BAKER, RICHARD ST BARBE. Green glory; the forests of the world; with a foreword by Howard Spring. 253p pl $3.50 Wyn

634.9 Forests and forestry 49-48792

"In this book a student of trees and forestry pleads eloquently in behalf of our living heritage—the forest. Mr. Baker has ranged the world to look at forests; he has seen the results of reckless timber-cutting and exhaustive cultivation—erosion, rivers charged with good earth, aridity in place of fertility. . . Many countries are taking heed of their forests and trying to reclaim lost land, yet reduction of the earth's fertility continues. Mr. Baker offers a far-reaching program for restoring the woods and thus restoring the land." (N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 46:152 Ja 1 '50

Kirkus 17:450 Ag 15 '49 150w

"With rare exceptions, he fails to document his statements, and this makes evaluation difficult. His account of Japanese management of Korean land, in view of apparently trustworthy reports of the American occupation's disregard of the facts of forest life in Europe and Asia, makes one wonder if Korea has really gained by her change of masters. On the other hand, his pleased and naive quotation of the statements of diplomats representing their countries at world forestry congresses suggests to one who knows the diplomats' countries that Mr. Baker is extremely gullible." William Vogt
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 20 '49 600w

" 'Green Glory' deserves a large audience, for it illuminates a problem that cannot be neglected." W. B. H.
+ N Y Times p56 D 4 '49 180w

"This is a book to be read by all who are interested in forests, past and future, and is recommended for those who seem to be forgetting that there are other things besides atomic energy in this world." J. W. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ja 15 '50 250w

BAKER, SHERMAN. Bradford Masters. 254p $2.75 Dutton

49-1258

Character study of a pleasure-loving young man, Bradford Masters, living in his ruined ancestral home in Wisconsin, and succeeding very well in his favorite role—that of evading responsibility.

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p8X Mr 20 '49 270w

"No literary high marks here, but a certain readability."
Kirkus 17:12 Ja 1 '49 130w

"The workmanship of the book is admirable, and the people intensely real, but the general impression is one of futility." E. F. Walbridge
Library J 74:376 Mr 1 '49 100w

"Mr. Baker tells his story of the unchanging Brad with pleasant and persuasive literalness of detail. The activities of the Wisconsin countryside, the village neighbors—Brad's Greenburg is a little community, German in its origins—and many trips to Milwaukee and Chicago are an integral and attractive part of the careful development of 'Bradford Masters.' " F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Mr 6 '49 650w

Reviewed by Ruth Page
N Y Times p20 Ap 3 '49 200w

"Although it is no shining example of the illustrative story, 'Bradford Masters' is a fairly pleasant, occasionally entertaining character study. The only difficulty is that the main character, Bradford himself, is rather hard to bear." P. A. S.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p13 Je 12 '49 250w

Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ap 9 '49 140w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p18A Mr 27 '49 300w

BAKEWELL, MARY ELLA. What woman is here? 250p $3 Oxford

B or 92 Clergy—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-11250

Chapters in the autobiography of a trained social worker, who is also a graduate of a theological seminary. She describes her year and a half as a lay missionary in a small Rocky Mountain Episcopal church, where she was hampered by the restrictions laid upon her because as a woman she was not allowed to perform marriages and other rites of the church.

Booklist 46:95 N 15 '49

Reviewed by Marie Miller
Churchman 163:17 D 15 '49 210w

Kirkus 17:600 O 15 '49 120w

Reviewed by Frances Witherspoon
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p50 D 4 '49 450w

"However talented she may be as a fighter of lost causes, Miss Bakewell isn't much of a writer. But her book has honesty and compassion. It deserves readers—just as its author deserved more than she got, from the town she served so well." V. P. Hass
+ — N Y Times p23 D 11 '49 230w

BALCH, GLENN. Christmas horse; il. by Pers Crowell. 246p $2.75 Crowell

Horses—Legends and stories 49-11195

A sequel to Wild Horse (Book Review Digest 1948). On Christmas Day at the ranch, Ben Darby received the wild black colt he had coveted. Back at school in Boise he worked part-time in a stable to pay for the horse's board so he could train "Inky" himself. By the end of the summer Inky was a good rope horse—so good, in fact, that he won a rodeo prize for his master's best friend.

"A fairly contrived story, but it has the ingredients that make horse stories popular."
Kirkus 17:361 Jl 15 '49 120w

"Recommended for junior high age where there is a great demand for horse stories." M. M. Smith
+ Library J 74:1610 O 15 '49 80w

BALCH, GLENN—Continued
"This is one of the outstanding 'Westerns' for boys of about eleven to fourteen. Mr. Balch writes with a sort of seriousness, with deep understanding of a boy's nature, and with fascinating knowledge of horses." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 13 '49 230w

"A very good story." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 N 12 '49 50w

BALCH, GLENN. Viking dog. 147p $2.25 Crowell

Dogs—Legends and stories 49-8497

Story of Olaf, a descendant of the Viking elkhounds. When the crate he was being shipped in fell from a delivery truck, Olaf spent two winters on his own in the Sawtooth mountains of Idaho. After that it was a problem to tame the dog, but eventually he acquired a master.

Kirkus 17:29 Ja 15 '49 130w

"The story, almost purely narrative, is well written and interesting. Recommended for libraries where there is a demand for dog stories." J. M. Smith
+ Library J 74:382 Mr 1 '49 70w

"The plot follows a wholly conventional pattern, but the author's portrayal of the dog-hero is sensitive and heart-warming. The details of wild life are well chosen and accurate, and the skillful heightening of suspense is likely to hold readers 10 to 14, until the last page." Howard Boston
+ N Y Times p34 Ap 24 '49 170w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:38 Je 11 '49 90w

Wis Lib Bul 45:90 My '49

BALCHIN, NIGEL. Borgia testament. 312p $3 Houghton

Borgia, Cesare—Fiction 49-9687

Novel based on the life of Cesare Borgia, which purports to have been written by Cesare himself while he was imprisoned in the Castle of San Angelo, waiting for his death sentence.

Booklist 45:345; 376 Je 15 '49; Jl 1 '49

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ag 4 '49 470w

"It is cleverly handled. The characters are convincing, and the book is well constructed and written. . . The autobiography of the arch-type of Machiavelli's prince should be interesting. I know not whether the fault lies with the man or with the book, but Borgia is lifeless. There is no battle within the man between the principles of good and evil, nor is there sorrow in his life. Without at least one of these elements there can be only a superficial interest. He has written a cold testament for the world to judge." A. H. Keefe
— + Commonweal 50:494 Ag 26 '49 230w

Kirkus 17:280 Je 1 '49 170w

"An intensely interesting fictionized autobiography. . . Recommended." H. S. Taylor
+ Library J 74:376 Mr 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset
Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 30 '48 120w

Reviewed by Walter Allen
New Statesman & Nation 36:244 S 18 '48 190w

"Readers of 'The Small Back Room' will remember that Mr. Balchin can blend psychology and suspense with impressive skill when he wants to. This time, it would seem, he doesn't want to. For reasons of his own, he has derricked even suspense by casting 'The Borgia Testament' in the form of a 300-page flashback. Right from page one, written as Cesare awaits execution, even the reader who knows nothing of Italian history is aware that the 'hero' has failed in his grandiose political design. So it is neither blood nor suspense that interests Mr. Balchin, but purely the thought-processes of a fifteenth century Fuehrer who believed he could use the 'doomed' Papacy as a springboard to temporal power. Richard Match
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Ag 7 '49 750w

"A skillful and thoughtful account of the rise of the Borgias, and the story of the struggle for dominance in fifteenth-century Italy is developed brilliantly in Cesare's summing-up of his own success and failure. . . This is surely a superior piece of historical fiction." John Arthos
+ N Y Times p3 Ag 7 '49 650w

New Yorker 25:106 S 17 '49 200w

"Cesare Borgia's 'Testament,' supposedly written at the time of his captivity in Rome, might have made very interesting reading, for, despite all that has been said about him during the past four and a half centuries, Cesare still remains one of the most enigmatic and unapproachable figures in the history of the Renaissance. Unfortunately, Nigel Balchin, who guided his hand, made him dwell chiefly on the least revealing aspects of his life." Carlo Beuf
Sat R of Lit 32:31 Ag 13 '49 550w

"On the whole, though parts of The Borgia Testament are as efficient as anything that Mr. Balchin has yet done, it does not quite make good its publishers' claim to be as readable as Mine Own Executioner or The Small Back Room." Robert Kee
Spec 181:122 Jl 23 '48 550w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 28 '49 600w

Time 54:73 Ag 8 '49 550w

"Although The Borgia Testament is eminently readable, we do not feel that it throws much new light on the Renaissance. It remains, however, good entertainment."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p413 Jl 24 '48 550w

BALDWIN, FAITH. Golden shoestring. 243p $2.50 Rinehart

49-8441

Love story of two young people, each of whom thought the other was wealthy. When they discovered their mistakes, they drifted aimlessly for a time, and then decided to make a better bargain with life. The golden shoestring was the tangible evidence of their resolution.

Booklist 45:335 Je 1 '49

Kirkus 17:117 Mr 1 '49 90w

"One of those luxury-lined Faith Baldwin romances wherein a mere snack supper on a tray is accompanied by champagne."
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 29 '49 180w

"Everyone knows such hangers on. The miracle is that Miss Baldwin makes one sympathize with them against one's principles. . . Miss Baldwin's presentation is ample within the scope of her medium, which is chiefly to entertain. She is, above all, an acute observer of the social scene. She knows, for instance, how stuffy people can be and also how genuinely good they can be. She has, however, no illusions. If she ever loses her patience and turns satirist—heaven help her victims." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p16 My 1 '49 380w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 32:38 Jl 2 '49 180w

BALDWIN, LELAND DEWITT. Best hope of earth; a grammar of democracy. 258p $3 Univ. of Pittsburgh

321.8 Democracy 48-9252

"Democracy doesn't mean the same thing to the Negro cotton picker in Georgia, the Park Avenue banker and the CIO auto worker in Detroit. It is an elusive term, but it is also a tenable and clear philosophy for social living which can be categorically defined. That is the task of this book by a University of Pittsburgh Professor of the Social Sciences—to examine the meaning and methods of democracy and, further, to assess its validity through a study of its evolution throughout history." (N Y Times) Bibliography. No index.

Reviewed by H. J. Bresler
N Y Times p8 Ja 2 '49 470w
+ Sat R of Lit 32:49 My 14 '49 100w

BALDWIN, RALPH BELKNAP. Face of the moon. 239p il $5 Univ. of Chicago press
523.34 Moon—Surface 49-7568

"Dr. Baldwin, an astronomer and physicist, sums up the known physical geography of the moon and sets forth the various theories of how it came to exist in its present form. The two major schools of thought are that the craters were formed (1) from the inside by volcanic action and (2) from the outside by the crashing of meteorites. Some believe both processes played a part. Baldwin, however, belongs to the meteor school, and the main burden of his book is an argument for that hypothesis." (N Y Times) Bibliography. Indexes.

Booklist 45:220 Mr 1 '49

"It is not hard reading, though it does call for rather close attention. Even the layman in astronomy may at once get an increase of knowledge and a quickening of his imagination." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:498 Ap 20 '49 220w

"A concise and scholarly book with an attractive format. . . The subject is well organized, readable, and factual, although Baldwin does occasionally invoke the astronomers' prerogative to wax poetic. The organization of a large amount of data into tables and graphs is especially good. This book is clearly the best treatment of this subject that has been published to date." R. S. Dietz
+ J Geol 58:81 Ja '50 700w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:42 My '49

"Dr. Baldwin marshals his evidence in a way that will be completely intelligible to the layman interested in the story of the earth's faithful satellite. . . For the amateur astronomer as well as the professional, this book will provide an interesting imaginative excursion to our nearest neighbor in space." H. M. Davis
+ N Y Times p16 F 27 '49 450w
School & Society 69:102 F 5 '49 60w

"Quite apart from its main thesis this book offers a valuable fund of information about the crater formations on both moon and earth; more than half of its pages are devoted to a cataloging and description of them. This material is valuable because in most of the astronomical textbooks the earth's craters are mentioned but slightly or not at all."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:266 Je '49 240w

BALET, JAN B. Ned and Ed and the lion; story and pictures. [26p] $2.50 Oxford 49-11386

"This is a story about a lion who leaves the merry-go-round to find his rightful place in the forest. His adventures that are shared by Ned and Ed, the twins, who follow the lion's progress to popularity. The lion helps a squirrel gather nuts, saves a baby tiger, cuts the bear's hair, paints stripes on a zebra, and makes a coconut cake." N Y Times

Booklist 46:161 Ja 1 '50
Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun N 19 '49 140w

"This delightful story, illustrated with a color and wonder reminiscent of Rousseau (in the jungle scene, at any rate), is one a child might have made up. There can be no higher praise for a child's book." Marcia Winn
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 N 13 '49 140w

"A gay, imaginative story told and pictured with distinctly European flavor. . . Not for those who want the here and now quality in their picture books."
Kirkus 17:584 O 15 '49 140w

"Unfortunately, too much of the humor of this story revolves around the lion's gruff manner. This humor is lost on children younger than 8. But children from 4 to 8 years old do enjoy the lion's activities in the forest quite well. It is a great surprise to open 'Ned and Ed and the Lion' and find that the pleasing effect of Jan Balet's highly original talent is obscured in story and pictures by too much and too adult detail." E. B.
— + N Y Times p12 N 13 '49 130w

"Though there's not much to the text, the brilliant pictures by this highly individual artist are worth the price."
New Yorker 25:167 D 3 '49 80w

"The author of this book also did the illustrations, and it must be admitted that his talents as an artist are far superior to his ability to write stories for children. The illustrations are beautiful—bright, amusing, graphic and clever. The story, however, is extremely poor. The author apparently has no understanding at all of the concepts within the grasp of small children. Moreover, the plot is ridiculous. . . The ideas and events become so entangled, pushed together, and subtle by the sixth page, that even an adult must scratch his head and wonder what is going on."
— + San Francisco Chronicle p5 N 13 '49 170w
Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:22 N 12 '49 40w

"Irresistible pictures, color and story with the right balance of nonsense and sense make an outstanding picture book for the pre-school age."
+ Wis Lib Bul p9 N '49

BALL, ELSIE. Ten days till harvest; il. by Kurt Werth. 128p $1.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury 49-9817

"A story laid in Old-Testament times. . . [It] is a story of adventure in a disaster that befalls young Nathan when he is traveling alone on an errand undertaken for his parents' sake. Robbers capture him and are about to take him to Damascus to sell into slavery when, by an unexpected turn in the plot, he is saved. His father's land also is saved, just as it was about to be confiscated through thievery and deception." (Sat R of Lit) For ages seven to eleven.

Reviewed by F. D. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p28 D 4 '49 50w

"The background of ancient Palestine comes to life with vividness and charm; its temples and prophets, its villagers and farmers, its flocks and herds and camels, and its earnest life, close to the earth." M. C. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 32:48 N 12 '49 180w
Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich
Springf'd Republican p19A O 23 '49 150w

BALL, WILLIAM MACMAHON. Japan, enemy or ally? pub. under the joint auspices of the Int. secretariat, Inst. of Pacific relations, and the Australian inst. of int. affairs. rev & enl ed 244p $3 Day
952.033 Japan—History—Allied occupation, 1945- 49-8474

"With this book Mr. Ball, Australian political scientist and British Commonwealth Member of the Allied Council for Japan, 1946-47, gives his impressions and judgments on the democratization of Japan. . . He feels that polarization of American and Russian policies has caused the occupation to become oriented toward preparation and acceptance of Japan as an ally. In the process the Japanese government has quietly bided its time with slow sabotage of occupation goals until it now seems likely to retain most of the old system. There has, he believes, been no fundamental change in Japan's social structure or in the political outlook of its leaders. Therefore, American obsession with an ally, and the resultant decisions to slow down democratization and to stop further dissolution of Zaibatsu concerns, mean that the Japanese government will use its new privileges and American aid to consolidate the power and privileges of the old ruling groups instead of constructing a welfare economy." Christian Science Monitor

BALL, WILLIAM M.—Continued

"Because of the dominantly American character of the occupation of Japan, it is valuable and interesting for the American public to secure the views of a competent foreign observer of this operation. . . Because this is a small book, substantiation is not given in as much detail as one might like; but otherwise the arguments are convincingly presented." J. W. Masland
+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:1055 O '49 700w

Booklist 45:332 Je 1 '49

"Mr. Ball's documentation of charges of inefficiency and obstruction by the old guard in the Yoshida and Katayama cabinets makes disquieting but required reading for those who imagine a Japan so serenely run that similar benefits should be dispensed to all Asia. Recent Communist gains underline the author's fears. . . Confusion and bewilderment are easy to mistake for design and sabotage, and it seems rather early to render a final judgment." M. B. Jansen
Christian Science Monitor p14 My 9 '49 650w

Foreign Affairs 28:170 O '49 50w

"A clear cut, authoritative analysis."
+ Kirkus 17:131 Mr 1 '49 170w

"Recommended." H. P. Linton
+ Library J 74:733 My 1 '49 140w

Reviewed by Lee Lawrence
New Repub 121:19 Jl 25 '49 550w

"It is refreshing and perhaps salutary to have presented to us a book in which the writer says 'the Americans' rather than 'we Americans.' Doubly so when that writer is a political scientist who sat as a member of the Allied Council for Japan during the first eighteen months of that curious body's existence. . . The result is an informative and provocative story." Ralph Chapman
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Je 5 '49 1200w

"Americans are frequently told that the occupation of Japan has not achieved the spiritual goals set for it. . . W. MacMahon Ball, an Australian of distinguished academic and official record, for two years British Commonwealth representative on the Allied Council for Japan in Tokyo, is the latest (and one of the most knowledgeable) to find detailed fault with the occupation. His soundly written, disarmingly moderate critical study may well turn out to be the definitive statement of the 'anti' point of view." Stuart Lillico
+ N Y Times p16 My 29 '49 750w

"Mr. Ball has written an extremely important volume, which adds to the virtue of readability those of carefulness and acuteness of analysis. But, above all, it deserves a wide and thoughtful reading, especially by Americans, because of the importance and seriousness of the questions which it raises respecting the implications of present United States policy in the Far East." H. M. Vinacke
+ Pacific Affairs 22:298 S '49 1550w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p11 My 29 '49 500w

"An Australian political scientist, Mr. Ball was the sanest and ablest diplomat functioning in postwar Japan. His book is a dispassionate appraisal of the good and bad in our occupation. He finds Japan less perfect than General MacArthur, less a tool of American imperialism than the Russians. Most Americans will be quick to support the latter position. When it comes to criticism of MacArthur, we tend to go more slowly." R. E. Lauterbach
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:16 My 21 '49 800w

Springf'd Republican p22A F 27 '49 120w

BALLINGER, WILLIAM S. The body beautiful. 244p $2.50 Harper
49-5321

Detective story.

Kirkus 17:260 My 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Jl 31 '49 120w

"Second-novel trouble is proverbial among mystery-mongers, and there may be hope for Ballinger Number Three; meanwhile 'The Body Beautiful' is recommended only to those who will endure the tasteless telling of a senseless plot for the sake of brisk action and lots of sex." Anthony Boucher
— N Y Times p19 Jl 17 '49 130w

"When you finish 'The Body Beautiful' we think you'll agree with us that it's the Murder Mystery of the Week." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 24 '49 200w

"Not for squeamish."
Sat R of Lit 32:31 Jl 23 '49 40w

BAL'ZAK, S. S., and others, eds. Economic geography of the U.S.S.R.; American ed, ed. by Chauncy D. Harris; tr. from the Russian by Robert M. Hankin and Olga Adler Titelbaum; pref. by John A. Morrison. 620p maps $10 Macmillan

330.947 Russia—Economic conditions
49-10927

"This large and detailed work is virtually an encyclopedia of Russian economic resources, including natural resources, population, industry, agriculture and transportation. Its text was prepared for Soviet citizens by three eminent Russian geographers. The translation into English and the editing for American readers were sponsored by the American Council of Learned Societies. Many maps and statistical tables are included." Christian Century

Booklist 46:115 D 1 '49

"In this edition considerable material is added to make the text more intelligible to foreign readers who do not have the background knowledge which Russians might be supposed to possess. This will undoubtedly be an important reference book for those who have occasion to use such data as it contains." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:1516 D 21 '49 160w

Current Hist 17:355 D '49 50w

"It would seem that although the book offers little new material to the close student of Soviet geography, it will serve the nonspecialist as a useful introduction to the subject in spite of the ideological overtones. Because of its out-of-dateness, however, it should be supplemented ultimately by an account of the wartime and postwar changes in the economic geography of the USSR." Theodore Shabad
Geog R 40:152 Ja '50 1250w

Kirkus 17:288 Je 1 '49 230w

"Will for long time remain standard reference work on subject. Recommended for scholarly, business and all, except smallest public libraries." H. H. Bernt
+ Library J 74:374 Mr 1 '49 130w

"There is no authoritative work on Russian economic geography in English, and of the available Russian material, this is by far the best. It contains an abundance of serious information, a wealth of factual material indispensable to any student of Russian affairs and to anyone interested in world relations." D. J. Dallin
+ N Y Times p20 O 9 '49 800w

Reviewed by B. D. Wolfe
Sat R of Lit 32:29 D 17 '49 1100w

"Balzak's volume was written for Soviet citizens; it is therefore especially valuable for foreign readers since it gives us a much needed insight into the objective of Soviet geography in its service to the state. Much of the book is an orthodox and encyclopedic description of systematic geography, but some of the chapters are devoted to socialist polemics on productive forces. The maps are outstanding, equalled only in the Great Soviet World Atlas." G. B. Cressey
+ Social Educ 41:48 Ja '50 400w

BANG, ASTA, and RODE, FRU EDITH (NEBELONG). Open sandwiches and cold lunches; tr. from Danish by Kris Winther; vignettes by Kirsten Rode and 16 col. plates. 112p $3.25 Scandinavian bk. service, box 169, Audubon station, N.Y. 32

641.5 Cookery, Danish

"Unusual addition to the books on smorgasbord and hors d'oeuvres illustrated with beautiful color plates and intriguing drawings. Includes recipes for Danish open sandwiches, lunch-box fillings, cocktail trifles, canapés, hors d'oeuvres and meats, fish, fowl, salads, eggs, and cheeses for the buffet meal." Booklist

Booklist 45:236 Mr 15 '49

"The authors approach the whole subject of the famous Danish smørrebrød with a respect that amounts to piety, and their discussion of the technique of buttering bread, the right garnish for a liver paste and the delicate choice between chives and dill is as fascinating as it is instructive. A somewhat quaint but not at all unpleasing translation adds to the flavor of the text."

+ New Yorker 24:60 D 25 '48 130w

BANNON, LAURA MAY. Billy and the bear; pictures by [the author]. 48p $2.50 Houghton

49-8137

Picture storybook about an intelligent small boy who was trying to earn enough money to buy a bicycle. The day he kept the sheriff from shooting a tame bear, he was in luck. For grades three and four.

Booklist 45:298 My 1 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun Ap 23 '49 110w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p12 Jl 12 '49 90w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 25:207 My '49 50w

"A tremendously satisfying story, with elements of suspense, originality and a happy blend of the might-be-true and the wish-it-could-be true elements."

+ Kirkus 17:148 Mr 15 '49 260w

"Large type, easy reading, and amusing illustrations by the author. Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges

+ Library J 74:666 Ap 15 '49 70w

"The details so evocative of a boy's world, the plausibility of the whole and the easy prose add up to a very good story for 6-to-10-year-olds. Unfortunately the illustrations are not executed with Miss Bannon's usual grace." E. L. Buell

+ — N Y Times p24 Je 12 '49 140w

"This might easily be a true story, and it certainly is a very entertaining one. Laura Bannon's paintings, reproduced in rich color, are realistic and amusing. There is something secure and reassuring about Cedarville and its people. No one, of any age, can look at the portrait of Gertie in her ruffled gown with the bustle and her flowered hat and not grin broadly or even laugh aloud. This is a delightful picture book."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 Ap 9 '49 250w

BANTA, RICHARD ELWELL. The Ohio; il. by Edward Shenton. (Rivers of America) 592p $5 Rinehart

917.7 Ohio river. Ohio valley 49-11115

"One of the 'Rivers of America' series, this volume covers the history of the Ohio river and valley from prehistoric times through the Civil War." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:80 N 1 '49

Bookmark 9:51 D '49 50w

Kirkus 17:421 Ag 1 '49 130w

"Of regional interest largely, but on a good level of writing."

+ Kirkus 17:434 Ag 15 '49 90w

"Author writes with authority and a great deal of wit. . . Recommended." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 74:1315 S 15 '49 130w

"No one will be inclined to question the author's remark that he has been collecting material about the Ohio for twenty years. He knows a great deal about his subject and has apparently read with attention all the books he lists in his eighteen-page bibliography. Furthermore, he carries his knowledge lightly —perhaps too lightly, for the attitude of the amateur who invites his readers to share his own lack of sympathy with the professional scholars sometimes wears thin." H. N. Smith

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 13 '49 1000w

"This rather large book . . . will please all Ohio River Valley enthusiasts, enthrall the amateur of early and middle America, and even entice a good many casual readers, who will perhaps be inspired to extend their reading via the extensive bibliography included. Mr. Banta has tactfully steered clear of such sawyers and snags in the channel as the overworked and dilapidated legend of Mike Fink, and other similar frontier exhibits of the popular Americana trade, but it was inevitable in a book covering the Ohio Valley from Paleozoic times that a good deal of familiar ground would have to be traversed, sometimes painfully." R. P. Bissell

+ N Y Times p53 N 13 '49 450w

New Yorker 25:59 D 31 '49 120w

"Mr. Banta who has been accumulating notes on the Ohio for 20 years, presents the story of the river and its tributaries in a full-bodied, briskly-paced narrative." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p31 N 27 '48 500w

"The three sections that bring the river's story down to the present, enumerating its products, explaining its floods, its navigation, and its improvements, and portraying its modern aspect, give 'The Ohio' a completeness that many of the Rivers books do not have. Indeed, this volume is one that has long been needed, for nothing equaling it in scope has been published on the subject." W. E. Wilson

+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 N 26 '49 650w

BARBER, MRS ELSIE MARION (OAKES). Trembling years. 237p $3 Macmillan

49-8317

The story of a young girl's battle to overcome the mental despair that followed an attack of crippling infantile paralysis. Final victory is Kathy's but only after she has learned complete self-reliance.

Booklist 45:264 Ap 1 '49

"The sympathy here, which never slips over into sentimentality, the quality of youth which is very genuine, make this particularly affecting and engaging."

+ Kirkus 17:11 Ja 1 '49 170w

"The author has concocted a moving story that at times rings true. But interspersed, there are the false, often contrived incidents that carry the story along. These will make the mature mind reject the book. However, the book is perfect for the older teen-age girl." C. W. Roth

+ — Library J 74:494 Mr 15 '49 100w

+ Library J 74:1557 O 15 '49 40w

"'The Trembling Years' is a sincere and often moving record of experience that will be helpful to a reader, especially a young reader, who is facing disappointment. As a novel per se, it is limited by the immaturity of the girl and perhaps by the author's very closeness to its subject matter." Mary Ross

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Jl 10 '49 550w

"The author, who was herself a victim of polio when she was 17, has obviously drawn from that experience the terror of illness, the anguish of readjustment, as well as those characters and incidents which bear directly on Kathy's plight. Mrs Barber is less successful with her other characters and in the love story that brings the book to an idyllic conclusion." Ann Schakne

+ N Y Times p18 Ap 17 '49 200w

BARBER, E. M.—Continued
"Miss Barber writes with insight and compassion. Her narrative has pace and liveliness. She is guilty of one or two sentimental and fortuitous situations, and her ending is too slick and idyllic. Yet she must be excused on the ground that she renders valuable service to all those who would understand the pattern of reaction to tragedy, a pattern which she has tapped at the universal level, so we learn when we have finished her book that we have experienced the feelings and thoughts not only of Kathy Storm, but of all individuals who have ever been seriously hurt." Betsy Barton
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:32 My 28 '49 550w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter
+ Springf'd Republican p8C My 1 '49 490w

Wis Lib Bul 45:88 My '49

BARBER, WILLETTA ANN, and SCHABELITZ, RUDOLPH FREDERICK. The deed is drawn. 241p il $2.50 Scribner 49-8800

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun My 20 '49 40w

Kirkus 17:160 Mr 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Trbiune Wkly Bk R p12 Je 5 '49 140w

"In this latest opus, the sketch-clue is exceptionally adroit—so simple and obvious that I went right past it and later kicked myself soundly; but the plot is something else again. . . For the sake of the sketch-puzzle you might try it—if you're very good at fast skimming." Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p33 Ap 24 '49 180w

"A moderately effective story, of interest principally to those who enjoy novel methods of detection, however unlikely."
New Yorker 25:116 My 7 '49 110w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 3 '49 100w

"Entertaining."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:56 My 14 '49 40w

BARD, MARY. The Doctor wears three faces. 254p $3 Lippincott
B or 92 49-7931

A doctor's wife describes her marriage, its difficulties, and disappointments, but insists she would not be married to anyone else. The author is a sister of Betty MacDonald.

Booklist 45:233; 258 Mr 15 '49; Ap 1 '49

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Ap 19 '49 450w

Library J 74:1558 O 15 '49 50w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ap 17 '49 320w

"We are offered her formula for transcending that bane of all doctors' wives, the Medical Meeting—and, for a change of pace, some really commonsense advice on diabetes, carcinoma, high blood pressure, children and allergies." James MacBride
+ N Y Times p12 My 8 '49 180w

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 My 8 '49 400w

Wis Lib Bul 45:86 My '49

BAREA, ARTURO. Lorca: the poet and his people; tr. from the Spanish by Ilsa Barea. 176p $3 Harcourt
861 Garcia Lorca, Federico 49-11331

An essay on the Spanish poet who was killed by fascists at the beginning of the Civil war. The author, a fellow poet and Spaniard, says in his Preface: "What I have tried to do is to bring Lorca's poetry nearer to readers, particularly non-Spanish readers, by showing how it reflects and transforms the world of the Spanish people to which it belongs." In the text quotations from Lorca are given in English, but the original Spanish is given in an Appendix.

"It is easy to understand the compulsion which moved Barea to write this penetrating book. A liberal of Lorca's generation, now living in England, he must often have felt the need to explain himself, his people, and his contemporaries. Because he has so brilliantly succeeded, he has written a book that is important far beyond its size or casual demeanor." Ruth Chapin
+ Christian Science Monitor p15 O 20 '49 750w

"A splendid book of interpretation of the poetry and drama of the Spanish poet, Federico Garcia Lorca, beloved poet murdered by presumably the Falangists in the early days of the revolution."
+ Kirkus 17:599 O 15 '49 180w

"In scope and length this book is hardly more than a good-sized essay; in its unaffectedness, simplicity, clarity, and richness it possesses great virtues; easily, and economically, the four chapters supply most valuable illumination of the poet's attitude toward his people, toward death and sex, and toward his art. Ilsa Barea, the author's wife, has made the translation, not only of her husband's prose, but of many selections from Lorca's poems and plays. The translations are well done, not overambitious or strained." Rolfe Humphries
+ Nation 169:380 O 15 '49 230w

"With rare skill and the sympathy of a complete friend Arturo Barea sketches the life of Lorca, giving free renditions of many poems, summaries of plays, paragraphs from lectures. . . A somber and thoughtful book steeped in the soul of ancient and modern Spain, its shadows reaching far back and beyond reading a long stretch into the future. In degree it unriddles the Spanish for us and brings us in slight measure closer to the Spain that now broods over yesterday and wonders about tomorrow." Carl Sandburg
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 O 16 '49 750w

"I am sure that these pages will be to the liking of American readers, whether they know Lorca or not. The book offers bilingual examples of all the stages of the poet's production that quicken nostalgia in us Spaniards, and in Americans will doubtless awaken zones of sensibility undiscovered or unknown to themselves. This task is the privilege of poetry. And when the poet has a lyrical nature endowed with this exceptional communicative aptitude, which is the mark of genius, his popularity offers no great problems." Ramon Sender
+ N Y Times p3 Ja 1 '50 900w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ja 8 '50 140w

BARINGER, WILLIAM ELDON. Lincoln's Vandalia; a pioneer portrait; il. by Romaine Proctor. 141p $2.50 Rutgers univ. press
B or 92 Lincoln, Abraham. Vandalia, Illinois 49-10184

A history of the old state capital of Illinois, Vandalia, with emphasis on its buildings and inhabitants during the years when Abraham Lincoln was a member of the Illinois legislature. Index.

Booklist 46:32 S 15 '49

"While the author is concerned in the main with Lincoln's legislative career, he tells the story with due attention to background, tracing the history of the frontier capital from its founding to the end of its day of glory. Therefore the book is an interesting, though minor, essay in social history, as well as a worthy addition to Lincoln biography." P. M. Angle
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p44 D 4 '49 410w

"Dr. Baringer, former executive secretary of the Abraham Lincoln Association at Springfield, has done students a real service in thus emphasizing a frequently neglected period of Lincoln's early political training." Helen Nicolay

+ N Y Times p20 Ag 28 '49 380w

Time 54:88 Ag 22 '49 450w

BARJAVEL, RENE. Tragic innocents; tr. from the French by Eithne Wilkins. 346p $3.50 Rinehart

49-9301

The love story of two very young people in France during the occupation. The boy receives the news that his Marie needs him, and altho wounded rushes back to her, but finds her dead.

Booklist 45:335 Je 1 '49

"An odd blend of sophistication, of Gallic outspokenness, with a simplicity, almost a naivete, makes this unique in its field. Beautifully translated by Eithne Wilkins, the English text loses nothing of the grace of language. Thinly plotted, there is an inevitable sense of fading off from the central theme, a heightening of the unreality of the idyll with its tragic end."

+ Kirkus 17:186 Ap 1 '49 210w

"The tragedy which befalls the innocents is worked out with literary decency; among the book's merits are a certain detachment on the narrator's part, an economy of dialogue, and the proof it offers that the subject of young love has not been done to death." Paul Bloomfield

+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 19 '48 90w

Reviewed by John Farrelly

New Repub 121:26 Jl 11 '49 390w

"Monsieur Barjaval sets off to tell his story with an admirable kind of tough lyricism. Here, one says, is someone who can build on the Mauriac formula just that romantic structure which we need for shelter in these anguished times. . . Few artistic achievements are more moving than those which evoke some image of youthful ecstasy now utterly vanished. But M. Barjavel's attempt, graceful though it is, does not quite come off." Simon Harcourt-Smith

+ — New Statesman & Nation 37:37 Ja 8 '49 240w

"Rene Barjarvel has . . . approached his subject with an exceptionally precise lyrical simplicity, and the result is a book of haunting vividness and beauty." Blythe Morley

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Je 5 '49 450w

"It is not hard to see why 'The Tragic Innocents' was acclaimed in France when it appeared in 1946. Unashamedly romantic, it must have satisfied a long-suppressed craving for simple, personal sentiments. Today, however, the sentiments seem only to get in the way of the author's real gift: his keen observations, tucked in here and there, of French life and manners." Nona Balakian

N Y Times p4 Je 12 '49 470w

"The German Occupation of France is used by a relatively new French novelist as an effectively dark setting for a pastoral tragedy that is almost as fateful and touching as some of Thomas Hardy's similarly recounted tales of English countryfolk. . . The final reunion [of the young lovers], which takes place after the girl's death, has a 'Tristan and Isolde' quality about it, but this is kept within reasonable bounds and seems justified, in view of the author's previous account of the romance and of the desperation of the defeated people. The translation is excellent."

+ New Yorker 25:88 Je 4 '49 140w

Reviewed by Marc Rivette

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 8 '49 650w

"Eithne Wilkins, the translator, deserves a great deal of credit for her interpretation of the best of these pages; the rest she is not wholly responsible for, and my heart went out to her in that last scene." John Woodburn

— + Sat R of Lit 32:14 Jl 9 '49 600w

"M. Barjavel, a new writer, brings us the realism and tenderness we have learned to expect from the best French films. . . It is all vividly caught and set down, in a way that again reminds us of the cinema, and makes us hope that more of M. Barjavel's work may be translated." L. A. G. Strong

+ Spec 181:112 N 26 '48 80w

Times [London] Lit Sup p665 N 27 '48 190w

BARKER, SHIRLEY. Peace, my daughters. 248p $3 Crown

49-1164

A story of the Salem witchcraft trials. It is the author's feeling that there was a real evil in Salem in those days and she embodies it in the person of one of her chief characters, John Horne, the shoemaker.

Booklist 45:241 Mr 15 '49

Reviewed by Dorothy Sparks

Chicago Sun Mr 9 '49 450w

"Only the conclusion, though carefully devised, seems too incredible a blend of the natural and the supernatural." W. K. Rugg

+ — Christian Science Monitor p15 Mr 24 '49 180w

"An always tempting subject, this has a sure knowledge of historical facts and a wise understanding of the atmosphere of the period."

+ Kirkus 17:36 Ja 15 '49 130w

"Fine poetic novel. . . Considerable research cunningly hidden under good character development and description. Heartily recommended for small library purchase." F. A. Boyle

+ Library J 74:311 F 15 '49 80w

"The current popularity of historical fiction should assure this novel the large audience which its merit justifies. Finely conceived and, on the whole, finely executed, it not only tells an absorbing story but illuminates one of the most violent, disturbing and perplexing episodes of the American past." Lloyd Morris

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 F 27 '49 750w

"Miss Barker's novel may be read as a parable, an adventure into theology and philosophy, but it need not be, for this story of lovely Rebecca Wicom and the men in her life, including John Horne, is in no sense a treatise. It is, instead, a beautifully written novel that gives sharp reality to the Salem scene of 1692-97." Herschel Brickell

+ N Y Times p24 F 27 '49 230w

"Shirley Barker, who made a place for herself in the Yale Younger Poets Series, now decidedly makes a place in fiction with 'Peace, My Daughters.' It is an impressive first novel, boldly conceived and executed with a beauty of style that reflects her other talents." Edmund Fuller

+ Sat R of Lit 32:46 Ap 16 '49 600w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p8B Mr 13 '49 240w

Wis Lib Bul 45:88 My '49

BARKSDALE, JELKS. Titanium; its occurrence, chemistry, and technology. 591p il $10 Ronald

669.7 Titanium 49-6543

"The first comprehensive book on titanium to appear in the United States. . . The book is divided into 28 chapters, each one of which is profusely documented. The author delves into such topics as the occurrence, geology and mineral deposits which yield titanium; production and import of ores and the chemistry of elemental titanium. The 20-odd chapters which deal with processes, applications and uses are well collated. They include intimate details on pigment manufacture and sketchier information on alloys, ceramics, catalysts, mordants and dyes." (Chem Eng) Index.

"Well written and well timed. . . The book is recommended to all workers in the fields of processing and using of titanium products and should be a useful reference for the ever increasing industrial applications of the abundant mineral."

+ Chem Eng 56:262 D '49 220w

BARKSDALE, JELKS—Continued

"This book is a reference manual of the knowledge and technology as it has been developed to date, and also a guide to the literature, including patents. It is not for lay readers, but is needed in active metallurgical and chemical collections." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1606 O 15 '49 140w

BARNE, KITTY (MRS ERIC STREATFEILD). Secret of the sand hills. 245p $2.50 Dodd 49-7830

Mystery story for grades five to seven. The scene is the country near Bristol, England.

Booklist 45:285 Ap 15 '49

"A delightful story. . . Recommended for ages 12-14." S. J. Robinson
+ Library J 74:557 Ap 1 '49 60w

"Everything is very unlikely. . . However, it is well enough written so that the children are real and amusing, and the excitement at times intense." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Je 26 '49 150w

"The puzzle may seem a bit thin to experienced readers of mystery stories, but the children have such a good time unraveling it that 8-to-12-year-olds will be caught up in the swing of their activities. As is not always the case in mystery stories, the characterization is incisively and amusingly drawn, and the background (in which post-war austerities are blithely ignored) is charming." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p32 Mr 6 '49 130w

"Kitty Barne's skill in writing and her well-drawn characters lift what might have been just another mystery story out of the ordinary." R. H. V.
+ Sat R of Lit 32:39 Jl 9 '49 180w
Wis Lib Bul 45:68 Ap '49

BARNES, CLARE. White collar zoo. 72p il pa $1 Doubleday
817 Animal pictures 49-9818

"A picture album of birds and beasts, in which each photograph is supplied with a thoughtfully apposite caption tying up the zoological specimen with a typical denizen of any American office." New Yorker

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 185:83 Ja '50 50w

"This is one of the most amusing books I have come across for many months. If you have ever worked in an office, it is a safe bet that you will enjoy it." Edith Fowke
+ Canadian Forum 29:166 O '49 270w
Kirkus 17:356 Jl 1 '49 100w
Library J 74:1563 O 15 '49 20w
New Yorker 25:68 Jl 30 '49 50w

BARNES, JAMES ANDERSON. Wealth of the American people; a history of their economic life. 910p il $5.75 Prentice-Hall
330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions 49-5178

A one-volume survey of the economic history of the United States from colonial times to the present. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:59 O 15 '49

"Footnotes are few, but there is a thorough and intelligent discussion of source materials and books for further reading."
+ Library J 74:1757 N 15 '49 100w

BARNES, MRS MARGARET CAMPBELL. Brief gaudy hour; a novel of Anne Boleyn. 335p $3 Macrae Smith co.
Anne Boleyn, consort of Henry VIII, king of England—Fiction 49-6314

Historical novel based on the life of Anne Boleyn, from her eighteenth year until the hour of her death. The author stresses the importance of her love for Harry Percy of Northumberland, whom she was not allowed to marry, and her hatred for Cardinal Wolsey.

Booklist 46:82 N 1 '49
Bookmark 9:29 N '49 20w

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 25 '49 150w

"The forever fascinating story of Anne Boleyn, in its third and most popular rendition of the year."
+ Kirkus 17:371 Jl 15 '49 160w

"Ranks as light fiction despite a sturdy historical background and almost exclusive use of historical characters. Anne is presented sympathetically, but not always as an admirable person. . . A well-written, romantic novel." M. E. Monroe
+ Library J 74:1320 S 15 '49 70w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p25 N 6 '49 170w

"Not only is 'Brief Gaudy Hour' a moving and life-like portrait of Anne Boleyn. It is a thoroughly delightful novel in which the author has succeeded in blending historical events and utterances with suspense in narrative and spontaneity in character." Hilda Osterhout
+ N Y Times p42 O 2 '49 320w

"Cliché-studded as the story of Anne's great love may be, it makes for a certain credibility in what ensues. This, then, is a tolerably readable period novel, with here and there a glimpse of the nature of Renaissance people, and here and there a spark of life in the pageantry of the Tudor court." Robert Pick
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:30 Ja 14 '50 280w

BARNES, RALPH MOSSER. Motion and time study. 3d ed 559p il $5 Wiley
658.542 Motion study. Time study 49-7143

A new edition of a work first published in 1937 (Book Review Digest 1937). "The main purpose of this revision has been to enlarge upon certain phases of motion and time study and to include more and diverse illustrations and cases. . . Most of the chapters have been thoroughly revised, and much new material has been added. There are five new chapters, dealing with the subjects of process analysis, gang process charts, activity charts, and man and machine charts." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:212 F 15 '49

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1279 S 15 '48 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:31 Mr '49

BARNETT, GRACE TRELEVEN, and BARNETT, OLIVE ELIZABETH. Dark Island mystery. 181p $2.50 Oxford 49-8187

Mystery story for older boys and girls. The scene is Montana.

"Action-enigma for boys competently, convincingly handled, but not improved by the decorative chapter headings."
+ — Kirkus 17:151 Mr 15 '49 130w

"The atmosphere and characters are well done." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 My 8 '49 80w

"The unusual setting of a mountain lake in the West permits the plausible appearance of many colorful characters. . . While the plot may seem in some respects overly contrived, readers from 11 to 15 will find this defect more than offset by the story's fast pace and exciting denouement." Howard Boston
+ — N Y Times p28 My 22 '49 170w

BARNETT, LINCOLN KINNEAR. The universe and Dr. Einstein; with a foreword by Albert Einstein. 127p il $2.75 Sloane
530.1 Universe. Relativity (physics). Einstein, Albert 48-9634

An attempt to interpret Einstein's theory of relativity to the layman. The author "discusses the theories which physicists have evolved in their attempts to explain the workings of the universe, and which by reason of their rejection or acceptance were fundamental to the development of our modern quantum and relativity theories. The discussion centers about the conflicting wave and particle theories of light, and leads finally to an explanation of the unified field theory, wherein Einstein hopes to evolve a single physical law embodying the concepts of matter, gravitation and electromagnetism." (Library J) Reading list. Index.

Booklist 45:220 Mr 1 '49

Chicago Sun p6X Ja 30 '49 110w

"Lincoln Barnett has performed a task of inestimable value to the world of natural science and philosophy by analyzing, in clear and lucid fashion, the foremost physical theories advanced today to explain the universe in which we live. It is a book metaphysicians as well as physicists should read." H. B. Nichols
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 20 '49 1550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '49

"Science writing that hits the spot—clear, logical, unsensational yet absorbing, with a strong sense of the subject's mind and personality emerging through a study of the problems he faced."
+ Kirkus 16:562 O 15 '48 130w

Reviewed by J. E. Brown
Library J 73:1591 N 1 '48 150w

"The author of this remarkable little book undertakes to cover in scarcely more than one hundred pages the entire story of the post-Newtonian revolution, from Locke and Berkeley through Einstein's special and general theories of relativity. No other popular exposition with which I am familiar attempts so much in so short a space or succeeds so well in avoiding the usual difficulty." J. W. Krutch
+ Nation 168:76 Ja 15 '49 1400w

New Statesman & Nation 38:80 Jl 16 '49 150w

"'The Universe and Dr. Einstein' sets a new standard in science writing and is, I think, the first American book that can be compared in maturity, clarity and grace with the distinguished and influential works of Sir James Jeans and Sir Arthur Eddington. It deserves equal acceptance, if only for its literary quality." Gerald Wendt
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Ja 16 '49 1200w

"'The Universe and Dr. Einstein' is excellent science popularizing. But the philosophy must be taken with a grain of salt." J. E. Pfeiffer
+ — N Y Times p22 Ja 30 '49 1000w

New Yorker 24:81 Ja 22 '49 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 Mr 6 '49 200w

"We needed Mr. Barnett's book a generation ago more than we need it now. Late though it may be in coming, this explanation of the fundamentals of modern physics is worth the attention of those who still wonder why cosmological and nuclear physicists talk as they do and why all the cocksureness that characterized nineteenth-century physics has vanished. . . Gifted as he is with a penetrating mind, a love a good writing, and a sense of style; he interprets what he sees with a simplicity and clarity that few popularizers of science can match." Waldemar Kaempffert
+ Sat R of Lit 32:13 Ja 22 '49 900w

School & Society 69:135 F 19 '49 60w

"The book is short and to the point, and it goes far towards explaining in easily understandable terms one of the greatest discoveries of our age. That it could be regarded as anything like a final statement probably neither the author nor Dr. Einstein himself would claim. But for the time being it provides an interesting treatment in almost non-mathematical terms of a complex mathematical theory."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p416 Je 24 '49 500w

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:275 Je '49 200w

"The treatment by the author is neither superficial nor erudite; it requires no special knowledge to be brought to its reading. It will, however, provide for the layman who is armed with a normal curiosity about the simple physical phenomena around him an experience of stimulating and exciting thought." R. F. Humphreys
+ Yale R n s 38:759 summer '49 490w

BARNHART, NANCY, il. See Bible. Whole. The Lord is my shepherd

BARNOUW, ERIK. Handbook of radio production; an outline of studio techniques and procedures in the United States; il. by Victor Barnouw. 324p $4.50 Little; text ed $3.25 Heath

791.4 Radio broadcasting 49-612

"In the companion volume, Handbook of Radio Writing [Book Review Digest 1947] the planning, preparation and marketing of radio scripts in the United States were described in detail. The present volume, taking up where the others left off, carries us forward through rehearsals to the broadcast itself." (Foreword) Part one deals with theory, equipment, and personnel; part two describes the application of the theory. A production directory acts as bibliography, glossary, and index.

Booklist 45:220 Mr 1 '49

"Highly recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:549 Ap 1 '49 40w

BARON, ALEXANDER, pseud. See Bernstein, A.

BARONTE, GERVEE, pseud. See Breckenridge, Mrs Charles

BARR, JENE. Little circus dog; a read-it-yourself story; pictures by Kurt Wiese. [32p] $1 Whitman, A. 49-11547

Simply told story for young readers describing the experiences of a tiny dog, a member of a circus troupe.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun O 15 '49 30w

Reviewed by E. W. Kunkle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 N 13 '49 50w

Kirkus 17:603 N 1 '49 50w

"With a brief text, checked against the Rinsland Word List, on a favorite subject, set in manuscript type, with colorful illustrations by Kurt Wiese, it should be just the thing to encourage beginning readers to independent effort. Slow readers in older groups will also enjoy it. Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges
+ Library J 74:1826 D 1 '49 80w

BARR, STRINGFELLOW. Pilgrimage of western man. 369p $4 Harcourt

901 Civilization—Philosophy. Civilization, Occidental 49-9739

"[Survey] of Western civilization, tracing mankind's struggle for freedom, justice and unity. The disintegration of the medieval unity of the Church resulting from the development of mercantilism, and influence of humanism; the rise of kingship as rulers gained power by means of overseas plunder, only to lose it with the advent of the Reformation and Industrial Revolution; the gradual progress of the common man from serfdom to freedom are absorbingly told. At last the machine made 'one neighborhood' economically, but the failure of a concomitant political unity brought catastrophe. Accent is on the compelling need for unity through world (federal) government, since the U. N. is basically inadequate." (Library J) Index.

"The Pilgrimage of Western Man is surely one of the very best surveys of the historical development of western civilization ever written. It embodies up-to-date conceptions and interpretations of history and is expressed in readable, even brilliant, style. As a guide to understanding the historical background of our age, it is worth a dozen books like Toynbee's A Study of History, which, for some strange reason, Mr. Barr seems to admire." H. E. Barnes

BARR, STRINGFELLOW—Continued

+ Ann Am Acad 266:227 N '49 700w

Booklist 45:273; 390 Ap 15 '49; Jl 15 '49

"Its earlier chapters make much of the religious framework which lay behind the thinking of the period. Happily, it evidences good acquaintance with the Catholic pattern revealed in the theological summas, while it does well to note that the assault upon the Catholic unity in the sixteenth century was possible only because of prior difficulties within the body of the Church. Throughout, it has the knack of tying political movements to their intellectual backgrounds. . . Because its canvas is large, errors of detail now and then creep in. And certain subjects reflect dependence upon secondary studies rather than direct use of the pertinent sources." H. G. J. Beck

+ — Cath World 170:320 Ja '50 350w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Jl 28 '49 600w

"The author can scarcely mention any phase of Protestantism without including 'heresy,' 'heretics' or 'heretical' in his descriptive phrase. . . Catholics were conserving 'the spiritual growth and institutional experience of fifteen centuries.' I do not want to overstress this single characteristic of what is otherwise a magnificent survey of modern history. One may read many pages without encountering any of this tenderness toward the Roman Catholic concept of unity. To be sure, one finds it wherever there is room for it, but there are large areas of the history to which it is not relevant. Many sections exhibit some of the best historical writing of recent years, and this applies both to grasp of materials and to style of presentation." W. E. Garrison

+ — Christian Century 66:1360 N 16 '49 1550w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 25 '49 1400w

Commonweal 51:245 D 2 '49 80w

"The president of St. John's College, Annapolis, has won for himself the right to be heard. This is a thoughtful, careful and intelligent tracing of the pilgrimage of western man in search for unity, freedom and justice under law. . . A sane balance among many impassioned books."

+ Kirkus 17:164 Mr 15 '49 240w

"Brilliant, fascinating, historical survey. . . Strongly recommended for all libraries." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 74:890 Je 1 '49 150w

Reviewed by Golo Mann
Nation 169:354 O 8 '49 750w

"The historian, teacher, and humanist, Stringfellow Barr, one-time president of St. John's College in Annapolis, has written a work that cannot fail to bring its readers much enlightenment, while stirring them to think in a way which, at this juncture in world affairs, they will find immediately relevant. . . The serious objections to Mr. Barr's courageous attempt are of a different order; but again, they do not impair the interest of his book nor even the value of his message—only its validity." Jacques Barzun

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Jl 24 '49 1750w

"Mr. Barr is firm, even dogmatic, but never woolly, never irresponsible. For the most part, this book is straightforward modern European history, in many ways fresh and stimulating, and by no means wild and eccentric. It benefits greatly from Mr. Barr's firm resolution not to 'cover' everything in the same relentless detail. Men and events stand out in clear perspective." Crane Brinton

+ N Y Times p6 Ag 14 '49 700w

"By the time Mr. Barr has finished, he has not only greatly strengthened the historical case for world government but also written a first-rate textbook on post-medieval European history, a circumstance that, when viewed in the light of his attitude toward textbooks while he was president of St. John's College, in Annapolis, proves all over again what a really delightful creature man is."

+ New Yorker 25:63 Ag 6 '49 130w

"With eloquence, with passion, with immense erudition, Barr has described the melancholy journey of Western man. But he has not answered the question which Plato bequeathed: How shall the City of the Rich and the City of the Poor find the common philosophy and the Philosopher-King that will build the Universal City?" R. G. Colodny

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Jl 24 '49 600w

"These are times when Western Man desperately needs some word of encouragement, some suggestions as to how he may salvage himself and his civilization. Mr. Barr's reading of history has its limitations and his plan for bringing about One World is a modest one, in all conscience; but his book should aid and comfort the bewildered heir of Christendom." Raymond Walters

+ Sat R of Lit 32:11 Jl 23 '49 1200w

School & Society 70:15 Jl 2 '49 70w

+ Springf'd Republican p7B Jl 31 '49 600w

Reviewed by H. W. Hintz
+ Survey 85:613 N '49 1050w

BARR, W. E., and ANHORN, VICTOR JOHN. Scientific and industrial glass blowing and laboratory techniques. 380p il $6 Instruments pub.

666.1 Glass blowing and working. Scientific apparatus and instruments 49-1004

"A manual of glass-blowing techniques and related information which is written on a professional level. Although it contains information which is of value to students, it is intended chiefly for research workers who must design and sometimes build glass apparatus in the course of their laboratory experiments. The text is concise and clear, and it is supplemented by over 200 illustrations of glass-blowing tools, operations and, also, advanced apparatus such as mercury diffusion pumps. Many of the chapters include lengthy lists of references to related literature." N Y New Tech Bks

N Y New Tech Bks 34:69 S '49

"The book can be highly recommended as an invaluable aid to experimental work in chemistry, physics and even biology." Saul Dushman

+ R of Scientific Instruments 20:690 S '49 250w

BARRETT, MONTE. Smoke up the valley. 344p $3 Bobbs

49-1012

"An historical novel of Texas in the '70's." Subtitle

Booklist 45:296 My 1 '49

Library J 74:1558 O 15 '49 20w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Jl 10 '49 130w

"A rootin'-tootin' romance of blazing six-shooters and gore sufficient to satisfy the most avid seeker of slaughter in the chaparral. . . The book might be called a period novel. More accurately, it is a better-than-average 'Western' and as such can be read with enjoyment by those who enjoy 'Westerns.'" Hoffman Birney

+ N Y Times p32 Mr 27 '49 180w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Jl 10 '49 200w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 32:32 Jl 16 '49 110w

BARRINGER, PAUL BRANDON. Natural bent; memoirs. 280p $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press

B or 92 49-6689

Memoirs of the author's childhood in the Old South, and of his years as a medical student at home and in Europe. He begins with his birth in 1857, and ends his story in Vienna in 1881. The time until his death in 1941 is covered in a postscript. Dr. Barringer did not write for publication, but as "recollections for his grandchildren." The work has been edited by Anna Barringer, a daughter. Index.

Booklist 46:123 D 1 '49

"A pretty personal account, of questionable general appeal."
Kirkus 17:566 O 1 '49 120w

"Quiet humor of the book, its really valuable sidelights on the shifts to which the South was reduced in order to survive, and its interesting observations on cock-fighting make it of more than merely regional or sectional interest." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:1599 O 15 '49 80w

"The book is in no sense intended to be a scientific treatise. It is simply the story of the education of a young Southerner right after the Civil War; and so regarded, it is a luminous, heartwarming book, the story of one to whom it is precisely right to apply that horribly abused term 'a gentleman of the old school.'" G. W. Johnson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 D 18 '49 1100w

"It is a book for everybody who has any interest in a vital stage of our history and who savors such dramatic episodes as an eight-year-old's mission to Yankee headquarters to recover General Jackson's two war horses for his widow (he got the horses)." H. I. B.
+ N Y Times p21 Ja 1 '50 320w

"I am aware that a book of this kind has chiefly local interest; Dr. Barringer's life was part of his own South, and his readers will be mostly those who know and understand the place and period his memoirs cover. Yet it is true that his story of a simple, straightforward life, a life in which there was nothing haphazard but an intelligent sense of direction from the beginning, a life that shows in all its aspects a sense of responsibility willingly accepted and tasks ably performed, has something to give any reader." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 13 '50 800w

BARROWS, HAROLD KILBRITH. Floods, their hydrology and control. 432p il maps $6.50 McGraw

627.4 Floods. Flood control 48-9583

"The principles and methods of flood control as outlined in this volume, are based on an extensive study of the flood control and abatement measures which have been put into practice in the United States. In fact the greater part of the book is devoted to a review of the characteristics of fourteen major floods which have occurred in the United States during the past forty years, and to descriptions of specific flood control measures which have been carried out in various parts of the United States. This latter section is particularly valuable for its compilation of engineering data regarding types of dams and reservoirs installed, their size, purpose and cost, and a summary of the flood and runoff conditions for each area considered." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 45:369 Jl 1 '49
N Y New Tech Bks 34:22 Mr '49

"The consultant and statesman, as well as the teacher and student, will find this text excellent in coverage, in analysis, in appraisal, and in suggestions for further study in its field."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:278 Je '49 240w

BARTH, KARL. Dogmatics in outline; tr. by G. T. Thomson. 155p $3.75 Philosophical lib

238 Theology. Apostles' creed 49-10669

The substance of the book was delivered as lectures to students in Bonn in 1946, by the Swiss theologian Karl Barth. It is "not only a concise treatment of the basic issues confronting the churchmen of our time, but also an expression of the innermost thoughts, beliefs and feelings of one of the truly great theologians of the Christian church." (Publisher's note)

Reviewed by H. A. Bosley
Christian Century 66:1487 D 14 '49 2000w

"In the words of Reinhold Niebuhr the Barthian movement 'has affected the thought of the church profoundly, but only negatively; and it has not challenged the thought outside of the church at all.' Whatever may be our personal attitude toward the movement, it represents a leading, if not the dominant, trend in current Protestant theology, and as such needs to be understood by all teachers of religion. And no better or more authoritative summary of its teaching is to be found than that given us by Barth in his Dogmatics in Outline. Incidentally, it may be added that the book contains in its eleventh chapter a suggestive and impressive discussion of anti-Semitism." A. C. Knudson
Crozer Q 27:71 Ja '50 1050w

"One is impressed alike with the writer's profound scholarship, lucid presentation, and heart-warming faith. Highly recommended for the limited number of libraries wishing to offer the well translated works of contemporary European religious leaders." L. R. Miller
+ Library J 74:1457 O 1 '49 140w

"Wholly satisfactory is Barth's word when he says 'Christ's Incarnation is an analogue of creation. . .' The doctrine of the Second Adam must surely be central in all sound dogmatics. He is much sounder on the subject of Chalcedon than most moderns. . . But the book would be worth buying if only for the chapter on 'The Coming of Christ as Judge.' I shall be surprised if any preacher reads it without preaching a sermon on it."
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Je 20 '49 550w
Time 54:64 O 17 '49 900w

"As Professor Barth remarks in his foreword, 'attentive readers of this book will scarcely discover . . . much that is essentially new,' but the book was well worth translating, for it will serve as an excellent summary of an introduction to the Barthian theology."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p541 Ag 19 '49 750w

BARTON, JOHN RECTOR. Rural artists of Wisconsin. 196p il $5 Univ. of Wis. press

709.775 Artists, American 49-7222

"This book was planned in cooperation with John Steuart Curry, artist-in-residence at the University of Wisconsin. John R. Barton, professor of rural sociology in the University and his associate in the rural art program, carried out the plans after Curry's death in 1946. The life stories of thirty people from Wisconsin's rural areas are presented with illustrations of their work. There are more than eighty oil paintings, water colors, drawings and carvings reproduced here—all the work of untrained, non-professional artists." Wis Lib Bul

Reviewed by Thomas Craven
+ Sat R of Lit 32:25 My 14 '49 750w

"This is a unique book representing as it does the spirit and dreams of a special group and contributing to the record of cultural growth in Wisconsin. For all Wisconsin libraries—a good title to purchase with Memorial book funds. It should circulate widely not only for its art appeal but also for its social implications."
+ Wis Lib Bul 45:27 F '49

BARTON, MARGARET. Garrick. 312p il $5 Macmillan

B or 92 Garrick, David 49-8036

A biography of the great eighteenth century actor who was said to have restored Shakespeare's plays to the London stage and made them pay. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:279 Ap 15 '49

BARTON, MARGARET—Continued

Reviewed by Leila Flower
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 8 '49 850w

"Miss Barton's style makes the reading of Garrick's life as easy and entertaining as a novel. Her work is a valuable contribution to her bibliography of the American theatre." H. M. Dawley
+ Churchman 163:15 Je 1 '49 100w

"A biography of sound, substantial proportions, non-partisan point of view, solidity, but little glamor."
+ Kirkus 16:547 O 1 '48 130w

"Highly recommended for theatre and drama collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:549 Ap 1 '49 50w

"Garrick was in many ways an unattractive character—shallow, mean, snobbish, and vain, —but he is an ideal subject for biography. By his genius for acting and his power to charm he made himself the glistening sun round which the great planets of the eighteenth century revolved. . . And if one tires of the great there is that other, still more fascinating, society of actors and actresses like Macklin and Peg Woffington, so rich in character and life, with whom Garrick worked. Miss Barton handles this rich material skilfully, never missing a good story, but never allowing it to obscure her theme." J. M. D. P.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 My 21 '48 350w

"The present volume is, I believe, the first serious attempt in more than forty years to tell his story in reasonably complete form. It makes no pretense to absolute completeness, for the records are voluminous and an exhaustive chronicle would require several volumes at least. Neither does it claim to present any startling new discoveries. But the author knows her way about the eighteenth century very well indeed, her book is eminently readable, and it obviously takes its place as the work to which any ordinary reader will turn if he wants to make Garrick's acquaintance." J. W. Krutch
+ Nation 168:307 Mr 12 '49 1050w

Reviewed by Harold Clurman
New Repub 120:19 My 30 '49 1100w

"Miss Barton's style falls between the inspired insight of the romantic, novel-like biography, and the knock-down effect of veracity that comes from allowing an overwhelming collection of facts to speak for itself. She has been concerned to clear Garrick of the charge of 'mean little hound,' and thus tends to minimise his less pleasant side. Perhaps in this she may claim an ally in Dr. Johnson, who had some hard things to say about his old friend and former pupil's acting, but who almost always came to the defence of his character. In many respects, however, the book is interesting and useful." Peter Forster
+ — New Statesman & Nation 36:37 Jl 10 '48 500w

"What some of us would like in a life of Garrick are all obtainable evidences of how he played specific scenes. He was the fountain head of modern acting, and chiefly important for that reason. Miss Barton seems to have made little fresh effort to find these things out." W. P. Eaton
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Mr 27 '49 750w

"'Garrick' is both learned and fluently written, a singular achievement in theatrical biography." T. Q. Curtiss
+ N Y Times p7 Mr 20 '49 600w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 20 '49 450w

"In general Miss Barton threads her way with neat competence, digressing when necessary to describe the stage background of her actor. It is inexplicable, though, that while giving a fairly detailed bibliography, appendices, and an index, she disregards Professor Elizabeth P. Stein's scholarly study, 'David Garrick, Dramatist.' A persistent weakness of her book is her use of tasteless slang and cliché. . . Her portrait lacks the creative, supra-factual perception necessary to bring it to life, but we can still see, behind her patient marshaling of facts, the dim outlines of the greatest actor of his time." Robert Halsband
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:28 F 26 '49 800w

Reviewed by Peter Fleming
Spec 180:649 My 28 '48 850w

"Miss Barton's book is highly readable biography in its own right and one of those solid English performances as thick and tasty as an English pudding."
+ Time 53:116 Mr 14 '49 850w

"A book which undoubtedly succeeds in showing what manner of man [Garrick] was and how he took his place in the brilliant company of players, painters and writers who rank among the immortals."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p330 Je 12 '48 2650w

BARUCH, MRS DOROTHY (WALTER). New ways in discipline; you and your child today. (Whittlesey house publication) 280p il $3 McGraw

649.1 Children—Management 49-3702

A consultant in child guidance problems presents her theories on disciplining the modern child. She addresses her study to parents, teachers, and doctors. Index.

Booklist 45:369 Jl 1 '49

"A controversial book at some points. But it offers much that is salutary, constructive. The Lois Fisher drawings have a symbolic quality with underlying humor and understanding."
+ Kirkus 16:200 Ap 1 '49 350w

Reviewed by E. B. Hurlock
+ Sat R of Lit 32:39 S 10 '49 180w

"Pithily written, illustrated with clever cartoons, and with the main points reiterated in slogans and epigrams, this book will no doubt convey its message much better than the more technical writings at present available."
+ School R 58:58 Ja '50 1100w

"On the whole, this is a sound and wise book which offers practical help to parents in the guidance of their children and in the development of happier family relationships." M. F. Langmuir
+ Survey 85:555 O '49 450w

BASSETT, SARA WARE. White Sail. 244p $2.50 Doubleday

49-11784

Novel of Cape Cod. The establishing of a store in a renovated house is the cause of much talk in the friendly town of Belleport. The heroine, who is a stranger to the village, is a beautiful young woman with a secret in her past. As she struggles to regain her peace of mind the situation is complicated by the presence of a man who unwittingly holds a clue to Lorna's secret.

Booklist 46:141 D 15 '49

"Light and pleasant romance."
+ Bookmark 9:81 Ja '50 30w
Kirkus 17:486 S 1 '49 130w

"Pleasant vacation reading for women wanting to while away a few hours without overtaxing their minds." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 74:891 Je 1 '49 70w

BASSO, HAMILTON. The greenroom. 278p $3 Doubleday

49-10214

Rufus Jackson, a young editor from an American publishing house, while on a vacation in France, is asked by his employer to check up on the work of a famous American woman author. He finds her, an aging woman, living in luxury on the Riviera, and making life miserable for two young lovers. Jackson eventually discovers the truth about the supposed gracious lady, the famous authoress.

"One is left with an impression of high hopes, a successful atmosphere of suspense, two well-projected characters (the writer and an incidental princess), a leisured but never long-drawn pace, a writing style that is spare, sec, and quietly accomplished, and of minor despair. Mr. Basso has an excellent equipment with which to say something more than he says here."
+ — Atlantic 184:100 N '49 180w

Booklist 46:3; 13 S 1 '49

"A well-constructed novel that has all the appurtenances of profundity without quite achieving it."
+ — Cath World 170:159 N '49 210w

Reviewed by Clare Jaynes
Chicago Sun S 15 '49 400w

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 22 '49 220w

Reviewed by Florence Codman
Commonweal 51:252 D 2 '49 200w

"The story has considerable charm in the telling and makes good, though not important, reading."
+ Kirkus 17:369 Jl 15 '49 170w

" 'The Greenroom' is somehow reminiscent of an expensive, cunningly made music box. It is decorative, in good taste and its machinery, when uncovered proves subtle and ingenious. It is an irreproachable piece of craftsmanship. Yet the music it gives out is disappointing—not really tinny but of a quality inferior to expectations. . . Here, is a novel in the Jamesian tradition, well planned, capably written, but with inadequate character insights and a certain lack of vitality." Hiram Haydn
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p30 S 25 '49 700w

"I have noticed recently a tendency to compare an author's writing to that of an angel, a fallen one, or a recording one. I don't know any special angel to bestow on Mr. Basso, unless there should happen to be one whose writing suggests a more gentle Hemingway, with perhaps a dash of Henry James." Patricia Collinge
+ N Y Times p6 S 18 '49 900w

"One puts down the book with a sense of having been competently, if not extravagantly, entertained, and with thanks to Mr. Basso for not having winded either his readers or himself."
+ New Yorker 25:102 S 24 '49 120w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 27 '49 950w

"Mr. Basso has read his Maugham and at times, when he manages a breathing spell from his plot, he can do a scene with urbanity and a quiet humor. . . Above all, however, I shall remember Mr. Basso's remarkable last sentence—a sentence whose complete accuracy atones, it seems to me, for any lack of specificity, the perfect sentence for ending, or for that matter beginning, this or almost any modern novel." John Woodburn
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:17 S 24 '49 750w

BATES, HERBERT ERNEST. Dear life. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 149p $2 Little 49-11568

Laura, the heroine of this grim novel of postwar England, lived in a London basement, with her unpleasant mother and stepfather, and Uncle Cupid, who was so stunned by the bomb which wrecked their home that he spent all his time knitting with scarlet wool "for dear life." In an attempt to escape, Laura joined forces with a Canadian veteran, and found herself mixed up in a life of crime and brutality.

"A hypnotic piece of writing." C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 185:86 Ja '50 190w

Booklist 46:97 N 15 '49

"Of course, Mr. Bates has good reasons for such unlovely portraits. Laura has been beaten, literally and figuratively, until she is incapable of normal feelings, while Clay has been brutalized by his war experiences. Granting the truth of what Mr. Bates has written, one must still wish that there were something in the story that would stir our sympathy more warmly. The author, I fear, has mistaken virtuosity for virtue." Kelsey Guilfoil
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 13 '49 380w

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 29 '49 260w

Kirkus 17:441 Ag 15 '49 150w

"Although interest is fairly well sustained, the book is a slim one as to quantity and quality." W. K. Harrison
— + Library J 74:1320 S 15 '49 80w

New Repub 122:21 Ja 2 '50 100w

"H. E. Bates has almost everything a discriminating reader could wish for in a writer of fiction. As a story-teller he is firstrate. His prose is superb, economical without being curt, alive with tone and shade. He has, besides, a special quality quite his own, an antenna-like sixth-sense perception of the color of a place, an hour or an emotion that identifies his best work as surely as the title page. As writers go, H. E. Bates is very definitely quality. And yet I always close a Bates book with the same feeling I get when swallowing an especially tasty hors-d'oeuvre: It's good, but there just isn't enough of it." Richard Match
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 20 '49 500w

Reviewed by James Stern
N Y Times p4 N 6 '49 700w

"Mr. Bates conveys perfectly the leaden helplessness of Laura, but his preoccupation seems to be not with her but with her futile struggling. She has about as much identity as a trapped rabbit, and she evokes the same kind of pity, in the same degree."
New Yorker 25:153 N 12 '49 80w

"Students of creative writing ought to be delighted with the range and technical versatility of this short novel. Mr. Bates works from an impressionistic palette, skilfully mixing adjectives, similes, metaphors, to reproduce sounds, colors, and smells. The impression however remains that Mr. Bates too often uses a trowel to pad poetically an essentially simple story." Siegfried Mandel
Sat R of Lit 32:19 N 19 '49 550w

Reviewed by H. E. Paine
Springf'd Republican p8C N 27 '49 130w

BATES, HERBERT ERNEST. Jacaranda tree. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 299p $2.75 Little 48-9660

"A study of the effects of struggle and hardship upon the characters of eight British civilians, an Anglo-Burmese nurse, a Burmese boy and his older sister, caught up in the flight of refugees from Burma before the advancing Japanese." Library J

Booklist 45:113; 137 D 1 '48; D 15 '48

"Here is a novel that does extremely well the very least a novel should do; it kills time with some well-arranged excitement." James Reaney
+ Canadian Forum 29:47 My '49 290w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 13 '49 210w

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '49

Kirkus 16:576 N 1 '48 180w

"An engrossing novel, characterized by fine writing." J. W. Rogers
+ Library J 73:1743 D 1 '48 100w

"Mr. H. E. Bates's new novel The Jacaranda Tree, is a little disappointingly like his last, since to repeat too closely even a fine achievement is for an artist a kind of failure. . . It is as masterly sensational narrative that the story excels, though the writhings and nauseas of fever-stricken bodies rather clot the latter stages of the journey." H. I'A. Fausset
— + Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 28 '49 190w

Reviewed by Simon Harcourt-Smith
New Statesman & Nation 37:134 F 5 '49 850w

"Mr. Bates writes about Burma in a beautiful shimmering prose alive with the most extraordinary Gauguinesque color sense this reader has ever encountered in a novel. . . And yet the prose seems natural, unaffected, and wholly suited to a land that is itself vivid and jewel-like. It is regrettable that Mr. Bates, with such a wealth of character, situation and talent at his disposal, has chosen to kill off most of his people prematurely and to compress the later sections of 'The Jacaranda Tree' into an over-simplified pattern of symbolism." Richard Match

BATES, H. E.—Continued

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ja 9 '49 900w

"The sounds, the smells, the searing sunlight, the wheeling vultures, the masses of natives, the fruit piles of lime, orange and papaya—these things are brushed in with such artistry that the tale as a whole becomes a living experience for the reader."' Florence Crowther

+ N Y Times p18 Ja 30 '49 360w

"Mr. Bates manages to extract from his threadbare situation a credible study of British and Burmese character under stress, and of the interplay of loyalties that influenced both the colonizers and their subjects in the crisis."

+ New Yorker 24:76 Ja 8 '49 140w

"You'll find in this tale as you did in Mr. Bates's others the spell-binding power of the good story teller. He gives you an awareness of the violence of nature, a realization of the sense of peril and against these shows you human beings with their weaknesses and generalities." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ja 23 '49 950w

"There is good story-telling here. There are keen insights into the end of a regime. . . There is too much striving for an irrelevant sensuousness. . . But balancing this are Bates's genuine gifts for event, for place, for character. The movement is swift. The panorama of jungle and mountain, all the details of terrain are vivid." Edmund Fuller

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:9 Ja 8 '49 650w

"The book is full of memorable incidents (that of the vultures clambering into the wrecked car is altogether too memorable); its pattern is firmly drawn, its purpose clear and compelling. Mr. Bates is among the most readable of present-day writers." Olivia Manning

+ Spec 182:94 Ja 21 '49 360w

Springf'd Republican p18A Ja 16 '49 250w

"Mr. Bates's treatment of this familiar situation is far from conventional: there is a freshness and enthusiasm about his writing in The Jacaranda Tree that entitles the book to rank with his very best work."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p53 Ja 22 '49 500w

Wis Lib Bul 45:48 Mr '49

BATES, JOSEPH D. Trout waters, and how to fish them; il. with drawings by Robert Ball and Samuel Bryant and with photographs. 316p $6 Little

799.1755 Trout fishing Agr49-462

"An exhaustive attempt to digest 'the vast store of fishing lore contained in books and scientific papers, adding to it pertinent actual experiences.' Not how to catch, but where to fish for trout, and under what conditions, temperature, weather, etc., in various parts of U.S., with a section on conservation. Bibliography, photographs, drawings." (Library J) No index.

Booklist 46:118 D 1 '49

"Here's an entertaining post-graduate course for studious trout fishermen offered by a fisherman-writer who is no arm chair theorist. If a novice trout fisherman wants some very helpful counsel on how to use his tackle, this is it." Bob Becker

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 D 4 '49 40w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1205 S 1 '49 60w

Reviewed by Nate Aleskovsky
N Y Times p6 D 25 '49 230w

+ San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 27 '49 40w

Reviewed by Leo Marceau
Springf'd Republican p10B Ja 1 '50 370w

BATES, MARSTON. Natural history of mosquitoes. 379p il $5 Macmillan

595.771 Mosquitoes 49-9326

"After nearly a dozen years of intensive study of mosquitoes, especially the carriers of malaria and jungle yellow fever, Dr. Marston Bates, Rockefeller Foundation research scientist, has set down a review of present-day knowledge about the insects. He covers their life-cycles, eggs, larvae, food habits, distribution and the manner in which various species carry diseases that range from malaria to Rift Valley fever and St. Louis encephalitis. There is even a section on fossil mosquitoes." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) Bibliography. Index.

"While avowedly written to catch the eye of 'academic biologists,' The Natural History of Mosquitoes is highly recommended to medical and other entomologists, parasitologists, malariologists, virologists, epidemiologists, and students of tropical medicine and hygiene. They are certain to find passages of special interest to them, but the reviewer's bet is that they will read the entire book with interest and appreciation." J. M. Andrews

+ Am J Pub Health 29:1592 D '49 380w

Booklist 46:78 N 1 '49

"Not to be original, I can frankly say this book tells more about mosquitoes than I care to know. However, it isn't written for the layman."

Kirkus 17:167 Mr 15 '49 150w

"An excellent summary of our present knowledge of the mosquito and its relation to man." Julian Sohon

+ Library J 74:1100 Ag '49 60w

"A solid book, factual and close-packed. Any one seeking information on mosquitoes and their ways will find in Dr. Bates's book the answer to almost any question he may have. An extensive forty-five-page bibliography of books and articles relating to mosquitoes is a valuable feature of the volume." E. W. Teale

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Jl 10 '49 290w

"Although written simply, much of the material in this book is so technical that the average layman will find the going difficult. The reader who is interested in natural history, however, will find it a worthy addition to his library." L. J. Warshaw

+ N Y Times p15 Ag 14 '49 270w

New Yorker 25:114 S 17 '49 160w

"The book will be very useful both as text for formal classes and as general reference for the layman interested in mosquitoes or involved problems such as mosquito abatement. For the benefit of nonspecialists, it is written in a lucid, easygoing style which is all too rare in such works." J. W. H.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 S 25 '49 140w

BATTERSBY, W. J. De La Salle; a pioneer of modern education; with a foreword by A. C. F. Beales. 236p il $3.50 Longmans

B or 92 La Salle, Jean Baptiste de, Saint. Brothers of the Christian schools 49-8037

Jean Baptiste De La Salle was a pioneer of education in seventeenth-century France. "He was born of a distinguished family, became a priest and a canon of Rheims Cathedral, and had a career as an important church dignitary open to him in days when church dignitaries were potentates indeed. But he turned his back on the glittering prizes of high ecclesiastical office, gave away a fortune he had inherited, and dedicated his life to providing education for poor children and to training teachers in a religious community which he called 'Brothers of the Christian Schools.' By 1719, when he died, the Brothers were at work in twenty-two towns in France, and as far afield as Rome. They are at work all over the world to-day. Mr. Battersby gives a moving description of what this saint (he was canonized in 1900) accomplished." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Bibliography. Index.

"Despite sparse documentation, there is clear internal evidence that Dr. Battersby has succeeded, where most Ph.D.'s have failed, in assimilating his sources and presenting a synthesis of his research that makes reading a pleasure. Fortified with an ecclesiastical imprimatur, nihil obstat, and licentia superiorum, Battersby labors hard to establish the originality of La Salle's educational achievements, but without straying beyond the confines of his supporting evidence." W. W. Brickman

+ School & Society 69:177 Mr 5 '49 360w

"The account of his achievement and the incredible difficulties he surmounted, make fascinating reading despite the rather dull and laboured style of the book. But what leaves a permanent dissatisfaction in the reader's mind is the casual treatment of the other pioneers of the period." Mary Smith

+ — Spec 182:230 F 18 '49 650w

"The story of this devoted life is told here with a sympathy and charm which will appeal to pastors and masters of all creeds."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p71 Ja 29 '49 750w

BAUER, MARGARET JEAN. Animal babies; il. by Jacob Bates Abbott. 88p $2 Donohue

591.5 Animals, Habits and behavior of 49-49139

"Interesting information on the habits and behavior, protection, and training of young animals, both wild and domestic, is informally and pleasantly presented by a member of the staff of the Chicago Natural History Museum. A large book, appealingly illustrated with marginal drawings and 12 color plates. Ages 6-10." Booklist

---

Booklist 46:161 Ja 1 '50

"Any youngster who likes animals—and that takes in just about the whole juvenile population—ought to make this book a favorite. The 12 full page color plates are really stunning, and the black and white drawings on the margin of every type page make up a whole menagerie of animals. Altho the book emphasizes the manner in which the various animals care for and rear their young there is enough general information to make the book almost a basic natural history." Kelsey Guilfoil

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p21 N 13 '49 220w

BAUMER, MARIE. The seeker and the sought. 217p $2.75 Scribner

49-5881

The story of a man who refused a cry for help and then could not rest until he had probed the mystery of the boy whose plea he had denied. Walter Williams was an average man, living in a New York suburb with his plain little wife. The night the strange boy came crying to the door changed his whole life, and brought him into contact with some of New York's most unsavory secrets of juvenile delinquency.

Booklist 46:82 N 1 '49

"This is a curiously contrived novelette which the publishers call a tale of suspense and which I found to be an unusually twisted Moral Tale. None of the predicaments results inevitably from the preceding one; no situation is a trap of circumstance, and none really arouses anxiety and fear in either the characters or the reader. There is little indication that the Sought is aware of the Seeker. . . Yet, strangely, without the enticements of tension and fantasy, the reader reads on." Florence Codman

+ — Commonweal 51:53 O 21 '49 200w

Kirkus 17:521 S 15 '49 150w

"This is a first novel and shows promise but it has not much to offer." K. T. Willis

Library J 74:1200 S 1 '49 80w

"Miss Baumer writes with a compassion seldom found in a book of this kind, but though her prose is singularly free of the Anglo-Saxon clichés so common to the average tough thriller, her prose is fast-moving and hard-minded. She has omitted neither the toughness nor the thrills, and 'The Seeker and the Sought' is a highly exciting book." Jane Cobb

+ N Y Times p43 O 2 '49 270w

"Miss Baumer had a good idea, but one can't believe that Walter's impulse would have had as mild an impact on his character as she claims."

New Yorker 25:134 O 15 '49 110w

"This is a suspense-story of a fresh and powerful kind, but it is also a good deal more. Miss Baumer is really writing about fear itself and what it does to people, about our modern society in which, increasingly, fear plays a part. . . If the reader prefers not to dig after a moral, well at the very least he will know he has had a strangely moving experience in reading the book—one worth having, uncomfortable as it may make him." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 28 '49 750w

"A morality play turned mystery thriller. It might be possible to object that Miss Baumer has orchestrated her theme with so startling and lively an uproar that the original quality of that theme is all but forgotten. I think that Miss Baumer has remembered it, for Williams is forever conscious, in the midst of his hazardous adventure, of the tormenting necessity for cleansing his conscience that started it all. Yet her story will surely have an ambiguous appeal. To those of its readers who have little or no interest in the problem of responsibility, it will offer a diverting tale of chase and suspense. On both levels it has been extremely well written, clearly and realistically." N. L. Rothman

+ Sat R of Lit 32:18 O 15 '49 500w

BAWN, C. E. H. Chemistry of high polymers. 249p il $4.50 Interscience

541.7 Polymers and polymerization A49-9803

"This book provides a brief account of the chemistry of high polymers for beginners and nonspecialists in this field of study. The reader is assumed, however, to have a background in chemistry and mathematics. . . The general principles of condensation and addition polymerization are discussed with special emphasis on kinetics of polymer formation, molecular weight of the polymer, and its distribution. The thermodynamics of high polymer solutions and the use of common experimental tools to obtain information on the size and shape of macromolecules is outlined. No mention is made of streaming double refraction. X-ray analyses and infrared spectroscopic methods are shown to give information concerning the structure and stereochemistry of high polymer systems." Chem & Eng N

"The presentation is characterized, for the most part, by clearness of statement and simplicity of approach. The details of methods of polymer preparation are not discussed. References to the literature are usually general in nature, giving in many cases the key to obtain further information." R. C. Bacon

+ Chem & Eng N 27:45 Ja 3 '49 250w

"Well documented account of the nature of the polymerization process." L. A. Eales

+ Library J 73:1668 N 15 '48 10w

"Aside from its probable use in advanced college courses, the book should prove useful to chemists employed in industry who are not working with high polymers but wish to be generally informed about this branch of chemistry. There is a liberal number of references to the literature of the field."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 33:92 N '48

BEAL, MERRILL D. Story of man in Yellowstone; approved by the National park service. 320p il maps $5 Caxton printers

978.7 Yellowstone national park 49-10318

"Complete history of our first national park from the first vague rumors of this strange

BEAL, MERRILL D.—Continued
wonderland down to the present day when over a million enthusiastic visitors are accommodated yearly. Author chronicles early visits by white men, especially John Colter, reputedly the first to traverse the area, whose route in 1807 is given in a special appendix. He deals extensively with later organized expeditions, development of the Park, the Indians— especially the Nez Percé war of 1877 and with early trapping." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:61 O 15 '49

"A background book which has a specific regional reference value and some interest for the prospective tourist."
+ Kirkus 17:247 My 1 '49 160w

"Author has done much original research in manuscript material, articles and books. Illustrations, maps, footnotes, and bibliography. A good book to read either before or after a trip to Yellowstone." L. R. Etzkorn
+ Library J 74:1097 Ag '49 140w

BEALS, CARLETON. Long land: Chile. (Invitation to travel ser) 244p $4 Coward-McCann
918.3 Chile—Description and travel 49-7454

"Beals, a prolific writer on Latin America, furnishes the pertinent information that travelers to Chile will be grateful for on visas, customs inspection, the cost of travel by plane and boat, exchange rates, hotel accommodations, the kind of clothing to wear and the time of the year in which to wear it, the best fishing and skiing spots, etc. There are chapters describing the high spots of Santiago, Valparaiso and the various sections of Chile such as the nitrate coast." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 45:208 F 15 '49
Foreign Affairs 27:695 Jl '49 10w

"The sort of book that makes travel more interesting, and which is helpful in planning a trip."
+ Kirkus 16:587 N 1 '48 120w

Reviewed by Joseph Borome
+ Library J 74:54 Ja 1 '49 110w

"This book on Chile is a guidebook, and a little more. Beals tells what should be told about hotels, guides, meals, drinks and sights. He also tucks in a lot of information which will help the more curious wanderer to understand how Chile came to its present estate . . . Mr. Beals does much to bring to life this nation, 'one of the most nationalistic and progressive in South America.' " Hubert Herring
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Ap 10 '49 400w
+ Sat R of Lit 32:48 Mr 19 '49 130w

BEARD, CHARLES AUSTIN. President Roosevelt and the coming of the war 1941; a study in appearances and realities. 614p $5 Yale univ. press
327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations. U.S.—Foreign policy. World war, 1939-1945—U.S. Roosevelt, Franklin Delano 48-6253

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Foreign Affairs 27:157 O '48 110w
Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 28 '49 330w

"Everyone who was a friend of the late Professor Beard will regret profoundly that he wrote this book. An historian of exceptional eminence, a man of courage and magnanimity, genuinely progressive in almost all realms of thought, eager, vivid, and stimulating, he was a remarkable teacher and a man whom to know was to respect." H. J. Laski
— + New Statesman & Nation 37:84 Ja 22 '49 1500w

"It is painful to realise that we have now had the list of Professor Beard's contributions to the history of his country. For, if in a day of danger a Franklin Roosevelt is in a position to render practical service to mankind, this may be partly because he is not a perfectionist; and it is well for such a man to be watched. Useful, however, as it is for its light on the egg-breaking process from which the omelette of Allied Victory was to emerge, the book is hardly less precious as a clue to the mentality, if not of the author himself, then of those for whom his message is meant. If these be indeed the categories in which he, or his public, have done their thinking about foreign policy, small wonder that isolation has been so long a-dying." C. A. W. Manning
Pacific Affairs 22:105 Mr '49 800w

"It does not appear that this volume enhances or makes real the prestige of Beard as a scientific and objective historian. It seems to have been an effort to supply a case study to illustrate the thesis of the necessity for a restriction of executive authority in the conduct of foreign affairs." Robert La Follette
Social Educ 13:140 Mr '49 550w

"In this second volume of his polemic, the late Dr. Beard continues his attack on the foreign policy of President Roosevelt. . . This argument is developed with great ingenuity, with great appearance of scholarly objectivity and with a resolute refusal to see the problem in any wider aspect than those provided by the formal declarations of American policy."
Spec 182:236 F 18 '49 360w

BEARD, JAMES. Fireside cook book; a complete guide to fine cooking for beginner and expert, containing 1217 recipes and over 400 color pictures; with il. by Alice and Martin Provensen. 322p $5 Simon & Schuster
641.5 Cookery 49-11569

"General cookbook notable for its gourmet attitude toward food, down-to-earth directions, and cheerful illustrations. Gives basic recipes and relevant variations to tease the palate and adjust to current larder conditions." Booklist

Booklist 46:152 Ja 1 '50
+ Christian Science Monitor p4 Ja 9 '50 120w

"The author is obviously a fine cook, and he could unquestionably have produced a useful, workable cookbook if he had not undertaken to write a world-beater. Enormously pretentious, repetitious, padded with bits of women's-magazine anthropology, exotic menus, meals planned for hot and cold weather (hot buttered rum for warm weather, jellied chicken broth for cold), and pompous generalities about wine, the work attempts an inclusiveness at which Brillat-Savarin, Montagné, and Escoffier in collaboration might well have boggled. The truth is Mr. Beard simply doesn't know enough."
— New Yorker 25:155 D 10 '49 140w

BEARDSLEY, AUBREY VINCENT. Best of Beardsley; collected and ed. by R. A. Walker. 21p 134pl $6 Macmillan
741.91 Drawings [49-2062]

"The book comprises 134 Beardsley drawings selected by R. A. Walker (who also contributes an appreciative introduction), and a photograph of the artist as well. The collection includes a number of the suppressed and unsuppressed drawings for Wilde's 'Salome,' cover designs for 'The Yellow Book,' caricatures of such notables as Mrs. Patrick Campbell and Rejane, as well as such magnificent Beardsley achievements as 'Lady Gold's Escorts' and 'The Wagnerites.' Many of these have been taken from the original blocks." San Francisco Chronicle

"Had Beardsley lived longer and in another century he might have been a great master of decorative design, but he lived in the nineties, a period when the decorative arts in England were at a low ebb. Nevertheless, in spite of everything, some of his drawings are superb, and it is possible to agree to most of —if not quite all—the claims made in Mr. Walker's enthusiastic introduction." Stephen Bone
Manchester Guardian p3 D 23 '48 150w

Reviewed by Stephen Bone
New Statesman & Nation 36:553 D 18 '48 130w

"A triumph of black and white over time." R. H. Hagan

+ San Francisco Chronicle p8 N 27 '49 210w

"Mr. Walker's introductory essay and his notes to the illustrations are a testimony to his devoted study. While not attempting a detailed biographical sketch, he says a very great deal that is important to an understanding of Beardsley's life. It is perhaps characteristic of Beardsley's art that one either likes it inordinately or not at all; Mr. Walker is usually skilful in avoiding the hyperbole of the addict, though occasionally he is betrayed into a minor extravagance of praise which may raise the eyebrows of the less devout. On the whole, however, he is a balanced guide, and his book is the most comprehensive introduction to its subject that is now in print. The frontispiece reproduces a superb photograph of Beardsley by Frederick Hollyer." Jonathan Mayne

+ Spec 181:636 N 12 '48 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p184 My 19 '49 1600w

BEASLEY, NORMAN. Main Street merchant; the story of the J. C. Penney company. (Whittlesey house publication) 274p il $3.50 McGraw

658.873 Penney, James Cash. Penney, J. C., company 48-10477

A record of the life of J. C. Penney, American merchant, and a history of the chain of stores which he founded. Beginning with one small store in Wyoming in the 1890's, the chain now includes 1600 stores in forty-eight states. Index.

Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 14 '49 650w

Kirkus 16:424 Ag 15 '48 150w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1668 N 15 '48 60w

BEASLEY, NORMAN. Politics has no morals. 229p $3 Scribner

973.917 U.S.—Politics and government—20th century 49-10998

"The purpose of this book [is] to take a look at the recent past to see how we got ourselves in the fix we are in, and to take a look ahead to see if there is anything we can do to get out of it." (Introd) Partial contents: The stake: the lives of our 30,000,000 children; Morals on the shelf; Truman and Barkley are paid off; United Nations has failed; War is a trivial thing; Capitalism will destroy communism; This is our country. Index.

"This book deserves a more fortunate title. Between the covers there is much that is of merit; some things are said that have needed to be said, charges of dishonesty in government are put in their sharpest terms, and a fervent appeal made for morality in American political leadership. . . The great weakness of the book is that it fails to recognize that there can be any such thing as good politics." Tully Nettleton

+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 O 26 '49 550w

"Viewed as a taking stock of the fix we are in and how we got there and what we can do about it, this book might be considered as a challenge to the defense of American freedoms. Unfortunately, Mr. Beasley has used the opportunity for a vicious attack on the Roosevelt administration and on Roosevelt himself, an attack that will delight those to whom John Flynn is gospel. . . . A book one cannot read objectively, I fear."

Kirkus 17:522 S 15 '49 250w

Reviewed by Karl Schriftgiesser
N Y Times p5 O 2 '49 300w

BEATON, MABEL FRIEDA, and BEATON, LESLIE. Marionettes; a hobby for everyone. 186p il $3.75 Crowell

791.5 Marionettes. Puppet plays 48-11949

Describes every step in the making and manipulating of marionettes, and gives suggestions for the staging and production of marionette shows. The book is based on the work of a neighborhood puppet group, called the Peningo Puppeteers. Instructions are illustrated with sequence photographs and diagrams. Index.

Booklist 45:174 Ja 15 '49

"Highly recommended." George Freedley

+ Library J 74:128 Ja 15 '49 40w

School Arts 48:13a Ap '49 90w

BEATTY, HETTY BURLINGAME. Little wild horse; story and pictures. 32p $2 Houghton 49-7540

Picture story book about a little boy of seven who lived on a ranch. Peter longed for a horse of his own so he could help his father herd the cattle. Pictures and story show how Peter realized his ambition. For ages three to six.

"The small amount of text, and the warm colors and childlike simplicity of the double-page pictures, should give it wide appeal with small children."

+ Booklist 45:247 Mr 15 '49

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 12 '49 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '49

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:208 My '49 40w

Kirkus 17:83 F 15 '49 130w

"The youngster, before he can read, will enjoy looking at or listening to this horse-story book. Its attractiveness lies in the vivid illustrations and decorative design used by the author-artist. . . Not recommended for first purchase." Nelle McCalla

+ — Library J 74:499 Mr 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ap 3 '49 110w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p24 F 20 '49 110w

"The color printing of this big, generous picture book is very satisfying. It is a simple realistic tale."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 Ap 9 '49 180w

Wis Lib Bul 45:67 Ap '49

BEATY, DAVID. Donnington legend [Eng title: Take off]. 309p $3 Morrow 49-10717

"Donnington, a pilot, is a member of an R.A.F. squadron based on a remote island north of the Faroes during the war. His enigmatic character which made him the outstanding figure on the base is described by his associates. Each chapter is related by a different person, each person seeing him in a different light, but usually either as a friend or as an enemy." Library J

Booklist 46:25; 47 S 15 '49; O 1 '49

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 25 '49 150w

"A well contrived mosaic of character and characters. . . The fascination of the self-revelations and the interlocking portraits of the central character provides intense rather than thin, popular reading."

+ Kirkus 17:372 Jl 15 '49 190w

Reviewed by Donald Wasson
Library J 74:1201 S 1 '49 100w

"In his attempt at objectivity Mr. Beaty has allowed some of his characters to lose completely their own identity in what seems to be an abnormal obsession with Donnington and his heroics (after all these are Englishmen and Donnington is no fuehrer). . . Despite carpings this is a highly competent first novel, and if Mr. Beaty has been over ambitious in his use of such numerous and widely varied points of view . . . still he has managed to achieve a cumulative effect of no little power; and whenever he deigns to let us accompany one of the aircraft on patrol his book seems also to become airborne and speeds along breathlessly and with graceful ease." J. J. Maloney

BEATY, DAVID—Continued
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 O 9 '49 650w

"Mr. Beaty has written a good story, and he does a good job of holding our interest, but he might have done better to let the defendant take the stand in his own behalf. The reader will find it hard to decide, on the basis of the testimony of others, whether Donnington was really worth a legend as cryptic as this one." David Dempsey
+ — N Y Times p42 O 2 '49 330w

"A subtle and ingenious war story that concerns itself less with the extremes of men's behavior in combat than with the finer modifications that military life brings about in human ambitions and relationships."
+ New Yorker 25:105 S 24 '49 120w

BEAUVOIR, SIMONE DE. Ethics of ambiguity; tr. from the French by Bernard Frechtman. 163p $3 Philosophical lib.
111 Existentialism 49-8287

"A brief for existentialism by the French femininst, dramatist, and novelist. This is a gracefully written exposition and defense of the philosophy which 'affords to the individual an absolute value and recognizes in him alone the power of laying the foundation of his own existence' (that is, his freedom) as opposed to the 'systematic politician who cares only about collective destinies.' Originally appeared in Jean-Paul Sartre's Les Temps Modernes." (Library J) Index.

"Mme. de Beauvoir, who writes with extraordinary charm, especially in the first and last sections of her book, is a thorough-going humanist whose zest for life equals Sartre's disgust for it. . . This lady existentialist's book is thoroughly exciting. I should like to quote many passages for praise or criticism." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 66:593 My 11 '49 150w

Christian Science Monitor p15 My 12 '49 10w

"The book is worth studying. The opening chapter is difficult upon first reading by one who is not familiar with this movement, but it becomes clear if read again after one has completed the volume." W. K. Wright
+ Crozer Q 26:370 O '49 320w

"I suspect that Kant, though immeasurably more clear a thinker than Beauvoir, may be as good an 'existentialist' as Beauvoir herself when he comes, in the Metaphysics of Morals, to the problem of the actual moral choice. Nonetheless, I should judge this work to be exceedingly penetrating in its treatment of moral experience. Beauvoir is a very concrete thinker, with sharp eyes for the problems of real life." Arthur Child
+ — Ethics 59:292 Jl '49 1000w

Reviewed by B. B. Libaire
Library J 74:544 Ap 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by A. L. Zinsser
Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 24 '49 210w

"It is in many ways an attractive book, much more concisely, soberly and elegantly written than is usual among the existentialists, and it contains, especially in the second of its three chapters, some excellent psychological descriptions. Yet, in the end, it does not succeed in dispelling the doubts that a reader naturally feels about an existentialist ethic akin to that of M. Sartre."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p589 S 9 '49 750w

BECHDOLT, JOHN ERNEST. Greg Sheridan, reporter; il. by Decie Merwin. 190p $2.50 Dutton 49-10284

Greg wanted to be a reporter, so when the New York paper turned him down, he took a place on a small Long Island weekly. The editor was a girl, and thru his endeavors to help her, Greg ran into a murder. When he wrote the story of the experience it made the first page of the biggest New York daily, and Greg's ambition was realized. For high school age.

Kirkus 17:429 Ag 15 '49 70w

"A boy could read the book in an hour and be neither the richer nor poorer for the experience. For large collections and for slow readers." Siri Andrews
Library J 74:1334 S 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by Esther Gorey
Library J 74:1547 O 15 '49 30w

"There is humor in plenty, especially with the younger sister, who takes charge of the plot. There are horror and suspense, and a pleasant love story. All this in a brief tale which is good reading for whatever teen-age cares for this sort of career." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 S 18 '49 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p7 N 13 '49 160w

"From its title one would think that this was just another conventional career story. It is a career story, but it is not at all conventional. It is fresh, amusing, and in many ways original." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:29 N 12 '49 190w

BECK, EARL CLIFTON. Lore of the lumber camps. 348p il $3.75 Univ. of Mich.
784 Lumbermen—Songs and music. Folklore—Michigan 49-7123

"A collection of workaday ballads of the lake state lumberjacks. These song makers largely confine themselves to a single theme—their work. . . Dr. Beck, who teaches English in a state college in the central part of Michigan, has spent his off-campus time for fifteen or twenty years hobnobbing with the grizzled old-time lumberjacks of Michigan. His collection, taken down from the singing and recitation of such fine lumber woods entertainers as Bill McBride, Perry Allen and Carl Lathrop, authentically and comprehensively represents the song repertory of his neck of the woods." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) This is a revised and enlarged edition of the compiler's Songs of the Michigan Lumberjacks (1941). Bibliography. Indexes.

Booklist 45:356 Je 15 '49

Reviewed by Alan Lomax
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Ap 17 '49 1100w

"This is a valuable collection, and I have only one quarrel with Mr. Beck with regard to his selections. He has included, as if they were folk songs, various literary endeavors by literary ladies and even by such a well-known and sophisticated rhymester as Douglas Malloch. . . Some of these, I suppose, are in a sense lore of the lumber camps since they are poems written by certain individuals about lumber-camp life, but they come as a disappointment to the folklore enthusiast, a disappointment which grows into real annoyance when he discovers that Mr. Beck has included some dance jingles sent on to him from Possum Poke, Georgia, by a former Governor of Michigan, Chase Osborne." Carl Carmer
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:50 My 14 '49 550w

BECK, FREDERICK K., and BARNES, O. K. 73 years in a sand trap; il. by Emax. 159p $2 Wyn
796.352 Golf 49-8490

Collection of anecdotes and puns, all about golf. The book is divided into nineteen holes, instead of chapters.

"They have collected the most incredible believe-it-or-nots from pros the country over, and for good measure they have thrown in a spicing of stories, a few of them chestnuts but most of them good raisins." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 184:80 S '49 180w

+ Kirkus 17:204 Ap 1 '49 120w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1031 Jl '49 10w

Reviewed by Rex Lardner
N Y Times p10 My 15 '49 220w

BECK, LESTER FRED, and ROBINSON, MARGIE. Human growth. 124p il $2 Harcourt

612.6 Reproduction 49-11733

"The story of how life begins and goes on, based on the educational film of the same title." (Subtitle) The author is associate professor of psychology at the University of Oregon. For grade six and up. Glossary.

"An honest and sound book on sex education."
+ Booklist 46:128 D 1 '49

"Definitely recommended."
+ Kirkus 17:606 N 1 '49 110w

"This book represents a new and unusual approach to describing the true facts of life to adolescent children."
+ School & Society 70:335 N 19 '49 20w

"The book is a simply written and amirably straightforward account for young people of body differences, of mating, and of the arrival of a new life." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p17A Ja 8 '50 170w

BECKER, CARL LOTUS. Progress and power; introd. by Leo Gershoy. reissue 116p $2.50 Knopf

901 Progress. Inventions. Civilization—Philosophy 49-10663

"A historian's intellectual study of the doctrine of progress and of its rise and decline through history. These three long essays, which originated as lectures at Stanford University, were first published in 1935 [Book Review Digest 1936] and have been out of print. Now accompanied by a long essay on the author." Booklist

Booklist 46:64 O 15 '49

Reviewed by L. T. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 N 20 '49 110w

"These lectures no doubt found a good deal of acceptance when they were originally delivered at Stanford University in 1935. That was the heyday of natural science, when the theory that man had mastered nature and was on his way to becoming lord of a homocentric universe had its many devotees. . . Why it should have been decided to reprint the lectures at this time is not immediately clear. It is little help for man to be told today that his whole history manifests progress, via the Baconian formula of 'human knowledge' merged with 'human power,' toward lordship of the universe." Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 6 '49 800w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p75 S 25 '49 140w

BECKER, CHARLOTTE. Three little Steps and the snow dog [pictured by the author]. [32p] $1 Scribner

48-9483

"Because Jim, Ginger, and Johnny Step are disappointed when their snow dog melts and runs away, their father brings them a real dog which they name Snow." Library J

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p12 Mr 8 '49 90w

Kirkus 16:599 N 15 '48 60w

"This little incident, simply told and illustrated with softly-colored pictures, of three engaging children, will appeal to the preschool boys and girls who have enjoyed the earlier stories in the series. Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges
+ Library J 74:65 Ja 1 '49 70w

BECKER, EDNA. 900 buckets of paint; pictures by Margaret Bradfield. [22p] $1.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

49-9816

A picture storybook about a search for a good home. An old woman left her home because it needed painting. She moved into other houses but her pets objected to all of them. When a nice white house was discovered it proved to be their old home newly painted by a man who had been given 900 buckets of paint.

Booklist 46:68 O 15 '49

"Marked by the simplicity in story and pictures which young children love, this amusing little tale makes one of the most delightful picture books of the year." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 20 '49 190w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p11 D 20 '49 210w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '49

"Good illustrations, but the text is pretty unsatisfactory even for the three-year-olds."
Commonweal 51:190 N 18 '49 20w

"Good tale for group reading."
+ Kirkus 17:464 S 1 '49 120w

"Younger children will find this an ideal picture-story book. It is well written, in charmingly simple style, and beautifully illustrated." D. M. Blasco
+ Library J 74:1826 D 1 '49 80w

"The story is rather tenuous, but the full color pictures are delightful. Because of them, and the well drawn animals, children will like this book." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 13 '49 110w

"Margaret Bradfield's figures, especially those self-willed cats, are triumphs of humorous portraiture." S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p12 N 13 '49 140w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:21 N 12 '49 100w
Springf'd Republican p8C N 27 '49 100w

BECKER, HOWARD, and HILL, REUBEN LORENZO, eds. Family, marriage and parenthood. 829p $5 Heath

392 Marriage. Family 48-8059

"This book is a symposium to which 23 specialists have contributed—physiologists, physicians, economists, psychiatrists, social psychologists, sociologists, home economists, and representatives of other professional groups. . . The major divisions of the book deal with the historical and social background of the family, preparation for marriage, getting along in marriage, problems of parenthood, family administration, family crises and ways of meeting them, and prospects for the future of the family. . . Lists of selected readings and topics for discussion follow each chapter." (J Home Econ) Index.

"There is more unity in the book than might be expected of this type of collaboration, brought about through skillful editing and by an orientation of chapters upon personal and social interaction in courtship, marriage, and parenthood. Except for the institutional aspects of the family, the treatment of material is generally adequate, if neither novel nor profound. The book is as good as, but no better than many competitors in its field."
+ Am Soc R 13:792 D '48 130w

"The editors' general plan has been so carefully developed and carried out that there is excellent balance and unity in presentation. A superior and authoritative level has been maintained throughout the discussion of the various phases of the subject. . . This is a well-integrated book, adapted for use in college, for adult education courses in the family, or for marriage courses." A. L. Edwards
+ J Home Econ 41:98 F '49 170w

"There are at least two commendable features of this new symposium which mark it as a good text and which will merit the attention of sociologists interested in the field. First, it develops the point of view that both marriage and the family are not just special life situa-

BECKER, HOWARD—Continued
tions, but are integral parts of the total web of social interaction and therefore must be studied in context to be of most value. . . The second commendable feature is that the various authors have not written down to the students, but have presented scientific information in an understandable manner." R. W. Kernodle
+ Social Forces 27:453 My '49 750w

BECKWITH, BURNHAM PUTNAM. Economic theory of a socialist economy. 444p $5 Stanford univ. press 330.1 Economics. Socialism 49-642

"The purpose underlying this treatise has been to state the economic theory which should govern the administration of a Socialist economy and the various economic units within it. To criticize Capitalism or justify Socialism is no part of this purpose, the existence of a Socialist economy being assumed without debate." (Introd) Bibliography. Indexes.

Reviewed by Broadus Mitchell
Ann Am Acad 265:201 S '49 360w

"Here is a textbook, if you like, suitable for a socialist state, but surely not of interest to a country in which the vast majority of citizens have no desire for the regimentation Beckwith assumes will and must come about. One might call it a blueprint for totalitarianism and let it go at that." Roy Hillbrook
— Current Hist 16:228 Ap '49 950w
Foreign Affairs 27:681 Jl '49 30w

"Beckwith trails many coats. He rejoices in the belief that he is being very, very scientific, and that being anything except scientific is an act of superstitious folly. He is content to dismiss in a sentence all moral preferences as mere customs of the herd; and he flings the adjective 'metaphysical' about as a term of abuse for anyone who ventures to dispute that science can potentially answer every question that is worth asking. . . With all this, he shows himself an able casuist, and makes many good and sound points. What is wrong with him is not lack of ability, but a complete inability to appreciate human values or to realize the Moloch-like characteristics of the socialist Leviathan that he has made in the image of economic orthodoxy." G. D. H. Cole
— + New Repub 121:18 S 19 '49 1450w

"The book is not devoid of some interesting insights, particularly in connection with social costs under capitalism, but it is full of gratuitous dicta, uneven in the level of analysis, and marred by unsupported quantitative comparisons between socialist potentialities and capitalist attainments." D. W. O'Connell
— + Pol Sci Q 64:635 D '49 450w

"The material is well organized. The style is frank and direct, although at times the reasoning and metaphysics are nearly impossible for laymen to follow. The author is unusually well schooled in economic theory, but his grasp of political realities and matters of social importance outside his own field is immature. He too often preaches when he should explain, states dogma when he should persuade." P. N. Temple
— + San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 27 '49 600w

"The foundation upon which Mr. Beckwith proposes to build the economic theory of the Socialist economy is that of marginal utility, a concept which is now all but abandoned by even the most stubbornly antediluvian of present-day neoclassicists. As if in sheer perversity Mr. Beckwith goes even farther and explicitly acknowledges what those contemporary economists who have done most to perpetuate eighteenth-century ideas are nevertheless at great pains to deny: namely, that marginal utility analysis is hedonism in economic dress. Such an excursion into the past would be strange enough on the part of any mid-twentieth-century writer. For a Socialist it simply fails to make sense." C. E. Ayres
— Sat R of Lit 32:36 My 14 '49 850w

"Whether or not one agrees with the analysis or conclusions in it, Mr. Beckwith's book is a thought-provoking contribution to a field which only a few have yet explored."
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:191 Je '49 400w

BEDIER, JULIE, pseud. See Bedier, M. J.

BEDIER, SISTER MARY JULIANA (JULIE BEDIER, pseud). Lots of brothers and sisters; designed and il. by Louise Trevisan. [48p] $2 Macmillan
49-50127

"Through the eyes of two small orphan children, the lesson is taught that God made all peoples and that they are all brothers, white, black, red, yellow, and brown. Author and the illustrator, Louise Trevisan, are Sisters of the Maryknoll Community. This book follows their first one, My Book about God, and explains for young children the beginning of the catechism of the Catholic Church." Library J

Kirkus 17:425 Ag 15 '49 80w

"Recommended for those libraries using this type of material." D. M. Biasco
+ Library J 74:1916 D 15 '49 80w
Springf'd Republican p8B D 18 '49 120w

BEEBE, LUCIUS MORRIS, and CLEGG, CHARLES M. U. S. West; the saga of Wells Fargo. 320p il $7.50 Dutton
385.23 Frontier and pioneer life—West. Wells, Fargo and company 49-11033

A copiously illustrated history of the Wells, Fargo express company, which is also a history of the country in which it flourished—mainly California and Nevada. There is a chronology covering the years 1830 to 1949, a bibliography and an index.

Booklist 46:78 N 1 '49

"An engrossing chronicle of Wells Fargo, with maps and many historically interesting photographs."
+ Bookmark 9:77 Ja '50 60w

"Stressing atmosphere more heavily than [Hungerford's Wells Fargo] this is perhaps more florid and less chronologically coherent, albeit just as good reading."
+ Kirkus 17:386 Jl 15 '49 140w

"The collection of more than 225 illustrations, old and new, is unique in itself. . . Highly recommended." L. R. Etzkorn
+ Library J 74:1461 O 1 '49 130w

"This book should be required reading for those who believe that the history of a corporation can only be written in terms of stock issues, balance sheets and quotations from the annual reports of the chairman of the board, with matters of a personal nature rigidly excluded. . . Despite [its] departure from the accepted canons of history writing as applied to large-scale business concerns, the story is told with so much gusto, and the far-flung Beebe-Clegg dragnet has gathered in so varied a catch, that few will regret their unorthodox approach. Thus, while it is doubtful if the volume will find a place on lists of recommended reading at the Harvard School of Business Administration, it is likely to hold the goggle-eyed attention of all those who regard the weird goings-on of the uninhibited citizens of the last frontier as every bit as enlightening as the most detailed of corporation fiscal reports." Oscar Lewis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 O 16 '49 850w

"As the reader will discover, much of the California portion of the story is familiar. The Nevada material, however, is likely to be fresh for most readers, and the authors give over a large part of their book to this. . . As for accuracy, Mr. Beebe and Mr. Clegg have quite evidently taken honest pains, and for the most part they come through with colors flying. The printer, perhaps, has let them down by misspelling some proper names—but they themselves will have to shoulder the blame for writing that James Marshall found gold in California in 'Sonora.' It wasn't Sonora but Coloma, several counties and a good many rivers to the north." J. H. Jackson

+ — N Y Times p35 O 2 '49 750w

"The writing is extremely gaudy and inflated, but there are many good pictures."
New Yorker 25:135 N 26 '49 80w

"Neither Mr. Beebe nor Mr. Clegg is concerned with writing formal history in a formal way. They have kept their book anecdotal, colorful, bright. It is organized more or less on a chronological pattern to be sure, but on this adaptable framework they have hung all sorts of yarns about the company and its country. The narrative is full of action-flashes out of yesterday, of quick vignettes of notable personalities." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 2 '49 1350w

"'U.S. West' is a rich and lavish book, but it is also a book of words. The text is competent, extensive, detailed, lively, and highly readable, but it is most informatively readable if one is familiar with the places under discussion. That is where the pictures perform their most useful service." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 32:14 D 17 '49 650w

"Recommended, if the price does not seem too high for the budget."
+ Wis Lib Bul p4 N '49

BEEBE, WILLIAM. High jungle. 379p il $4.50 Duell

591.987 Naturalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Natural history—Venezuela 49-9280

"This book is the product of Dr. Beebe's last three expeditions to the Venezuelan Andes, where, in an isolated and unfinished castle built by the late Juan Vicente Gómez, the author and his colleagues set up a laboratory for the study of wildlife. From Dr. Beebe's observations come more than twenty chapters dealing with the wonders of nature in a vast, unspoiled jungle—fer-de-lances, bat falcons, carnivorous grasshoppers, marsupial frogs, jungle weapons, and Homeric battles between ant armies." (New Yorker) List of published scientific papers from Venezuelan expeditions. Index.

Booklist 45:305; 333 My 15 '49; Je 1 '49
Chicago Sun p6X My 29 '49 100w

Reviewed by H. B. Nichols
Christian Science Monitor p16 Je 25 '49 420w
Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '49

"The word for it . . . is fascinating. . . Here is the mixture as before. It remains incomparable. Reviewers seldom say anything about book-jackets. This one deserves mention. The jacket-painting for High Jungle, by Laura Schlageter, catches with exceptional effectiveness the spirit of the fine book it enwraps." Alan Devoe
+ Commonweal 50:248 Je 17 '49 500w

"My favorite naturalist with a unique book on 'Watching 'Em Alive' in the jungles of Venezuela."
+ Kirkus 17:169 Mr 15 '49 170w
Library J 74:1560 O 15 '49 40w

"One of the attractions of a Beebe book is the fact that every so often the scientist-author does something just for the fun of it. He looks at an earwig from an ant's height viewpoint. He muses on how the heavens would appear in migration time if birds left trails behind them like sky-writing planes. In one of the unfinished lower rooms of Rancho Grande, he discovered the sodden walls were covered with a living tapestry of molds, mildews, fungi and lichens. So, on a rainy day he brought down his Ridgway's color key and, matching shades found that the cubist designs and whirlwinds of color contained such hues as rainnette green, apricot orange, aricule purple and dark gull gray. . . His latest book stands very high, indeed, on that ridge where literature and natural history meet." E. W. Teale
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 My 29 '49 1350w

"Perhaps Beebe does not tell everything about the jungle, but the book is packed with facts, even figures, entertainingly and delightfully. I hope that when he returns he will find out just how the little frogs get in their mothers' backs. The pictures are the sort that one turns back to for another look—excellent photographs of interesting creatures." W. M. Mann
+ N Y Times p5 My 29 '49 600w
New Yorker 25:115 My 21 '49 110w

"The book is Beebe at his best, it seems to me, and those who know his work or who like a man who can write scientific fact yet combine it with adventure and always with a warmly human and philosophical attitude, will find it tremendously good reading." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 26 '49 900w

"The factual discoveries and revelations of nature made by Beebe and his enthusiastic assistants in the Venezuelan jungles are so legionary as to defy review or even mention in this brief compass. They are strongly recommended as inducement, if any be required, to buy and read the book. But these are not the author's only charms; he has a profound philosophy and a delightfully acid opinion of certain hackneyed attitudes. . . 'High Jungle' will be felt rather than read. This is the proper way to appreciate Beebe and the jungle." I. T. Sanderson
+ Sat R of Lit 32:18 S 3 '49 550w
Time 54:68 Jl 4 '49 550w

BEELER, NELSON FREDERICK, and BRANLEY, FRANKLYN M. Experiments with electricity; il. by A. W. Revell. 145p $2.50 Crowell

537 Electricity—Experiments 49-9035

Experiments to be done by boys and girls of ten to twelve. There are explanations of dry cells, fuses, electromagnets, armatures, and other safe and practical experiments with electricity. The equipment can be obtained at home. Index.

Booklist 45:320 My 15 '49

"The boy who gets hold of this book is lost and his mother might as well resign herself to flashing lights, yards of copper wire, elaborate room-to-room telephone systems; while Dad may find his chair wired for sound. But it is good safe fun, and provides help for the boy with home-made equipment and some knowledge."
+ Kirkus 17:111 Mr 1 '49 150w

"Highly recommended." E. T. Dobbins
+ Library J 74:555 Ap 1 '49 70w

"A good deal of information is nicely blended in with the instructions. The language is simple enough for youngsters from 9 to 12 and the many line drawings are both clear and helpful. A scientific-minded youngster will find this volume a cornucopia of knowledge and enjoyment." Thomas Lask
+ N Y Times p18 Jl 10 '49 180w

"Clear, practical, with many diagrams, it makes one want to begin at once the experiments it describes." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:35 N 12 '49 40w
Wis Lib Bul 45:107 Je '49

BEER, SAMUEL HUTCHISON. City of reason. 227p $4 Harvard univ. press

192.9 Reason. Liberalism. Whitehead, Alfred North 49-951

"In this book [the author has] tried to state a philosophy of liberalism based on A. N. Whitehead's metaphysics of creative advance. The thesis is that man is inwardly free and, therefore, ought to be free outwardly. Man is inwardly free by virtue of his reason. Hence, the liberal ideal is a society which protects and promotes the exercise of that capacity. The book is not concerned with the form which particular institutions, political and social, might take in such a society. Rather it is concerned with the philosophical ideas which support the theory of a free society. It asks what reason is and why men ought to live by it." (Pref) Bibliographical notes.

BEER, S. H.—Continued

"On the whole, the author displays great learning and presents his complex argument with considerable deftness and lucidity. This is the kind of book which students of political theory should write more frequently." M. Q. Sibley

+ Am Pol Sci R 43:1060 O '49 700w

Reviewed by John Lindberg

Ann Am Acad 263:265 My '49 380w

"Dr. Beer's book will give little help to the people of this generation who are suffering from what Morris Ginsberg has called 'moral bewilderment.' But hard-pressed heads of departments of philosophy in American colleges will refer to it enthusiastically as a new indication of the 'importance' of metaphysics when they are discussing budgetary increases with hard-boiled deans and presidents." J. A. Irving

Canadian Forum 29:19 Ap '49 700w

"After saying that this work represents a piece of independent thinking, I must add that it suffers somewhat from the scholar's inveterate habit of taking a text solemnly. . . This is the way academic theses are substantiated, but it is not the way documents of deep insight are written. Every generous man must applaud the intention the book represents, but it would be sanguine to prophecy a great influence." R. M. Weaver

Commonweal 50:73 Ap 29 '49 600w

Current Hist 16:288 My '49 40w

"He discusses the problem of creative man in a creative universe, and holds that this reciprocal creativity gives to the creativity of man eternal meaning and lasting consequence. . . The wide appeal of such a book, not only to scientists, students of philosophy and the clergy, comes from its very direct answer to materialistic thinking."

+ Kirkus 17:75 F 1 '49 160w

"A brilliant and scholarly book, but too theoretical for popular reading." L. R. Miller

+ Library J 74:374 Mr 1 '49 110w

Reviewed by Albert Hofstadter

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 My 8 '49 850w

Reviewed by M. W. Gross

N Y Times p21 Ap 24 '49 650w

"Forceful, literate, and, it is to be hoped, all-conquering."

+ New Yorker 25:106 Mr 19 '49 100w

"Mr. Beer could be followed more easily if he had himself followed a less murky light. Still, the main thesis of his book seems to me thoroughly sound, and the way in which he has worked it out reveals an unusual strength of intellectual grip. Indeed, it is a heartening sight to see a young political scientist striking down in this determined way to bedrock for the foundations of his political theory. Later work from his pen wil certainly bear expectant watching." Brand Blanshard

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:23 Ap 23 '49 800w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:168 Je '49 280w

BEERY, MARY. Manners made easy. (Whittlesey house publication) 327p il $3; text ed $2.40 McGraw

395 Etiquet 49-11034

"A comprehensive book on etiquette for teenagers. Includes information on grooming, posture, health, clothes, speech, correct behavior at home, school and in public, while traveling (by bus, plane, car, train, or ship), at social affairs, on dates. Designed as a textbook with exercises to rate oneself at ends of chapters; contains an excellent bibliography and list of visual aids. Photographs and diagrams help make the book more interesting. For older boys and girls." (Library J) Index.

"The title of this text is very appropriate. It is illustrated with excellent photographs of actual situations which will appeal to teenagers and help them acquire easy manners. The reader is encouraged to rate himself at the close of each chapter with a pertinent multiple-choice quiz. . . It will certainly be usable and, no doubt, 'will add momentum to the growing interest in social development and encourage the introduction of more social-usage classes in high school,' as the author hopes. At least, it will add to the study of these units in other classes." Nell Kruger

J Home Econ 42:47 Ja '50 300w

"A bibliography and index make this good reference value. Not prepossesing in appearance, but sound in content."

+ Kirkus 17:558 O 1 '49 120w

Reviewed by Nelle McCalla

Library J 74:1762 N 15 '49 80w

BEGUN, SEMI JOSEPH. Magnetic recording. 242p il $5 Rinehart

621.381 Sound—Recording and reproducing 49-3792

"The history of magnetic recording on both wire and tape, the magnetic and electrical principles, and the details of recording apparatus now on the market are all discussed in this book." (N Y New Tech Bks) Contents: History of magnetic recording; Acoustic factors in magnetic recording; Fundamentals of magnetism; Theory of magnetic recording; Components of a magnetic recording system; Magnetic recording equipment; Applications of magnetic recording; Instrumentation and magnetic recording measurements; Magnetic recording as challenge to the phonograph. Chapter bibliographies. Glossary. Index.

"This [book] is well documented and thoroughly indexed as well as readable." P. L. Miller

+ Library J 74:1099 Ag '49 140w

N Y New Tech Bks 54:60 Jl '49

BEHN, HARRY. Little hill; poems & pictures. 58p $2 Harcourt

811 49-10198

A small book of poems for young children. They are about nature and other things familiar to ages six to ten.

Booklist 46:36 S 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun O 15 '49 40w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p12 D 13 '49 100w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '49

Horn Bk 25:424 S '49 50w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore

Horn Bk 25:436 S '49 40w

"A lovely little gift book. . . The author's little scarlet drawings that illustrate it are cocky and spritely."

+ Kirkus 17:395 Ag 1 '49 100w

"The author of these whimsical little songs of innocence knows a charm by which adult minds can be captured, through verses and drawings made for the eyes and ears of children. It is hoped that the eyes of children's librarians will find this note, perhaps to discover here a new book to place beside A Child's Garden of Verses." Gerald McDonald

+ Library J 74:1326 S 15 '49 60w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker

+ Library J 74:1533 O 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by Lillian Morrison

+ Library J 74:1760 N 15 '49 40w

"We have here a rather special little book, so well made, so apart from the usual run that it will be welcome as a gift for children who have many books already and know enough to like this for its distinction." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 13 '49 150w

"He is sometimes subjective; again delightfully foolish, with unexpected twists of thought and rhythm. . . His drawings add an extra pleasure to the reading of this beautifully designed little book." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p18 N 13 '49 50w

New Yorker 25:164 D 3 '49 40w

"In a pre-publication note a New York newspaper suggests that this little book 'may become a children's classic.' Reading it from cover to cover one feels that this is a safe prophecy. It is rare to find new poems for children that have the zest and freshness, the delicacy and humor that one finds in these. They are about things that are familiar to almost all children and yet in them is a sense of something discovered, something secret and beautiful that is shared." M. G. D.

+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 S 17 '49 230w

BEIM, JERROLD. Smallest boy in the class; il. by Meg Wohlberg. [47p] $2 Morrow
49-9991

Jim was the smallest boy in the class and was called Tiny. Both things made him so cross that he made as loud a noise as he could on any occasion. Then one day at a picnic Tiny had a chance to show that being big isn't always a matter of size. For ages four to eight.

Booklist 46:15 S 1 '49
Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 170:210 D '49 20w
Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun O 15 '49 70w
Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p4 S 13 '49 150w
Kirkus 17:358 Jl 15 '49 100w
Reviewed by A. G. Zebker
Library J 74:1532 O 15 '49 10w

"Suitable for the primer-graduate who longs to use his newly acquired reading ability. . . Recommended." Elizabeth Sussdorff
+ Library J 74:1333 S 15 '49 80w

"This solution of Jim's problem will probably help teachers and parents to find other remedies for children who feel insecure in their groups. To children from 5 to 8 there is a lesson in the acceptance of important values over unimportant ones. Illustrations by Meg Wohlberg are realistic and convincing." Lois Palmer
+ N Y Times p34 O 30 '49 150w
Springf'd Republican p8B S 18 '49 90w

BEIM, MRS LORRAINE (LEVEY). Hurry back; il. by Edgar Levy. 200p $2.25 Harcourt 49-10964

Description of the trip the Lorimer family took by car, from Long Island to California. For grades four to six.

Booklist 46:144 D 15 '49

"Wholesome, realistic family situations with a recognizable quality for most young readers. And it is a liberal education in the American scene. I confess to disliking the spot drawings by Edgar Levy."
+ — Kirkus 17:553 O 1 '49 110w

"Story interest lags in spots. Luke warm recommendation for ages 8-11." M. J. Meade
Library J 75:50 Ja 1 '50 70w

"The twins, Seth and Sandra, are lively and extremely curious. They learn a good deal on the trip—and so does the reader." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:26 N 12 '49 60w
Springf'd Republican p8C N 27 '49 110w

BEIRNE, FRANCIS F. War of 1812; maps by Dorothy de Fontaine. 410p $5 Dutton
973.52 U.S.—History—War of 1812 48-9712

A one volume history of the War of 1812. It begins with Madison's first administration and shows how the political clique known as the War Hawks, led by Henry Clay, was responsible for plunging this country into an unnecessary war. The author is an associate editor of the Baltimore Sun. Bibliography. Index.

"A spirited and interesting narrative of the War of 1812, especially in its military and naval aspects. While the book (obviously designed for the layman) is undocumented, the author acknowledges a heavy debt to Henry Adams' History of the United States and to Benjamin J. Lossing's Pictorial Field Book of the War of 1812. His bibliography presents a fairly good array of the more familiar sources, primary and secondary. . . Whether as original intention or afterthought, Mr. Beirne has given his story, at the end, a propagandist twist." J. W. Pratt
Am Hist R 54:939 Jl '49 320w
Booklist 45:239 Mr 15 '49
Reviewed by R. B. Nye
Chicago Sun Ja 25 '49 500w

"Mr. Beirne is a newspaperman, and this is reportorial writing of a high quality. It brings to the sometimes too staid pages of history the sparkle and zest that attract the attention of the nonprofessional reader. The maps are excellent and fulfill their primary function—to complement the text." R. A. Brown
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 F 3 '49 600w

"So little has been written of this war, that the book should prove important as a source of fresh understanding."
+ Kirkus 16:610 N 15 '48 160w

"The style here is lively and vivid, if not particularly distinguished; the events—military, naval, and political—are neatly marshalled and described; and the book fills an inexplicable gap in American historiography more than creditably. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:54 Ja 1 '49 110w

"An unusually readable volume. Of particular interest is the detailed story of how we happened to blunder into so unnecessary a war."
+ Nation 168:137 Ja 29 '49 50w

"A scholarly, one-volume work written in pleasing style about a short and well-defined period in the history of our country." S. E. Morison
+ New Eng Q 22:423 S '49 500w
Reviewed by George Mayberry
New Repub 120:24 F 28 '49 480w

"The proportions of the book are nicely balanced, the criticism is judicious, the narrative is clear and energetic and the conclusions are provocative." H. S. Commager
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Ja 30 '49 1450w

"The good fortune of the United States in emerging virtually unhurt from a war into which it had so imprudently blundered is partly responsible for the tradition of victory. . . News of the peace, coupled with the report of Jackson's victory at New Orleans (in a battle fought two weeks after the peace treaty's signature) gave President Madison good reason to 'breathe a sigh of relief.' Perhaps it would have been better if the author had ended his story on this happy note. Some of the conclusions which follow may well be questioned by other historians. But no reader of this book with a liking for military history will fail to enjoy it as a whole, or miss its proper lesson of the consequences of military unpreparedness." Stetson Conn
+ — N Y Times p6 Ja 23 '49 950w

"A detailed and very well-written account of this odd and scarcely remembered war."
+ New Yorker 24:94 F 5 '49 160w

"It is a fine book for a winter week end and an honored place on the desk." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p22A F 27 '49 600w

"Making no pretense to the use of new materials, this spirited account of the War of 1812 fills the need for a popular but sound and sobering account of an almost forgotten war."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:204 Je '49 280w

BELDEN, JACK. China shakes the world. 524p $5 Harper
951.042 China—Politics and government. Communism—China 49-11358

"The author, a newspaper correspondent with a solid background in recent Chinese history, attempts to explain why Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek descended, in the space of four years, from being the practically undisputed ruler of four hundred and fifty million people to living a fugitive's life on the island of Formosa, surrounded by only a handful of his followers. At the same time, Mr. Belden also tries to explain the enormous success of the Chinese Communists." (New Yorker) Index.

Booklist 46:121 D 1 '49
Bookmark 9:51 D '49 40w

BELDEN, JACK—Continued

"Four years ago Jack Belden's passionate partisanship and his preoccupation with spilled blood made 'Retreat with Stilwell' and 'Still Time to Die' seem great books. Today, Belden's constitutional inability to see both sides of a subject seems to be a grave weakness for a historian. In 'China Shakes the World,' he passionately identifies himself with the Chinese Communists." Walter Simmons

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 N 20 '49 650w

"An angry, impassioned plea for Americans to be honest enough to admit that there has been a Chinese Revolution. . . Mr. Belden has given us no ordinary journalistic rehash of daily news stories. He has lived, traveled, and talked with the peasants of the 'Liberated Areas' in North China, and in the pages of his book one finds the most readable and gripping account of the peasant movement that has come out of China. The great merit of the book as reporting is that it restricts itself so largely to the peasant's wrongs, struggles, and hopes. . . Beyond the reporting level, Mr. Belden is very much less convincing." M. B. Jansen

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 N 8 '49 900w

"A penetrating and absorbing book; controversial—partisan, yes, but convincing and encouraging, in showing how the new China is operating on its own—not Moscow-controlled—lines."

+ Kirkus 17:318 Je 15 '49 280w

Reviewed by E. D. Hawkins

Nation 169:576 D 10 '49 1050w

"If any one book can make Americans understand the Chinese catastrophe, this volume should do it. Seldom has reporting so faithful to reality been presented in prose so powerful and moving that it succeeds in identifying the fate of a foreign people with the reader himself. Beyond doubt, China Shakes the World is one of the most valuable books ever written about our neighbors in Asia." Edgar Snow

+ New Repub 121:18 N 7 '49 2200w

"A book that is full of horror, violence, and cruelty; but it is also an honest book that shows that the oppression against which people revolted was real, and that the liberation that came of the revolt was real. . . Mr. Belden's account of what went to the making of Communist victory in China is enriched by the experience and insight gained in many years of close contact with Kuomintang party activities, civil administration and areas of army occupation." Owen Lattimore

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 O 23 '49 1500w

"Something historic has indeed happened in Eastern Asia and Mr. Belden's book is the best systematic account of it that has yet come out." Nathaniel Peffer

+ N Y Times p47 O 23 '49 600w

"His story is well and directly written."

+ New Yorker 25:113 O 29 '49 220w

San Francisco Chronicle p30 N 27 '49 750w

"Jack Belden has written one of the best books ever published about the Chinese people. It is a source book of such consequence that no diplomat, historian, businessman, or wishful thinker can fully comprehend what has happened in China, and why, until he has read 'China Shakes the World.' . . Few writers are as well equipped as Jack Belden to make an explosion of history as exciting as a novel of suspense. John Hersey did it for the atom bomb; Belden has done it for the Chinese Revolution." R. E. Lauterbach

+ Sat R of Lit 32:14 O 29 '49 800w

Wis Lib Bul p6 N '49

BELGION, MONTGOMERY. Victors' justice; a letter intended to have been sent to a friend recently in Germany [Eng title: Epitaph on Nuremberg]. (Humanist lib) 187p $2.75 Regnery

341.3 War crimes—Trial 49-8138

"Written as a letter from London to 'My Dear Daniel,' a former comrade in arms now on occupation duty in the British Zone in Germany, the book purports to be a critical exposition of the methods and judicial theories of the Nuremberg Trials. Its thesis can be stated summarily: not only is the legality of the Trials itself fraudulent, but for every one of the major charges in the indictment, the same could be said with equal vigor and truth about the 'victors' themselves, especially Russia." Am Pol Sci R

"Factually, it does indeed raise in bold relief the entire question of international justice, as it also exposes actions on the part of the 'victorious' powers that most certainly will challenge sensitive and intelligent people. But its leitmotif that two wrongs either make a right or at least mitigate the wrong itself is open to question. The moral and legal problems that the book suggests might well serve as a starting point from which to reëxamine the entire question of international morality and justice—especially the problems centered around the 'victor' and the 'vanquished.' But somehow the book does not really come to grips with Mr. Justice Jackson's closing remark at Nuremberg." B. M. Ziegler

Am Pol Sci R 43:623 Je '49 300w

"Those who are genuinely concerned about the nature and the possibility of justice among nations should read this book; those who are not had better let it alone. It has the compacted heat and penetrating power of thermite. You may not agree with everything, but some of your firmest convictions will be burned to dust." Howard Becker

Ann Am Acad 266:215 N '49 480w

" 'Victors' Justice' is a mote-and-beam book. Its unpleasant thesis is that we punished others for doing what we ourselves had done. Like all such books, it has two gross shortcomings. First, in emphasizing our own sins, it fails to emphasize sufficiently the hideousness that was Nazism. . . Second, in this emphasis, it implies that the beam of Scripture is in our eyes and the mote in our neighbor's." Milton Mayer

— Chicago Sun Ag 8 '49 700w

"It is difficult to imagine that any person endowed with intelligence, and memory, will accept the author's charges concerning the criminality of the western Allies. . . Only in his attack against the Russians is Mr. Belgion firing from solid ground." Ernest Pisko

— + Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 31 '49 1150w

Foreign Affairs 28:157 O '49 20w

"The statement that there was no moral difference between the victor and the vanquished is perhaps the most amoral trivia to issue from the late conflict." R. G. C.

— San Francisco Chronicle p12 Jl 10 '49 250w

BELKNAP, EUGENE MCCAMLY. Milk glass; introd. by George S. McKearin. 327p pl $6 Crown

748.2 Glassware 49-9776

"The 298 pages of photographs that make up this book are accompanied by very brief identifying text. Covers a great variety of patterns and objects, and will be a help to the amateur collector. Includes both white and colored glass, and a chapter on reproductions." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 45:388 Jl 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '49

"This is to the subject of Milk glass what the McKearin book is to American glass at its best, a book for collectors based on one of the best and largest collections."

+ Kirkus 17:356 Jl 1 '49 110w

"Useful and recommended." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 74:1821 D 1 '49 100w

BELL, BERNARD IDDINGS. Crisis in education; a challenge to American complacency. (Whittlesey house publication) 237p $3 McGraw

370.973 Education—U. S. 49-8612

"Dr. Bell, a priest in the Episcopal Church, a former professor at Columbia, and one-time college president, lays into every level of our educational system, from primary schools to postgraduate courses. His final chapter suggests some first steps toward reform, which are not designed to save the 'alleged adults' of the country—it is too late, he thinks, to do anything about them—but to provide schools that will really educate the children of the coming generation." New Yorker

Booklist 45:306 My 15 '49

"No conscientious parent or teacher can read this volume without finding himself agreeing in the main with the author's diagnosis. Moreover, the remedies he suggests in his concluding chapter, 'First Steps in Reformation,' will appeal to the unprejudiced reader as wholly sound and practical. Particularly worthy of note are his observations on the place of religion in education and the support of private schools." E. B. Jordan

+ Cath World 169:472 S '49 600w

Current Hist 17:162 S '49 100w

"Canon Bell has made his mark in this country as a churchman, educator and publicist. When he speaks, his audience sits up and listens; when he writes no reader will fall asleep over the pages of his book, for he has a vivid, forthright style that commands attention. The present volume is a scathing and thorough-going indictment of our American educational system."

+ Kirkus 17:146 Mr 15 '49 250w

Reviewed by Paul Ramsey

N Y Times p7 Ap 24 '49 420w

"A lively, yet serious, discussion of the low state of education in America."

+ New Yorker 25:112 My 7 '49 110w

"Dr. Bell is a thoughtful man, and, as this book will show you, a disturbed man. What he has to say is not pleasant; it will wound many Americans deeply in a tender spot. For he finds much wrong with our civilization, and a great deal of the wrongness, he believes, must be laid at the door of the education we have been giving our children. . . This book is meant as a diagnosis rather than the perfect cure. It is a diagnosis, and a sharp one. And though nobody likes to be told he is suffering from a desperate ailment, diagnosis is necessary before a cure. If Dr. Bell causes some Americans to consider the problems he outlines, then at least a start toward the cure will have been made. His book deserves attentive reading and some serious thought." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 28 '49 1200w

"This is a wise and frightening book. . . Dr. Bell speaks with a double authority: that of a man who for many years has known and practised education in most of its phases, and that of a mind singularly gifted to winnow chaff from wheat. The book is mind-arousing, particularly in its discussion of the grave lack of education in fundamental life outlook." H. A. Overstreet

+ Sat R of Lit 32:18 Ap 30 '49 1000w

School & Society 69:286 Ap 16 '49 100w

"In his excellent concluding chapter, Dr. Bell proposes nine specific steps which should and might be taken immediately in an effort to meet the present crisis in education. I regard all of them as basically sound, but I applaud particularly his vigorous demand for vastly increased public support of education, for reinforced opposition to political interference in the educational policies of both public and private institutions, and for the wider extension of government subsidy for the college and university training of clearly deserving students." H. W. Hintz

+ Survey 85:339 Je '49 550w

BELL, MARGARET ELIZABETH. The totem casts a shadow; frontispiece by Louis Darling. 222p $2.50 Morrow

49-7985

Continuation of Watch For a Tall White Sail (Book Review Digest 1948). The scene is Prince of Wales Island, and the Monroes are again the chief characters. The elder Monroe forbids any fraternization with the Haida Indians, but when Gregory marries one of them Florence stands by him. And as the man she loves is broad-minded enough to agree with her, Florence's happiness is assured. The time is the 1880's.

Booklist 45:284 Ap 15 '49

Chicago Sun Ap 30 '49 100w

Churchman 163:3 Je 15 '49 60w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:291 Jl '49 120w

Kirkus 17:62 F 1 '49 150w

"Not the author's best. Recommended for young adults." G. E. Cartmell

+ — Library J 74:557 Ap 1 '49 70w

"The book is written with feeling for the strangely beautiful country and with delicate sensitiveness as to the heart of a girl of eighteen." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ap 17 '49 140w

"It is a complex problem to translate the peculiar prejudices of pioneer Alaska into terms fully understandable today, and the author has not been entirely successful in fitting this into the framework of a novel for teen-aged girls. But the beautifully detailed setting and the family relationships enrich the story." E. L. B.

+ — N Y Times p29 Ap 3 '49 230w

"A fine 'novel' for older girls, with a delicately handled love story."

+ New Yorker 25:174 D 3 '49 70w

Sat R of Lit 32:38 My 21 '49 190w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 24 '49 130w

Wis Lib Bul 45:91 My '49

BELL, MARJORIE JEWETT, ed. See Jewett, A. C. American engineer in Afghanistan

BELL, QUENTIN. On human finery. 134p il col pl $3.50 Wyn

391 Fashion. Costume 49-8139

A study of the philosophy of dress by an English writer. He bases his thesis on Thorstein Veblen's Theory of the Leisure Class, especially the categories of Conspicuous Consumption, Conspicuous Leisure, and Conspicuous Waste, and adds one of his own: Conspicuous Outrage—the defying of sartorial morality by the upper classes. No index.

Kirkus 17:163 Mr 15 '49 150w

"This serious work is well illustrated and has the added value of being distinctly readable." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 74:544 Ap 1 '49 100w

"Many women may feel he has attached too little importance to subjective and aesthetic considerations; but his book is both scholarly and entertaining, and it would have been interesting to hear his views on the 'new line.' " E. C.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 2 '48 180w

"The thought is so clear, the humour so appetisingly dry, that I am compelled to recommend the book urgently, although the author is hardly less puritanical than the run of philosophers." Raymond Mortimer

+ New Statesman & Nation 35:33 Ja 10 '48 2300w

"Thoughtful and stimulating and done in a lighthearted manner."

+ New Yorker 25:122 Ap 9 '49 110w

"Mr. Quentin Bell has made an important addition to the small number of works dealing with the philosophy of clothes. . . When he postulates his own theory of conspicuous outrage he steps out of economics into erotics; he passes from the world of Marx into the world of Freud. In this he is much less sure of his ground. . . His analysis of 'sartorial morality,' so different from morality tout court, is stimulating and valuable."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p53 Ja 24 '48 800w

BELL, W. D. M. Karamojo safari. 298p $3.75 Harcourt

799.2761 Hunting—Africa, East. Elephants 49-10241

A professional hunter describes the events of a safari thru the African bush, in search of elephants. The time was fifty years ago, and the author was then the first white man the natives had seen. No index.

Booklist 46:44 O 1 '49

"Elephant hunting is a sport we seldom hear of nowadays. Mr. Bell, who has probably had more experience than any other hunter, gives an interesting picture of a life lived in devotion to this pursuit. . . This book follows close upon the successful 'Man-Eater of Kumaon,' and although it is perhaps not as exciting, it is well written and sustains interest throughout." Adam Fremantle

+ Commonweal 50:542 S 9 '49 120w

"This should be something to offer those who remember Du Chaillu and his African adventuring, and of definite interest to hunters and sportsmen."

+ Kirkus 17:381 Jl 15 '49 160w

"Well-written account of first elephant hunter in N.E. Africa (1897). In spite of intrepidity and amazing courage of author, rather repetitious and tiresome."

+ — Library J 74:1679 N 1 '49 40w

"It would be unfair to slight Mr. Bell's descriptions of a vanished Africa which do conjure up a romantic, if savage, time and place. It is true that he saw and did things no one will be able to see or do again. And it is true that now and then, places or manners are laid before us with the same meticulous care he once used to fire a bullet into a brain. 'Background material' is here for traveler and naturalist. Yet, I still stand by Major Pretorious. A year ago, in 'Jungle Man,' he gave us the same Africa of fifty years ago, but with love rather than figures. . . His feeling re-created yesterday's Africa and any comparable story must be measured against his classic." Margaret Hubbard

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 S 18 '49 650w

"Admittedly all this happened at the turn of the century, but the author is writing now, and to this reviewer the most fascinating aspect of the book is the unconscious light it throws on a state of mind that made of slaughter as natural a function as eating or breathing. . . It is only fair to point out that readers with stronger stomachs than mine may find much to admire in Mr. Bell's indubitable prowess. Although he uses his pen with rather less skill than his Mauser, his prose is forthright, uncluttered with clichés, and superbly unconscious of any conceivable disapproval of his elephant holocaust. Although he may be unaware of it, he himself emerges from his book as a remarkable specimen of the vanishing breed of big-game hunters, now almost as extinct as the quagga they once pursued." John Barkham

N Y Times p20 S 18 '49 500w

New Yorker 25:62 D 24 '49 120w

"The reader will find that 'Karamojo Safari' requires patience and strong stomach. It is repetitious and rambling, with disconcerting changes of tense, but it is never boring and I guarantee it will teach you everything there is to learn vicariously about elephant hunting." Linton Wells

Sat R of Lit 33:24 Ja 7 '50 900w

BELLAIRS, GEORGE. Case of the famished parson. 181p $2.50 Macmillan

49-9295

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun Je 24 '49 170w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Je 19 '49 130w

"Neither Mr. Bellairs nor his Inspector will win new fans with the surprising slovenliness of their latest contribution. The bashing of an emaciated Bishop is a promising opening; but the strange cleric and his stranger family soon prove to be red herrings, and his murder is only incidental to a dull and unimaginative gangster story. Littlejohn's detection is as desultory and inconclusive as the book's story structure." A. B.

— N Y Times p9 My 29 '49 180w

"Rather divertingly written."

+ New Yorker 25:96 Je 4 '49 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p23 Je 5 '49 200w

"Littlejohn's persuasive methods with cast of amusing—and sufficiently sinister—characters give extra zest to ably plotted, mystifying affair."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 My 28 '49 40w

Springf'd Republican p7C Je 12 '49 120w

BELLAIRS, GEORGE. Death on the last train. 175p $2.50 Macmillan

49-6504

Detective story.

"A solid integration of crime and character, this is British born and bred."

+ Kirkus 17:376 Jl 15 '49 60w

"It's a welcome surprise to find a British mystery that handles without condescension a set of characters who have never been near a public school; and it's even more welcome to find Mr. Bellairs and his inspector back in their top form again." A. B.

+ N Y Times p25 S 25 '49 170w

"A good story, told in the leisurely fashion of the British whodunit. Although somewhat slow-paced for the American taste, this is a plot that is carefully worked out, with painstaking attention to the orderly procedure of investigation." D. F. M.

+ Springf'd Republican p5D O 2 '49 80w

BELOFF, MAX. Foreign policy of Soviet Russia; v2:1936-41. 434p $5 Oxford

327.47 Russia—Foreign policy (48-478)

The first volume of this survey of Soviet diplomacy covered the years 1929-1936 (Book Review Digest 1948). Volume two continues the study thru the years 1936 to 1941, when the Nazi-Soviet pact was dissolved. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by C. E. Black

Ann Am Acad 266:214 N '49 340w

Reviewed by George Woodcock

Canadian Forum 29:164 O '49 290w

"Mr. Beloff's whole account is instinct with awareness. Had he made it explicit he would have written an entirely new sort of diplomatic history, but this is not what Chatham House in London asked him to write, and what he was in fact asked to do he has admirably succeeded in. For the student this volume is indispensable." Edward Crankshaw

+ N Y Times p4 Jl 3 '49 1050w

"This is perhaps the most painstaking analysis of the subject in English, and although it is primarily a work of scholarship, it is written as a freely flowing historical narrative, and is helped along by the fact that the author has kept his voluminous notes and source references out of the reader's way as much as possible."

+ New Yorker 25:65 Jl 9 '49 190w

"Mr. Beloff's second volume on Soviet foreign policy, if somewhat less impressive than J. W. Wheeler-Bennett's Munich or L. B. Namier's Diplomatic Prelude, is another important British study of the events leading to the outbreak and spread of World War II. . . The picture of what the Russians were attempting to achieve is confused. At such times the work falls to the level of a carefully edited compilation. Apparently Mr. Beloff, objectively, has tried to give due weight to the Soviet public diplomatic record in the years preceding the war as well as to the discouraging implications of subsequent Soviet policy, and, subjectively, has tried to balance a personal disapproval of the Soviet regime with a historical impartiality. This balancing seems to be what has inhibited the emergence of a consistent and explicit interpretation of the subject as a whole." H. L. Roberts

Pol Sci Q 64:443 S '49 700w

"[The book] maintains the same standards of completeness and objectivity which the author established in the first volume." D. J. Dallin

+ Sat R of Lit 32:10 Jl 9 '49 1150w

"In completing the second, and much longer, volume of this book, Mr. Beloff has rounded off a major achievement in balanced historical analysis, which is so fairly presented and so painstakingly documented, in fact so good, that it would be presumptuous to criticise it except on an occasional point of detail. The achievement seems the greater when one remembers the doubtful nature of much of the evidence on which Mr. Beloff has necessarily had to build his case, and we have here a basis for study of the contemporary manifestations of Soviet foreign policy which no responsible person can afford to be without during the present dangerous period in world history. . . This book is as interesting as it is important, and Mr. Beloff is to be congratulated in making it so readable in spite of its almost overscrupulous documentation." Richard Chancellor

+ Spec 182:794 Je 10 '49 800w

"The text is the result of a thorough and accurate conflation of the sources. The reader can feel confident that no important act of Soviet foreign policy in the period under review has escaped attention and that due note has been taken of all the major foreign comments and reactions. This completeness will suffice to make the book an indispensable vade mecum for workers in this field for a long time to come."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p407 Je 24 '49 2050w

BELOFF, MAX. Thomas Jefferson and American democracy. (Teach yourself history lib) 271p $2 Macmillan

B or 92 Jefferson, Thomas. U.S.—History—1783-1865 49-10368

This study of Thomas Jefferson is in essence a history of the United States from the 1770's to the writing of the Monroe Doctrine in 1823. Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Beloff is less strong in the part of an expositor of popular history than he is in that of an erudite author. Like other academic historians who offer smart semi-detacheds for the ordinary man to dwell in, he sometimes forgets to remove the scaffolding." M. P. A.

Manchester Guardian p3 D 31 '48 360w

"A worthwhile addition to a field already crowded with good books." Joseph Kraft

+ Nation 169:628 D 24 '49 140w

"Mr. Max Beloff has made a gallant attempt at the impossible. . . He knows far too much of his subject, and has far too much ability, to waste his time on pemmicanised history. He undertook a subject that required spaciousness and perspective. The orders given to him permitted him no chance of achieving either." H. J. Laski

New Statesman & Nation 36:506 D 4 '48 180w

"We are in Mr. Beloff's debt for this first serious study of Jefferson to appear in England. Mr. Beloff is familiar with the vast Jefferson literature and has used it intelligently. . . Englishmen can ask for no better introduction to this important period."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p109 F 12 '49 1200w

BEMELMANS, LUDWIG. Eye of God. 312p $3 Viking

49-11287

Tale of the Tyrolean Alps and the village of Aspen, in the shadow of the mountain called The Eye of God. Tannegg, the innkeeper, and his son Severin, manage to live their stolid lives before and during the war, even when the village becomes a Nazi recreation center. With the end of the war Severin and his bride open another inn, farther up the mountain.

"There are no horrors in the book and no heroics, and the token love story means very little, but the author knows the Austrian character, and his feeling for Aspen rings true." Edward Weeks

Atlantic 184:88 N '49 750w

Booklist 46:25; 82 S 15 '49; N 1 '49

Reviewed by B. Pomer

Canadian Forum 29:239 Ja '50 280w

Reviewed by Feike Feikema

Chicago Sun N 29 '49 400w

"The author has a highly original talent for the unexpected insertion of mischievous observations; yet for all his humor, he is unsparing in his sly exposure of the flaws in human nature, and frequently his frankness may prove disconcerting to some readers." M. W. Stoer

+ — Christian Science Monitor p15 N 10 '49 420w

"There's humor, and satire, and one is never quite sure on which side Bemelmans takes his stand. But it is a wholly Bemelmans production, from endpapers to endpapers."

Kirkus 17:443 Ag 15 '49 250w

"Recommended." H. S. Taylor

+ Library J 74:1201 S 1 '49 100w

"One still doesn't know how he does it, but there isn't much point in worrying about that. It's simply there, and a fine thing, too." J. K. Hutchens

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 O 30 '49 650w

"This is a novel to be read in sections, a chapter or two at a time, not from any lack of continuity but because in taking it at a gulp one cannot savor its component parts. It is unfortunate that Mr. Bemelmans did not illustrate 'The Eye of God.' The author's four-color end paper, however, is well worth the price of admission." D. M. Mankiewicz

+ N Y Times p4 O 30 '49 450w

New Yorker 25:109 O 29 '49 200w

"Since this is done in the author's best style—which is a blend of humor and irony, naivete and wisdom—it is a book you should not miss, no matter what. I have only one complaint to make, which will be shared by every reader, I'm sure. Why couldn't there have been Bemelmans' drawings along with the text." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 N 11 '49 1000w

Reviewed by Niccolo Tucci

Sat R of Lit 32:20 N 19 '49 700w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p10B D 25 '49 190w

Time 54:120 N 14 '49 220w

"A very lively and entertaining book." Paul Pickrel

+ Yale R n s 39:382 winter '50 270w

BEMIS, SAMUEL FLAGG. John Quincy Adams and the foundations of American foreign policy. 588p il maps $7.50 Knopf

B or 92 Adams, John Quincy. U.S.—Foreign policy 49-10664

"A combination of biography and diplomatic history. John Quincy Adams, unquestionably a major figure among American statesmen, has never had a full biography. As Mr. Bemis reminds us, he had two distinct careers. This volume does not deal with the second—during which 'Old Man Eloquent' opposed the extension of slavery in the temper of a moral crusader. It carries the story of the Presidency, and goes through and beyond the Presidency so far as foreign affairs are concerned. This is Adams's diplomatic biography, and because of his strategic position first as an observer of foreign affairs and then as a highly important participator in them, it is also the story of American foreign policy as it developed during the crucial first half-century of the Republic. The author is professor of diplomatic history at Yale." (N Y Times) Index.

BEMIS, S. F.—Continued

"Professor Bemis has provided us with an excellent account of a truly great American." E. S. Brown

+ Am Pol Sci R 43:1276 D '49 1000w

Booklist 46:46 O 1 '49

Reviewed by Walter Johnson

Chicago Sun p7X D 11 '49 410w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby

Christian Science Monitor p14 O 1 '49 900w

"When the last page of Bemis has been read and reread, and the last foot-note examined and re-examined, many a reader will be bound to ask if Bemis, in his anxiety to study every aspect of the diplomatic history of Adams' life, has highlighted the truly important facts of John Quincy Adams' career." Wayne Andrews

+ — Commonweal 51:296 D 16 '49 1100w

Current Hist 17:354 D '49 70w

"A scholarly work, of specific political science interest."

+ Kirkus 17:352 Jl 1 '49 130w

"The importance of John Quincy Adams in the development of American foreign policy has been recognized by historians for years, but this carefully documented account of Adams's career offers the best single description of his unique contribution. . . Highly recommended." J. H. Berthel

+ Library J 74:1323 S 15 '49 160w

Reviewed by D. J. Boorstin

Nation 169:381 O 15 '49 1350w

"Mr. Bemis tells the full story of these rich years and fruitful experiences, casting fresh light on complicated matters and throwing out stimulating suggestions as he goes along." Dumas Malone

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 S 18 '49 2100w

"Mr. Bemis has done more than write a solid and scholarly book. He has performed a public service. In this 'diplomatic biography,' he has used a fine brush and painted from a palette of rich and rare pigments. He is clearly in command of complex source materials of diplomatic history, both in American and foreign archives. Moreover, he was able to gain access to the papers of the Adams family, now in the custody of the Adams Manuscript Trust in the Massachusetts Historical Society. This opened up personal and official papers that no previous biographer—with the exception of one who used them only superficially—has consulted." Adrienne Koch

+ N Y Times p6 S 11 '49 1220w

"As a series of monographs packed with detail and documentation this book has some chapters that become rather wearisome. If it does not quite make Adams a human being, still less does it turn other men—Clay, Rush, Monroe, Canning—into flesh-and-blood personalities. We may occasionally question Mr. Bemis's sense of proportion; any one subject seems to him about as important as any other. But taken as a whole this is a masterly depiction of a great diplomatic career, full of interest and instruction. It is praise enough to say that it is worthy of its subpect." Allan Nevins

+ Sat R of Lit 32:10 D 24 '49 1000w

Reviewed by Donald Derby

Springf'd Republican p7D D 11 '49 650w

Reviewed by Dexter Perkins

Yale R n s 39:360 winter '50 700w

BENCHLEY, ROBERT CHARLES. Chips off the old Benchley; with an introd. by Frank Sullivan and drawings by Gluyas Williams. 273p $3 Harper

817 Humor 49-10872

A collection of short essays by Benchley, which have never before been published in book form. They date in time from the twenties and thirties.

"This is a collection of seventy-seven pieces none of which have been published before in book form. There is something amusing or ludicrous in every one of them, and the best are to be read aloud with whoops of joy." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 184:90 D '49 500w

Booklist 46:79 N 1 '49

Bookmark 9:26 N '49 20w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '49

Kirkus 17:419 Ag 1 '49 120w

"In every Benchley book, including this, the last one, there are pieces of high, wild humor that stand out among the ones that are just gently funny. 'Chips Off the Old Benchley' is at its best, I think, in the pieces called 'Tiptoeing Down Memory Lane,' which is about Benchley's recollections of Whitman and Emerson; 'Old Days in New Bottles,' which is about Benchley's recollections of Augustin Daly and Ada Rehan; 'One Hundred Years Ago Today,' which is mostly about 'Bartlett's Quotations'; and 'Inter-Office Memo,' which seems to have some bearing on inter-office memos. The book would be worth inspecting for those alone." John Lardner

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 S 18 '49 1250w

"[One of his friends] said 'They're going to have to stay up late in heaven now.' Yes, they're staying up late, I know, and, what is more, they must be having the time of their infinities. Lucky angels." James Thurber

+ N Y Times p1 S 18 '49 1550w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 O 6 '49 750w

Reviewed by Lee Rogow

Sat R of Lit 32:18 N 26 '49 700w

Springf'd Republican p10B Ja 1 '50 360w

BENDER, JAMES FREDERICK. How to sleep. 243p $2.75 Coward-McCann

613.79 Sleep 49-10928

Suggestions for outwitting insomnia, by the director of the National Institute for Human Relations. Partial contents: Fifteen ways to make you sleep better; Eight ways to rout your nighttime worries; What happens to you asleep; How to understand your dreams; What is sleep, anyway? Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:91 N 15 '49

"It is not clear what all this has to do with curing insomnia. But, take heart! You'll probably be asleep long before page 70. If not, there's always the upside down split to fall back on." N. L. Browning

Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 N 6 '49 350w

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '49

BENDER, JAMES FREDERICK. How to talk well. (Whittlesey house publication) 262p $3.50 McGraw

808.5 Public speaking. Speech 49-8475

"Approaches the subject from the viewpoint of improving human relations through better speech. Many exercises are introduced throughout the text so that the reader can test or train himself on pitch, articulation, pronunciation, inflection, vocabulary, posture, and gestures. There are tips on preparing and delivering a speech, and on being a chairman, as well as on being a pleasing conversationalist. The author trains radio announcers for NBC and edits its Handbook of pronunciation; his articles on speech have appeared in many periodicals." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 45:351 Je 15 '49

"The book could be used as a text book, or a self-help to better speech habits. . . Throughout there is abundance of practical testing, exercises, lists, and so on."

+ Kirkus 17:126 Mr 1 '49 180w

"It is Dr. James F. Bender's contention that 'clear speech is just about the best tool to influence others the way you want to influence them.' His book is a result of twenty years of professional speech training at such educational centers in New York as City College and Columbia. It is also a compendium of hints, exercises, word games and tests, all of it concise, pointed and designed for laymen." A. H. Weiler

+ N Y Times p19 Ag 28 '49 200w

BENDER, RICHARD N. A philosophy of life. 250p $3.75 Philosophical lib.

110 Life. Philosophy 49-11138

"This is a new kind of book in the field of philosophy—an untechnical application of the philosophic method to problems of intelligent living in the modern world." (School & Society) Bibliography. Indexes.

"In no way but semantically does this book bring to bear, in the spiritual sphere, the many methodological tools found to be so successful for our material well being. One can only remark that most of its conclusions are prime examples of applications resting on wrong, partial, or unanswerable questions." R. H. U.

— San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 27 '49 190w

School & Society 70:240 O 8 '49 30w

BENDICK, MRS JEANNE, and BENDICK, ROBERT. Television works like this. (Whittlesey house publication) 62p il $1.75 McGraw

621.388 Television—Juvenile literature 49-7343

Drawings and nontechnical text explain the workings of television for grades six and up. Index.

Booklist 46:15 S 1 '49

Bookmark 9:6 O '49 30w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 10 '49 180w

Horn Bk 25:421 S '49 30w

"Jeanne Bendick's breezy style and easy line drawings are coupled with her television engineer husband's know-how and the result is a book that answers the questions on how programs originate, what the engineers and directors do, how programs are picked up and transmitted, and that gives a peek into the future of television. Too bad that the technical explanations are not really clear for anyone who doesn't know the terms, and that the glossary leaves much to be desired."

+ — Kirkus 17:345 Jl 1 '49 110w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 74:1329 S 15 '49 60w

"Technical knowledge and illustrative skill combined in the preparation of this attractive book with its clever, lively drawings on every page and its accurate but very informal text. Although it looks young, almost a picture book, it contains plenty of nontechnical information for anyone interested in learning what television is and how a station operates in sending out all kinds of programs." F. L. Morrison

+ Library J 74:1682 N 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 N 13 '49 140w

" 'Television Works Like This' covers everything from the production of shows in studios to the operations in the master control room through which they are broadcast. Plenty of adults will find this book interesting, too." Creighton Peet

+ N Y Times p13 S 4 '49 200w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:35 N 12 '49 30w

Springf'd Republican p8B S 18 '49 90w

BENEDICT, AGNES ELIZABETH, and FRANKLIN, ADELE. The happy home [a guide to family living]. 304p $2.75 Appleton

392.3 Family 48-9484

Advice on how to bring up children emphasizing the value of happy, democratic family life. Book is in four parts: Living together; Widening horizons; Development through creation; Physical and emotional growth. Reading list. Index.

Booklist 45:150 Ja 1 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '49

"It is refreshing to find a book so full of uncommon good sense which is so beautifully written." A. V. Keliher

+ Survey 85:396 Jl '49 450w

BENET, JAMES WALKER. Private killing. 240p $2.50 Harper

49-7283

Mystery story.

"Spencer's vitality lies partly in his sardonic observation and partly in his knowledgeable resourcefulness. His second chronicle should be worth watching for." James Sandoe

+ Chicago Sun p24 Ja 28 '49 140w

"A quickness of tongue and tempo make this entertaining."

+ Kirkus 16:606 N 15 '48 70w

"This is a lively detective tale with straightshooting dialogue and a surprise, written in the standard medium." Will Cuppy

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ja 23 '49 150w

"Mr. Benét, the son of William Rose Benét, has the family flair for vividness. Put this one on your check-list as a top-drawer chiller, and read it with all the lights on." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p27 Ja 30 '49 140w

"The solution, arrived at after considerable gunplay and legwork, is more elementary than the original complexity of the material would suggest."

New Yorker 24:88 Ja 22 '49 100w

"This is Mr. Benet's first novel. His family will approve." E. D. Doyle

+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ja 23 '49 190w

Sat R of Lit 32:33 Mr 5 '49 40w

Wis Lib Bul 45:47 Mr '49

BENET, LAURA. Barnum's first circus, and other stories. 230p $2.50 Dodd

49-3885

A volume of short stories for young readers, many of them first told to a young friend who wanted "a decent story about a hero." Partial contents: Barnum's first circus; Jenny Lind's day; Birds of the air; His father's steward; A messenger in the wilderness; A Scotch weaver who loved birds; With a barber's brush; Children of St. Augustine.

Booklist 45:377 Jl 1 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun Jl 23 '49 50w

"Some are long, some are short, and all very well written. Perhaps the most interesting are those offering new sidelights of imagination as well as of fact upon famous people: Barnum, Jenny Lind, Joan of Arc, Johnny Appleseed, Edgar Allan Poe, Alexander Wilson, J. W. M. Turner, André. Whether children know enough to appreciate the significance of all the people in these settings is to be questioned. There is no grouping of the stories by theme, and there are no pictures, but the collection sustains Miss Benét's high reputation as a writer for both adults and for children." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Je 19 '49 140w

Reviewed by G. C. Caster

N Y Times p24 Je 12 '49 150w

"Twenty-three tales, all of them good and some excellent."

+ New Yorker 25:175 D 3 '49 40w

Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 3 '49 120w

BENET, WILLIAM ROSE, ed. Reader's encyclopedia; an encyclopedia of world literature and the arts. 1242p $6; thumb indexed $6.75 Crowell

803 Literature—Dictionaries, indexes, etc. 48-8901

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '49

BENET, W. R.—Continued

"Like all good encyclopædias, it can be read in straightforward gulps in any idle moment."
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 8 '49 120w

"A superlative job."
+ New Yorker 25:107 Mr 12 '49 90w

"This volume, which is well produced, contains a wealth of detail which it would be difficult to find in such small compass elsewhere. But there is great labour of checking and revision to be done before an edition is reached which can be used for reference without constant doubts and misgivings."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p251 Ap 16 '49 900w

"As desk equipment, a tool of quick and ready reference, the book will be both convenient and valuable. Since it serves to identify or define rather than to discuss or analyze, it may best be used for a starting point."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 5:131 Mr '49 320w

BENNETT, HARRY. Trade-marks; legal and commercial aspects with particular attention to chemicals, chemical specialties and allied products. 479p $10 Chemical pub. co.

608 Trade marks 49-1586

"How to select a suitable selling name for a trade-mark is discussed. Legal aspects include the full text of the Lanham Act of 1947, British legal requirements and protection of trade-marks abroad. The book also contains an alphabetical list of trade marks, trade marks classified by industry and composition of trade mark products." Library J

"It is thought that the book should be a useful adjunct to the libraries of those who are interested in the subject." J. V. Meigs
+ Chem Eng 56:279 Ag '49 500w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1668 N 15 '48 60w

"Highly useful reference material."
+ Management R 38:588 O '49 90w

BENNETT, MRS JOAN (FRANKAU). George Eliot; her mind and her art. 203p $3 Macmillan (for the Cambridge univ. press)

B or 92 Eliot, George, pseud. of Mrs Mary Ann (Evans) Cross [49-1008]

This is essentially a critical study of the life and work of George Eliot. The first section of the book is biographical, describing her life up to the time of her association with Lewes; the second is concerned with an analysis of her novels. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p16 F 24 '49 550w

"In a careful analysis of each of the novels Mrs Bennett reveals the measure of her success and failure in doing this both in the creation of character and plot and in the craft of literary construction. Her criticism is equally sound and sensitive when she treats of George Eliot's own human problems and particularly of her union with Lewis." H. I'A. F.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 O 15 '48 180w

Reviewed by Joseph Kraft
Nation 168:279 Mr 5 '49 270w

Reviewed by Maurice Cranston
New Statesman & Nation 37:187 F 19 '49 1200w

Reviewed by Alexander Cowie
N Y Times p6 F 13 '49 650w

"Mrs. Bennett makes out a very persuasive case for her candidate, but because of the many writers who are constantly being touted as the architects of everything that's good about the modern novel, it doesn't seem likely that Miss Eliot will come away with more than ten or fifteen per cent of the prize when the final sharing of credit has been accomplished."
New Yorker 25:98 F 26 '49 120w

"In spite of the equine head, and a somewhat androgynous quality of style in her more didactic passages, George Eliot was extremely and even luxuriantly feminine, and only a woman can display and elucidate the strangely combined or conflicting elements of her nature. It is in this matter of illustration and elucidation that Mrs. Bennett reveals her own particular skill; and I think it will be allowed that her work, although unpretentious in bulk, is a major piece of English literary criticism." C. E. Vulliamy
+ Spec 181:436 O 1 '48 900w

"The great virtue of Mrs. Bennett as a critic lies not only in her aliveness and her individual judgment but in the fact that her imagination has taken that necessary leap to understanding. It is a far leap, but not without exhilaration, from an age of great inventions and few ideas to an age of great ideas and many conventions."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p605 O 30 '48 3500w

"Though the biographical account comprising the first third of Mrs. Bennett's book is inaccurate and dull, her criticism is excellent." G. S. Haight
+ — Yale R n s 38:744 summer '49 650w

BENNETT, JOHN COLEMAN. Christianity and communism. (Haddam house bk) 128p $1.50 Assn. press

335.4 Communism and religion 48-10565

"This book was intended to be a concise and simple statement of the author's conception of the relation between Christianity and Communism for students and other young people." (Pref) The author was the chairman of the Committee of the World Council of Churches which produced the report on capitalism and communism. No index.

"Nothing is more greatly needed as an antidote to our wide-spread jittery hysteria than just such a calm but forthright clarification of the issues before us as Professor Bennett provides."
+ Kirkus 16:505 O 1 '48 280w

"A refreshing and reasonable analysis." E. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 20 '49 300w

"A calm, penetrating discussion shedding light on a subject which usually generates but heat." K. D. M.
+ Sat R of Lit 32:28 F 19 '49 100w

"The reader instinctively feels that Dr. Bennett knows that of which he writes and is glad to be instructed by him." O. J. Aldrich
+ Springf'd Republican p9B F 6 '49 240w

Wis Lib Bul 45:26 F '49

BENNETT, JOHN WILLIAM, and TUMIN, MELVIN MARVIN. Social life; structure and function; an introductory general sociology. 725p $6; text ed $4.50 Knopf

301 Sociology 49-7041

"Like most younger sciences sociology, after establishing its independence, attempts now to reconnect with related fields of research. The present book is a typical example, combining with the sociological approach those of anthropology and psychology. The first three sections deal with general problems of sociology; the fourth and fifth analyze modern industrial society, and particularly modern American social life." (Library J) Bibliography. Indexes.

"The authors modestly disclaim any superiority for the book. It is 'an effort to provide ourselves and perhaps others with an introductory framework of sociological concepts and procedures which takes into account the changing currents and scientific orientations.' As such, it is a revealing commentary on the chaotic state of sociological theory at the introductory textbook level." Oswald Hall
Am J Soc 55:218 S '49 600w

"This book is adaptable to either a one-term or a two-term course in introductory sociology. It is well-written and should be understandable to beginning students. Commendable restraint in use of footnotes and citation combines with excellent printing to produce an unusually 'clean' text. Considered solely as a teaching instrument, this book compares very favorably with other introductory texts. It is also an up-to-the-minute text, containing a subsection on 'Atomic Power.' . . If an introductory course in sociology is designed to convey a reasonably balanced impression of human behavior and of civilized society in accordance with available evidence, the instructor will be required to modify the textual description by presenting contrary findings and by pointing out limitations of evidence on which the conclusions rest." A. H. Hobbs

+ — Ann Am Acad 262:242 Mr '49 650w

"Comparatively free from doctrinal statements, but somewhat overloaded with summations and restatements, this book should nevertheless prove a good general introduction into sociology." Rudolph Hirsch
+ — Library J 74:54 Ja 1 '49 100w

BENOUVILLE, GUILLAIN DE. See Guillain de Bénouville, P.

BENTLEY, ERIC RUSSELL, ed. From the modern repertoire [plays] series one. 406p $5; text ed $4.50 Univ. of Denver

808.82 Dramas—Collections 49-11785

An anthology of plays for a modern repertory theater. Contents: Fantasio, by Alfred de Musset; Danton's death, by George Buchner; La Parisienne, by Henry Becque; Round dance, by Arthur Schnitzler; The snob, by Carl Sternheim; Sweeney Agonistes, by T. S. Eliot; The threepenny opera, by Bertolt Brecht; The love of Don Perlimplin and Belisa in the garden, by Federico Garcia Lorca; The infernal machine, by Jean Cocteau; A full moon in March, by W. B. Yeats.

"Recommended as a play bargain for university, college, medium and large public libraries." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:1909 D 15 '49 80w

"This collection proves once again what the scholar and critic are too apt to forget, that the drama belongs in the market-place, that the true classics of the modern repertoire are those that have beaten the merely commercial product on its own ground." A. S. Downer
+ N Y Times p30 D 4 '49 320w

BENTLEY, NICOLAS. Tongue-tied canary. 252p $2.50 Duell

49-5161

Mystery story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ag 26 '49 230w

"For those who have liked the Manning Coles series, this will be a welcome, less providential and agile variation."
+ Kirkus 17:312 Je 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 37:61 Ja 15 '49 100w

"Smoothly written in a good-humored vein—a comforting tale for those who want espionage. Mr. Bentley is a welcome newcomer in the field and a distinct credit to his father, the justly famous E. C. Bentley, author of 'Trent's Last Case.' " Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 28 '49 170w

"While many aspects of the typical British spy thriller are present in this first novel by E. C. Bentley's son, there are refreshing and commendable departures. Mr. Bentley's secret agent . . . is not equipped with that convenient and magic armor that protects so many of his kind. . . He also freely confesses that an agent's life is not always fast and furious, and that there are times when there is nothing to do but sit around and wait for something to happen. By admitting these frailties with innocent candor, he lends his tale a welcome and plausible authenticity." Elizabeth Bullock
+ N Y Times p23 Ag 7 '49 200w

"Sound enough spy stuff, rather archly presented."
+ — New Yorker 25:112 S 10 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ag 21 '49 180w

"Designed chiefly for entertainment, The Tongue-Tied Canary has notes which more ambitious novelists may envy." L. A. G. Strong
+ Spec 181:612 N 5 '48 50w

"The book is above the dismally low average of present-day spy stories, but any hope of a really first-class thriller is doomed to disappointment."
Times [London] Lit Sup p637 N 13 '48 160w

BENVENUTA. See Graedener-Hattingberg, M. von

BERDIAEV, NIKOLAI ALEKSANDROVICH. Divine and the human [tr. by R. M. French]. 204p $5 Macmillan

230 Christianity

"Though there may be other works of Berdyaev still to be translated, it seems unlikely that we shall ever have a more concise statement of his thought than is provided in The Divine and the Human, in which he brings together most of his leading ideas. . . This book enables us to estimate the position of Berdyaev with regard to Christianity more accurately than had previously been possible. It becomes clearer than ever that his thought is profoundly Christian and is in fact an interpretation of Christianity; at the same time it becomes plain that from the standpoint of traditional theology it is in many respects unorthodox." Spec

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 66:1393 N 23 '49 1500w

Reviewed by Rayner Heppenstall
New Statesman & Nation 38:154 Ag 6 '49 750w

"We have the same impressions when reading this work as were produced by his other writings—immense reading, flashes of illumination, the almost complete absence of argument and a mingling of philosophy and prophecy. Any candid reviewer would have to confess that he understood only in part, and if any historian of philosophy should attempt to summarize Berdyaev's 'system' for text-book purposes we may confidently predict that the result will be more than ordinarily misleading." W. R. Matthews
Spec 183:240 Ag 19 '49 550w

BERELSON, BERNARD REUBEN, and ASHEIM, LESTER. The library's public. 174p $3 Columbia univ. press

027.473 Libraries—U.S. Library surveys
49-10661

"A report sponsored by the Public Library Inquiry which analyzes all the studies of library book use and users published since 1930. In addition this report includes the findings of a sample survey of library use made by the Social Research Center of the University of Michigan in 1947, based on approximately 1000 interviews." Booklist

Booklist 46:42 O 1 '49

"Paramount in importance, are the implications for public library policy and objectives. Candidly and with clarity Dr. Berelson points out inescapable conclusions about the library's present confusion in aims, its competition with other mass media of communication, and its pretensions at universality which are impossible of attainment. He raises pertinent questions concerning the role of the public library to which librarians must find the answers. Unfortunately, many of the questions posed have hitherto been approached with a high degree of emotion. Perhaps this objective analysis will contribute to a more rational consideration of some of our basic problems." Amy Winslow
+ Library J 74:1662 N 1 '49 460w
School & Society 70:192 S 17 '49 50w

BERENSON, BERNHARD. Sketch for a self-portrait. 185p il $3 Pantheon bks.
B or 92 49-8661

"A little memoir of himself by a man who is passionately concerned with his own personality. . . The book was written in Italy during the war, when Berenson was in hiding from the Nazis. Having no spiritual kin about him to talk to, he set down on paper a long conversation touching on everything that interests him—his career, his famous collection of Renaissance paintings and the beautiful Florentine villa that houses them, his experiences as an art expert, his shortcomings, and his cultivated hedonism. . . The book is illustrated with photograhps of the author and his house near Florence, now restored to him." New Yorker

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 184:88 Jl '49 850w

Reviewed by Robert Wilberforce
Cath World 169:397 Ag '49 500w

"The 'homunculus' that emerges is a fascinating creature, at once sensitive and shrewd, affectionate and cynical, a realist and a mystic. . . The 'Sketch' is devoid of dates, almost bare of the persons and places that fill and overflow most autobiographies. One would have liked more about that Lithuanian boyhood of the scion of the first Jewish family of his city, more about his coming to America, much more about his experiences and reflections in hiding during the war, of which we have here only the distillation. We shall hope for the details in the promised 'Diary.' " Ferris Greenslet
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 My 1 '49 1750w

"It is the study of the development of a personality, an intellectual autobiography of the greatest living critic of Italian painting and one of the most brilliant conversationalists of our time. The self-portrait reveals a witty, perceptive human being, the heir in a sense of all the cultures of the past, learned in his own field but with a universal knowledge rare in modern scholarship." John Walker
+ N Y Times p1 Ap 24 '49 1650w

"After reading the book, one has the feeling of having listened to the illuminating chatter of one of the few surviving completely civilized men."
+ New Yorker 25:112 My 7 '49 150w

"There flows through the pages of 'Sketch for a Self-Portrait' not ordinary printer's ink but the heady wine which long ago intoxicated the gods and goddesses of Mount Olympus." F. H. Taylor
+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 Je 18 '49 700w

"Mr. Berenson has written what will be gratefully remembered—a serious and, in the profoundest sense, a civilised book." Charles Morgan
+ Spec 183:52 Jl 8 '49 1200w

Reviewed by J. W. Bogan
Springf'd Republican p7C Je 12 '49 330w

Times [London] Lit Sup p644 O 7 '49 1150w

BERESFORD, MARCUS (MARC BRANDEL, pseud). Barriers between. 241p $3 Dial press 49-7951

A psychological study of the effect of a guilt complex on the life of a young American commercial artist. After a murderous attack on another man in Mexico Jordan flees for his life, tagged incessantly by the memories of his past life. Finally in attempting to help another unhappy person he finds his own salvation and returns to Mexico to take his medicine for his supposed crime.

"The book is as garrulous as a naturally facile writer can make it, filled with ineptitudes and vulgarities. It is jejune, a pump regularly primed, and the frenetic, hysterical, whining tone in which we must learn our hero for 240 pages has become, long before then, nearly unendurable. Marc Brandel will surely go on to write innumerable highly competent and quasi-sophisticated novels. Except for its crippling infirmities, that is, in fact, what he has done here." Gertrude Buckman
— + Nation 168:508 Ap 30 '49 360w

"Though occasionally the book's psychological explanations seem a little too pat, too clinically close to the textbook, Mr. Brandel has done an otherwise excellent job of communicating his basic theme—that it is obligatory for each person to know himself in order to eliminate 'the barriers between' human beings—through the medium of exciting melodrama." Blythe Morley
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Mr 20 '49 320w

"An exciting story of flight from an ambiguous crime. But it is also a minutely serious psychiatric novel. As such, it deserves a serious reading. . . There is every reason to believe that Brandel's next novel will be better than this most interesting one. The weaknesses, an incessant and mechanical use of the flashback and a tendency to textbook comment, which leaves nothing for the reader to discover, are the easiest of all to leave behind." Albert Guerard, jr.
+ — N Y Times p3 Mr 20 '49 500w

"Mr. Brandel, like a good number of his contemporaries, is concerned mainly with the seemingly ineradicable sense of guilt in modern man, which keeps psychoanalysts busy and modern men from doing anything very productive. . . More fluent than most such problem pieces."
New Yorker 25:113 Mr 26 '49 180w

San Francisco Chronicle p23 My 8 '49 550w

"If this book were to be judged solely on its technical merits, Marc Brandel would probably find himself quickly relieved of whatever reputation his first two novels have won for him. . . It is writing that, to be effective, must persistently suggest more than it states; its terseness must seem to depend upon the tight hold the author has upon himself and upon language. In Mr. Brandel's hands, unfortunately, its terseness seems to derive from a certain bankruptcy of lingual resources, and its statement is always and only statement." J. W. Aldridge
Sat R of Lit 32:48 Ap 16 '49 650w

BERESFORD-HOWE, CONSTANCE. Invisible gate. 241p $2.75 Dodd
49-11668

Portrait of a Montreal family, the head of which is a twenty-eight year old girl, who took over the homemaking when her parents died. At the end of the war Hannah's family consisted of a frail beautiful sister of twenty, a brother of fourteen, and the little daughter of another brother who was killed in the war. The plot centers around the attractive but evil officer brought into the family by the man Hannah had hoped to marry.

Booklist 46:124 D 1 '49

"A strong, simple book. It is written and conceived with youth and energy."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 20 '49 380w

"Engrossing storytelling is the book's chief charm, with high marks too for effective family atmosphere in calm and stress." Barbara Bond
+ N Y Times p49 N 30 '49 200w

"Miss Beresford-Howe's story is unfolded with full consciousness of its gravity and implications—but with less consciousness, I think, of the fine complexity of character necessarily involved. At the heart of this kind of story is complexity, the ambivalence of purposes and desires; and the writer must thread her way among them for the clues to reality. Miss Beresford-Howe's people are too stiff, monolithic, to be real." N. L. R.
— + Sat R of Lit 32:18 D 24 '49 320w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p17A Ja 8 '50 180w

BERGMANN, ERNEST DAVID. Chemistry of acetylene and related compounds. 108p $3 Interscience

547.23 Acetylene 48-7112

"Lectures presented at a seminar on acetylene chemistry at the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. Comprises thermodynamics of the acetylene system, use of potassium hydroxide as a catalysis and other addition reactions of acetylene and acetylene compounds and polymerization of acetylene." Library J

"This short monograph on acetylene chemistry is both timely and stimulating. . . It can be recommended to all organic chemists as a short and interesting discussion of a field that is progressing rapidly." T. L. Jacobs

+ Chem Eng 55:292 D '48 270w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:1031 Jl '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:1 Ja '49

"The principal value of such seminar lectures is the over-all view they provide of masses of theoretical material expertly selected and arranged."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:497 D '48 160w

BERKELEY, EDMUND CALLIS. Giant brains; or, Machines that think. 270p $4 Wiley

651.264 Calculating machines 49-50247

The purpose of this book, intended for the general reader, is to tell how these machines—the "mechanical brains" or "sequence-controlled calculators"—work, how they have been built and how they do thinking operations. There is also a chapter on social implications of such machines, and some discussion of future possibilities. Bibliography. Indexes.

"Mr. Berkeley has turned out a very readable work that laymen need not fear to tackle. . . The author states he believes it is possible for almost anybody to understand almost anything, and to help his readers grasp these new ideas he offers not only illustrations but a goodly collection of analogous statements." H. B. Nichols

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Ja 19 '50 600w

Kirkus 17:536 S 15 '49 100w

"In spite of the title, no attempt is made to impress (and bewilder) the reader by stressing the prodigious capabilities of such devices. Instead, the author patiently and clearly elucidates their basic principles. Also, he throws in some cogent thoughts about what such machines might do for man not only in mathematics but also in such activities as digging up facts from libraries, translating from one language to another, and transposing spoken sounds directly into typewritten copy. A useful feature is a comprehensive bibliography of books and periodical articles." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 74:1911 D 15 '49 180w

"'Giant Brains' presents exciting achievements and possibilities, and does not dodge the difficult task of explaining the mechanisms and ideas behind the glamour. Some passages go a bit too far into the details of circuit design for the average reader, a problem not entirely solved by the author's invitation to skip along to more digestible sections. But the book as a whole is easy to read. It should make an ideal companion volume to Norbert Wiener's much discussed 'Cybernetics.'" J. E. Pfeiffer

+ N Y Times p19 D 11 '49 360w

BERKMAN, AARON. Art and space. 175p il $6 Social sciences

751.41 Composition (art). Perspective 49-7350

"This book is given to the study of space in art. This problem, the various systems employed for its solution, as well as their relationship to science will be expounded and illustrated. The ideas presented here are not necessarily new. Medieval space, the mathematics of perspective, Cezanne's innovations and modern theories have been discussed in other works. This volume attempts to explore the pattern of growth from the earliest system to the present." (Pref) Glossary.

Booklist 45:237 Mr 15 '49

"This is a compact exposition, set forth clearly and without any fantastic insistence. It goes far in clarifying perplexing elements in modern style." Dorothy Adlow

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 Je 2 '49 330w

BERNADOTTE AF WISBORG, FOLKE, greve. Instead of arms; autobiographical notes [tr from the Swedish]. 228p $3 Bonnier

B or 92 World war, 1939-1945—War work 48-9661

"The purpose of this book is to try to give a picture of my experiences in the world which has been caused so much suffering during and after the Second World War." (Foreword) It treats mainly of Count Bernadotte's work with the Swedish Red Cross, and shows the kindly, impartial attitude which was evidenced in all his activities. The book was finished only a few weeks before his death.

Booklist 45:135 D 15 '48

Foreign Affairs 27:685 Jl '49 30w

Kirkus 16:616 N 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by F. S. Adams

N Y Times p30 N 14 '48 600w

Reviewed by John Midgley

Spec 182:334 Mr 11 '49 650w

Reviewed by J. W. Culver

Springf'd Republican p22A F 27 '49 180w

BERNANOS, GEORGES. Under the sun of Satan; tr. by Harry L. Binsse. 253p $3 Pantheon bks.

49-10776

A novel translated from the French. It portrays the struggle of a French country priest, who has a remarkable gift of helping other people, against an ever-present sense of sin in himself.

"It is only by courtesy that Under the Sun of Satan is called a novel. There is a hero, admittedly, and a villain beyond all compare. But there is too much of truth to call it fiction; it is too real to call it imaginary. It is a realism far removed from the obscenities of the Raintree County type. It is a realism that makes night clubs and bawdy-houses seem but pale shadows of evil. Indeed, 'A Study In Evil' would seem the best description of this new translation of Bernanos' Sous le soileil de Satan, in which Harry Lorin Binsse has so well converted to English the nightmare foreboding of impending but unlocalized danger, the tense certainty of implacable forces behind the curtain of sense." L. J. Trese

Commonweal 51:39 O 21 '49 1100w

"Souls le Soliel de Satan was first translated by Pamela Morris as The Star of Satan (Macmillan, 1940) [Book Review Digest 1940]. This 'more literal translation' by Harry L. Binsse is excellent. . . Author endeavours to 'express the supernatural in commonplace, popular language,' but the book is frequently recondite, and its mysticism, demonic occurrences and medieval spirit make heavy reading. Appeal limited to theologically inclined and specialists in French literature." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 74:1320 S 15 '49 130w

New Repub 121:20 O 24 '49 70w

"The priest, his colleagues, and his superiors, and all the others involved, are drawn with great strength and understanding, and M. Bernanos writes a very convincing prose—slow, intense, and patient. There is a long prologue introducing a young peasant girl, Germaine Malorthy, who is perhaps the most appealing, and certainly the most pitiful, person in the book."

+ New Yorker 25:102 S 24 '49 120w

"A new translation by Harry Lorin Binsse of the Georges Bernanos novel which some critics believe to be the French writer's finest work. It is a powerful and emotional piece of writing, an attempt to describe what is, in one sense, indescribable—the state of mind of a saint and mystic." W. H. H.

BERNANOS, GEORGES—Continued
+ Springf'd Republican p7C O 16 '49 180w

BERNARD, WILLIAM, pseud. See Williams, B.

BERNSTEIN, ALEC (ALEXANDER BARON, pseud). From the city, from the plough. 224p $2.75 Washburn
49-7627

The story of an English battalion before and after D-day, covering the weeks of training, the first battles and the final ordeal.

"Some of the characters are unmistakably related to the traditional stereotypes of the British soldier, and there is at least a hint of the Boy Scout outlook on war. The book, though, has solid qualities. It is affectingly modest, skillfully selective, and often moving without fanfare. The talk, routine, and small dramas of camp life are reported with real artistry."
+ Atlantic 183:91 My '49 160w
Booklist 45:201; 210 F 15 '49
Cath World 169:157 My '49 230w

Reviewed by Theodore Kalem
Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 3 '49 700w

"An affecting and effective picture of a military body in all its component parts, this, in British terms, is a closeknit, compelling job."
+ Kirkus 17:35 Ja 15 '49 190w
Library J 74:1556 O 15 '49 40w

"It is a sober, firm narrative, devoid of all spurious sensationalism unless it be in the person of mad Major Maddison. Characterisation and description are equally sound, and if there is little imaginative heightening we are given a remarkably true picture of the average man enduring the brave banality of modern war." H. I'A. Fausset
+ Manchester Guardian p3 My 7 '48 90w

"Particularly notable is the modesty with which the author submits to his material. But this tact is immediately rewarded by a skill which discovers in that material all the elements necessary for a beautiful and impressive book." John Farrelly
+ New Repub 120:25 Mr 7 '49 360w

Reviewed by P. H. Newby
New Statesman & Nation 35:440 My 29 '48 550w

"Mr. Baron's story grinds no axes and fails to gear itself to any impassioned political viewpoint; nor does it preach, philosophize, or indoctrinate. But within its own limitation it is vivid and complete; and it may well be that as events move into clearer focus even those limitations may seem an advantage. Perhaps it is too soon yet for any one to write 'the novel of the late war,' and until that time comes Mr. Baron's honest report will deserve a place among those most worth reading." James Hilton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 F 27 '49 900w

"It is only fair to Mr. Baron to say that he seems quite serious about the whole business, but it is hard to take seriously. The author's officers are sons of Mrs. Miniver by Mr. Chips, his other ranks descendants of Corporal Trim and My Dear Old Dutch. I hope I will not be considered anti-British if I express a dislike for that suet pudding." A. J. Liebling
— N Y Times p7 F 27 '49 950w

"It strikes me as an ordinary little book, second-rate as prose and skin-deep as character study. Its success with many British reviewers as well as with the public . . . seems, at first, curious. However, passing over the question of literary values for the moment, I found it interesting to observe the difference in tone between Mr. Baron's book and the successful American war novels of the last few years. I don't say that 'From the City, from the Plough' will fail here, but it will be bucking the fashion." John Lardner
— + New Yorker 25:96 Mr 12 '49 1600w

"There are occasional streaks of mawkishness: Charlie Venable's kindliness, for example. . . But if you'll settle for a good, cumulatively powerful account of infantry fighting without too much probing into the soldiers' reactions; if you are not ashamed at choking up a little over 'We'll Meet Again,' or 'Lili Marlene,' there is room on your war-novel shelf for this one." Vance Bourjaily
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p12 Mr 6 '49 550w

"Slight, excellent war novel. . . 'From the City, From the Plough' [is] as simple and ruthless a war novel as has appeared on American bookstands in many months. Succinct, direct, lean of encumbrances, the novel is underwritten with all the reserve and restraint so characteristic of much modern British prose. Its pace is slow, word-for-word, the development is careful and sure, the climax, when it comes, is swift and complete." A. C. Fields
+ Sat R of Lit 32:13 Mr 12 '49 650w

"A war book—the best I have read for many years. Sensitive, truthful and candid." L. A. G. Strong
+ Spec 180:656 My 28 '48 90w
Time 53:102 F 28 '49 550w

"In its quiet way, in only a few pages, this book says as much about war as have many longer, less mature, and more popular American war novels." Orville Prescott
+ Yale R n s 38:764 summer '49 330w

BERRIDGE, ELIZABETH. It won't be flowers. 246p $2.75 Simon & Schuster
49-8591

Three young women working in a large English bank in 1939 are the heroines. Each finds the work and rules confining and restricting, and each seeks a way out. One by one they are described as they work out their problems. Helen finds a career; Laura marries; and Fiona goes to America.

Booklist 45:295 My 1 '49

"Unfortunately, Miss Berridge has not fully realized her major characters, and she has tried to include too much unassimilated material. From a tidy beginning, her narrative becomes unwieldy, misleading or lacking in emphasis, and synoptic where it should be direct. But her minor characterizations are deft and memorable, and her style is brightened by sensitive perceptions and unusual, effective images."
— + Christian Science Monitor p11 My 5 '49 270w
Kirkus 17:67 F 1 '49 130w

"Perhaps the British climate, famed for its effect on sweet peas, strawberries and greensward, also has something to do with raising good women novelists. Here, at any rate, is a first novel which, in its grace and sensitivity, calls to mind qualities in the current work of two other British Elizabeths (Bowen and Taylor)—and of several of their notable predecessors." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 My 1 '49 500w

"There is a lack of impact which is due partly to the careful balance of attention given each of the girls, and partly to the unequal success she achieves with them. Coldly competent Helen is a familiar type, and Laura, in whom there seems to be some measure of autobiography, is least interesting. Fiona, emotionally the most complex of the three, remains shadowy. Miss Berridge writes well; but for once in a first novel there is too much organization and too little spontaneity." Jessamyn Chase
— + N Y Times p24 My 22 '49 320w

"Miss Berridge has made her heroines stick so closely to the script that her own influence sometimes seems more restricting than any other that affects them. She is much better at describing places than people. A ladies' rest room in a London teashop and a seaside resort town on a windy day are effective and believable, but the minor characters are either standard types or so carelessly drawn that they're very dim indeed."

— + New Yorker 25:112 My 14 '49 180w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 32:29 Je 4 '49 180w

BERRIGAN, DARRELL. Forbidden forest [phot] by John Dominis. 90p il $2.50 Day 49-10330

"Could-be-true story of two Japanese children who solve the mystery of the Forbidden Forest and gain back their father's inheritance —the land of his forefathers. . . For ages 8-10." Library J

Booklist 46:68 O 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun S 3 '49 140w

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 N 6 '49 150w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p12 O 11 '49 150w

Kirkus 17:393 Ag 1 '49 150w

"Beautiful story that provides excellent material for overcoming race prejudice and for understanding the life and customs of the Japanese. Excellent format. . . Recommended." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 74:1206 S 1 '49 90w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid
Library J 74:1537 O 15 '49 80w

"Most of the beautiful photographs, none too well printed, being taken in the real forest, are dark and shadowy, but give us the proper eerie sense of the tale. The children are fine actors, and the book as a whole makes a bit of life in Japan very real." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 S 11 '49 180w

"The story and pictures lack ideal integration and the staging deprives both of spontaneous force. Even so they reveal enough of Japanese life and manners to hold interest. Other books of similar background, perhaps more important, may be expected in the postwar period. Meantime this one fills a need and supplies a present-day view, for children 8 and up." Irene Smith
+ — N Y Times p26 O 9 '49 190w

BERRY, ERICK, pseud. See Best, A. C.

BERTHEL, MARY ELIZABETH (WHEELHOUSE). Horns of thunder; the life and times of James M. Goodhue, including selections from his writings. 276p il $3; to members $2.25 Minn. hist. soc, Cedar & Central sts, St Paul 1, Minn.

B or 92 Goodhue, James Madison 48-9671

"The centennial of the Minnesota Territory coincides with the centennial of Minnesota journalism. It was therefore especially appropriate that among the centennial series should be a book on James M. Goodhue, who founded in 1849 the forerunner of the present St. Paul Pioneer Press. . . Goodhue's talents and spirit were exactly what the new territory required. It is impossible to read this account of his editorship without believing that the influence of Goodhue on the development, the politics and the government, the manners and standards of the territory and nearby areas must have been tremendous." Am Hist R

"A comprehensive biography of this vivid personality and the part he played in the early history of the Northwest through the editorship of the Minnesota Pioneer was badly needed." Herbert Lewis
+ Am Hist R 54:703 Ap '49 340w

"Historically, the book is of local interest; but as a character study it has a wider range, for Goodhue was a fine example of a type known all over the country—the small-town editor. He was exceptional in that he was better educated than most of them, having Amherst behind him; but he had the pugnacity, the wit and the endurance that were necessary to survival in that walk of life. . . The Minnesota Historical Society in making available the record of this worthy has set an example that might well be followed by such organizations elsewhere." G. W. Johnson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 F 13 '49 550w

BEST, MRS ALLENA (CHAMPLIN). Forty-seven keys [by] Erick Berry [pseud]. 200p $2.50 Macmillan 49-7990

"Honey, a high school junior, plans to be a writer and learns much about writing, publishing and people as a part time secretary to an author, who comes to her home town to live and write a different kind of book than her usual romantic tale. The 'writing notes' at the end of each chapter add to the value of this teen-age story, packed with the events of high school life. Grades 7-9." Wis Lib Bul

"This book is noteworthy because it portrays the major and minor characters in an American town and because it gives sound advice to would-be writers." H. F. Griswold
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 9 '49 260w

"Good plotting, lots of action, good characterization, dialogue in the contemporary vein without being cheap, this has elements that will appeal to any High School reader, and particular values for the aspiring young writer."
+ Kirkus 17:31 Ja 15 '49 160w

"Recommended." E. A. Groves
+ Library J 74:382 Mr 1 '49 80w

"A girl's career book with such a clever twist that it can be warmly recommended." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Jl 24 '49 260w

"The real and imaginary plots run their simultaneous course, in a story slight as to characterization, but substantial in its theme. The author of this lively, modern tale for teen-age girls speaks with sincerity of the principles, rewards, and heavy demands imposed by a writer's career." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p20 Mr 27 '49 180w

"As an entertaining supplement to Erick Berry's and Herbert Best's 'Writing for Children' this is a success. As a career story which entertains even as it instructs, it is better than most. It could quite conceivably spur an aspiring writer to acquire knowledge and discipline before attempting to write a book." R. H. V.
+ Sat R of Lit 32:39 Jl 9 '49 260w
Wis Lib Bul 45:68 Ap '49

BEST science fiction stories, 1949; ed. by E. F. Bleiler and T. E. Dikty; introd. by Melvin Korshak. 314p $2.95 Fell

Short stories—Collections (49-10461)

Contents: Mars is heaven! by Ray Bradbury; Ex machina, by Lewis Padgett; The strange case of John Kingman, by Murray Leinster; Doughnut jockey, by Erik Fennel; Thang, by Martin Gardner; Period piece, by J. J. Coupling; Knock, by Frederic Brown; Genius, by Poul Anderson; And the moon be still as bright, by Ray Bradbury; No connection, by Isaac Asimov; In hiding, by W. H. Shiras; Happy ending, by Henry Kuttner.

Booklist 46:47 O 1 '49

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
Chicago Sun p56 O 7 '49 70w

"A well worked out selection."
+ Kirkus 17:487 S 1 '49 130w

"The dozen stories contained in the collection are not all top bracket. . . But the majority are. And, as lagniappe, the publishers offer illuminating casebooks on the background and trends in science fiction in a preface by the editors." A. H. Weiler
+ — N Y Times p16 S 18 '49 400w

"Here is high adventure in far places and in unthinkable times, and here is writing and background and characterization equal to and, in many cases, superior to the writing and

BEST science fiction stories—Continued
background and characterization of literary forms considered to be more 'respectable' than the contents of the 'Astounding Science Fiction' magazine and the other familiars of the Nation's news-stands." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 18 '49 300w

"Perhaps in time the 'best' science fiction stories will be really outstanding, but they are not now." R. F. H.
Springf'd Republican p5D S 11 '49 140w
Wis Lib Bul p10 D '49

BESTERMAN, MRS CATHERINE. Extraordinary education of Johnny Longfoot in his search for the magic hat; with il. by Warren Chappell. 158p $2.50 Bobbs 49-11443

The second adventure of the Shoe King's son, in which his teacher, Barnac the Cat, guides Johnny Longfoot on the search for the Magic Hat. For first story see Book Review Digest 1947.

Booklist 46:103 N 15 '49

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid
+ Library J 74:1542 O 15 '49 70w

"While this story is for the exceptional child, it will be ideal for the story hour if told as a serial, the plot being excellently developed." J. M. Smith
+ Library J 74:1916 D 15 '49 80w

"If you liked the first story of Johnny Longfoot, the Shoe King's Son, you will surely want to read his new story. Both are very original, and vaguely based on the author's memories of European folklore as she knew it when a girl in Poland." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 13 '49 280w

"Readers of 8 to 10 will agree with Grenulis that Johnny is 'a most extraordinary boy with great daring and ability.' And his story, a sequel to 'The Quaint and Curious Quest of Johnny Longfoot,' is a delightful, unusual sort of fantasy, with much good sense, too." Marjorie Burger
+ N Y Times p22 N 13 '49 150w

"The sequel to 'The Quaint and Curious Quest of Johnny Longfoot, the Shoe King's Son' is a delight. There is the same excitement and an equally eccentric assemblage of animal characters, which have been perfectly drawn by Mr. Chappell. Children from seven to eleven will be held and amused by the adventures."
+ New Yorker 25:171 D 3 '49 100w

"The illustrations, with a frontispiece in color, are even more distinguished than those in 'The Quaint and Curious Quest of Johnny Longfoot.'" M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:24 N 12 '49 40w

BETHERS, RAY. Magic of oil; with diagrams by the author. 47p il $2 Aladdin 665.5 Petroleum—Juvenile literature 49-8663

"Word and picture story of oil, how it began, how and where oil is found, and how the modern miracle of refining transforms oil into hundreds of wonderful and useful things." (Author's note) For ages 8-12.

Booklist 45:339 Je 1 '49

Reviewed by E. T. Dobbins
Library J 74:826 My 15 '49 70w

"Splendid photographs, intelligent diagrams, brief text on only nineteen pages, do accomplish [the author's] aim, and give an attractive introduction to a tremendous subject in this remarkably short space. Interesting to any one over twelve." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 My 8 '49 80w

Reviewed by A. N. Fedder
N Y Times p22 Jl 17 '49 130w
Wis Lib Bul 45:108 Je '49

BETHERS, RAY. Perhaps I'll be a sailor; pictures by [the author]. 50p $1.75 Aladdin
387.5 Seamen. Merchant marine 49-10805

Information about ships and seamanship, presented in pictures, diagrams, and brief text. For grades six to eight.

Booklist 46:103 N 15 '49

"The value of this book for younger children lies largely in the pictures and plans, written by a Lieutenant Commander in the U. S. Navy. . . A chapter on how to put a ship in a bottle will be popular." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:544 N '49 80w
Kirkus 17:431 Ag 15 '49 90w

"There is more information on ships in these 51 pages than in many books of greater volume. Brief and concise text with excellent drawings. . . Recommended for eight-year-olds and up." E T. Dobbins
+ Library J 74:1827 D 1 '49 90w

BETTGER, FRANK. How I raised myself from failure to success in selling. 276p $3.95 Prentice-Hall
658.85 Salesmanship 49-11467

"A failure as a life insurance salesman at 29, Mr. Bettger in the next few years became one of the country's outstanding producers. In his book he tells of his personal experiences and the principles of selling as he applied them." (Springf'd Republican) Index.

"Simply written, dramatic. Will appeal to salesmen generally." J. E. Cross
Library J 74:1823 D 1 '49 80w
Springf'd Republican p7D D 11 '49 170w

BETTINA, pseud. See Ehrlich, B.

BETZ, BETTY. Career book; the teen-age guide to a successful future; il. by [the author]. 191p $2.50 Grosset 371.425 Occupations. Vocational guidance
49-11570

A career book for teen-agers. The first section is a series of chapters giving advice on how to choose, get and keep a part-time or full-time job. The second section is composed of brief interviews with successful men and women in many types of work, in which each one gives counsel to young people.

Booklist 46:101 N 15 '49

"Lots of sound advice, sincere and practical, entertainingly presented."
+ Kirkus 17:557 O 1 '49 130w

"This is a popular career book for teen-agers, written partly in their own idiom, and entertainingly illustrated by the author in comic-strip style. . . As a first career book, this simple survey provides teen-agers with basic information and know-how." H. K. L.
+ N Y Times p29 N 13 '49 140w
Springf'd Republican p8C N 20 '49 180w

BEVERIDGE, WILLIAM HENRY BEVERIDGE, 1st baron. Voluntary action; a report on methods of social advance. 420p $4.50 Macmillan
334.7 Social work. Charities—Great Britain
49-7074

"Lord Beveridge, who is best known for his opinions about what the Socialist State should do for the citizen, now tells us, in this report on British non-government social-service practices, what the Socialist citizen should do for himself. His recommendations, which are addressed to a British public, include a plea for the revival of the ancient British custom of putting a little money by, an endorsement of privately operated mutual-aid societies, and a suggestion that the quiescent British philanthropist shake off those Labour Government blues and get on with his work." (New Yorker) Index.

"This book will not be read so widely as the author's earlier one on state action; it should, in the judgment of the reviewer, be read much more widely. . . The challenge of this book is its philosophy; its marshalled facts are its provocative defense; its style of expression constitutes its simple charm." J. H. S. Bossard

+ Am Soc R 14:443 Je '49 450w

"Lord Beveridge writes purely in British terms, but since the problem of institutional adaptation with which he deals is common to this country, his findings should prove of interest to American readers also." Keith Hutchison

+ N Y Times p16 Ja 30 '49 850w

New Yorker 24:70 Ja 29 '49 120w

"Lord Beveridge gives an excellent account of what he terms the 'philanthropic motive in action' during the nineteenth century. The activities of the pioneers and of the organizations associated with them are briefly but clearly described. Much of the author's material, particularly his chapters on the friendly societies and charitable trusts, is based on the original researches of himself and his assistants. Many other sections will be new to those who have not specialized in this field of study."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p694 D 11 '48 850w

BEYEN, JOHAN WILLEM. Money in a maelstrom. 221p $3.25 Macmillan

• 332.4 Money 49-10382

"This book, written by a Dutchman who is a director of both the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, deals with the financial developments of the past thirty years, up to and including the Bretton Woods Fund Agreement." (Canadian Forum) Index.

"Mr. Beyen is at his best when he writes about the numerous international conferences which tried so hard and often failed so miserably to bring order out of financial chaos. . . He is much less good, however, when he tries to examine the causes of the 'maelstrom.' He seems rather ill at ease, and his analysis is almost always superficial." Henry Kreisel

+ — Canadian Forum 29:191 N '49 350w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 74:1823 D 1 '49 70w

"If anyone in the world can understand the dollar shortage, Mr. Beyen ought to be able to do so. He has been manager of two important banks in the Netherlands, a representative of his country on the Standstill Committee for German debts ever since 1931, a member of the Netherlands delegation to the World Monetary and Economic Conference of 1933, president of the Bank for International Settlements from 1937 to 1940, and financial adviser to the Netherlands government in London during the war. Now he is an executive director of the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. . . Out of his experience he has learned many things that others need to know, and he states them with both assurance and moderation." George Soule

+ Nation 169:430 O 29 '49 400w

BEYER, ROBERT THOMAS, comp. Foundations of nuclear physics. 272p il $2.95 Dover

539.1 Nuclear physics 49-8636

"Contains facsimiles of thirteen fundamental studies that have appeared in scientific publications since 1911. The authors are Anderson, Chadwick, Cockcroft, Mme. Curie, Fermi, Frisch, Gamow, Hahn, Lawrence. Rutherford, and Yukawa. An extensive bibliography is appended." Library J

Reviewed by Julian Sohon

Library J 74:1033 Jl '49 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:42 My '49

BEZZERIDES, ALBERT ISAAC. Thieves' market. 233p $3 Scribner

49-8004

"It is the life of the independent trucker which is portrayed [in this book]: the man who owns his own truck, buys a load of the crop he hopes is at a premium on the market, hauls it to Washington Street near the docks in San Francisco, and sells it for whatever price he can get from the produce dealers. The process looks simple, on the surface—until you meet up with someone like Mike Figlia, a wholesaler well versed in the techniques of fleecing an unwary trucker. . . [The] story is mainly concerned with the unsentimental education of Nick Garcos, a young man who decided to enter the independent trucking business." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by Feike Feikema

Chicago Sun p8X Mr 13 '49 250w

Kirkus 16:580 N 1 '48 140w

Reviewed by A. L. Goodman

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ap 24 '49 270w

"A. I. Bezzerides has probably never read Robert E. Sherwood's warning that the journalistic technique in American letters might limit their longevity to that of a world almanac. For Mr. Bezzerides is evidently willing to accept a short life for his present work in return for potential sales by exploiting in torrid journalese the themes of violence and sex. In keeping with this concept he has developed a taut, fast-paced novel by devoting himself to what his characters do, occasionally to what they say, and seldom to what they think. . . But Mr. Bezzerides has a fine ear for dialogue and a wealth of apparently authentic and dramatic detail which he handles with lapel-grabbing intensity. Even his least violent episodes evoke graphic figures of speech." Murray Schumach

N Y Times p26 Mr 6 '49 290w

"For all it's humorless and harrowing action, 'Thieves' Market' rings true. Its toughness is not glamorized in the Cain manner; the author is earnest. He sympathizes and deplores. He sees neither virtue nor the appeal of color in the world he writes about. His book is more appalling than entertaining, but you can believe every word of it." V. B.

San Francisco Chronicle p26 Mr 20 '49 350w

"With 'Thieves' Market' Mr. Bezzerides firmly takes his place among 'the boys in the back room' of the American novel, and there isn't much doubt that he has produced a superior work in the hard-boiled genre. James M. Cain and Horace McCoy are, at times, pushed aside by his hard-bitten pen. . . Mr. Bezzerides knows how to give you the sights and sounds and smells of this life. His dialogue is pungent and crackling, and he manages to race his story along like a truck going downgrade. Sometimes the venomous atmosphere grows too heavy and rich, but most of the time the book keeps its verisimilitude." Hollis Alpert

Sat R of Lit 32:27 Mr 19 '49 650w

BIALK, ELISA (MRS L. MARTIN KRAUTTER). Taffy's foal; il. by William Moyers. 180p $2.25 Houghton

Horses—Legends and stories 49-7506

Nancy was ten when she left her grandmother's home in Kentucky to live with her father and stepmother in Chicago. At first she felt strange in her new environment, but when her beloved horse, Taffy, was sent to Chicago and all the girls fell in love with Taffy, Nancy felt better. And when Taffy's foal, Starbright, was born even the measles did not seem too bad. For grades three to five.

Booklist 45:229 Mr 1 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun Ap 9 '49 190w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p2 My 31 '49 210w

BIALK, ELISA—Continued

"Elisa Bialk shows wisdom in her treatment of this situation, as well as a knowledge of horses in the main current of the story." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:211 My '49 120w

Kirkus 17:29 Ja 15 '49 170w

"Recommended for ages 9-12." M. F. Cox

+ Library J 74:499 Mr 15 '49 80w

"Horse-lovers of about Nancy's age, ten years, will find this a rewarding little story. . . Too bad that the pictures do not make the beloved Taffy as beautiful as she sounds in the text, nor cope with horsemanship in a way that Nancy and her author could approve." L. S. Bechtel

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 F 20 '49 140w

"Here is another good horse story by the author of 'The Horse Called Pete.' It is not so poignant as that first book, nor so succinctly written, but 7-to-11-year-old girls will share Nancy's experiences with pleasure and ready understanding." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p20 Mr 27 '49 190w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:38 Je 11 '49 130w

Wis Lib Bul 45:49 Mr '49

BIANCO, PAMELA (MRS ROBERT SCHLICK). Joy and the Christmas angel. 40p il $1.75 Oxford

Christmas stories 49-10071

Story of a small brother and sister who did not want to part with their Christmas tree. When it became inevitable they gave a party for the wax angel from the top of their tree. The next morning they found the angel had left them the gifts they most desired. For ages five to eight.

Booklist 46:36 S 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun p25 D 17 '49 50w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p26 D 4 '49 100w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p12 D 13 '49 190w

"Told so sweetly and sincerely, this story of the lovely party and the after-Christmas gifts of the angel will be accepted just as sincerely by five-or-six-year-olds. The sensitive, delicate art of Pamela Bianco beautifies the pages." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:402 S '49 80w

"This is the kind of dream-pretend that only child-like children who are not too old at seven or eight to love their toys unashamedly will like. It does not belong to the glaring world of television, to children who insist upon knowing that it 'really happened' before they are content to give themselves to stories. The fine little drawings by the author are a bit precious, some may think, and stylized, but they have great charm."

+ Kirkus 17:392 Ag 1 '49 170w

Reviewed by E. W. Turpin

Library J 74:1333 S 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker

Library J 74:1533 O 15 '49 50w

"Story and pictures are gentle and delicate, but strong in that sort of imagination about children and their toys in which this author-artist excels." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 D 11 '49 110w

"Miss Bianco handles this favorite theme with a graceful touch and caps it with a satisfying surprise." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p42 D 4 '49 90w

"An exquisite little book illustrated with delicate, rather intricate drawings in black and white with touches of the Christmas red and green."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:37 D 10 '49 80w

BIANCOLLI, LOUIS LEOPOLD, ed. See Victor book of operas

BIBLE. WHOLE. SELECTIONS. Christmas story; arr. by Elizabeth Yates; il. with wood engr. by Nora S. Unwin. 54p $2 Aladdin

232.9 Jesus Christ—Birth 49-11191

The Christmas story is here told in relevant verses chosen from the Bible, beginning with the Prophets, and ending with the Book of John and Revelation.

"Beautiful wood engravings by Nora S. Unwin make this a distinguished gift." M. B. King

+ Chicago Sun p25 D 17 '49 60w

"The Christmas story is here presented in all its pristine purity and power, and with unusual completeness." O. D. Hormel

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 N 17 '49 270w

"This finely printed and distinguished book will make a notable Christmas gift for young people of any age." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:535 N '49 60w

Kirkus 17:469 S 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid

+ Library J 74:1542 O 15 '49 40w

Reviewed by Esther Gorey

Library J 74:1615 O 15 '49 70w

"A beautiful book in format, in illustrations of wood engravings by Nora S. Unwin, and in the purity and dignity of its language. Recommended." Elizabeth Johnson

+ Library J 74:1763 N 15 '49 60w

"It is an excellent arrangement and Nora Unwin's wood engravings, although a little somber in tone, are a fitting accompaniment in their grave reverence." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p42 D 4 '49 90w

Sat R of Lit 32:36 D 10 '49 90w

Wis Lib Bul p14 D '49

BIBLE. WHOLE. SELECTIONS. The Lord is my shepherd; stories from the Bible pictured in Bible lands; arranged and illustrated by Nancy Barnhart. 263p $4.50 Scribner

220.52 Bible. Whole—Selections. Bible stories 49-10775

Seventeen stories from the Old Testament and a short version of the New Testament. Bibliography.

Booklist 46:103 N 15 '49

Reviewed by F. D. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p28 D 4 '49 50w

Reviewed by O. D. Hormel

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 N 17 '49 490w

"This is absorbing reading. In this form, the tales flow easily, and with the drawings will stir the imagination of young people and point the way to the Bible itself. It is an admirable family book." A. T. Eaton

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 D 13 '49 390w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore

+ Horn Bk 25:520 N '49 310w

"This is a beautiful and valuable book which may well serve to introduce children and young people to the Bible." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:535 N '49 90w

"A truly distinguished book in format and content."

+ Kirkus 17:508 S 15 '49 150w

"A very beautiful and distinguished book." J. F. Carter

+ Library J 74:1610 O 15 '49 80w

"It is not for younger children, nor for those who want only pretty pictures, but for many over nine or ten who will be startled into a fresh interest by its pages." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 18 '49 220w

"The sweep of the stories is repeated in vigorous black-and-white drawings, lighted by occasional flashes of red, showing Bible characters in settings sketched by the author on a recent visit to the Holy Land. It is a handsome as well as an inspiring book." Elizabeth Hodges

+ N Y Times p26 N 27 '49 130w

"One of the finest books of Bible stories to come out in many a year. The stories are told by Nancy Barnhart in simple and reverent modern prose that follows the King James version closely, and, unlike most such collections, it is illustrated not by pastels or forbidding wood engravings but by magnificent black-and-white scratchboard drawings often spilling into the margins, that were done by Miss Barnhart in the Holy Land."

+ New Yorker 25:164 D 3 '49 110w

"The book should be an excellent children's introduction to the Bible. It is one that they will read and re-read."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 N 13 '49 110w

"The beauty and dignity in text and illustration of this new Bible for children will satisfy the most exacting book lover." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:45 O 22 '49 270w

BIBLE. OLD TESTAMENT. SELECTIONS. In our image; character studies from the Old Testament; selections from the King James version by Houston Harte; 32 color paintings by Guy Rowe; foreword by Kent Cooper. 197p $10 Oxford

221.52 Bible. Old Testament—Pictorial illustration. Bible. Old Testament—Biography 49-10561

"Mr. Harte and his coadjutors have . . . chosen twenty-six of the most exciting of the Old Testament stories, centering about such epic figures as Adam and Eve, Noah, Abraham, Moses, Joshua, Saul, David, Solomon, Elijah, Esther, Isaiah, Amos, and others. Then they have printed the texts of the selected narratives, holding to the King James translation, in the modern style of paragraphs in place of the traditional chapter and verse system. . . As the crown of the whole they have furnished the stories with illustrations—full-page paintings in brilliant color by Guy Rowe [former cover artist for Time]." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Reviewed by Pierre Van Paassen

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 D 25 '49 240w

"The portraits are all fresh and exciting Anyone looking at the pictures of these persons would want to read the stories about them. And there they are, waiting for him. But no dogma, beyond what is on the face of the record." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 66:1424 N 30 '49 900w

"Though the sincerity of both compiler and artist is evident, the result is wholly disappointing. The Bible is not an anthology of unrelated stories. The present volume entirely lacks the sense of unfolding revelation which binds together in a web of consistency stories taken from vastly different levels of spiritual insight."

— Christian Science Monitor p11 O 13 '49 210w

"The selection of certain stories, the omission of others, is going to create some discussion, but the book may serve a useful purpose as a treasury of art and religious literature. A gift book market."

Kirkus 17:495 S 1 '49 180w

"The typography is of exceeding clarity and beauty. . . What was an inspired project, or dream, in the beginning, has been made in this volume a consummate achievement. The pictures are the real triumph. Not all are convincing. Gideon is magnificently successful as a picture, but I doubt if any one would ever guess it was Gideon." J. H. Holmes

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 O 23 '49 600w

N Y Times p7 O 2 '49 400w

"The distinguished and handsome execution of an idea that is at once noble and brilliant." C. W. Weinberger

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 O 9 '49 1050w

"I know of nothing sadder than the intellectual wounds of many of the more thoughtful of the younger generation who are estranged from the Bible. Their sadness arises from that bitterest and most desolate feeling of the human heart: 'They have taken away my Lord, and I do not know where they have laid him.' It is the merit of Guy Rowe to have brought the greatest teachers of mankind back before us in graphic, realistic form. His paintings ought to tempt many to learn what it was these prophets and sages said and did." Pierre Van Paassen

+ Sat R of Lit 32:33 N 5 '49 800w

Time 54:56 O 10 '49 440w

BICK, CHRISTOPHER. Bells of heaven; the story of Joan of Arc; il. by Lauren Ford. 246p $3 Dodd

B or 92 Jeanne d'Arc, Saint—Juvenile literature 49-7831

A new life of Joan of Arc for teen aged readers. The author, an English master at King's College, Sussex, gives the background of Joan in more detail than most lives of the saint. Bibliography

---

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson

Cath World 170:213 D '49 60w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:217 My '49 120w

"The historical episodes are excitingly portrayed. The martyrdom is beautifully and dramatically told. Lauren Ford conveys the spirit of Joan and her times with simple, strong pen strokes. Will appeal to ages 12 and up." F. W. Butler

+ Library J 74:557 Ap 1 '49 80w

"A new life of The Maid is an event, especially one that is as generally appealing as this. It comes at an excellent time to supplement and to counteract the Bergman-Hollywood effort. . . Its special value lies in the fact that almost half of his thirty chapters describe, imaginatively as to Joan, factually as to social conditions, Joan's life before she set off to see the Dauphin. Christopher Bick's building up of reasons why France needed her, and careful relation of her home and religious life to her 'voices,' is excellent." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Mr 13 '49 320w

"Mr. Bick writes this biography for teenagers in a spirit of reverence and admiration. Yet, somehow, the fussiness of his detail and the banality of modern phraseology obscure the magnificent simplicity and strength of Jeanne. Perhaps this is a story best told in the restrained language of the fourteenth-century chronicle. Unfortunately, Lauren Ford's black and white drawings do little to help; they show Jeanne as an expressionless child instead of the sturdy, courageous girl leader and martyr." M. C. Scoggin

N Y Times p20 Mr 27 '49 230w

"Because of the author's endeavor to give as complete a setting as possible to his story, it is slow in getting started, and occasionally lost in descriptions of places and intricate political events. The book is at its best when Joan is allowed to speak for herself." B. W. Shaffer

Sat R of Lit 32:37 My 21 '49 320w

Reviewed by G. E. Lyon

Springf'd Republican p8C O 30 '49 130w

Wis Lib Bul 45:69 Ap '49

BIDDLE, FRANCIS BEVERLEY. World's best hope; a discussion of the role of the United States in the modern world. 175p $3.50 Univ. of Chicago press

327.73 U.S.—Foreign policy. World politics 49-7569

"Along what lines is our democracy evolving and to what use shall government be put in achieving the greatest possible freedom and happiness for human beings? These are the questions to which Francis Biddle, our wartime Attorney General, addresses himself in his thoughtful book. . . Mr. Biddle is by his own definition a liberal, but this is not a political tract nor a parade of dogmatic opinions. It is an attempt to present the facts of our democratic society as Mr. Biddle sees them." (N Y Times) No index.

BIDDLE, F. B.—Continued

"This is a difficult book to criticize without appearing to be unfair to the author. Brevity is an author's right, but a consistent, solid underpinning of fact, logic, and structured thinking are a reader's right. A spotty performance on this score mars an otherwise challenging contribution. The analytical foundation of Mr. Biddle's plea might also have been explicitly broadened beyond the usual, narrow political and legal lines." R. C. Snyder
+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:1051 O '49 700w

"This book is a refreshing and stimulating analysis of contemporary American government in theory and in practice. Giving full weight to origins and developments, the wholesome criticism of defects is frankly presented, but more than balanced by demonstrated virtues." P. H. Taylor
+ Ann Am Acad 264:128 Jl '49 370w

Booklist 45:235 Mr 15 '49

Canadian Forum 29:91 Jl '49 850w

"Biddle's book is not primarily the book of a scholar; even less can it be regarded a bold reform program. It is written by a man with much common sense, who is eager to realize moderate political and social changes in conformity with a progressive line of thought. Biddle is strongly anti-communistic, but he is anxious to overcome communism by an improvement of the life of the masses. There is no awareness of the spiritual crisis of our time. That is a limitation of these pages which contain much enlightening factual information." Waldemar Gurian
+ — Commonweal 49:568 Mr 18 '49 350w

Current Hist 16:345 Je '49 60w

Foreign Affairs 27:683 Jl '49 50w

"A qualified observer and commentator, Biddle provides a lucid, well written polemic for aid in European recovery."
+ Kirkus 17:75 F 1 '49 160w

"Timely and authoritative book. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:374 Mr 1 '49 130w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr
Nation 168:477 Ap 23 '49 1100w

"Mr. Biddle's approach could be called provocative, or stimulating, rather than dogmatic. But it is not the less valuable for that." H. W. Baehr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Mr 6 '49 750w

"Although written before the Presidential election, and therefore in some of its comments definitely dated, it nevertheless plots the trends in our political and social thinking. . . His discussion is marked by genuine tolerance and an appreciation of history." R. B. Fosdick
+ N Y Times p6 Mr 6 '49 800w

San Francisco Chronicle p28 Mr 13 '49 160w

Reviewed by Crane Brinton
Sat R of Lit 32:14 Mr 26 '49 650w

"It is the liberal, forward-looking and empirical character of the whole discussion which is the book's most distinguishing characteristic. This may not be the work of a master statesman; but it is a statesmanly appraisal of the forces, external and internal, with which America has energetically to deal in order to exemplify the democracy which it professes." Ordway Tead
+ Survey 85:281 My '49 450w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:225 Je '49 280w

BIERMANN, BERTHOLD, ed. Goethe's world, as seen in letters and memoirs. 422p il $5 New directions

B or 92 Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von 49-8358

A collection of excerpts from letters, journals, etc. written by Goethe and his contemporaries covering the whole period of his life, from birth to death. Some of the materials are here made available in English for the first time. The excerpts are introduced with brief explanatory and connective notes by the editor.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 184:87 Jl '49 450w

Booklist 45:334 Je 1 '49

Chicago Sun p7X Je 5 '49 90w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 7 '49 1000w

"The reading of this source material will be a greater help in bringing the man Goethe to life than many second-hand biographies by zealous professors." Max Fischer
+ Commonweal 50:73 Ap 29 '49 400w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Jl 31 '49 270w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ag 28 '49 110w

Reviewed by Alfred Werner
N Y Times p7 Je 5 '49 300w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan
New Yorker 25:102 S 17 '49 20w

"This distinguished volume of selected correspondence and memoir materials, many of which have heretofore not been available in English, is a worthy tribute to Goethe's memory. The book is richly illustrated and deserves wide circulation." D. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 My 1 '49 470w

"It is the merit of Biermann's book, that he presents to us a world in which 'genius' is the only proper word for the unequaled richness of the human life that is revealed. It is not so much the mental giant and often prophetic philosopher who emerges from these pages, but the overwhelming personality who carried the art of human self-development to a point never since surpassed in Western civilization." Claude Hill
+ Sat R of Lit 32:25 Ap 16 '49 800w

Time 53:100 Je 6 '49 600w

BIGELOW, ARTHUR LYNDS. Carillon; an account of the class of 1892 bells at Princeton, with notes on bells and carillons in general. 75p il $2 Princeton univ. press

789.5 Chimes and chiming 49-7268

This book is in three parts. The first gives the history and a description of the carillon at Princeton university where the author is "bellmaster." Part two deals with the origin and development of bells and carillons in general. Part three is a list of carillons in the United States and Canada.

Booklist 45:206 F 15 '49

"If you have any taste for out-of-the-way information, this volume on the history and development of bells and carillons will charm you. Its author is one of the world's leading bellmasters, and writes about his field with an easy authority which never goes beyond the depth of the ordinary reader." V. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p29 Mr 13 '49 100w

BILLINGS, AUGUSTA, and BILLINGS, HENRY. Gilbert, the gay poodle. 32p il $1.50 Viking

49-10517

In pictures and easy-to-read text, the authors tell the story of Gilbert, youngest child and only son of Mr and Mrs Poodle. Gilbert was a rather "gay dog", something nearly like a "black sheep," but when he won prizes in a radio quiz program he proved his value.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun O 29 '49 40w

"This extremely funny picture-story book is sure proof that when artist and author have a poodle of their own to supervise a book about poodles, they simply can't go wrong." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 N 13 '49 150w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p4 S 13 '49 120w

Commonweal 51:190 N 18 '49 20w

"Children will love both the story and pictures of his rollicking adventures. He is indeed an extraordinary dog for he even wins the jackpot in a radio contest. The book jacket tells us that the real poodle who lives with Mr. and Mrs. Billings has personally supervised the making of this distinguished book." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 25:402 S '49 80w

"Good parody on too familiar programs, which adults will enjoy with the children. The pictures, in two colors, are amusing, and tell enough for the youngest members of the family to follow."

+ Kirkus 17:424 Ag 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker

+ Library J 74:1533 O 15 '49 100w

BILLINGTON, RAY ALLEN, and HEDGES, JAMES BLAINE. Westward expansion; a history of the American frontier. 873p maps $8.50; college ed $6.25 Macmillan

973 West—History. U.S.—Territorial expansion. Frontier and pioneer life—U.S. 49-3099

"A broad history of America's frontier, from the earliest days of the Spanish explorers to the end of the nineteenth century, as well as a study of the effect of the frontier on American character and present-day American life. The author, a professor of history at Northwestern University, is a disciple of the late Frederick Jackson Turner, of Harvard, who first formulated the 'frontier hypothesis.'. . Professor Billington concludes with two thoughtful chapters on the effect the closing of the frontier has had on our national personality and how the necessity for living within fixed borders is changing our philosophy of government and our foreign policies." (New Yorker) Bibliographical note. Index.

Booklist 45:390 Jl 15 '49

"Precisely why the jacket of the trade edition of this volume proclaims it to be the 'first history of the frontier to be based on Professor Turner's epoch-making theory of the significance of the frontier in shaping American genius' is difficult to say. . . Paxson's book, History of the American Frontier, published in 1924, was based on Turner's theories. It can hardly be said that Riegel and Clark, in their books on the history of the west, were uninfluenced by the same doctrine. It is far more accurate to say that this is one more book, and an excellent one, too, that tends to keep alive the Turner theories. . . The extensive bibliography and the detailed index attest to the scholarliness of this valuable addition to American history." Paul Kiniery

+ Commonweal 50:564 S 16 '49 390w

Current Hist 17:36 Jl '49 80w

Manchester Guardian p4 D 20 '49 240w

"This hefty tome adds to our knowledge of how Americans everywhere came to be what we are today. Though often it is rather pompously pedantic, and its style is a bit stuffy in contrast to Turner's pleasing presentation, 'Westward Expansion' is a worthwhile revision and expansion of the Turner hypothesis and should remain for some time to come the authoritative last word on our frontier experience." McAlister Coleman

+ — Nation 169:161 Ag 13 '49 650w

"Professor Billington's material is magnificent, but [his] treatment is pedestrian; it manages to invest an epic with the dullness of a textbook. Even so, Westward Expansion deserves to be read by a wider public than the college students for whom it was probably intended and should prove rewarding to anyone whose curiosity about American social evolution exceeds his knowledge of it." Lloyd Morris

+ — New Repub 121:23 Jl 11 '49 1100w

"This may be commended as by far the best text on the subject available, and the best reference work, but not as a volume for continuous reading. It has, however, its definite points of view. They add piquancy to the volume—and they lead us to question some of its generalizations." Allan Nevins

+ N Y Times p17 Ag 21 '49 800w

"A particularly interesting book, thoroughly illustrated by maps."

+ New Yorker 25:90 Je 4 '49 200w

"'Westward Expansion' is a distinguished performance. It reveals clearly the qualities of the Americans who brought greatness to our country, and the political and economic conditions that must prevail before the seeds of greatness, no matter how often planted, will grow. It is a book which, by treating the history of the American frontier in detail, supports a theory and explains much that is best in America to-day." C. W. Weinberger

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 Jl 10 '49 1100w

"The book has many excellent features. Billington writes well, at times almost as well as Turner, whose style has greatly influenced him. It is abundantly illustrated with maps which, although uncolored, tell the tale they are meant to tell. Its first and last chapters on 'The Frontier Hypothesis' and 'The Frontier Heritage' summarize admirably their respective subjects and could easily stand alone. Most amazing of all, it includes a seventy-five-page, double-column, fine-print bibliographical section, which comments upon nearly every book or article of note on frontier history from beginning to end." J. D. Hicks

+ Sat R of Lit 32:27 Jl 30 '49 950w

Reviewed by W. A. Russ

Social Studies 41:44 Ja '50 260w

BINGAY, MALCOLM WALLACE. Of me I sing. 300p il $3.50 Bobbs

B or 92 Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-7750

Autobiography of an American newspaperman. "He joined The Detroit News in 1902 at the age of 17 as an office boy and in four years was sports editor. In 1910 he was city editor. Four years later he was made managing editor and as such he reigned until 1928. . . After he left The News, of which he writes so profusely, he joined the rival Detroit Free Press, where he soon became editorial director, a position he now holds." (N Y Times)

Booklist 45:260 Ap 1 '49

"Frankly a backward-looking book, and in that character it is excellent. . . It is the book of a happy warrior, a man who has spent half a century collecting scars and contusions more abundantly than cash, but having a rousing good time anyhow. To young men it is at once a warning and an invitation; in newspaper work, it says, you are very likely to end battered and bankrupt, but you will not be bored. In that, at least, it is profoundly true." Gerald Johnson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 F 20 '49 800w

Reviewed by Jack Weeks

N Y Times p16 Mr 13 '49 320w

"As egotistical as it sounds. . . A poorly organized, hastily written job." G. P.

— San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 24 '49 100w

"'Of Me I Sing' is a lively and authentic addendum to the saga of American journalism." J. T. Winterich

+ Sat R of Lit 32:19 Ap 9 '49 200w

BINGER, CARL ALFRED LANNING. More about psychiatry. 201p $4 Univ. of Chicago press

616.8 Psychology, Pathological 49-50128

"Dr. Binger undertakes to acquaint the reader with psychosomatic medicine, classical psychoanalysis, various psychological concomitants, contributing causes and effects of disease, and several kindred topics. In addition there are included chapters on 'What Is Mental Health?' 'On Choosing a Mate,' 'Medical Information,' and a discussion of the prevention of war." (N Y Times) Bibliography. Index.

BINGER, C. A. L.—Continued

Booklist 46:137 D 15 '49

"This is a book written with wide learning, humor and clarity." Patrick Mullahy

+ N Y Times p34 D 4 '49 460w

BINKLEY, ROBERT CEDRIC. Selected papers; ed. with a biographical sketch and a bibl. by Max H. Fisch; with a foreword by Luther H. Evans. 426p $5 Harvard univ. press

940.5 Europe—History 48-3687

Selection of papers from the writings of an American historian who died in 1940 at the age of forty-two. Partial contents: The 'guilt' clause in the Versailles treaty; Ten years of peace conference history; New light on the Paris peace conference; New tools for men of letters; History for a democracy; The reproduction of materials for research; The cultural program of the W.P.A.; Europe faces the Customs union; The twentieth century looks at human nature; Mill's liberty today; Peace in our time. Bibliography. Index.

"A remarkable volume of the selected papers of a scholar who was outstanding in the generation of young American historians who fought in World War I, and who later with a touch of genius grasped the political and social problems of its aftermath. In an excellent foreword, Luther H. Evans pays tribute to Binkley's achievements as a historian who was possessed of rare cultural creative traits and also praises his enduring contribution to the work of the Historical Records Survey. . . This volume of his selected papers will be of especial value to historians, librarians and other scholars who will find 'the whole range of his work and thought laid before them.' " R. H. Lutz

+ Am Hist R 54:652 Ap '49 550w

"Friends and students have long awaited the appearance of this volume, and despite the delay there is a timelessness about Binkley's work that makes it of interest today. Historians and librarians alike will find this a rewarding volume to add to their collections." E. M. Richards

+ Library Q 19:212 Jl '49 900w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:452 D '48 320w

BINKLEY, WILFRED ELLSWORTH, and MOOS, MALCOLM CHARLES. Grammar of American politics; the national government. 760p $6 Knopf

342.73 U.S.—Politics and government—Handbooks, manuals, etc. 49-10895

"A compendium of facts and figures on manifold aspects of our federal system. It begins with a brief historical survey describing the making and growth of the Constitution and the development of federal-state and interstate relations. Succeeding sections deal with the rights and privileges of citizenship; the institutions of popular control, including pressure groups as well as political parties and describing the procedures of nomination and election; the Presidency; the federal administration; the Congress; the federal judiciary; and the major federal functions—foreign policy, defense, national finance, regulation of business, agriculture, and conservation." (Nation) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 46:91 N 15 '49

"A valuable reference for the layman and a complement to the scholar's shelf. It accomplishes more than the definition of governmental functions, breathing life and meaning into the structural skeleton. . . Highly recommended." J. H. Berthel

+ Library J 74:1457 O 1 '49 180w

"This work is evidently designed more for reference than for sustained reading. Within its limits it does an excellent job of stating in brief compass the essential facts about the workings of our national political system. . . The emphasis on description in 'A Grammar of American Politics' will doubtless limit the popular appeal of the book, but it may make it all the more useful for those who wish a convenient handbook on the structure of American political life." Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.

+ Nation 169:380 O 15 '49 450w

"Altogether [the authors] have done a creditable job of demonstrating that democracy is, as William James is said to have remarked, a system in which the Government does something and waits to see who hollers." R. G. Whalen

+ N Y Times p14 O 2 '49 270w

BIRD, DOROTHY MAYWOOD. The black opal. 202p $2.50 Macmillan

49-11322

A mystery story for older girls. The setting is a small co-ed college in southern Michigan.

"Maybe the solution will seem a trifle glib and maybe everything falls in place too smoothly, but no one will care for it is a nice, light entertaining tale with the virtue, highly to be prized, of not following an exact formula."

+ Kirkus 17:396 Ag 1 '49 150w

"A mystery story for older girls which has good writing and good characterization. The suspense is well handled, and a lot of local history, campus activities in a small Midwestern college, and romance are woven in." Esther Gorey

+ Library J 74:1550 O 15 '49 110w

"Although Miss Bird has written this story for the 10 to 14 group, there is no reason why any high school girl, even a senior, shouldn't find it absorbing."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 13 '49 80w

"An unusually good college story." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:29 N 12 '49 40w

BISCHOFF, ILSE. Proud heritage. 279p $3 Coward-McCann

Stuart, Gilbert—Fiction 49-11691

A novel based on the life of Gilbert Stuart, son of a royalist snuff maker in Rhode Island before the Revolution, who became one of the world's famous painters.

Booklist 46:172 Ja 15 '50

"Implicit throughout 'Proud Heritage' is Miss Bischoff's respect and admiration for Gilbert Stuart, whose life and distinguished career as a portrait painter she has painstakingly striven to illumine in novel form. But she brings to this challenging task little more than admiration for her subject and a conscientious honesty in presenting the materials available. She has missed almost altogether her chance to make a creative study of the great artist, probe the strange dichotomy between the man and his work, point up and interpret the dramatic contrasts in his long career." F. H. Bullock

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 20 '49 550w

"Persistently expository, Miss Bischoff's 'novel' reads more like an overgrown feature article than a work of creative fiction." Richard Match

N Y Times p36 O 23 '49 130w

"Ilse Bischoff is an artist in her own right and as such she not only understands Stuart's work but also his unfulfilled intentions, interpretive eye and artistic credo. Unfortunately . . . 'Proud Heritage' lacks the sturdy structure of pure biography yet does not compensate by presenting a living, three-dimensional picture of a remarkable man and a distinguished artist." M. L. M.

— + San Francisco Chronicle p31 D 4 '49 250w

"Miss Bischoff has captured the underlying motivations of the complex and romantic personality of Gilbert Stuart and presented her interpretation of the man in a style that is unaffected and fluent." R. F. Henchey

+ Springf'd Republican p9D D 4 '49 300w

BISCHOFF, ILSE. The wonderful poodle [il. by the author]. 80p $2.25 Crowell

49-6318

"Once upon a time in Hungary, there lived a lonely little prince in a big castle. He had two things only for joy and comfort: his tricycle and his poodle, Coco. When Coco ran away, Rudolph pedaled out of the palace grounds to find him. Their adventures together led to a gypsy camp and to Coco's performing marvelously at a café to the tunes of the gypsy fiddle. It all ends happily, with the negligent parents reforming, promising fun and affection to their small son and his remarkable dog." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun N 19 '49 40w

"The story, altho not especially original, will appeal to youngsters for its loving boy-dog relationship. And the author's illustrations, highly stylized, are truly distinguished." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 N 13 '49 160w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:525 N '49 70w

"A somewhat contrived and arch little tale, illustrated with beautifully drawn black and whites, spot drawings and some double spreads which emphasize the nostalgic quality of the story. The small boy never quite comes alive, and to an adult reader, the text mirrors a 20th century that has moved away from its early years too fast for comfort. . . Not a very real story—even on fantasy level; Coco the dog too seems a fairy tale product. A little precious—perhaps too continental for American children."
— + Kirkus 17:323 Jl 1 '49 160w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid
Library J 74:1537 O 15 '49 40w

"The story is well written, good to read aloud to younger boys and girls and to give to readers of eight to ten. The pictures are distinguished indeed, funny and charming, with the best-drawn poodle yet to appear this year of poodles in books." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 N 13 '49 170w

"A story full of tenderness and humor. Miss Bischoff's illustrations present the staid splendor of the castle and the robustiousness of peasant life with equal grace." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p26 N 27 '49 140w

"This is a good dog story, but it is, above all, a distinguished picture book." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:22 N 12 '49 120w

BISSON, THOMAS ARTHUR. Prospects for democracy in Japan. (Inst. of Pacific relations. International secretariat publication) 143p $2.75 Macmillan

952.033 Japan—Politics and government
49-7418

"Companion volume to Mr. Edwin M. Martin's Allied Occupation of Japan, recently published by the American I.P.R., and a supplement to Mr. Harold Wakefield's New Paths for Japan. . . The aim of the present volume is to present a concise critical analysis of certain crucial aspects of occupation policies and achievements in Japan during the first two and a half years since Japan's surrender. It should be read if possible in conjunction with Mr. Martin's authoritative general factual record of the occupation as viewed by an experienced State Department observer. Mr. Bisson's appraisal is based on careful analysis of available records and on an extended period of service in SCAP, together with a long background of study of Japanese government and society. It draws special attention to a number of critical unsolved problems in the reform of Japan." (Foreword) Index.

Reviewed by H. S. Quigley
Am Pol Sci R 43:598 Je '49 600w

"If one grants the major assumptions about the reforming of a nation and of a culture, this is an excellent little book, which gives a consistent and logical account of major efforts attempted and incisive conclusions about probable effectiveness and obvious limitations. If one rejects these assumptions as anthropological and sociological absurdities, the book still gives a clear and concise picture of what has been attempted and provides a valuable basis for individual judgment as to what may be expected in this 'the greatest single administrative enterprise ever undertaken by the United States.'" G. B. Vold
+ Ann Am Acad 263:223 My '49 600w

Booklist 45:239 Mr 15 '49

Foreign Affairs 27:693 Jl '49 40w

"Not definitive, but recommended." H. P. Linton
+ Library J 74:196 F 1 '49 140w

"A valuable contribution to thinking on the Far East." Nathaniel Peffer
+ Nation 168:337 Mr 19 '49 800w

Reviewed by Stuart Lillico
N Y Times p4 F 13 '49 700w

Reviewed by George Caiger
Pacific Affairs 22:300 S '49 800w

"'Prospects for Democracy in Japan' gives an excellent, and apparently unbiased, description of the difficulties that MacArthur has encountered and brings out a number of important points that have not received much general publicity." H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p9C Mr 20 '49 420w

Reviewed by Harold Vinacke
Survey 85:286 My '49 550w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:225 Je '49 320w

BLACK, MRS IRMA (SIMONTON). Maggie, a mischievous magpie; pictures by Barbara Latham. [60p] $1.50 Holiday

49-11747

A true story of a mischievous magpie that could talk. Maggie was given a puppy for a playmate but abused him until he fought back. Only then did Maggie learn how to behave.

Booklist 46:176 Ja 15 '50

Horn Bk 25:402 S '49 80w

"The alert little talking bird will amuse young readers, and the chapter lengths provide breaks at right distances for interest and attention spans."
+ Kirkus 17:426 Ag 15 '49 70w

"An attractively designed book." A. G. Zebker
+ Library J 74:1532 O 15 '49 30w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:33 N 12 '49 20w

BLACK, JOHN DONALD, and KIEFER, MAXINE ENLOW. Future food and agriculture policy; a program for the next ten years [joint undertaking of the authors and the Nat. planning assn, with the help of three committees]. 348p $3.50 McGraw

613.2 Nutrition. Agriculture—U.S. U.S.—Economic policy. Food supply—U.S. 48-10583

"This is a book on the food and agricultural problems that face the United States and the world in the next ten years. Its orientation is primarily that of the United States, but it includes other countries because they have the same problems and much of the time are part of the same problem. The measures discussed and proposed in this book thus have international significance far beyond the boundaries of the United States." (p.1) Index.

Reviewed by M. R. Benedict
Ann Am Acad 263:246 My '49 330w

Booklist 45:172 Ja 15 '49

Foreign Affairs 27:681 Jl '49 20w

"The book contains valuable analyses of the requirements for international trade and the best food policies for other countries to follow, and is full of information and advice of other sorts. Incidentally, it has a few words of encouragement for those who fear that most of our soil is rapidly being washed away into the sea or blown to the clouds. The problem exists, but it has sometimes been exaggerated." George Soule
+ Nation 167:671 D 11 '48 1400w

"It is a very stimulating book which should be read by all those who have to cope with these difficult but important problems." Richard Bradfield
+ Pol Sci Q 64:295 Je '49 750w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:58 Mr '49 450w

BLACK, MARY E. Key to weaving. 312p il $6 Bruce pub.

745.52 Weaving 49-5537

" 'A textbook of hand-weaving techniques and pattern drafts for the beginning weaver.'—Subtitle. New material and new patterns have been inserted, and there is a chapter on floor coverings, with illustrations and weaving directions." (Booklist) For earlier edition see Book Review Digest 1945.

Booklist 46:65 O 15 '49

"A much fuller and better-illustrated book than the typical text for beginners. . . Although the new edition is only twelve pages longer than the original, useful information has been added on a number of points, such as warping, threading, two-harness weaving, and the weaving of narrow webs on wide looms.'

+ N Y New Tech Bks 34:78 S '49

BLACKBURN, JOHN FRANCIS, ed. Components handbook [prepared under the supervision of] Office of scientific research and development, Nat. defense research committee. (Mass. inst. of technology. Radiation laboratory. Radiation laboratory ser) 626p il $8 McGraw

621.316 Electric apparatus and appliances. Electronic apparatus and appliances 49-1318

"This volume is essentially a compilation of descriptive and tabulated technical data regarding the construction, operation, uses, specifications and standards of various electrical devices used in radar and related electronic equipment or as adjuncts to such equipment." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:1515 O 15 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:44 My '49

"Although this volume covers much old material concerning wires, resistors, inductors, condensers, relays, transformers and the like, emphasis is placed on components developed by or through the Radiation Laboratory. The book is, therefore, a relatively new and unique compilation. The data are presented in a large number of excellent photographs, drawings, tables and graphs. Since the text is more extensive than that of the usual handbook, the book could be more accurately described as a reference work."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:278 Je '49 200w

BLACKETT, PATRICK MAYNARD STUART. Fear, war, and the bomb; military and political consequences of atomic energy [Eng title: Military and political consequences of atomic energy]. (Whittlesey house publication) 244p $3.50 McGraw

623.45 Atomic energy. Atomic bomb 49-8023

"An appeal for a more forthright approach to the subject of the atomic bomb. Professor Blackett, an English physicist who has a Nobel Prize and is an expert on the ways and means of warfare, first seeks to dispel the current nightmare fear of a prospective 'push-button' war, along with the notion of the omnipotence of the bomb; he analyzes the effects of the destruction of cities by air bombardment in the last war and concludes that strategic bombing, whether high-explosive, incendiary, or atomic, does not force a decision. . . He takes sharp issue with the Baruch Plan for control of atomic energy, claiming, with Messrs. Gromyko, Molotov, and Vishinsky, that it is a transparent scheme for maintaining control in American hands, and he goes on to say that the United States, a country that has little need of new sources of power, is selfishly impeding the exploration of peacetime uses of atomic energy, thereby keeping countries that are poor in power resources—Russia, for instance—from using atomic energy to raise their standard of living." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:205 F 15 '49

Reviewed by Elizabeth Cohen

Canadian Forum 29:18 Ap '49 490w

"Almost everyone has had something to say on what to do about the atom-bomb. Now—at last—comes an Englishman, a Nobel prize-winner in physics, to say something sensible. His analysis is comfortably free from the political amateurism and hysteria that has characterized most of the writing about the Big-Bad-Bomb up to this moment. . . If this book is read as widely as it should be—and particularly by those charged with making our foreign policy—it will be the most important book of 1949." Emmett Dedmon

+ Chicago Sun p8X F 13 '49 700w

"It is the feeling of this reviewer that Professor Blackett should have discussed more fully than he has the problem of radiation, so eloquently defined by David Bradley in his recent book, 'No Place to Hide.' Professor Blackett does not, however, underestimate the power of the bomb per se. . . In the political realm, Professor Blackett is certain to provoke greater criticism. But this also is wholesome. . . Whether he is right or wrong, Professor Blackett shows how deep misunderstanding between Americans and the Soviets must have arisen just before VJ-Day. This is perhaps the most tragic of the many misunderstandings surrounding the whole question of atomic energy that now perplexes the world." Roland Sawyer

Christian Science Monitor p12 F 14 '49 1100w

Reviewed by Robert Norton

Churchman 163:16 Jl '49 300w

Foreign Affairs 27:680 Jl '49 30w

"This [is] a book for the student of world-science affairs, rather than the average layman."

Kirkus 17:22 Ja 1 '49 140w

"A Fabian Socialist of many years' standing, Dr. Blackett is consistently more critical of American than of Soviet motives. Thus he says the Baruch plan is now primarily an instrument of cold war, used to place Russia in an unfavorable light before world opinion. However, that does not detract from the force of his arguments or from the shrewdness of his suggestion for a way out of the present impasse. . .[His] proposal certainly merits discussion." Leonard Engel

Nation 167:726 D 25 '48 500w

"Provocative and penetrating study of the atom bomb. . . Blackett's views are widely at variance with other published opinion. I myself feel he has underestimated somewhat the effect of the concentration of attack made possible by atom bombs and has overestimated their cost. A more precise evaluation of his judgment will not be possible until the United States Atomic Energy Commission publishes a long-awaited detailed report, due in June, on the effects of atom bombs. In any case Blackett's views are buttressed by a wealth of data, mainly from official sources, and seem to be borne out by current American military policy, which continues to insist on a mass army as the keystone of the armed forces." Leonard Engel

+ Nation 168:307 Mr 12 '49 1350w

Reviewed by J. P. Warburg

New Statesman & Nation 36:330 O 16 '48 1200w

"Professor Blackett has written for us an intellectually exciting book, a closely reasoned and clear book, and a book which gives a model of hard-boiled and almost quantitative political argument. It needs to be read by every American who wants to have an informed opinion on the political issues raised by the atomic bomb. Professor Blackett is frankly more sympathetic to the Russian than to the Anglo-American position." Philip Morrison

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 F 13 '49 1050w

"Since the more trustworthy information on which Blackett relies comes from military experts, there is reason to believe that he has performed a useful service by toning down the wilder assertions of physicists who predict doomsday if the utilization of atomic energy is not controlled. But he goes too far. The physicists are thinking not so much of atomic bombs that are dropped on the cities of a country in the course of several years, but of more or less simultaneous, overwhelming attacks in a night, a week, a fortnight—a period too short for rapid recovery. . . In spite of its drawbacks this is an important book because the controversy it stirred up in England may be duplicated here and because it presents the Russian point of view which Americans would do well to understand. Professor Blackett proves one thing he did not set out to demonstrate: that because a man is a success in physics it does not follow that he is qualified to elucidate political issues that perplex able and honest statesmen." Waldemar Kaempffert

N Y Times p1 F 13 '49 2150w

"'Fear, War and the Bomb' reflects its author's ideological bias—a bias which sometimes twists his logic into strange shapes. Blackett is an admirer of Soviet Russia and no lover of the United States. The American edition of his book, severe though its strictures are, has been considerably softened. Yet Blackett has something to say and he says it well." H. W. Baldwin
+ — N Y Times p11 Jl 3 '49 950w

"The great weakness in the author's argument, and the one that compromises his stand as a disinterested party—at least from the point of view generally held in the Western world—is his defense of the Russian insistence that any control over atomic research and production within the U.S.S.R. be exercised by the Russians alone. An intelligent and provocative book, nonetheless."
+ — New Yorker 25:94 F 26 '49 280w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 22 '49 900w

Reviewed by R. W. Frase
Sat R of Lit 32:16 F 9 '49 800w

"As might be expected in any writing from Professor Blackett's pen, the argument is put forward with great force and clarity of expression. . . The author is almost certainly right in deprecating the extremer claims made for military effectiveness of atomic bombs. A few bombs will not end a war against a major Power unless that Power is already badly shaken, nor will they enable a small Power to conquer a great one, but it seems to the present writer that the author much overestimates the number of bombs needed for military significance." G. P. Thomson
+ — Spec 181:532 O 22 '48 1450w

"To the extent that Prof. Blackett is able to allay prevalent fears about 'push-button' wars, completed almost as soon as they are begun, he has achieved some of the purpose of his work. On the other hand, he indulges in 'armchair strategy' and in generalizations about the politics of international atomic energy control, especially in his determined defense of Soviet policy in that and related matters, in a way that frequently seems painfully unrealistic. . . Prof. Blackett fails to discuss at any length the implications to future wars of the radioactivity of the bombs." Donald Derby
Springf'd Republican p9C Mr 20 '49 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p116 F 19 '49 2900w

BLACKHAM, OLIVE. Puppets into actors; il. by F. E. Norris. 111p $3.50 Macmillan 791.5 Marionettes 49-9934

"The story behind the puppet play is presented here with all of its detail, from the creation of the puppets to the selection of a play and its effective staging. Starting with a classification of puppets according to shape, substance, and means of manipulation, the book progresses through specific chapters on Planning a Puppet, Different Parts of the Puppet, Animal Puppets, Costume, Control, Strings, Some Puppet Problems, Moving the Puppet, Rehearsing, A word on Shows, Staging, Scenery, Lighting, Choice of Play, concluding with recipes for paper pulp, instructions for the layer method of papier-mâché, painting suggestions, and details of a permanent stage structure. Numerous drawings [and] photographs." (School Arts) Bibliography.

"Of considerable value to the expert but too specialized for the average reader. For larger theatre and marionette collections only." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:1099 Ag '49 70w

"Useful and interesting for teacher and hobbyist alike." + School Arts 49:adv Ja '50 120w

BLACKMUR, RICHARD P., and others. Lectures in criticism. See Johns Hopkins university

BLACKSTONE, BERNARD. English Blake. 455p il $6.50 Cambridge
B or 92 Blake, William [49-5613]

"Dr. Blackstone's threefold study, of the world, the man, and his writings, has one purpose: to understand Blake as an influence still alive, whose thought and way of life seem only more profitable now than when Blake died, little known. Many readers are deterred by the obscurity of Blake's work. Dr. Blackstone's reconstitution of the philosophical setting and the social background to which Blake was responding does much to help our understanding. So also does his way of regarding Blake's life and character, equally with his writings, as part of his gift to the world." (Publisher's note) Index.

"Every present or prospective reader of Blake will have reason to be grateful to Mr. Blackstone for a work which is equally useful as an introduction for the beginner and as a guide for advanced study by the adept." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 66:844 Jl 13 '49 1550w

"Such a complex personality needs a rather critical biographer. Bernard Blackstone is however completely under the spell of Blake. . . As a believer in spiritual forces in the face of the enlightenment philosophy, Blake was driven with logical necessity to fight against the intellectual forces dominating the English thought of his time, especially against Bacon, Newton and Locke, the philosophical trinity of evil that provoked some of his best polemic passages. The analysis of Blake's attack against this world-picture and against the rationalist tradition is one of the most interesting features of Blackstone's book. We are on less substantial ground in the author's evaluation of Blake's positive achievements." Max Fischer
+ — Commonweal 50:276 Je 24 '49 600w

"Dr. Blackstone's aim is to reveal Blake's meaning rather than to question it, so that at times he seems to be accepting rather uncritically the extremes of Blake's imaginative anarchism. But in leaving the reader to qualify, if he must, he has kept open, as Blake would have wished, that 'road of excess' which leads by the creative demand it makes on us 'to the palace of wisdom.'" H. I'A. Fausset
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 19 '49 420w

"Blackstone has certainty, sympathy and the power to condense complicated materials and to clarify what appear superficially as opaque mysteries. In his book, Blake emerges as a comprehensible and comprehending giant, a noble figure in the history of thought." D. A. Stauffer
+ New Repub 121:25 Ag 1 '49 1150w

Reviewed by Kathleen Raine
New Statesman & Nation 37:508 My 14 '49 1100w

Reviewed by J. J. Sweeney
N Y Times p6 Ag 7 '49 900w

Reviewed by Robert Halsband
Sat R of Lit 32:34 Je 25 '49 220w

"Despite his belief that Blake was above all vulgar error, Dr. Blackstone can be a shrewd critic. Other commentators have agreed that the poet's marriage was ideal, but Dr. Blackstone suggests that he was for years aggrieved by a possessive devotion which conflicted with his mystical belief in unfettered love. Certainly his mysticism is stimulating and imaginatively tempting, for this strange poet and artist, borrowing from Marcion and other distant

BLACKSTONE, BERNARD—Continued
Gnostics, brings us a little nearer to a religion which is all joy and, therefore, without cant; it holds, too, within itself the dream and promise of a new social order." Austin Clarke

+ Spec 182:520 Ap 15 '49 850w

BLACKSTONE, BERNARD. Virginia Woolf; a commentary. 256p $3.75 Harcourt

823 Woolf, Virginia (Stephen) 49-9253

"Dr. Blackstone is Lecturer in English at Swansea University College. His book on Mrs. Woolf . . . opens up a number of interesting possibilities . . . —the various relationships between the writer and his material, the choice (it is a very real one) between Art and Life, in the sense that one must be given preference. Finally, Dr. Blackstone's commentary on Mrs. Woolf's novels sets the reader thinking about life itself, sending him back to the author to see it afresh from new angles, to get a new insight into an individual kind of pattern; and that, surely, is one of the ultimate aims of criticism." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Index.

Booklist 45:389 Jl 15 '49

"Mr. Blackstone has not done justice, one feels, to his own insights. Nevertheless, the insights are there, and this makes it the best book yet written about one of the most finished writers of our century." J. G.

+ — Canadian Forum 29:143 S '49 240w

"A fascinating book, of high intrinsic interest; such a book, indeed, as sends one eagerly back to the works it brilliantly illuminates." Denham Sutcliffe

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 11 '49 900w

"A study of literary interest, of critical enlightenment."

+ Kirkus 17:286 Je 1 '49 110w

"The novel-by-novel reports will be a boon to English literature graduate students, and the book as a whole, being pleasantly readable and gemutlich, should please some few lay readers. In other words, appeal limited to university, large public and small high-brow libraries." E. L. Lewis

+ Library J 74:954 Je 15 '49 70w

"Few novelists have ever had their total work examined with more intelligent and devoted attention than Mr. Blackstone has given to the writings of Virginia Woolf. The closeness of his analysis, which follows out every thread in the weaving of successive thematic patterns, resembles the technique of critics who take delight in unraveling the intricacies of modernist poetry." George Frisbie

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 S 4 '49 800w

"I would claim three main merits for Dr. Blackstone's book. He disposes of the charge that Virginia Woolf's art was the product of an aerial remoteness from the human norm; he reverses the judgment (current at least in England) that she was ideally critic rather than novelist, and he places her as, essentially, a creature of her environment and her time." Elizabeth Bowen

+ N Y Times p1 Je 26 '49 1650w

"Highly recommended."

+ New Yorker 25:59 Jl 2 '49 140w

"Such is Mr. Blackstone's accomplishment in his criticism and analysis that even Mrs. Woolf's most devoted and discerning readers will find in his book a new understanding of her ideas and artistic intention. And they will appreciate no less the simplicity and expressiveness of Mr. Blackstone's own writing." Carolyn Stull

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 S 25 '49 650w

"A study that is penetrating, well organized, lucid, and persuasive. He writes frankly as one who is committed to profound admiration of his subject; but it is a wholly rational admiration. . . I find myself in comfortable agreement with Mr. Blackstone at almost every stage of his investigation, exposition, and critical argument." B. R. Redman

+ Sat R of Lit 32:18 Jl 23 '49 1150w

"This book is all that one should require of critical writing. It is learned, sympathetic and lucid; it is both creative and interpretive; it is also happy and enthusiastic." Stevie Smith

+ Spec 182:404 Mr 25 '49 600w

"It is a book written from the 'outside,' in so far as he has made no use of any biographical knowledge about Mrs. Woolf, to illumine her work. His method is purely dialectical, and this is both a strength and a weakness. It shows the virtues and limitations of textual criticism, but when the quality of the interpretation is of such a high order as Dr. Blackstone's, the defects are hardly to be regretted. This is, for both the student and the connoisseur of Virginia Woolf's art, an admirable book."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p266 Ap 23 '49 1500w

BLACKWOOD, ANDREW WATTERSON. Pastoral leadership. 272p $3 Abingdon-Cokesbury

250 Pastoral work. Church work 49-11498

"Before he became chairman of the practical department in Princeton Theological Seminary, Dr. Blackwood had had wide experience in the pastoral ministry. . . The present work covers virtually the whole field of the minister's duties in relation to church organization and administration, including his dealings with members, staffs, boards, committees, the young, the men, the women, the community, finances, and the wider outreach of the church." (Christian Century) Suggested readings at end of some of the chapters. Indexes.

Christian Century 66:1543 D 28 '49 140w

"One is tempted to conjecture that Pastoral Leadership suffers from a lack of that time and attention which are required to convert pages of lecture notes into a thoroughly well-written and useful book. The book is inclusive and comprehensive. . . The recent seminary graduate will have had most of the material in the classroom; the pastor who has had experience in anything but the most limited pastorate will not find in the book a great deal that is fresh, stimulating or suggestive. There are copious references to a wealth of good suggested readings." R. S. Clements

+ — Crozer Q 27:92 Ja '50 200w

BLAKE, NICHOLAS, pseud. See Day-Lewis, C.

BLANCHARD, ROBERTA RAY. How to paint trays. 95p il $3 Charles T. Branford co, 6 Beacon st, Boston 8

747.94 Stencil work. Decoration and ornament 49-10199

Practical guide for the beginner in the handicraft of decorating trays, boxes, chests, chairs, and other household accessories in the early American manner, which includes also instruction on application of original designs and authentic antique designs and diagrams for stencils and brush-stroke painting. Photographs of antiques in New England, New York and Philadelphia collections.

Kirkus 17:388 Jl 15 '49 120w

"Most alluring book which should bring many to the dabbling-in-paint stage and some few to a fine perfection. Great need for material in this field. Recommended." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 74:1323 S 15 '49 70w

+ School Arts 49:adv O '49 250w

"A book to delight the woman hobbyist, whether working for her own amusement or commercially. . . So complete are the instructions and perfect the designs that even the amateur may turn a 'tired tin tray,' a box, an heirloom chest, or an old Hitchcock chair into a thing of beauty that will be a joy forever." Ethel Dexter

+ Springf'd Republican p5D S 11 '49 120w

BLANCHE, ERNEST EVRED. You can't win; facts and fallacies about gambling. 155p $2 Public affairs press

174.6 Gambling 49-3429

The author, interested in the relationship of mathematics to games of chance and gambling, here examines the possibilities of the bettor winning. Contents: The gambling trend; Wagers and wagering; Dice games; Playing cards; Poker and three-card monte; Betting on the horses; The numbers racket; Lotteries and pools; Pin-ball and slot machines; Roulette; Carnival games; Bingo; The chain-letter racket; The pyramid club scheme; Children's gambling games; Confidence games. References. Index.

"Mr. Blanche is a professional mathematician and statistician who has made the study of both straight and crooked gambling his avocation for many years. In this fascinating book he tells very explicitly how to gamble in a hundred different ways—and why you are a fool if you do. He deals not with the morals but with the mathematics of gambling." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 66:710 Je 8 '49 320w

"The book is not only packed with facts but it is entertainingly written." P. S. D.

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 16 '50 600w

"Dr. Blanche writes in a breezy but clear style which will convey his points to anyone who puts his mind to the matter. Once understood, whether or not they will deter anyone from gambling is, however, another matter." R. T.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 28 '49 180w

BLANSHARD, PAUL. American freedom and Catholic power. 350p $3.50 Beacon press

282.73 Roman Catholic church in the U.S. 49-8696

Papers in which the author attempts to examine the extension of "Catholic authority into the fields of medicine, education and foreign policy." Partial contents: Education and the Catholic mind; Public schools and public money; The church and medicine; Sex, birth control and eugenics; Marriage, divorce and annulment; Censorship and boycott; Science, scholarship and superstition; The Catholic plan for America. Bibliography. Index.

"Mr Blanshard has about done it, I think. That is, he has given what is to date the most complete statement of the New Nativism. In the cold, cultured manner of its utterance it is unlike the ranting, redfaced midnineteenth-century Nativism. Its inspiration is not Protestant bigotry, but the secularist positivism that deplores bigotry, at the same time that it achieves a closure of mind and an edge of antagonism that would be the envy of a Bible-belt circuit rider. At all events, despite the intellectualization, it is pretty much the same old article." J. C. Murray

— Cath World 169:233 Je '49 850w

"Mr Blanshard strikes valiant blows in defense of that heritage of liberty which belongs both to American Catholics and to American Protestants." W. E. Garrison

Christian Century 66:709 Je 8 '49 1350w

"The book is fully footnoted, though footnotes alone do not make a book reliable. At some points, the reader may question whether certain statements are susceptible of proof, and Roman Catholic writers certainly will challenge many of the assertions, but the author invariably cites substantial evidence for his views. This reviewer happens to know that the publishers . . . have gone to great length to assure factual verification of the material." Tully Nettleton

Christian Science Monitor p18 Ap 28 '49 700w

"Those who read any of Mr. Blanshard's attacks on the Church last year in The Nation will know what to expect. He has re-written those parts of the book which were published in the magazine, but his fundamental errors repeat themselves. Mr. Blanshard, a former American civil servant, is both immensely informed about the Church and immensely ignorant of it. Never have I come across an author who knew so many details about his subject, and yet so consistently missed the point. His work contains both errors of fact and errors of interpretation." M. G. Ballantyne

— Commonweal 50:250 Je 17 '49 1900w

"This is a tremendously important book. It is not intended for bigots or for the enemies of the Catholic people. It has no slightest interest in curtailing the rights of the Catholic Church as a religious institution. It is, however, a hard-hitting, honest, and devastating attack on the antidemocratic social policies of this essentially foreign and mediaeval hierarchy and a challenge to every thinking man and woman—Catholic and non-Catholic alike—to fight against every intolerant or separatist or un-American feature of their policies." M. S. Enslin

+ Crozer Q 26:247 Jl '49 1800w

"Much of the data he has accumulated will astound the reader who considers himself unprejudiced and well-informed; much of it is based on Catholic sources from which he quotes liberally. To some readers, non-Catholics, who feel that the attack on Communism spearheaded by the Catholic church is vital to all, anything they could construe as an attack on Catholic power and policies—such as this book—will be labelled intolerant, un-American and divisive. To other readers, who approach the subject objectively, as the reasoned study of a vital factor in American life, the book is important. No doubt it will be proscribed by the Catholic authorities. It may be soft pedalled by the press. Knowledge of its content and viewpoint is essential to all who purchase the book for sale or circulation. Watch for this book. It is not to be ignored."

Kirkus 17:138 Mr 15 '49 390w

"Recommended, but local decision after careful reading against considerations of local temper required." R. E. Kingery

+ — Library J 74:736 My 1 '49 130w

"Mr. Blanshard has attempted, with a high degree of success, an extraordinarily difficult task—that is, to write without bigotry an objective statement of the relation of the powerful Roman Catholic church to freedom. It is not a simple question in the case of an organization which considers itself the custodian of truth and the vehicle of salvation. . . No review of reasonable length can deal adequately with the case which Mr. Blanshard carefully builds up. It will arouse much opposition. It cannot be answered by emotional diatribes." Norman Thomas

+ Nation 168:560 My 14 '49 1200w

Reviewed by Russell Rhodes

New Repub 121:20 O 10 '49 650w

Reviewed by Norman MacKenzie

New Statesman & Nation 38:236 S 3 '49 2150w

"Unfortunately, this reviewer can find little in these pages that is not on a very prejudiced plane. It is lamentable that some of the more cogent opinions Mr. Blanshard expressed in The Nation articles—particularly on modern education—have been almost completely engulfed in the book. Despite occasional sorties into reality, Mr. Blanshard repeats, often in modern dress, old scandals and old wives' tales that one had assumed were forgotten, or else were confined, these days, to the spoken word alone." J. W. Chase

— N Y Times p15 My 15 '49 600w

"Mr. Blanshard's evidence for his indictment in almost every case is drawn from official Catholic sources and is quoted exhaustively, and his manuscript was submitted to a panel of experts, including such authorities as the Professor Emeritus of Church History at Harvard, for 'scrutiny and criticism.' His tone lacks the venom and sensationalism usually associated with such charges as he makes, but it is hard to believe that this book will persuade any but the already persuaded."

New Yorker 25:66 Ag 27 '49 260w

Reviewed by H. M. Kallen

Sat R of Lit 32:13 Jl 30 '49 1100w

Reviewed by W. S. Lynch

Sat R of Lit 32:14 Jl 30 '49 1250w

School & Society 70:95 Ag 6 '49 20w

BLANSHARD, PAUL—Continued

"The author's basic thesis that there is an inevitable conflict between democracy and Catholicism is well worth thorough, impartial, and scientific analysis. However, his superficial acquaintance with Catholicism renders him radically incapable of a thorough understanding. His hostile, antagonistic, and belligerent approach precludes any scientific impartiality on his part. His pejorative presentation of Catholic culture is the antithesis of the scientific objectivity required for sound cultural research." A. S. Foley

— Social Forces 28:226 D '49 500w

BLAU, JOSEPH LEON, ed. Cornerstones of religious freedom in America. 250p $3 Beacon press

261.7 Religious liberty 49-10649

"Fourth in Beacon Press 'Studies in Freedom and Power.' Undertaken because of author's conviction that the time has come either to speak out or lose religious freedom. On those elements of freedom of religion considered cornerstones of religious freedom Blau presents clear statements by champions of liberty in different eras. To these he adds an introduction and interpretations." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 46:135 D 15 '49

"The book as a whole is an able and worth while contribution to the problem in our time, when, as the author says we are in danger of 'losing religious liberty in the name of religious liberty.'" A. W. Taylor

+ Churchman 163:15 D 1 '49 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '49

Reviewed by C. H. Moehlman

Crozer Q 27:83 Ja '50 700w

Kirkus 17:539 O 1 '49 260w

"Religion, Blau believes, is the most distinctive and characteristically American of the freedoms, but it has played a relatively minor part. 'Comparatively little interpretive discussion of religion can be found.' His book goes a long way toward making up the deficiency. Beacon Press is to be commended for a most significant undertaking." O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 74:1315 S 15 '49 140w

"We should be grateful to Dr. Blau that he has not only given us the benefit of an analysis from his presuppositions, but has supplied basic materials for use of those with somewhat different presuppositions. No one should freeze his thinking on this vital question without reading this book." J. A. Pike

+ — N Y Times p13 D 25 '49 650w

BLINKEN, DONALD MAYER. Wool tariffs and American policy. 168p $3 Public affairs press

337.567731 Wool trade. Tariff—U.S. 48-9411

This work examines both raw wool and wool manufactures tariffs. "The basic problem presented by an examination of the wool tariffs is two-fold. The first question concerns America's raw wool needs and the means of best satisfying them—the problem treated in Part One of this book. The second problem inquires into the nature and extent of the competition offered the domestic wool manufacturing industry by foreign producers, and is the general subject of Part Two." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by C. M. Hardin

Am Pol Sci R 43:171 F '49 380w

Foreign Affairs 27:507 Ap '49 10w

"This brief study, concisely written and vigorously phrased, is primarily a demand for the abolition of our duties on wool and woolen manufactures. . . For those who may be inclined to agree with most, if not all, of the author's recommendations it must be a matter of regret that so many of the sweeping categorical assertions advanced to justify them require either added support or some modification." C. W. Wright

J Pol Econ 57:362 Ag '49 950w

BLOCH, MARC LEOPOLD BENJAMIN. Strange defeat; a statement of evidence written in 1940; with an introd. by Sir Maurice Powicke and a foreword by Georges Altman; tr. from the French by Gerard Hopkins. 178p $3.50 Oxford

940.5344 World war, 1939-1945—France. World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, French 49-9698

"Written in haste from July to September, 1940, after the author had returned home from military service, it is an indictment of the France that was defeated, but inspired throughout by those great qualities that made it even in 1940 difficult to believe that she could remain defeated. Marc Bloch, a free-thinking Frenchman of Jewish descent, was a mediæval historian. . . Bloch, who had fought in the first world war . . . left for the war in the first days of September, 1939, as he had in those of August, 1914. He left for it again in a different sense when he became an active member of the resistance group Franc-Tireur. He was introduced into the group by one of his own students and he died helping a boy of seventeen to face a German firing squad with the same courage as himself. This is not simply a record of chivalrous gallantry but the expression of Marc Bloch's mind—one that tolerated no confusion, but also no barriers." Manchester Guardian

"M. Marc Bloch, a Jewish professor of the Paris University, is a belated witness—but certainly one who has the right to be heard. An authority on medieval history and a very distinguished scholar, he brought to his study of the French crisis in 1940 all the critical faculty and all the penetrating analysis of a first-rate historian. M. Bloch was a great French patriot." Egon Kaskeline

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 19 '49 600w

"This little book is the finest and the shrewdest comment that exists on the French defeat in 1940. It is full of wisdom that would make it valuable even if the subject was less important." D. R. Gillie

+ Manchester Guardian p4 My 24 '49 750w

Reviewed by G. S. Fraser

New Statesman & Nation 38:23 Jl 2 '49 1100w

"What comes out most clearly in this book is how thoroughly French Marc Bloch was, how admirable a warm, living representative of those French qualities of measure, reason, good taste, and high seriousness of conscience that sometimes seem rather drab and colorless in essays about the French. Now that this little book exists to introduce him to English and American readers, it is to be hoped that some one will translate his masterpiece. 'Les Caracteres Orginaux de l'Histoire Rurale Francaise,' one of the great historical works of our time." Crane Brinton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ag 14 '49 750w

Reviewed by P. J. Philip

N Y Times p24 O 23 '49 450w

Reviewed by A. J. Liebling

+ New Yorker 25:102 S 10 '49 1550w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ag 21 '49 200w

"This volume . . . is an important book. It is both an eye-witness account and an analysis of the causes that contributed to Allied defeat. . . The reader, however, may well find the introduction and the foreword, both about the author, the most fascinating parts of the book." H. C. Wolfe

+ Sat R of Lit 32:31 Jl 30 '49 700w

"This set of reflections on the French catastrophe of 1940 is a short book, but it is, I should say, the most wisdom-packed commentary on the problem set all intelligent and patriotic Frenchmen by the events of 1940." D. W. Brogan

+ Spec 182:616 My 6 '49 950w

Reviewed by B. M. W. Knox

Yale R n s 39:173 autumn '49 950w

BLOCH-MICHEL, JEAN. The witness [tr. from the French by Eithne Wilkins]. 170p $2.50 Pantheon bks.
49-5356

Translated from the French, this novel presents the problem of cowardice and its effect. The protagonist permits his brother to drown, and as a result his life becomes a nightmare. Later he does nothing when the Nazis arrest his wife for underground activities. The story purports to be written on the eve of the author's own suicide.

Atlantic 184:100 N '49 150w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p8X S 25 '49 280w

Reviewed by Murray Krieger
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 6 '49 550w

"Lengthy suicide notes, though revealing, are apt to make dull reading and this one by a new French writer is no exception. The confessional tone and the apologetic manner begin to bore, and here and there poorly worded passages fall into the falsetto of a too earnest love letter. In spite of these weaknesses, however, which do, in a way, make the confession all the more convincing, the book has the merits of restraint and deceptive simplicity." James Wey
— + Commonweal 50:611 S 30 '49 390w

"A confessional, with a delicacy which is relentless as well, this aligns itself with the work of the younger French writers of irrevocability—Sartre, Camus."
+ Kirkus 17:438 Ag 15 '49 160w

"This study of cowardice never falls into sentimentality, nor does it become hardboiled. Unlike case-history fiction, it has warmth, depth, and life. Recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 74:1201 S 1 '49 90w

" 'The Witness,' [was] originally selected for publication by Albert Camus. Cast in the tight form of the French nouvelle, it is very tidy and plausible. . . [The hero's] predicament is carefully stated, and is the more compelling because, in a measure, something like it must have happened to every human being. . . M. Bloch-Michel's young man is remarkably unpleasant and selfish. But his guilt is largely a figment of his neurosis." Ernest Jones
+ — Nation 169:331 O 1 '49 260w

New Repub 121:20 O 24 '49 120w

"The character and fine achievement of this short and brilliant novel lie in this paradox: it tells a story of irrevocable failure; it is a relentless confession of cowardice; but it produces a final impression of triumph and the reader remembers it as a hymn to courage." Gouverneur Paulding
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p24 S 25 '49 700w

"Bloch-Michel has written a powerful story and he has given it point and importance. Bare of incident and bare of ornament, it derives its strength from the evocation of a conflict which in some measure every sensitive person has experienced." Maurice Valency
+ N Y Times p6 S 25 '49 410w

Reviewed by A. J. Liebling
New Yorker 25:158 N 19 '49 1800w

" 'The Witness,' published early this year in France, is [a] first work of fiction. Its maturity of thought and mastery of execution reveal to us a new author of purpose and power. Bloch-Michel has lived, he has thought, before beginning to write. Soon we shall learn whether he is a Major Writer, or whether he has said in his book the one well-meditated thing he has to say." Morris Bishop
+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 N 12 '49 700w

Springf'd Republican p19A O 23 '49 100w

BLOOM, LEONARD, and RIEMER, RUTH. Removal and return; the socio-economic effects of the war on Japanese Americans. 259p maps $3.75; pa $2.75 Univ. of Calif.

323.1 Japanese in the U.S. World war, 1939-1945—Evacuation of civilians A49-9867

"Through an intensive study of the Japanese American communities in Los Angeles, Leonard Bloom and Ruth Riemer have prepared an account of the socio-economic effects of the war on the Japanese Americans who were evacuated from the West Coast." (Survey) Bibliography.

"A well-documented, soberly-statistical report on what has been called 'our worst wartime mistake.' " J. A. Vieg
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:1297 D '49 300w

"The authors' claims of the representativeness of this sample for the Japanese minority of Los Angeles County as a whole appear questionable, particularly because they indicate no systematic checks upon the representativeness of the sample. Nevertheless, the study was conducted on a subject of importance for which good data were obviously difficult to get. The reviewer, from his familiarity with the situation, finds no reason to question the general conclusions offered, and welcomes this carefully done contribution to the closing chapters of the evacuation story." S. F. Miyamoto
+ — Am Soc R 14:815 D '49 700w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 N 6 '49 80w

"Here is a finely executed piece of social research which will be of great practical value and which makes important contributions to social theory and methodology. If you want to find out about the wonderfully interesting and quite unique place which the Japanese formerly occupied in the economy and social structure of the West Coast—what they did for a living, what they earned, what they owned, what they were like as a social group and how they functioned in relation to other groups—here is the irreplaceable source." Carey McWilliams
+ Survey 85:691 D '49 750w

BLOOM, VERA. The entertaining lady; an informal guide to good living; decorations by Sari. 245p $3 Putnam

395 Entertaining. Etiquet 49-8498

The daughter of the late Sol Bloom, who often served as hostess for her father, writes about parties, food, household decoration, clothes, conversation, letters, and travel, and all aspects of the lives of those who entertain or are entertained.

Booklist 45:290 My 1 '49

Kirkus 17:79 F 1 '49 80w

"For one whose father's avowed credo was 'Nothing was ever too good for Vera,' . . . Vera Bloom emerges in her new book of life philosophy as a remarkably unspoiled, chatty, companionable person. She also displays much common sense on how to operate in highly-specialized circles." Bess Furman
+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 Ap 23 '49 700w

BLOOM, WILLIAM, ed. Histopathology of irradiation from external and internal sources. 808p il $8 McGraw

612.014482 Histology, Pathological 49-7487

"This volume is one of a series which has been prepared as a record of the research work done under the Manhattan Project and the Atomic Energy Commission. The name Manhattan Project was assigned by the Corps of Engineers, War Department, to the far-flung scientific and engineering activities which had as their objective the utilization of atomic energy for military purposes. . . The declassified portion of the National Nuclear Energy Series, when completed, is expected to consist of some 60 volumes." (Pref) "This report is a technical account of information collected while developing methods for producing plutonium. Some of the information deals directly with nuclear physics and chemistry. Most of it is related rather to technical processes that needed to be performed in preparation for making the plutonium. These publications represent selections from the great mass of current reports, made on the basis of their value to basic science and technology." (Foreword) Bibliography. Index.

BLOOM, WILLIAM—Continued

"The subject of this particular volume is outside the scope of New Technical Books, but the work is included here because it is the first one published of a series of great importance and in which a majority of the volumes will relate to chemistry, physics, metallurgy and engineering. . . The material has been selected from the standpoint of its significance in basic science and its usefulness in technology; and, of course, results which have not been released from secrecy restrictions will not be included. In spite of these limitations and of editorial difficulties such as are mentioned in the prefatory matter in this volume, the series will undoubtedly become a landmark in scientific literature."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 34:29 Mr '49

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:263 Je '49 320w

BLYTON, ENID. Mountain of adventure; with il. by Stuart Tresilian. 235p $2.50 Macmillan 49-10383

An adventure story for young readers. It describes the further adventures of the four English children—Jack, Dinah, Lucy-Ann, and Philip, and their assorted pets. They set out to collect butterflies in the mountains of Wales and run into some rather fearful experiences. Ages ten to fourteen.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun Ag 27 '49 50w

"A confused, garbled story."
— Kirkus 17:326 Jl 1 '49 110w

"Delightfully interesting and thrilling adventure story. . . Especially recommended for ages 10-14." S. J. Robinson
+ Library J 74:1206 S 1 '49 60w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:27 N 12 '49 40w

BOAST, WARREN BENEFIELD. Principles of electric and magnetic fields. 405p il $4.75 Harper
537 Electricity. Magnetism 48-9485

"This text, planned for use in undergraduate electrical engineering courses, is intended to serve as an introduction to the fundamental principles and theories of electric and magnetic field phenomena. The treatment, which is largely mathematical, requires that the student have a good background in the calculus. A knowledge of elementary electric circuit theory, while advantageous, is not essential, for such concepts are developed throughout the book as the need arises. The MKS system of units is used throughout. Practical review problems are given at the end of each chapter." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 74:200 F 1 '49 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:4 Ja '49

BOATRIGHT, MODY COGGIN. Folk laughter on the American frontier. 182p $3 Macmillan
817.09 Humor. Frontier and pioneer life—West 49-49204

A treatise on American frontier humor illustrated by a collection of typical examples. The author has been for some time a secretary and editor of the Texas Folklore society publications. Index.

Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Chicago Sun p4X Ja 1 '50 170w

"Humor is the genre which possibly contains what is most distinctive in American letters. It is also a Sibyline subject. The more one looks into American humor the more he senses that it is a cryptic key to the American mind, an allegory, much of whose underlying meaning he can't quite grasp. Mr. Boatright's book is a help to both a knowledge of the facts and an understanding of their meaning." R. M. H.
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 5 '50 700w

"The illustrations recapture all that is rowdy, natural, direct, and indigenously funny in this type of humor and the book offers both immediate pleasure as well as permanent regional value."
+ Kirkus 17:534 S 15 '49 120w

"Slim book, but useful. Recommended." E. L. Lewis
+ Library J 74:1315 S 15 '49 80w

"A brief, concise, scholarly and workmanlike job, dripping with scholarly footnotes and replete with bibliography, index, and so on. It is rich stuff, and by the very nature of the material almost impossible to read at one sitting—too much like trying to listen to the same vaudeville team, no matter how good, for three hours." Stanley Walker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 D 18 '49 800w

"The interesting thing about American frontier humor, as presented in Mr. Boatright's well-documented and highly readable book, is that it stands up. We have, of course, never let go of a great deal of it; but what is not distinctly recognizable is fresh and natural. It has a vigor lacking in some of the humor we run across today." Rex Lardner
+ N Y Times p7 D 11 '49 460w

"A wonderful collection of American folk-humor and a scholarly study of how it developed on the frontier. The reader may approach the book either way, or both ways, and enjoy every bit of it." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 D 20 '49 850w

"Most entertaining reading."
+ School & Society 70:367 D 3 '49 30w

BOATRIGHT, MODY COGGIN, ed. Sky is my tipi [Kiowa-Apache tales and lore]. 243p $3.50 Texas folk-lore society, University station, Austin, Tex.
398.2 Folklore, Indian. Kiowa Indians. Apache Indians 49-1690

"This newest anthology of Southwestern lore . . . covers a multitude of Southwestern traditions: forty-six folk tales of the Kiowa Apache Indians, three yarns from the Mescalero Apache country told by Dobie, an article linking a cattle brand to certain Aztec burial customs, a Big Foot Wallace Tale on 'How to Sculp (Scalp) an Indian,' as well as other matters peculiarly . . . Texan. The folk tales of the remnant of the Kiowa-Apaches of Western Oklahoma occupy the first half of the volume. Gilbert McAllister, now professor of anthropology at the University of Texas, spent nine months in a lonely shack on the reservation studying the social organization of the tribe and these tales are a by-product of his research." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by T. M. Pearce
+ N Y Times p17 Mr 13 '49 330w

"The annuals of the Texas Folk Lore Society have been, for a generation, the saltiest and best edited of our regional literary journals. . . [This is] the XXIInd star in the already bright crown of the Texas Folk Lore Society." Alan Lomax
+ Sat R of Lit 32:20 My 28 '49 800w

BOCHNER, SALOMON, and MARTIN, WILLIAM TED. Several complex variables. 216p $4 Princeton univ. press
517.5 Functions of a complex variable
48-9312

"This text on analytic functions of more than one complex variable is more systematic and complete than other recent works in the field. The authors begin with basic definitions and properties of power series and functions in several variables, treat analytic completion and analytic mapping, and, after a chapter on inequalities which makes use of L_p theory and multiple Fourier integrals, establish the fundamental result of Hartogs which deduces continuity from analyticity in the separate variables. Following some results on singularities, the book closes with a discussion of algebraic functions and the manifolds related to them." U S Quarterly Bkl

N Y New Tech Bks 34:8 Ja '49

"The work makes contact with modern algebra and in a few places requires some familiarity with group and ideal theory. But for the most part, the reader need have merely an elementary knowledge of analysis."

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:272 Je '49 200w

BODKIN, THOMAS. Virgin and Child. See Virgin and Child

BOEHM, ERIC H., ed. We survived. 308p $3.75 Yale univ. press

943.086 World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, German. World war, 1939-1945—Atrocities 49-11621

"The stories of fourteen of the hidden and the hunted of Nazi Germany as told to Eric H. Boehm." (Subtitle) These "submerged persons" included workers, aristocrats, Jews, an artist, a clergyman, some of those involved in the plot to assassinate Hitler. Index.

"The narratives here hold an intensely dramatic as well as documentary value but the reading public, for this type of material, has never been overly receptive."

Kirkus 17:461 Ag 15 '49 150w

"Simply told, straightforward stories. . . The value of such a book lies in revealing the horrible persecution resulting from fanaticism aroused by leaders in an absolute government. It is a warning against such government so inherently weak that it can survive only by the terror of investigation." Walter Hausdorfer

+ Library J 74:1086 Ag '49 100w

Reviewed by Gerold Frank

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p51 D 4 '49 950w

"Here are unforgettable tales of primitive bestiality versus humanistic optimism and self-sacrifice." Alfred Werner

+ N Y Times p12 N 20 '49 450w

New Yorker 25:158 N 12 '49 100w

BOGUE, JESSE PARKER, ed. See American council on education. American junior colleges

BOLTON, HERBERT EUGENE. Coronado; knight of pueblos and plains. (Whittlesey house publication) 491p maps $6 McGraw; Univ. of N.Mex. press

973.16 America—Discovery and exploration—Spanish. Vázquez de Coronado, Francisco 49-49163

In 1540 Don Francisco Vásquez de Coronado, a Spanish aristocrat, set out from Compostela, Mexico, to discover the Seven Cities of gold and turquoise about which the Spaniards had heard such alluring tales. This is the history of the hardships and failures of that long and unavailing search. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:156 Ja 1 '50

Reviewed by Roland Sawyer

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 17 '50 450w

"Competent, comprehensive, for students chiefly."

+ Kirkus 17:573 O 1 '49 140w

"This Bolton is an institution. Almost forty out of his first fifty years of teaching have been spent at the University of California. He has the priceless irrepressibility of a great teacher. He has the gift of conveying his own exuberance to his disciples, and it is no accident that today many of the ablest interpreters of Latin America in colleges and universities across the land got their first drilling in the seminars of Herbert Bolton." Hubert Herring

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 11 '49 1200w

"To some minds Dr. Bolton's habitual justification of Spanish acts and policies will not always seem warranted. His neglect of the 'art of omission' results in repetition of details. He is not a master of English prose, but as a pioneering master of a vast field of history his name will certainly live. Now, drawing from the reservoirs of a lifetime's storage, he has with graphic minutiae compassed the 'far-stretched greatness' of one of the greatest adventure stories in the history of the world." J. F. Dobie

+ — N Y Times p7 N 27 '49 900w

"This, for the first time, is the real story of Coronado—and Dr. Bolton grants (as any good historian will) that one day someone else working in the field may turn up still further information. Until then, this 'Coronado' will be the definitive book." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p30 D 4 '49 1350w

"The University of California's scholarly Professor Bolton has ferreted out the facts of Coronado's adventure with new research and firsthand, mile-by-mile retracing of the Coronado trail. A lot of readers who wince at his ingenuous, neo-Rotarian style will have to admit that it supports a solid baggage of succulent anecdote. Few who start out with Bolton's Coronado will want to turn back until the last Indian is sighted and the last El Dorado tracked down."

+ — Time 54:108 D 5 '49 950w

BOLTON, ISABEL, pseud. See Miller, M. B.

BONAVIA-HUNT, DOROTHY ALICE. See Hunt, D. A. B-.

BOND, FRED. Better color movies; quick, simple answers to common problems of amateur movie makers. 156p il $5 Camera craft

778.5342 Moving picture photography. Color photography 49-7333

"Assumes that the reader knows how to operate a movie camera and plan his own sequences; limits its treatment to the applications of color theory. Discusses light sources, reflective and absorptive characteristics of color, properties of color film, effects of processing procedures, exposure calculations, filters, editing and titling, use of lenses and attachments, and proper projection." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 45:237 Mr 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '49

"Recommended." Julian Sohon

Library J 74:550 Ap 1 '49 40w

BOND, JAMES H. From out of the Yukon; with foreword by J. Hammond Brown. 220p il maps $3.50 Binfords

799.2 Hunting—Yukon territory. Yukon territory Agr48-280

"Account of a survey trip of big game in remote Northern Yukon Territory for Yukon Fish and Game Association, with gun and camera. Observations of wild life, ingenious methods of Indian guides." Library J

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 74:63 Ja 1 '49 50w

"Mr. Bond knows his subject and he adds considerable information on the country. The reader will find much of the book interesting —after he has resigned himself to the starry-eyed-at-nature style." T. S. Sweedy

+ — N Y Times p27 Ja 30 '49 180w

Reviewed by G. S. Arnold

San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 28 '48 60w

BOND, NELSON S. Thirty-first of February. 272p $3 Gnome press, 421 Claremont parkway, N.Y. 57

Thirteen short stories, all with a trend toward fantasy.

BOND, N. S.—Continued

"An extremely uneven job-lot by a standard practitioner who has rarely had an original story-idea but is, at his best, highly skilled at burnishing to a new glow the ideas of others." Anthony Boucher

— + Chicago Sun Ag 5 '49 90w

"By now, Nelson Bond must be thoroughly sick of people asking him where he gets his ideas for stories. Yet this is a burden he will have to support as long as he turns out tales, like those in 'Mr. Mergenthwirker's Lobbies,' and these in his second book. Each one of the thirteen fantastic exercises here is based upon an idea that is strangely simple, outrageously logical; and each is presented with such subtlety that the reader soon finds himself chewing more than he bit off." R. B. Gehman

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 S 11 '49 300w

New Yorker 25:162 N 19 '49 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 17 '49 170w

BONE, JAMES. London echoing; with pictures by Muirhead Bone. 173p $5 Dutton

914.21 London—Description 49-10622

Reflections on the life and charms of the city of London by a famous London journalist, now retired and living in Surrey. He recalls hotels, taverns, chop houses, shops, etc, many of which disappeared during the blitz. Illustrated with etchings by his brother, Sir Muirhead Bone.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 25 '49 380w

"It is only fair in these days of austerity and the ruins of the blitz to be reminded of the charm and character of London, even though the remembrance be to such a great extent about things now gone. No one has appreciated London more or written about it with greater charm than that good Glaswegian, James Bone. . . The book may not be a gold mine, but it is a curio shop, full of good things." H. L. Matthews

+ N Y Times p40 O 2 '49 600w

Sat R of Lit 32:62 D 3 '49 200w

BONESTELL, CHESLEY, il. See Ley, W. Conquest of space

BONETT, JOHN, pseud. See Coulson, J.

BONHOEFFER, DIETRICH. Cost of discipleship; tr. by R. H. Fuller; foreword by the Bishop of Chichester and memoir of the author by G. Leibholz; with a pref. by Reinhold Niebuhr. 198p $2.50 Macmillan

232 Jesus Christ—Teachings. Jesus Christ—Person and offices 49-8038

A collection of the author's sermons, addresses, and papers, which are classified under three general heads: Grace and discipleship; The Sermon on the Mount; The church of Jesus Christ and the life of discipleship. Bonhoeffer was a member of the resistance movement in Germany, who was involved in the Christian plot against Hitler's life, and was shot by special order of Himmler at the concentration camp of Flossenburg, only a few days before the camp was liberated by the Allies.

Christian Century 66:1173 O 5 '49 120w

"The opening chapter on 'Costly Grace' is worth the price of the book. . . The material on grace, the cross, and discipleship is easily the best thing on these subjects in a long time."

+ Churchman 163:15 Je 15 '49 90w

"The book is a challenge to orthodoxy, neoörthodoxy, and liberalism alike in its insistence upon the costliness of a truly Christian life. And in its pages we 'stand on holy ground.'" W. L. Sperry

+ Crozer Q 26:262 Jl '49 800w

"Recommended for devotional use by Protestant Christians."

+ Kirkus 17:141 Mr 15 '49 150w

"The book is a rigorously patient exposition of the Sermon which compels the reader to face himself, and God, in any situation. It is a very moving book, lived as well as written, and one which no one should be able to read without feeling humbled."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p604 S 16 '49 550w

BONNAMY, FRANCIS, pseud. See Walz, A.

BONNER, CHARLES. The last romantic. 279p $3 Coward-McCann

49-8522

"The case histories of three maladjusted young people in the nineteen-thirties, embellished with newspaper-city-room clamor and some ideological undercurrents. A normally earnest cub reporter . . . gets interested in the story of an archconservative league with suspicious foreign connections. He discovers that the organization has all the sinister leanings that he had suspected and that his stepfather, a glossy public-relations man, has considerably more. In the process, the reporter helps to straighten out the psyches of a determinedly worldly career woman and of his own stepsister." New Yorker

Kirkus 17:68 F 1 '49 160w

Reviewed by Delancey Ferguson

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 My 15 '49 360w

"Mr. Bonner's novel lacks concreteness and focus. We rarely sympathize with Eliot, who is often obtuse and always humorless—his ostensible charm is not apparent to the reader. There are too many problems touched on but not explored; and while Mr. Bonner can write effectively (as in the first section of his novel), too often he lapses into clichés of intellectualism and is merely diffuse." Ann Schakne

— + N Y Times p21 My 15 '49 230w

"Dark hints of Fascist machinations are a moribund theme at the moment, but twisted personalities such as the ones dealt with here are perennially worth looking into."

New Yorker 25:105 Ap 16 '49 160w

"A fast-paced story which will sometimes remind you, I think, of motion-picture techniques, both in the methods used . . . and in the tendency to type-casting. 'The Last Romantic' is a capable enough novel. But if you get from it the feeling that the author could do still better—well, maybe he did in 'The Legacy.' I think so, at any rate." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 14 '49 800w

"All one can say is that he has written, with thought and experience behind him, one more synthetic, plastic concoction. There is no quarrel with synthetic concoctions unless they are passed as something better. In this instance the plan of the book and many of its more exalted passages, as well as its promising dust cover, prefigure a study of the artist as a young man in that very best of molds, filled out in their own fashion by so many artists from George Moore to Thomas Wolfe. . . 'The Last Romantic' sums up as a slick and superficial tale self-conscious with ambition." N. L. Rothman

Sat R of Lit 32:49 Ap 16 '49 400w

Springf'd Republican p4D My 29 '49 240w

BONNER, MARY GRAHAM. Mysterious caboose; il. by Bob Meyers. 176p $2 Knopf

49-10229

Mystery for boys and girls.

"An exciting mystery story with the fascinating background of railroading."

+ Bookmark 9:6 O '49 20w

"Thriller but credible. . . Good yarn."
+ Kirkus 17:427 Ag 15 '49 90w

"Rarely does one find combined in one story so much adventure, action, and mystery, and it will all appeal to boys from intermediate grades to junior high." Nelle McCalla
+ Library J 74:1333 S 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid
Library J 74:1539 O 15 '49 50w

"A story filled with action and excitement." Marjorie Burger
+ N Y Times p24 Ag 28 '49 140w

BONNET, THEODORE. Mudlark. 305p $3 Doubleday

Disraeli, Benjamin—Fiction 49-9639

The mudlark was a dirty little slum urchin from London's lowest strata, but he was fired with an ambition to see Queen Victoria, "the mother of England." Due to a series of accidents he actually saw the Queen one night when she was entertaining Disraeli, and later, he and Brown, the queen's bodyguard, were found in the throne room. That incident set off a train of events which, delicately manipulated by Disraeli, finally brought the Queen out of her retirement. During the course of the novel almost the whole of Disraeli's life is presented.

"I call this book a charming play of impersonation, quite effortless to read. The courtly, sensitive relationship between Dizzy and his Queen is as Victorian as it is plausible; so too the rivalry between the other councilors and that reckless Highlander, Mr. Brown; the backstairs of the Castle itself, and the rich tapestry of its past, are well depicted. And the dialects—Scotch, Cockney, and Disraelian—ring true." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 184:82 Ag '49 700w

Booklist 46:13 S 1 '49

"Charmingly related with humor and authenticity."
+ Bookmark 9:5 O '49 30w

"A successful feat, the Mudlark is a historical novel that restores one's belief in that ill-treated brand of writing." Clorinda Clarke
+ Cath World 170:157 N '49 220w

"It is lively, wittily irreverent yet warmly affectionate, accurate in detail but somewhat impressionistic as a whole, occasionally given to moralizing on the progress of society, loose and sometimes irrelevant in structure, and here and there downright pedestrian. . . On the whole, 'The Mudlark' is a delightful evening's entertainment."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 11 '49 300w

"Anyone who enjoys Victorian vignettes will find that The Mudlark has plenty of wit and charm, based on a very intelligent understanding of the period and the people. It also has one of the most graphic descriptions of the old House of Commons that I have ever read." E. V. R. Wyatt
+ Commonweal 50:468 Ag 19 '49 700w

"Thin as a novel, unimportant as history, this will nevertheless get more of a play as the Book of the Month Club selection for September."
Kirkus 17:307 Je 15 '49 170w

"Delightful reading; recommended for all libraries." H. G. Kelley
+ Library J 74:1092 Ag '49 100w

Library J 74:1556 O 15 '49 60w

"'The Mudlark' is a spirited and unusual story, more than likely to be remembered for its lively characters and sufficiently in the groove of history to have edge and interest as a picture of the past." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Ag 14 '49 550w

"For those who care what Mr. Disraeli might have said, or what Queen Victoria might have said, or even, heaven help us, what Mr. Brown might have said, in certain circumstances and at certain times, 'The Mudlark' will make engaging reading. But for those who don't care what might have happened . . . it may be a mild irritant. Mr. Bonnet has made the mistake of writing in too much detail, and even though the detail is the result of conscientious research, it is distracting, and Wheeler, who is small enough to begin with, grows even smaller, until he vanishes from sight." Sally Benson
N Y Times p5 Ag 14 '49 550w

"Mr. Bonnet's British characterizations and his spoofing of historians are both subtle and lively."
+ New Yorker 25:66 Ag 20 '49 160w

"Thoroughly engaging, colorful and fascinating first novel." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 Ag 14 '49 1150w

"Disraeli's honors in the story are exceeded by only one person's—the author's. That an American should have produced this first novel tinctured with so affecting a sachet of Victorian nostalgia, sentimental warmth, and knowing realism is something of a miracle." William Soskin
+ Sat R of Lit 32:14 Ag 13 '49 850w

"There is just enough ingenuity in The Mudlark's conception and skill in its writing to sustain a fine long story. Author Bonnet has chosen to pad it outrageously in order to fill the regulation-size novel. The book suffers as a result, but it is pleasant enough for an afternoon of hammock reading."
+ — Time 54:83 Ag 29 '49 500w

BONTHIUS, ROBERT HAROLD. Christian paths to self-acceptance. 254p $3.25 King's crown press

201 Psychology, Religious 48-8777

"Using a summary of modern findings in psychology and psychotherapy as a setting, the study examines traditional Christian conceptions of pathways to self-acceptance. Each pathway is closely associated with particular sects or movements, but is also found in other contexts. . . The meaning, history, and present status of each pathway are first presented in a purely religious context. Later, the three pathways, and their common elements, are reexamined in the light of dynamic psychology and psychotherapy, with attention both to the special therapeutic values and to the therapeutic dangers of each." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. Index.

"The book is well worth reading. It will inspire self-criticism in ministers, teachers, parents, and theological students. It will prompt all of us to examine and re-evaluate the presuppositions and the devices which we employ in our ministries of healing and comfort and release." F. T. Wilson
+ Crozer Q 26:175 Ap '49 600w

Reviewed by Seward Hiltner
J Religion 29:163 Ap '49 1150w

"As a whole, the book is a scholarly contribution to the effort to make use of scientific findings and the techniques of practice in other professions in the better attainment of religious goals by the clergy."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:37 Mr '49 280w

BOODISH, H. M. Our industrial age; consulting ed: Everett Augspurger. 390p il $2.60 McGraw

330.973 Social sciences. U.S.—Economic conditions 49-4481

"A basic textbook dealing with the origin and development of our industrial society and its major economic, social, and political problems." (Subtitle) For high school students. Selected references at end of chapters. List of visual materials. Index.

School & Society 69:438 Je 18 '49 30w

"This should be an especially useful text for pupils in vocational and technical courses, since it makes possible a functional integration of many essentials of modern social living for those for whom high school is terminal formal education." B. N. Osburn
+ Social Studies 40:374 D '49 210w

BORGENICHT, MIRIAM. Corpse in diplomacy. 246p $2.50 Mill 49-8476

Detective story.

"Is agreeably brisk if too much cluttered with corpses. . . The author seems to know more about Washington than she has admitted here and politics or diplomacy don't go much beyond the title." James Sandoe
Chicago Sun My 27 '49 40w

"Light, bright, deft and debonair."
+ Kirkus 17:71 F 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Je 5 '49 110w

"Nothing could make much less sense than these escapades of Washington columnist Kate Whipple and architect Tobey Hart involving the discovery of a diplomat's corpse under a daybed. The main trouble is that there isn't enough lighthearted brightness to keep you distracted from the absurdity of the action." A. B.
N Y Times p33 Ap 24 '49 130w

"Tax-payers will not be impressed with this picture of their betters. In fact, it's pretty difficult to imagine anyone being impressed with anything about this one." E. D. Doyle
— San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 3 '49 50w

BORST, WILLIAM ALVORD. Lord Byron's first pilgrimage. 179p $3.75 Yale univ. press

B or 92 Byron, George Gordon Noël Byron, 6th baron 48-11047

An account of the travels of Lord Byron between July 1809 and July 1811, during which time he was in Portugal, Spain, Malta, Albania, Greece, Asia Minor, and Constantinople. The literary result of those years was Childe Harold, cantos one and two. Bibliography. Indexes.

"Like all good yarns, Byron's pilgrimage stands detailed recollection, and Dr. Borst, formerly of the Yale faculty, is often able, along the way, to correct such amusing misconceptions as that of E. H. Coleridge, who misplaced a Spanish mountain range by a too literal reading of 'Childe Harold,' Canto I. But the book is also distinguished by the author's skill at making his narrative bear at all points upon Byron's poetry." Carlos Baker
+ N Y Times p19 D 12 '48 800w

"The tone of the study is sympathetic but not partisan, the style is sober, the documentation almost excessively scrupulous. In view of the flamboyant manner and the reliance on intuition or invention which have frequently marred writing on Byron, the quiet competence of this study is welcome."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:42 Mr '49 280w

BOSTON. INSTITUTE OF CONTEMPORARY ART. Oskar Kokoschka. See Kokoschka, O.

BOTHWELL, JEAN. Little flute player [il. by Margaret Ayer]. 159p $2 Morrow 49-9992

Story of ten-year-old Teka Ram whose home was a village in northern India. When his father has to leave home, the burden of keeping the family from starvation falls on the boy's shoulders, but he proves himself equal to his task.

Booklist 46:15 S 1 '49

Reviewed by Agatha Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 D 4 '49 50w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:416 S '49 120w

"She has done some good books, but this is, we think, her best."
+ Kirkus 17:360 Jl 15 '49 120w

"Exceptionally distinctive book that combines excellent, easy-flowing style, lifelike characters, and beautiful illustrations." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 74:1333 S 15 '49 90w

"This is a story of courage, of sacrifice, and warm love. The author has cloaked it with grave beauty and simple dignity." Alice McQuaid
+ Library J 74:1537 O 15 '49 110w

"Such a book is an honest contribution to an understanding of children in a far land." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 25 '49 270w

"Actually, the thread of the story is a somber one, with its matter-of-fact acceptance of the famine threat that hangs always over India's poor. Happily, Miss Bothwell so wraps it round the sweetness of family life, in neighborliness and gentle resignation, that the picture remains a sunlit one. For ages 8 to 12." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p34 S 18 '49 150w

"Moving from a placid mood to an intensity rare in children's stories, this is a book that one is likely to remember. . . The description of the people's suffering is honest, yet the tale, suffused with family love, is serene and quite beautiful. Not for every child, but the right one will find it rewarding."
+ New Yorker 25:175 D 3 '49 80w

"This is a slight book, but it can be recommended for its appealing story, its good background, and the charm inherent in its writing." M. C. Dodd
+ Sat R of Lit 32:46 O 22 '49 170w

Springf'd Republican p7C O 9 '49 70w

BOTKIN, BENJAMIN ALBERT, ed. Treasury of Southern folklore; with a foreword by Douglas Southall Freeman. 776p $4 Crown

398 Folklore—South 49-11786

"Stories, ballads, traditions, and folkways of the people of the South." (Subtitle) Includes some 500 stories, and over 50 folksongs, with music. Indexes.

Booklist 46:151 Ja 1 '50

"Informing and entertaining omnibus."
+ Bookmark 9:51 D '49 30w

Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Chicago Sun p4X Ja 1 '50 500w

"A book that Southerners will love and Northerners will use."
+ Kirkus 17:570 O 1 '49 210w

"As a source book it is well arranged for reference use, with indexes through which its authors, titles, first lines, subjects, names and places can be found. Important for all libraries." G. D. McDonald
+ Library J 74:1820 D 1 '49 150w

"Ben Botkin's book is a huge, teeming, warm-hearted, immensely satisfying collection." Coleman Rosenberger
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 18 '49 1250w

"If it was inevitable that such a book as 'A Treasury of Southern Folklore' should have been made, it is fitting that Mr. Botkin, the most experienced and skilled of our general-folklore anthologists, should have made it. Much of it is not folklore in the strictest sense, as Mr. Botkin himself very well knows; but all goes back ultimately to the folk. The richness and variety of the book, difficult to describe, will make it a source of perennial à la carte delight to the general reader." A. P. Hudson
+ N Y Times p16 N 27 '49 400w

"This latest volume in the series, like the others, contains a variety of fascinating stuff, from a formula for making pumpkin whiskey to a theory that mountain feuds are due to inedible food and general indigestion. Also like the others, it contains some terrible junk, and the editor still classifies his material maddeningly, prints stories in unreadable dialect, and titles jokes with their punch lines."
+ — New Yorker 25:90 Ja 14 '50 200w

"Mr Botkin has done an astonishing job of gathering up and organizing, and his book is a treasure chest in which you'll turn up almost anything you're after if it relates to Southern folklore." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 D 5 '49 150w

"Amusing and varied, and unflaggingly entertaining."
+ Wis Lib Bul p4 N '49

BOTT, ALAN JOHN, ed. The Londoner's England; contemporary watercolours and drawings of London and the home counties reproduced by colour and monochrome lithography & by half-tone: assembled & ed. with descriptive text. 191p $6 Macmillan

914.2 England—Description and travel. London—Description 49-7186

"A picture book about London and the home counties, containing eighty-nine water colors, lithographs, drawings, and etchings, most of them of out-of-the-way places in the city and its environs, and each of them furnished with an informal historical note by the editor. The artists are uniformly academic, with strong leanings toward the quaint and picturesque." (New Yorker) There is an introduction by the editor, called Something about London.

Booklist 45:239 Mr 15 '49

"The book offers many fascinating little views of the shyer sights of the town, some of them, we suspect, unknown to Londoners outside their neighbourhood. . . Mr. Bott's essay on London has remarkably gay freshness on this old subject and his notes on the views are crisply done, containing much that is new to any student of London." J. B.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 18 '47 300w

New Yorker 24:81 Ja 29 '49 100w

"The writing, which is by Mr. Bott, is facile and altogether likeable. Doubtless the book will be a blessing to those in love with London."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 Mr 26 '49 130w

"The notes are excellent of their kind, avoiding both pedantry and gossip. Such a compilation is naturally a bit of a hotch-potch because of the wideness of its net and the vagueness of its plan, and the editor himself calls it a 'patchwork.' It will be of little practical use to the traveller or the serious student of London topography, but it might well have been what a note on its wrapper says it is: 'a book to inspire nostalgia among Londoners and sometime Londoners all over the world.' Unfortunately, its appearance is deadened and its value lessened by the inadequate reproduction of many of the drawings."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p38 Ja 17 '48 600w

BOUDREAU, LOU. Player-manager, by [the author] with Ed Fitzgerald. 246p il $2.75 Little

B or 92 Baseball 49-8711

Tells the story of Lou Boudreau's career in baseball up to 1947, and gives an account of the struggle of the Cleveland Indians to win the World Series in 1948.

Booklist 45:318 My 15 '49

"A good story about a great ball player. Fans will eat it up."
+ Kirkus 17:166 Mr 15 '49 150w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1031 Jl '49 10w

"Well-told success story combined with good inside information on a manager's duties."
+ Library J 74:1562 O 15 '49 40w

"The American League's only player-manager is great, and he knows it. He is also self-critical and candid, and accordingly he presents as clear an inside picture as you are likely to find of the headaches and triumphs involved in managing a big-league ball club." J. K. Hutchens
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 My 29 '49 50w

Reviewed by D. M. Mankiewicz
N Y Times p12 Jl 3 '49 130w

Springf'd Republican p6D My 22 '49 330w

Wis Lib Bul p10 D '49

BOURKE-WHITE, MARGARET. Halfway to freedom; a report on the new India in words and photographs. 245p $3.50 Simon & Schuster

954 India—Civilization 49-9276

An account of the progress of the new India as seen by the photographer-reporter on her trips there in 1946, 1947 and 1948. No index.

Booklist 45:333 Je 1 '49

Reviewed by Keith Wheeler
Chicago Sun Je 23 '49 370w

"The writing, if not brilliant, is clear and honest and therefore even something of a relief from much current journalese about far-away places. . . Indians may not be happy that she says some of the things she does, but they will have to concede that her reporting is as accurate as her pictures. And it is sympathetic to India." Robert Root
Christian Century 66:917 Ag 3 '49 950w

Reviewed by Ronald Stead
Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 9 '49 1050w

"The picturesque side of Miss Bourke-White's book, overtops the political side; for this, many a reader will be grateful; the pageant of India is something that attracts by its infinite variety of color, its glitter, its sharp contrasts of light breaking off into darkness. The author has emphasized all this in word and picture. The word 'fascinating' may be freely used with respect to the world here depicted." John Cournos
+ Commonweal 50:298 Jl 1 '49 850w

"Brilliant reporting."
+ Kirkus 17:292 Je 1 '49 150w

"Highly recommended both for its text and for its many illuminating photographs."
+ Nation 169:66 Jl 16 '49 60w

"Miss Margaret Bourke-White has caught in her lens pictures of the misery and violence of India's 'liberation' that no words could ever truly capture. . . Miss Bourke-White's mind was often as candid and inquiring as her camera. Although she never pressed too hard for the answers—often seeming too much in awe of her subjects—she asked some extremely searching questions of Indians, from Gandhi down." H. R. Isaacs
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Je 26 '49 900w

"Miss Bourke-White has learned a lot about India. Throughout there are countless references (unfortunately, the book has no index) to Indian history, politics, economics, geography, personalities, religion, architecture, landscape, and Miss Bourke-White writes about them beautifully, with as much feeling in words for people and places as she exhibits in her photographs. 'Halfway to Freedom' provides an invaluable introduction to an ancient land now born anew." Jonathan Kilbourn
+ N Y Times p5 My 29 '49 700w

New Yorker 25:101 My 28 '49 160w

Reviewed by Dorothy Sargent
San Francisco Chronicle p10 Jl 10 '49 500w

"Margaret Bourke-White has a good eye by which I mean that she has two good eyes. She has special sight. It makes her a great photographer and, now that she has acquired an infinitely better style than that of her early books, she can also make a pleasing verbal picture of persons and scenes. . . That is fine. But sight and vitality are not understanding." Louis Fischer
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:12 Je 25 '49 900w

"Mrs. Bourke-White's skill with the camera has overshadowed her skill with the pen. Perhaps 'Halfway to Freedom' will correct the situation. There are passages, notably her descriptions of the mill workers in New Delhi and of the untouchables in Trichinopoly, that pound home the miserable life of millions of Hindus as few other more thorough, scholarly books have been able to do. And when the reader comes to the two final chapters, dealing with the author's last interview with Gandhi and the Mahatma's assassination and cremation, he must be exceptionally hardened not to be moved at the vivid, dramatic writing. Mrs. Bourke-White's 115 photographs are, as usual, superb. Worth special mention are the captions which are credited to Edward Stanley, though frequently they have been 'lifted' from the text." Frederick Reinstein.

BOURKE-WHITE, MARGARET—Continued
+ Springf'd Republican p7B Jl 31 '49 600w
Wis Lib Bul 45:105 Je '49

BOURNE, PETER, pseud. See Jeffries, G. M.

BOURRET, F. M. Gold coast; a survey of the Gold coast and British Togoland, 1919-1946. (Hoover lib. on war, revolution, and peace. Publication) 231p maps $4 Stanford univ. press
966.7 Gold coast. Togoland 49-9384

A study of the Gold Coast Dependency, that portion of West Africa which has been of recent years a protectorate of Great Britain's. After a summary of early history of the region the work is devoted to tracing the political, economic, and social development of the Dependency between 1919 and 1948. Bibliography. Index.

Current Hist 17:98 Ag '49 60w
Reviewed by M. S. Stewart
Yale R n s 39:354 winter '50 280w

BOWEN, BETTY MORGAN. Jan's victory; story and pictures. 169p $2.50 Longmans 49-414

"Jan Maarten's family was driven out of Vlissingen on Walcheren Island in Holland when the Germans flooded it during the Second World War. This is the story of their return, of their valiant effort to restore the Maarten homestead, of Jan's bitterness and a sense of frustration that is turned slowly, through suffering, to determination and hope." (Sat R of Lit) For young readers.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun Je 11 '49 100w
Reviewed by H. F. Griswold
Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 28 '49 240w
Churchman 153:3 Je 15 '49 30w
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:130 Mr '49 90w

"The book is convincing and moving."
+ Kirkus 17:5 Ja 1 '49 150w

"The struggle, optimism and faith of this family are more than individual, yet the characterizations are satisfyingly individualized without sentimentality." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 74:828 My 15 '49 80w

"Though there are a few happy incidents and the book ends on a hopeful note, it is very questionable whether it would find an audience. Do not recommend." Sonja Wennerblad
— Library J 74:828 My 15 '49 90w

"The style seems 'younger' than necessary, but that may draw younger readers and lazy readers, which is all to the good. American children already have proved their warm-hearted generosity to European children; this story will explain the need for their generosity to continue." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ap 17 '49 120w

"The author worked with a group of young people sent by the American Friends Service Committee to help in rebuilding the devastated areas of Europe. Her sketches for this book were made on the spot, and her observations are real and well-said. The many characters in 'Jan's Victory' are separate and true, seen with warmth and humor. Highly recommended for young people from 12 on." Marjorie Fischer
+ N Y Times p24 Mr 13 '49 230w

"It is a moving story and one that emphasizes for boys and girls the utter futility of war. There is mystery and drama in it through the story of Jan's father and the carpenter of Vlissingen. Miss Bowen's intimate knowledge of Holland and its reconstruction of the devastated cities gives the book color and meaning. Her drawings have a feeling for the background and for the irrepressible humor and gaiety of the Dutch children."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 Mr 12 '49 140w
School & Society 69:63 Ja 22 '49 60w
Springf'd Republican p8C My 15 '49 110w
Wis Lib Bul 45:50 Mr '49

BOWEN, ELIZABETH (MRS ALAN CAMERON). Heat of the day. 372p $3 Knopf 49-420

Character studies of Stella Rodney, and the two men who loved her. The background is London after Dunkirk, a London of blitzes and buzz bombs; and peaceful Ireland. The two men are Robert Kelway, Stella's lover, and the mysterious Harrison, who betrays Kelway's secret in order to gain Stella for himself.

"Imagine a Graham Greene thriller projected through the sensibility of Virginia Woolf and transcribed with a certain amount of Jamesian over-elaboration—that may suggest, impressionistically, the flavor of Miss Bowen's admirable yet not quite successful novel." C. J. Rolo
+ — Atlantic 183:84 Ap '49 1100w
Booklist 45:225 Mr 1 '49

"Material is here for a splendid novel, but Miss Bowen's obliquity of approach causes the impact of blows to glance off center at an angle that makes you feel that the knock-out never quite comes off. Because of her evident desire to avoid the commonplace, Miss Bowen's sentences are sometimes slanted in such a way that they must be re-read to catch their meaning. . . Where Miss Bowen achieves her greatest distinction is in her Proustian evocation of things past." M. P. Corcoran
— + Cath World 169:74 Ap '49 370w
Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Chicago Sun p8X F 20 '49 500w

"Consistently, she refines towards greater precision, especially verbal precision. Since language is our major tool for apprehending the world around us, any clarification of language contributes to a heightened awareness, and a heightened awareness inevitably contributes to a richer sense of life. It is Miss Bowen's distinction to make that kind of contribution in 'The Heat of the Day.' In making it, she has written that illuminating book that most writers lose between the lines." Theodore Kalem
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 F 24 '49 1000w
Reviewed by Anne Fremantle
Commonweal 49:618 Ap 1 '49 600w
Kirkus 16:642 D 15 '48 210w

"Maybe the atmosphere is rarer here than in House in Paris (1936) and Death of the Heart (1939); and although of slighter attainment Heat of the Day is so well written that it will be welcomed by women who look forward to E. B.'s novels and by men who will indeed find Robert and Harrison provocative!" K. T. Willis
+ Library J 74:58 Ja 1 '49 100w
Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 25 '49 330w

"As a portrait of the English proletariat, the picture [of Louis] is no doubt biased—but biased with such love as produces its own lasting truth. When a writer has this much gift of penetration and affection, when she has as many true and useful things to say about life as Miss Bowen always has, surely she does not need to indulge her literary 'giftedness' as Miss Bowen does. . . It is not fair to accuse Miss Bowen of preferring light to heat; there is plenty of fire in her spirit. It is her style which dampens it—the relentless play of manner and mannerism to which her moral intention must constantly yield." Diana Trilling
Nation 168:254 F 26 '49 1150w

"All that Miss Bowen had to say on the subject—English (mostly London) life during that war—seems to have escaped into the shorter pieces. It is not merely that the stories stole the novel's thunder; the shorter pieces prove to have been the more appropriate vehicle for Miss Bowen's purpose. . . The failure of this book is disappointing, even surprising, but it reminds us that there has often been in Miss Bowen's work something slick, too much ease, a flair that would have its own way. But for her best work she almost deserves her great reputation." John Farrelly

New Repub 120:24 F 28 '49 800w

Reviewed by Walter Allen
New Statesman & Nation 37:208 F 26 '49 1500w

"Elizabeth Bowen has been called—with admiration—a writer's writer. This new novel suggests a fresh phase of development in her carefully wrought work, a progress already foreshadowed in her recent volume of short stories, 'Ivy Grips the Steps.' . . Miss Bowen's novel expertly flicks the rawness of several unsolved queries concerning loyalty and love and ponders the degree to which human beings are strangers to each other. More densely written than her earlier work, this study of behavior is a soberly shocking, compassionate baring of the confused and vulnerable human heart." Iris Barry
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 F 20 '49 700w

"If 'The Heat of the Day' falls short of being the remarkable novel it had every reason to be, the failure is not one of plot, nor of theme, nor of Miss Bowen's power to evoke, suggest and explore down oblique and little-frequented avenues the mysterious centers of human conduct. The fault is that she carries these bents and talents, which give her work its unique glow, too far. In her emphasis on all that is latent and intangible, her suppression of obvious and tangible events, she unbalances the novel. One aspect of reality is lost in discovering another. . . But when Miss Bowen is really writing rather than molding her prose, her discernments, focusings and descriptions construct themselves into compact and wonderfully substantial wholes." A. S. Morris
+ — N Y Times p1 F 20 '49 1050w

"In 'The Heat of the Day,' Miss Bowen's preoccupation is again the nature of this failure of love, but the problem is stated in so rich a variety of plots and sub-plots . . . that the novel teeters constantly on the brink of melodrama. Yet if it teeters, it never falls, for no writer living practices a sterner discipline than Miss Bowen, and if she consents, here and there, to a touch of mystification, so did her master, Henry James." Brendan Gill
+ New Yorker 24:88 F 19 '49 950w

"It has been said that the more intense the writer's feelings, the more exact will be the expression in words. That exactness is here as it has been in few of the recent novels. That is one of the distinguishing characteristics of Miss Bowen. But what most readers will remember best about this story is the emotional ambience she has created and the scenes that crystallize for Miss Bowen as they did for Henry James 'to the right, quiet lustre.'" Jane Voiles
+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 F 27 '49 700w

"This is an admirable novel, which it is gratifying to have offered to the reading public under that kind of commercial auspice —it is a Literary Guild selection—which, in this country at present, best guarantees success. . . Miss Bowen has great mastery of characterization; and though she somewhat elaborates, she works so quickly and quietly —and femininely, as with her fingertips—that nothing of the mystery of character is lost in the presentation, nothing is revealed prematurely. . . Even at the very end of the book, in the unmasking and the melodrama, she keeps and respects the essential element of the obscurity she had led us through— the soul, the subconscious, the unconscious (never does she give it these names)—as in the plainest daylight in reality something of the dead of night is ever present in places, a little here and a little there, shadows!" Glenway Wescott
+ Sat R of Lit 32:9 F 19 '49 600w

Reviewed by Olivia Manning
Spec 182:266 F 25 '49 1000w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 3 '49 500w

"It is no wonder that this novel, dense as a poem with symbol and suggestion, should be obscure in one or two places and loose in one or two others. It is nevertheless the strongest work of a writer whose rich and winning gifts, had it not been for a war and a conscience, need never have wrestled with any but private material. The Heat of the Day, for lack of great actors, is not a great novel; but it is one of those rare books that prove that the forces of history are never better understood than when a fine artistic intelligence applies itself to them."
+ Time 53:96 F 28 '49 1000w

Times [London] Lit Sup p152 Mr 5 '49 2700w

"Elizabeth Bowen, who has written with great subtlety and skill in the past, has not lived up to her own best standards in her The Heat of the Day." Orville Prescott
Yale R n s 38:766 summer '49 320w

BOWEN, ELIZABETH ETHEL. Economics simplified; ed. by George L. Rusby. 2d ed rev 234p $1 Schalkenbach
330.1 Economics 48-11560

"The title is an apt description of the book, which originated as adult education lectures, and may be used for classes or for personal reading. Includes discussion questions. This edition has had some editing in the interest of further simplification. It was first published in 1942." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 45:315 My 15 '49

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:821 My 15 '49 50w
School & Society 69:118 F 12 '49 40w

BOWEN, ROBERT SIDNEY. Player-manager. 187p $2 Lothrop
49-2153

A baseball story for ages eleven to sixteen. It tells how Chuck Lacey, after three years in a major league team, has to give up playing because of an injury. Then he took on the management of the team and proved that he could handle a pennant-winning team.

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 11 '49 80w

"Loose, free wheeling style, slangy, full of big deals and intrigues in typical sportswriter fashion, this isn't worth much as a book, but has an authenticity that boys who read nothing but baseball will take at a sitting."
+ — Kirkus 17:180 Ap 1 '49 150w

"This is just another baseball story, not too good and not too bad. It has suspense and it will be read. There are better baseball books, but this will be useful where there is a continual demand for new stories." Lillian Morrison
Library J 74:668 Ap 15 '49 70w

"This is an excellent junior novel—tense with excitement, filled with accurate baseball knowledge, marked by good characterization and plausible action. Chuck's struggle to make good in the face of a succcession of morale-crumbling accidents and reverses should prove inspiring to boys in their early 'teens." R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p26 Ap 10 '49 180w

BOWER, WILLIAM CLAYTON, and HAYWARD, PERCY ROY. Protestantism faces its educational task together. 292p $3.25 Nelson, C.C.
268 International council of religious education. Religious education 49-7898

"'It is written into the nature of things that some force is always at work, bringing togetherness out of separateness and unity out of contentions. God has willed it so.' This same force has been at work among Protestant denominations of North America. The Sunday School movement took part in this Protestant thrust toward unity. The urge toward oneness produced a merger of organizations into the International Council of Religious Education, etc. This book is the story of that development in Christian education." (School & Society) Index.

BOWER, W. C.—Continued

"The International Council is big business, but what are its significant products? Last year its budget was over $616,000. It has 20 well organized departments. It deals with the educational programs of 40 denominations—the great majority of American Protestants—through its constituent members. This book tells of its many activities, but it fails to evaluate what has been done or to outline the basic tasks that remain under present world conditions." E. J. Chave
Christian Century 66:679 Je 1 '49 1500w

"The volume contains a wealth of historical data of importance to the student of religious education. The reviewer gained the impression early in his reading, however, that the authors were so affectionately related to the Council that no event or personality in its history could rightly be omitted. Even the dates of the staff resignations were apparently thought important. But despite the minutiae of detail and seriatim reporting, the authors have achieved an integrative and interpretive quality of historical writing." P. B. Irwin
+ Crozer Q 26:348 O '49 1350w
School & Society 69:159 F 26 '49 80w

BOWERS, GWENDOLYN. Adventures of Philippe; a story of old Kebec; il by Fritz Kredel. 153p $2.50 Aladdin 49-8662

Story of a ten-year-old French boy's search for his father in seventeenth-century Quebec. For ages eight to twelve.

Booklist 45:339 Je 1 '49

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 170:212 D '49 50w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:285 Jl '49 120w

"Excellent historical fiction at a young reading level. Highly recommended."
+ Kirkus 17:149 Mr 15 '49 140w

"Especially suitable as background material for the study of France in the New World for young readers and also for remedial reading." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 74:895 Je 1 '49 70w

"It is a very good story for 'middle-age' boys and girls. Plenty of unusual vivid details of old French pioneer ways and an interesting variety of people, giving a rich sense of all layers of life in the colony. Excellent type and distinguished illustrations." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 My 8 '49 160w

"Gives a valuable picture of life in that early settlement." H. K. Lippmann
+ N Y Times p28 My 22 '49 180w

BOWLE, JOHN. Western political thought; 2v [v. 1] An historical introduction from the origins to Rousseau. 472p $5 Oxford
320.9 Political science—History (49-7284)

"This book undertakes to describe the main evolution of Western political thought from its remotest roots to the end of the eighteenth century, analyzing the texts of the most important writers and filling in the social background which conditioned their thinking. . . Mr. Bowle manages to deal efficiently with quite a list of them from Hammurabi of Babylon . . . to Edmund Burke, and still find room for a short essay on primitive magic and religion, a sketch of the Greek city state, an explanation of the decline and fall of the Roman empire, a note on the seamier side of Merovingian family life, a section on feudalism, another on the Reformation, and some brisk remarks on the dawn of experimental science in the fifteenth century, on the Cartesian rationalism of the seventeenth century, and on the sentimental enlightenment of the eighteenth." Sat R of Lit

"Mr. Bowle's book is an attempt to treat political thought as part of general political history. Unfortunately it is not a successful attempt. A book such as Mr. Bowle's that attempts to 'treat political thinkers within the context of their contemporary social background' should at least give us some new understanding of the major historical periods if not of the major political thinkers. What Mr. Bowle has to say about both, however, borders on the trite." P. F. Drucker
— Am Hist R 55:92 O '49 650w

"The author is an interesting and able writer, and he ranges through his wide knowledge of authors and languages with assurance and ease. But only if one agrees with most of Mr. Bowle's seemingly preponderant judgments will he admit that the book will be as useful for the American student as for the student in Wadham College at Oxford." F. G. Wilson
+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:606 Je '49 600w

"Mr. Bowle, a lecturer in modern history at the University of Oxford, has written a comprehensive, illuminating, and stimulating study on the main evolution of western political thought. . . It is impossible to do justice in a brief review to the wealth and clarity of Mr Bowle's work. Although there can be no substitute for studying the original writings of the great thinkers he deals with, his book is extremely useful in providing an over all picture of the changing doctrines on the relationship between state and individual." E. S. P.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 22 '49 500w

"Throughout the style is clear, sensible, straightforward, without confusing qualification or hesitancies. I have rarely seen a textbook which read so easily or left its main assertions lying so firmly in the memory. And no one who read it and remembered it would need to be at loss for something acceptable to say about any of these political philosophers whose name happened to come up." Garrett Mattingly
+ Sat R of Lit 32:14 F 19 '49 550w

Reviewed by Michael Oakeshott
Spec 179:626 N 14 '47 600w
Times [London] Lit Sup p669 D 27 '47 4000w

BOWLES, PAUL FREDERIC. Sheltering sky. 318p $2.75 New directions
49-11888

"Three Park Avenue candidates for the lost generation, man and wife and male hanger on, travel into North Africa seeking and escaping things unclear to themselves. . . Husband dies of typhoid. Wife gets lost in deep Sahara and ends up in a harem." Library J

"Although pledged to austerity, I can't say less of The Sheltering Sky than it seems to me one of the most interesting American novels published in 1949, a complex and subtly wrought piece of work. . . The last part of the novel seemed to me to verge on the preposterous." C. J. Rolo
+ — Atlantic 185:83 Ja '50 950w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p36 D 22 '49 600w

"For magnificence of description, 'The Sheltering Sky' is one of the most gripping first novels of many a day. If it is faintly reminiscent of Ernest Hemingway's 'The Sun Also Rises' in the futility with which its characters face and live life, and, obviously in the mood of the existentialists, it also is brilliantly individualistic." Fanny Butcher
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 18 '49 600w

"Disintegration of personality is the theme of 'The Sheltering Sky.' An ugly theme at best, it is developed here with the hideous urgency of nightmare, each episode more macabre and imperative than the last, until the whole mad dream is consciously exorcized." Ruth Chapin
Christian Science Monitor p14 D 23 '49 360w

"It has been a number of years since a first novel by an American has contained as much literary persuasion and original interest as The Sheltering Sky. . . It is also the first time to my knowledge that an American novelist has met the French Existentialists on their ground and held them to a draw. From the first page to the last, the story stealthily increases in suspense and insinuation." Florence Codman
+ Commonweal 51:346 D 30 '49 550w

"A strange book, bitter, clever, for an intellectual audience."
Kirkus 17:608 N 1 '49 150w

"Derivative of Gide; occasionally perceptive, occasionally literature. Not generally recommended." R. E. Kingery
— Library J 74:1753 N 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset
Manchester Guardian p4 S 30 '49 130w

"The Sheltering Sky is probably the strangest and, in its third section, the most sensational novel by an American to appear in 1949. Indeed, the only thing not strange about it is the quality of Paul Bowles's prose—which is simple, unaffected yet powerful, marred occasionally (as are so many contemporary novels) by the use of that ugly, pointless phrase, 'to be sure.'" James Stern
+ — New Repub 122:20 Ja 2 '50 360w

"This is a rather puzzling book, and I think that whatever interpretation one puts upon it there are some jarring false notes. Yet it is a book worth a bit of puzzling, worth discussing, and worth re-reading." J. D. Scott
+ — New Statesman & Nation 38:404 O 8 '49 270w

"Like 'The Waste Land,' 'The Sheltering Sky' concerns itself with the sterility of the modern spirit. Mr. Bowles has developed this theme in a brilliantly written and expertly constructed first novel which may be read at several levels of meaning." J. J. Maloney
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 D 25 '49 750w

"With the hesitant exception of one or two war books by returned soldiers, 'The Sheltering Sky' alone of the books that I have recently read by American authors appears to bear the spiritual imprint of recent history in the western world. Here the imprint is not visible upon the surface of the novel. It exists far more significantly in a certain philosophical aura that envelops it." Tennessee Williams
+ N Y Times p7 D 4 '49 1100w

Reviewed by John Broderick
New Yorker 25:118 D 17 '49 550w

"The book gets so far out of hand that it becomes reminiscent of 'The Sheik.' Mr. Bowles is a better hand at exploring human interiors than he is at the straight adventure tale. Here, as a sort of combination of Henry James and Frederic Prokosch, he fluffs both. His account of Kit Moresby's Moslem captivity cuts in pretty close on Elinor Glynn, too. Which leaves us with little more than a sensitively written report about people just a shade more tangible than ghosts." Nelson Algren
— + Sat R of Lit 32:18 D 17 '49 550w

Reviewed by Stevie Smith
Spec 183:584 O 28 '49 180w
Time 54:110 D 5 '49 550w

"Mr. Bowles has conjured out of the bizarre interior journey made in the Sahara by an American couple whose marriage has gone off the boil, a series of remarkable episodes, each of which, though increasingly macabre and pointless, still retains some kind of hallucinatory logic. It is possibly only the logic of the horrifying absurd, of that realm where sexual frustration acquires a garish fulfilment. But it is an intense logic in which passion, jealousy, indifference, rape and lunacy follow one another with a kind of ritual compulsion."
Times [London] Lit Sup p629 S 30 '49 310w

BOWMAN, HENRY ADELBERT. Marriage for moderns. (Whittlesey house publication) 2d ed 544p il $5; text ed $4 McGraw 173.1 Marriage 48-2318

"Student needs, interests, and abilities form the primary focus of this book by Dr. Bowman, who heads the marriage education program at Stephens College. The author bases the book on the questions students ask about marriage and preparation for marriage. The approach is functional rather than academic and should prove to be useful in helping students to develop a healthy attitude towards marriage." (Social Educ) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1942.

"This book will continue to be one of the most satisfactory textbooks for use in marriage courses." L. D. Rockwood
+ J Home Econ 41:40 Ja '49 270w

"I recommend this book highly as a text in marriage education courses during the first two years of college. While high schools seldom have courses with the marriage label, the book contains much useful material for segments of other courses dealing with this area. Anyone concerned with the task of helping young people achieve satisfactory adjustments to marriage will find this book most helpful." Orden Smucker
+ Social Educ 13:46 Ja '49 360w

Reviewed by R. W. Kernodle
Social Forces 27:454 My '49 350w

"This is a good book to aid young people in preparing for marriage. It is the product of the author's experience in teaching a marriage course at Stephens College. While written primarily for students at the junior college level, it is well suited for secondary schools and discussion groups." M. S. Greth
+ Social Studies 40:187 Ap '49 480w

BOWRA, CECIL MAURICE. Creative experiment. 255p $3 Macmillan
809.1 Poetry. Poets [49-9216]

"Brings together a group of heirs who, in one way or another, have turned away from their bequest—seven poets, active during the last forty years, who can be considered as innovators. They are Cavafy, Mayakovsky, Apollinaire, Pasternak, Eliot, Lorca and Alberti. The family reunion is certainly polyglot; and it might well be doubted whether any share in a common Zeitgeist could link together such disparates as Mayakovsky, the revolutionary soap-box orator of verse; epicene Cavafy, tucked away in Alexandria to compose his dry commentaries on the Hellenic centuries; Lorca and his gipsy Romancero; the Eliot of The Waste Land; the full blood of Apollinaire and the narrow intensity of Alberti's introspection." (Spec) Index.

Reviewed by Denham Sutcliffe
Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 30 '49 720w

"His skill as an interpreter whose scholarship is as careful as his knowledge of European poetry and his sympathy are wide is most attractively displayed. Sensitive, too, as he is to the distinctive quality of each of his subjects, he sees in their work significant aspects of the general movement which he defines in his first chapter as one of creative experiment." H. I'A. F.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 8 '49 240w

Reviewed by Edward Sackville-West
New Statesman & Nation 37:285 Ap 16 '49 950w

"With his lucidity, his willingness to offer explicit interpretation of difficult work, his ability to analyze his own sensitive reactions, Bowra renders his readers a service which, rightly received, will not be limited to their experience of the writers examined in this book." Herbert Barrows
+ N Y Times p6 Je 5 '49 1050w

"Bowra is a good critic because he understands not only the aesthetic process (what the poet sets out to do, and how he does it), insofar as it can be understood, but also the aesthetic experience (what the sympathetic reader receives from the poem). And he is on the poet's side, since he realizes what infinite and inexhaustible vitality, spiritual and mental, is required in order that, in our time, as in any other, 'the maximum of truth and of poetical effect' may be secured." Louise Bogan
+ New Yorker 25:63 Ag 27 '49 700w

BOWRA, C. M.—Continued
Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 18 '49 100w

"The main thing is that Professor Bowra understands the creative process and writes about these poets with the insight of one who has followed their wrestling with their visions with warm sympathy." David Daiches
+ Sat R of Lit 32:10 S 24 '49 650w

Reviewed by Ronald Lewin
Spec 182:406 Mr 25 '49 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p264 Ap 23 '49 3250w

BOWRA, CECIL MAURICE. Romantic imagination. 306p $4.50 Harvard univ. press 821.09 English poetry. Romanticism
49-11118

"The warden of Wadham College, Oxford, and former Professor of Poetry, who writes this book, is a scholar internationally known for his studies of both classical and modern literature. He brings to the discussion of the major poets of the English Romantic Movement an unusually wide range of reference which permits him to move chronologically from Homer to T. S. Eliot and geographically from Spanish America to Soviet Russia. . . In a final chapter Mr. Bowra summarizes the achievement and also the limitations of romantic poetry, since after all it is not equal to the universal poetry of a Homer or a Dante." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) Index.

"There is not much in this book which has not been said before. At times Mr. Bowra does not seem quite convinced that what he says is true, and, at times, he appears to defeat his own thesis. . . Some of the observations about the possible sources of Keats' Ode to a Grecian Urn sound like pages from Joyce's satiric section on the academic style. All in all, this is a middling version of the Romantic temperament in a middling, antiquarian tone." George Miles
— Commonweal 51:253 D 2 '49 400w

"His great erudition is handled lightly. His critical judgments, though given with quiet authority, are distinguished by unfailing lucidity and a keen sense of when just enough has been said. Mr. Bowra, furthermore, has skillfully avoided the temptation to indulge in easy generalizations on a familiar theme." G. F. Whicher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 D 4 '49 800w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ja 8 '50 80w

School & Society 70:255 O 15 '49 30w

"The general reader should find the book readable and stimulating; if the essays lack the pungency of style of (say) Grierson, Garrod, and C. S. Lewis, they perhaps make up for it by a firm, quiet equability and patience which are, in the total effect, very winning." F. A. Pottle
+ Yale R n s 39:346 winter '50 700w

BOWRA, CECIL MAURICE, ed. Second book of Russian verse; tr. into English by various hands. 153p $3 Macmillan 891.71 Russian poetry [49-7252]

"This book is intended to be a kind of sequel to A Book of Russian Verse published in 1943. It contains pieces both from a number of poets not there represented, especially among the forerunners and contemporaries of Pushkin and from among poets who have risen to prominence since 1917. It does not claim to be complete or even very representative, though I hope that it will give some idea of the range and variety of Russian poetry in the last hundred and fifty years." (Pref) Index of authors.

Reviewed by J. M. Cohen
New Statesman & Nation 37:412 Ap 23 '49 1000w

"In general, Professor Bowra possesses, though in an unequal degree, the two qualities that are necessary for a good translator—faithfulness to the spirit of the original and real poetic talent. Perhaps perfection can be attained only when the translator is entirely bilingual and a poet of distinction in his own right. Few of the other translators in this volume have the skill of Professor Bowra, but mention should be made of the efforts of Oliver Elton, Frances Cornford, and Y. Hornstein, whose renderings of Gumilev are especially well done. On the whole, Professor Bowra deserves our renewed gratitude for performing what is so commonly regarded as an ungrateful task—the translation of poetry. His 'Second Book' will help to convey further to those who do not read the language the extent and richness of the treasury of Russian verse." E. J. Simmons
+ N Y Times p6 F 6 '49 1350w

New Yorker 25:108 Mr 12 '49 100w

"The author of this review is unhappily familiar with the difficulties of translation. . . But sympathetic as she cannot help but be with Mr. Bowra and his fellow translators, she finds it equally difficult to accept the results of their labors. There are better versions extant of a number of the pieces that he includes, and the work of some of the most interesting poets represented, among them Blok, Mayakovsky, and Pasternak, is offered in versions that do nothing like justice to their performance. There is a scant handful of good pieces here, notably those by the hands of such accomplished writers of verse as Frances Cornford and the late Oliver Elton." Babette Deutsch
— + Sat R of Lit 32:33 F 12 '49 320w

"The welcome given in these columns to the earlier anthology of Russian poems in translation which Dr. Bowra presented in 1943 must be extended to A Second Book of Russian Verse. Some dozen translators, mostly the same hands as before, here exhibit the same enthusiasm and skill, the same nice devotion that distinguished the previous volume."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p710 D 18 '48 800w

BOYCE, BURKE. Cloak of folly. 289p $3 Harper
Oxford, Edward De Vere, 17th earl of—Fiction
49-11093

Historical novel based on the life story of the seventeenth Earl of Oxford, poet and courtier in Elizabethan times, and, (according to this writer among others), the true author of the Shakespearean plays.

Reviewed by V. P. Hass
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 11 '49 400w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 12 '50 240w

Kirkus 17:406 Ag 1 '49 150w

Reviewed by E. B. Davis
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 O 9 '49 650w

"If the dignity of Oxford's ideals is sometimes blurred, it is chiefly through the author's efforts to treat us to every sensation permitted a nobleman of that day. Because Mr. Boyce has as conscientiously resurrected the Elizabethan scene, there is a great deal of medieval sight-seeing crowded into one novel." Jane Martin
+ — N Y Times p36 O 16 '49 270w

"Mr. Boyce, like more serious scholars before him, is able to produce much more plausible cultural and political background for his candidate than has ever been dug up for the Stratford boy, but he doesn't unveil much evidence of the Earl's sparkling literary inspiration. The narrative is filled out with a quota of sixteenth-century intrigue, passages at arms, and earthy dialogue."
+ — New Yorker 25:134 O 15 '49 100w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 O 30 '49 140w

"This book makes lively and lusty reading, with a literary flavor. Mr. Boyce can be proud of 'Cloak of Folly.' " B. F.
+ Sat R of Lit 32:45 N 19 '49 270w

Springf'd Republican p17A Ja 8 '50 60w

BOYD, ANDREW KIRK HENRY, and BOYD, FRANCES. Western union; a study of the trend toward European unity. 183p $3 Public affairs press

940.55 Europe—Politics 49-8140

"A thorough discussion of the movement for European federation, detailing its long history, which goes back at least to the time of Dante, and analyzing the plans that have been advanced for putting it on a working basis. In an extensive appendix, the authors reprint significant treaties, resolutions, and speeches, including the address made by Winston Churchill in Zurich in 1946." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by T. K. Ford
Am Hist R 55:184 O '49 250w

Am Pol Sci R 43:623 Je '49 250w

"This little volume is well written and contains much useful information. It is also a well-reasoned interpretation of the movement for European unity from the economic point of view." T. V. Kalijarvi
+ Ann Am Acad 264:126 Jl '49 330w

Booklist 45:352 Je 15 '49

"A complementary work of genuine value." Henry Sowerby
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 14 '49 50w

Foreign Affairs 27:678 Jl '49 40w

Reviewed by Harry Baehr
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Je 12 '49 450w

New Yorker 25:106 Ap 16 '49 80w

"This story is told without much insight, but it is such an exciting story that it has produced an interesting book. That the book falls so far below books like 'The West at Bay,' by Barbara Ward, can be easily explained. The Boyds are no more convinced than Miss Ward is that Western Europe must form a government without Russia. . . That they lack her hard-bitten economic analysis is excusable. What is not excusable is their apparent unawareness that many of their premises are matters for argument." Stringfellow Barr
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:33 Je 18 '49 550w

"Aside from its tantalizing brevity, this book has three marked defects. In the first place, it gives little attention to the very real obstacles in the way of European union. Secondly, the book was written in 1948 and does not cover events since the Congress of Europe at The Hague. . . And finally, the publishers have not helped by using very fine print and poor quality paper, and at the same time charging a relatively high price for an unattractive volume." N. D. Palmer
Social Studies 40:331 N '49 1000w

"'Western Union' is an admirable reference book for all those, including isolationist Americans, who have to face the possibility of finding themselves, by war or by peace, whether they like it or not, citizens of one world." Julie d'Estournelles
+ Survey 85:401 Jl '49 400w

BOYD, LOUISE ARNER, and others. Coast of northeast Greenland; with hydrographic studies in the Greenland sea; the Louise A. Boyd expedition of 1937 and 1938. 339p il maps $6 Am. geographical soc.

919.8 Louise A. Boyd expeditions to east Greenland, 1937-1938. Natural history—Greenland. Greenland 48-4606

"An illustrated report on the scientific observations of expeditions to Greenland in 1937-38, with a separate case of maps." Foreign Affairs

Foreign Affairs 27:510 Ap '49 20w

"This present volume of Miss Boyd's together with its companion folio of charts and panoramic photographs, is a belated report of her 1937 and 1938 expeditions. It so happened that the reports were ready about the time the armies of Germany crashed into the Lowlands and Norway and Denmark. So for security reasons, the Boyd expedition reports were withheld from print and served as a basis for much of the U. S. Military operations in the Greenland area after the American entry into the war. This delay, however, has not diminished one bit the value of Miss Boyd's account. Her work is still the freshest and best documented account available on that glacial north coast of Greenland." Scott Newhall
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 D 12 '48 500w

BOYD, MARTIN. Bridget Malwyn [Eng title: Such pleasure]. 317p $3 Dutton 49-6833

"The adventurous life of the illegitimate daughter of an Irish peer and a poor governess. From the time she is seven until she is fifteen, Bridget lives with her father, Lord Malwyn, in his castle in Galway. After his death, which occurs early in the story, she is sent to live with her mother's middle-class relatives in England, and life never seems the same to her again." New Yorker

Booklist 46:97 N 15 '49

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 25 '49 180w

Kirkus 17:441 Ag 15 '49 190w

Reviewed by J. D. Scott
New Statesman & Nation 38:281 S 10 '49 480w

"Mr. Martin Boyd, whose 'Lucinda Brayford' was high on the list of last year's fiction, now offers its successor, 'Bridget Malwyn.' Though it is not a better novel, it has the same excellent quality of being thoroughly interesting from first word to last and, like its predecessor, its pages are populous in a very satisfying and old-fashioned sense—no thin slices of life." James Hilton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 N 27 '49 800w

"The book, like Mr. Boyd's previous 'Lucinda Brayford,' has Victorian fullness of character and incident. It has warmth, particularly in the scenes where the rich Bridget forsakes her social climbing to go back to the drapery shop for a cozy chat with people who know all about her, with whom she can drop all pretense. Mr. Boyd doesn't seem quite to know whether he thinks her admirable or not. But for those who still can relish the old story-book world, this novel will provide entertainment." Horace Reynolds
+ N Y Times p36 O 23 '49 140w

New Yorker 25:154 N 12 '49 80w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 N 27 '49 160w

"There is a compelling and savage splendor to Bridget's story, despite the spiritual deterioration that all but obscures her gallantry of purpose. Even when she goes out of her way to outrage the reader, she usually wins him back as she won back Lady Kirriemuir. True, her amusement at the expense of her son's religious order shocks beyond forgiveness. She meant it too. Her intention is of a piece with the author's elegant irony, the glee of his social satire, and the cerebral originality of his humor." A. F. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 32:23 D 3 '49 550w

Reviewed by R. D. Charques
Spec 183:368 S 16 '49 270w

"An unevenness in the writing and occasional improbability of dialogue and situation turn what might have been a good novel into an entertainment which is, nevertheless, above the average."
Times [London] Lit Sup p581 S 9 '49 300w

BOYLE, KAY. His human majesty. (Whittlesey house publication) 295p $3 McGraw 49-8270

"Her story is about a ski troop practising maneuvers in the Colorado mountains in the winter of 1944. They are a band of war emigrés drawn from every people that has at this date been vanquished by the Nazis: Austrians, Poles, Jews, Norwegians, Dutch, French, salted with a scattering of English, Irish, and Americans. They are a kind of Foreign Legion preparing for the eventual assault upon the

BOYLE, KAY—Continued
Continent. The story details some of their heartbreaking routines of practice upon the mountains in the bitter cold, some of their actions and reactions in barracks and towns, some of their personal obsessions, and a few of the clashes among them." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 45:201; 281 F 15 '49; Ap 15 '49

"If you are making up a list of books for the torrid season, be sure to include this air-and-snow-conditioned book. By sheer wizardry of words, you will actually feel the rarified atmosphere, see the mountains and slopes snow-spangled and breathe the clear air scented with pine and balsam." M. P. Corcoran
+ Cath World 169:317 Jl '49 350w

Reviewed by Jex Martin
Chicago Sun Ap 26 '49 550w

Christian Science Monitor p11 My 5 '49 450w

"This tour-de-force might have fared better if Kay Boyle had more of an eye for the masculine side of male character. In a novel concerning soldiers in an Army camp, this deficiency is calamitous. . . The cultivation and decency of the half-English ex-school-teacher Fennington and his friends who engage in admirable gestures of rescue and friendship, might have carried out the author's intent of characterizing attractive types if their dialogue did not so constantly clash with the way soldiers really talk." Peter White
— Commonweal 50:155 My 20 '49 350w

Kirkus 17:117 Mr 1 '49 160w

"Very good Kay Boyle which means very good indeed. Has real as distinguished from trumped-up literary distinction. . . Recommended of course." R. E. Kingery
+ Library J 74:546 Ap 1 '49 80w

"One always expects the impossible of Kay Boyle—and almost always gets it. For she has an admirable—and I think unmatched—faculty for capturing the well-nigh inexpressible and impaling it upon her sharp incandescent prose. . . As always Miss Boyle's handling of her setting is superb. The bright, dry cold, the stimulating, menacing quality of the snow-smitten mountains are in contrast to the smoky, humid oases of the mining-camp saloons in which the men seek a crowded refuge from their boredom." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Ap 10 '49 800w

"Talking with forced and quite genteel humor, and an occasional flash of Saroyanesque camaraderie, none of the members of Miss Boyle's cast says or does anything that hints at the depths we glimpse in passages of italicized streams of consciousness. . . But in the end her long-range view amounts to nothing more than an omnipotent camera eye before which the war all but fades from view and her characters become simple projections of her highly emotional responses." Nona Balakian
N Y Times p21 Ap 10 '49 500w

New Yorker 25:106 Ap 30 '49 180w

"If any woman could be expected to handle the subject convincingly, Miss Boyle would seem to be the candidate most likely to succeed. So it is disappointing to report that she has failed as obviously as many a lesser writer. And one reason this is so is because the book is alternately sentimental—even though its sentimentality is in the modern manner—and outspoken to a degree that suggests bravado rather than naturalism." Carolyn Stull
— + San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 10 '49 950w

"Even when the miracle doesn't come off—as it does not in this novel—even when the gears turn and the music soars, yet nothing is revealed but the fine hands of the operator, still the process is an exciting thing to behold. Miss Boyle can so compel us with symbols that we are lulled almost into accepting them as the stuff of life. It is only, in this case, the very harsh and contemporary character of the tale she has chosen to tell that dispels her charms and reveals, this time, their impotence." N. L. Rothman
Sat R of Lit 32:13 Ap 9 '49 850w

BOZEMAN, MRS ADDA BRUEMMER. Regional conflicts around Geneva. (Hoover lib. ser. on war, revolution and peace. Publication) 432p $5 Stanford univ. press

949.4 Europe—Politics. Geneva. Savoy. Savoie, Haute, France (department). Gex, France 49-10185

"A historical inquiry into the origin, nature, and implications of the neutralized zone of Savoy and of the customs-free zones of Gex and Upper Savoy. Professor Bozeman (Sarah Lawrence) reviews the history of the area with particular detail of the past century, including emphasis on the Versailles Treaty in relation to those provinces." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index.

"The monograph throughout reveals meticulous scholarly use of rock-bottom source materials. Long in process of production (apparently the work was finished in 1941), the book reflects commendable maturation of thought. . . More maps interspersed throughout would have helped the reader follow the tortuous negotiations." Henry Reiff
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:1302 D '49 340w

Current Hist 17:226 O '49 60w

BRACE, GERALD WARNER. Summer's tale. 281p $3 Norton

49-9215

The scene of this summer idyll is the August Islands off the coast of Maine. The islands were uncharted, because they belonged neither to the United States nor Canada. The inhabitants were descendants of French refugees who had settled there before the Pilgrims landed, and the descendants of some English pirates. The ruling family were charming, civilized, informed people, and made a habit of marrying Boston heiresses, so there was always plenty of money. This is the story of the summer Anthony Wyatt, an American author, spent on the islands.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 184:82 Jl '49 480w

Booklist 45:325; 335 Je 1 '49

"The author's style is good and his enthusiasm for the natural beauties of New England and for the life of an amateur mariner contagious. However, his attempt to allegorize concerning the ideal state suffers both from a careless superficiality which makes it uninteresting and a political flabbiness and moral muddle-headedness which renders it suspect."
— + Cath World 169:479 S '49 220w

Reviewed by Clare Jaynes
Chicago Sun Je 22 '49 370w

"Although this gentle fantasy lacks the stature or pretensions of Mr. Brace's 'The Garretson Chronicle,' it embodies considerable acute social insight."
Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 9 '49 390w

"Nothing much emerges from this lighthearted jumble. How account for such disparity between successive books? Perhaps the basis for his Garretson book was autobiographical—if not biographical. June and Tony of A Summer's Tale seem to be, instead, the author's ideally attractive and intelligent young woman and young man, sheer figments of his rather lively imagination. The fact that his latest novel is consciously less ambitious need not necessarily have resulted in a story so slightly integrated. Its flashes of bright banter, minor sea adventures and periodically appreciative New England touches do not add up to enough." E. S. S.
Commonweal 50:250 Je 17 '49 250w

"There's a certain unworldly charm about it. Recommend to women who want to feel young again, who want unsullied romance and escape. But an odd lack of humor which might have saved it from becoming cloying makes the book too unreal for even the delighted market for I Capture the Castle, which is the inevitable comparison."
Kirkus 17:185 Ap 1 '49 260w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
— New Repub 120:18 Je 27 '49 100w

"A whimsically romantic yarn that must have been fun to write and is fun to read." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 Je 12 '49 550w

"Well worth any reader's investigation. Sometimes the stage is a bit crowded; on occasion even the expert director seems a bit breathless as he matches American isolationist with American liberal, crusading newspaper woman with admiral, romance with reality. But the reviewer must add instantly that even the minor actors are alive—the sort of people one would like to know better, even though they play but a single scene. One closes the book with the conviction that Mr. Brace's Atlantic Eden is none the worse for its brush with the U.S.A.—and that it will keep its character intact, even when next summer's tourists descend in droves." C. V. Terry

+ N Y Times p4 Je 12 '49 460w

"This Down East idyll has a glancing resemblance to innumerable utopian chronicles but lacks the didactic quality of most of them. . . Mr. Brace wisely makes next to no attempt at either credibility or sermonizing, and his offshore excursion is both urbane and satisfyingly romantic."

+ New Yorker 25:97 Je 11 '49 160w

"This is a summer novel written as an allegory. But one, unfortunately, that never comes off. No doubt Mr. Brace feels very strongly about the things he discusses in this novel, but he never succeeds in making the reader feel them too." Marc Rivette

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 16 '49 700w

"Magic and charm are woven with reality and occasionally rude satire presents its ugly countenance to view. It is a romantic comedy, a summer night's dream, an adventure and a love story bound together in one book. The reader of any age to whom romance has once beckoned, who has dreamed of islands, or who has ever sailed a boat, cannot fail to enjoy this novel." Harrison Smith

+ Sat R of Lit 32:20 Je 25 '49 550w

"'A Summer's Tale' is a shimmering and magical 20th century 'Tempest' complete even to Caliban, and generously enriched with unbelievable characters who deport themselves in incredible ways." L. S. Munn

+ Springf'd Republican p7B Jl 24 '49 300w

Wis Lib Bul 45:106 Je '49

BRACKEN, DOROTHY KENDALL. Rodeo; il. by Elizabeth Rice. [32p] $2 Steck

791.3 Rodeos 49-49572

Picture book describing a rodeo, from the grand entry to the grand finale.

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun S 3 '49 30w

"Subject matter, presentation, superb pictures in clear, brilliant colors, all contribute to making this a popular picture book at an age level well beyond picture book average."

+ Kirkus 17:426 Ag 15 '49 160w

Reviewed by Mary Strang

Library J 74:1206 S 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker

Library J 74:1534 O 15 '49 70w

"Author and illustrator have made a book for children which is not too childish, being selective reporting on this beloved spectacle of the West. Both are talented. The result is colorful realism without the least 'arty' touch, in words or pictures. It will delight many ages of children." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 S 11 '49 150w

"Those who have already seen a rodeo in the West will delight in recapturing the heady excitement of that unique American institution. This is not a story, but a briskly exclamatory description. . . The bright, realistic pictures in poster style are distinguished more by their sense of movement than by their artistry, but they will give a great deal of pleasure to those youngsters whose appetites for cowboy books are insatiable." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p26 O 9 '49 110w

BRADEN, CHARLES SAMUEL. These also believe; a study of modern American cults and minority religious movements. 491p $6 Macmillan

280.973 Religions. U.S.—Religion 49-8917

Studies of thirteen minority religious movements, all of which were either born on American soil or have had their major development here. Contents: The Peace mission movement of Father Divine; Psychiana; New thought; Unity school of Christianity; Christian Science; Theosophy; The I am movement; The Liberal Catholic church; Spiritualism; Jehovah's witnesses; Anglo-Israel; The Oxford group movement; Mormonism. Selected bibliography. Brief dictionary of modern cults and minority religious groups in America. Index.

"The book is a story of the wonderful 'variety of religious experience.' It makes fascinating reading by reason of its subject matter, although Professor Braden aptly enriches its interest by a popular writing style." H. H. Stroup

+ Ann Am Acad 266:239 N '49 550w

"These faiths are making a strong bid for the affections and loyalties of the people whom the churches have passed by and of the people who have been complacently lulled into a religion devoid of modern miracles and lacking in adventurous faith. Protestantism must awake. . . We are being challenged, and this book written by one of Protestantism's best interpreters is proof that we, too, are vulnerable." Marcus Bach

+ Christian Century 66:823 Jl 6 '49 2000w

Churchman 163:15 Je 1 '49 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '49

Reviewed by R. E. E. Harkness

Crozer Q 27:79 Ja '50 500w

"Every student of the contemporaneous American scene and the role of religion in it should be indebted to Professor Braden for this interesting and enlightening volume."

+ Kirkus 17:141 Mr 15 '49 180w

Reviewed by McAlister Coleman

Nation 169:304 S 24 '49 1150w

"The author has sought to give information. This he has done very well (though sometimes with tongue in cheek). However, in reading this book it must not be forgotten that in religious discussion strong personalities, loyalties and antipathies are always present." G. R. Stephenson

N Y Times p13 Ap 14 '49 270w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles

San Francisco Chronicle p11 Jl 10 '49 700w

"I fell upon the book with interest and read it with respect. I must say that the results are even better than I had reason to expect. First of all, Braden has done direct and personal research. . . The manifest limitations from which other books suffer lend Braden's book a considerable luster by contrast. Hence it is practically impossible to offer an honest estimate of it or to predict the impression it is likely to make on the reader whose interest is casual. All I can say is that it is far and away the best piece of work I know in an almost unbelievably neglected field." C. W. Ferguson

+ Sat R of Lit 32:19 Jl 2 '49 750w

Reviewed by J. W. Culver

Springf'd Republican p5D Je 5 '49 800w

BRADFORD, ROARK. Green Roller; with drawings by Peter Burchard. 118p $2 Harper

818 49-8435

Tales of the Green Roller who preached the word of God up and down the swamp lands of Louisiana, and when he died left twelve men he had trained to carry on his work.

Booklist 45:351 Je 15 '49

Kirkus 17:93 F 15 '49 130w

BRADFORD, ROARK—Continued
Reviewed by Gerald McDonald
Library J 74:958 Je 15 '49 100w

"Mr. Bradford has a fairly good, if not too subtle, ear, and each sermon swings along with a characteristic plausibly hortatory and incantative cadence." Rolfe Humphries
+ Nation 168:589 My 21 '49 180w

" 'The Green Roller' is a happy last testament of a singularly rich talent and a human heart." Marc Connelly
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 My 1 '49 900w

" 'The Green Roller' will delight everyone who has a chance to read it aloud, and, later on, delight also those listeners who get a chance to read it to themselves in peace and quiet." Charles Poore
+ N Y Times p4 Ap 17 '49 600w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 29 '49 90w

"These sermons are filled with striking images, the moving beauty of the simple speech of a people simple in the sense that they spend their lives with the wind, the weather, and growing things, the knowledge that man is not perfect and the Lord, therefore, does not ask perfection of him, the further knowledge that without faith he is a shriveled gourd." D. L. Cohn
+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 My 28 '49 550w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p8C My 8 '49 210w

Wis Lib Bul 45:86 My '49

BRADLEY, DAVID JOHN. No place to hide. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 182p $2 Little 612.014482 Atomic bomb—Physiological effect. Atomic energy 48-9321

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Reviewed by R. E. Sherwood
Atlantic 183:77 F '49 2150w

Reviewed by H. N. Stevens
Chem & Eng N 27:706 Mr 17 '49 300w

"Obviously it was not a slapstick job, hastily thrown together. . . Its sentences shine with luster that comes only with careful polishing of words and phrases. Its inherent modesty and sincerity lead you on and on according to what must have been a well-laid plan—or plot. The result is that when you come to this little book's conclusion, you have been sold a bill of goods. You may not want to admit it, but you have been and are badly scared." S. D. Kirkpatrick
+ Chem Eng 56:281 Ap '49 500w

"Unpretentious little book, eloquent in its candor and thoroughly frightening in its implications as to the sort of life, and death, henceforth to be the lot of this earth."
+ Foreign Affairs 27:503 Ap '49 60w

"So simply written that he who runs may read and learn." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 25:159 Mr '49 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:17 Mr '49

Reviewed by J. P. Roche
+ Social Educ 13:303 O '49 350w

Reviewed by C. O. Dunbar
Yale R n s 38:537 spring '49 1000w

BRADSHAW, PERCY VENNER. Percy V. Bradshaw invites you to come sketching with Sir Frank Brangwyn [and others]. (How to do it ser) 96p il $4 Studio
741.7 Drawing—Instruction [49-3486]

"Percy Bradshaw has received the cooperation of eight English artists in writing this book that introduces the beginner to the year-round delights of sketching. Sir Frank Brangwyn, Sir William Russell Flint, Sydney R. Jones, Francis Marshall, Bertram Nicholls, Fred Taylor, C. F. Tunnicliffe, and Norman Wilkinson bring to you not only their sketching techniques and suggestions, but dozens of sketches from their notebooks arranged on every page for a pleasing layout that is suited to the enjoyable mood of this pencil activity." School Arts

"Recommended."
+ Library J 74:1678 N 1 '49 70w

"Art teachers, college students, high school students, and student teachers will enjoy this publication as a work book, a reference book, and for the beautifully reproduced sketches that make it possible for you to study every line and detail of the recording pencil."
+ School Arts 49:12a S '49 170w

BRADY, LEO. Edge of doom. 247p $3 Dutton
49-4829

Murder story.

Booklist 46:3; 13 S 1 '49

"The Edge of Doom is a book to be highly recommended as a murder story and a psychological novel. It is a moving and exciting piece of work."
Cath World 170:79 O '49 150w

"Leo Brady's novel, careful and dignified though it is, never reaches beyond pathos. This is partly the consequence of his protagonist's modest stature—a nearly hysterical boy whose gesture is impetuous fury and whose ultimate reconversion is carefully studied but rather neat than overwhelming." James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p8X S 18 '49 290w

"An extraordinary first novel. . . As a novel The Edge of Doom is also not entirely satisfactory in plot structure; it is more like a long short story or a thoughtfully written case history. Although extremely well written the book is at times over-written, at other times incomplete, and it lacks the balance which touches of humor would have supplied. . . But in the scenes of violence, of mounting terror and in the gripping finale, Mr. Brady displays his sense of theater and writes with a vividness that throws the reader into a cold sweat." P. T. Hartung
+ — Commonweal 51:51 O 21 '49 390w

"An unpleasant story, though a holding one."
Kirkus 17:371 Jl 15 '49 160w

"Obviously the author must have been thinking of the movies rather than his reading audience when he composed this tale. . . Contrived, conveniently appropriate in its plot antics, it will still have to be laundered extensively in Hollywood where it has been expensively sold as a film. . . Not recommended." George Freedley
— Library J 74:1092 Ag '49 100w

"This novel is in no sense a detective mystery, for the murderer is known from the start and the solution is within the boy himself. Nor is it essentially a 'psychological thriller,' in which the author's prime aim is to induce gooseflesh in the reader, though parts of it are likely to have that effect. Mr. Brady seeks in this first novel to give meaning to a sordid and apparently senseless crime, and in his picture of the boy and the others and their setting, he achieves considerable success." Mary Ross
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 S 18 '49 450w

"Leo Brady his written the episodes of the chase with fine dramatic feeling and the quick pace of his story-telling is sustained to the last page. But in delving into the subconscious of his protagonist and establishing his psychological reactions, Mr. Brady is less successful." T. Q. C.
+ — N Y Times p42 O 2 '49 360w

"Mr. Brady relies for excitement on a skillful use of the most portentous and evocative backgrounds and props—a crucifix as a murder weapon, a shadowy church, a dark confessional, a morgue, a funeral parlor—and it's just as well that he does, for his meagre drama needs all the tricks of lighting and stage effects that he can supply."
New Yorker 25:111 S 24 '49 60w

"Mr. Brady's intent is better that his realization of it. Its failure must be measured by its own high standard, unfortunately, and not by many shoddy books to which it is inherently superior. We may look for good work from him. He should avoid, next time, the highly schematic rigging of events which we find here. And he should select a protagonist better equipped to support the burden of tragedy." Edmund Fuller

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:20 S 24 '49 650w

BRAITHWAITE, WILLIAM STANLEY BEAUMONT. Selected poems. 96p $2.50 Coward-McCann 811 48-11046

A selection from his own poems, made by the compiler of many anthologies of magazine verse. The poems are traditional in subject and form.

Reviewed by Gerald McDonald
Library J 73:1818 D 15 '48 80w

"He is not a mere dabbler in Victorian echoes, though he does for the most part employ the imagery and the diction of Victorian poetry. His poetry is filled with individual perceptions of man and nature, speculations on history and morality, moods and introspections. He is at his best when introspective, for here the nineteenth-century idiom seems somehow to fit his insights." David Daiches
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 F 6 '49 230w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p15 F 13 '49 80w

BRAMHALL, MARION. Murder is contagious. 188p $2.25 Doubleday 49-8381

Detective story.

"This is very capably done with almost continuous action and a neatly deflated suspicion." James Sandoe
+ Chicago Sun My 6 '49 90w
Kirkus 17:121 Mr 1 '49 60w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 My 22 '49 90w
N Y Times p29 My 22 '49 40w

BRANCH, MELVILLE CAMPBELL. Aerial photography in urban planning and research; il. by the author. (Harvard city planning studies) 150p pa $3 Harvard univ. press
711.4 Photography, Aerial. City planning 48-7715

"The material in this monograph is presented in two parts. Part I is titled The Use of Aerial Photographs for Urban Planning and Research. The four chapters it contains, Vertical Stereophotographs, Oblique Photographs, Photographic Mapping, and Cost of Aerial Surveys, adequately analyze the potentialities of extensive and intensive aerial photographs as aids to planning agencies and to other urban research organizations. Part II . . . [contains] ten chapters: Plain Vertical Photographs, Oblique Photographs, Stereophotographs, Photoruns and Plotting, Photo Mosaics, Flight Planning, Photographic Quality, Cameras and Film, Night Photographs, and Photographic Interpretation." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:821 My 15 '49 60w

"The monograph possesses general reference value for a research area of much greater extent than that of the relatively limited field to which it specifically applies. The volume is copiously illustrated with excellent diagrams, line drawings, and aerial photographs. Documentation and commentary are included in an appendix."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:505 D '48 260w

BRANDEL, MARC, pseud. See Beresford, M.

BRANHAM, VERNON CARNEGIE, and KUTASH, SAMUEL B., eds. Encyclopedia of criminology. 527p $12 Philosophical lib.
364.03 Crime and criminals—Dictionaries and encyclopedias 49-9235

Over a hundred signed articles, many of considerable length, and all by experts in various fields of criminology. Arrangement is alphabetical by subject. Brief bibliographies at ends of articles.

"Some of the leading articles are truly encyclopedic in character and have been prepared by authoritative writers. Others suffer from various defects. . . The book is not without merit as a symposium, even though it falls far short of being an encyclopedia." Thorsten Sellin
Am Soc R 14:820 D '49 450w

"In spite of many obvious shortcomings, this volume should serve useful reference purposes. It covers a fair range of subject-matter fields and gives some discussion on a variety of topics. Most of the articles list a short bibliography for further reading. This is all to the good. Not so good, however, is the price asked for the book. That, it would seem, is scarcely warranted from the standpoint of either quantity or quality of materials. . . In the judgment of this reviewer, the really comprehensive, critically written, and critically edited encyclopedia of criminology remains to be produced." G. B. Vold
+ — Ann Am Acad 266:244 N '49 480w

"Recommended for larger public libraries and all others with reader interest in sociology and criminology." H. H. Bernt
+ Library J 74:1028 Jl '49 190w

"Its users will find it at times most satisfying and at other times somewhat frustrating. More exacting technical and critical editing to reduce unevenness and repetition at some points—not to stress the inclusion of some topics that could have taken the place of repeated material—would have greatly improved the volume. The Index, one not conducive to speed of topical discovery, appears at the beginning of the book but with no page indications. This is a regrettable omission especially for the light face type subheads." L. M. Brooks
Social Forces 28:214 D '49 600w
Survey 85:408 Jl '49 20w

BRANSON, HENRY C. Leaden bubble. 243p $2 Simon & Schuster 49-7981

Detective story.

"It is as careful as its predecessors and as sound." James Sandoe
+ Chicago Sun Mr 11 '49 70w
Kirkus 17:41 Ja 15 '49 60w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 Mr 13 '49 180w

Reviewed by Beatrice Sherman
N Y Times p28 Ap 3 '49 120w

"The suspects are, to a man, almost overwhelmingly average, giving an effect of general casualness that will undoubtedly confuse the skip-and-run reader. Whether or not Mr. Branson has overshot his mark is debatable, but at any rate the plotting is above reproach and the presentation pleasantly relaxed."
New Yorker 25:108 Mr 19 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 3 '49 100w

"Straightforward detecting, interesting group of characters, some amusing boarding-house scenes, and enough romance to flavor it nicely. Worth reading."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:35 Ap 2 '49 40w
Springf'd Republican p7C Je 12 '49 90w

BREAN, HERBERT. Darker the night. 245p $2.50 Morrow
49-8286

Detective story.

Booklist 45:337 Je 1 '49

BREAN, HERBERT—Continued
Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ap 8 '49 150w

Kirkus 17:40 Ja 15 '49 60w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 Ap 3 '49 160w

"Literate and nicely planned, but the pseudo-scientific footnotes about extrasensory perception, hypnotism, and similar matters might just as well have been omitted."
+ — New Yorker 25:107 Ap 2 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p28 My 1 '49 50w

"Not too convincing."
Sat R of Lit 32:31 Jl 23 '49 90w

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 24 '49 140w

Wis Lib Bul 45:89 My '49

BRECKENRIDGE, MRS CHARLES (GERVEE BARONTE, pseud). Twilight in India. 382p il $3.75 Philosophical lib.

294.5 Hinduism 49-11068

A description of Hindu civilization, which criticizes some of the customs of the Hindu religion, urges the overthrow of the Brahman priesthood, and the establishment of a United States of India. Index.

"It is not a pretty book. It is not a book that will make many friends, especially in this day when peoples are striving for inter-communal, sympathetic understanding. . . It is not edifying reading. Perhaps the best defense against the book is the wholesale nature of the charges." Philo M. Buck
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 N 20 '49 350w

"The recorded data are explicit and were evidently collected on the ground. How fair a total picture can be painted by specializing on this aspect is another question." W. E. G.
Christian Century 66:1425 N 30 '49 160w

"While the detailed account of bizarre ceremonies and explanations of India's intricate and admittedly sex-conscious religions are at times most interesting, they are not in themselves a conclusive argument that India cannot govern itself. . . The religions of India obviously are a difficulty to be overcome, but merely reiterating the fact is of no help in clarifying the situation." R. F. H.
Springf'd Republican p7C N 6 '49 300w

BREESKIN, ADELYN DOHME. Graphic work of Mary Cassatt. See Cassatt, M.

BRENTANO, FRANCES (MRS LOWELL BRENTANO), ed. Big cats; kings of the jungle in fact and fiction; with an introd. by W. Adolphe Roberts. 306p $3.50 Ziff-Davis

599.74428 Animals, Legends and stories of. Lions 49-7699

An anthology of short stories, factual accounts, and poems, about members of the cat family from the jungle. Partial contents: Death of a man-eater, by J. H. Patterson; Lion hunting on the Kapiti Plains, by Theodore Roosevelt; Pumas, by George Sterling; Mrs. Packletide's tiger, by Saki (H. H. Munro); Hunting with cheetahs in India, by L. R. Freeman; A leopard by Lake Elmenteita, by Llewellyn Powys; Snow leopard, by Dorothy Quick; Monarch, by C. R. Cooper; Lynx, by Alan Devoe; Watch by night, by Edison Marshall.

Booklist 45:264 Ap 1 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '49

"Excellent anthology."
+ Library J 74:1563 O 15 '49 40w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 F 27 '49 10w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 22 '49 170w

"It is a comprehensive and varied collection and is for all the members of the family." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:39 Je 11 '49 50w

BREUER, MRS KATHARINA. Dances of Austria [il. by Anna Wolsey; music arr. for the piano by Ferdinand Rauter]. (Handbooks of European national dances) 30p $1.25 Chanticleer

793.31 Dancing—Folk and national dances 49-8039

Contains introductory material on Austrian dances and festivals, and steps and music for four dances. Bibliography.

Reviewed by Maria Cimino
Library J 74:668 Ap 15 '49 40w

Reviewed by Rosalyn Krokover
Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ap 30 '49 40w

BREWTON, MRS SARA WESTBROOK, and BREWTON, JOHN EDMUND, eds. Bridled with rainbows; decorations by Vera Bock. 191p $2.75 Macmillan

808.81 Children's poetry 49-7721

Collection of poems for young readers. The selections are "about many things of earth and sky." (Subtitle) Indexes.

Booklist 45:247 Mr 15 '49

"A fresh and distinguished volume containing a good selection of old and new poems." B. J. Thompson
+ Cath World 170:212 D '49 70w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p12 Jl 12 '49 250w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:210 My '49 80w

Kirkus 17:208 Ap 15 '49 130w

"This anthology will be a pleasant addition to poetry collections in children's rooms. The compilers have favored the imaginative poems over the humorous or down-to-earth, and Vera Bock's excellent black-and-white decorations are very appropriate. Many of the selections are good for reading aloud. Recommended for ages 6-12." Lillian Morrison
+ Library J 74:499 Mr 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 8 '49 230w

Reviewed by A. N. Fedder
+ N Y Times p34 Ap 24 '49 140w

New Yorker 25:164 D 3 '49 20w

"The titles for the eleven divisions are imaginative and stimulating. . . It is a very well-made book that opens flat in your hand with original and distinguished decorations in black and white, and a particularly lovely cover-jacket in blue and gold."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 Ap 9 '49 140w

Springf'd Republican p7C Je 12 '49 90w

Wis Lib Bul 45:68 Ap '49

BRICK, ANNA RIWKIN (MRS DANIEL BRICK). Palestine; phot; text by Daniel Brick. 33p $3.50 World pub.

915.69 Palestine—Views 49-9294

A pictorial survey of modern Palestine, with brief comments explaining each picture, and a short summary of the geography, history, and economy of Palestine.

Booklist 45:391 Jl 15 '49

"The Swedish Zionist leader gives the best concise background history of Palestine that I have found anywhere, ideal setting for superb photographs of Palestine today, photographs taken by his wife."
+ Kirkus 17:292 Je 1 '49 80w

"One book on a country as ancient and tangled with feeling as Palestine cannot possibly show all facets; this one is excellent for its even-handed portrayal of the human pattern in a country at once old and new." E. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Jl 17 '49 90w

"Superb photographs and an illuminating text."

+ Springf'd Republican p4D My 29 '49 40w

BRICK, ROBERT MAYNARD, and PHILLIPS, ARTHUR. Structure and properties of alloys; the application of phase diagrams to the interpretation and control of industrial alloy structures. 2d ed 485p il $6 McGraw

620.18 Alloys 49-9628

"A concise presentation of the knowledge from the field of physical metallurgy which is important to the understanding of alloys. The authors' theme is that alloys can be studied and understood only against a background of knowledge of the significance of phase diagrams, microstructures, the characteristic properties of the structures, and the effects of metal treating processes upon all three. The first edition of the book was comparatively brief. . . Three entirely new chapters have been added, and the older ones have been greatly revised and extended. The number of pages has been more than doubled, and the number of illustrations has been approximately tripled. The illustrative matter now includes a large number of excellently reproduced microphotographs." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 46:65 O 15 '49

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 74:1329 S 15 '49 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:49 Jl '49

BRICKELL, HERSCHEL, ed. See O. Henry memorial award. Prize stories of 1949; Writers' Conference, University of New Hampshire. Writers on writing

BRIDENBAUGH, CARL. Peter Harrison, first American architect; pub. for the Inst. of early Am. history and culture at Williamsburg, Virginia. 195p pl maps $6.50 Univ. of N.C. press

B or 92 Harrison, Peter 49-9109

A biography of Peter Harrison, born in York, England, in 1716, who came to America as a young man, settled in Rhode Island, and became a sea captain, a merchant, and the architect of a number of fine buildings. Harrison was a Loyalist, and a few days after his death a mob of patriots plundered his home in New Haven and destroyed all his drawings and papers. The book describes some of the buildings for which he made plans: the Redwood library in Newport, R. I; King's Chapel in Boston; the Brick Market and Synagogue in Newport; Christ Church in Cambridge; etc. Index.

"Although Harrison is unique in that all his buildings still stand, the details of his life lie dispersed in obscure documents. He is fortunate in finding a historian so well equipped, so meticulous, and so industrious, who could piece together such a convincing account of his development and achievements. Moreover, the author's minute knowledge of colonial Newport enables him to relate his subject intimately to the community and society in which Harrison flourished. Indeed this is the most admirable feature of the book." T. C. Bannister

+ Am Hist R 55:153 O '49 1150w

Booklist 45:391 Jl 15 '49

"A competent and needed biography of America's pre-Revolutionary architect, Peter Harrison."

+ Kirkus 17:266 My 15 '49 130w

"Recommended." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 74:1323 S 15 '49 100w

"Peter Harrison's prestige is, of course, not dependent on his being 'First American Architect' in any sense. He was an eminent architect, certainly a valuable and interesting man, and we are much indebted to him. To Doctor Bridenbaugh we are indebted for a valuable and interesting book." E. H. Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 My 29 '49 450w

"Here is a contribution to the colonial history of our country which has both value and interest and reflects credit on the institute down in Williamsburg." H. I. Brock

+ N Y Times p6 D 4 '49 550w

"The author who is the director of the Institute of Early American History and Culture at Williamsburg, Virginia, has gone to great effort to obtain the few facts extant about Harrison's life. He has successfully knit them together in a flowing and absorbing narrative. The volume is handsomely done up and fortunately includes illustrations which are 'an integral and indispensable part' of it." D. H.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 Jl 10 '49 190w

Reviewed by W. C. Smith

Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 3 '49 850w

BRIDGE, ANN, pseud. And then you came. 306p $3.50 Macmillan

49-8098

"A tale of the west Highlands, involving the customs and manners of the country houses with their romances and economic and political problems. Then, suddenly, a yacht comes into the neighboring harbor with a fascinating but sinister group of men and a woman and the old legend of Deirdre and Merlin is enacted while time moves back to the first century. Deaths and disaster follow quickly—finally all accounted for by Professor Porlock, the archeologist, who knows the first century as well as the twentieth!" Library J

Booklist 45:42; 243 O 1 '48; Mr 15 '49

Reviewed by Dorothy Sparks

Chicago Sun Ap 6 '49 270w

"All this is just a little too much for the imagination of the usual novel reader, who becomes confused, then distressed, and finally slightly annoyed at all the elaborate contrivance. . . Would not anybody be bewildered to see familiar people out of present-day Scotland, as the Professor did, living in wattle huts, going about the occupations of prehistory, wearing authentic clothes of that period? Maybe, after all, it was simply a dream in the mind of Jock. One cannot be completely sure." Margaret Williamson

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 29 '49 550w

Kirkus 16:452 S 1 '48 230w

"For those who like the ghostly—and do not analyze too closely this is good reading." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 73:1594 N 1 '48 140w

"Miss Bridge is apt to conventionalise her younger characters in a hearty sort of way, and the invading strangers are more real as poetry than some of their kind hosts are as prose. But her vivid descriptions of the West Highland background heighten the sustained drama of her tale." H. I'A. Fausset

Manchester Guardian p3 D 4 '48 190w

Reviewed by Simon Harcourt-Smith

New Statesman & Nation 37:38 Ja 8 '49 180w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ap 3 '49 800w

Reviewed by Arthur Leonard

N Y Times p16 My 1 '49 220w

"A skillful blending of Scottish scenery, home life, and legend, recommended to all who grow wistful at a mention of the Highlands."

+ New Yorker 25:119 Ap 9 '49 170w

"Miss Bridge, who is herself an archeologist and who knows the Highlands, makes a neat job of this story. You may remember how in her last book 'Singing Waters' the theme of mechanization ran away with her and result was perhaps her poorest novel. But this is different. This story seems to grow out of a part of herself. She evokes a spirited picture of the Highlands and their gallant past and she uses the Deirdre legend skilfully, with the right

BRIDGE, ANN—Continued
feeling, so that the story has the grace of an old fairy tale." Jane Voiles
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 My 1 '49 650w

"Miss Bridge is a competent enough writer, with moments of real power and imagination, but the frequent intrusion of her own personality into her novel is inexcusable. On pages 33-35 she gives a long description of Scottish baronial interiors in which she writes down to the servants' hall (if such a thing still exists) with a conspiratorial giggle." Olivia Manning
+ — Spec 181:744 D 3 '48 470w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p8C My 1 '49 250w

"This ambitious synthesis of Celtic legend and modern domesticity is disappointingly inconclusive, and the chief interest of the novel lies in the incidental scraps of archaeological information it contains."
Times [London] Lit Sup p709 D 18 '48 320w

Wis Lib Bul 45:66 Ap '49

BRIDGE, HARRY PENROSE. Practical advertising. 842p il $6.50 Rinehart
659.1 Advertising 49-8020

"A comprehensive guide to the planning and preparation of modern advertising in all of its phases." (Subtitle) Bibliography. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 45:291 My 1 '49

"This basic text covers all phases of advertising planning and preparation in a highly practical and interesting manner. . . Of particular value to the beginner."
+ Management R 38:237 Ap '49 80w

BRIDGES, ESTEBAN LUCAS. Uttermost part of the earth. special ed 558p pl maps $10 Dutton
918.2 Tierra del Fuego. Ona Indians. Yahgan Indians 49-11631

Reminiscences of an Englishman, son of a missionary to the Indians of Tierra del Fuego. The author was born in 1874, the third white child born on Tierra del Fuego, and grew up knowing the Yahgan Indians and their language. He recounts his experiences with these primitive people and with the warlike Ona Indians; the transfer of his family from missionary status to ranch owners; and sketches briefly his marriage, and his later years. Index.

Booklist 46:187 F 1 '50

"A profound human document which reads more like an historical novel than like a record of actual happenings. This is a story of high adventure, peopled with hundreds of strange and fascinating characters." S. K. Lothrop
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 D 18 '49 1200w

Reviewed by Bernard Mishkin
+ N Y Times p5 D 18 '49 450w

Time 55:67 Ja 2 '50 900w

BRIER, HOWARD M. Backboard magic; il. by Jay Hyde Barnum. 275p $2.50 Random house 49-5952

"The story of Skip Turner and his fight to bring an inferior basketball team into the state tournament." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 46:68 O 15 '49

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 N 13 '49 100w

"Nothing particularly novel in this, but it is a dependably good high school basketball story for boys. . . On the whole satisfactory."
+ Kirkus 17:362 Jl 15 '49 130w

"A straightforward high-school basketball story." Lillian Morrison
+ Library J 74:1762 N 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by W. R. White
+ San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 13 '49 90w

"A sport story with excellent action and convincing characters." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:30 N 12 '49 30w

BRIGGS, BARBARA. Licorice; pictures by [the author]. [24p] $2 Aladdin

Story for four to eight year olds, about a little black leopard who wanted spots like her father and mother. In her wanderings thru the jungle various animals tried to help her, but the big black leopard she finally met had the right answer.

"This little story strikes us as being slight, even for a picture book, and not terribly original, either."
— Kirkus 17:83 F 15 '49 160w

"Engaging pictures, very well printed, give charm and appeal to this story. . . Unfortunately the telling of her story and the verses are poor." L. S. Bechtel
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Jl 3 '49 40w

"This is a pleasant little story, but it lacks the spontaneity and freshness, which made Miss Briggs' 'Tobias' memorable. However, just these qualities are abundant in the engaging illustrations, which will doubtless endear Licorice to 4-to-8-year-olds." E. L. B.
N Y Times p28 My 22 '49 170w

BRIGGS, EVERETT FRANCIS. New dawn in Japan. 249p $2.75 Longmans
275.2 Japan—Religion. Christians in Japan. Roman Catholic church in Japan 48-9449

"Father Everett Francis Briggs, M.M., a Bostonian, lived in Japan for more than a decade as a missionary, a teacher and, after Pearl Harbor, as a prisoner-of-war. Now repatriated and the Vice Rector of Maryknoll Junior College in Lakewood, N.J., he has written a book on the life of Christ in the Japanese language and now this book in English on Catholic success and failure in Japan." (Commonweal) Index.

"This is an informative and readable book." Max Fischer
+ Commonweal 49:354 Ja 14 '49 450w

Foreign Affairs 28:170 O '49 30w

"Perhaps it is too much to say that a missionary should refuse converts because their faith is in the might of America rather than in the Christ of Galilee. . . Aside from this weakness, which is not so much a weakness of Father Briggs as of the entire missionary outlook at the moment, this is a bright, warming and informing book on the history of Christianity in Japan." Willard Price
+ — N Y Times p5 D 12 '48 1100w

BRIGHT, ARTHUR AARON. Electric-lamp industry; technological change and economic development from 1800-1947. 526p il $7.50 Macmillan
621.326 Electric lamps 49-8957

"This is the second volume in a series of studies on the economics of innovation, undertaken at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It gives a detailed analysis of the technologic and economic evolution of electric lighting from the early 1800's to the end of World War II. In non-technical language, it makes interesting reading for the economist, scientist and layman." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"The volume obviously represents much time-consuming research, painstaking assembly of a broad range of material, and careful analysis of data. It should be of interest to students of industrial history and of the process of technological change and invention as well as to many in the electric-lamp industry itself." Pearce Davis
+ J Pol Econ 57:458 O '49 1150w

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:1033 Jl '49 70w

BRILL, ABRAHAM ARDEN. Basic principles of psychoanalysis [ed] with an introd. by Philip R. Lehrman. 298p $3.45 Doubleday

131.34 Psychoanalysis 49-7285

"A book formerly entitled Fundamental Conceptions of Psychoanalysis [Book Review Digest 1922] was almost entirely rewritten by the late author, and completed and edited by Philip R. Lehrman." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:315 My 15 '49

Kirkus 16:637 D 1 '48 150w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 Mr 27 '49 80w

"A non-technical exposition, abounding in illustrative material and highly readable." Patrick Mullahy

+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 O 15 '49 290w

BRILL, ETHEL CLAIRE. Copper country adventure; il. by Bruce Adams. (Whittlesey house publication) 213p $2.50 McGraw

49-10319

"A tale of intrigue and adventure laid in the copper country of the upper peninsula of Michigan about 100 years ago. A sixteen-year-old boy, alone and almost penniless, braves many dangers but finally meets friends and is able to outwit his enemies." Library J

Booklist 46:36 S 15 '49

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst

Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 N 13 '49 250w

"This is both a good story and a presentation of facts that might make you decide that you want to become a geologist." H. F. Griswold

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 S 29 '49 190w

"The experiences of an untried boy in the wilderness are always appealing and Steve is an honest and deserving hero who makes good. His story is one of perseverance, courage and quick wits." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:528 N '49 110w

"A big book of adventure, hearty, rough and thrilling which girls will like just as well as boys."

+ Kirkus 17:397 Ag 1 '49 160w

"Should be popular with girls as well as boys from 10-14." E. E. Frank

+ Library J 74:1334 S 15 '49 70w

"Boys of today, who seldom are thrown on their own as early as Steve was, will find this good reading, with surprising information about early mining." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 13 '49 180w

"The action is not dramatic enough to appeal to older teen-agers, but it will hold readers just below that group. The characterization is simple. Steve and his friends are pure white and his enemies are black. The conversation is a bit stilted, but the meaning is always clear, and the descriptions of lakes and forests are effective. The illustrations and format are excellent." M. P. Allen

+ — N Y Times p26 O 9 '49 180w

BRINDZE, RUTH (MRS ALBERT W. FRIBOURG). Boating is fun; pictures by Kurt Wiese. 112p $2.50 Dodd

797.1 Boats and boating 49-11912

This book for young readers and their elders, describes how to handle all kinds of small boats, telling the "why" as well as the "how" of boatsmanship.

Booklist 46:144 D 15 '49

"A handbook which is useful and challenging." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 D 11 '49 100w

BRINDZE, RUTH (MRS ALBERT W. FRIBOURG). Story of our calendar; il. by Helen Carter. 64p $2.50 Vanguard

529.4 Calendar—Juvenile literature 49-8710

Describes in text and pictures the story of the development of the modern calendar. For ages seven to nine.

Booklist 45:320 My 15 '49

"It is probably best suited to the reading table in intermediate grade rooms where the children are studying the calendar or to the junior reference library." B. J. Thompson

+ Cath World 170:210 D '49 70w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '49

"Useful in reference work, this book is also a pleasure to handle." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:290 Jl '49 100w

"The development of our calendar from the days of the Babylonian Skygazers through the present day, with a chapter on the newly proposed world calendar, should make this book of 64 pages an asset to any library. Well-written text and graphic illustrations by Helene Carter add to its quality. Highly recommended." E. T. Dobbins

+ Library J 74:826 My 15 '49 70w

"Clear, informative text and full-color pictures." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 My 8 '49 130w

"A simple, though eloquent text, interpreted by pictures which stirringly combine science and romance. Readers from the ages of 8 or 9 up could hardly look for more fascinating and dramatic information." Irene Smith

+ N Y Times p24 My 1 '49 170w

"Enough facts are presented on personalities and civilizations to make a dramatic panorama, with unusual perspective, for readers from eight up."

+ New Yorker 25:183 D 3 '49 80w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:35 N 12 '49 40w

BRINIG, MYRON. No marriage in paradise. 312p $3 Rinehart

48-9736

Character study of a woman of forty-five, with three grown children, who cannot be happy without a lover. When her young daughter, kept overlong in the shadow of her mother's brilliance, finally rebels, the story reaches its climax.

"A practised and seasoned and sophisticated story for women chiefly. Not for P.L's."

Kirkus 16:603 N 15 '48 130w

"Mr. Brinig gives his domestic comedy the lush and unfamiliar background of Hawaii. He tells his story with practiced ease. But, for all that, he fails to probe very deeply into this problem of maternal domination which has in its time been treated with much greater strength."

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 F 6 '49 150w

"It is difficult to discover in all of this anything beyond the most superficial show of reality. Readers may consequently be pardoned for not responding with any deep sense of participation." Richard Sullivan

— N Y Times p24 F 6 '49 280w

"This is Mr. Brinig's seventeenth novel, and, like most of the rest, it seems to have been written frankly for the circulating libraries. In its class, however, it and Mr. Brinig achieve distinction by a resolute eschewal of all the easy, cinematic appeals."

New Yorker 24:69 Ja 29 '49 120w

"A manuscript scarcely better than first draft." M. R.

— San Francisco Chronicle p17 F 6 '49 450w

"Mr. Brinig is as versatile as Maugham in his techniques of presenting women. . . . Of course, if one does not care very much for novels about ruthlessly emotional women at a time when the wretchedness of the world seems to have a more overpowering drama,

BRINIG, MYRON—Continued
'Marriage in Paradise' would seem to be suited especially to the technique of the moving picture." M. S. Douglas
Sat R of Lit 32:18 Ja 15 '49 450w

BRINTON, CLARENCE CRANE. From many, one; the process of political integration, the problem of world government. 126p $2.25 Harvard univ. press
341.1 International federation 48-6888
For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"In spite of its platitudes, the essay is a thought-provoking contribution to the literature of world federalism." Kenneth Colegrove
+ — Am Hist R 55:184 O '49 250w

"The author's philosophical optimism may help to quiet the nerves of those who fear for the survival of man, but he offers no practical guidance for the present crisis in great power relations." J. W. Masland
Am Pol Sci R 43:159 F '49 460w

Foreign Affairs 27:153 O '48 30w

"Enthusiastic advocates of 'world government now' will find no cause for rejoicing in this little book by Professor Brinton. . . This book should be read particularly by those who believe that the future of the world can be assured by finding a glittering formula which will somehow exorcise war from human society."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:335 S '48 180w

BRITTAIN, MARION LUTHER. Story of Georgia tech. 385p il $4 Univ. of N.C. press 607.758 Georgia school of technology
48-9581

A detailed history of Georgia Tech. There are four chapters of criticism of political interference with higher education. Chronology. Bibliography. Index.

"This story of Georgia Tech by its president emeritus wanders, as a lively and intelligent mind will wander; it is full of asides and anecdotes; the prose is strictly nineteenth century. Though Dr. Brittain shows no hesitancy to offer advice or polite rebukes, it obviously pains him to say anything harsh about anybody, as he found it necessary to say about some of the latter-day Governors. . . Disappointingly, he sticks pretty much to the record in his account of Eugene Talmadge's interference with the university in 1941. The mere record, however, is absorbing reading and, for anyone inclined to take lightly the threat of political meddling in higher education, it carries a strong lesson. . . Dr. Brittain and Georgia Tech were so intimately associated for so long that it is only appropriate that this official history should be evocative of both." Colvin Kytle
+ N Y Times p18 Ja 23 '49 700w

"Despite the fearless writing, the book does not measure up to canons of good historical composition. It is organized as a chronicle and it incorporates documents and long newspaper quotations into the text. There are too many lists of names and other dispensable matter. . . The illustrations, appendix, and index are useful." W. W. Brickman
School & Society 69:389 My 28 '49 220w

BRITTAIN, VERA MARY (MRS GEORGE EDWARD GORDON CATLIN). Born, 1925; a novel of youth. 320p $3.50 Macmillan
49-7072

A novel based on the theme of conflict between generations. In this case it is the conflict between Robert Carbury, a sincere, popular London minister who had won a V.C. in the first World war; and his son Adrian "born 1925." Adrian was sent to America as a child refugee, and returned to reject his father's peace efforts, and to take part in World war II. It was only after the death of his father that Adrian began to appreciate him.

Booklist 44:373; 45:158 Jl 15 '48; Ja 1 '49

"Unfortunately, Adrian never emerges as a definite character. . . All in all, this a novel you can afford to miss."
— Cath World 168:495 Mr '49 150w

"One wishes that a writer of Miss Brittain's integrity would not have topped her cake with a frosting compounded of a sugary romance between young Adrian and his first love. It gives the novel a soothing conclusion hardly justified by the arduous course of the story. But for the most part the prewar years and the war terror itself are recaptured faithfully here. . . Miss Brittain writes gently and with ease." Emmett Dedmon
+ — Chicago Sun F 10 '49 450w

"The overwhelming sense of a mission—of the crucial need for enlightenment—which has always finely animated Miss Brittain, and her characters, has, at times, tended to obscure literary values in sheer journalism or polemics. With 'Born 1925' this is not the case. There is, here, both a marked feeling of renewed vitality and evidence of increasing mastery of her material. Miss Brittain is, however, historian rather than prophet: she attempts no specific solution for the problems confronting us at this hour." Ruth Chapin
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 4 '49 450w

Reviewed by Robert Phelps
Commonweal 49:354 Ja 14 '49 450w

Kirkus 16:345 Jl 15 '48 180w

"A novel splendid in conception and execution. . . Highly idealistic. Deserves wide recognition and sympathetic consideration." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 73:1025 Jl '48 100w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 7 '49 160w

"The chief interest of this novel is as a report on the way some people in London lived through and felt in the inter-war and war years rather than as a story of individuals. At the same time, the circumstances of Adrian's life are too special to let him stand convincingly as a prototype of the youngsters who had to face war before they were old enough to vote. 'Born 1925' therefore falls between two stools: it does not carry the reader along as a story pure and simple, nor does it establish the thesis of youth led to rebellion against the current world toward which the author seems to be groping." Mary Ross
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ja 16 '49 700w

"Readers of Miss Brittain's earlier books ('Testament of Youth,' 'Account Rendered') know her competence as a novelist. Her characters and the events that shape them are developed with care and sensibility. Her insights into motives and behavior are sound and sure. What is missed, for all the efficiency of her vocabulary, is an ear for language; and for all the consistency of her characters, an eye for the revealing detail. These lacks, for this reviewer, rob her good novel of what would be its priceless ingredient: the flavor and force of life." A. S. Morris
+ — N Y Times p19 Ja 23 '49 100w

New Yorker 24:81 Ja 22 '49 170w

Reviewed by Jane Vincent
San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 20 '49 450w

"There is an overlapping, a repetitiveness, a verbosity here which render the book as disorderly as the life of its young protagonist." N. G. Chaikin
— Sat R of Lit 32:17 F 12 '49 550w

"Adrian's schooldays, his adolescence in America as a war-time refugee, his aggressive antagonism towards his father, and his reaction from this after his father's death, are all faithfully dealt with. And that perhaps is part of the trouble. They are all too faithfully dealt with. There is no hint that what makes life worth writing about is that it is a mystery. Once or twice the remarkable force of Miss Brittain's own sincerity makes the divining rod twitch a little in her hands, but that is all." Robert Kee
Spec 182:340 Mr 11 '49 160w

Reviewed by J. W. Bogan
Springf'd Republican p22A F 27 '49 360w

"The conclusion is inevitable since Adrian and the rest are puppets contrived to voice Vera Brittain's newest tract. It is all set down with dogged sincerity and dogged prose."
Time 53:94 Ja 17 '49 210w

Times [London] Lit Sup p37 Ja 15 '49 180w

Wis Lib Bul 45:48 Mr '49

BRO, MRS MARGUERITTE (HARMON). Sarah. 343p $2.50 Doubleday
49-10405

Sarah's father died when she was eleven, and Sarah worked hard to become the artist her father hoped she would be. Later it became apparent that her real talent was for music, so she trained to become a concert pianist. Family responsibilities interrupted her career, however, and the course of her character development is traced in this story for teen-age girls.

Reviewed by Jane Cobb
Atlantic 184:104 D '49 70w

Booklist 46:49 O 1 '49

Chicago Sun p8X N 13 '49 150w

"Mrs. Bro has written many kinds of books . . . but never before a novel. Always she emits surprising ideas and sparkling phrases. It could be foreknown that every paragraph she might write would be interesting. But it did not follow that she could write a novel. Could she create plot, characters and continuity? She could, and did." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:1361 N 16 '49 310w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:545 N '49 80w

"A sensitive novel, beautifully written."
+ Kirkus 17:476 S 1 '49 130w

"Reality which goes below the surface and a noble character who is convincing make this a fine book for older teen-age girls and young adults." Siri Andrews
+ Library J 74:1466 O 1 '49 100w

" 'Sarah' is salutary and non-astringent."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 S 18 '49 130w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 29 '50 110w

"Substantial, richly detailed, this is not only the story of an artist's development. It is also a family story which recreates an era. . . Thoughtful girls will find that this story of endeavor and courage has much to offer." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p26 O 16 '49 260w

"A thoughtful book in which a philosophy of life is analyzed by interesting, convincing people." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:31 N 12 '49 40w

BROCK, EMMA LILLIAN. Kristie and the colt, and the others; il. by [the author]. 88p $2 Knopf 49-10331

Five short stories about pets and country life around the Great Lakes region. For ages 7-9.

Booklist 46:36 S 15 '49

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p12 O 11 '49 120w

"The fact of their being short stories gives it special appeal in the Read Aloud section as a family book; while third and fourth graders can read it to themselves. Delightful pictures, by the author, some of them in color."
+ Kirkus 17:425 Ag 15 '49 90w

"Recommended." Juanita Walker
+ Library J 74:1206 S 1 '49 60w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid
Library J 74:1536 O 15 '49 50w

"We are always lucky to have a new book from Miss Brock, and this is one of her best. Like many of her early books, it is a picture book, but here one gets good story value for those a bit over the picture book age." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 13 '49 180w

"Unified by an underlying wisdom, and the characteristically sturdy style in which they are written and illustrated, they make a wholesome collection for 6-9-year-olds." H. K. Lippmann
+ N Y Times p26 Ag 21 '49 150w

Sat R of Lit 33:44 Ja 21 '50 50w

BROCK, EMMA LILLIAN. Surprise balloon; il. by [the author]. [61p] $1.50 Knopf 49-8188

Picture-story book for the very young. It describes the adventures of the Easter rabbit, and a balloon, and what happened when the Easter rabbit and some of his animal friends tried to hold the balloon down to earth.

Booklist 45:339 Je 1 '49

"A very slight little story for Easter, but one that has elements of entertainment for small children whose sense of humor runs to delight in ridiculous situations."
+ — Kirkus 17:177 Ap 1 '49 150w

"Will delight the very youngest readers. . . Not recommended for first purchase." N. C. McCalla
Library J 74:666 Ap 15 '49 70w

"Clever writing and expressive two-color pictures keep this from being just another animal fantasy. It will tickle the fancy of 4-to-8-year-olds." Elena Baker
+ N Y Times p29 Ap 3 '49 100w

"Amusing drawings on every page and a particularly clear, large type tell this Easter story by well-known and much-loved author and artist."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 Ap 9 '49 100w

"A slight story with pictures full of fun for reading aloud and for beginning readers. Needs pre-binding."
Wis Lib Bul 45:67 Ap '49

BRODIE, DOROTHY MARGARET, ed. See Dudley, E. Tree of commonwealth

BRODRICK, JAMES. Procession of saints. 198p $3 Longmans
922.2 Saints 49-7983

Biographical studies of a baker's dozen of saints or saintly persons. All are British by birth or adoption. Contents: St. Aelred; St. Colman; St. Cuthbert; St. Anselm; St. Godric; St. Boniface; St. John Fisher; St. Aidan and his royal friends, St. Oswald and St. Oswin; Blessed Ralph Corby, S.J.; St. Thomas of Hereford; St. Hugh of Avalon; St. Thomas of Canterbury; Venerable Marie of the Incarnation. Index.

"Father Brodrick writes felicitously and clearly, if impressionistically, and of course the essays are devout and learned, and, occasionally, argumentative. But all this in pleasing fashion to attract the reader and not to goad him into acquaintance with Britain's most beautiful as well as most holy personalities."
+ Commonweal 50:254 Je 17 '49 130w

"The sketches of the life and work of a number of English and Irish saints which comprise this volume will be of more interest to the student of English Catholicism than to the general reader."
Kirkus 17:55 F 1 '49 120w

"Father Brodrick, an Irish-born Jesuit, historian and teacher, is himself more largely concerned with the lives and personalities of his saints than with their miracles. His pleasant, learned, biographical essays are an unusual combination of informality and scholarship. His references to obscure and ancient manuscripts are numerous, but never dull; rather they furnish occasion for amusing or stimulating comment." N. K. Burger
+ N Y Times p19 Ap 24 '49 230w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Jl 24 '49 200w

BRODRICK, JAMES—Continued

"A procession, a formal affair of best clothes and life-mask faces and polished haloes worn at the regulation angle, is not what Father Brodrick has assembled. His baker's dozen of saints move and talk at ease, a lively and delightful party, convivial with God. They remain, moreover, intrinsically different selves with talents, tastes, wills, ways and mannerisms of their own, attractive or remote, administrative or charming."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p285 Ap 30 '49 450w

BROGAN, DENIS WILLIAM. American themes. 284p $3.50 Harper

917.3 U.S.—Civilization 49-7924

"Series of newspaper and magazine articles (chiefly book reviews) selected from Professor Brogan's output over the last eighteen years, to which he now gives book form. . . The best article in the book is unquestionably Professor Brogan's review of J. G. Randall's Lincoln the President, which he examines under the title of The Enigma of Abraham Lincoln." Spec

"This volume of essays will prove useful not only to the general reader but to the serious student interested in foreign criticism of civilization in the United States." G. H. Knoles

+ Am Hist R 55:228 O '49 280w

"Mr. Brogan writes with fluent charm, in the easy, urbane richly allusive manner of an Oxford and Cambridge savant with the history and literature of Western Europe at his fingertips. He almost never pens a pedestrian page, or responds to any subject in a stale conventional way. His point of view, while learned and Olympian, is never impatient, hostile, or patronizing." Dixon Wecter

+ Ann Am Acad 263:238 My '49 600w

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 183:89 My '49 550w

Booklist 45:293 My 1 '49

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds

Christian Science Monitor p11 My 5 '49 900w

"Quality of the essays varies, but insights are frequently acute, criticism just and understanding extensive. Recommended." J. H. Berthel

+ Library J 74:490 Mr 15 '49 140w

Reviewed by Alistair Cooke

Manchester Guardian p3 D 6 '48 750w

"This volume is not the best introduction to Brogan, if there remain any intelligent American readers who do not know him. They should turn to his 'The American Character,' published four years ago, which is, as far as accurate observation is concerned, superior to anything else of its kind. . . But the chronology comes down to 1947, with an increasing sharpness of application to existing conditions and with no decrease in urbanity, in wit or in precision of reporting. . . More than that, it is a safe assertion that not one American in a thousand can read this book without acquiring impressive additions to his knowledge of his own country." G. W. Johnson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ap 10 '49 850w

"Too few of the essays attempt [a] kind of general analysis. But all are acute, witty, packed with fact and enormously entertaining. Since Brogan's mastery of American detail is so great, one takes it that the references to William Wirth, Mrs. Dashiell Hammett and Thaddeus Stephens are typographical errors. The Brogan style, of course, sometimes carries allusiveness almost to the point of double-crostics." Arthur Schlesinger Jr.

+ N Y Times p3 Ap 3 '49 1100w

"Brief essays . . . by a Scotsman who not only is a brilliant and exciting writer but has taken the trouble to inform himself about this country's history and folkways. Mr. Brogan is catholic in his choice of subjects . . . and, viewing us from the oblique angle of the foreigner, he makes observations that are witty, and, most of the time, wise."

+ New Yorker 25:106 Ap 16 '49 100w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 Ag 7 '49 270w

"No one can read this collection of forty fugitive pieces without delight in its wit and profit from its expertness. The wit is of a peculiar type: urbane, of course, and kindly; but achieving its best effects in true Attic fashion, by an implied juxtaposition of American ways with world ways, so that we suddenly see amusing incongruities and novelties in our national scene." Allan Nevins

+ Sat R of Lit 32:20 Ap 16 '49 800w

"As a journalist Mr. Brogan is learned without being obscure; as an academician he can produce a light touch. And he is as much at home on Broadway as he is in Pall Mall, as familiar with the doings in Cambridge, Mass., as in Cambridge, Eng. His latest book discloses the philosopher, so to speak, in his carpet slippers . . . Professor Brogan is an excellent historical critic, and his reviews of worth while American books in fact wear pretty well; but some of the lesser jeux d'esprit have an old world look." Maurice Ashley

+ — Spec 181:670 N 19 '48 600w

Reviewed by Irving Dilliard

Survey 85:393 Jl '49 190w

"Always Professor Brogan writes from knowledge, always with understanding and always with wit. . . When he does generalize his confidence in American capability and his optimistic belief in the perfectibility of America are at times exaggerated, so that his words sing American chauvinism. But offence is rare, and from American Themes, as from all Professor Brogan's books, the British reader can discover the paradoxes of America."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p664 N 27 '48 750w

BROMBERG, WALTER. Crime and the mind; an outline of psychiatric criminology. 219p $4.50 Lippincott

364.34 Criminal psychology 48-11204

"This volume outlines what a psychiatrist would single out as important within the field of criminological knowledge. Part 1, The Legal and Social Environment of the Criminal, begins with a brief history of criminological thinking, traces primarily the gradual emergence of the modern psychiatric approach to the subject, and then sketches the psychoanalytical frame of reference within which the author invites the reader to view the problem of crime. The third chapter discusses the place of psychiatry in the field of law enforcement: in the courts of law, both adult and juvenile, in probation, and in prison work. Part II, The Individual Criminal, discusses the various kinds of mental abnormalities resulting in crime under the headings: the psychopathic personality, emotional immaturity, and the neurotic offender. . . The final chapter is titled The Cure for Crime. Here the author invites a 'medical attitude' toward crime, and makes the optimistic prediction that, like other plagues, criminality will in time be wiped out." U S Quarterly Bkl

Reviewed by E. J. Lukas

Survey 85:116 F '49 350w

"Although the book adds little new to the psychiatric interpretation of the phenomenon of crime, it does represent an interesting summary of psychiatric thinking on the subject, and will be useful to those unfamiliar with this kind of material. The layman, also, may secure from it basic orientation in the field."

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:95 Mr '49 300w

BROMHALL, WINIFRED. Mrs Polly's party; il. by [the author]. [30p] $1.50 Knopf

49-7859

Story of a kindly old lady who lived "in a tiny house at the foot of the mountains," and liked to give parties for children. This story is about her "sugar on snow" party. For ages four to seven.

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson

Cath World 170:210 D '49 20w

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun Ap 9 '49 40w

"This is a book done by a fine craftsman, with charm and humor and real distinction." F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 20 '49 150w

"Miss Bromhall's children and grownups are always happy and good in pictures and story." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:200 My '49 80w
Kirkus 17:107 Mr 1 '49 120w

"Slight, but an extra for picture-book shelf where quiet stories are enjoyed." J. B. Lynch
Library J 74:555 Ap 1 '49 80w

"Mrs Polly is some one small children would love to know. Yet the book has not as much point or interest as former picture books by this artist." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 My 1 '49 110w

"As in earlier books by this author, word and picture combine to make a story of unusual appeal for 4 to 7 year-olds." H. K. Lippmann
+ N Y Times p30 Mr 27 '49 180w
Sat R of Lit 32:37 Ap 9 '49 110w

BRONSON, FRANCIS WOOLSEY. Bulldog has the key. 251p $2.50 Farrar, Straus 49-10015

Detective story.

"A fast and frantic chase, pretty generally confusing."
Kirkus 17:376 Jl 15 '49 70w

"There is a great deal of violence, swift action, suspense, and some interesting, wary dalliance with a cagey, attractive blonde. It all adds up to a very good show, despite a few minor discrepancies in the story, and one loose end left untied." B. B.
+ — N Y Times p30 O 2 '49 180w

"Funny stuff, basically, but not quite solid enough to undergo the prolonged scrutiny of an enthusiast either of Yale or of international intrigue."
+ — New Yorker 25:118 S 24 '49 110w
Sat R of Lit 32:61 N 19 '49 40w

BROOKE, MRS ESTHER EBERSTADT. You and your personality; a guide to effective living. 176p $3 Harper 137.4 Personality. Psychology, Applied
49-11048

An established career counselor discusses personality building. Partial contents: What is personality? The you you want to be; The you you can be; The you you know yourself to be; Politeness; Manners; Appearance; Grooming. Index.

"Nothing new here, but there are presumably some who want a perennial pick-me-up such as this."
Kirkus 17:248 My 1 '49 100w

"This book will be a stimulating experience for all who are concerned with enlarging the opportunities of life."
+ School & Society 70:240 O 8 '49 80w

"Her experiences are interestingly told and should be of great assistance to young people seeking employment and to those having charge of personnel changes for employers." J. W. C.
+ Springf'd Republican p6C Jl 13 '49 120w

BROOKER, BERTRAM. The robber; a tale of the time of the Herods. 307p $3 Duell 49-4078

Biblical story based on the lives of Barabbas, Joseph of Arimathea, and Judas Iscariot. Barabbas is pictured as a champion of the poor, who robs the rich in order to share the spoils with the less fortunate. Joseph of Arimathea and his sister befriend Barabbas, as he in turn befriends Judas. The novel ends with the crucifixion and burial of Christ.

"An excellent and engrossing novel." [illegible] Sheppard
+ Canadian Forum 29:49 Je '49 370w

"Mr Brooker has done an excellent piece of craftsmanship in a highly exacting field. His background glows with scholarship, his characters—both the fictional and historic—are convincing. The story moves swiftly and is told in a sturdy, simple, pictorial style." Millicent Taylor
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 18 '49 550w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Jl 10 '49 370w

"The work, neither pertinent nor elaborate, is a well-sustained job of narrative."
+ New Yorker 25:68 Jl 9 '49 140w

"Earnestness, care and interpretive zeal are Mr Brooker's; but not the quality he or any writer would need to lift this story to the true level and the essential spiritual stature which the writer, especially in this instance, must bring to his subject. It may seem hardly fair to object that Mr. Brooker is not a great writer; yet that is the only objection I may make. . . . But credit him with a genuine, if uninspired, portrait of Barabbas and a [illegible] tender treatment of Judas." N. L. Rothman
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:18 Jl 16 '49 400w

"'The Robber' is a story which many will read with an absorbing interest and find while doing so that they are entering new insights into the conditions that controlled the actions of men who played leading parts in the history which revolved around the career of Jesus of Nazareth." H. J. Aldrich
+ Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 14 '49 350w

BROOKS, GWENDOLYN. Annie Allen. 60p $2.50 Harper 811
49-10079

A second volume of poems by the Negro poetess, author of 'A Street in Bronzeville.' [illegible] 'Annie Allen' she portrays from [illegible] on the life of one woman whose environment is also Bronzeville, the experiences of poverty, loneliness, brief fantasies of escape, love, the 'war and all' finality of death, which are not merely personal, or racial, but universal in their implications." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R)

Booklist 46:70 N 1 '49

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun [illegible] '49 300w
Kirkus 17:319 Je 15 '49 180w

"Her strength consists of boldness, invention, a daring to experiment, a naturalness that does not avoid literature but absorbs it, exploits it, and through this absorption and exploitation comes out with the [illegible] made in an entirely original way, not offered as much as forth-right. Miss Brooks, by now, must realize that the greatest danger in her progress lies in the risk of her being taken up; she needs to be [illegible] and [illegible] to her weakest side." Rolfe Humphries
+ — Nation 169:306 S 24 '49 [illegible]

"The opening poems on the childhood and girlhood [illegible] simple and direct. Miss Brooks [illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] in [illegible] to the traditional [illegible] or ballad form of the poems. But 'The [illegible],' a longer piece about the [illegible] of her heroine, is a [illegible] poem." Ruth Lechlitner
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 S 25 '49 [illegible]

"When Miss Brooks forgets her racial consciousness and her [illegible] scholarship and writes out of her heart and of her rich and living background, out of her very real talent, then she achieves almost unbearable excitement." Phyllis McGinley
+ — N Y Times p7 Ja 22 '50 700w

"Her sense of form, which is innate, is still remarkable, and she can still a [illegible] as [illegible], as a [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible] of [illegible]."
+ New Yorker 25:[illegible] [illegible] '49 80w

"I suppose that the [illegible] will be [illegible] up a new Emily Dickinson, but I hope not, because Gwendolyn Brooks can be compared only with Gwendolyn Brooks. She is really remarkable." T. H. Ferril

BROOKS, GWENDOLYN—Continued
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 18 '49 180w

"No one wants to read a psychological treatise, or any treatise whatever for that matter, in order to get at the true meaning of a poem. It may be that I exaggerate this flaw in 'Annie Allen,' for certainly it shows but seldom. But if I do, it is only by way of warning. I do not want to see Miss Brooks's fine talents dribble away in the obscure and the too oblique. . . When Miss Brooks succeeds as in 'Manicure' and 'The Anniad'—and she does more often succeed than fail—she is a glory to read and 'a joy worth all thine enjoying.'" J. S. Redding
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:23 S 17 '49 550w

Reviewed by Babette Deutsch
Yale R n s 39:362 winter '50 150w

BROOKS, JOHN. Big wheel. 239p $2.75 Harper
49-5384

A novel based on the life in the editorial offices of a big news magazine "Present Day." The story is told by young Dick Peters, an employee of the magazine, but it is Dick's cousin, the editor Ed Masterson, who is the principal character.

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Ag 24 '49 490w

"A first novel, the earmarks of an inexpert hand are there."
— Kirkus 17:281 Je 1 '49 110w

Reviewed by W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 74:1092 Ag '49 90w

Reviewed by Ernest Jones
Nation 169:257 S 10 '49 220w

"Almost in spite of its brisk, first-person style and crisp dialogue, The Big Wheel achieves stature. It does that not merely because Brooks deals with an idea and theme important for this generation, but because, not content just to make the reader think about the subject, he has thought about it himself. The fact that he offers no satisfactory conclusion increases one's belief in the story and in the author's maturity." Richard Lauterbach
+ New Repub 121:20 O 10 '49 500w

"If this story exerts as strong a pull on the book-buying public as it did on this reviewer, many a television set will be dark this winter while its owners and their guests argue Mr. Brooks's ever debatable theme: To what extent do the men who write (and edit) our free press believe in the words they produce? . . Coming from the hand of a first novelist, or any novelist, 'The Big Wheel' is an impressive achievement." Richard Match
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ag 28 '49 900w

"Good, sad, astonishing, 'The Big Wheel' is a book that will cause talk." Allen Marple
+ N Y Times p4 Ag 28 '49 650w

"In this examination of the ideals and aspirations of various staff members of a glib and fabulous news magazine, Mr. Brooks has, happily, managed to project his story beyond the realm of mere journalistic inside stuff and to make use of some broader moral and literary perspectives."
+ New Yorker 25:65 Ag 27 '49 140w

Reviewed by Lee Rogow
Sat R of Lit 32:30 Ag 27 '49 500w

Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 28 '49 300w

BROOKS, PHILLIPS, bp. Selected sermons; ed. and with an introd. by William Scarlett. 377p $5 Dutton
252 Sermons 49-11220

"Those who find the sermons of Phillips Brooks of timely interest . . . will cherish this collection of what are undoubtedly the best of his sermons." Churchman

"Brooks died on Jan. 23, 1898. . . No preacher of his time is still more fully alive. Any who doubt that his sermons live are advised to read 'The Candle of the Lord,' which is in this volume of selected sermons, together with 30 others."
+ Christian Century 66:1394 N 23 '49 130w

"While some may miss a favorite, we think that Bishop Scarlett is right in believing that he has selected 'the sermons which best survive the test of time, and yet most fully express the essential message which Phillips Brooks was sent to give.'"
+ Churchman 164:17 Ja 1 '50 120w

"Every student of the art of preaching would still thrill to these masterly proclamations of the Gospel."
Kirkus 17:540 O 1 '49 180w

BROOKS, WALTER ROLLIN. Freddy goes to Florida; il. by Kurt Wiese. 196p $2.50 Knopf 49-7587

Reissue under a different title and with different illustrations, of Mr Brooks' first story about Freddy the Pig, originally published in 1927 with the title To and Again.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun Mr 12 '49 50w

"Personally I regard To and Again as a unique contribution to American children's books and one I have delighted to honor in lists made for children at home and abroad. . . As an admirer of Kurt Wiese's best work for children and animals, I warmly resent the substitution of drawings so similar to those he has made for later volumes as to give a commonplace accompaniment to the distinctive text which was Mr. Brooks's first book for children. The title page for Freddy Goes to Florida is a repetition of one used for an incident midway of the story." A. C. Moore
+ — Horn Bk 25:115 Mr '49 1450w

"Long life to Freddy and his friends! This may start a new group, for after all those who read the original To and Again must have grown up by now."
+ Kirkus 17:58 F 1 '49 160w

Reviewed by Nelle McCalla
Library J 74:559 Ap 1 '49 60w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:53 N 12 '49 40w

Wis Lib Bul 45:69 Ap '49

BROOKS, WALTER ROLLIN. Freddy plays football; il. by Kurt Wiese. 265p $2.50 Knopf 49-6828

In which Freddy, the educated pig, learns to play football, and doubles as a detective as well.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun N 5 '49 70w

"Fairly far fetched yarn, but the Freddy addicts are insatiable and uncritical."
Kirkus 17:510 S 15 '49 70w

"One misses the spontaneity of some of Freddy's earlier escapades, but children will read the book with enjoyment." Alice McQuaid
+ — Library J 74:1542 O 15 '49 50w

Reviewed by A. M. Wetherell
Library J 74:1680 N 1 '49 80w

"What keeps this story from being the usual high school football jamboree is the fact that Freddy is a pig. Even Kurt Wiese's fine drawings can't convince this reviewer that 12-year-old boys wouldn't rather have their football heroes on the human side. And if they don't, they should."
San Francisco Chronicle p13 N 13 '49 90w

BROUN, MAURICE. Hawks aloft; the story of Hawk mountain. 222p il $4 Dodd 598.91 Hawks. Birds, Protection of. Hawk Mountain sanctuary association 49-11302

This book is in three parts. Part I tells how Blue Mountain in Pennsylvania became Hawk Mountain, a sanctuary for migrating hawks where previously thousands of them had been slaughtered every fall. Part II tells the personal story of the author and his wife and their life on the mountain as guardians of the sanctuary. In the final section Maurice Broun records his observations of the hawks and other birds he has watched during the last fifteen years. Index.

Booklist 46:137 D 15 '49

"Besides its human and natural-history interest, 'Hawks Aloft' tells one of the most inspiring stories of conservation since the struggle to halt the plume trade a generation and more ago." E. W. Teale
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 D 4 '49 600w

BROUWER, PAUL J. Student personnel services in general education. (Cooperative study in general education) 317p $3.50 Am. council on educ.

371.422 Personnel service in education 49-789

This report "is concerned with the practices favoring the development of student-personnel services, the determination and evaluation of student personal-social needs, and the psychological, physiological, philosophical, and sociological principles underlying the administration of student-personnel services. The exposition of principles is chiefly the work of contributing authors. Student-personnel services include counseling ('a form of teaching which involves the processes of interaction between two persons'), campus life and activities, housing arrangements, and classroom activity. The suggested method of counseling is the permissive, nondirective type advocated by Carl R. Rogers of the University of Chicago." (School & Society) No index.

"Not only college personnel workers, but administrators and faculty members as well, will find this a useful book even though it is to a great extent exploratory. If a deficiency were to be mentioned, it would be that the person who believes that much college personnel work is necessary because we have students in college who do not belong there, will, though he may be in error, likely not be persuaded from his error by reading this book." Miles Murphy
+ Ann Am Acad 264:159 Jl '49 420w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 69:134 F 19 '49 260w

BROWN, FREDRIC. Bloody moonlight. 253p $2.50 Dutton 49-1191

Detective story.

"Disappointing." James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Mr 18 '49 100w
Kirkus 17:15 Ja 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ap 17 '49 70w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p9 My 29 '49 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p28 Mr 13 '49 170w

BROWN, FREDRIC. Screaming Mimi. 248p $2.50 Dutton 49-49010

Mystery story.

"Nothing about Brown's novel except incidental details suggests any interest in probability but Brown's sense of pulp-pace and vigor is steady and the narrative is lively." James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p40 D 23 '49 250w
Kirkus 17:564 O 1 '49 70w

"Frederic Brown's latest mystery is intriguing and suspense-laden, and if his details are somewhat too self-consciously lurid, that can be overlooked in the interests of a very absorbing yarn."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p42 D 4 '49 180w
+ N Y Times p45 N 27 '49 130w

"Almost too rich a mixture. Tough, funny, and plausible in a dreadful kind of way."
New Yorker 25:131 D 17 '49 110w

BROWN, FREDRIC. What mad universe. 255p $2.50 Dutton 49-11544

"The misfiring of a rocket to the moon knocks Keith Winton sideways in time, into another universe, similar to and very different from his own. He finds the earth at war with the Arcturians with the safety of the solar system in danger, is suspected of being a spy, is advised by the mechanical master mind, and makes his way, a hero, back to his own world." Kirkus

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
Chicago Sun p61 D 2 '49 140w

"Science fantasy of the super-comic type."
Kirkus 17:444 Ag 15 '49 70w

"This skillful blend of fantasy and suspense novel is exciting to read, and pokes some gentle fun at the 'stfans'. . . Recommended especially to readers who enjoyed Fletcher Pratt's and Sprague de Camp's The Incomplete Enchanter." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:1201 S 1 '49 130w

"The field of science-fiction has had many honorable practitioners, and while Frederic Brown is no H. G. Wells, he has dreamed up an amusing and inventive story." Jane Cobb
+ N Y Times p46 N 13 '49 130w

BROWN, HARRY PETER M'NAB. Beast in his hunger; poems. 84p $2.50 Knopf

811 49-10406

"A book of poems by [the] author of 'A Sound of Hunting,' 'A Walk in the Sun' and several collections of lyrics. The present volume is divided into three parts, of which the first is a group of four elegies, an eclogue, and an ode; the second ('Alarms and Excursions') has no recognizable principle of unity; and the third consists of six war poems." N Y Times

Reviewed by Gerald McDonald
Library J 74:1326 S 15 '49 40w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
Nation 169:306 S 24 '49 190w

"It is disheartening to have to report that in this fourth collection of verse by Harry Brown there is summed up both the dilemma of the modern poet and the sterility of the main stream of contemporary verse. Disheartening, because the author's earlier work, in prose as well as verse, promised much. . . The new poems go back directly to the old poems. They are about war, to be sure, but not this war. They are about a poet, but not Harry Brown. The experience provides titles, settings, images, but no common referent. And even the settings and images are buried in rhetoric, so much fancy writing about 'puissant change' and 'Laöcoon's constrictors,' so much verbal nonsense about 'the pain of the pack as intuitive' and 'belief in the formation of energy through matter' that not a soldier takes flesh, not an action assumes drama, and the poet fades behind his own fireworks." Selden Rodman
— N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 S 18 '49 700w

"When Mr. Brown is completely in thrall to his language, he becomes virtually unintelligible. But his best work shows him maintaining a delicate—and precarious—balance between richness and obscurity." Milton Crane
+ — N Y Times p18 S 11 '49 400w

"His poetry closely resembles the music we hear on the sound tracks of the more pretentious motion-pictures, wherein broken-down Strauss vies with hopped-up Stravinsky and some deliquescent Wagner and Debussy are poured in for good measure. All this is an odd development in a writer whose earlier verse displayed a modern edge and a sense of classic form." Louise Bogan
— New Yorker 25:126 N 26 '49 360w

"Harry Brown's poetry is rich in sensibility and variety of poetic phrase, but it is undermined in style and idea. . . Brown's genuine

BROWN, H. P. M.—Continued
feeling for history and tragedy is made sentimental by its diffusion in plurality and generality, by its failure to comprehend poetically and dramatically particular men, particular deeds, particular truths." R. G. Davis
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:13 D 24 '49 400w

BROWN, HARRY PHILIP, and others. Textbook of wood technology; v. 1, Structure, identification, defects, and uses of the commercial woods of the United States. 652p il $6 McGraw 634.9273 Wood. Timber (49-7675)

"This was formerly published under the title Commercial timbers of the United States and contains the same type of information, i.e., structure, identification, properties, defects, and use of wood. Much of the text has been revised, rewritten, and brought up to date. Volume two will cover the physical, mechanical, and chemical properties of wood." (Booklist) Glossary. Index.

Booklist 46:136 D 15 '49

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1823 D 15 '48 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:32 Mr '49

BROWN, INA CORINNE. Race relations in a democracy. 205p $3 Harper
325.73 Negroes. U.S.—Race question. Race problems 49-11869

A brief history of Negro-white relations in the United States, with a description of current attitudes "in terms of trends and movements." Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:136 D 15 '49

"A concise, authoritative survey."
+ Bookmark 9:51 D '49 30w

"The author, a professor of social anthropology in Tennessee cuts the props of prejudice from under one. His style is impersonal, reasonable, authentic."
+ Kirkus 17:505 S 1 '49 140w

Reviewed by B. M. Murphy
N Y Times p33 D 11 '49 170w

School & Society 70:319 N 12 '49 40w

BROWN, IVOR JOHN CARNEGIE. Shakespeare. 306p $4 Doubleday
822.33 Shakespeare, William. Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation 49-9956

A study of the life and works of William Shakespeare which claims no new approach, but provides a compendium of recorded fact and opinion. "Much stress is laid on the influence of the Dark Lady of the Sonnets and it is Mr. Brown's opinion that the two Rosalinds (the off-stage one in 'Romeo and Juliet' and the on-stage 'whitely wanton . . . with two pitchballs stuck in her face for eyes' in 'Love's Labour's Lost') are identifiable as the 'Her' of the Sonnets. He suggests that the Dark Lady turns up again in the person of Cleopatra." (N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 46:32 S 15 '49

Chicago Sun p8X Je 31 '49 200w

"Mr. Brown, who is one of London's leading dramatic critics, and a scholar as well, eschews the philosophic and the literary approach to Shakespeare. Writing with grace, fluency, clarity, and sound critical sense, he gives the ascertainable facts of Shakespeare's life, setting down nothing for which there is not good authority, and painting also a brilliant and exciting picture of the age in which Shakespeare worked, its prejudices, amusements, politics, and convictions." Harold Hobson
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 8 '49 350w

"A lively and absorbing adventure in research. . . There's profound scholarship here, but so skillfully is it welded into a vigorous biographical and critical study that one is rarely—after perhaps the first chapter—oppressed with a sense of being beyond one's depth. A book which deserves a wider market than it suggests."
+ Kirkus 17:263 My 15 '49 170w

"This is one of the sanest and most satisfying books ever written about Shakespeare. It bears throughout the mark of the scholar and man of letters whose predilections and whose profession have provided a lifetime's intimacy with playwrights and theatres." H. B. Charlton
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 19 '49 750w

Reviewed by Harold Clurman
New Repub 121:20 O 3 '49 850w

Reviewed by J. I. M. Stewart
New Statesman & Nation 38:200 Ag 20 '49 900w

"A convenient symposium of known fact, freely acknowledging its indebtedness to those who have written more exhaustively in more specialized fields. His book is widely documented and has a background of breadth and scope. It is readable without being especially stimulating, selective, without any particular revelation. He takes a good, round, sound tilt at the 'anti-Stratfordians' and their various 'pretenders' and scores a number of very palpable hits. . . But his passages on Shakespeare's 'hand of glory' are the finest, as they are the most deeply felt, in all the book." Margaret Webster
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Jl 24 '49 1100w

"The sleuth-hound pack has a distinguished new recruit in Ivor Brown. In the centuries-long pursuit of the true William Shakespeare few have had qualifications of The London Observer's erstwhile dramatic critic. His research has been prodigious. . . The author has dedicated his book to 'The Players,' and if the profession he has thus honored does not seize avidly upon Ivor Brown's 'Shakespeare' it will miss some sprightly reading." Maurice Evans
+ N Y Times p3 Jl 24 '49 900w

"The sound bone structure of documentation is clothed with the flesh of creative imagination and the whole is warmed into life by the breath of devotion." Jane Voiles
+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 7 '49 800w

"Enthralling fiction this may be, but it unfortunately greatly reduces both the poet's power of dramatic characterization and his spiritual stature. It assumes that the Dark Lady invaded and hypnotized Shakespeare's imagination as Fanny Brawne did that of poor John Keats. To one reader, then, Mr. Brown's solution of 'the Shakespeare mystery' is unsatisfactory. However, no such reservation need be made in regard to the other aspects of his book. His account of the events of the poet's life is spiritual and based on the most reliable scholarship." O. J. Campbell
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:10 S 3 '49 800w

"In spite of the criticisms that may be made of Mr. Brown's book, and in spite of defects which are inseparable from this kind of imaginative reconstruction, he does succeed in making his hero a plausible human being, and his book is readable, racy and full of gusto. Mr. Brown is not above a pun, or a glance at present-day rationing. He radiates prejudices, which do not offend because he knows them for what they are. The book will be deservedly popular with the general reader, and the specialist will enjoy quarreling with the author." Kenneth Muir
+ — Spec 183:146 Jl 29 '49 1000w

"Mr. Brown's style varies between a rather tiresome slanginess, with facetious contemporary allusions, and a somewhat highly coloured rhetoric. It is doubtful whether the general reader, for whom this book is clearly intended, really needs these stimulants to his attention. On the whole the book provides a useful summary of scholarly information, and it is nothing if not readable, but it contributes little towards the appreciation of the plays themselves, and this, after all, is fundamental. The earliest advice to the reader of Shakespeare is still the best: 'looke Not on his Picture, but his Booke.' "
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p516 Ag 12 '49 1350w

BROWN, MRS JEANETTE (PERKINS). Rosita, a little girl of Puerto Rico; drawings by Elayne Carol. 60p 75c Friendship press

Children in Puerto Rico 48-9135

"In Puerto Rico, it is the Three Kings on their camels, and not Santa Claus with his reindeer, who come bearing gifts at Christmastime. In 'Rosita' a little girl is shown in her home in the hills where the flamboyant trees bloom, helping her parents and thinking about Christmas. There is one gay picture on each page, and just a thread of a story makes life in the Caribbean island interesting and real to little American girls." Christian Science Monitor

Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 25 '49 110w

Kirkus 16:570 N 1 '48 70w

"If material about a Puerto Rican Christmas were ever desired below the third grade, this would be a useful little book. It is a slight but pleasant story." M. B. Snow

+ Library J 74:65 Ja 1 '49 70w

BROWN, JOE DAVID. Freeholder. 340p $3 Morrow

49-10481

The saga of Horatio Tench born in an English prison, and raised in an orphan asylum, who came to the United States in 1816 following a dream of freedom. He rose from plantation overseer to plantation owner, married in his thirties, and had four fine tall sons to send to the Civil war.

Booklist 46:3; 34 S 1 '49; S 15 '49

"The plantation-owner Jameson and his passionate daughter, the huge freedman King, Tench's stanch wife Ada, and the rest are possibly oversimplified, but the story they make possesses surety of execution, momentum, and uninterrupted interest." W. K. Rugg

+ — Christian Science Monitor p15 S 15 '49 210w

"A good rousing tale."

+ Kirkus 17:336 Jl 1 '49 200w

Reviewed by J. W. Rogers

Library J 74:1093 Ag '49 90w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 20 '49 130w

Reviewed by Barbara Bond

N Y Times p37 S 18 '49 290w

Reviewed by John Cournos

Sat R of Lit 32:58 D 3 '49 270w

Reviewed by W. R. Manchester

Springf'd Republican p19A O 23 '49 150w

BROWN, JOHN MASON. Morning faces; a book of children and parents; il. by Susanne Suba. (Whittlesey house publication) 187p $2.50 McGraw

818 Boys 49-10365

Sketches celebrating the excitements, disappointments, surprises, and joys of being the parent of two small boys. Most of the essays appeared first in the author's "Seeing Things" in the Saturday Review of Literature.

Booklist 46:1; 31 S 1 '49; S 15 '49

Bookmark 9:3 O '49 30w

"Mr. Brown writes with an easy charm and a pervasive gentle humor that have endeared him to a wide audience. The sketches in Morning Faces, based on personal experience with his own two lively sons, constitute a resigned and somewhat bewildered, but constantly hopeful, commentary on the parent and child relationship that will delight and comfort other parents now struggling with the same problems, joys, frustrations, and despairs. . . This book is a perfect gift for parents." B. J. Thompson

+ Cath World 170:320 Ja '50 220w

"John Mason Brown is not only a fond parent but a witty and observant writer. As a result, his book has a quality of interest that should make it appeal even to other parents." E. D.

+ Chicago Sun p8X S 25 '49 230w

"'Morning Faces' is a family portrait drawn with reality and tenderness. Between its covers lies more humor, and consequently more wisdom, than is to be found in a shelfful of books on child training." C. B. Burnett

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 O 15 '49 360w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '49

"Brown's civilized, rational approach has its chuckles, its wariness of dictatorial knowhow, its apology for the soft edges that cannot be denied. A thoroughly enjoyable family book."

+ Kirkus 17:447 Ag 15 '49 260w

"John Mason Brown's sons are not the over sweet, understanding, cute Christopher Robin type. They are real. . . The boyish dialogue is happily realistic. . . Mr. Brown recounts these family happenings in an easy-moving style. He is a drama critic and there is something of the manner of a drama critic in his analyses of the various excursions he makes with his sons." John O'Reilly

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 S 11 '49 700w

"Writing with affection, skill and detachment of his own offspring, John Mason Brown has turned out an engaging book of short pieces entitled 'Morning Faces.' . . If not a book to read at one sitting, it is a book continually to dip into, for it is rich in flavor, humor and understanding." Ilka Chase

+ N Y Times p7 S 11 '49 900w

"Present-day parents, who like to appear both disenchanted and doting, will find this rather difficult combination of attitudes achieved here with dexterity and warmth."

+ New Yorker 25:111 S 17 '49 120w

"You'd better read 'Morning Faces,' I think, if you've been through parenthood, or even if you are in the throes now. And it must be added that the drawings, by Susanne Suba, couldn't suit the text better. They're the perfect accompaniment, not only in the miraculous way they interpret Mr. Brown's text but in what I can only describe as their tone of voice." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 8 '49 1000w

"It would be both a mistake and disservice to review it as simply a lighthearted contribution in the vanishing field of the familiar essay. There are in places, and for the length of two or three essays, depths of understanding of the human spirit and the relation between childhood and adult life which are far removed from the area of laughter. I should be sorry for any reader of 'Morning Faces' who could not laugh; but I should be sorrier still for the reader unmoved at one point or another to the verge of tears." David McCord

+ Sat R of Lit 32:44 O 8 '49 1050w

BROWN, LLOYD ARNOLD. Story of maps. 397p il $7.50 Little

526.98 Maps. Cartography 49-9542

"This is the story of maps: the men who made them and the methods they employed, what can be found on them and the devious ways by which the information required for their compilation was obtained." (Introd) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:345; 369 Je 15 '49; Jl 1 '49

Bookmark 9:3 O '49 40w

"The work of an expert cartographic historian like Prof. Lloyd Brown has long been needed. He has drawn on a rich background of experience in collecting, classifying and preserving ancient maps and charts to produce his present monumental work 'The Story of Maps.'" H. B. Nichols

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Ag 25 '49 900w

"It requires no specialized knowledge of cartography to read The Story of Maps with thorough interest: or only to look through its handsome pages. It is a really beautifully

BROWN, L. A.—Continued
published book. . . The 'presentation' is of high and general excellence, and the writing, also, is intelligent and lively in a humane and not a forbidding scholar's style. It is true that the work has a fairly strict and studious pattern, and for normal speed reading of some of the sections, considerable fairly special interest or knowledge, or else an ability to skip, would be useful. Mathematics and astronomy beyond the normal layman's call of duty would aid quick or comfortable comprehension. But the series of charming biographies of map people and navigators and various types of natural scientists which lace the structure and fill a large part of the narrative, are pleasing for any amateur. The rich, and, properly, dense content makes good, if perhaps pipe-and-fireside rather than vacation, reading." Philip Burnham

+ Commonweal 50:513 S 2 '49 1050w

Current Hist 17:226 O '49 70w

"This is a work of scholarship, but its biographical method, its style, and its subject matter so closely linked to the main streams of history, science, travel and exploration should make it widely popular. Author is the former curator of maps at William L. Clements Library and is now librarian of Peabody Institute. He has struck out in a direction covered by no other book. Format is admirable, with all the attributes of a well-published work. Excellent illustrations. Recommended for all libraries." G. D. McDonald

+ Library J 74:954 Je 15 '49 140w

Nation 169:333 O 1 '49 50w

"'The Story of Maps' felicitously marries scholarship to narrative and dramatic skill. Though Mr. Brown has deliberately omitted the familiar and exciting story of geographical exploration, he has managed to infuse the seemingly dull subject of cartography with interest, and he has done this without making improper concessions to popularization. The numerous and carefuly drawn illustrations that accompany the text add greatly to its usefulness and beauty." H. S. Commager

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Jl 24 '49 1850w

"Whosoever has to do with maps, and those who merely like them, will be grateful for Mr. Brown's handsome and scholarly volume. It is a long-desired, full-length history of a subject that in this country is generally relegated to a chapter or two in other works. It is not a book to be read at a sitting. . . Physically the book is an excellent job—well designed, well illustrated and well printed on good paper." R. E. Harrison

+ N Y Times p7 Jl 31 '49 1400w

Reviewed by Ruth Newhall

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Jl 24 '49 500w

Springf'd Republican p5D S 11 '49 360w

Time 54:85 Jl 25 '49 550w

"Several points of fact bear questioning. . . It seems odd that Mr. Brown reports that the maps appearing in the Berlinghieri Ptolemy, published about 1478 in Florence, are 'said to be the first ones printed from copper plates,' in view of the fact that his own bibliography lists Edward Lynam's 'The First Engraved Atlas of the World, The Cosmographia of Claudius Ptolemaeus, Bologna, 1477.' . . A splendid bibliography and ample notes offset to some degree these reservations. In a second edition of the book many careless slips can be rectified. The 'Story of Maps' is a book far too valuable to be allowed to stand uncorrected, and it should be made worthy of the Herculean efforts of its writer in presenting a difficult subject to the average reader." A. O. Vietor

+ — Yale R n s 39:186 autumn '49 1000w

BROWN, MARCIA. Henry—fisherman; a story of the Virgin Islands [il. by the author] [32p] $2 Scribner

49-10126

Picture-story book about Henry, a little brown American boy who lived at St Thomas in the Virgin Islands. Henry's dream was to go deep sea fishing with his father. Instead he had to help his mother at less exciting jobs. At last he does go out deep-sea fishing, just misses a shark.

Booklist 46:36 S 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King

+ Chicago Sun S 24 '49 40w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 15 '49 90w

Commonweal 51:190 N 18 '49 90w

"Miss Brown has spent two summers on St. Thomas, and here in five gay colors she has captured the atmosphere of the island and made Henry and his friends lively and interesting people." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 25:403 S '49 70w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore

Horn Bk 25:435 S '49 40w

"Told with the lilt of the islanders' language, and a confident feel of background, and use of the details children like to know about distant places."

+ Kirkus 17:465 S 1 '49 120w

Reviewed by M. B. Snow

Library J 74:1207 S 1 '49 60w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker

Library J 74:1531 O 15 '49 80w

"The story is not too exciting, but the pictures, beautifully printed in gay colors, give a rich sense of life on St. Thomas, with its wharves, homes, children, grown folks, and its fishing. The flat poster style here is used with greatest flexibility and liveliness. The big color pages and striking end-pages have a pleasant variety of outline as well as of inner design. It is the first really distinguished picture book of this year." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ag 14 '49 180w

"The exciting way in which Henry escapes from a big shark helps to finish the story on a note of pride, humor, and satisfaction. Children from 5 to 8 years old and adults who read with them will thoroughly enjoy 'Henry—Fisherman.'" Elena Baker

+ N Y Times p22 Ag 7 '49 150w

"A slow, warm story, for the five-to-eight-year-old group, is told with good detail and unobtrusive dialect, and is illustrated by excellent, bright pictures, many of them in five colors."

+ New Yorker 25:174 D 3 '49 160w

"The effect of the drawings and the story of young Henry on this reviewer was to create an almost irresistible longing to take the next boat or plane to the Virgin Islands."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 S 17 '49 180w

BROWN, MARGARET WISE. The important book; pictures by Leonard Weisgard. [22p] $1.50 Harper

49-9133

"A conversation with pictures about many familiar things, in order to decide what is the most essential word applying to each one. The things chosen are spoons, daisies, rain, grass, snow, apples, shoes, wind, the sky and 'you.'" (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) For the pre-school child.

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun Je 18 '49 190w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p4 S 13 '49 120w

"A fresh and stimulating book for young children." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:284 Jl '49 80w

"A perfect book for very small children, one that will go on long after the printed word has been absorbed, for the text establishes a word game which tiny children accept with glee."

+ Kirkus 17:252 My 15 '49 90w

Reviewed by M. B. Snow

Library J 74:961 Je 15 '49 80w

"The variety of the artist's presentation will be fascinating to small children and truly brings beauty to the flat page which could be so static and so tamely patterned... Most important of all is that the game can go on, with many more 'things' than are on these pages." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 My 22 '49 230w

Reviewed by Lois Palmer
N Y Times p22 Jl 17 '49 230w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:22 N 12 '49 40w

Wis Lib Bul 45:107 Je '49

BROWN, MARGARET WISE. Little cowboy; pictures by Esphyr Slobodkina. (Young Scott bks) [34p] $1.50 Scott, W. R.
49-8121

Picture story book about the big cowboy and the little cowboy and the life they led on a ranch way out West.

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 170:209 D '49 90w

"The opinion here is unanimous—we don't like this book!"
— Kirkus 17:107 Mr 1 '49 120w

"The story is pure action, as it should be with this subject; yet over all the active words, partly because of the rhythm and repetition, partly from the bits of song, there hangs an atmosphere of gayety and of poetry. At first look, the pictures are most strange. . . By the time you meet the big white moon rising over the brown desert and cactus, the black rocks and blue mountains, you are sure to be converted. It is a very clever and original style, and should be stimulating to younger children, who might love to try to draw or to cut out big and little piebald ponies just like these." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 My 8 '49 220w

"Miss Slobodkina's illustrations are bold patterns in blue, brown, black and white. They are full of action but the juxtaposition of dots of varying sizes and plaided forms creates a disturbingly dizzy effect, negating the really fine basic designs." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p34 Ap 24 '49 140w

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 50w

BROWN, MARGARET WISE. My world; pictures by Clement Hurd. [34p] $1.50 Harper 49-11069

A picture book in which a humanized rabbit family, shows familiar things in a child's world.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p25 Ja 7 '50 170w

"It's excellently done, as are all the Brown-Hurd books, and deals with those bits of life of the very young which are dear because they are familiar." Marcia Winn
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 N 13 '49 70w

Kirkus 17:463 S 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by Marian Herr
Library J 74:1827 D 1 '49 70w

"Both author and artist are adept at knowing the child's love of recognition of familiar things: they use the familiar with the added magic of gentle humor and poetry. Beyond the intention of fun and happy recognition, the book offers that sense of security in talking about his own world which so comforts the very small child. Mr. Hurd's pictures are wonderful." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 13 '49 180w

N Y Times p12 D 18 '49 90w

New Yorker 25:165 D 3 '49 50w

San Francisco Chronicle p7 N 13 '49 100w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:22 N 12 '49 40w

BROWN, MARGARET WISE. Pussycat's Christmas; pictures by Helen Stone. [32p] $1.50 Crowell 49-50062

"Here is the way the mystery and wonder of Christmas seem to a small kitten. She smells it in the wintry air and in the Christmas trees. She hears it in the crackle of white tissue paper and the sound of the snow falling, in the songs of the carolers and the bells. She sees it in Santa's sleigh going by and in the packages and the beautiful tree." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Booklist 46:144 D 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p25 D 17 '49 50w

"This is the sort of rhythmical, magical story that asks to be read aloud to the smallest child just before Christmas. The gay pictures are captivating." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p28 D 4 '49 100w

"Done in lovely pictures by Helen Stone, and a rhythmic, repetitive prose patterned text, which reads aloud beautifully."
+ Kirkus 17:653 D 1 '49 60w

"The sounds are especially effective. The rustle of tissue paper, the tinkle of baubles, the deep hush of a snowy night are conveyed in prose which will please the ears of 3-to-6-year-olds. Helen Stone's impressionistic illustrations match the mood of this little story, especially the excitement of the frolicsome cat." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p42 D 4 '49 90w

"The bright, jewel-like illustrations glimmer like the Christmas tree itself, and the one of Pussycat out in the snow, with her great, marvelling eyes, as 'she saw it! She saw the sleigh go jingling by' is something fairly special."
+ New Yorker 25:186 D 3 '49 100w

BROWN, MARGARET WISE. Two little trains; pictures by Jean Charlot. [32p] pa $1.50 Scott, W.R.
49-10965

"A streamlined train and a little old train take a journey west and invite the picture-book audience to 'look down, look down that long steel track,' in verses frankly patterned after the famous song." Library J

Commonweal 51:188 N 18 '49 10w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:525 N '49 80w

"A sophisticated picture book. . . Adults who do not like modern art wont like this, and perhaps children will not, but remembering the lasting popularity of A Child's Goodnight Book by the same combination, there will certainly be an audience for this."
Kirkus 17:390 Ag 1 '49 180w

"The book is an unusual example of the artist's ability to enhance the text, enlarging its scope and feeling with all the inventiveness of his own mind. One feels and sees and hears the movement, the color and the sounds as they flow across the pages of this book, so completely original and so beautifully drawn are the pictures." A. G. Zebker
+ Library J 74:1531 O 15 '49 90w

"Accompanying illustrations by Jean Charlot in simple line and bold color make this a very satisfying book for reading aloud. Cardboard cover, but tightly sewn. Recommended." M. E. Martignoni
+ Library J 74:1609 O 15 '49 70w

N Y Times p12 D 18 '49 110w

"The breezy, rhythmic prose will probably have four- to seven-year-old children stamping around the room. Across the pages run stunning pictures of the trains, done with extraordinary verve in childlike outline."
+ New Yorker 25:166 D 3 '49 80w

"A very little child could understand both verse and drawings, but the book has a great deal to say to older boys and girls, especially to those who are interested in art." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:21 N 12 '49 90w

Springf'd Republican p8C N 20 '49 30w

BROWN, MRS MARION MARSH. Young Nathan; decorated by Don McDonough. 191p $2.50 Presbyterian bd.

B or 92 Hale, Nathan—Juvenile literature 49-5835

A fictionized biography of Nathan Hale, for grades seven to nine. This story of his life begins when he is a boy preparing for college, and ends with his death during the Revolution.

Booklist 46:51 O 1 '49

Bookmark 9:31 N '49 30w

Horn Bk 25:422 S '49 60w

"A beautifully written fictionalized biography of Nathan Hale."

+ Kirkus 17:397 Ag 1 '49 170w

"So real it seems as though one of our own friends were being marched off to the gallows." Esther Gorey

+ Library J 74:1550 O 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by N. B. Baker

N Y Times p18 Ja 22 '50 180w

BROWN, NELSON COURTLANDT. Logging: the principles and methods of harvesting timber in the U.S. and Canada. 418p il $5 Wiley

634.982 Lumbering 49-459

A combination and revision of two of the author's previous books on principles and methods of logging in Canada and the United States. They were Logging—Principles and Practices in the United States and Canada; and Logging—Transportation. For the last named see Book Review Digest 1937. Index.

Booklist 45:226 Mr 1 '49

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 74:129 Ja 15 '49 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:7 Ja '49

BROWN, THOMAS BENJAMIN. Foundations of modern physics. 2d ed 391p il $5 Wiley

530 Physics 49-486

"An introduction to the fundamental theories and discoveries of modern physics, and a review of the experimental evidence upon which these theories are based. The book is the outgrowth of courses given by the author at George Washington University, and the treatment is elementary as to technical terms used and mathematical processes employed. This edition has been enlarged and revised to include recent advances in fundamental research and applied physics, with particular emphasis on nuclear physics and its applications. Some new problems have been added and the reading lists have been brought up to date." (N Y New Tech Bks) Chapter references. Index. For first edition see Book Review Digest 1941.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 74:129 Ja 15 '49 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:26 Mr '49

BROWN, WALLACE CABLE. Triumph of form; a study of the later masters of the heroic couplet. 212p $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press

821.09 English poetry—History and criticism 48-10848

"Dr. Brown has approached his subject by way of the two questions: How well has this or that poet written the couplet? How successfully has he interpreted his subject in this form? In an introductory chapter he sketches the development of the heroic couplet up to its culmination in the poetry of Dryden and Pope, and then proceeds to analyse and assess in detail the comparable achievement of Gay, Johnson, Churchill, Young, Cowper, Goldsmith, and Crabbe." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Selected bibliography. Index.

"The average reader of this book will almost inevitably feel that he is attending a post mortem; he will probably experience the sort of disappointment that Carlyle felt when he listened to Wordsworth discoursing on poetry and was treated to a discussion 'turning wholly on the mechanical part.' But this disappointment is hardly fair to Dr. Brown, who does competently, if rather monotonously, what he set out to do."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p279 Ap 30 '49 650w

"With clarity and vivacity, Professor Brown shows in the course of his book, that the heroic couplet was tailor-made to carry sting, to convey ironic contrasts, to be the vehicle of unforgettable epigram, to lock deadly observations within its end-chimes. Secondarily, The Triumph of Form is an excellent handbook of the smaller techniques of eighteenth-century satire."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:13 Mr '49 280w

BROWN, WORTH ALONZO. Tuberous begonias; a complete guide for amateur and specialist; drawings by Eldon N. Dye. 128p il $2.75 Barrows

635.933468 Begonias Agr48-290

Study of all types of the tuberous begonias for amateur or specialist. Contains data on history and development of the begonias, instructions for propagating and raising them. Written by a commercial grower. List of sources for tuberous begonias; bibliography; index.

Booklist 45:116 D 1 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '49

"The growing army of begonia enthusiasts, foreign as well as American, will welcome this clear-cut, informative and thoroughly useful book on the tuberous branch of a great flower genus. Rarely does one find a gardening volume which covers its particular subjects so thoroughly in so few words." R. S. Lemmon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 Mr 13 '49 170w

BROWN, MRS ZENITH (JONES) (LESLIE FORD, pseud). Date with death. 197p $2.50 Scribner

49-8808

Detective story.

Booklist 45:355 Je 15 '49

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun My 20 '49 100w

"Lots of red herrings and false clues and complications of character and incident keep the reader from seeing the truth before a simple fact in medicine provides the missing link, and the case is solved to the satisfaction of all who matter."

+ Kirkus 17:218 Ap 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 My 29 '49 180w

"The plot is intricate enough to suit the most exacting."

+ New Yorker 25:115 My 7 '49 160w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 22 '49 150w

"Good."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:43 My 7 '49 40w

BROWNE, HENRY JOSEPH. Catholic church and the Knights of labor. 415p il $4.50; pa $4 Catholic univ. of Am.

261 Knights of labor. Church and labor. Powderly, Terence Vincent A49-4413

"Deals primarily with the concern of the Church in North America over membership on the part of Catholics in the Knights of Labor toward the end of the nineteenth century. It was at the time a burning question. Excitement was keenest in Canada, where the oaths and secret rituals to which the Knights subscribed were all too reminiscent of Masonic developments in Europe. It was Cardinal Gibbons himself who succeeded in getting restrictions on Catholic membership lifted, but the controversy had been so violent and so protracted that by then the Knights themselves—having performed their pioneering function—were already losing ground." Commonweal

Reviewed by J. N. Thurber
Ann Am Acad 266:210 N '49 650w

"Liberally documented, fact-facing historical work."
+ Commonweal 50:302 Jl 1 '49 130w

"The author has enlarged our understanding of a significant episode of labor history and clearly reveals the many-sided views that are held on social questions within the Catholic church." Philip Taft
+ J Pol Econ 57:551 D '49 550w

BROWNE, HOWARD (JOHN EVANS, pseud). Halo in brass. 222p $2.50 Bobbs 49-10015

Detective story.

"Mr. Evans' current 'Halo' requires a fairly worldly reader, since some facets of life ordinarily not aired in front of the general reader are here most casually discussed. It is a tough, adult book, full of subtlety." Elizabeth Bullock
N Y Times p15 Jl 31 '49 180w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 7 '49 90w

"Exceptionally tough—and exceptionally good."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:31 Jl 23 '49 40w

BROWNE, MARY KENDALL. Design for tennis. 216p il $3 Barnes, A.S.
796.34 Tennis 49-8326

Textbook of instructions for beginners in tennis, intended primarily for teachers.

Booklist 45:330 Je 1 '49

"A good textbook for teachers... Could be very useful for beginners." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:737 My 1 '49 20w

Reviewed by Rex Lardner
+ N Y Times p14 My 22 '49 140w

BROWNLOW, LOUIS. The President and the presidency. 137p $2.75 Public adm.
353.03 Presidents (U.S.) 49-6223

Six lectures delivered in April 1947 at the University of Chicago under the sponsorship of the Charles R. Walgreen foundation. Contents: The Presidency: an American institution; The President; how we choose him; What we expect the President to do; How we control the President; How we equip the President for his task; What help does the President need from us?

Booklist 46:91 N 15 '49

"There have been many able and important treatises on the presidency, but this is the outstanding contribution to the study of this great office. It is a brilliant work, well reasoned, concisely stated, and presented in a clear and interesting fashion by a great observer and thinker." C. E. Merriam
+ Chicago Sun p49 D 13 '49 450w

BRUCKER, HERBERT. Freedom of information. 307p $4 Macmillan
323.4 Freedom of information. Press—U.S. Liberty of the press 49-7938

"In both world wars the Allies and Germany struggled to control the mind of mankind. This struggle was predicated on two fundamental truths: first, that a fact that cannot reach a man's mind from the outside world simply does not exist, as far as he is concerned; and second, that what a man has in his head as a fact is a fact, as far as he is concerned, whether or not it exists in the world outside; on these two truths, all that comprises this book is based." (School & Society) Index.

Reviewed by F. E. Merwin
Ann Am Acad 265:187 S '49 460w

Booklist 45:217; 235 Mr 1 '49; Mr 15 '49

Foreign Affairs 28:159 O '49 20w

"Substantial, readable answer to those who argue for control. Recommended." R. E. Kingery
+ Library J 73:1381 O 1 '48 70w

Nation 168:368 Mr 26 '49 50w

"Brucker's passion for objectivity leads him to look forward to the day 'when editorial policies as well as news policies will be objective,' when publishers will 'cease being advocates, and become judges.' By objectivity, he means fairness. Thus the ideal is praiseworthy even if unattainable. But it is liable to be misleading. . . Freedom of Information is marred in its generally nice balance between championship and criticism of the press by Brucker's disposition to assault hobgoblins of his own contriving." Alan Barth
New Repub 120:17 My 30 '49 1300w

"This is far and away the best analysis of the modern American newspaper yet published. And it is more than a study of the modern American newspaper: it is, on the whole, quite the best survey of the press job—the rights, responsibilities and true functions of what we call journalism—ever offered to the general reader and the student, in my opinion." F. L. Mott
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 My 1 '49 800w

"A candid, realistic, non-whitewashing study of what is wrong with American newspapers and what can be done—and is being done—to set them right." E. D. Canham
+ N Y Times p6 Mr 27 '49 1000w

Reviewed by Don Hollenbeck
Sat R of Lit 32:31 Mr 19 '49 800w

School & Society 69:159 F 26 '49 80w

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 310w

Reviewed by Hillier Krieghbaum
Survey 85:279 My '49 450w

"Freedom of Information is an able and articulate defense of the American press, written at a time when this press has been under attacks originating both at home and abroad. . . Even if Mr. Brucker cannot persuade all elements of the press to accept his prescription, he has set forth an intelligent regimen which many newspapers are already attempting to follow."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:160 Je '49 270w

Wis Lib Bul 45:84 My '49

BRUFF, JOSEPH GOLDSBOROUGH. Gold rush; [his] journals, drawings, and other papers, April 2, 1849-July 20, 1851; ed. by Georgia Willis Read and Ruth Gaines; with a foreword by F. W. Hodge. Calif centennial ed 794p $10 Columbia univ. press
979.4 California—Gold discoveries. Frontier and pioneer life—California. Overland journeys to the Pacific 49-8374

"Because of their scope and detail Bruff's journals can be considered the definitive record of the cross-country pioneers. Almost 600 large pages relate the adventures and hardships of the gold rushers, including details of the terrain, weather, and flora (non-technical) of the country traversed, the animals and insects encountered, descriptions of the food and drink, the ailments of the travelers, and even the inscriptions on grave-markers. This is enhanced by 38 pen and pencil drawings which Bruff made on the 'perilous journey' and 183 pages of editors' notes." (Library J) This edition follows the earlier two-volume set, now out of print (Book Review Digest 1944).

Current Hist 16:344 Je '49 50w

"Probably the Bruff papers are as valuable first hand source material as there is on the traversing of the Continent, following the golden lure."
+ Kirkus 17:194 Ap 1 '49 240w

BRUFF, J. G.—Continued

"A momentous book; moreover, an extremely interesting book." Clarence Gorchels
+ Library J 74:658 Ap 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by H. N. Doughty
Nation 169:18 Jl 2 '49 350w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Je 5 '49 140w

"Since Bruff was an experienced draftsman, his illustrations show in present-day light that he had talent and accuracy. Thanks to the careful work of editors Georgia Read and Ruth Gaines . . . this remarkable record of the overland Gold Rush migration was made available to the general public for the first time in 1944 in two volumes. The present one-volume edition omits Bruff's earlier diaries and some other material." Jack Foisie
+ N Y Times p11 My 15 '49 230w

"Bruff, it is clear, realized fully that he was helping make history, and a part of his mind kept telling him to note down everything. That's just about what he did, which is what makes his journals and drawings so valuable today. He even scribbled notes on the pathetic wooden headboards marking graves along the route and already beginning to weather away when he came along, and it is likely that his notes on these are the only record many a family will ever have of what happened to some ancestor who took the gold trail and vanished without trace." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ap 21 '49 350w

"Into this finely printed, 800-page book the editors have brought the best narrative sections of Bruff's work as previously issued in two volumes, with the best drawings, and they have given us their invaluable notes." Allan Nevins
+ Sat R of Lit 32:52 My 14 '49 370w

BRUFF, NANCY (MRS E. T. CLARKE). Beloved woman. 179p $2.75 Messner 49-8427

"The story of a love that can't happen here." When lonely Mary Robbin received letters from a mysterious friend, she imagined herself in love. When a meeting of the two ensued she was horrified to discover her David was a Negro porter. It was David who found the answer to their dilemma in perfect friendship.

Christian Science Monitor p15 My 12 '49 180w

"A rather cloying little lesson in friendship, loving kindness and sentimentality. . . There's nothing here to recommend this on the ground of its handling of race relations. For those to whom this particular problem is important, there is still Worth Hedden's The Other Room."
Kirkus 17:117 Mr 1 '49 150w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 O 2 '49 150w

Reviewed by James MacBride
N Y Times p30 Ap 24 '49 110w

"The expressed sentiments on behalf of our common humanity are entirely admirable but never quite parallel the real sentiments of real people. The prose is a hothouse of clichés, from 'the wreck of a once happy home' to 'all the insulted and injured of the earth.' Miss Bruff's decision to try warrants more respect than her book."
— New Yorker 25:111 My 7 '49 90w

"These wanderers stand out in splendid relief against outrage. Nancy Bruff traces their sorrows with form, deep sympathy, and brilliance making compassion imperative." C. M. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 Jl 23 '49 230w

BRUMBAUGH, AARON JOHN, ed. See American council on education. American universities and colleges

BRUNHOFF, LAURENT DE. Babar's picnic; tr. from the French by Merle Haas [il. by the author]. 40p $3.50 Random house
49-50294

Another picture story book about Babar's children. They pack their Indian suits and go on a picnic, meet some savages, help to capture a wild boar, and have some exciting adventures on account of the rain. For ages four to eight.

Bookmark 9:83 Ja '50 50w

"A brand new Babar to delight the young in heart, no matter what their age." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 D 18 '49 110w

"Recommended for five- and six-year-old Babar enthusiasts." Juanita Walker
Library J 75:50 Ja 1 '50 60w

Reviewed by A. N. Fedder
N Y Times p12 N 13 '49 130w

BRUNINI, JOHN GILLAND, and others, eds. Stories of our century by Catholic authors. 317p $3 Lippincott

Short stories—Collections. Roman Catholic literature—Collections 49-6993

Contents: Bella Fleace gave a party, by Evelyn Waugh; All the years of her life, by Morley Callaghan; The fifty-first dragon, by Heywood Broun; To the mountains, by Paul Horgan; The quiet man, by Maurice Walsh; Hunchback Madonna, by Angelico Chavez; The fur coat, by Sean O'Faolain; Brother Boniface, by Mary Lavin; Weep no more, by Richard Sullivan; There's a spot in my heart, by Frank Leslie; The hint of an explanation, by Graham Greene; The old sailor, by Bruce Marshall; A sense of participation, by Harry Sylvester; The old bird, a love story, by J. F. Powers; The white mare, by Michael McLaverty; Hail Mary, by John Fante; The white pigeon, by Gouverneur Paulding; Kissing the rod, by Viola Meynell; The yellow mail, by F. H. Spearman; Storm-struck, by Daniel Corkery; Chestnut and jet, by Bryan MacMahon; The man who gave good advice, by Maurice Baring; The Father, by Caryll Houselander; The chief mourner of Marne, by G. K. Chesterton; The escape from fairyland, by J. B. Morton. Includes brief biographical data about each author.

Booklist 46:97 N 15 '49

"[The stories] vary in quality with the majority well above the high readability line." Mary Sandrock
+ Cath World 170:233 D '49 300w

"A great deal of intelligent editing and arranging is evident in this collection. . . Limited to work written in English, the selections are not only by authors of many different cultural and social backgrounds but they also maintain, true to the editors' prefatorial promise, a high level of literary craftsmanship." J. J. Wey
+ Commonweal 51:251 D 2 '49 390w

"This is a collection that the average reader would expect to be predominantly religious, but it is in the main more religious by intimation than by doctrinary sermons. The editors have been as much concerned with the literary quality as with the religious fervor of their, on the whole, select company of Roman Catholic authors. They have provided us with realism, fantasy, whimsy, satire and the fine polished tales of outstanding British Roman Catholic authors. And they have not overlooked the young American realists." Richard McLaughlin
+ N Y Times p45 N 13 '49 200w

BRUNNER, HEINRICH EMIL. Christianity and civilisation; pt 1, Foundations. 167p $2.50 Scribner

261 Christianity. Civilization, Christian (48-9826)

"Looking both backward and forward, Emil Brunner, the Swiss theologian, in his first series of Gifford lectures, seeks to clarify the relationship between Christianity and civilization as we know it today and as we hope for it tomorrow. . . . Seeing the totalitarian state as the most urgent problem of our time, he sets before his readers two alternatives: either to continue along the road of the de-Christianization of our culture and civilization 'which leads to the total effacement of anything truly human, and perhaps even to its complete physical destruction; or to go back to the source of justice, truth, and love, which is in the God of justice, truth and love, in whom only lies the power of salvation.' " (Christian Science Monitor) Index.

Booklist 46:6 S 1 '49

Reviewed by Neil Martin
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 4 '49 420w

Reviewed by Neil Martin
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 5 '50 140w

"It is a book which, while it needs close application, can be read profitably even by those who do not consider themselves scholars. It is full of pertinence for the days in which we live." J. H. Titus
+ Churchman 164:17 Ja 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by W. M. Horton
Crozer Q 26:346 O '49 1000w

"It is a rapid but pondered synthesis that Dr. Brunner provides, and we are in no doubt either about his competence or about the relation of his thoughts to their background. That is not to say that nothing can be questioned in this book. The diagnosis is excellent, but there is no such certainty about the details of the proposed remedy. . . Dr. Brunner's book deserves to be read. What he positively has to say, for example, about natural law as divine law and about human freedom as the power to cooperate with God is very much to the point. It is only because he has produced so intelligent and sincere a book that it is necessary to insist on its deficiencies; its merits will be obvious to any reader, but its deficiencies have to be pointed out."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p108 F 12 '49 2150w

BRUNO DE JESUS-MARIE, PERE, ed. Three mystics: El Greco, St John of the Cross, St Teresa of Avila. 187p il $7.50 Sheed

149.3 Mysticism. Theotocopuli, Dominico, known as El Greco. John of the Cross, Saint (Juan de Yeppes). Teresa of Jesus, Saint

A combination of the writings of St Teresa of Avila, and of St John of the Cross, with the paintings of El Greco. "The works of these great mystics of the Catholic Reform in Spain are most suited to give to the modern reader a conception of the dynamic religious forces of this period." (Commonweal)

"Distinguished and beautifully executed work." A. M. Sholl
+ Cath World 170:240 D '49 400w

"This book is both edifying and beautiful." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:1201 O 12 '49 400w

"Whoever thought to combine the writings of St. Teresa of Avila and St. John of the Cross with the pictures of El Greco in one volume, had a very fertile idea indeed. . . In leafing through the book the religiously inclined reader will be fascinated by the 'claire-obscure' in the verse of St. John, by St Teresa's fruitful prose and by the religious force with which all figures of El Greco strive upwards." Max Fischer
+ Commonweal 50:633 O 7 '49 600w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 75:44 Ja 1 '50 80w

BRYANT, ARTHUR HERBERT. Valley of St. Ives. 275p $2.75 Farrar, Straus

49-7214

Character studies of two shy young people: Clark Fuller, a teacher in a boys' school, and Christine, a dreamy, selfish girl brought up in the "horsy" circles of Virginia society. Christine's love for her horse exceeds her love for her husband, and their marriage ends in tragedy.

"The background of the beautiful valley, a tradition-rooted school for boys, and well-groomed country estates gives variety to Mr. Bryant's remarkably perceptive, delicate, and protracted probing into Clark's doubts and frustrations. A novel poetic in shades of feeling and expression, but strictly of this world." W. K. Rugg
+ Christian Science Monitor p15 Mr 21 '49 150w

Kirkus 16:646 D 15 '48 150w

"Immature attempt at a psychological novel, in which characters are typed rather than developed, and story limps unevenly with spots of forced luscious style." R. W. Henderson
— Library J 74:125 Ja 15 '49 100w

"This is not a slick book; the author has tried conscientiously to be subtle and thoughtful. Unfortunately, however, the situations and the characters that he has chosen to write about are a little bit ridiculous, and the book, after a promising beginning, disappoints." Barbara Klaw
— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ap 17 '49 190w

"Too often a writer's second novel does not measure up to his first, and young Arthur Herbert Bryant's second-born is no exception to the rule. 'The Valley of St. Ives' is something like a psycho-sociological, or perhaps, a socio-psychological study. Maybe it's just a love story. But it really makes very little difference, as all aspects are equally flimsy." P. A. S.
— San Francisco Chronicle p17 F 27 '49 310w

"Clark and Christine come close to losing our regard, out of their insufficiency of character. They are not thoroughly plumbed, they are not entirely realized even in their own terms. Their story is too much told by the writer or by the other characters; they do not speak or think definitively enough for themselves. Had Mr. Bryant created them with the power to lift themselves out of their shadowed lethargy and speak eloquently, their history would be a more important and a more moving one." N. L. Rothman
Sat R of Lit 32:12 F 19 '49 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p629 S 30 '49 300w

BRYANT, MARGARET M. Modern English and its heritage. 407p $5 Macmillan

420.9 English language 49-7267

"A college textbook which traces the history of the English language, analyzes its basic elements of sounds and letters, and discusses grammar, usage, word formation, and semantics. The author uses documentation freely in support of her contention that the English language undergoes constant change and development, so that usage determines correctness. Bibliography." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 45:257 Ap 1 '49

"Among the arts of communication now widely discussed, even the relatively forbidding subject of linguistics enjoys a certain popularity. A book like Margaret Bryant's will help to satisfy general curiosities about the English language in particular, as viewed by linguists. Usable as a textbook, with its abundant exercises and suggestions for study, it can also be pleasurably read by amateurs." Margaret Schlauch
+ New Repub 120:18 Je 27 '49 600w

School & Society 69:63 Ja 22 '49 60w

BUBER, MARTIN. Israel and the world; essays in a time of crisis. 255p $3.75 Schocken

296 Jews—Religion. Jews—Civilization. Jews—Political and social conditions 48-9322

"Chiefly known as an indefatigable pioneer in behalf of Hasidism, the mystic philosophy which originated within eastern European Jewry, Martin Buber, now Professor of Social Philosophy at Jerusalem's Hebrew University, is also an original thinker in his own right. The present book, a collection of twenty-two essays, composed in the last three decades, constitutes a gratifying elementary introduction for the layman into Buber's philosophical wisdom. . . Conceived as 'a discussion of the encounter between the historic spirit of Israel and a world which regards it as foreign, incomprehensible or irrelevant,' the volume addresses itself to Jews and Christians alike." (N Y Times) No index.

BUBER, MARTIN—Continued

"Martin Buber grows and grows in stature; he has indeed arisen, a leader in Israel, and [these] essays written 'in a time of crisis' are as timeless as they are timely." Anne Fremantle

+ Commonweal 49:356 Ja 14 '49 420w

Reviewed by M. S. Friedman
J Religion 29:158 Ap '49 550w

"The second section will be particularly interesting to Christian as well as to Jew, dealing as it does with the validity of the Ten Commandments today, the role of the Bible in modern life, the contrasts between Plato and Isaiah and the Biblical conception of leadership, true and false. The last section, entitled 'Nationalism and Zion,' will probably command the widest attention, not merely among those interested in the problems of Israel and the Near-East, but among all who are concerned with the power and the peril of modern nationalism." Robert Gordis

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 F 6 '49 380w

"These 'Essays in a Time of Crisis' will be challenged by Christians, too, who may find flaws in Buber's interpretation of Christianity. But everyone will read the volume with profound interest, whether or not he gives full agreement. Even a skeptic may be willing to follow this Hebrew humanist for much of the way, attracted by his rich language and the sincerity of his serene and noble attitude toward life." Alfred Werner

+ N Y Times p4 N 28 '48 1050w

BUBER, MARTIN. Prophetic faith; tr. from the Hebrew by Carlyle Witton-Davies. 247p $3.75 Macmillan

224 Prophets 49-10304

"Scholarly presentation of the relation between Israel and its God, as revealed in the Old Testament. The author starts with the Song of Deborah as the first authenticated written expression of primitive belief in YHVH as Israel's God. Showing this as an outgrowth of early patriarchal tradition in which leaders claimed divine appointment, Buber cites Samuel's faith in himself as mediator between God and man at the time when prophets pled with kings, and Elijah as the great seer when adherence to Baal became the disastrous threat. The last half of the book is termed a 'turning to the future', the progressively developing messages of the outstanding prophets." Library J

"In this volume we are put under debt to a great scholar seeking to disentangle that which matters most from that which matters least. Here revelation is purged of celestial fortune-telling; the eternal is discovered in the sheath of the temporal; and 'man's God' is outgrown in a closer approximation toward 'God's God in the mind of man.' Surely, even in any disagreements, this makes for an ultimate agreement." W. P. Lemon

+ Christian Century 66:1200 O 12 '49 1200w

"This is a thorough and scholarly re-examination of the Old Testament literature with a view to reconstructing the development of religious ideas among the Israelites."

+ Kirkus 17:297 Je 15 '49 130w

"A brilliant book, but of very limited appeal." L. R. Miller

+ Library J 74:1020 Jl '49 180w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich
Springf'd Republican p10B Ja 1 '50 240w

BUBER, MARTIN, ed. Tales of the Hasidim [v.2] The later masters [tr. by Olga Marx]. 352p $3.75 Schocken

296 Hasidism (47-2952)

A second volume of tales of the Hasidim, this contains stories of the "later" masters, living in the late 18th and 19th centuries. The tales are little stories showing the hasidic way of life. Glossary. Indexes.

"For those who have read Dr. Buber's systematic analysis and historical account of Hasidism, or for those who prefer to skip that and come directly to the actual materials of Hasidic teaching, this volume meets the need." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 65:1403 D 22 '48 110w

"The second volume of 'Tales of the Hasidim' is preceded by an admirable historical introduction by Dr. Buber, and by excellent notes about each of the Polish, Rumanian, Hungarian or Russian zaddikim. There are some breathtaking examples of deep wisdom. For students of Kafka, for example, this is a very illuminating source book, or chap-book. And there is a pleasantly comprehensible quality about the rabbis." Anne Fremantle

+ Commonweal 49:356 Ja 14 '49 130w

"An unusual form of literature, composed of proverbs, short stories, parables, Biblical interpretation and sermonettes. The author has rendered a real service in opening up this literature to readers of English, for, although this is a book which will be of primary interest to students of Jewish religious history, it will no doubt have an appeal to a wider public."

+ Kirkus 16:619 D 1 '48 160w

BUCHANAN, LAMONT. People and politics; the pictorial history of the American two-party system. 123p il $2.75 Stephen-Paul

973 Political parties—U.S. U.S.—Politics and government 49-7770

A history of the American two-party system, from Washington to Truman, in text and pictures. The pictures are current cartoons, campaign posters, drawings, and newspaper headings. No index.

"For those who have next to no knowledge of American politics prior to their own coming of voting age, the text will have some value as a capsulized, easy-to-read, if not exact history of what went on before. It covers nothing not handled in any high school history tome. Mr. Buchanan is actually at his best in his own foreword, wherein he defines the role of political parties and justifies their existence." Warren Moscow

N Y Times p22 Mr 27 '49 180w

"The pictures have been intelligently chosen from contemporary views of the American scene. . . Most of the illustrations are unfamiliar despite the frequent use of such source material in more formal histories, and the book as a whole is a well-planned and interesting addition to Americana." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p18A Mr 27 '49 180w

BUCHANAN, LAMONT. Story of basketball in text and pictures. 188p $3.50 Stephen-Paul

796.32 Basket ball 49-7406

Tells the story of basketball in text and action pictures, from its beginning in the winter of 1891-92, to the present. Contains a section on statistics and a picture index.

Booklist 45:214 F 15 '49

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:379 Mr 1 '49 10w

"Mr. Buchanan's 'The Story of Football,' which came out a year ago, was an admirable combination of text and pictures that gave the whole turgid, and in a sense mystifying, history of the sport a handy and palatable form. His new book, 'The Story of Basketball,' does an even better job. It might well be considered the last word on the subject." W. R. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ap 24 '49 350w

"For the basketball enthusiast, Buchanan's new book is practically a 'must.' " W. R. G.

+ Springf'd Republican p18A Ja 30 '49 290w

BUCHSBAUM, RALPH MORRIS. Animals without backbones; an introduction to the invertebrates. rev ed 405p il $6.50; text ed $5 Univ. of Chicago press

592 Invertebrates 48-9508

"A new chapter has been added to give the student an orientation in the literature on the invertebrates. To encourage the student to read scientific articles and to help him to realize the significance of the scientific paper as the basic unit of zoölogical literature, three short scientific articles, of three types, are reproduced in the book. A selected bibliography has been included." (Pref to rev ed) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1938. Index.

Booklist 45:179 Ja 15 '49

School & Society 69:102 F 5 '49 60w

BUCK, PEARL (SYDENSTRICKER) (MRS RICHARD JOHN WALSH). Kinfolk. 406p $3.50 Day

49-2037

A novel of modern China. When Louise Liang of New York fell in love with an American, her father sent her with her brother and sister to join an older brother in Peiping. There Louise marries an American soldier, her younger brother is killed by the secret police, and the other young members of the family return to the ancestral village to do welfare work.

Booklist 45:201; 281 F 15 '49; Ap 15 '49

Cath World 169:240 Je '49 200w

"While 'Kinfolk' is not as juicy or as colorful in detail, not so poetic in style as 'The Good Earth,' it has something else—the full play of a mature and warm mind that has brooded long and thoroughly on Good and Evil." Feike Feikema

+ Chicago Sun p8X Ap 24 '49 430w

Reviewed by M. W. Stoer

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 21 '49 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '49

Kirkus 17:115 Mr 1 '49 350w

"Plot is too contrived to be convincing; character development is superficial. This is not one of Miss Buck's masterpieces but is pleasant enough on the light fiction reading level." H. R. Forbes

— + Library J 74:546 Ap 1 '49 90w

Library J 74:1557 O 15 '49 50w

" 'Kinfolk' casts light on the China of which one reads in the newspapers and on the Chinese people one meets in our towns and cities, whether they are intellectuals or prosperous merchants or run a hand laundry. By reflection, it also casts light, some of it far from flattering on ourselves. Beyond such general interests, 'Kinfolk' is a richly human story, with humor and pathos as well as the larger emotions." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ap 24 '49 1050w

"In small and, to my mind, unimportant ways, 'Kinfolk' may contribute to American knowledge of Chinese mores. Miss Buck's people, however, are usually unlifelike; their reactions are announced rather than felt; and the result is that her characters emphasize rather than diminish the 'differences' between East and West. That is not the fault of the Chinese." Louise Lux

N Y Times p30 Ap 24 '49 340w

New Yorker 25:98 Ap 23 '49 140w

"In 'Kinfolk' Pearl Buck is trying to clarify a contemporary issue. At times the story becomes hopelessly didactic. What she has done best in this novel has been to give a sense of continuity of life in China, the outlook of centuries in the past, the possibilities of the centuries to come. This involves the conflict between tradition and progress. China is finished with one age, she implies, and is ready for a rebirth. But Pearl Buck is enough of the artist not to tell us in specific terms what form that rebirth will take." Jane Voiles

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 My 15 '49 600w

Reviewed by M. S. Douglas

Sat R of Lit 32:13 Ap 23 '49 750w

Springf'd Republican p8C My 1 '49 550w

BUCK, PEARL (SYDENSTRICKER) (MRS RICHARD JOHN WALSH), and ROBESON, ESLANDA CARDOZA (GOODE) (MRS PAUL ROBESON). American argument 206p $3 Day

917.3 National characteristics, American. U.S.—Civilization. Negroes 49-7264

"Personal conversations between Pearl Buck and Eslanda Robeson give a revealing and significant picture of America. Interesting comparison is made between growing up in China as a white child among colored people, and growing up in the United States as a colored child in a white society. Pearl Buck asks her usual probing questions, with comments, and Mrs. Robeson answers with directness and clarity. No subject is taboo—sex, marriage, women, children, education, politics, Russia, labor and of course inequality of opportunity." Library J

Booklist 45:113; 190 D 1 '48; F 1 '49

Chicago Sun p9X Ja 16 '49 50w

"There is so much sound information in 'American Argument' and so clear a challenge in many of its points that one regrets the overly didactic approach which may limit its reader public." O. D. Hormel

+ — Christian Science Monitor p18 Mr 17 '49 550w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Horn Bk 25:239 My '49 130w

Kirkus 16:612 N 15 '48 250w

"An interesting contribution toward better understanding of our country. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 74:54 Ja 1 '49 110w

Nation 168:368 Mr 26 '49 70w

"Miss Buck and Mrs. Robeson would be the first to grant that others, in turn, will disagree with them on diagnoses and remedies. 'American Argument' is not the kind of book that labors to convince its readers. She and Mrs. Robeson offer a range and caliber of emotion and feeling, serious but never pompous or preachy, that cannot help but be stimulating to others who love America yet are also troubled by certain qualities of our national life." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 F 6 '49 420w

"There is much in this book that will prove irritating to many readers. But reading irritating books and trying to understand why they are the kind of books they are may be wholesome. Mrs. Robeson, for all her pride in her race, knows the extent to which we fail to be a complete democracy. As an intelligent and successful woman she is worth listening to. Mrs. Buck, American by ancestry, Chinese by early environment, has her own valuable point of view." R. L. Duffus

N Y Times p21 Ja 23 '49 650w

" 'American Argument' is a good discussion book. Though often obtuse and meandering—perhaps explorative is a better word—it does draw the reader into the discussion, though there is the constant danger that the reader who does not get enough will put down the book at any point and carry on the argument himself." P. M. Mezey

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p19 F 20 '49 650w

"Perhaps if this symposium had been held in the winter of 1949 after the people had spoken, Miss Buck, between sessions, would not have been in sleepless despair about the country she loves. As it is recorded, 'American Argument' is not a book for the pessimistic. But for the isn't-it-grand-to-be-an-American school it cannot be too urgently recommended." W. T. Hedden

BUCK, PEARL—Continued
+ Sat R of Lit 32:13 F 5 '49 700w
School & Society 69:214 Mr 19 '49 30w
Wis Lib Bul 45:45 Mr '49

BUCKINGHAM, EARLE. Analytical mechanics of gears. 546p il $10 McGraw 621.83 Gearing. Mechanics, Applied
49-4603

"This new work by a well-known authority on gearing deals not with practical design but with the basis of design. Most of the space is devoted to mathematical analyses of the action of gears. Some allied topics such as how gears wear out and how lubricants function under various conditions are included. It is a valuable work for advanced students in machine design and for graduate engineers engaged in design of gearing. It is too advanced for the average home mechanic or inventor." Library J

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1329 S 15 '49 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 54:54 Jl '49

BUFF, MRS MARY (MARSH), and BUFF, CONRAD. Peter's pinto; a story of Utah [il. by Conrad Buff]. 96p $2 Viking 49-8143

Story of a young boy's summer on his uncle's ranch in the Utah desert. Pete learns to ride and to rope, he has a series of adventures to prove his courage, and finally helps to bring in a wild horse, the horse of his dreams.

Booklist 45:265 Ap 1 '49
Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun Je 18 '49 160w
Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p4 S 13 '49 150w
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:212 My '49 90w

"Although the exploits and experiences are as exciting as those of any Western, it is the quiet dignity and simple ideals of a Mormon household that pervade the entire book."
+ Kirkus 17:85 F 15 '49 120w

"The tales of Mormon frontier days as recounted by a hermit to Peter are a worthwhile addition to the book. . . Recommended for grades 4-6." N. L. Rathbun
+ Library J 74:826 My 15 '49 70w

"What lends the brief tale distinction and will prove a new note for many children is the Mormon background. In various stories told by odd characters, the pioneer Mormon days are briefly explained, and an attitude of religious and racial tolerance is gently inserted." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 1 '49 180w

"Eight-to-11-year-olds will learn something about an unusual state and enjoy a well-paced story. A notable feature of the book is that it presents a different West from the one usually found in cowboy stories." Marjorie Burger
+ N Y Times p24 Je 12 '49 130w
Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:38 Je 11 '49 60w
Wis Lib Bul 45:68 Ap '49

BUFFLER, ESTHER. Rodrigo and Rosalita; il. by Elizabeth Rice. 64p $2 Steck 49-8649

A family of Mexicans living in a little village on the United States side of the Rio Grande are experiencing great hardships, until the two children take a hand at helping the family finances. For ages eight to ten.

"Beautifully portrayed by a real storyteller. Story is ethically sound and sympathetic understanding of one of our minority groups is cleverly interwoven in an appealing plot. Excellent format, and the beautiful illustrations by Elizabeth Rice, while more delicate than those usually associated with Mexico, add to the story. This reviewer found it very popular with ten-year-olds." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 74:895 Je 1 '49 80w

"This is an unusually charming story. . . Readers of 8 to 10 will learn something about a colorful section of our country and enjoy the good times and excitements of Rodrigo and Rosalita." M. B.
+ N Y Times p10 Jl 3 '49 140w

BULLA, CLYDE ROBERT. Secret valley; il. by Grace Paull. 100p $2.25 Crowell 49-10917

An account of the experiences of a little family of four who went from Missouri to California in 1849 to search for gold. They did not find gold, but they did find a home. For beginning readers.

Booklist 46:103 N 15 '49
New Yorker 25:173 D 3 '49 60w

"Grace Paull has done some of her best work in these illustrations. The old songs of the California miners are given, with their music, between the chapters. This is a friendly, happy story with excellent background and atmosphere." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:25 N 12 '49 150w

BURCKHARDT, JAKOB CHRISTOPH. Age of Constantine the Great; tr. by Moses Hadas. 400p $4.50 Pantheon bks.
937.08 Constantine I, the Great, emperor of Rome. Rome—History—Empire 49-8918

"The second edition of Jacob Burckhardt's 'Constantine' was published in 1880, reprinted in 1898 and again in the collected works, in 1929. Almost as much as his 'Civilization of the Renaissance,' it is something of a classic in historiography, and it is astonishing that it has waited so long for an English translator. The gap is now filled by this finely printed volume. Burckhardt's book is not a biography. . . What the author seeks to do is indicated in the title. He undertakes an analysis of a period in which an overwhelming change was made in the history of our civilization, a change occasioned by the rise of Christianity as the religion of Europe." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) Index.

"Here is something for one's bookcase that invites being taken down year after year and reread. If a more recent volume could be mentioned, deservingly in conjunction with it, one might think of Edward Kennard Rand's 'The Building of Eternal Rome.' Both writings help us connect Pagan with Christian times without prejudice to the earlier era and with increased honor for the later." W. P. T.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 30 '49 230w

"The Age of Constantine is so impressive and so nobly conceived a work that it defies criticism. . . The whole thing is splendidly done, completely logical, and entirely convincing—provided that one disregards all the research of the past seventy-five years which shows the natural evolution of paganism to that point at which it flowered into Christianity." Anthony West
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:458 O 22 '49 1350w

"For the general reader, the corrections which newer scholarship adds, are not of great moment. The general picture is substantially accurate, and it has the vividness that only those scholars can create, who are also artists. Such a fusion of talents is not common. Two strictures on the present volume must regrettably be added. There seems to be no good reason to have omitted Burckhardt's notes. . . The translation is in the main excellent, but has the serious blemish of using odd words where the text has simple ones and of lapsing sometimes into solecisms." Max Radin
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ag 7 '49 600w

" 'The Age of Constantine' is one of the best known works of the distinguished Swiss historian, Jacob Burckhardt. Written in the nineteenth century, it is now offered in English for the first time in an admirable translation by Moses Hadas." Edith Hamilton

+ N Y Times p8 S 4 '49 850w
San Francisco Chronicle p11 Jl 10 '49 60w

"This is a book no thoughtful person can afford to miss. . . 'The Age of Constantine the Great' is a window open to the landscape from which we sprang so long ago. Not only does it clarify the deeds and misdeeds of great men and the mystical impulses which spurred them, almost in the same breath, to incomparable acts of piety and dreadfulness, it is a touchstone to an art and literature which transmitted classical antiquity to Christian Europe." F. H. Taylor
+ Sat R of Lit 32:14 S 24 '49 800w

Reviewed by C. M. Woodhouse
Spec 183:614 N 4 '49 750w

"The sustained popularity which the book has enjoyed in Germany is not undeserved. Burckhardt is in the first place eminently readable. His style is lively and incisive—qualities which the translator has preserved to a remarkable extent. He had pronounced views, which he stated and argued with refreshing frankness. The descriptive chapters are particularly good, and give a graphic picture of the last phase of paganism."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p748 N 18 '49 1400w

BURGWYN, MRS MEBANE (HOLOMAN). Lucky Mischief; pictures by Gertude Howe. 246p $2.50 Oxford 49-10305

Story of the rivalry and ultimate friendship of two Negro boys living in the Roanoke River section of North Carolina. Allen is a farmer's son, and belongs to a 4H club. The prize-winning calf which Allen wins, and the capture of an escaped convict by Allen and his enemy turned friend, provide the action of the story. For grades five to seven.

Booklist 46:51 O 1 '49

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:531 N '49 90w
Kirkus 17:427 Ag 15 '49 180w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid
+ Library J 74:1540 O 15 '49 30w

"Well-written, well-plotted, thoroughly heartwarming story which eleven- and twelve-year-old boys will find completely absorbing. Highly recommended." M. E. Martignoni
+ Library J 74:1609 O 15 '49 80w

"An exciting, interesting, well written story for boys of around twelve. . . If it were not for the pictures, we would not guess that these are colored people, for their talk and doings are like those of most country folk. This writer is a gifted story-teller, and has rare insight into the heart of a boy." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 O 23 '49 270w

"Written out of a sound knowledge of boyhood. That these are Negro boys is implied only in the illustrations. They are boys, first and foremost, which is a good way to approach an inter-racial understanding. As in Mrs. Burgwyn's 'River Treasure,' the people of the Roanoke River country are portrayed with true dignity. This is a good family story, too." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p12 D 18 '49 180w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:27 N 12 '49 40w
Wis Lib Bul p10 N '49

BURKE, BILLIE, and SHIPP, CAMERON. With a feather on my nose. 272p il $3 Appleton
B or 92 Actors and actresses—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-8919

The popular comedienne's account of her theatrical career and her married life with Florenz Ziegfeld. Index.

Booklist 45:305; 334 My 15 '49; Je 1 '49

Reviewed by Robert Pollak
Chicago Sun My 25 '49 360w

"Amiably covers her theatrical and married life. . . Vivacious, filled with fashion, theater, names, the light touch here is pleasant and personal."
+ Kirkus 17:221 Ap 15 '49 160w

"Recommended for paid circulation collections as well as theatre and cinema departments." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:959 Je 15 '49 70w
Library J 74:1558 O 15 '49 30w

"With the assistance of Cameron Shipp, [Miss Burke] tells it all with good humor, in a style that must have been carefully designed in advance to be 'chatty.' Which is all right for the kind of theatrical memoir this is, with—before the master makes his entrance—a good deal of interesting backstage chatter of names that yet live." J. K. Hutchens
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 My 22 '49 650w

"A good half of 'With a Feather on My Nose' is concerned with her life with Ziegfeld, and on the whole this half is frank and revealing." Richard Maney
N Y Times p7 My 29 '49 800w

"Miss Burke's special charm gets over astonishingly well in her book . . . in which, with the aid of an expert Hollywood writer, Cameron Shipp, she tells her own life story. It is a gay, tangy, wholly readable and enjoyably insouciant story (which all such books aren't, by any means), and for those who can remember back a bit, also a fascinating theater memory-book of the first two or three decades of this century." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 My 19 '49 950w

"I don't know who gets credit for the writing. Miss Burke is starred as one author, Cameron Shipp modestly featured as the other. It doesn't really matter. Between them, except for a tendency to coyness which is luckily abandoned very early on, they have turned out a tremendously likable book, sincere and not too gentle; often most moving." Patricia Collinge
+ Sat R of Lit 32:17 Je 25 '49 900w
Wis Lib Bul 45:106 Je '49

BURKE, EDMUND. Burke's politics; selected writings and speeches on reform, revolution, and war; ed. by Ross J. S. Hoffman and Paul Levack. 536p $4.75 Knopf
825 Great Britain—Politics and government 49-7287

"The editors of the present volume, emphasizing those points at which Burke's thought and policy coincide with Catholic views, have grouped his writings around the major problems he dealt with: the American colonies, constitutional reform, India, the French Revolution, and the oppression of Catholics in Britain and Ireland. They have provided succinct and lucid historical introductions to the various sections." N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R

"The editors of this book, by careful selection, shrewd arrangement, skillful excising, and masterly commentary, and aided by a very able introduction, a good index, and pertinent notes, have presented to all for whom reading is not a substitute for thought, a volume that in times like these one should never tire of reading. All the best of Burke is here." W. T. Gouch
+ Cath World 169:153 My '49 500w
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 21 '49 800w

"An impressive book of 536 pages, plus a detailed index. . . Possibly most readers will be especially interested in the chapters dealing respectively with the oppression of Catholics, the French Revolution, and Ireland and Catholic political emancipation. These chapters and others fairly bristle with statements which you will like to see in print, and which you hope you will eventually find as the basis of practice." Paul Kiniery
+ Commonweal 49:547 Mr 11 '49 450w
Current Hist 16:169 Mr '49 40w

BURKE, EDMUND—Continued

"A valuable piece of scholarship; of particular interest to colleges and libraries' reference shelves on English and American history."
+ Kirkus 16:655 D 15 '48 170w

"Thoughtfully edited and annotated by Ross J. S. Hoffman and Paul Levack, this collection provides a single volume source for the ideas of one of our most accomplished political philosophers. . . Recommended." J. H. Berthel
+ Library J 74:305 F 15 '49 140w

"The editors compare Burke's time and problem to our own. 'He was the protagonist of the constructive English Revolution of 1688 against the destructive French Revolution, as we today are the protagonists of the Philadelphia freedom of 1776 against the Petrograd and Moscow enslavements of 1917.' These absolute antitheses of 'destructive' and 'constructive' do not seem to me so convincing as they appear to seem to the editors; and I wish the editors would not try to make 'protagonist,' which means the leading character in a play, mean 'advocate' or 'supporter' as they do. But this is a valuable book, and Burke deserves to be read again, not merely quoted in famous phrases or ringing sentences."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 Ja 30 '49 180w

Reviewed by August Heckscher
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 F 27 '49 550w

"Many people today are the spiritual descendants of the Enlightenment, of the Encyclopaedists, of Jefferson and Paine. They believe, rather naively, in reason, science, progress—or did so believe until two wars, a depression and some even more depressing art and letters drove many of them into doubt or despair. For such people Burke, read understandingly, may be a restorative. For he is not a pessimist, not a cynic, not a man in despair. He is no totalitarian, either of the Right or of the Left. He really is a democrat, though he himself could not bear the name, which in his own time had also been appropriated by the totalitarians. He is a good democrat, who knows that democracy is no new magic, but an old, imperfect, human wisdom." Crane Brinton
+ N Y Times p16 Mr 6 '49 750w

"The editors have winnowed the long-dead-day-to-day issues out of the body of Burke's political writings without destroying the continuity of his thought on the larger matters, and they have presented enough of his great speeches for one to get the full flavor of his sonorous, yet ironical and stinging, style."
+ New Yorker 25:123 Ap 9 '49 100w

"To rescue Burke from his mummified fame and to furnish conservatism with a clear and dexterous guide are the objectives of Ross J. S. Hoffman and Paul Levack in this volume on Burke's Politics, an edition of his selected writings and speeches. . . In their eagerness to present the wisdom of Burke, they do not always make clear the operations of Burke's own mind. . . There is a minor mistake in the note on King George's pension to Burke. . . These, however, are the veriest flaws in an admirable and readable treasury which also vindicates the consistency of Burke against the naïve who regard Burke as a liberal in American matters and a panicky conservative in French affairs." M. A. Fitzsimmons + — Pol Sci Q 64:452 S '49 700w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 32:19 Ap 9 '49 290w

BURKET, MRS GAIL (BROOK). Manners please; il. by Peter Brunger. 103p $1.20 Beckley-Cardy

395 Etiquet—Juvenile literature 49-4981

In short rhymes and simple prose, the book presents the subject of good manners to children of fourth and fifth grades.

"Illustrations are meaningful and simple enough for a child to visualize himself in each situation. . . Excellent for use as a textbook and will appeal to all fourth- and fifth-graders if it is well introduced. Recommended." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 74:1034 Jl '49 80w

"Appealing and instructive, achieving the difficult task of presenting good manners in an attractive way."
+ School & Society 69:438 Je 18 '49 20w

BURLINGAME, ROGER. Backgrounds of power; the human story of mass production. 372p $5 Scribner

601 Machinery in industry. Economic conditions 49-11173

"Develops the history of the machine and the production line in American industry from its usually European beginnings. Emphasis on their social effects, on the national development, the ultimate consumer, the operator who becomes decreasingly aware of individual accomplishment. Thus he poses questions in the mass reception in Europe as well as in America, of the phenomena resulting from mass production—mergers, vertical and horizontal trusts, mass communication—radio and moving pictures." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:137 D 15 '49

"'Backgrounds of Power' is built upon wide research and is carefully documented. When he has finished it, the reader feels as though he had read many books and talked with many people." A. G. Hinman
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 N 4 '49 550w

"The author is exhaustively informative and intelligently interesting for the audience specially concerned in industrial trends."
+ Kirkus 17:524 S 15 '49 160w

"Interesting and stimulating."
+ Library J 74:1757 N 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by George Soule
Nation 169:626 D 24 '49 800w

Reviewed by John Kouwenhoven
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 15 '50 1350w

"Mr. Burlingame's technological chapters are excellent—if too few. But it was not his intention to write a history of modern technology. His professed aim is to show the interaction of technology and society, especially American Society. In this he can hardly be said to have succeeded. Technology and American history do not get together—despite some brilliant incidental insights. The reasons for this failure are implicit in Mr. Burlingame's focus on technology—this is on the alignment of mechanical forces." P. F. Drucker
+ — N Y Times p3 O 16 '49 900w

"Mr. Burlingame's two previous, and excellent, books of socio-technological history—'March of the Iron Men' and 'Engines of Democracy'—were in a sense, preliminary studies for this one. This one, however, for all its brilliant exposition of the Gargantuan growth of the machine, is not entirely a success. That is probably because Mr. Burlingame has undertaken more than any author could conceivably accomplish at one sitting."
New Yorker 25:167 N 19 '49 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p27 N 27 '49 420w

"Mr. Burlingame has not written the definitive work on mass production because it is a continuing process; we have only seen its initial stages. Nobody has yet produced a desirable mass-produced house, nobody in his senses, however, doubts that one will come. But this is by all odds the best survey to date, philosophically as well as technically—a wise, learned, and stimulating book." Stuart Chase
+ Sat R of Lit 32:28 D 3 '49 950w

Reviewed by Robert Cousins and S. T. Williamson
Sat R of Lit 33:33 Ja 28 '50 30w

"Roger Burlingame has written another of his fascinating histories of technology in the setting of social change." D. C. Coyle
+ Survey 86:40 Ja '50 650w

Wis Lib Bul p5 N '49

BURMAN, BEN LUCIEN. Everywhere I roam; drawings by Alice Caddy. 304p $3 Doubleday

49-11670

An allegorical tale of Captain Asa, who sets out from the Cumberlands in Kentucky, to find a place "where people's still nice, and living the way they used to do." With him in his horse-drawn trailer he takes his three children and his few belongings. The tale of their travels ends in disappointment for Captain Asa, but his children manage for themselves, and their father learns some valuable lessons.

Booklist 46:89; 124 N 15 '49; D 1 '49

"The allegory and its intention are evident. It is developed with humor and a great variety in the American scene, and with the stripped, crystalline style that is Mr. Burman's greatest asset. Student of society and moralizer merge in the story-teller but are not lost." W. K. Rugg

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 N 25 '49 430w

"I have liked everything Ben Burman has written until this came along. And, to put it bluntly, I thought this dull, far-fetched, utterly lacking in the emotional values that might have made it a poignant human document."

— Kirkus 17:520 S 15 '49 340w

"Mr. Burman presents his people with gentleness and good humor and nothing very bad is allowed to happen. Even the lynching—required apparently in all Southern novels—happens off stage. The old man and his three children show much tenderness and loyalty as they move through a pageant of minor Americana." Lorine Pruette

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 4 '49 650w

"Mr. Burman shows that he has retained his ability to observe and record the details of the life and speech of quaint, unlettered characters. He presents these people affectionately, humorously and with some consideration of their needs and problems. . . The treatment is essentially romantic and sentimental—evidence, at least, of Mr. Burman's own good-will and sympathy for the people he portrays." N. K. B.

+ N Y Times p58 D 4 '49 360w

"Mr. Burman's writing, like his story, is simple, direct, and homespun. His account of the travelling family is strange and interesting, but his characters never become more than skillful black-and-white sketches—recognizable but hardly alive."

+ — New Yorker 25:120 D 17 '49 120w

"There is nothing particularly original about Captain Asa's journey, but few other writers have so integrated scene and character or matched the author's prose in clarity, strength, and simplicity of word conveying multiplicity of idea—a gift all too rare today when too many writers try to cover a paucity of thought with verbosity." H. S. Arnow

+ Sat R of Lit 32:13 N 26 '49 1000w

Springf'd Republican p7D D 11 '49 110w

BURMEISTER, EVA ELIZABETH. Forty-five in the family; the story of a home for children. 247p $3.25 Columbia univ. press

362.73 Milwaukee-Lakeside children's center. Children—Charities, protection, etc.

49-7896

Informally written account of what life is like in one home for children, the Lakeside Children's Center, Milwaukee, Wisconsin. The author, who is the Director of the home, tells of the children, the staff, and outsiders; their problems, their activities, their achievements.

Booklist 45:275 Ap 15 '49

"An informal, charming tale, hard to lay aside until the last word is read. . . The book has definite appeal to the lay public who would be pleased to hear of an institution most unlike the ones to be found by Little Orphan Annie or Annie Rooney. It should be encouraging reading to heads and board members of similar institutions, for here are answers to many of the problems of children. It is, in a word, ideal. . . No doubt the book will be listed for outside reading for the student in social work. Good casework technique is utilized from the beginning of the child's placement in the home. Furthermore, a worker could use it to convince a child's parent or parents that the care of the child in an institution may be as loving and attentive as that in any other substitute for the home." Helen Henn and Ruth Quisenberry

+ J Home Econ 41:330 Je '49 200w

"The telling is so warmly sympathetic, the issues are so well presented that it makes appealing reading for any parents."

+ Kirkus 17:125 Mr 1 '49 110w

"Sincerity, frankness, a real concern for the children and an honest love of them characterize the book. It presents an intelligent, sympathetic approach to the management of a children's Home and is to be commended to anyone working with children, not only in institutions but in other social groups." E. P. Nichols

+ Library J 74:491 Mr 15 '49 110w

"Although Miss Burmeister is too modest and tactful to say so, she and her co-workers have found the answer to many problems with which mothers and fathers are still in a fog. Here there is no trace of adult tyranny and no tolerance of juvenile anarchy, but an enlightened balance of healthy discipline and individual freedom, with expert attention to cases that require special handling. The book is warm, wise and reassuring."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ap 10 '49 200w

"The pages are so alive with the personalities of children and with the humanity of staff members that the reader finds not a treatise but a story rich in human interest. That the chapter on the housemother is the longest in the book, and the chapter on discipline the shortest, reveals much about the philosophy of the Lakeside Children's Center." L. G. Carson

+ N Y Times p37 Ap 24 '49 320w

Reviewed by C. C. Zimmerman

+ Sat R of Lit 32:10 My 7 '49 230w

School & Society 69:159 F 26 '49 60w

"This is a book about children, and the lives they lead in a Children's Home, seen through the eyes of a sensitive person who happens to be the superintendent. It is a joyful book, written with humor and understanding. Both parents and social workers can read it with interest and profit." H. G. Tyson

+ Survey 85:496 S '49 500w

Wis Lib Bul 45:84 My '49

BURN, ANDREW ROBERT. Pericles and Athens. (Teach yourself history lib) 253p $2 Macmillan

938.04 Pericles. Athens, Greece—History

49-10369

An analytic study of fifth-century (B.C.) Athenian political and economic history in which Pericles is shown as leader. The author is lecturer in ancient history in Glasgow university. Note on books. Index.

"Mr. Burn seems to be a thorough devotee of the economic interpretation of history, and his mind is so refreshingly sophisticated and his knowledge so broad that his book constitutes in itself a recommendation for his methods." Joseph Kraft

+ Nation 169:628 D 24 '49 180w

"Periclean Athens is a glittering theme and A. R. Burn . . . treats it fittingly, linking the crises of Athenian democracy to our own times with adroit allusions. One could wish, however, that he had not included so many genealogical minutiae, unindividualized minor characters, and obscure place names." Geoffrey Bruun

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:13 D 31 '49 500w

BURNETT, WHIT, ed. Story, the fiction of the forties. See Story (periodical)

BURNETT, WILLIAM RILEY. Asphalt jungle. 271p $2.75 Knopf 49-10381

Story of the underworld of a large Midwestern city, and of how an honest police commissioner finally ran down a notorious criminal and his gang of helpers.

"Equalling his best, Little Caesar, High Sierra, this is a sustained and relentless story. . . In its accuracy, its intensity, this is pretty hard to beat."
+ Kirkus 17:332 Jl 1 '49 100w

"Fast, light reading. Recommended." H. G. Kelley
+ Library J 74:1093 Ag '49 70w

"While it lasts it is a good fight, with plenty of room for Mr. Burnett's fast-moving prose to snake along." Herbert Kupferberg
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Ag 28 '49 360w

"There is a small band of novelists who have chosen the field of crime as their theme, and have handled it on such a high level that their books have escaped the fate of being classed as 'mystery fiction' and are accorded the privileges and perils of being treated as 'straight' novels. . . Twenty years ago Mr. Burnett's 'Little Caesar' was a national sensation; in the intervening years several more books have increased his reputation—with, now, 'The Asphalt Jungle' to enhance it further." Elizabeth Bullock
+ N Y Times p8 Ag 21 '49 550w

New Yorker 25:103 S 17 '49 180w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 13 '49 700w

"Here is Mr. Burnett so close to the top of his form that there undoubtedly will be some who will agree with the publisher's blurb writer that this is Mr. Burnett's best book. For myself, I should place it behind 'Little Caesar' for sheer drive but ahead of it for its subtle probing of the criminal mind. However you rank it, 'The Asphalt Jungle' is a corking yarn." V. P. Hass
+ Sat R of Lit 32:14 O 15 '49 750w

BURNS, JAMES MACGREGOR. Congress on trial; the legislative process and the administrative state. 224p $3 Harper
328.73 U.S. Congress. Politics, Practical. Legislation—U.S. 49-4901

"The author examines the typical Congressman, the forces that put him into office, and the conflict of local and national interests he must deal with. He considers how these conflicts, multiplied throughout Congress, create a tangle of political pressures that continually threaten to bring the legislative process to a standstill. . . In advancing a solution to the problem, Professor Burns offers a . . . proposal for the reorganization of our political parties on a national scale. The author served on the staff of the recent commission headed by Herbert Hoover to study the government." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

"The chief criticism that I would make of this generally sound and instructive volume is that Professor Burns never did make up his mind as to which windmill he was tilting at, Congress or the political system that underlies it." C. L. Rossiter
+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:1278 D '49 850w

"Professor Burns's Congress on Trial is a 'must' for every student of American government and politics. This critical and informative book, written in a lucid and engaging style, free of detail, will help to clarify for the baffled layman the reason for continuous deadlocked and crisis government in the United States, and to point the way out." Belle Zeller
+ Ann Am Acad 266:222 N '49 700w

Booklist 46:6 S 1 '49

Bookmark 9:3 O '49 30w

Chicago Sun p8X Jl 17 '49 60w

Reviewed by R. L. Strout
Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 27 '49 1300w

Kirkus 17:314 Je 15 '49 170w

"Not recommended." J. E. Cross
Library J 74:1097 Ag '49 100w

"A lucid and deeply illuminating study of Congress and how it functions; or, more often, fails to function."
+ Nation 169:189 Ag 20 '49 70w

"Most of this has been said before, although Mr. Burns says it exceptionally well. What is striking in his book, is the urgency with which he invests the situation, and the remedy he proposes. He foresees the world in a kind of continuing crisis, which may well become acute at short notice or with no warning at all." H. W. Baehr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Jl 31 '49 1000w

"'Congress on Trial' is a first-rate contribution to the discussion of a problem of first-rate importance—that of keeping the legislative technique viable in an age of crisis. While Mr. Burns' proposed reform is not inevitable—it is an alternative; and is based on an analysis which exhibits broad information and exceptional critical acumen, and is most engagingly presented. This book is good reading, and reveals a writer whose literary skill is calculated to assure his views wide influence." E. S. Corwin
+ N Y Times p1 Jl 17 '49 1400w

New Yorker 25:66 S 3 '49 140w

Reviewed by C. W. Weinberger
San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ag 14 '49 750w

"There are few new counts in his indictment, but the familiar ones are set out in readable and persuasive fashion." Lindsay Rogers
Sat R of Lit 32:14 Ag 20 '49 700w

Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 14 '49 420w

BURNS, JOHN HORNE. Lucifer with a book. 340p $3.50 Harper
49-8269

Novel of life in a private school. The two chief characters are the two newest faculty members, an ex-WAC and a disfigured infantry officer. Conditions in The Academy defeat them, but they decide to continue teaching together elsewhere.

"There are a number of biting portraits and some good scenes in the book, but too much of it consists of stereotypes and righteous indignation."
Atlantic 183:89 Ap '49 270w

"Mr. Burns has dipped his pen too deeply in gall; his sketches are only caricatures; his sole attempts at realism are confined to the introducing of vulgar words and indecent scenes. Moreover, the book is filled with cynical obscenities; and Krafft-Ebing, who is named only once, seems to have inspired the author frequently."
— Cath World 169:240 Je '49 190w

Reviewed by Dorothy Langley
Chicago Sun Jl 7 '49 500w

Reviewed by Theodore Kalem
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 28 '49 1100w

"Mr. Burns was not far enough removed from his experiences to be capable of relating them without an excess acidity. Consequently his attack is not pointed as directly as it might have been. His book is too long, and a few of his most acute and penetrating observations are obscured by paragraphs of unleashed fury which become rather tedious." Virginia Vaughan
— Commonweal 50:76 Ap 29 '49 650w

"This is all anger and violence and hate and —in some measure—bitterness. It makes unpalatable, and too frequently tasteless reading. But he has a lot to say on the subject which forms his thesis,—the parlous state of American private school education. . . Burns has a sense of drama; he draws scene after scene that the reader wont forget. But his characters are mainly caricatures, more than life size in their grotesqueries."

— + Kirkus 17:66 F 1 '49 270w

"Characterizations are excellent and the story is logical and reasonable, but the exaggerated manner in which the book is written detracts from its effectiveness. Language and some incidents may create problems in handling." Donald Wasson
Library J 74:494 Mr 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by J. W. Aldridge
New Repub 120:25 Je 20 '49 950w

Reviewed by Antonia White
— New Statesman & Nation 38:520 N 5 '49 600w

"His book isn't actually satire; it is burlesque. . . The satire is not only so bad as to defeat its purpose through inducing incredulity in the reader; it gives a feeling, through its lop-sidedness, of being embittered rather than impersonally bitter. This is apparent not only in the caricatures that replace true characterization, but also in the one-sided misrepresentations that result from the author's furious desire to lambast the status quo and ridicule most of the characters." Hiram Haydn
— N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ap 3 '49 1100w

"Not since that celebrated atomization of the Southern military school, 'End As a Man,' have we read a novel that hated its people and its locale so passionately. . . Now that he has unburdened his soul and his note books, we can only hope that Mr. Burns will move on to fresher fields." William Du Bois
— N Y Times p4 Ap 3 '49 600w

Reviewed by John Broderick
New Yorker 25:104 Ap 16 '49 100w

"The central love affair of the novel, through which Guy Hudson finally realizes the difference between sex and love, is not altogether convincing. What is apparent, however, just as in the English sophisticates, is the dominant sexuality of the novel, and a sexuality that finds expression in harsh and even violent terms. There is an inverted Puritanism in Mr. Burns's work, and a remarkably sophisticated sense of evil and malice. . . You can read 'Lucifer with a Book' for entertainment on a high level, and as an instance of genuine talent among the new writers." Maxwell Geismar
Sat R of Lit 32:16 Ap 2 '49 650w

"An ill-considered and immature piece of work." R. D. Charques
— Spec 183:616 N 4 '49 230w

Springf'd Republican p8C My 1 '49 120w

Times [London] Lit Sup p709 N 4 '49 600w

BURNSHAW, STANLEY. Sunless sea. 192p $2.50 Dial press

49-7944

"A fantasy, this novel with the Kubla Khan title is freighted with allegory. It begins with a trick courtroom scene, presided over by an ex-judge who relinquishes his bench to the witnesses. The case concerns a monkey in the Central Park Zoo who spat in the eye of a beautiful young woman—not without cause. Her story unfolds through the testimony of her husband, her lawyer and her lovers. We discover the young woman is engaged in a struggle for security." N Y Times

"More portentous than revealing." Beatrice Sherman
N Y Times p31 Mr 27 '49 110w

New Yorker 25:113 Mr 26 '49 140w

"Mr. Burnshaw is obviously the possessor of an analytical and subtle mind. He writes with a firmness of touch and a skill which are artistically satisfying. His story occasionally strains the limits of his framework, but the flaw is minor." R. T.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 15 '49 330w

Sat R of Lit 32:32 Je 18 '49 180w

Times [London] Lit Sup p313 Je 5 '48 150w

BURROW, TRIGANT. Neurosis of man: an introduction to a science of human behaviour. 428p $7.50 Harcourt

130 Psychology, Physiological 49-10140

"Dr. Burrow gave up a thriving practice in psychoanalysis to explore, with a few colleagues, the physiological basis for the tensions of hate that characterize our neurotic society. Here he reports his findings in scientific and psychological terms, with some new concepts and terms of his own creation. His thesis is that man, as a species, has developed an overwhelming 'I' attitude (marked by greed, competition, discrimination) that has inhibited the basic adjustment of the individual to society, and to the species." (Library J) Glossary. Indexes.

"An interesting attempt at a science of human behavior, but limited in interest at this point to psychologists and the intellectually curious. Recommended." M. E. Monroe
+ Library J 74:1086 Ag '49 170w

San Francisco Chronicle p28 O 16 '49 750w

Springf'd Republican p7B Jl 31 '49 110w

"Dr. Burrow is not the first thinker to turn against civilization. His temperament is to be as unclassical, un-Whig, and uncompromising as his style; he takes the problem of self-esteem out of the hands of moralists, psychologists and so on and refers it to the electroencephalograph. We shall not regard this as an important step forward if we believe that man needs more sensibility to go with his intelligence."
Times [London] Lit Sup p270 Ap 23 '49 850w

BURT, KATHARINE (NEWLIN) (MRS MAXWELL STRUTHERS BURT). Strong citadel. 281p $3 Scribner

49-7880

A Philadelphia story about a proud aristocratic family, in which the daughter of Judge Evarts learns thru harsh disillusionment that even a peasant girl can have more understanding than she.

Booklist 45:202; 241 F 15 '49; Mr 15 '49

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p15 Mr 24 '49 140w

"Feminine fiction, with more animation than most, by an experienced editor and practitioner in the field."
+ Kirkus 17:159 Mr 15 '49 160w

"Mrs. Burt paints the social scene with sharpness and lays a profane, but velvety, feminine hand on the smugness and ritualistic staleness of the upper crust. The author rattles crystal chandeliers with manifest pleasure in a lively chronicle."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Mr 13 '49 230w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 32:26 Jl 23 '49 200w

BURT, MRS OLIVE (WOOLLEY). Prince of the ranch; the story of a collie; il. by Bob Myers. 239p $2.50 Bobbs

Dogs—Legends and stories 49-10444

"A fine collie and his master, who have always lived in the city, are here transported to a sheep ranch in Utah. Out of their contacts with the sights and sounds of the canyon, their growing understanding of the nature of 'woolies,' above all, out of the innate character of boy and dog, they learn about sheep-herding." Horn Bk

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:532 N '49 80w

"Threaded into the story is fascinating information about herding and sheep raising."
+ Library J 74:1540 O 15 '49 60w

"The Western detail is good and the relationship between the two dogs and their masters well handled."
+ New Yorker 25:182 D 3 '49 60w

BURTON, JEAN. Lydia Pinkham is her name. 279p il $2.75 Farrar, Straus

B or 92 Pinkham, Mrs Lydia (Estes) 49-10120

An account of the life of Lydia Pinkham, the Lynn, Massachusetts, woman who founded an extraordinarily successful business—the making and selling of the famous Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. No index.

Booklist 46:12 S 1 '49

"Told with restraint and good taste."
+ Bookmark 9:3 O '49 40w

Reviewed by W. F. Morse
Chicago Sun p8X Ag 28 '49 320w

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '49

"A female natural, and entertaining in its presentation."
+ Kirkus 17:317 Je 15 '49 180w

"'Highly diverting account of a remarkable woman. . . A witty lucid biography with interesting comments on many leading people of that day. Fascinating reading which will give the reader many a chuckle. Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 74:1087 Ag '49 80w

Reviewed by McAlister Coleman
Nation 169:429 O 29 '49 900w

"Miss Burton's sound and wholly delightful book is surely one of the best biographies of the year. . . The author has told the whole fascinating story without recourse to cynicism or smartness. She brings it down to 1948, and intimates that greater things are in store for the Compound. From out of her book comes a likable family who are as amusing as they are energetic, and were probably just as important as the Alcotts." Stewart Holbrook
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ag 21 '49 1100w

"Perhaps only a Thorstein Veblen could have lifted this biographically simple harmony to the symphonic level. Miss Burton has been sensibly content to underscore a minor passage of the transition of the United States from the age of Emerson to the age of McKinley. Like almost all biographers, however, she views her protagonist too sympathetically and too simply." George Mayberry
N Y Times p22 S 11 '49 360w

New Yorker 25:112 S 17 '49 200w

"It is top-drawer Americana and good entertainment to boot." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 22 '49 1000w

Reviewed by Duncan Aikman
Sat R of Lit 32:16 Ag 27 '49 950w

Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 14 '49 120w

Springf'd Republican p7C O 9 '49 350w

Time 54:81 Ag 29 '49 1000w

BURTON, MRS KATHERINE (KURZ). The next thing; autobiography and reminiscences. 246p il $3 Longmans

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-3997

A spiritual autobiography, in which this author of books of special interest to Catholics, describes her life and her conversion to the Catholic faith.

Booklist 45:353 Je 15 '49

"The Next Thing is packed with crisp, lively, and amusing reminiscence. . . As a matter of fact, the reader meets so many colorful and important figures of American Catholic life (especially the crusaders) and participates vicariously with such interest in Mrs. Burton's personal experiences that he cannot but wonder with some of her own relish just what 'the next thing' will be." B. J. Thompson
+ Cath World 169:315 Jl '49 350w

"Her story is frank and honest. The separation from her husband is handled with dignity and restraint. Her doubts and fears are openly discussed, as are the questions put her by others. Of personal interest to many who knew the Burtons, as well as to those in both Catholic and Episcopalian circles."
Kirkus 17:196 Ap 1 '49 170w

BURTON, MARY LOUISE HART, and JENNINGS, SAGE HOLTER. Your child or mine; the story of the cerebral-palsied child; phot. by Conrad Eiger. 64p $1.25 Coward-McCann

616.83 Paralysis, Cerebral. Children, Abnormal and backward 49-7525

"Taking a series of children—only their names are fictitious—it describes conditions, widely varying, from which they were brought for treatment, tells what could be done for each and what could not be expected, and takes leave of each with a photograph in action, the face that of a soul out of prison. The treatment is described, its possibilities revealed; the truth about the spastic is told to change the attitude of the uninformed toward one so stricken." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) List of cerebral palsy associations and clinics. Glossary. Bibliography. No index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '49

Kirkus 17:24 Ja 1 '49 110w

"If ever there were a book that needed to be written, it is one just written—and in the right way—by the executive secretary of the Westchester Cerebral Palsy Association. For if ever there were victims of a wrong attitude of mind that could be set right by a change of heart, it is children who up to a quarter of a century ago were usually hidden from the world."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p22 My 1 '49 290w

"The book should be most helpful to parents of cerebral palsied children, and also to those who work with the cerebral palsied, either as professionals or volunteers. Finally, the book serves to illustrate the type of services available for the cerebral palsied. It makes clear that in recent years much has been done to establish diagnostic and treatment facilities, and gives a partial list of places where services may be obtained." L. T. Schneider
+ Survey 85:689 D '49 320w

BURTON, MILES. Devil's reckoning. 190p $2.25 Doubleday

49-7383

Detective story.

Kirkus 16:631 D 1 '48 70w

"Miles Burton has succeeded in blending the past and the present in an absorbing tale which holds the interest even after the reader has begun to suspect the identity of the murderer." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p28 F 6 '49 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p15 Mr 6 '49 100w

"Adroitly constructed plot, blithe sleuths, and ample dirty work midst moors and spookish ruins."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 F 12 '49 50w

BURTON, MILES. Disappearing parson [Eng title: Death takes the living]. 222p $2.25 Doubleday

49-10483

Detective story.

"The mystery here is slow in making itself apparent and slight when it is apparent: from about the midpoint it is closer to chase than detection. But in whichever vein, it is ably told. An extra murderer crammed into the final pages is unnecessary and unconvincing."
+ — Chicago Sun S 23 '49 130w

Kirkus 17:341 Jl 1 '49 50w

"'The Disappearing Parson,' more chase than puzzle, is cut along familiar British lines, and is good of its kind." E. B.
+ N Y Times p39 O 2 '49 160w

"Good marks."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 O 15 '49 40w

BURTON, WALTER E., ed. Engineering with rubber; in collaboration with engineers and research men of the B. F. Goodrich company. 486p il $6.50 McGraw

678 Rubber 49-7365

"Technical information concerning rubber, its practical use and application in industry by engineers and designers. Presents information on American-made rubber and rubber like materials with some emphasis on vinyl chloride polymers, whose properties make them fit companions for the various rubbers. Book covers basic principles of the various rubbers and use of rubber in industry." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 45:276 Ap 15 '49

"An excellent treatment of a difficult subject. The author presents a readable, informative, and comprehensive story of rubber which will go far in fulfilling the great need for information presented in everyday engineering language." N. L. Catton

+ Chem & Eng N 27:1468 My 16 '49 320w

Reviewed by D. F. Othmer

Chem Eng 52:288 Ap '49 250w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:1516 O 15 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:29 Mr '49

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:279 Je '49 260w

BURY, JOHN PATRICK TUER. France, 1814-1940. 348p maps $4 Univ. of Pa. press

944 France—History 49-11964

"An endeavour to furnish the general reader, and anyone else who may be interested, with a straightforward and continuous survey of the vicissitudes of French history between 1814 and 1940." (Foreword) Index.

"For the most part, Mr. Bury restrains himself from any flicker of humanity and clings to the dispiriting clichés which have become the trade-language of historians. However necessary this book may be to the student, it is difficult not to regret such self-denial. History is a great art, not merely something for school children; and, to adapt a phrase, accuracy is not enough." A. J. P. T.

Manchester Guardian p4 S 6 '49 240w

"Mr. Bury manages to include a surprising amount of material in a short volume. A special word of gratitude is due for the fact that he does not scorn to acknowledge his sources, and provides useful notes and bibliographies. His history is concise and well-written, and his judgements are shrewd and moderate. It is not Mr. Bury's fault, but rather a testimony to the success with which he has brought out the unity underlying the many vicissitudes of French history during the period, that the reader often has the feeling that he is going over the same ground more than once rather than moving forward." Alfred Cobban

+ — Spec 183:304 S 2 '49 550w

"In general the reader will rise from the book little wiser than he sat down: but he will not have been misled. Mr. Bury has strictly fulfilled his promise."

Times [London] Lit Sup p615 S 23 '49 550w

BUSCH, NOEL FAIRCHILD. Briton Hadden; a biography of the co-founder of Time. 236p $3 Farrar, Straus

B or 92 Hadden, Briton. Time magazine 49-3106

A biography of one of the founders of Time. Briton Hadden and Henry Luce had only been out of Yale two years when they started the magazine. Before he was thirty Hadden made a million dollars, and at thirty-one he died of a streptococcus infection. This story of his brief life is told by a cousin.

"Anyone interested in journalism could not fail to be intrigued by this appropriately breathless story. Its tone is exactly right. One of its most fascinating aspects is the explanation of how Time's clipped style came to be developed." E. S. Skillin

+ Commonweal 50:127 My 13 '49 390w

Kirkus 17:197 Ap 1 '49 190w

"A fascinating book." R. H. S. Crossman

+ New Statesman & Nation 38:248 S 3 '49 2250w

"Hadden's biography appears at a time when, as Mr. Busch admits, the editor has been almost forgotten. Hadden was born prematurely, he died prematurely and he has been forgotten prematurely. Yet in his short career he left his mark on modern reporting and editing. One could wish Mr. Busch had done a better job on him." J. G. Herzberg

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Jl 10 '49 650w

"This biography, like some Time stories, is bright, lively and intimate. It is not penetrating or illuminating. Mr. Busch is sure Time took its character from Hadden, but what Hadden's character was is not clear. His mannerisms, however, are clear enough." L. M. Lyons

+ — N Y Times p6 My 22 '49 500w

"Curt, clear, and—unless Mr. Luce, for his part, happens to have a cousin who can tell the story better—complete."

+ New Yorker 25:86 Je 25 '49 160w

"You get Hadden's physical characteristics, something of his vitality . . . his thoroughness, his ability to concentrate, and sundry other details fairly apparent to the eye. . . But still the nature of the man escapes you. How much of this is because his was a personality too difficult for any biographer, and how much of it is due to the fact that Mr. Busch chose to write pretty much on the level of the rapid-reading magazine article, is hard to say. The fact remains that this is not so much Hadden himself as a book about him, from well outside the man. Its main interest is, first, as the story of an enormously successful publishing venture, second as a smoothly told American success story." J. H. Jackson

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 4 '49 750w

"This book is a witty and entertaining biography of Hadden plus a nostalgic appraisal of his contribution to the Time, Incorporated, success story." Roger Butterfield

+ Sat R of Lit 32:17 My 28 '49 1500w

Springf'd Republican p21A Jl 10 '49 300w

BUSH, CHRISTOPHER. Case of the housekeeper's hair. 223p $2.50 Macmillan 49-10332

Detective story.

"As usual, Mr. Bush sticks to the puzzle every minute. Self-bafflers can hardly go wrong with this one." Will Cuppy

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 7 '49 140w

"Ludovic Travers is in fine form here, even though the solution is reached largely by chance; there is one of those wonderfully intricate alibis depending on tides and river currents; and it's all told with the quiet skill, not devoid of humor, which Bush has been developing in recent years." Anthony Boucher

+ — N Y Times p23 Ag 7 '49 200w

"It's all worked out in a pleasantly gentlemanly fashion, which should prove both satisfactory and soothing to admirers of the roast-beef mystery school."

+ New Yorker 25:68 Ag 27 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 4 '49 130w

Springf'd Republican p5D S 11 '49 150w

BUSH, CHRISTOPHER. Case of the platinum blonde. 192p $2.50 Macmillan 49-8003

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 Ap 3 '49 130w

BUSH, CHRISTOPHER—Continued

"This is not one of Mr. Bush's better efforts." Isaac Anderson

— N Y Times p21 F 20 '49 170w

"Travers becomes involved in a murder that has two possible solutions. . . In neither instance, unfortunately, is the reader who likes to work things out provided with the necessary information, but the plot is both intricate and ingenious."

+ — New Yorker 25:100 F 26 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 Mr 20 '49 110w

"Best British Brand."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 F 19 '49 40w

Springf'd Republican p7C Je 12 '49 130w

BUSH, VANNEVAR. Modern arms and free men. 273p $3.50; pa $1 Simon & Schuster

355 Arms and armor. Military art and science 49-48841

"A discussion of the role of science in preserving democracy." (Subtitle) "Vannevar Bush, more than any other man who ever lived, has been concerned with the management of large-scale research. In recent years he has supervised the application of science to warfare. . . His experience in scientific management includes positions of the first rank in a university (as vice president and dean of engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology), in an endowed research foundation (as president of the Carnegie Institution of Washington), in part-time Government service (as a member and as chairman of the National Advisory Committee on Aeronautics), and in full-time Government service (as head of the National Defense Research Committee and its successor agency, the Office of Scientific Research and Development)." (Sat R of Lit) Index.

"I think Dr. Bush has written a book of transparent candor based on a full knowledge of what happened before his eyes and under his direction. I believe that his sincere, refreshing faith in the democratic scheme of life springs from experience and observation. He has seen it at work and found it good. And in this book he has said so nobly. It is a book which should be read wherever doubts persist and faith falters. It is not an opiate. It is a call to free men to be worthy of their heritage." R. E. Danielson

+ Atlantic 184:80 D '49 1800w

Booklist 46:136 D 15 '49

Bookmark 9:77 Ja '50 50w

"This book contains the kind of information about science which can inform us without scaring us witless. For this reason it should be read by all of us, and by no one more thoroughly than those in the halls of Congress." Emmett Dedmon

+ Chicago Sun p10X N 27 '49 320w

"More than the story of science and war, this book is an interpretation of the impact of science on the relations of men in this rapidly changing world. . . Dr. Bush, carefully avoiding the role of prophet, considers the facts as he sees them and points out that, as the situation is today, one would need a crystal ball to predict the future of high altitude bombing. . . On the whole he is more optimistic than many others and feels that, in spite of mistakes and muddling, free men will be able to take in stride whatever comes." Martin Kilpatrick

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 18 '49 420w

Reviewed by Roland Sawyer

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 22 '49 2000w

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '49

Kirkus 17:526 S 15 '49 150w

Reviewed by J. E. Brown

+ Library J 74:1820 D 1 '49 150w

"Vannevar Bush's new book is strikingly faithful to the man himself. It is honest, garrulous, controversial, hopeful, naïve, prejudiced and, at times, apocalyptic in a Yankee sort of way. . . The title of the book is misleadingly narrow, for its 275 pages touch upon every problem that today vexes public attention. . . The book was written before it was announced that the Russians had the bomb, and Bush's thesis, so far as it applies to the next few years, rests on his assumption that we still have a good bit of 'breathing time.' Even so, certain of his opinions are not invalidated by the recent event." J. R. Newman

+ — New Repub 121:18 D 19 '49 1500w

"This book is recommended without reservation. No one reader will agree with all of its full discussion of so many controversial and vital subjects, but every reader will find that it has broadened his background of knowledge of our current military problems." H. W. Blakeley

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 N 20 '49 1050w

"The book is at once tendentious, argumentative, stimulating and compelling. It clarifies many issues; it attains at points, particularly in the discussion of communism and democracy, true eloquence and great beauty, and it achieves broad judgments and sharp commentaries. . . This is a common-sense book and therefore one of great value. Most writers discussing the subject Dr. Bush has chosen have a tendency to deal in extremes. But Dr. Bush's orderly mind will have none of this; he puts weapons, techniques and armed services into proper perspective." H. W. Baldwin

+ N Y Times p1 N 20 '49 1600w

New Yorker 25:123 D 17 '49 200w

"All in all, this is a remarkable book. Its abiding faith in democracy and progress is inspiring to those who contemplate the uneasy future. Its technical and military estimates and assessments are bold, clear, and provocative. Probably no one concerned with the nation's strength and welfare will agree uniformly with Bush's assertions as made in this book, but no one so concerned can afford to ignore them." L. N. Ridenour

+ Sat R of Lit 32:13 N 19 '49 1050w

Springf'd Republican p16A Ja 15 '50 500w

"Though he may not be a first class sociologist, Dr. Bush is certainly a first class director of scientific research, and it is as such that he will be read with interest and profit. His is by far the most distinguished book on the scientific aspects of the war that has yet appeared. Even when a reader must disagree with him, which is likely to be the case when the chapters on the atomic bomb and on democratic institutions are considered, Dr. Bush has to be treated with respect." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ Survey 86:37 Ja '50 2000w

Wis Lib Bul p7 D '49

BUTLER, ELIZA MARIAN. Ritual magic. 328p il $5 Cambridge

133.4 Magic [49-49152]

"In The Myth of the Magus Professor Butler placed the sixteenth-century legend of Faust in its historical setting and concluded, rightly, that it had its roots in ritual. In her present study, Ritual Magic, she traces the development of this ritual from Accadian inscriptions through Homer, Aeschylus and Virgil to the Greek magical papyri and thence with Jewish accretions to the Clavicles of the Middle Ages and the Grimoires of the Renaissance and the Reformation. She omits, however, the early Egyptian sources." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by W. L. Smith

Canadian Forum 29:235 Ja '50 500w

"The present volume treats with scholarly thoroughness and a charm of style rare in the annals of works on magic, of the rituals of conjuration that have been used by European magicians." Kathleen Raine

+ New Statesman & Nation 38:460 O 22 '49 950w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson
N Y Times p29 D 11 '49 360w
Times [London] Lit Sup p670 O 14 '49 1250w

BUTLER, GERALD ALFRED. Slippery hitch. 245p $2.50 Rinehart
49-8915

Novel about two English brothers and their friend, all of whom had been in the war. One of the brothers had a war neurosis which at times took the form of theft and rape. The other two men attempted to tide the ailing one over his troubles without the aid of a psychiatrist, but with only partial success. The novel ends in his tragic death.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun My 20 '49 130w

"Some softer moments, as well as some tight ones, make this sustained in sympathy as well as suspense."
Kirkus 17:158 Mr 15 '49 110w

"An intellectual and emotional puzzle—a puzzle which stems naturally out of its characters and the actions which are inevitable to such characters. Told with great simplicity, the story moves to a breathtaking finish. And until that finish nobody could find fault with this best of all thriller types—the thriller in which the drama is inherent in the situation." Anne Brooks
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 My 15 '49 600w

"There are a few exciting moments, but Mr. Butler's literary manner is itself something of a crime, or at least disorderly conduct."
— New Yorker 25:120 My 14 '49 80w

"This slight performance, without a single surprise in its entirety, goes on for almost 250 pages. I think Mr. Butler might have eked an acceptable slick story out of his material but a novel, no." Merle Miller
— Sat R of Lit 32:27 Je 4 '49 550w

BUTTERS, MRS DOROTHY GILMAN. Enchanted caravan; il. by Janet Smalley. 208p $2.50 Macrae Smith co.
49-7952

The caravan was an old bus converted into a combination repair shop and home by Jeremy Peel, ex-clown. The summer he went to Vermont to visit his young daughter, Jeremy and the bus, and the passengers they acquired were in one adventure after another. Partly for high school readers, but contains one adult romance.

Booklist 45:284 Ap 15 '49

"This book looks younger than the text actually is—so watch out in placing it with appreciative readers for it's an unusual story and demands unusual appreciation and presentation. . . All in all, it is the type of story Junior High and even some High School students really want and need."
+ Kirkus 17:61 F 1 '49 160w

"Never quite comes to life. Book remains a panorama painted by an author who has an excellent vocabulary and obviously loves words and unusual combinations of them. The plot includes a circus, a mystery, and love story among other things. Only for large libraries." Anne Izard
Library J 74:666 Ap 15 '49 70w

"The whole thing is preposterous; the names (and much else) are too sentimental; yet you end it all with a sense of relief and refreshment, feeling sure that many girls had better meet love through the tale of Anable Lea and her escape from her world of formality, than through many a hand-holding heroine in career books. Some older girls will call it corny, but most of them will laugh at it and love it." L. S. Bechtel
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Je 26 '49 270w

"Excellent characterizations dignify this light yet thoughtful tale." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p18 Jl 10 '49 140w

BUXBAUM, EDITH. Your child makes sense; a guidebook for parents; with a contribution by Florence L. Swanson; foreword by Anna Freud. 204p $3.25 Int. univs. press
649.1 Children—Care and hygiene. Child study. Children—Management 49-9740

"The first two chapters on physical care of infant and child are contributed by a physician, Dr. Florence L. Swanson; in the rest of the book Miss Buxbaum deals with the emotional and intellectual development of the child as an individual and as a member of family, school, and cultural groups." (Survey) Related reading.

"The case histories of children given as illustrations of different principles of child behavior make interesting reading. Because they have been taken from clinical practice, there is the danger that it will create concepts in the mind of the layman which will produce a distinct bias in the judgment of perfectly normal childish behavior." E. G. Hurlock
Sat R of Lit 32:40 S 10 '49 230w

"Although the vocabulary is purposely nontechnical, words like 'traumatic' do creep in. However, the approach is warm and human and understanding, encouraging the parent rather than frightening him." June Bingham
+ Survey 85:689 D '49 450w

BYRON, ROBERT. The station; Athos, treasures and men; with an introduction by Christopher Sykes. 263p pl $4 Knopf
914.96 Art, Byzantine. Athos (monasteries) 49-11552

An account of the art and architecture of Athos, the rugged Greek island, which has been inhabited by monastic groups for the last thousand years. The author was an Englishman, who was lost at sea in 1941. This book was first published in 1928 (Book Review Digest 1929). Illustrated with photographs. Index.

"The Station is a remarkable book to have been written by a young man of twenty-two. It is . . . a book lyrical, learned, spirited, fiercely curious, mannered and intellectually reckless." V. S. Pritchett
+ New Statesman & Nation 37:408 Ap 23 '49 550w

"With Byzantium foremost in his mind and heart, Mr. Byron has little use for the ascetic and spiritual existence of the seven thousand monks on Athos. The inconveniences he had to endure, the dirt, very little hot water, the fleas—there was no DDT yet, the nauseating food, the religious services and monastic duties are described with little reverence but in a hilarious spirit. Perhaps that is exactly what makes this book so thoroughly engaging." Robert Knittel
+ N Y Times p24 O 30 '49 470w
New Yorker 25:156 N 12 '49 290w

C

CABELL, JAMES BRANCH. Devil's own dear son; a comedy of the fatted calf. 210p $2.75 Farrar, Straus 49-8665

"Cabell's fiftieth book, and the third in the series he calls 'It Happened in Florida.' His hero, the middle-aged proprietor of a St. Augustine tourist home, learns that he is one of the innumerable offspring of a Prince of Hell; when his parent offers him fulfillment of youthful dreams of glory and romance, he settles instead for a new heating system for the tourist home." Library J

"Reveals a wise, restrained humor and not a little dabbling in the type of sorcery that calls to mind C. S. Lewis' The Screwtape Letters."
Kirkus 17:93 F 15 '49 150w

CABELL, J. B.—Continued

"Though this fantasy is stretched a little thin, it is written artfully and with high spirits; and Mr. Cabell's jesting comment on placid respectability is, he makes plain, the good-humored irony of one who has himself succumbed." H. W. Hart

+ — Library J 74:662 Ap 15 '49 110w

Reviewed by Burton Rascoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ap 17 '49 1100w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard, Jr.

N Y Times p17 Ap 17 '49 380w

New Yorker 25:109 My 7 '49 160w

"As always it makes for delightful reading. Yet in spite of that, it might not be amiss to quote from the book here. 'Jehovah then became very angry at this criticism of Adam's shortcomings, because no creative artist can be told that his current compositions are inferior to his early work.' Whether Mr. Cabell becomes angry or not, unfortunately that is the case with this book." M. R.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p24 Je 5 '49 350w

"Diego can obviously trace his ancestry back not only to Red Samaël but to that most eminent of Mr. Cabell's heroes, Jurgen. For Jurgen also, in his time, relived his youth with the aid of magic. . . Jurgen, too, was a great talker; but the talk has worn a little thin in these thirty-two years. And the old tricks have gained in self-consciousness what they have lost in spontaneity. The old fire flickers fitfully in 'The Devil's Own Dear Son'; but it would have been pleasant to see in the fiftieth volume a real jeu d'artifice in Mr. Cabell's grand manner." Milton Crane

Sat R of Lit 32:12 Ap 23 '49 1600w

CADELL, ELIZABETH. Iris in winter. 250p $3 Morrow

49-9859

A novel in which are detailed the difficulties of Iris Drake, a beautiful young newspaperwoman from London, in her pursuit of Michael Sheridan, a conscientious school master, during a winter spent near Michael's school at High Ambo.

Booklist 46:13 S 1 '49

Bookmark 9:5 O '49 30w

"A novel of so little real comedy of character and situation will not do for even the lightest of warm weather reading."

Cath World 169:481 S '49 100w

"Viewed with detachment the story is probably exaggerated and at times sentimental, but that does not prevent its being read with pleasure because it is written with so much grace."

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 28 '49 230w

Kirkus 17:280 Je 1 '49 160w

"Frothy and amusing . . . this passes time delightfully." J. L. Ross

+ Library J 74:1023 Jl '49 100w

"Mrs. Cadell seems to have a somewhat awkward time getting her story started. In the first part of 'Iris in Winter' her characters, who finally turn out to be charming or pleasantly outrageous, seem merely jarring and harsh. However, the author soon gets into her usual smooth, adroit stride, and the novel runs gaily through its pleasant paces." Joanna Spencer

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ag 14 '49 360w

"If the plot of 'Iris in Winter' seems helter-skelter, it was surely meant to be. Many of the scenes are hilarious even if the actors do appear to race through the show as though they must give four more performances before Miss Cadell strikes the tents and moves on. This latest book, billed as a social comedy, by the author of 'Gay Pursuit,' makes pleasant and diverting reading." Hobert Skidmore

+ N Y Times p20 Ag 7 '49 380w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ag 21 '49 90w

"I have a great respect for the printed word, and I am always conscious that in any book even the 'ands' and 'thes' have been sweated out by the author. But some books—and this is one of them—remind me of those frothy desserts constructed at great pains by the hostess out of gelatin and scraps of soaked cake and whites of eggs and bits of fruit. Some guests find this delicious. Chacun à son goût." N. L. Rothman

Sat R of Lit 32:30 Ag 27 '49 360w

+ Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 14 '49 190w

CADY, EDWIN HARRISON. Gentleman in America; a literary study in American culture. 232p $3 Syracuse univ. press

810.9 U.S.—Civilization. American literature —History and criticism 49-10671

"In this book . . . Professor Cady sets himself a problem: to discover how the concept of the gentleman was adapted to the changing culture of the United States from the time of the Puritans to the present. He examines the writings of non-literary figures like John Adams and Jefferson, as well as of men of letters like Cooper, Holmes, Emerson, and Howells. Most of his discussion seems to center in New England." Sat R of Lit

"Have our social patterns in reality been as equalitarian as our political campaign speeches? Dr. Cady says not. He proves it by an interesting survey of certain aspects of American literature. . . One of Dr. Cady's best chapters is on William Dean Howells and his war on the idea that no one could be a gentleman without three generations of 'Family and breeding' behind him." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 66:1488 D 14 '49 420w

Reviewed by Robert Halsband

+ Sat R of Lit 32:44 D 3 '49 180w

CAEN, HERBERT EUGENE. Baghdad-by-the-bay; il. by Howard Brodie. 276p il $3.50 Doubleday

917.9461 San Francisco—Description 49-11444

"An unabashed love-letter to San Francisco" by a popular columnist on The San Francisco Chronicle. In it he describes both well-known and little-known aspects of the city and includes anecdotes about Kathleen Norris, Saroyan, Pierre Monteux, Joe Di Maggio, Jimmy who runs the children's merry-go-round at the zoo, and Amy Sliger, the "copperette." Index.

"The author knows the sounds and sights and smells of a city where fog horns may be bellowing a doleful warning to blinded ships in the Golden Gate while a few blocks away are idlers in Union Square under a cloudless sky. The sun rises everywhere, eventually, of course, but the way Caen describes it from Telegraph hill you'd feel sure that that is the big moment in the world's day. If you can't get out to the city on the bay, try the Caen travelog method. It's good reading." Will Davidson

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p20 N 20 '49 300w

Kirkus 17:459 Ag 15 '49 120w

"The present volume is pure Caen, a hodgepodge of seemingly casual jottings that miraculously add up to a true and convincing and strikingly life-like portrait. San Franciscans will read it virtually en masse, deriving from the experience much the same qualified satisfaction a debutante gets from looking into her mirror; others who are curious to know how the town got its reputation for being 'different' will find the answers to their questions here—not all of them, but as many as can be captured in print." Oscar Lewis

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p48 D 4 '49 550w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 O 23 '49 1000w

Sat R of Lit 32:52 N 10 '49 170w

CAHN, FRANCES. Federal employees in war and peace; selection, placement, and removal. 253p $3.50 Brookings

351.1 Civil service—U.S. 49-3213

"Examines the personnel procedures and practices adopted by the Federal Government during the defense and war years, when the numbers of government employees almost quadrupled, and considers the techniques—particularly those affecting upper professional and administrative groups—which promise to be of permanent value. Part one of this study treats the basic personnel functions that form the framework of employment. Part two is the story of the civil servant himself—his background, induction into the federal service, post-induction career, and his opinions of the federal government as an employer." Management R

"The approach is descriptive and quantitative. The book will be useful chiefly as a ready reference and an almanac of personnel data. . . The title, Federal Employees in War and Peace, raises hope for more than this book professes to be. The author herself runs into that problem when she quizzes the upper administrators on what they think about the federal government as an employer." E. L. Johnson

Am Pol Sci R 43:1037 O '49 600w

Management R 38:587 O '49 100w

Reviewed by S. B. Shear
Springf'd Republican p5D S 11 '49 60w

CAINE, LOUIS S. North American fresh water sport fish; description and habits, fishing tackle and methods; scientific notes by Karl F. Lagler; foreword by J. Hammond Brown. (Sportsman's lib) 212p il $5 Barnes, A.S.

597.5 Fishes—North America 49-48680

"A complete 'who's who' among fresh water game fish written by a man who knows his way around in the world of angling." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Bibliography. Index.

"Well illustrated and good reading." Bob Becker
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 D 4 '49 30w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:48 Ja 1 '50 20w

San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 27 '49 40w

CAIRNS, HUNTINGTON. Legal philosophy from Plato to Hegel. 583p $7.50 Johns Hopkins press

340.1 Law—Philosophy 49-7752

"This book summarizes the legal philosophy of Plato, Aristotle, Cicero, Aquinas, Bacon, Hobbes, Spinoza, Leibniz, Locke, Hume, Kant, Fichte, and Hegel. Because Mr. Cairns holds that modern jurisprudence 'is a prolongation ("extension") of the great philosophical systems,' he has summarized the 'general philosophy' as well as the legal philosophy of each of his subjects; and he has added discussions of legal problems which, though treated in a practical, rather than in a jurisprudential, manner are nonetheless helpful supplements to the philosophical discussions." (Ann Am Acad) Indexes.

"The book is one that has long been needed. It will be a helpful guide to students of legal and political philosophy; and it will aid future writing in the field by providing an example of specific accomplishment, bibliographies, and highly suggestive, critical comments." Jerome Hall
+ Ann Am Acad 264:152 Jl '49 600w

"Cairns has read widely in both primary and secondary sources, and his work provides useful summaries of the legal doctrines treated, locating them in each case within the general framework of the complete philosophy. To this extent, the book can be highly recommended for the actual information it contains. It does not, however, attempt any sustained comparisons of premises or even of conclusions, and it is insufficiently analytic in its treatment of basic concepts, such as in its seeming equation of Aristotle's natural justice and Cicero's natural law." Alan Gewirth
+ — Ethics 59:304 Jl '49 230w

"The book does not attempt to present a complete history of legal philosophy, but it does point up the correlations of the various systems and their significance for modern legal thinking."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:168 Je '49 320w

CALDWELL, ERSKINE. Place called Estherville. 244p $2.75 Duell

49-10728

A story of two young people, mulatto brother and sister, and of what happened to them when they left their country home and came in to town to try and earn an honest living.

Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Chicago Sun S 28 '49 380w

"Although rather sketchy as to characterization, this is grim, terse story telling that pulls out some important prejudice points and lines them up right straight in front of you. Unsavory for Public Libraries."
Kirkus 17:335 Jl 1 '49 200w

Reviewed by A. J. Gaines
Library J 74:1093 Ag '49 130w

"'Place Called Estherville' is not a well rounded tale. Its focus is as bright and narrow as the light shining upon a surgeon's operating table. And its mood is, amazingly, as dispassionate as any surgeon's. The very white-hot calm with which the novel is written, line upon line, is obviously intended to cauterize the sick flesh if it does not—as, of course, it can not—fully excise the malignant growth." F. H. Bullock
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 S 18 '49 850w

"In earlier novels of his, such as 'God's Little Acre,' Mr. Caldwell displayed a remarkable ability to distill a sense of nightmare, an impression of a kind of living so remote from civilized man that the record haunts the mind like a vision of some secret hell lying deep within all of us. There is no such quality in 'Place Called Estherville.' The characters here are abstractions in a parable, and the reality of their life escapes the reader." David Daiches
N Y Times p9 S 11 '49 800w

"This is Mr. Caldwell's cheapest and most disappointing book."
— New Yorker 25:105 S 17 '49 180w

"As a novelist, Caldwell has the virtue of writing an extremely absorbing tale, and certainly the heavy coating of sex gets his message to a great number of people. As a writer, his prose is polished and bone-smooth, and that is enough to make gripping reading from whatever he puts his hand to." M. R.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p25 O 9 '49 400w

"For the reader it is like living in an insane asylum specializing in sex maniacs and sadists; you become used to the inhabitants and are not at all surprised that they are all alike. It is a surprise at the end, however, to find one decent white human being, an elderly doctor, who had spent his life sacrificing himself to the maladies of Negroes and their natural enemies. And it is odd to discover that this familiar character out of so many romantic melodramas is the most unlikely and unbelievable white man in the cast." Harrison Smith
— Sat R of Lit 32:14 S 10 '49 950w

CALDWELL, JANET TAYLOR (MRS MARCUS REBACK). Let love come last. 408p $3 Scribner

49-9993

The story of William Prescott, self-made lumber magnate, runs from 1879 and his marriage to Ursula Wende, to his death in 1907. Raised in an orphanage himself, William was determined that his children should have all he was denied, wealth and freedom to follow their own devices without discipline or restraint. What the results of this obsession were, in sorrow and tragedies for them all, is here told.

Booklist 45:381; 46:13 Jl 15 '49; S 1 '49

CALDWELL, J. T.—Continued

"To this reviewer, Ursula is an improbable and unconvincing character. We have all seen children ruined by stupid parents, but for a strongminded, highly cultivated woman to see tragedy being enacted before her very eyes and to sit back, a gentle, frustrated Niobe, makes too much demand on our credulity. Miss Caldwell has given us a depressing picture of the logical outcome of a completely material way of life." M. E. Brennan
— + Cath World 170:77 O '49 400w

Reviewed by Clare Jaynes
Chicago Sun Ag 11 '49 550w

"The book is clearly a protest at the conduct and qualities of its chief characters, but the protest lacks hopefulness. In spite of all this, Miss Caldwell is so good a storyteller and links her narrative so closely with its time, 1879-1907, that it takes a tenacious grip on the reader's interest."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 28 '49 210w

Kirkus 17:305 Je 15 '49 350w

"Seldom have so many disagreeable and downright evil characters appeared in one story. The dangers of possessive love are here powerfully set forth. Recommended." H. R. Forbes
+ Library J 74:1093 Ag '49 80w

"Those who have read Miss Caldwell's other novels will know how effectively she intertwines the professional and emotional lives of her characters. 'Let Love Come Last' has the same qualities of pace, plot, background and story." Doris Schneider
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Jl 1 '49 450w

"The style is Victorian, with stilted conversations well interspersed with 'dear William' and 'dear Ursula.' Miss Caldwell does give a good idea of how great fortunes grew in the Eighties and Nineties, and her admirers will doubtless find this family chronicle deeply engrossing. To others it may seem monotonously dreary." Barbara Bond
— + N Y Times p14 Jl 31 '49 420w

"Friends and admirers of Miss Caldwell will love this one. It has everything they look for: men and women and money and things. Plus a pseudo-Gothic atmosphere that will simply take their breath away. Those who are inclined to take a dim view of Miss Caldwell, her pomps and works, will possibly have their breath taken away, too." E. D. D.
San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 11 '49 400w

"It is an extraordinary feat of Miss Caldwell's legerdemain to force the reader to believe that through all her suffering and humiliation Ursula has deeply loved her brutal husband. The truth is that she has always understood him, pitied the man whose ego had been so injured in his youth that he must flaunt his wealth before everyone and ruin his competitors and neighbors. . . If 'Let Love Come Last' is a tract on the care and training of children it is written with such sympathy for poor Ursula's hopeless efforts to save them from disaster that the reader becomes emotionally involved in the story as well as edified by it." Harrison Smith
+ Sat R of Lit 32:12 Ag 27 '49 850w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter
Springf'd Republican p9B Ag 21 '49 390w

CALDWELL, JOHN. Desperate voyage. 324p il $3.50 Little

910.4 Voyages and travels 49-10848

The author, a Texan, and a former merchant marine seaman, stranded in Panama, attempted to sail a 29-foot yacht across the Pacific, in order to rejoin his Australian wife. He knew nothing of navigation, and he experienced both shipwreck and near-starvation before he finally reached his destination.

Booklist 46:41;62 O 1 '49; O 15 '49

Bookmark 9:51 D '49 '50w

Christian Science Monitor p14 D 17 '49 260w

"A sea thriller of the first water and salt at that, incredible but good yarning and eminently readable."
+ Kirkus 17:546 Ag 15 '49 190w

"Author sacrifices reader sympathy by repeatedly bringing desperate circumstances on himself—in addition to the adequate normal risks of the venture. Of interest for personal experiences in sailing alone but not especially recommended." H. A. Wooster
Library J 74:1315 S 15 '49 80w

Library J 74:1560 O 15 '49 60w

"The vivid descriptions of Caldwell's hardships may seem overdrawn to readers who have never faced starvation and collapse. These passages, written with sincerity and feeling, testify to the tremendous endurance of a man with a goal." Felix Riesenberg
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 N 6 '49 550w

"Mr. Caldwell emerges as a modest, ingenious and durable young man little given to introspection or self-dramatization. Whether describing frightful disasters or convalescence with friendly Fijians, his narrative remains pretty much in the minor key of a long letter home, and the writing serves to offer the facts, rather than the mood and atmosphere, of his remarkable exploit. 'I was never bored,' the author tells us. Neither is it likely that the reader will be bored by this sea yarn, which conveys exactly what happens when a man defies the world's largest ocean in a twenty-nine-foot boat." J. K.
+ N Y Times p49 O 23 '49 400w

"As fantastic a true story of sea-voyaging as you've ever read. It's an almost incredible yarn of adventure and single-handed struggle with the forces of nature, and it will be a calloused reader indeed who won't find it a completely fascinating piece of work." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 O 17 '49 950w

Springf'd Republican p7D D 11 '49 360w

CALDWELL, TAYLOR. See Caldwell, J. T.

CALLAGHAN, MORLEY. Varsity story; il. by Eric Aldwinckle. 172p $2.50 Macmillan

49-441

"This is a sort of intellectual guidebook to the University of Toronto, cast into the form of fiction. The Warden of Hart House, a stranger from New Zealand named Tyndall, undertakes to find out just what it is that is distinctive about Toronto, and cruises about the campus interviewing professors and talking to students, getting the atmosphere and traditions of the various faculties and federated Arts colleges. His conclusion . . . is that what is distinctive about Toronto is precisely a lack of interest in distinctiveness." Canadian Forum

---

Booklist 45:241 Mr 15 '49

"The initiated reader will be confused by assuming to start with that Tyndall is a portrait of Mr. J. B. Bickersteth, who held the office of Warden at the time of the story. It is clear, however, that Mr. Callaghan is not talking about Mr. Bickersteth at all, and that his Warden is a purely fictional character. . . Yet a fair proportion of the people Tyndall meets are real people, sometimes referred to by their real names and sometimes perfunctorily disguised. Thus the boundary between fact and fiction is difficult to find, perhaps more difficult for the insider than anyone else, and it is hard not to feel that the book falls between the stools of fiction-writing and a straight reporting job. . . The illustrations by Eric Aldwinckle are admirable." N. F.
Canadian Forum 28:189 N '48 420w

"A book which is fresh, acute, sensitive—and, at moments, provocative. Some of the characters are real and some fictional. The setting (thanks partly to some excellent black-and-white illustrations by Eric Aldwinckle) is a clearly perceived and vividly rendered Toronto." Desmond Pacey
+ N Y Times p4 Ja 16 '49 600w

New Yorker 25:102 Mr 19 '49 180w

"Stylistically the book is first rate. The story is related in the clean, spare prose that Mr. Callaghan has used so skilfully in his previous novels. The superb black and white illustrations of university scenes by Eric Aldwinckle are so fine a complement to the story that one wonders why the art of book illustration has, in this century, been relegated almost exclusively to children's books." Robert Halsband
+ Sat R of Lit 32:11 F 5 '49 650w

CALLAHAN, CLAIRE WALLIS (NANCY HARTWELL, pseud). Gabriella; il. by Jane Castle. 244p $2.50 Holt 49-11272

A novel for teen-aged girls. Gabriella had spent most of her life traveling around the globe with her father, a famous news commentator. One year he had to take on a dangerous assignment, and Gabriella went to live with her father's sister in a historical but drafty mansion in Pennsylvania. Her social contacts and some heartaches opened her eyes to the meaning of true friendship.

Booklist 46:84 N 1 '49

"An absorbing story. . . Even when there's a shade too much happy coincidence and Gaby proves a bit too ingenious, the characterizations are good and the story as a whole is convincing, and well told."
+ Kirkus 17:587 O 15 '49 160w

"This is a fine story of adjustment to a new life and a discerning analysis of the relative importance of superficial charm and personal integrity when it comes to falling in love." Esther Gorey
+ Library J 74:1550 O 15 '49 70w

"Recommended." Ruth McEvoy
+ Library J 74:1920 D 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 29 '50 70w

"It is filled with all the moily-toily realism that is so important to youngsters of this age: how to differentiate between true love and summer fancy, what to wear to a college weekend party, how to get along with other people, the discovery that 'old things' are not always dull and stuffy. As such it is a useful sort of handbook, and will probably be read with much interest and activity. As a story however, something important is lacking, perhaps it is imagination."
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 13 '49 250w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:30 N 12 '49 40w
Springf'd Republican p8B D 18 '49 40w
Wis Lib Bul p14 D '49

CALLAHAN, JOHN FRANCIS. Four views of time in ancient philosophy. 209p $3 Harvard univ. press
115 Time. Philosophy, Ancient 48-9013

Analyses of the reflections on time of four philosophers: Plato, who defined time as "the moving image of eternity"; Aristotle, to whom it was "the number of motion"; Plotinus, who called time essentially "the life of soul . . . producing the universe"; and St. Augustine who thought it was "a distention of man's soul." Bibliography. No index.

"This analysis . . . is of importance and interest in two respects. In the first place, it presents a very clearly written interpretation of the four doctrines in question. . . Second, the present study is an example of what may be called 'disciplinary history.' Each philosopher's doctrine on time is treated in the philosopher's own terms, and the diversities and similarities are explained with reference to the context, especially the methodological context, in which the attempt is made to solve the problem." William O'Meara
+ Ethics 59:301 Jl '49 350w

"The book should be useful to students of the history of ideas and it should result in a better understanding of these traditional theories of time through the author's competent analysis of their agreements and differences. His expositions of the views are exceptionally clear, systematic, and well documented without becoming tedious or pedantic. If any adverse criticism is to be made, it would be on the statement that 'the problem of time is an entirely different problem for each of the four ancient philosophers.' The arguments so ably expounded by Mr. Callahan suggest a continuous development of theory, rather than four independent attempts to answer four different kinds of questions." D. S. M.
+ J Philos 46:303 My 12 '49 800w

"Each philosophy is critically examined at length, resulting in a work still technical, abstruse and unintelligible to the layman, but of much value, I should judge, to the scholar." G. W. Wakefield
+ Library J 73:1021 Jl '48 140w

CALLIMACHI, ANNE-MARIE (VACARESCO). Yesterday was mine. (Whittlesey house publication) 267p $3.50 McGraw
B or 92 49-8693

"Memoirs of a Rumanian aristocrat covering her first 20 years to the outbreak of World War I. She dwells largely on the barbaric and uninhibited character of her own semi-oriental country, casually discusses the moral frailties of her highborn intimates and forebears alike, and gives a picture of an undisciplined, too wealthy, and precocious youngster let loose in the highly sophisticated circles of continental society." Booklist

Booklist 45:311 My 15 '49

"Delightful if not important reading."
+ Kirkus 17:195 Ap 1 '49 220w

"Her book is all the better reading, like so many personal letters from charming and expressive women, for being casual rather than professional. . . It is very pleasant to read a family memoir written without sentimentality or prudery." Ernestine Evans
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 My 8 '49 800w

"The latest, and by no means least lively, recruit to the ranks of the autobiographers is the Princess Callimachi, who, by reason of brains, humor and an ability to write excellent and pungent English, has been able to make the most of the prominent observation post that high birth and good fortune awarded her. . . In the preface to this diverting book its author states that it was written to cure her nostalgia. If so, her recovery must be complete, for here is no trace of vain regret but rather every sign of keen enjoyment in playing the wheel of fortune." Stuart Preston
+ N Y Times p10 My 8 '49 500w

Reviewed by Pamela Taylor
Sat R of Lit 32:32 Je 11 '49 550w

CALVERLEY, MRS ELEANOR JANE (TAYLOR). How to be healthy in hot climates. 275p $3 Crowell
614.42 Tropics—Diseases and hygiene
49-7485

Practical advice on health precautions for those living in hot climates, written by an experienced medical missionary. Some of the chapters are: Preparation for life in the tropics; Equipment for the traveler; Women and children in the tropics; Household precautions; Food for health; What to do in times of illness; Meeting emergencies; When the baby arrives before the doctor; Diseases of the skin; Diseases of the eye; Malaria and blackwater fever; Some tropical fevers other than malaria; The dysenteries: amoebic and bacillary. Suggested reading at end of some of the chapters. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 45:221 Mr 1 '49
Kirkus 16:637 D 1 '48 110w

"Anyone about to head for the tropics will find this volume a great comfort. . . Crammed full of details of everyday living and written in easily understandable terms, this is strictly a book for the layman." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 74:55 Ja 1 '49 100w

CALVERLEY, E. J.—Continued
"Here is an invaluable book for any one planning to live in a hot climate—or any climate likely to be warm for a great portion of the year." F. G. S.
+ N Y Times p13 Ap 10 '49 150w

CALVIN, MELVIN, and others. Isotopic carbon; techniques in its measurement and chemical manipulation. 376p il $5.50 Wiley
546.26 Carbon. Isotopes 49-7714

"A reference book and laboratory manual for the use of scientists and technicians who are using isotopic carbon (C^{13} or C^{14}) in laboratory procedures. As indicated by the chapter titles, matters that apply generally to the manipulation of isotopic carbon—and to a certain extent, other radioactive isotopes—are first considered, then in the ninth chapter procedures for the actual synthesis of labeled compounds are given. This chapter is ninety pages long, and it summarizes all of the syntheses which have been reported in the literature up to April, 1948. The appendices furnish information on dilution methods, efficiencies of counters, radioactivity assay, an induction stirrer for a closed system, and other topics. There are numerous bibliographical footnotes and an extensive bibliography." (N Y New Tech Bks) Indexes.

"The exposition is generally clear and lucid and considering the large number of authors the style is quite uniform. The errors introduced are few and those are not seriously misleading. The book is well made but the price is high for one with such a rapid rate of obsolescence." W. W. Miller
+ — Am Chem Soc J 71:3860 N '49 550w

"As a chemist, the reviewer was particularly intrigued by some of the ingenious methods of organic chemistry, especially those handling small quantities of material in all glass equipment, usually under vacuum. At the same time he was puzzled by some of the abbreviations, presumably perfectly understandable to the physicists working in this field, given without further elucidation. . . All in all, this is a book that clearly achieves its ends, and can readily serve as a text for the student and as a manual for the experienced worker in this field of organic synthesis with labeled carbon atoms." Simon Klosky
+ — Chem & Eng N 27:1234 Ap 25 '49 350w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 74:129 Ja 15 '49 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:13 Ja '49
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:268 Je '49 160w

CAMERON, OWEN. Owl and the pussycat. 240p $2.50 Harper 49-10154

Mystery story.

Kirkus 17:335 Jl 1 '49 120w
N Y Times p43 S 11 '49 160w

"Not enough wham and too much whimsey to satisfy gore seekers—but fun is constant and there's a plot. Diverting."
Sat R of Lit 32:38 O 15 '49 40w

"Light but amusing."
Wis Lib Bul p8 N '49

CAMPBELL, MRS ALICE (ORMOND). Veiled murder. 279p $2.50 Random house 49-10148

Detective story.

"Better on atmosphere and promise than fulfillment."
Kirkus 17:340 Jl 1 '49 70w

"Heady high-pressure stuff recommended for any height of brow." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ag 14 '49 180w

"The English scene is not obtrusive: the events could have occurred in the environs of any metropolitan area. A successful job." Elizabeth Bullock
+ N Y Times p16 Ag 21 '49 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p21 S 11 '49 100w

CAMPBELL, CAMILLA. Bartletts of Box B ranch; il. by Glenn Chesnut. (Whittlesey house publication) 256p $2.25 McGraw 49-8700

Life on a large Texas cattle ranch is the background of this book for boys and girls of eight to twelve.

Booklist 45:339 Je 1 '49
Kirkus 17:112 Mr 1 '49 120w

"Although the characters are stereotyped, the ranch background, roundup, and stock show are interesting. Recommended for ages 8-11." M. M. Smith
+ — Library J 74:895 Je 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Je 12 '49 200w

"Underneath the easy flow of the story there is an emphasis upon sound human relations and upon the fact that youngsters 'need to share in things—both work and play.'" E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p22 My 15 '49 230w

"A book any parent or teacher will approve and every youngster, boy or girl enjoy." S. M. N.
+ Springf'd Republican p8C My 15 '49 100w

CAMPBELL, DONALD JAMES. Adventure of prayer. 92p $1.25 Abingdon-Cokesbury
264.1 Prayer 49-7953

"This book on prayer has grown out of the author's experiences at the Northfield summer conferences with discussion groups he has conducted on problems of personal religious living. Accordingly, the questions the author endeavors to answer are those which bother a great many people in their thought of prayer. The chapter headings are: Environment of Prayer, What We Seek in Prayer, The When and How of Prayer, Praying for Ourselves, Praying for Others, Unanswered Prayer, Growth in Prayer, The Need for Prayer." Kirkus

"It will be a useful volume for conference and study group leaders, for ministers and teachers."
+ Kirkus 17:51 F 1 '49 110w

"In exploring the conditions for fulfilling [the primary purpose of prayer], Bishop Campbell has a good many interesting things to say. . . The style is homiletical as is to be expected from the fact that the chapters were originally prepared as lectures for a summer conference." E. M. T.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 22 '49 150w

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 300w

CAMPBELL, JEAN HAMILTON, and KAMERAN, GLORIA. Simple cooking for the epicure. 204p $2 Viking
641.5 Cookery 49-10462

"Beginning logically with a discussion of utensils, and then staples to keep on hand [the authors] take the cook into the kitchen and teach her—or him—how to make hundreds of mouth-watering things to eat, from appetizers through desserts. There are casserole dishes, intriguing variations on familiar themes, unusual fillips to the homely vegetables, the New Look in salads, sweets that are the finishing touch to a meal—not the final blow. Chapters on party foods." (Publishers note) Glossary. Index.

Booklist 46:43 O 1 '49

"Full of good advice for the woman who knows her way around the kitchen but lacks confidence. The introductions to the recipes are worth plenty of attention. These two authors get down to business." Mary Poore
+ N Y Times p16 N 6 '49 90w

CAMPBELL, JOSEPH. Hero with a thousand faces. 416p il $4 Pantheon bks.

291 Mythology. Psychoanalysis 49-8590

"This book attempts to explore the whole corpus of mythology, ritual, folk literature, and comparative religion, with the triple aim of showing it to be one great story, which the author calls the monomyth; revealing its symbolic import, with the aid of almost all the schools of psychoanalysis; and expounding the truths of the monomyth's ethical teachings as they relate to the history of religious and mystic thought, most of it Oriental." (New Yorker) Index.

"This book is full of inconclusive tales, vague and shadowy parallels pressed into service, as if they were solid proofs, and also complete misunderstandings assembled from an alphabetic register in the back of books eagerly looted by a man obsessed with a faith." H. A. Reinhold
— Commonweal 50:321 Jl 8 '49 2150w

Reviewed by Richard Chase
Nation 169:17 Jl 2 '49 1700w

"Neither Mr. Campbell's occasional carelessness, nor the ambivalence of his attitude, can appreciably lessen the value of this compendium and of the stimulus it should give to the imaginative mind." Babette Deutsch
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Jl 24 '49 600w

"There is so much in this book, and the analogies and comparisons are so interesting and stimulating, that it is too bad that it is all presented in the mystical and pseudo-philosophic fog of Jung." Max Radin
N Y Times p23 Je 26 '49 750w

"Naturally, the book fails in [its] herculean task, but in the course of going down to defeat, Mr. Campbell, who seems to have an extraordinary breadth of knowledge, manages to retell some marvellous stories, furnish almost an encyclopedia of odd information, and reprint some wonderful out-of-the-way illustrations. One of the most fascinating and maddening books of the season."
+ — New Yorker 25:113 My 7 '49 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 11 '49 250w

CAMPBELL, PERSIA CRAWFORD (MRS EDWARD RICE, jr). Consumer interest; a study in consumer economics. 660p $4.50 Harper

339.4 Consumption (economics). U.S.—Economic conditions 49-2885

"Beginning with the 'standard of living,' the book traces the historical development of this concept and discusses the effect of crisis (World Wars I and II and the depression of the 30's) on the American standard of living. The wartime programs, of WPB, OPA, WFA, and other agencies are summarized. 'Consumers at the Market' and 'Factors in Supply' [are] the other major sections of the book." (Survey) Index.

"Well-written, objective, fundamentally sound, the kind of a course this book represents might to the public advantage be substituted for many now given in home economics and the social sicences." Hazel Kyrk
+ Ann Am Acad 265:206 S '49 400w

Reviewed by M. A. Rollins
J Home Econ 42:45 Ja '50 200w

"As an economist who has rendered distinguished service to and on behalf of consumer groups, Miss Campbell is well qualified to discuss 'The Consumer Interest.' Combining sound analysis with forceful, clear writing, the author presents a definite study of the economy from the point of view of the consumer. . . The general reader will find the chapters on the consumer movement and on government in the economy in the last section particularly enlightening. The entire book deserves thoughtful reading by students and educators, governmental policy makers, and, obviously, consumers in general." M. B. Matson
+ Survey 85:555 O '49 500w

CAMPBELL, ROBERT FRANCIS. History of basic metals price control in World war II. 263p $3.25 Columbia univ. press

338.5 Metals—Prices 48-7607

"This is a case study of wartime government control in an area in which price increases were kept to a minimum. The author states that the work, submitted as a doctoral dissertation, was conceived and executed while he was on the staff of the Office of Price Administration with the benefit of free access to official files. Basic metals included in the study are iron, steel, aluminum, copper, lead, zinc and the scrap metals. A composite index of basic metals prices, on a monthly basis, 1939-1945, is compared with the Bureau of Labor Statistics wholesale price index by way of pointing up 'success' in stabilizing metals prices. Monthly price movements for each of the metals included in the composite index are presented in an appendix. Emphasis is placed upon administrative aspects of government price control as related to this particular group of commodities." Am Econ R

"As distinct from the government sponsored studies, the contribution of Basic Metals Price Control in World War II lies in the discussion of specific problems associated with government control over a group of related, standardized commodities, oriented in terms of the over-all interagency program. As such, it is a useful addition to historical studies on price control and on basic metals." T. F. Marburg
Am Econ R 39:568 Mr '49 550w

Foreign Affairs 27:681 Jl '49 20

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:550 Ap 1 '49 60w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:443 D '48 240w

CANADAY, JOHN EDWIN (MATTHEW HEAD, pseud). Cabinda affair. 247p $2 Simon & Schuster

49-8046

A tale of murder and mystery in the Belgian Congo.

Booklist 45:263 Ap 1 '49

"Adult, adept entertainment."
+ Kirkus 16:632 D 1 '48 60w

"Authentic setting, good characterization and literate dialogue rate an A." E. H.
+ New Repub 120:26 Mr 21 '49 50w

"Matthew Head may go to the head of the class for this picturesque, impressive and generally pleasing account of dire deeds in the Congo." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 F 20 '49 90w

"An absorbing whodunit and a distinguished novel of atmosphere." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p27 Mr 20 '49 200w

New Yorker 25:100 F 26 '49 80w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p28 Mr 13 '49 150w

"First rate."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:33 Mr 5 '49 50w

Springf'd Republican p6D My 22 '49 80w

CANNING, VICTOR. Golden salamander. 250p $3 Mill

49-136

"A story about a cultured and dashing Englishman who, in the course of claiming some valuable Etruscan relics for a museum, stumbles over some fancy gun-running in a seedy North African town. At first interested only in the relics—and incidentally in a French girl he happens to meet—the Englishman gradually finds himself involved to the point where every one wants to kill him. The astounding way in which he eludes and brings to justice a virtual army of his potential murderers concludes the story." N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R

Booklist 45:281 Ap 15 '49

CANNING, VICTOR—Continued

"The story is told in bold technicolor, with a fine assortment of characters weaving about in the villain's web, and, at the end, the passion, plots and poignancy are whirled into a melodramatic man hunt which should be terrific on the screen."

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 F 10 '49 180w

Kirkus 16:607 N 15 '48 80w

Library J 74:1558 O 15 '49 20w

"Mr. Canning is obviously a professional at this kind of suspense-thriller. In fact, with only the addition of a musical score, this book would make a perfect movie serial—the kind in which each episode ends with the hero bound in chains, set afire and hurtling over a cliff."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Mr 13 '49 150w

"Intermittently exciting but too exaggerated for big-league material." C. M. Brown

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:38 F 19 '49 100w

Springf'd Republican p8C My 1 '49 180w

"Pure Buchan, and very exciting too, is the pursuit of David among North African hills and gullies, and the final destruction by fire of the villain's palatial house. It must be said that the level of Mr. Canning's dialogue . . . is well below that of his exemplars."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p229 Ap 9 '49 230w

CANNOM, ROBERT C. Van Dyke and the mythical city, Hollywood [foreword by Adela Rogers St John]. 424p il $3.50 Murray & Gee

B or 92 Van Dyke, Woodbridge Strong. Moving pictures 48-9531

The life story of Woodbridge Strong Van Dyke, adventurer, actor, film director, and pioneer in the art of the "better" film. Illustrated with photographs. An appendix lists the films directed by W. S. Van Dyke II.

"This is routinely written but is definitely a labor of love. Van Dyke was certainly one of the most celebrated directors in filmdom. Recommended for cinema collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 74:310 F 15 '49 40w

"If Robert C. Cannom's 'Van Dyke and the Mythical City, Hollywood' falls somewhat short of mining all the mythical values of either the man or the place, it is not for want of material. . . Mr. Cannom admits at the outset that 'where the man left off and the legend began is fully as hard to determine as the boundaries of Hollywood itself.' But he has explored the legend and the facts and collated them into a volume which is adulation and tribute in full." A. H. Weiler

N Y Times p6 D 26 '48 650w

CANNON, DOROTHY F. Explorer of the human brain; the life of Santiago Ramón y Cajal, 1852-1934; with a memoir of Dr Cajal by Sir Charles Sherrington. (Life of science lib) 303p il $4 Schuman

B or 92 Ramón y Cajal, Santiago 49-10050

"Biography of a great man of science—probably the greatest Spain has produced—who rose from a shoemaker's apprentice to become a Nobel Prize winner. While he was, to be sure, an educator, an authority on color photography and a political reformer, Ramón y Cajal was more widely known for his 'neuron' doctrine, namely, that the basic unit of the nervous system is the nerve cell, not the nerve fiber, and for his other findings that revolutionized neurology and to a considerable degree made modern neurosurgery and neuropsychiatry possible." (Library J) Selected bibliography of Cajal's works. Bibliography of sources. Index.

Reviewed by Joseph Borome

+ Library J 74:1098 Ag '49 100w

"An interesting study, somewhat overweighted on the personal and anecdotal side, of the achievements of a vital personality against great odds."

Nation 169:238 S 3 '49 50w

"Of all the great scientists of modern times, Cajal is probably the least known. His vividly written autobiography, which was translated into English more than a decade ago, received notice mainly in technical journals, and the man has enjoyed public obscurity together with the book. Dorothy Cannon, medical editor of the J. B. Lippincott Co., has finally helped remedy this situation with a new book, 'Explorer of the Human Brain,' on the Spanish anatomist written in easily understandable language. She has drawn liberally from the translated autobiography (as any biographer would have to), and has also added information from other sources." J. E. Pfeiffer

+ Sat R of Lit 32:28 S 24 '49 600w

CAPEK, KAREL. Apocryphal stories; tr. by Dora Round. 155p $2.25 Macmillan

49-5662

Variations and additions to a number of stories from history and fiction.

"Most of the stories were written between 1922 and 1933; but they have the ageless quality of folk tales. Told with deceptive simplicity, each of them is like a miniature vessel carved of ivory and laden with a carefully balanced cargo of seeds of kindness, gold dust of wisdom, and spices of irony. This is a book to be read again and again, for its warmhearted laughter, its tender compassion and unfailing dignity." Ernest Pisko

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 22 '49 550w

"An intelligent little book, and reading it is like joining in a parlour game invented by the competitions editor of an intellectual weekly. The variations on New Testament themes are the best." Paul Bloomfield

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 8 '49 190w

CAPEK, KAREL. Three novels; tr. by M. and R. Weatherall. 469p $3.75 Wyn

49-7788

A trilogy of philosophical novels, printed in one volume to commemorate the tenth anniversary of the author's death. Contents: Hordubal; Meteor; An Ordinary Life.

Booklist 45:335 Je 1 '49

"The interests of this book are deep and complex. The tales in themselves are absorbing and beautiful, but the fascination is finally in the initiation the author allows us into his purpose and methods. It is the performance of the artist, and his stories gain as if a conjurer should deepen the mystery by explaining his tricks." John Farrelly

+ New Repub 120:23 My 23 '49 800w

Reviewed by Gouverneur Paulding

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 My 15 '49 700w

Reviewed by Alfred Werner

N Y Times p19 F 20 '49 1250w

Reviewed by Vance Bourjaily

San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 1 '49 1350w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 32:37 Je 4 '49 80w

"Capek's Central European penchant for mixing story-telling with whimsical philosophizing may irritate some readers, but these three short novels provide a virtuoso's display of talent."

Times [London] Lit Sup p117 F 19 '49 300w

CAPETANAKIS, DEMETRIOS. Shores of darkness; poems and essays; with an introd. by John Lehmann and essays by Panayotis Canellopoulos [and others]. 183p $2.75 Devin-Adair

821

"Capetanakis was a young Greek poet who died in 1944 at the age of thirty-two. The last five years of his life were spent in England, where he gained sufficient command of the English language to use it with considerable skill, both in verse and in critical prose. The present collection, edited by John Lehmann, and including also an appreciation by Edith Sitwell and a personal memoir by William Plomer, contains Capetanakis' complete English writings; in addition to his own poetry and essays some translations of modern Greek poets are presented." Nation

"Thoughtful work, controlled and dignified, with a good deal of emotion, and a central philosophy which gives the book a unity and integration well above the average."
+ Nation 169:258 S 10 '49 140w

" 'The Shores of Darkness' is at once an introduction and a memorial to a subtle, lucid mind and a most likable personality." Herbert Barrows
+ N Y Times p11 Ag 14 '49 750w

"His poetry is particularly touching and original."
+ New Yorker 25:130 D 17 '49 80w

Reviewed by Carrol Coates
Poetry 75:180 D '49 850w

"For me the most impressive feature of 'The Shores of Darkness' is the poet's English, which he used most deftly in his sixteen original poems and three poem translations. Capetanakis went to London in 1939. One seldom achieves such native ease in a span of five years. . . In the death of Demetrios Capetanakis two nations lost a poet: England and Greece." Rae Dalven
+ Sat R of Lit 32:29 S 17 '49 290w

CAPLIN, ALFRED GERALD (AL CAPP, pseud). Life and times of the shmoo [il. by the author]. 90p pa $1 Simon & Schuster
817 Comic books, strips, etc. Caricatures and cartoons 49-7175

The cartoon life history of that balloon-like animal, the shmoo, from the valley of the shmoon.

"The shmoo, which drove a lot of vested interests to the wall, has been acclaimed as a great satiric creation and condemned as Communist propaganda. Whichever view you take, I think you'll find him a hilarious and lovable little critter. There's no doubt that Capp's intent was only partly to amuse." John Crosby
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 D 5 '48 320w

Reviewed by James MacBride
N Y Times p50 D 5 '48 550w

"This colorful book is almost as necessary to the modern home as the phone book, and much more enjoyable." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p8B Ja 9 '49 120w

CAPOTE, TRUMAN. Tree of night, and other stories. 209p $2.75 Random house 49-7722

Eight short stories with psychic or supernatural backgrounds. Contents: Master Misery; Children on their birthdays; Shut a final door; Jug of silver; Miriam; The headless hawk; My side of the matter; A tree of night.

"I said here in January that Truman Capote seemed to me one of the two outstanding American newcomers of 1948. That opinion has been strengthened by his collection of short stories, A Tree of Night, some of which I had previously read in magazines and which struck me as even better on a second reading." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 183:87 Ap '49 700w

Booklist 45:241 Mr 15 '49

"Capote's imaged world is as beautiful as a water mocassin, and as poisonous. A Freudian critic would call it a world of infantile regression; a sinister underwater universe populated by monstrous children, expressionistic automata, and zombie adults, all viewed obliquely through the bang-shaded eyes of a Louisiana Caligari-Hoffman. . . There can be no doubt of Capote's evocative magic. At its best, as in 'Miriam,' it is hauntingly successful. Only it is invariably black magic." C. A. Brady
Cath World 169:156 My '49 350w

"On the credit side is Truman Capote's feeling and capacity for the art of writing. He can express the inner eye, he can invoke, and his prose is careful and effective. It is also journalistic enough to be very easy and pleasant to follow. But what does he choose to see and to invoke and to select? A personal imagery which lacks meaning when brought out and considered in the light of day. These stories intrigue but do not satisfy." Virginia Bennett
Commonweal 50:77 Ap 29 '49 230w

"These stories are bold, even crystalline, showing a remarkable beauty of language and a variation of setting. . . Not palatable reading for the conservative, the tender skinned."
Kirkus 17:34 Ja 15 '49 340w

"This collection contains one extraordinarily good story plus three or four others less good but still memorable that should help redeem Truman Capote, the writer, from that other Capote, the creature of the advertising department and the photographer. . . True, his work shows the occasional overwriting, the twilit Gothic subject matter, and the masochistic uses of horror traditional in the fiction of the boy author ever since the eighteen-year-old Lewis wrote his 'Monk' 150 years ago; but Capote has, in addition, an ability to control tone, an honest tenderness toward those of his characters he can understand (children and psychotics), and a splendid sense of humor—seldom remarked upon. . . He has certain disturbing faults even in the shorter forms, most notably an inability to hear and reproduce common speech; and when he tries occasionally to tell a whole story through the mouth of a simple or vulgar character (My Side of the Matter), he fails dismally." L. A. Fiedler
+ — Nation 168:395 Ap 2 '49 950w

Reviewed by Alexander Klein
New Repub 121:17 Jl 4 '49 800w

"Mr. Capote in his style reveals a combination of eloquence and of simplicity. . . There is a notable facility and care in handling dialogue, which takes on a lifelike air. Moreover, Mr. Capote's style serves, generally, as a flexible and vigorous instrument for the communication of truly remarkable gifts of observation, whether of gesture or of atmosphere. But Mr. Capote's subject-matter and his characters are anything but simple or familiar. A considerable number of his figures inhabit the borderlines of madness, or are hag-ridden by frustrations, while the stories themselves not infrequently describe obsessive behaviour or total panic. . . It is in presenting children—as Mr. Capote does in several of these stories—that he seems to be at once most effective and most perfectly master of his craft." Iris Barry
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 F 27 '49 700w

"Perhaps it is because Mr. Capote's people are so full of eerie compulsions which they make no protracted attempt to resist that the reader's resistance to them is accordingly steeled and hardened. . . Mr. Capote's refusal to look squarely at the realm of the actual is in itself a form of stuffiness. With these reservations, however, one must fairly assert for these stories a kind of triple power: a mind at times disciplined toward poetry, with a special skill at naming; a pleasant and only slightly grotesque humor, and an ability to suggest, as in the novel, the outlines of haunted personalities, so that several of the stories might be described as biographies of the bugaboo." Carlos Baker
+ — N Y Times p7 F 27 '49 800w

New Yorker 25:105 Mr 19 '49 170w

"In this present book he comes closer to revealing the true Capote than in the novel. The reader becomes not unlike the police artist utilizing this piece and that bit to reconstruct the figure and face of the man. This, in the present case, becomes damning; for Capote, in such a reconstruction, seems to have little essential greatness about him. There is, however, one mitigating factor: His age." Marc Rivette
— + San Francisco Chronicle p13 Mr 6 '49 650w

"Although there are few unfamiliar figures in his parade of horribles, he manipulates his puppets dexterously and occasionally produces

CAPOTE, TRUMAN—Continued
a genuine frisson. . . Most of Mr. Capote's creations, unfortunately, hobble rather than glide, possibly because they must carry an excessive weight of symbolic meaning. And the two stories which are in no sense Gothic, 'Children on Their Birthdays' and 'My Side of the Matter,' are derivative and pretentious." Milton Crane
— + Sat R of Lit 32:12 F 26 '49 600w

"Truman Capote is certainly one of the most talented writers lately out of school, but his future would look wider if he could break away from the overripe magnolia and do more work on bread & meat material."
Time 53:110 Mr 14 '49 440w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:161 Je '49 280w

CAPP, AL, pseud. See Caplin, A. G.

CAREY, BERNICE. Reluctant murderer. 186p $2.25 Doubleday
49-10141

Mystery story.

Kirkus 17:283 Je 1 '49 100w

"The most absorbing aspect of the book is the portrait of Vivian herself—and it is no small accomplishment that the author has been able to sustain the repulsive but fascinating character study successfully to the end. Grim but good." Elizabeth Bullock
+ N Y Times p22 Ag 28 '49 170w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 7 '49 210w

"Exhilarating."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 Ag 13 '49 40w

CARHART, ARTHUR HAWTHORNE. Fresh water fishing; bait and fly casting, spinning, lures and equipment. (Sportsman's lib) 237p il col pl $5 Barnes, A.S.
799.11 Fishing Agr49-432

Discusses methods of taking fish, kinds of fish, equipment and tackle, the ABC's of bait casting, fly casting, spinning, lure and bait, etc. Included is a chapter on conservation. Index.

"Mr. Carhart reasons with you in a friendly prose; he gives detailed advice about your equipment, your casting—with bait, plug, fly, or spinner; he gives you explanations for his preferences; he guides you without pressure and makes his points stick with many a personal anecdote." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 184:82 S '49 120w
Booklist 46:10 S 1 '49

Reviewed by Bob Becker
Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 D 4 '49 40w

"Here's an excellent book for boys (and girls?)."
+ Kirkus 17:264 My 15 '49 130w

"An exceptionally interesting, intelligent book." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:1031 Jl '49 30w

CARHART, ARTHUR HAWTHORNE. Hi, stranger! the complete guide to dude ranches. 222p il $3 Ziff-Davis
796.5 Ranch life 49-9214

"Mr. Carhart advises on the clothes to buy, on the types and mannerisms of the hoss, on the saddle, bridle, and bit to use, and how you should behave on the trail. If you plan to get that ambitious, there is word on pack trips, camping out, and how to find yourself after you're lost. He has included a lexicon of terms in case someone tells you to 'rattle your hocks over to the maniac wagon.'" (Sat R of Lit) No index.

Booklist 45:349 Je 15 '49

"I looked in vain for a directory of ranches, but there is at least advice on how to pick the place that will best suit your personality and pocket."
Sat R of Lit 32:31 Je 4 '49 110w

CARLIN, BENSON. Ultrasonics. 270p il $5 McGraw 534 Supersonic waves 49-3311

"Ultrasonics, high-frequency wave motion, have become increasingly important in the past few years, particularly in industrial testing, signaling, medicine, and chemistry. This first volume on the subject covers both theory and practical experimentation. Technical." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 45:386 Jl 15 '49

"The subject well deserves a more thorough discussion and we trust that the author can be persuaded to expand this excellent first attempt for the next edition." Joseph Greenspan
Chem Eng 56:264 D '49 270w

"It is especially useful for its descriptions of fundamental apparatus such as crystal holders and basic circuit. In addition it describes briefly the chief applications, or at least those applications which have been made public. It is clearly written, and most of the text can be understood by persons without special knowledge of the subject."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 54:61 Jl '49

"The text, which is entirely non-mathematical, is praiseworthy throughout for clarity of exposition, but for practical purposes must be supplemented by a considerable knowledge of electronics. . . The book closes with a brief review, derived from the author's personal experience, of certain practical considerations in the application of ultrasonics to flaw testing. It is the opinion of the reviewer that the value of the book to workers in this, its primary, field of interest would have been much enhanced if the final chapter had been greatly enlarged and more profusely illustrated with typical oscillographic records." S. L. Quimby
+ R of Scientific Instruments 20:689 S '49 260w

CARLSON, EDGAR MAGNUS. Reinterpretation of Luther. 256p $3.50 Presbyterian bd.
270.6 Luther, Martin 48-4604

"It is the purpose of this book to present to English readers a descriptive and interpretative account of Luther research among Swedish theologians of the twentieth century and to relate the results of this research to the nature and methodology of Swedish theology." (J Religion) Index.

"Students of the history of Christianity in general and the Reformation in particular will welcome this scholarly analysis of the fruits of a half century of Swedish scholarship in the field of historical theology." H. J. Grimm
+ Am Hist R 55:213 O '49 300w

"Alike for the general reader and for the specialist it is a useful introduction." R. H. Bainton
+ Christian Century 66:1038 S 7 '49 600w

"The intention [of the author], carried out with breadth and balance, has produced a volume of extraordinary usefulness. For there is no longer any doubt that the force and freshness of contemporary Swedish theology is a major contributor to Protestantism's present theological reconstruction." Joseph Sittler
+ J Religion 29:312 O '49 1000w

"'Recommended for Theological libraries." O. G. Lawson
+ Library J 73:1506 O 15 '48 130w

CARMER, CARL LAMSON. Dark trees to the wind; a cycle of York State years; decorations by John O'Hara Cosgrave II. 370p $4 Sloane
974.7 Legends—New York (state). New York (state)—History 49-11791

"Mr. Carmer's volume is perhaps more folklore than history. Yet it rests upon solid historical foundations with some enlivening biography to buttress it. And sprinkled through it are casual and often unrelated anecdotes which seem, at first, to have dropped in from some other book, until the reader presently perceives that each of them casts an oblique but revealing off-stage light upon the scene or the characters." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) Bibliography.

Booklist 46:140 D 15 '49

Bookmark 9:52 D '49 50w

"There is no particular continuity about this book. It would be almost fair to say that it consists of jottings set down in hit-or-miss fashion. And yet what jottings! Mr. Carmer is always readable, his writing vigorous and arresting. The illustrations and decorations by John O'Hara Cosgrave II, invariably delightful and suitable to the text, add greatly to one's enjoyment."
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 D 22 '49 480w

Reviewed by James van Zandt
+ Churchman 164:17 Ja 15 '50 180w

"One hasn't the sense of discovery that Stars Fell on Alabama gave; nor of gainful knowledge of a half-known region in Listen for a Lonesome Drum. But there is, perhaps, a more intimate and personal flavor than in either of the others, for those who are Carmer fans. And for York staters, it is a natural."
+ Kirkus 17:531 S 15 '49 290w

"The effect is that of an old-time panorama accompanied and explained with the charm and persuasiveness of a master narrator. . . For richness of local lore and vivid evocation of the past, I know of no recent passage to set beside 'Hanging Day.' . . 'York State folks look as if they came from York State,' Mr. Carmer writes. They act that way, too. And the author of 'Dark Trees to the Wind' has caught their looks and actions, their eccentricities and habits, their way of thought and way of life and fixed it in a consistently vivid record." S. H. Adams
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 6 '49 1400w

"Reading Mr. Carmer's gracefully phrased, yarn-crammed book, one is reminded of the inexhaustible variety of York State life in particular, of American life in general." H. R.
+ N Y Times p27 N 6 '49 410w

"A genial exercise in state chauvinism by one of this state's most assiduous, and readable, drum-beaters. . . Very engaging stuff, with nostalgic drawings by John O'Hara Cosgrave of various localities that, unfortunately, are not identified."
+ New Yorker 25:134 N 26 '49 160w

"Mr. Carmer mixes the whole affair so skillfully, with such variety and so good an eye for balance, that you can stick in your thumb and pull out a plum anywhere." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 16 '49 950w

Reviewed by H. W. Thompson
Sat R of Lit 32:15 D 17 '49 750w

Springf'd Republican p10B D 25 '49 370w

CARMER, CARL LAMSON. Hurricane luck; il. by Elizabeth Black Carmer. 82p $1.75 Aladdin 49-11175

"A picture of life of the fisher folk on an island off Florida in the Gulf of Mexico. The central character is Peter Tebo, 11 years old, who helps his father fish and who goes to school in a boat. When a hurricane approaches, all the near-by island families come by boat with blankets and a picnic supper to the schoolhouse for the night. They sing songs to keep up their courage and to soothe their little children. The hurricane brings a change of luck with a rare shell washed up on Peter's porch." N Y Times

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
+ Cath World 170:210 D '49 30w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p17 D 3 '49 70w

"This has much to recommend it and with a little more might have been a very good book."
+ — Kirkus 17:427 Ag 15 '49 190w

"Carl Carmer's highly individual story has a strong sense of place. Elizabeth Black Carmer drew her pictures at the very spot where the action of the story takes place." Alice McQuaid
+ Library J 74:1540 O 15 '49 70w

"Recommended for all libraries having 8-10-year-old readers." Elizabeth Sussdorff
+ Library J 74:1916 D 15 '49 70w

"There's not an improbability in the story, and there is an astonishing amount of information about shells, fish and mangrove island life." G. C. C.
+ N Y Times p26 N 13 '49 140w

Reviewed by Felix Riesenberg
San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 13 '49 30w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:26 N 12 '49 90w

CARMER, CARL LAMSON. Too many cherries; il. by Jay Hyde Barnum. 62p $2 Viking 49-10672

Story of a ten-year-old boy, a too abundant crop of cherries, and the pick-up truck which took a load of cherries, a farm worker, and the boy some three hundred miles to the place where they sold the cherries. There is quite a bit of information on the trucks which make long-distance hauls, and the men who drive them. For boys of seven to ten.

Booklist 46:51 O 1 '49

Bookmark 9:31 N '49 40w

"Excellent boys' story." B. J. Thompson
+ Cath World 170:210 D '49 30w

"One of the liveliest books of the fall." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 25:411 S '49 90w

"An original story, with regional as well as occupational flavor. Nice quality to the panoramic pictures. . . Highly recommended."
+ Kirkus 17:428 Ag 15 '49 150w

"Carl Carmer draws unforgettable word pictures of the highways of America at night, the leviathan trailers with their assorted cargoes, and the comradery of the road." Alice McQuaid
+ Library J 74:1540 O 15 '49 50w

Reviewed by D. M. Blasco
+ Library J 74:1760 N 15 '49 80w

"Mr. Carmer tells an every-day story, based on knowledge of cherries, trucks, and a small boy who had exactly this experience. The problem is real, and all the pages about the big trucks and their drivers are absorbing. The blue in which the whole book is printed (with touches of cherry red) offers the right atmosphere for the dark night scenes of Bill's thrilling journey." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 O 2 '49 230w

"The book pleasantly combines a lively story with worth-while information for readers of 7 to 10." Marjorie Burger
+ N Y Times p26 N 27 '49 140w

New Yorker 25:176 D 3 '49 70w

"This is a story of America. In no other country could this combination of Nature's bounty and man's ingenuity exist today. The drawings, printed in blue and cherry red, are as vigorous and honest as the story. Here is a fine Christmas present for some lucky boy." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:25 N 12 '49 230w

CARNAC, CAROL, pseud. See Rivett, E. C.

CARNAHAN, MRS ANN. The Vatican; behind the scenes in the Holy City; with phot. by David Seymour. 190p $4 Farrar, Straus
914.56 Vatican (city) 49-49512

Detailed text and many photographs describe the Vatican. Designed particularly for Holy Year pilgrims, and others interested in "the world's smallest, yet in many ways most important and beautiful nation."

Booklist 46:187 F 1 '50

Bookmark 9:77 Ja '50 60w

Reviewed by J. O. Supple
— Chicago Sun p6X D 25 '49 300w

CARNAHAN, ANN—Continued
"The Vatican is as earnestly slick and tailored as any Life feature, and after you've said that you've said just about everything that can be said, for and against it." John Cogley
Commonweal 51:349 D 30 '49 450w
Kirkus 17:572 O 1 '49 130w

"The book is refreshing and helpful in many respects because of the inclusion and treatment of material often considered too trivial and plebian for mention in the conventional guidebooks. The illustrations are excellent and varied enough to give a comprehensive picture. Recommended highly for the public library." R. P. Breaden
+ Library J 74:1820 D 1 '49 90w

Reviewed by Frank Kelley
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 25 '49 650w

"Miss Carnahan and Mr. Seymour have done an informal portrait of the Vatican and of its citizens that should be of great interest to both Catholics and non-Catholics. Miss Carnahan's text is almost determinedly chatty, but it supplies a number of interesting sidelights on the Vatican library system, on the regiment of the Swiss Guards, the Pope's daily routine, the preservation of the Vatican's art treasures and so on." W. R. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p28 Ja 8 '50 170w
Wis Lib Bul p9 D '49

CARNER, MOSCO. Waltz. (World of music) 72p il col pl $2.50 Chanticleer
781.508521 Dancing. Dance music [49-7278]

History of the origin and rise of the waltz. "From the beginning Vienna was the scene of all the most interesting developments (with Paris a very poor second), and as Vienna declined in musical importance the waltz gradually went out of fashion until it is now rapidly on the way to becoming as much a period-piece as the minuet." (Spec) Illustrated with reproductions of old paintings, some in color, and drawings in black and white. Index.

Booklist 45:212 F 15 '49
Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '49

Reviewed by Catharine Keyes
Library J 73:1819 D 15 '48 40w

"This is a pleasant and happy subject. Today, in our Atom Bomb Era, it serves as a wistful reminder that men once knew the joy of a romantic heart. Perhaps it might be recommended reading for the gentlemen who make up the present United Nations." Paul Magriel
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 6:307 Mr '49 270w

"Mr. Carner gives an interesting account of the development of the waltz, but now and then he becomes startlingly British." Gerald Johnson
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 F 13 '49 190w

"Mr. Carner's study of the history of the waltz is colorful and often amusing." Howard Taubman
+ N Y Times p7 F 13 '49 40w

"Tells the story of three-quarter time in as great detail as most of us will ever want. Like the companion volumes in the 'World of Music' series, it is replete with charming, well-printed illustrations." Roland Gelatt
+ Sat R of Lit 32:62 Ja 29 '49 40w

"Dr. Mosco Carner has contrived to combine scholarship and readability in his short history of the most glamorous of all dances. . . All the information that anyone, even a musicologist, could want about the history and development of this brilliant and fascinating dance is to be found in Dr. Carner's book. . . The illustrations are excellent and generally well chosen." Martin Cooper
+ Spec 181:878 D 31 '48 180w
Times [London] Lit Sup p38 Ja 15 '49 240w

CARNES, CECIL. You must see Canada. 192p il $2.75 Ziff-Davis
917.1 Canada—Description and travel 49-7771

Short guidebook to Canada. Partial contents: Under leaning sails in Nova Scotia; Habit-forming New Brunswick; Le Canada Français; Ontario, a continent by itself; Toronto: anthill with a purpose; Ottawa, the memorial city; Manitoba; The world of wheat; Incomparable Alberta; Big Bend, Cariboo, and points north. Small map on end papers. Illustrated with photographs. No bibliography or index.

Booklist 45:239 Mr 15 '49

"Like his previous book with an exhortatory title ('You Must Go to Mexico') Mr. Carnes new book is a spirited, chatty, relaxed specimen of the guidebook art. . . The traveler can do his own pinpoint research elsewhere, and the attractions of the country—from Nova Scotia fishing banks to British Columbia forests—are manifestly too vast for guidebook itemization. For its purpose, this is an excellent job."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ap 24 '49 90w

"A pleasant little guide on Canada. It is not a very heavy treatment, either intellectually or informationally, but there is a smattering of data on points from Nova Scotia to British Columbia. Particularly I thought the treatment was rather thin on the Laurentians . . . to say nothing of Victoria, which Mr. Carnes dismissed in two short paragraphs."
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:48 Mr 19 '49 110w
Survey 85:450 Ag '49 170w

CARNEY, MARIE L. Etiquette in business; il. by Vida Carney. 514p $4.50 McGraw
174 Etiquet 49-7043

Guide to correct business behavior for secretaries, clerical workers, salespersons, and junior executives.

Booklist 45:219 Mr 1 '49
Management R 38:582 O '49 20w

CARR, JOHN DICKSON (CARTER DICKSON, pseud). Below suspicion. 241p $2.50 Harper 49-10186

Detective story.

Bookmark 9:5 O '49 30w

"It delighted me as thoroughly as it baffled me; as both experiences are rare enough in the contemporary detective story it seems to warrant a stately salute." James Sandoe
+ Chicago Sun Ag 12 '49 120w
Kirkus 17:312 Je 15 '49 40w

"Dr. Gideon Fell, Ph.D., LL.D., F. R. H. S., takes the cake, as usual, in this bang-up detective tale—a don't miss item, of course." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ag 14 '49 200w

"There's no need to repeat that Mr. Carr knows uniquely well how to blend the novel of character and the sternly deductive problem; let's just say that he has rarely done it better than in this case." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p21 Ag 14 '49 230w

"Impeccably plotted, of course, but a little too souped up to be genuinely blood-chilling."
+ — New Yorker 25:67 S 3 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ag 21 '49 240w

"Tops."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:37 S 17 '49 40w

CARR, JOHN DICKSON (CARTER DICKSON, pseud). Graveyard to let; another adventure of Sir Henry Merrivale. 247p $2.50 Morrow 49-11468

Detective story.

"It's all nonsense, played as such, boldly and with smack. I liked it." James Sandoe

+ Chicago Sun N 11 '49 100w

Kirkus 17:489 S 1 '49 60w

"Another eminently satisfactory Carter Dickson, faithful to the 'impossible crime' formula, and just as rewarding as all the rest of them."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p34 N 13 '49 180w

"The novel is a weak and padded one, full of episodes, both comic and lurid, quite unrelated to the plot, and based on motivations which pass the understanding of at least this reviewer. The effect is somewhat as though an ingenious short-story device has been forcibly distended to novel length. Jove, even when nodding, can produce a certain amount of thunder; but those who respect Mr. Dickson as deeply as I do will find here only a muffled echo." Anthony Boucher

— N Y Times p51 N 13 '49 180w

"Fast, intricate, and funny."

+ New Yorker 25:171 N 19 '49 120w

Springf'd Republican p7D D 11 '49 100w

CARR, JOHN DICKSON (CARTER DICKSON, pseud). Life of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. 304p $3.50 Harper

B or 92 Doyle, Sir Arthur Conan

49-7489

A full-length biography of the creator of Sherlock Holmes, written by an Anglo-American detective-story writer. The work is based on family letters and other papers. "Of all the men of his time, few lived so many different lives as Doyle: few left behind them so voluminous a record, even in an era of voluminous records. Whole rooms full of personal papers and notebooks (including fifteen hundred letters to his mother. 'The Ma'am) were made available by the Doyle family to John Dickson Carr during the two solid years he devoted—and devoted is the appropriate word—to this book." (N Y Times) Bibliography. Index.

"The writing is undistinguished, but Doyle's story is too engrossing for this to be obtrusive; and Mr. Carr has told that 'story of adventure, sometimes even of melodrama' in arresting detail and with affecting enthusiasm." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 183:82 Ap '49 800w

Booklist 45:224 Mr 1 '49

"Mr. Dickson Carr's book reads like a novel, though he reminds us that it is the result of painstaking research and every statement is substantiated. The result is a living picture presented in its contemporary perspective, and that is important because Conan Doyle was not only a writer, he was also active in public affairs." Robert Wilberforce

+ Cath World 169:236 Je '49 500w

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun F 18 '49 400w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby

Christian Science Monitor p14 My 19 '49 800w

"John Dickson Carr, no mean writer of mystery stories himself, has done a vital and exciting portrait of Sir Arthur. His biography is a bit too awe-struck and worshipping, but Mr. Carr has written with high humor and evident understanding of a man who must have been not easy to have about the house!" Elizabeth Johnson

+ Commonweal 49:525 Mr 4 '49 480w

"A thoroughly satisfying biography . . . which is highly enlightening not only on the literary side, but also in the field of domesticity, psychology, and personality."

+ Kirkus 16:653 D 15 '48 150w

"Top-notch biography of the great romancer. . . This supersedes all previous books on Doyle. For the first time, Doyle's self-identification with Sherlock Holmes is revealed, as well as the original of Dr. Watson (a Dr. James Watson). Of transcendent interest to The Baker Street Irregulars and its scion societies—including The Solitary Cyclist in Washington—the book also has an assured audience of thousands of laymen. Recommended, decidedly." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 74:55 Ja 1 '49 130w

"This is not Mr. Dickson Carr's best book. But the first two-thirds of it are full of zest and adventure. The great bulk and breadth of Conan Doyle dominate his pages—part knight-errant, part crusader, and (dare one whisper it?) part innocent." R. G. J.

Manchester Guardian p3 F 4 '49 480w

"A lively, readable biography. . . A definitive life based on family papers but written in free and easy style."

+ Nation 168:165 F 5 '49 30w

Reviewed by A. L. Goodman

New Repub 120:23 F 14 '49 1200w

Reviewed by Arthur Marshall

New Statesman & Nation 37:279 Mr 19 '49 1300w

"John Dickson Carr has told the story of this many-sided man better than any one has told it before. . . [It] is what a biography ought after all, to be—the story of a man's life. There is no cluttering of the account with gratuitous psychological twists of the author's own contriving; there is a happy absence of the heavy overtones and turgid undertows too often thrown between the subject and the reader to satisfy the biographer's fetishes and fancies. Nothing is put forward, in this life of Conan Doyle, that was not already there in the man himself for all to see. . . All this is told as fluently and straightforwardly as a Carter Dickson mystery novel." E. W. Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 F 6 '49 1300w

"It is a pleasure to report that 'the good giant' (as a French journalist happily called him) has been restored to true stature in this warm-hued and full-bodied portrait by a major Anglo-American detective novelist. . . To say that Carr has utilized this treasure trove to surpass and supersede all previous studies with a narrative-biography vigorously blending entertainment and scholarship will surprise no reader of his detective novels. . . The book is generously illustrated, and the author has wisely avoided footnotes in favor of an extended bibliography. . . It will be objected in some quarters that this 'Life' is not a 'critical' biography, and the charge must be admitted. Whatever John Dickson Carr set out to do originally, it is evident that he fell thoroughly in love with his subject—and enjoyed himself to the hilt in the process. It will be the rare reader who does not follow suit on both counts." Howard Haycraft

+ N Y Times p5 F 6 '49 1250w

"Mr. Carr has done a beautiful piece of work here. Himself an expert in Holmesian lore, he includes many a tidbit. . . But even the most critical reader will be able to see beyond what is quite evidently Carr's great admiration for his subject, and will realize that Carr is presenting a true portrait. Here was a man who lived up to his own best ideas of what a man ought to be, no matter what it cost him. And Carr makes the reader see that. Most will finish the book feeling that they have met an extraordinarily many-sided man, an individual who lived with gusto and vigor the kind of life he believed to be good, a fighter for the right, a man who was inflexibly honest with others and with himself—in short, a thoroughly first rate human being. Part of this is Doyle himself; part of it is Carr's skill. The combination makes a notable biography." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ja 30 '49 2000w

"There are lacunae in the story, perhaps inevitable in an authorized biography. . . But there is so much here that we could not have got without the help of the family that it would be ungrateful to begrudge them their quite proper reticences. And give Carr (or his publishers) one more citation. This is the first biography I have read in twenty-five years that dared to call the life of so-and-so 'The life of So-and-so,' without tricking it out with some meretricious title designed to catch a few more dollars." Elmer Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:19 Mr 5 '49 700w

CARR, J. D.—Continued
Reviewed by Cyril Ray
Spec 182:230 F 19 '49 650w

Springf'd Republican p22A F 27 '49 850w

"Since Carr himself is a talented contriver of whodunits . . . mystery fans are likely to expect his Life to be first rate. They may be a little disappointed. The Life is highly valuable as the most definitive job to date, but some of its fine feast of facts has been spoiled by the way they have been dished up."
+ — Time 53:88 F 7 '49 1800w

"Mr. Carr lapses occasionally into that kind of journalese which combines brevity with irrelevance of description, as in writing of 'shrewd, bespectacled, heavily moustached' so and so. But he has a genuine feeling for the man he describes. If he sometimes depicts the giant a little greater on the showboard outside the caravan than he was in real life, that is an amiable weakness, and he does what he sets out to do, namely, to 'paint the portrait of a living human being.' "
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p102 F 12 '49 1000w

Wis Lib Bul 45:46 Mr '49

CARR, LOWELL JULLIARD. Situational analysis; an observational approach to introductory sociology. 178p $2.50 Harper
301.8 Sociology 48-1705

"The core of this book is an objective plan to make sociological analysis a functional performance in the life of the student. Emphasis rests upon 'knowledge of acquaintance' rather than upon 'knowledge about.' . . This book is intended to be used either as a text for directing primary observation or as a supplementary handbook. The framework basis consists of fourteen specific assignments which are to be reported in an observational notebook. References used are eight of the leading introductory textbooks in the field." (Am Soc R) Selected bibliography. Indexes.

"Some readers will undoubtedly take exception to Professor Carr's position at several points. Many sociologists will not subscribe to his Simmel-like formalistic definition of sociology. . . But all readers will be indebted to Professor Carr for his insistence on the scientific character of sociological knowledge, his forthrightness in dealing with social issues, and his valuable pedagogical suggestions." Harry Alpert
+ — Am J Soc 54:272 N '48 550w

"The little book is well organized and carefully planned. It should be a useful tool in field work, where individual work can be done. It might not prove so useful for large classes and under conditions of limited staff. This new departure should be given a trial. Dr. Carr has made an excellent contribution to teaching techniques in sociology." T. E. Sullenger
+ Am Soc R 14:186 F '49 300w

"The writing is lucid and lively. Most of the standard concepts are introduced and then applied to situations and cases with which undergraduates are generally familiar. A well built framework, drawn from Gestalt and topological psychology and from more 'orthodox' sociology, gives the book organization and the student a frame of reference for his own thought and observation. . . The book is short on theories, long on description. This is its greatest weakness." N. J. Demerath
+ — Social Forces 27:170 D '48 500w

"If this book can help in making the introductory sociology course a more meaningful experience for students, more power to it! That it produces a new approach is, however, doubtful. The projects are not significantly different from those already contained in many texts or assigned by competent instructors. And Professor Carr appears forced throughout the book to revert to the use of the abstract concepts he set out to avoid. . . Situational Analysis turns out, therefore, to be only a rather elaborate workbook." W. C. Neely
Social Studies 40:137 Mr '49 420w

CARROLL, CONSOLATA (SISTER MARY CONSOLATA). I hear in my heart; il. by Edgard Cirlin. 338p $3 Farrar, Straus 49-9453

Continuation of the author's Pray Love, Remember (Book Review Digest 1947). This installment of Sister Mary Consolata's fictionalized autobiography describes her experiences while studying at Pratt Institute, her years of teaching at Mount Saint Mary's College, and her decision to become a nun.

"In the earlier book, Sister Consolata showed amazing powers of observation and recall, as well as what seems for a nun astonishing insight into the motives and conduct of ordinary people in all sorts of situations 'in the world.' The new book does not disappoint, as so often happens in a continuation of the same theme. . . I Hear in My Heart is a reviewer's delight—a joy to read and a pleasure to recommend." B. J. Thompson
+ Cath World 169:398 Ag '49 250w

"The lay person, and particularly the non-Catholic, too often believes that those who embrace religious life are either pious and retiring by nature or seeking an escape from the rigors of the world. Sister Mary Consolata's story, in novel form, of her own early life should do much to correct these misconceptions." Dorothy Sparks
+ Chicago Sun Jl 31 '49 180w

"A natural quality here, a warmth and sincerity gives this a general reader interest (particularly for women) beyond the obvious Catholic market."
+ Kirkus 17:215 Ap 15 '49 160w

"This 'novel' is not strictly fiction; it has no other form than chronological narrative of the author's personal experience. As memoir told in the third person and with, necessarily, a modicum of invention and quiet embellishment, it will give the pleasure of recognition to many Catholic readers, and satisfy the interest of others in a story of why and how a normal upper New York State girl, a graduate of Pratt Institute, and a teacher, became a nun. It will answer no theological or political questions and offers no excitement of plot." Ernestine Evans
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Je 19 '49 550w

Reviewed by C. A. Brady
N Y Times p23 Je 26 '49 360w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 7 '49 160w

CARROLL, MRS GLADYS (HASTY). West of the hill. 248p $3 Macmillan
49-5190

This story of life in a small Maine community in the 1880's, is the story of the first two years of the married life of Brad Hartwell and Molly Dennis. Beginning with a runaway marriage and ending with a forest fire it tells how Molly learned the truth of the old minister's words: "Love is of God; and every one that loveth . . . knoweth God."

Booklist 45:366; 46:13 Jl 1 '49; S 1 '49

Bookmark 9:29 N '49 40w

"The mental effect of reading through the 248 pages of this novel . . . is roughly equivalent to eating at one sitting a five pound box of Fanny Farmer candy. There is such a thing as too much sweetness. . . Mrs. Carroll adds color to her Maine never-never land by cozy descriptions of regional cooking, dressmaking and home care." Mary Sandrock
Cath World 170:235 D '49 170w

Reviewed by F. N. Litten
Chicago Sun S 13 '49 400w

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p15 S 15 '49 260w

"A quiet contemplative novel, imbued with a strong religious spirit of brotherly love."
+ Kirkus 17:335 Jl 1 '49 150w

"A strong religious flavor pervades the whole and adds strength to each character. Highly recommended." R. P. Tubby
+ Library J 74:1093 Ag '49 70w
Library J 74:1557 O 15 '49 60w

"Quite probably Maine and other states could turn up prototypes of people in this novel of the middle nineteenth century, including the preacher and teacher who are real saints and the evangelists who are cruelly sanctimonious. Coincidences as startling as the episode of the little French boy and the dramatic finale of the book are not unknown in real life. But even if one knew that these people and events had actually existed at one time and place, this telling would hardly make the story convincing." Mary Ross
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 S 18 '49 550w

"Whether Molly and her sister-in-law discuss a new quilt pattern or the scene is described, the reader encounters a lively rhythm that is almost poetry. The narrative, more concerned with character than plot, moves slower. Yet suspense of the usual kind would be hardly appropriate. When, at the end, a climax is provided, it seems unnecessary. Everyday life of these real people who inhabit so vitally their small corner of the earth is exciting enough. The appeal of this regional novel is well beyond its New England boundaries." Joan Andrews
+ N Y Times p37 S 18 '49 270w

"A warm-hearted and wholesome novel. . . But I could not help but find the book's continual sermonizing . . . a bit oppressive." S. H. Hay
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:46 N 19 '49 270w

CARROLL, MRS RUTH (ROBINSON), and CARROLL, LATROBE. Pet tale. [43]p il $1.50 Oxford 49-10087

"Cumulative story of a farmer who had a pet trotting horse who had a pet donkey who had a pet lamb who had a pet pig who had a pet puppy who had a pet rabbit who had a pet mouse who had no pet at all until her six babies arrived. With the aid of pictures the story tells how the farmer handled the complications which arose when he wanted to drive the horse in a race. Ages 4-7." Booklist

Booklist 46:15 S 1 '49

Reviewed by Marcia Winn
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 N 13 '49 100w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:403 S '49 50w

"The fair sized, clear type will encourage easy reading although youngsters over seven will find the story too tame for them. It's just right to delight those up to that age, however."
+ Kirkus 17:392 Ag 1 '49 150w

"The repetition will be enjoyed by little people, and the black-and-white illustrations are good. Recommended." M. A. Webb
+ Library J 74:1207 S 1 '49 60w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker
+ Library J 74:1534 O 15 '49 70w

"Adults may not be too patient with a nonsense fantasy which is far from true to the ways of the animal world, except for the fact that horses often love to have donkeys around. Children will like it, and the pictures are very good." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 20 '49 140w

Reviewed by S. C. Gross
N Y Times p12 D 18 '49 170w

"The pictures of the animals are entrancing, with just the right note of gentle humor."
+ New Yorker 25:166 D 3 '49 60w

"The pictures are enchanting. It is impossible to resist them. Never was there a more endearing horse, donkey, lamb, pig, puppy, rabbit, or field mouse. They are printed in soft black and white and the story is told for little children."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:33 S 17 '49 140w

CARSE, ADAM VON AHN. The orchestra; with an introd. by Sir Adrian Boult. (World of music ser) 72p il $2.50 Chanticleer
785 Orchestras 49-10586

"Mr. Carse has confined himself to a brief account of the origins and growth of the orchestra—instruments, instrumentalists, and conducting—with only passing references to orchestral music." Music Lib Assn Notes

Booklist 46:99 N 15 '49

"A much simplified survey of the history of the orchestra that will be of chief interest to the lay person yet acceptable to those who know the author to be the acknowledged authority on the subject. Since the musical public of our time has made the orchestra its favorite performing medium, the book is highly recommended." Leonard Burkat
+ Library J 74:1907 D 15 '49 130w

"In view of the limited space at his disposal, it is perhaps unfair to accuse [the author] of over-simplification. A more serious defect, from the point of view of the American reader, is the fact that the book is directed toward a national audience, with a consequent overemphasis on things British. On the credit side, the book is written in an easily readable, anecdotal style. Since it is stimulating rather than complete, it is a pity that the bibliographies which appeared in some of the earlier volumes of the series have been omitted." Minnie Elmer
+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 7:118 D '49 230w

"Mr. Carse's unrivalled knowledge of his subject is legendary. Hitherto he has written almost exclusively for the student. In this timely study he now answers all the questions the keen amateur is likely to ask about the orchestra in terms he can understand." Eric Fenby
+ Spec 183:120 Jl 22 '49 370w

CARSKADON, THOMAS REYNOLDS. See Twentieth century fund, incorporated. U.S.A., measure of a nation

CARSON, BYRTA. How you look and dress; a first course in clothing; drawings by Melvan Jordan and Erwin Wesp. (Whittlesey house publication) 394p il $3; text ed $2.40 McGraw 646 Clothing and dress. Dressmaking
49-6373

"Covers everything from personal grooming and hygiene to an excellent short course in dressmaking. Includes the selection of clothing, budgeting, mending, remodeling, and fine points about fabrics. Designed as a textbook, it has extra projects at end of each chapter, is illustrated, indexed, has a bibliography, and list of visual aids." Library J

"Here is a fine manual for girls who want to do their own dressmaking." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:545 N '49 70w

"Though primarily a school text, will make interesting reading for older girls. Recommended for teen-agers and adults." J. S. Watts
+ Library J 74:1610 O 15 '49 80w

CARTER, DEANE G., and HINCHCLIFF, KEITH HARRY. Family housing. 265p il $4; text ed $3 Wiley 643 Dwellings. Architecture, Domestic 49-2941

"A brief and easy-to-read presentation of housing and house planning from the point of view of economical and healthful living. Although designed mainly for use as a textbook in college courses in home economics, it should be useful also as an up-to-date survey for general readers who are considering the building or buying of a house. . . The treatment is all from the standpoint of planning, evaluating and estimating; and the authors have not attempted to supply the information needed by persons who are thinking of undertaking the actual building or remodeling operations."

CARTER, D. G.—Continued
(N Y New Tech Bks) References for housing study. Index.

Booklist 45:386 Jl 15 '49

Reviewed by G. B. Gerard
J Home Econ 41:527 N '49 140w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:39 My '49

"An elementary, well illustrated and planned book, dealing, for the most part, with low- or medium-cost family homes and farm houses." C. W. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 14 '49 100w

Survey 85:408 Jl '49 10w

CARTER, JOHN, and POLLARD, GRAHAM. The firm of Charles Ottley, Landon & co; footnote to an enquiry. 95p il pa $2 Scribner

098.3 Swinburne, Algernon Charles—Bibliography. Ottley, Charles Landon & company. Wise, Thomas James 49-3264

"It is now nearly fifteen years since Mr. Carter and Mr. Pollard published their Enquiry into the Nature of Certain Nineteenth Century Pamphlets. . . In the interval more has been discovered about more pamphlets by other inquirers on both sides of the Atlantic; and what could not be openly stated in 1934—namely, that the highly esteemed collector-bibliographer, T. J. Wise, was a pirate and a forger—is now common knowledge. . . The 'Footnote' concerns a group of four Swinburne pamphlets which purport to have been printed in 1887 by T. Rignall, of Whitefriars, and published by Charles Ottley, Landon and Co., London. . . It is argued, and persuasively, that there were no such publishers, that there was no such printer, that the dates are false, and that in fact the pamphlets were printed, probably by Clay's about 1890, for Wise." Times [London] Lit Sup

---

"The by now familiar method of Carter and Pollard, with their relentless marshaling of data, is to be seen again in the current investigation. They deliver a round unvarnished tale with dignity, restraint and fairness." Philip Brooks
+ N Y Times p14 Jl 3 '49 450w

"It is a sordid story, but fascinating on two counts: first, for the ingenuity with which Wise piece by piece in reply to each successive challenge, built up his edifice of lies, an ingenuity, however, that did not save him from fatal inconsistencies; and, secondly, for the detective skill with which Mr. Carter and Mr. Pollard have exposed the inconsistency and the lying. Shepherd comes out of it with a brighter reputation than the original Enquiry allowed him, Wise as the unconscionable liar that the Enquiry could not call him."
Times [London] Lit Sup p698 D 11 '48 950w

CARTER, RUSSELL GORDON. Teen-age animal stories; il. by Richard Osborne. 252p $2.50 Lantern press (N Y)

Animals, Legends and stories of 49-8921

"Adventure stories of many types of animals, ranging from dogs to bears and leopards." Library J

"Good stories, without the sentimentality only too characteristic of most animal stories."
+ Kirkus 17:179 Ap 1 '49 120w

"Recommended." M. A. Webb
+ Library J 74:962 Je 15 '49 40w

" 'Just an Old Horse' has a little heart break as well as being a grand horse story." S. M. N.
+ Springf'd Republican p8C My 15 '49 100w

CARVETH, LYSLE. Moro boy; il. by Anne Vaughan. 149p $2.50 Longmans 49-9741

The story of an eight-year-old boy, lost in the jungle on the island of Mindanao in the Philippines.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun Ag 20 '49 90w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:418 S '49 90w

"The search for the lost tribe of his new friend, the over-emotional attitude towards the older boy, the very adult understanding he shows for the new friend's strange behavior and his logical rationalizing of the boy's beliefs and customs, all seem unconvincing in any eight-year old. For this age group, the handling of a culture remote from our own should be simpler."
— Kirkus 17:301 Je 15 '49 140w

"Story is told clearly and simply. . . Recommended." Anne Izard
+ Library J 74:1105 Ag '49 70w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid
Library J 74:1537 O 15 '49 140w

"The pictures are very good indeed. The savages are not prettified, and the jungle scenes are fascinating. Good as it is, such a book may not appeal to boys of the same age as the hero, who is eight. With its many strange names and words, and its eerie background, it is more suitable for those over ten who are good readers, and for any one who cares for a sympathetic, unusual tale of jungle life in the Philippines." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ag 7 '49 270w

"The author knows much about the habits and superstitions of the primitive people on Mindanao, and this knowledge, generously shared, makes up, at least in part, for an awkward story and unreal characters. Alug, for instance, is extremely precocious." Marjorie Fisher
— + N Y Times p26 Ag 21 '49 200w

"When an author uses for background a combination of strange surroundings, the difficulties and dangers of deep jungle trails, and the things that can oppose a small boy in dealing with these obstacles, a successful book is fairly sure to be the result. This story is satisfying in many ways." M. C. Dodd
+ Sat R of Lit 32:44 N 12 '49 180w

School & Society 69:455 Je 25 '49 20w

CARY, JOYCE. To be a pilgrim. 343p $3 Harper 49-8491

A retired English lawyer is the narrator. Tom Wilcher is taken by Ann, his plain young doctor niece to the family's country house, where she plans to attend him in his last years. A nephew arrives and takes over the farm and marries Ann. The stories of the present and the past intermingle as Tom Wilcher relives his life in memory, and proves to Ann and her husband that he is not so crazy as the family consider him.

Booklist 45:295 My 1 '49

"It is refreshing to find, in Joyce Cary, an English novelist who adheres to the craftsmanship of an earlier age, and by his 'solicitude for words' brings to his work a literary flavor which has been all too rare in contemporary fiction." M. W. Stoer
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 My 19 '49 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '49

Reviewed by George Miles
Commonweal 50:275 Je 24 '49 550w

"A faithful portrayal of character and situation which provokes little sympathy, provides little action."
Kirkus 17:68 F 1 '49 180w

"Cary, a master of understatement and underplay, again creates absurd characters and situations with warmth and accuracy. Highly recommended—to discriminating readers." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 74:662 Ap 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 168:618 My 28 '49 1200w

"Getting inside the mind of tormented, senile Tom Wilcher does not seem so remarkable a feat as making credible the deceptively ingenuous, candid inner workings of Sara Monday, his devout, yielding, thoroughly female and amorally light-fingered cook-housekeeper, who took the stage in Herself Surprised. . . Nevertheless To Be a Pilgrim is a shrewd and penetrating as well as highly entertaining novel." A. L. Goodman

+ — New Repub 120:21 My 23 '49 1100w

Reviewed by G. W. Stonier
New Statesman & Nation 36:551 D 18 '48 380w

" 'To Be a Pilgrim,' behind its close-meshed and well told story, has its own immortal longings, and there is a fine edge of irony in the fact that Mr. Cary chooses to present them through the perceptions of a foolish old man who, to deal plainly, is not in his perfect mind." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ap 17 '49 850w

"Drawing on his own unconcious memory, Mr. Cary touches the reader's. His work is full of these moments of personal recognition, which will make you feel not the usual 'I've read this before,' but the rare 'I've thought this before.' . . Mr. Cary is incapable of plot or profundity. Instead, he has actuality like Defoe, humor and energy like Dickens, hand-made prose and improvisation like both these great writers. After your few hours with Tom Wilcher's memories. life won't look very different, but you will probably see it more clearly, and like it better—that is, you will have read a classic. In this, his best, because it is his most serious book to date, Mr. Cary has also made a remarkable study of pre-1914 English politics and Protestantism. They don't interest you? That's how I felt. But they will." G. D. Painter

+ N Y Times p4 Ap 17 '49 850w

"Mr. Cary weaves some more of his spidery, almost neoclassic prose around a few quietly decadent English gentlefolk. . . His exploration of the vagaries of an elderly and sick mind is a minor tour de force."

New Yorker 25:104 Ap 16 '49 160w

"When the reader has become used to the sudden alternations of past and present, the story has a strange and compelling fascination; for the specter of death looms on every page, and one by one the once loved or hated figures are sent to their graves through the memory of a man who stands trembling on the brink of his own. These shadows return vividly to life like the characters of a play, for Joyce Cary has above his other gifts as a novelist the ability to bring men and women and children to reality." Harrison Smith

+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 Ap 30 '49 700w

"Only an English novelist, or an Irish writer with an Oxford background such as Joyce Cary has, could have written a novel possessed of the humane and special charm invested in 'To Be A Pilgrim'. To say that it is completely enchanting is not praise enough and no brief criticism can give a fair measure of the superb manner in which the author has transmuted the pages of his book into reality. To read is to accept participation in the lives of the men and women of the novel, and to experience extraordinary relish in the development or disintegration of their characters." L. S. Munn

+ Springf'd Republican p5D Je 5 '49 600w

"While not so lively or lightly spun as its predecessor, Herself Surprised, To Be a Pilgrim has a vibrant life. Together, the two novels form part of a first-rate trilogy covering 20th-Century English manners & morals in a half-serious, half-picaresque vein."

Time 53:116 Ap 18 '49 500w

Reviewed by Orville Prescott
Yale R n s 38:765 summer '49 700w

CARY, MAX, ed. See Oxford classical dictionary

CARY, WILLIAM HARRIS. Poland struggles forward. 192p il $3 Greenberg

943.8 Poland. Reconstruction (1939-)—Poland 49-1252

Observations on the social and economic conditions of post-war Poland by an American relief worker who spent several months in Poland in 1947.

Booklist 45:292 My 1 '49

"In this well written and well illustrated volume Mr. Cary who visited Poland in 1947, tells us, without sufficiently realizing it, two entirely different stories. One of them is deeply moving and correctly presented with a great deal of human understanding and sympathy: it is the story of the Polish people, equally heroic in their resistance against the Germans during more than five years of occupation and in their present effort of post-war reconstruction. . . Unfortunately, another chapter, the longest one, summarizes under the title, 'Where the Government Stands,' Mr. Cary's other story: a piece of misleading propaganda in favor of the Russian imposed Communist regime, an attitude only too evident in many other pages of the book." Oscar Halecki

+ — Cath World 169:235 Je '49 500w

"My own observations in Poland brought me to conclusions almost the opposite of Cary's. He apparently did not talk to any of the critics that any regime has and that many observers have found in postwar Poland; or else he discounted what they told him because their justified complaints did not fit the jigsaw that naively or insidiously, he wanted to construct. Either way, the result reads like a lawyer's argument on one side of the court battle. Especially if the West is darkly conspiring to misrepresent Poland, as Cary believes, a case can be made for the presentation of the position of the Communist-led government of Poland. The reader should know that this book is just that, and not the objective account it superficially appears to be." Robert Root

Christian Century 66:683 Je 1 '49 650w

Foreign Affairs 27:688 Jl '49 20w

Kirkus 17:73 F 1 '49 160w

"These first-hand impressions are sometimes naive, sometimes quite interesting. They should however be welcomed by fair-minded Americans who desire some corrective for the too abundant totally condemnatory reports of the new Poland which we have received." D. H.

San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 1 '49 110w

"A correspondent for Tass, the Russian news agency, could scarcely have written a more glowing eulogy of contemporary Poland. . . One might wish that the picture presented in this volume were as convincing as it is appealing." Donald Derby

Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 3 '49 390w

CASEY, ROBERT JOSEPH. Black hills and their incredible characters; a chronicle and a guide. 383p il $5 Bobbs

978.3 Black Hills, South Dakota 49-8519

This volume deals with the Black Hills "a mountainous region partly in northeastern Wyoming, but principally in South Dakota." Combining history and guidebook information the author relates innumerable anecdotes of many famous or notorious persons—Custer, Wild Bill Hickock, Calamity Jane, etc. describes the present and past of boom towns and the scenic beauty of the Bad Lands. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:310 My 15 '49

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Ap 21 '49 500w

Nation 168:717 Je 25 '49 50w

"It is difficult to think of anything that one might want to know about the country which is not to be found in the book. . . The chapters the author frankly calls 'information pieces,' the highway logs and even the few statistics are so skillfully trimmed to essentials and so deftly placed that they never seriously impede the flow of the story." J. K. Howard

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ap 24 '49 1200w

"In episodic, anecdotic, sometimes guidebook fashion; Mr. Casey describes the natural and unnatural wonders of time and place, the play of incredible characters in an incredible region. He writes not only of the man who dug gold, but also of the gambler who fleeced him, the road agent who robbed him, the Indian who lifted his scalp. The only thing Mr. Casey omits is the man who led a quiet life." Horace Reynolds

CASEY, R. J.—Continued

+ N Y Times p17 Je 26 '49 650w

"Robert Casey, as journalist, war correspondent and author, has attracted a considerable following that should be enlarged with the circulation of this, his latest book." L. D. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Je 19 '49 350w

Sat R of Lit 32:48 My 7 '49 140w

CASHMAN, ROBERT. Finances of a church. 159p $2 Harper

254 Church finance 49-8144

"The author has for more than 25 years been business manager of Chicago Theological Seminary and has been studying and teaching the business management of churches. Here he considers all phases of church finance—budgets, campaigns, accounting, risks and losses, debts, pensions, endowments—and the functions of trustees, women's ogranizations and other groups in relation to a church's solvency and property." Christian Century

Booklist 45:290 My 1 '49

"Those who have this volume and Cashman's earlier one, The Business Administration of a Church, will have a pretty complete library on this aspect of the church." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 66:466 Ap 13 '49 210w

Reviewed by M. C. Westphal

+ Crozer Q 26:283 Jl '49 180w

"The minister and his laymen who are concerned with the finances of the local church will find this a very valuable handbook. . . If a copy could be placed in the hands of every member of the Boards of Trustees of our churches it should help to make the business side of church life more effective."

+ Kirkus 17:140 Mr 15 '49 70w

CASSATT, MARY. Graphic work; a catalogue raisonné, by Adelyn D. Breeskin. 91p 101pl $30 Bittner, H.

769.2 48-8858

"Rewarding, if almost reverently written, discussions of the life, the art, and the techniques of Mary Cassatt precede the main portion of this book. Miss Cassatt was born at Philadelphia in 1845 but spent most of her life on the Continent, particularly in France. There, she cast off the shackles of conservative tradition and contemporary taste to become the only American member of the French Impressionist group, the most advanced American artist of her day. This unique and forceful person dedicated her whole life to the unfolding of a great natural talent which she willingly subjected to the lessons and influences of Degas and others. . . In the larger part of the book, the Catalogue Raisonné, all of Mary Cassatt's 220 prints—including etchings, dry points, soft-grounds, aquatints, lithographs, and color prints—are reproduced, and each is described in its various states." U S Quarterly Bkl

"A useful and beautiful volume, a tribute to the talent of a great American artist."

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 N 10 '49 210w

"Skimp somewhere else if you must; this volume should be in any art library." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 74:61 Ja 1 '49 130w

"For all who love Impressionist painting, and are therefore anxious to know everything possible about the personalities involved, the book is full of interest."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p150 Mr 5 '49 1100w

"The thoroughness of the catalog of prints and the quality of the production of the whole book will make it a work of rare attractiveness to those concerned with American art or with the collecting of fine prints."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:408 D '48 240w

CASSIRER, ERNST, and others, eds. Renaissance philosophy of man [prepared under the general editorship of Helmut Kuhn]. 405p $5 Univ. of Chicago press

189 Philosophy, Renaissance 48-9358

"The purpose of this volume is to acquaint the student of philosophy with certain major thinkers of the early Italian Renaissance through English translations of some of their more important works." (Pref) The book consists of translations from the selected writings of Francesco Petrarca, Lorenzo Valla, Marsilio Ficino, Giovanni Pico della Mirandola, Pietro Pomponazzi, and Juan Luis Vives. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:226 Mr 1 '49

Christian Century 66:368 Mr 23 '49 490w

Current Hist 16:36 Ja '49 30w

"This volume will unquestionably be of great help in courses in the history of philosophy. It is strongly to be hoped that it will also stimulate many further translations and studies of other phases of Renaissance philosophy." Alan Gewirth

+ Ethics 60:75 O '49 550w

"Marked by an uncompromising ideal of scholarship and by an unfaltering execution of design. . . The material selected for translation is of central importance historically and of intrinsic worth and interest. The translations themselves are faithful and vigorous." A. R. Caponigri

+ N Y Times p21 F 6 '49 340w

School & Society 69:271 Ap 9 '49 60w

CASSON, HUGH MAXWELL. Introduction to Victorian architecture. 96p il $2.50 Pellegrini & Cudahy

724.142 Architecture—England 49-751

A brief outline of architecture in Victorian England, told with the social history of the times as background. Copiously illustrated. No index.

"Recommended as background material for those who like to know the setting of history." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 74:198 F 1 '49 70w

Manchester Guardian p3 Je 4 '48 150w

CASTLE, MRS MARIAN (JOHNSON). Golden fury. 329p $3 Morrow

49-7996

The scene is Colorado and its boom towns at the turn of the century. The heroine is the beautiful daughter of a fanatic Gospel spreader, who ran away from her squalid home to the only kind friend she had—a prostitute. Thereafter the story of Caroline is traced thru two unsuccessful marriages until she finds solace in a third.

Booklist 45:281 Ap 15 '49

"Feminine fare of Colorado in the days of mining strikes and a woman's revolt, this has more vigorous characters, more drama than the earlier Deborah."

+ Kirkus 17:37 Ja 15 '49 160w

"Here are entertainment, suspense and romance in a light, readable novel. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 74:376 Mr 1 '49 80w

"An interesting, likeable and entertaining novel." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 29 '49 450w

"Miss Castle's writing is brisk and fluent and I do not think that anyone will call this a slow-moving story. She has attempted to catch the spirit of those pioneer years and, to some extent, she has succeeded. But oh, that running around through towns and fortunes and husbands and fears has left me in a crumpled heap!" N. G. Chaikin

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:33 Ap 2 '49 500w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 24 '49 140w

Wis Lib Bul 45:88 My '49

CATHER, WILLA SIBERT. On writing; critical studies on writing as an art; with a foreword by Stephen Tennant. 126p $2.25 Knopf

814 Authorship. Literature—History and criticism 49-10534

Thirteen essays and letters, all of which have been previously published. They present discussions of the author's own writings or criticisms of the work of other authors.

Reviewed by Harvey Breit
Atlantic 184:79 O '49 1200w

Booklist 46:61 O 15 '49

"Everything in this book is valuable, with the possible exception of Mr. Stephen Tennant's foreword, which reads rather turgidly beside Miss Cather's pared-down clarity. Note especially her creative criticism of Sarah Orne Jewett, Stephen Crane and Katherine Mansfield, and her dissection of Defoe. Four letters, two of them addressed to The Commonweal, will delight those of Willa Cather's readers who have 'always wanted to know' how her most famous novels came to be written." Vivian Mercier
+ Commonweal 51:43 O 21 '49 500w

"They offer personal sidelights, a balancing of literary values, a perspective on her early works and those of her later years and a meditative commentary on the art of fiction. . . A collection of definite critical interest and appeal."
+ Kirkus 17:413 Ag 1 '49 90w

"Willa Cather's criticism is the record of an artistic sensibility that knew perfectly its own direction and believed in it thoroughly, which is a phenomenon that always commands respect. Like her novels, too, her criticism has an impeccable distinction of style—it is a criticism démeublé, uncluttered by jargon or pedantry, uncontaminated by extraneous 'ideas.' . . Its limitations are obvious, but its central virtue—its complete truth to the range and character of its creator's talent—is rare, and these little pieces speak with an authority out of all proportion to their fewness and the narrowness of the ground they cover." H. N. Doughty
+ Nation 169:304 S 24 '49 600w

New Repub 121:20 N 7 '49 140w

"In [this book the author] is saying the most interesting, most profound things about the art of writing, and the life of art, that have been said in our time certainly, and she does it with immense grace and dignity, treating her subject, no matter who or what, with respect and the grand courtesy of true attention. . . This sort of writing is not apt to be too common in the immediate future, and it has never been fashionable in our time. It is only something no reader interested in Miss Cather's topic should miss, for his own pleasure. Prefaces and forewords can sometimes be a burden, if not an actual impertinence, but Stephen Tennant's essay belongs to the book." K. A. Porter
| N Y Times p1 S 25 '49 1050w

"The subtitle given this volume is 'Critical Studies on Writing as an Art,' but that is rather pretentious for the very slim pickings included in its hundred and twenty-six pages. . . Those, however, do constitute a clear formulation of Miss Cather's literary ideals, which, though pure, are a little narrow. In defining the art of fiction as one of nuance and selection, she seems to condemn completely both naturalism and social criticism."
+ — New Yorker 25:127 O 22 '49 120w

"A slender but excellent collection. . . But the best explication of Miss Cather's attitude towards writing is, after all, to be found in the novels themselves, and one can only hope that her publishers will follow up their interest in her critical observations by making such works as 'A Lost Lady' and 'The Professor's House' again available in print. It would be a splendid tribute." N. H. Pearson
+ Sat R of Lit 32:37 O 8 '49 1000w

CATHOLIC dictionary (The Catholic encyclopaedic dictionary) ed. by Donald Attwater. 2d ed rev 552p $5 Macmillan

282.03 Roman Catholic church—Dictionaries and encyclopedias 49-7855

"The new edition of this standard reference work runs to 550 pages; its explanations, in clear readable type, are necessarily brief and reflect the editor's well-known interest in the Liturgy and the Eastern Churches. Among others, the sections on the Roman Calendar, the list of Popes and 'Ecclesiastical Titles and Modes of Address' have been brought up to date." Commonweal

Booklist 45:282 Ap 15 '49

"Its 552 double-column pages contain a vast amount of data concerning the organization practices and lore of the Roman Catholic Church, as well as its principal doctrines. Doctrinal topics, are, of necessity, treated very briefly. The Catholic Encyclopedia is more satisfactory as a book of reference for those who have access to its many volumes. But the dictionary has its value." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:403 Mr 30 '49 80w

Commonweal 49:622 Ap 1 '49 60w

N Y Times p13 Mr 13 '49 140w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 32:26 Jl 2 '49 180w

Springf'd Republican p9C Mr 20 '49 240w

CATHOLIC LIBRARY ASSOCIATION. Books for Catholic colleges. See Grace, Sister M.

CATLIN, GEORGE EDWARD GORDON, and others, comps. Above all nations; an anthology [ed. for American readers with additional material from German and American sources, by Devere Allen]. 189p $2 Harper

940.548 World war, 1939-1945—Moral aspects 49-8572

"This reverently selected anthology of 203 incidents and utterances arising out of World War II is an endorsement and an elaboration of Nurse Cavell's simple saying ['patriotism is not enough']." (N Y Times) "These incidents are not meant to show comrades-at-arms aiding one another in times of extremity, or civilians of any one town or country bolstering each other in a common emergency. Here, the people involved in each case are not only of different nationalities, but they are, supposedly, enemies. This anthology of their deeds consists of newspaper reports, letters, and eyewitness stories, all bearing the ring of authenticity and describing incidents which took place on battle fronts all over the world during the last war, as well as experiences in occupied territory, in prison camps, in jungle and desert, in civilian life." (Christian Science Monitor)

Chicago Sun p8X My 1 '49 50w

Christian Century 66:1107 S 21 '49 90w

Reviewed by M. W. Stoer
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 14 '49 700w

"While the compilers exhibit their pacifist 'slant,' the stories are usable by all Christians for illustrative purposes."
Kirkus 17:293 Je 15 '49 120w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson
N Y Times p18 My 8 '49 380w

CAUDILL, REBECCA (MRS JAMES STERLING AYARS). Schoolhouse in the woods; pictures by Decie Merwin. 120p $2 Winston 49-11388

An easy-reading book telling the story of school days in a one-room school in the Kentucky mountains of forty years ago.

Booklist 46:161 Ja 1 '50

"People have sung about the little red schoolhouse but no one has written of it more lovingly than Rebecca Caudill. Perhaps the fact that the author herself was the youngest of nine, lived in Kentucky, and was blessed with the same kind of mother and father, is responsible for the special qualities in this book. . . [It] has the qualities that we found in Wilder's 'Little House in the Big Woods.' The illustrations are exactly right and make it a special book for any special occasion." Lucile Pannell

CAUDILL, REBECCA—Continued
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 N 13 '49 200w

"The author gives real character to each child in a large family as it prepares with eager anticipation for Monday morning. . . Children just beginning school will love Bonnie and share her feelings in this charming little book with its attractive drawings." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:526 N '49 90w

Reviewed by F. M. Hensey
Library J 74:1917 D 15 '49 80w

"The author here shows a special talent for imaginative treatment of everyday material for younger children. Miss Merwin's nostalgic pictures are perfect for it, and the whole an attractive piece of book making." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 22 '50 140w

CAUDILL, REBECCA (MRS JAMES STERLING AYARS). Tree of freedom; il. by Dorothy Bayley Morse. 279p $2.50 Viking 49-8429

Story for ages twelve and over, about an American pioneer family in 1780. The Venables moved from Carolina to Kentucky only to find that their troubles had not ceased. They had all of the hardships of the frontier to contend with before they found a measure of peace. The heroine is thirteen-year-old Stephanie.

"Although the action is rather slow, this is a fine story of homesteading, with unusual values in character study, family relationships, and ideals of freedom."
+ Booklist 45:298 My 1 '49
Chicago Sun Ap 30 '49 180w

"That rare thing, an original and convincing pioneer story." H. F. Griswold
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 28 '49 300w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 25:283 Jl '49 40w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:292 Jl '49 140w
Kirkus 17:151 Mr 15 '49 150w

"Lack of romance will limit interest to ten-to-fourteen-year-olds. Highly recommended for historical and ethical values." Clara Adams
+ Library J 74:827 My 15 '49 80w

"In the mass of historical fiction for young readers this story of pioneers in Kentucky shines out with rare individuality and with a moving beauty. The writer has become so imaginatively a part of her period that the extraordinary details carefully collected, the odd phrases, the old-time language, flow together in a truly living stream. She weaves together so many threads of character, takes us so deeply into the feeling of the family she writes about that we become absorbed in their safety and in the safety, too, of the little apple-tree shoot treasured by the heroine." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 My 8 '49 370w

"It is doubtful that Stephanie was quite as far-seeing about the issues of the Revolution as the author makes her. But otherwise the story is sound, rich in perspective, a rewarding one for thoughtful readers of 12 and up." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p30 My 8 '49 200w
New Yorker 25:173 D 3 '49 70w

"This is a story that should have a long and prosperous career. . . [It] is the story of the Venable family's first year in the wilderness, and it is a convincing, dramatic story. . . There is action and near tragedy in the chronicle and there is, too, humor and a warm sense of family loyalty."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 My 21 '49 180w
Springf'd Republican p7B Jl 31 '49 150w
Wis Lib Bul 45:90 My '49

CAVAN, MRS RUTH (SHONLE). Criminology. 747p il $4.25 Crowell
364 Crime and criminals—United States. Criminal psychology 48-9267

"A twofold objective served as a guide in the writing of this book for college students. The first purpose has been to present a sociological analysis of delinquent and criminal behavior. In this phase of the text the widely different types of criminals, the manifold factors involved in their development, and, as a corollary, promising methods of crime prevention all receive attention. The second aim has been to provide a detailed description and critical evaluation of law-enforcement agencies and their methods of dealing with criminals. For each of these two phases conclusive factual evidence, drawn from earlier standard studies and from recent research contributions, both based on contemporary conditions in the United States, is cited for all aspects of the subject." (Pref) Selected bibliography. Index.

"In at least two ways this textbook should appeal to students of the subject. First, the material is presented according to a logical, consistent plan whose various parts reveal the critical consideration given them in their proportional treatment. And second, whereas in many texts the responsibility for preventing criminal behavior appears to be left ultimately with that intangible, 'the people,' Dr. Cavan gives the student a sense of direction in his personal participation and in community cooperation. There are gaps which may have been necessitated by the limitations of space. Such a one is the absence of an adequate sociological explanation of the meaning of law." John Lobb
+ — Am Soc R 14:178 F '49 420w

"Cavan's criminology text is a refreshing thing to read. . . The author does what every author venturing to write a new text should do—namely, justify its publication by the contents. . . Cavan's book has enough honest and painstaking effort to incorporate what is new into what is well known to justify the whole endeavor. In reading this text one does not get the impression one gets from some others—that the author did not have the time and did not consider the writing of the text sufficiently important to find the time to do a thorough job of integration or revision. . . Otherwise also the book is very satisfactory. It is up to date in its statistical information and utilizes the most recent publications in the field." P. P. Lejins
+ Ann Am Acad 263:261 My '49 480w

Reviewed by M. G. Caldwell
Social Forces 28:214 D '49 900w

CAVAN, MRS RUTH (SHONLE), and others. Personal adjustment in old age. 204p $2.95 Science research
301 Old age. Psychology, Applied 49-4408

"The purpose of this volume is three-fold: (1) to define and to analyse the nature, patterns, and problems of personal adjustment to ageing; (2) to present the available facts about old age derived from census data and from a special survey of 2,988 older persons made by the authors; and (3) to describe two instruments for measuring adjustment in later maturity, one an Inventory of Activities and the other an Index of Attitudes." (Pref) Index.

Am Soc R 14:826 D '49 100w
Christian Century 66:942 Ag 10 '49 280w

"This report is recommended for serious consideration by all persons interested in, or engaged in work with, older people. They will find in it scientific confirmation of many conclusions from their own experience. But more important still, they also will find a stimulating development of research methodology which holds promise of more comprehensive study of personal adjustment to old age—something which everyone must understand more fully if, with the numbers of older people increasing, the tone of our future community life is to be set by healthy, active, undefeated members of society." Ollie Randall

+ Survey 85:394 Jl '49 600w

CAVANNA, BETTY. Paintbox summer; with decorations by Peter Hunt. 191p $2.50 Presbyterian bd.

49-8509

Kate Vale had developed an inferiority complex because she had a more popular sister. In a summer spent in Provincetown as one of Peter Hunt's apprentices she overcame her shyness. Her friendships with a group of gay, normal young people also brought her romance.

Booklist 45:264; 284 Ap 1 '49; Ap 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun My 7 '49 190w

"It's lively, it's vivid, it's real."

+ Kirkus 17:152 Mr 15 '49 190w

"More than reasonable story of a girl's first love treated with a sure, sincere touch minus the underscoring of situations which a less competent author would have made sensational. Story flows smoothly and points up with present-day understanding some of the problems girls of seventeen face. Girls will love it." K. H. McAlarney

+ Library J 74:668 Ap 15 '49 80w

"Kate can analyze herself a bit too well for her age perhaps; but, on the whole, she is real, a nice mixture of dreams, ambition and sentimentality, and a wavering talent which Peter Hunt develops into a certain creative ability. The Provincetown background is sketchy but charming; the moral code is high; the other characters are alive. This is no masterpiece, but it is easy to see why girls over twelve 'adore' this writer. With Mr. Hunt's help, the book making is distinguished, and it hints gayly at the work Kate did for him." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 My 8 '49 250w

"The author knows how to make her characters express the true, live intensity of being 17 and how to state in simple terms the experiences that bring maturity and wisdom." V. H. Mathews

+ N Y Times p22 My 15 '49 230w

"The story develops naturally and with unflagging interest. It has a touch of humor and it is completely honest in its human relationships. It is a good choice for any girl who is beginning to think of the years ahead. Peter Hunt's decorations and cover-jacket make this a charming looking book." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 Ag 13 '49 200w

CAVE, CHARLES JOHN PHILIP. Roof bosses in medieval churches; an aspect of Gothic sculpture; il. with telephotographs. 235p $9.50 Macmillan

721.563 Sculpture, Gothic [49-3449]

"A study of roof bosses provides an insight into a fascinating aspect of Gothic architecture. Mr. Cave has made an especial study of bosses and his treatment, illustrated as it is by more than three hundred photographs, is the first general survey of its kind to be published. Though the height of roof bosses above the ground has made access and study quite difficult, it has often preserved them from destruction, restoration, hard wear, and ignorant defacement which have been the lot of many surviving works of art." Churchman

"Both Mr. Cave's splendid photographs and his text throw much light on these often hidden sculptures that remain as they left the hand of the carvers of centuries ago." W. P. Sears

+ Churchman 163:15 Je 15 '49 130w

"The plates of the book are a revelation of a virgin wealth of English sculpture that, by its position, has survived accident and rage of the iconoclast under which so much of our mediaeval sculpture has fallen." J. B.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 My 3 '49 200w

"This highly specialised study has a much more general appeal than might be supposed. The roof bosses are pretty things in themselves, some of them are indeed extremely beautiful, but it is their frequently curious subject matter which is so exciting. . . The scholarly text is a model of clarity and exactness without pedantry, and the book should delight all those who take pleasure in this country's Gothic art and architecture."

+ New Statesman & Nation 37:512 My 14 '49 240w

"A book of rich and deep comment on medieval life and art. . . Contemplation of the book brings a strong reminder of the richness of experience and technique in the English craftsman of the Middle Ages. Further, it illustrates one cardinal medieval virtue—in truth a crystallization of a Christian virtue—that of doing exquisite, finished and complete work even though it might never be seen by any eye but that of God."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p214 Ap 2 '49 850w

CECIL, LORD DAVID. Poets and story-tellers; a book of critical essays. 201p $4 Macmillan

820.4 English literature—History and criticism 49-7812

"Collected in this volume are lectures, essays and radio talks on a variety of writers from Shakespeare's time to our own." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) Contents: "Antony and Cleopatra"; John Webster; Thomas Gray; Fanny Burney; Jane Austen; Turgenev; "Adolphe"; Two twentieth-century novelists: Virginia Woolf and E. M. Forster.

Booklist 45:258 Ap 1 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '49

Manchester Guardian p3 F 25 '49 300w

"Lord David has written a delightful book. Of course he writes beautifully, thinks clearly, and owns a pair of sensitive ears that are glued to a well-filled head. Yet however familiar most of its virtues, 'Poets and Story-Tellers' is unique in that it is the most revealing of Cecil's books. No lurid secrets, or even coy sentiments, but a method, usually wrapped, muffiered, and gloved, comes to light." Joseph Kraft

+ Nation 168:367 Mr 26 '49 850w

Reviewed by D. A. Stauffer

New Repub 120:17 My 16 '49 1300w

Reviewed by Walter Allen

New Statesman & Nation 37:360 Ap 9 '49 1050w

"These brief studies, though they are less suited to the exercise of sustained analysis than the full-length biographies or extended criticisms which Lord David Cecil has previously written, nevertheless display to advantage the suppleness and delicate precision of a finely disciplined mind." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Mr 13 '49 850w

"Cecil can isolate and clarify ideas at once subtle and central without the pretentiousness which mars much modern criticism; with him wit is at ease, not in disease; he can defend a position without being fanatically insistent on its exclusive rightness. These are indispensable qualities in a teacher of literature. A critic might survive without them, or even glory in their absence, but he would thereby court the critic's final disaster: readerlessness." Carlos Baker

+ N Y Times p6 Mr 13 '49 650w

"Eight critical essays, by one of the most sensitive, as well as sensible, literary critics of our day, who follows faithfully the dictum of Hazlitt that 'genuine criticism should . . . reflect the colours, the light and shade, the soul and body of a work. . .' "

+ New Yorker 25:102 Mr 12 '49 80w

"Lord David Cecil is probably the best surviving exponent of a kind of critical writing that has thriven singularly well in England. He is the cultivated man who has enough leisure to read many books and many authors and enough interest to write about them, but whose reading skills include no special critical apparatus, no fulfilled scholarly aptitude. In consequence, his critical observations are usually limited to broad and often hackneyed generalities about plot and character, and sometimes to unanalysed but serviceable perceptions of style. Some such writers compensate for their unoriginal offerings in criticism by delighting their readers with good prose . . . but Lord Cecil's essays are less distinguished in this respect than those of several of his more gifted predecessors." H. C.

CECIL, L. D.—Continued
— + Poetry 74:365 S '49 390w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 4 '49 330w

Reviewed by H. M. Jones
Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ap 16 '49 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p124 F 19 '49 700w

CENTERS, RICHARD. Psychology of social classes; a study of class consciousness. (Studies in public opinion) 244p $3.50 Princeton univ. press
323.3 Class distinction 49-1400

"Analysis and criticism of various theories on class consciousness in America, emphasizing that of the interest group of class structure. The author (of Rutgers University), also presents the results of polls showing percentages in the several strata—white collar, manual labor —and their attitudes toward economic and political questions. Class cleavage is shown to exist, particularly through the spearhead of labor." Current Hist

"This book is an object lesson in the pitfalls of approaching matters of social structure from the point of view of the individual alone. One simply cannot obtain all the crucial data that way. This fault, glaring though it is, does not, however, rob the present work of great value to the sociologist. It is a mine of information concerning relationships among the various indices that the author has used." R. C. Angell
+ — Am J Soc 55:208 S '49 1150w

"Centers writes an absorbing story for serious readers."
+ Current Hist 16:230 Ap '49 80w

Reviewed by C. E. Noyes
Nation 169:233 S 3 '49 800w

Reviewed by R. S. Lynd
New Repub 121:17 Jl 25 '49 1400w

School & Society 69:271 Ap 9 '49 50w

"The technical specialist will be pleased to have Dr. Centers' detailed statement of techniques and procedures, including reproduction of the interview schedule. The general reader will be interested in the summary of major findings and conclusions with which the study closes, although he may wish to evaluate them in the light of the post-election criticisms of public opinion surveys."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:238 Je '49 260w

CERVANTES SAAVEDRA, MIGUEL DE. Ingenious gentleman, Don Quixote de La Mancha. 2pts 489;493-1043p $10 Viking 49-10215

"A new translation from the Spanish, with a critical text based upon the first editions of 1605 and 1615, and with variant readings, variorum notes, and an introduction by Samuel Putnam." (t.p.) Bibliography.

Booklist 46:47 O 1 '49

Reviewed by Northrop Frye
Canadian Forum 29:209 D '49 2150w

Reviewed by Francis Russell
Christian Science Monitor p15 O 20 '49 1050w

"Not even Robinson Smith, a sound scholar, could profit by the latest textual research, as Mr. Putnam has done. The present effort, then, is a relief and a joy to the reviewer, who has been forced to make his own fragmentary translations for the classroom. . . Hard to please and quarrelsome as I am in these matters, I can only report that Mr. Putnam's is a wonderful performance. The plasticity of Cervantes' dialogue, the hickory and beechwood of his narrative prose are here, and even the spaciousness. And most difficult of all, the strangely unstilted, easygoing ceremoniousness—not at all the same thing as affectation—is well rendered. True, I could argue about details with Mr. Putnam until I am elected President. I think, for example, that he has marred the lovely poetry of Sancho's lies about the celestial goats by translating encarnadas as 'flesh-colored.' . . But this and a dozen other examples do not seriously mar the beauty of Mr. Putnam's rendering." Ralph Bates
+ — Nation 169:378 O 15 '49 800w

New Repub 121:20 N 7 '49 230w

"Here at last, after a lapse of decades, is a fresh translation which makes available to all one of the greatest, one of the most entertaining and one of the wisest books ever written." B. D. Wolfe
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p21 S 25 '49 1400w

"Mr. Putnam brings home the stylistic problem by rendering caletre, accurately but inconsistently, with an Anglicism ('noddle') at one point and an Americanism ('noodle') at another. On the whole, despite a few ventures into vernacular, he resists the temptation to Americanize his material. He is too well aware of the object lesson presented by the cockney facetiousness of Motteux, whose translation is currently the most available. One reason why Mr. Putnam's should replace it is his feeling for Cervantes' dead-pan humor. Local color is rarely translatable, and archaism is frequently as obscure as the Cave of Montesinos. What comes through, more straightforwardly and impressively than ever, is the comprehensive and timeless laughter of an old soldier." Harry Levin
+ N Y Times p3 S 25 '49 1400w

"A new translation that is nothing less than magnificent. Now, for the first time, those whose knowledge of Cervantes' native tongue is too rudimentary to cope with his seventeenth-century Spanish will be able to appreciate the humor, intellectuality, and humanity that make 'Don Quixote,' like the plays of Shakespeare and the vision of Dante, one of the greatest achievements of the literary imagination." Hamilton Basso
+ New Yorker 25:81 O 1 '49 1550w

"Here at long, long last is an English version of the first modern novel that is worthy of the original, and the publication of Mr. Putnam's superb translation, a labor of love that lasted some sixteen years, ought to be the occasion for public rejoicing. One may say without hesitation that the present version meets with conspicuous success the translator's two tests of scholarly accuracy and of readability, and that Mr. Putnam has, in effect, given back to the people a book filled with humor and wisdom which they received as their own immediately upon its publication." Herschel Brickell
+ Sat R of Lit 32:8 S 24 '49 1350w

"Samuel Putnam, a Renaissance specialist who has done the best translation of Rabelais, has reversed Cervantes' vast tapestry into English without dropping more than a few stitches of detail and coloring. In Putnam's translation, Cervantes' style proves in English to be what it is in Spanish: one of the easiest, surest and most varied ever set to paper."
+ Time 54:76 O 3 '49 1250w

CHALMERS, HARVEY. Drums against Frontenac. 440p maps $3 Smith, Richard R.
49-50078

A historical novel about the French and Indian war, which reaches a climax in the capture of Fort Frontenac by the British Colonel Bradstreet and his band of Regulars and colonial troops. Bibliography.

"Many of the characters have a habit of talking like textbooks or gazetteers, and the love interest is lethal. . . Harvey Chalmers, who knows his Mohawk Valley, has gone doggedly after the facts, but he makes them more than a mere record of physical exhaustion and savagery and sudden death. The full-length portrait of that raw-boned, not-so-raw-minded Britisher, Colonel Bradstreet, comes convincingly through the general hullabaloo, and the author's intentions throughout are as sincere as they are naive." Roger Pippett

N Y Times p16 D 18 '49 290w

Reviewed by R. F. Henchey
Springf'd Republican p17A Ja 8 '50 110w

CHAMBERLAIN, GEORGE AGNEW. Midnight boy. 258p $2.75 Bobbs
49-10044

A novel scened in the pine barrens of southern New Jersey. A mysterious, reputedly haunted house at Tolyer Knoll is the home of the white boy Mark, his dog Buck, and the indomitable little middle-aged Negress, Fortune's Hope Jones. The theme is the solving of an old murder and the mystery of Mark's parentage.

Booklist 46:13 S 1 '49

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun S 2 '49 110w

"A story that mixes its mystery with humor."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 28 '49 240w

"Haunted house at Tolyer Knoll and illegal deer killing add sufficient chills to a plot which sustains interest, yet never completely eludes the melodramatic. Novel's rewarding parts are the tender, almost loving characterization of Buck, Mark's collie dog; exquisite descriptions of south Jersey countryside and genuinely convincing weird and eerie atmosphere of Tolyer Knoll. Should be popular. Recommended." E. P. Nichols
+ — Library J 74:1093 Ag '49 110w

"Reveals Mr. Chamberlain's craftsmanship at its best. He keeps out of his narrative everything that does not aid in the unfolding of the tale. He knows how to contrive the big scenes and to milk them for what they are worth. He knows how to blend mystery, suspense, frustrated love, adolescent adventure and hard action. . . The objection, however, is that the author never lets you forget that it is all happening between book covers. His tale has all the trappings of life but none of the breath." Arthur Leonard
+ — N Y Times p20 Ag 7 '49 290w

CHAMBERLAIN, GEORGE AGNEW. Overcoat meeting. 185p $2.50 Barnes, A.S.
49-7955

"Two young people, Jeddo, slow-talking and wise beyond his few years, and impetuous, hoydenish 'Mit,' are devoted to one horse, Spring Hanover, and though their respective families are enjoying a feud they manage an interesting friendship which, as any reader can sense is headed for something lasting." Springf'd Republican

Booklist 45:264 Ap 1 '49

Kirkus 17:155 Mr 15 '49 90w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:737 My 1 '49 30w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 32:26 Jl 23 '49 180w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 24 '49 190w

CHAMBERS, RAYMOND WILSON. Thomas More. 416p il $4 Newman press, Westminster, Md.

B or 92 More, Sir Thomas, Saint

A biography of Sir Thomas More, originally published in England in 1935 (Book Review Digest 1935). Bibliographical note. Index.

"Its authority and beauty are a triumph of more than scholarship; a sympathetic understanding of More himself persuasively establishes points which scholarship could only argue." John Farrelly
+ New Repub 120:26 My 2 '49 1100w

"American readers will welcome the reappearance under new auspices, fourteen years after its first importation, of the classic work on Thomas More by the great English authority on the Tudor period. In the interval, scholarship has challenged details of the late Professor Chambers' analysis, but the book has not been superseded, and will not be for a long time." M. M. Ahern
+ N Y Times p24 Je 19 '49 800w

CHAMBRUN, CLARA (LONGWORTH) comtesse de. Shadows lengthen; the story of my life. 296p il $5 Scribner

B or 92 49-10819

Continues the autobiography begun in Shadows Like Myself (Book Review Digest 1936). In this volume the years 1935 to the present are covered. The author, American-born wife of Count de Chambrun, spent the war years in France, where she took charge of the American Library in Paris, while her husband was director of the American Hospital at Neuilly. No index.

"Madame de Chambrun writes as an arch conservative, a woman of means and social position, member of the Longworth family of Cincinnati, wife of a lineal descendant of Lafayette, mother-in-law of the daughter of Pierre Laval. The more personal part of her narrative relates further amusing incidents in her long pursuit of Shakespearean lore and her work for drama, and the flittings and social activities of privileged beings in a world carelessly approaching a great war." W. K. Rugg
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 O 4 '49 420w

"On the whole, interesting reading which pictures the times intimately and which gives a little known angle."
+ Kirkus 17:387 Jl 15 '49 190w

"Her work as librarian of the American Library in Paris during the occupation will be of interest to librarians. A nostalgic, personalized account of political and social events with limited appeal." H. R. Forbes
Library J 74:1193 S 1 '49 90w

Reviewed by Harry Baehr
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 O 23 '49 850w

"Madame de Chambrun describes with wit, sympathy, bitterness, as the occasion demands, and always with technique, many of the cataclysmic events which touched her personally." Florence Crowther
+ N Y Times p22 O 16 '49 360w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 27 '49 270w

CHANCE, BRITTON, and others, eds. Electronic time measurements [prepared under the supervision of] Office of scientific res. and development, Nat. defense res. committee. (Mass. inst. of technology. Radiation laboratory. Radiation laboratory ser) 538p il $7 McGraw

621.38 Time measurements. Electronic apparatus and appliances 49-8589

"In this volume, the problems and techniques of measuring precisely very small intervals of time are considered. Methods invented before the development of radar are mentioned, but mainly the book deals with the special circuits and devices that were developed in the Radiation Laboratory and elsewhere during the intensive development of radar before and during World War II. However, the emphasis is not on military applications, but on methods that are more generally useful." (N Y New Tech Bks) Glossary. Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 74:129 Ja 15 '49 100w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:106 N '49

CHANCE, BRITTON, and others, eds. Waveforms [prepared under the supervision of] Office of scientific research and development, Nat. defense research committee. (Mass. inst. of technology. Radiation laboratory. Radiation laboratory ser) 785p il $10 McGraw 537.5 Radio waves. Radio circuits

49-7723

"This volume serves as a 'comprehensive survey of basic circuit techniques used in the generation and manipulation of voltage and currents by linear and nonlinear circuit elements.' It is intended to provide the designer of circuits and electronic devices with a knowledge of those techniques which have proved successful in the development of radar timing, and with a practical description of the characteristics, design problems and applications of a wide variety of circuits. The circuits are grouped according to function rather than type." (N Y New Tech Bks) Glossary. Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1668 N 15 '48 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:44 My '49

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:279 Je '49 320w

CHANDLER, RAYMOND. Little sister. 249p $2.50 Houghton
49-10873

Detective story.

"If one has to undergo an operation in a primitive area where there are no anesthetics, I can recommend no better substitute than a good thriller in general, and Mr. Chandler's The Little Sister in particular. The genre at its best is an efficacious annihilator of time . . . and Mr. Chandler's contribution is simply that he mutes time's clocks a little more than most." Harvey Breit
+ Atlantic 184:81 O '49 400w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun S 30 '49 550w

Kirkus 17:408 Ag 1 '49 80w

"Raymond Chandler is certainly far ahead of the others in the sophisticated wisecracks with which he punctuates this Hollywood saga of crime, drink and sex." Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 38:108 Jl 23 '49 160w

"This is one of Chandler's most ambitious mysteries, but not by any means one of his best. He's overextended himself this time with an elaborate and too pretentious prose style."
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 O 9 '49 220w

"Plot and characters are the stuff of any run-of-the-mill toughie. Chandler's treatment differs from the routine in his prose, which is still vigorous, clean, distinctive. It differs, too, in a tautly cryptic method of narration which lets you decide just who killed whom—but only by an extreme effort of will which you are not markedly inclined to make. But the great distinction dividing this from all other detective stories is its scathing hatred of the human race. The characters, aside from the little sister, are reasonably well-painted cardboard, brought to life only by the sheer force of their viciousness." Anthony Boucher
— + N Y Times p24 S 25 '49 450w

"Well put together and, as the detective himself remarks in the course of his narrative, about as restful as a split lip."
New Yorker 25:88 O 1 '49 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p24 O 9 '49 350w

"Remembering sadly that in a fiction review we are meant to be concerned with 'important' literature, we decide to exclude Chandler. But it is difficult to suppress a subversive thought that any man who can so effectively compel one to read his book, even though it is only about an improbable hardboiled Hollywood where sleeping men sprout ice-picks from the backs of their necks, must have a real literary quality." Robert Kee
+ Spec 183:122 Jl 22 '49 180w

Springf'd Republican p8C N 20 '49 180w

"With all its virtues, The Little Sister fails to take Chandler beyond the achievement of his first book. Moving over & over again in the same groove, even genuine talent can get to be a cliché. Shamus Marlowe is in real danger of becoming an old retainer, Chandler of becoming a gifted hack."
+ — Time 54:82 O 3 '49 700w

"Mr. Chandler handles an involved plot with accomplished dexterity, and his narrative moves briskly along, taking in its stride a bevy of skillfully sketched characters, who are practically without virtues of any kind and who dwell in a half-world of whisky and wisecracks, cynicism and sensuality, film-making and violence."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p533 Ag 19 '49 180w

CHANDOS, DANE, pseud. of PETER LILLEY and NIGEL STANSBURY-MILLETT. House in the sun. 240p $3 Putnam

917.2 Mexico—Social life and customs
49-11633

"In 'Village in the Sun' [Book Review Digest 1945] Mr. Chandos told us of his acclimatization to the tiny Mexican village of Ajijic. . . In 'House in the Sun,' Mr. Chandos has added a few extra rooms to that earlier snug little house, built a cottage or two at a little distance, installed a bar and (if you could call them that!) a staff of servants and thrown the doors open . . . to paying guests. . . Writing of his every-day life in the Ajijic inn, of his Indio neighbors and servants, his Spanish-Mexican, European and American guests, Mr. Chandos manages, with the left hand, so to speak, to give you in this light-seeming little book a clearer idea of the major differences between life and attitudes south of the Rio Grande and in the U. S. A. than many a social historian has managed in a substantial volume." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 46:124 D 1 '49

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 8 '49 390w

"In 1945 Dane Chandos's lovely Mexican 'Village in the Sun' appeared. 'House in the Sun' is quite as good, in its not too different way. It will lack, of course, for the reader who enjoyed its predecessor, that delicious fresh shock of astonishment that comes from meeting, all unheralded, the work of a writer of real distinction. But here is the same fresh eye, the naive responsiveness, the keen awareness of form and color, the precise hand of an artist." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 D 4 '49 750w

"No doubt much of the human material is more whimsical, more wise, more tenderly charming—not to say larger and more devout—than life is, even in Mexico. 'House in the Sun' is a diffuse book, yet the very diffusion catches the breath of the land and its people, as better organized and more studied commentaries could never do." Duncan Aikman
+ N Y Times p30 O 30 '49 700w

"Done with all the humor and charm and sensitive understanding of his earlier book, it will find wide audience. It will also send its readers searching for its predecessor, or I'm much mistaken." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 N 7 '49 800w

"[Has] the feel of rich tapestry, carefully wrought, of perfect etching, the ability to condense the essence of a scene or a character into a few words, with little editorializing." Carleton Beals
+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 Ja 14 '50 270w

"A charming Mexican tapestry of color, humor and veracity." J. F. S.
+ Springf'd Republican p9D D 4 '49 160w

CHANG, P'EI-KANG. Agriculture and industrialization. 270p $5 Harvard univ. press

338 Agriculture—Economic aspects. China—Economic conditions
49-3565

"'The adjustments that take place as an agricultural country is industrialized,' particularly in China, are examined and discussed. The author (National Wuhan University, Wuchang, China), poses some interesting questions on the benefits derived from industrialization, as well as the disadvantages. There is also analysis of various economic theories and the economic problems throughout the world." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index.

"This is a scholarly book treating an important subject. The author asks vital questions concerning the relationship of agriculture and industrialization, with particular emphasis on the effects on agriculture of industrialization and mechanization. However, his answers are not too clear and follow from an extremely involved discussion of economic theory rather than from economic history." W. J. Marx
+ — Commonweal 50:345 Jl 15 '49 800w

Current Hist 17:38 Jl '49 70w

CHANLER, MARGARET (TERRY) (MRS WINTHROP CHANLER). Memory makes music. 171p $2.50 Stephen-Paul
B or 92 Music 48-9655

Describes the part music has played in the life of the author. As a girl she lived in Rome for a time, was a pupil of Sgambati, and attended the last piano classes held by Franz Liszt. In her long life of eighty-five years she has known many other musicians, and her book has many anecdotes of her musical friends. She includes short biographies of her favorite composers, Bach, Verdi, and Liszt. No index.

Reviewed by C. K. Miller
Library J 74:310 F 15 '49 40w

"A book which, because of its keen observations and true understanding of changing tastes, will appeal to both musician and layman." H. E. Bush
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 6:314 Mr '49 320w

"Mrs. Chanler has much that is new and wise to say about such varied figures as Liszt, Richard Strauss, Mahler, Poulenc, Erik Satie and Gershwin, but her encounters with them, more than just exciting experiences, are shown to be steps in the lifelong curve of her musical self-discovery." Stuart Preston
+ N Y Times p22 My 22 '49 150w

"She writes with an old-fashioned charm that gives her book flavor as well as substance. It will be appreciated, especially by readers, say—well, not under 40." Jane Voiles
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 20 '49 400w

"If I may register a slight, and I hope not ungallant, complaint about this book, it is that Mrs. Chanler has not drawn exclusively enough upon her extensive and charming memories, but has allowed them to be too often interrupted by biographical or descriptive passages easily duplicated elsewhere." Gilbert Chase
Sat R of Lit 32:16 F 5 '49 430w

Springf'd Republican p7B Ja 2 '49 210w

CHANSLOR, TORREY (MRS ROY CHANSLOR) (TORRE BEVANS, MARJORIE TORREY, pseuds). Merriweathers [il. by the author]. 254p $2.50 Viking 49-10427

The Merriweathers were a city family until Mrs Merriweather inherited an old house in Connecticut. The story is of their struggles to adjust themselves to the ways of living in the country, their attempts to make friends with their nearest neighbors, and to make both ends meet financially. For grades four to eight.

Booklist 46:36 S 15 '49

Reviewed by H. F. Griswold
Christian Science Monitor p15 S 29 '49 300w

Horn Bk 25:414 S '49 80w

+ Kirkus 17:428 Ag 15 '49 120w

"Author's word pictures are as graphic as her lovely drawings. Each character is a real individual, and Granny Markwand is one of the most interesting. Recommended for ages 9-12." D. M. Blasco
+ Library J 74:1334 S 15 '49 90w

"Wholesome family relationships and people with real personality are the book's best points. But the story as told by Dillis (who in Miss Torrey's really charming illustrations appears to be about 10) seems contrived and altogether unconvincing. The children are made to be mouthpieces of adult philosophy, and their achievements are much too unusual to be credible. Nevertheless, boys and girls of 9 to 12 will probably enjoy reading about the Merriweathers' lively and amusing adventures." Elizabeth Hodges
+ — N Y Times p32 S 25 '49 180w

"Marjorie Torrey writes a good, well-sustained story of a family whose affection for each other is delightful and refreshing."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p9 N 13 '49 200w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:27 N 12 '49 30w

CHAPANIS, ALPHONSE ROBERT EVERYSTA, and others. Applied experimental psychology; human factors in engineering design. 434p il $4.50 Wiley
620.1 Psychology, Physiological. Machinery—Design. Psychology, Applied 49-11572

"As the subtitle implies, this book is not so much concerned with 'psychology' as with the more nearly physiological problems involved in sense perception and habit patterns which are important to human efficiency. It will be both a textbook for 'applied' psychology and a source of ideas to efficiency experts and personnel managers." (San Francisco Chronicle) Chapter references. Indexes.

"Here is an invaluable work for engineers who design machinery, plan production operations, or are concerned with safety programs."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 34:90 N '49

San Francisco Chronicle p34 N 20 '49 60w

CHAPEL, CHARLES EDWARD. Field, skeet and trap shooting. 288p il $5 Coward-McCann 799.31 Shooting 49-3439

" 'Designed primarily for those who have had only a moderate experience.' Basic principles of hitting moving targets, and a vast amount of technical details. Hundreds of line drawings." Library J

Kirkus 17:128 Mr 1 '49 90w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1031 Jl '49 30w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 7 '49 180w

CHAPMAN, FREDERICK SPENCER. Jungle is neutral. 384p maps $3.75 Norton 940.542 World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, English. World war, 1939-1945—Malay peninsula 49-10269

"For three years, cut off from all of the outside world which heard of him only as 'missing, believed killed,' Col. Chapman lived deep in the Malay jungle as an irregular fighter behind the Japanese lines. In that period he underwent ordeals such as few men have survived. He harassed the Japs, trained Chinese guerrillas, and organized resistance that threw the enemy into confusion." (Publisher's note) In this book he gives an account of these experiences.

Booklist 46:45 O 1 '49

Reviewed by W. F. Morse
Chicago Sun S 5 '49 300w

"It is a rare man who would be able to spend three years hunted in a foreign wilderness, isolated from fellow-Europeans as long as a year at a time, and retain his life and sanity. Mr. Chapman did not only that, but preserved his vigor, intelligence and his wit. Although this book is notable as an honest and effective personal narration, it is primarily the testament of an astonishing man." William Pfaff
+ Commonweal 50:588 S 23 '49 350w

Kirkus 17:318 Jl 1 '49 120w

CHAPMAN, F. S.—Continued

"Written in a restrained and straightforward manner, the book should be welcomed by most libraries." A. J. Gaines
+ Library J 74:1087 Ag '49 140w

"His book is as exciting and sensitive as any war book yet published. Mr. L. S. Amery recently claimed that the spirit of Drake is still alive. Perhaps after all he is right. . . None has written so vividly. Scholar, scientist, and geographer, he has produced a splendid book of war and travel." R. G. J.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 6 '49 480w

"Well-written and filled with fascinating information and exciting adventures, this is one of the better books to come out of the war."
+ Nation 169:237 S 3 '49 90w

"What happens next is always unexpected, always exciting, and always contributes to the tension of the adventure and the reader's appetite for more. . . Mr. Chapman's actions are placed, if one may so put it, for the reader in a thoroughly convincing setting of personal relations, textures, smells, sights and sounds." Anthony West
+ New Statesman & Nation 37:162 F 12 '49 950w

"In the light of present political developments, Chapman's role as a Commando trainer and as an integral factor in the life of a Chinese Communist guerrilla unit—welcome, well treated, but never wholly trusted—is of great interest. . . One of the strange things about this remarkable book is that, though the post-war anti-British attitude of the Malayan Communists has been clear enough for several years, there is not a line in the book to indicate what Chapman thinks of the present rights and wrongs of their position." Rodney Gilbert
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Ag 28 '49 1850w

"[This is] a fascinating story, even at a time when the war in the Far East seems almost forgotten, and in its description of guerrilla life and activities in the hills is undoubtedly a very good description of the way in which the Chinese Communists in Malaya have been fighting the British there for the last year." Foster Hailey
+ N Y Times p17 Ag 28 '49 600w

"The story told is magnificent and nothing we say should in any way be construed as criticism of Lieutenant-Colonel Chapman's amazing gallantry or even of his clear literary style. His book is, however, and probably quite unwittingly, the most precise indictment of Britain's criminally stupid policy in matters political and military during the interwar period that this reviewer has yet encountered. It is also a quite ghastly revelation of the ultimate outcome of that universal habit which seems to be becoming every day more prevalent—the dissemination of false information. In both respects it is the more convincing for the author's reticence and fairness in his attitude." I. T. Sanderson
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 O 8 '49 950w

"This is a thrilling book. . . Chapman tells the story in terms so objective and so unselfconscious that to call them modest might convey a wrong impression. Suspense pervades his narrative, for he was never out of danger. Every incident is fresh and vivid, and no one could ask for greater simplicity or honesty of purpose in the telling." Peter Fleming
+ Spec 182:18 Ja 7 '49 1350w

Springf'd Republican p5D S 11 '49 210w

"The Jungle Is Neutral is packed to the boards with incredible adventure and impressive evidence of human fortitude, but it is written without a note of excitement, understated to the point of monotone. For that reason, and by the simplicity of its statement, it makes most first-person war books seem almost shrill."
+ Time 54:64 S 5 '49 600w

"This remarkable record is a full description of resistance in Japanese-occupied Malaya, written by one who is without question a leading authority on the subject. He writes with becoming modesty, but it grows clear, after reading a short way, that the author is endowed with strength and endurance of an extraordinary kind. This is a kind of Samson's autobiography."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p67 Ja 29 '49 1400w

CHAPMAN, JOHN ARTHUR, ed. Burns Mantle best plays of 1948-49, and the Year book of the drama in America; with illustrations. (V32) 486p $4 Dodd

808.82 Dramas—Collections

Contents: Death of a salesman, by Arthur Miller; Anne of the thousand days, by Maxwell Anderson; The madwoman of Chaillot, by Jean Giraudoux; Detective story, by Sidney Kingsley; Edward, my son, by Robert Morley and Noel Langley; Life with mother, by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse; Light up the sky, by Moss Hart; The silver whistle, by R. E. McEnroe; Two blind mice, by Samuel Spewack; Goodbye, my fancy, by Fay Kanin. Indexes.

Booklist 46:120 D 1 '49

"For desk reference in all libraries and essential to theatre collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:1909 D 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 27 '49 160w

"No other record of the theatre quite equals the merits of this series. Not only is it of value to those who cover the Broadway beat but also to all who have more than a passing fancy for the fabulous invalid." Lewis Funke
+ N Y Times p16 O 30 '49 400w

CHAPMAN, MARISTAN, pseud. of MARY and STANTON CHAPMAN. Rogue's March. 384p $3 Lippincott

49-6827

Historical novel about the last years of the Revolution, culminating in the Battle of King's Mountain. The heroine is Margaret Brooke, Whig daughter of a hotheaded Tory, owner of Rogue's March. Lantry Ward of Tennessee, an express rider for the Colonists, is the hero.

Booklist 46:25; 82 S 15 '49; N 1 '49
Bookmark 9:55 D '49 50w

Reviewed by V. P. Hass
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 15 '50 480w

Reviewed by M. D. Read
Library J 74:1921 D 15 '49 40w

"Never before 'Rogue's March' has King's Mountain received the treatment in historical fiction that it deserves. This book does it justice. This story is professional. . . It is the very flesh and sinew of backwoods tradition brought to life. Its talk, its cabins and people and countryside, are real. Its action is taut as a pulled bowstring, and it has a love story which can be believed." E. B. Davis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 23 '49 850w

"The story, following Lantry's circuitous route through love and war, is somewhat confused and melodramatic. However, 'Rogue's March' does have the virtue of being a clean book which is unusual in light historical novels of this genre." Hilda Osterhout
+ — N Y Times p46 N 13 '49 170w
Sat R of Lit 32:34 D 10 '49 140w
Springf'd Republican p3D Ja 22 '50 150w

CHAPMAN, ROBERT WILLIAM. Jane Austen: facts and problems. 232p $3.50 Oxford

B or 92 Austen, Jane [49-9230]

"Until now, Dr. Chapman, who edited the definitive editions of Jane Austen's letters and novels, has resisted writing about her except for introductions and notes and shorter papers. Cambridge University at last coaxed this book from him in the form of the Clark Lectures for 1948; and even now he has avoided systematic biography or criticism. The lectures are an orderly review, an indispensable review, of the research which ought to go into biography. They criticize criticism, and presuppose a critical knowledge of the novels." N Y Times

---

"Dr. Johnson once told Hannah More that she should consider whether her praise were worth anything before she was so lavish with it, and the recollection of this annihilating snub must make one cautious in attempting to praise Dr. R. W. Chapman's Jane Austen. But it must be safe to say that this is a book by the greatest living authority on the subject and that its publication is a literary event. . . The scholarship that has assembled the material is matched by the art that has turned it into a piece of creative criticism. Dr. Chapman, though deeply in love with his subject, has no bias or preconceived idea." Elizabeth Jenkins

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 11 '49 360w

"A book for addicts. Dr. Chapman edited the Oxford edition of the novels and letters, to which the Clark Lectures, printed in this form may be regarded as footnotes. Too much so, for they often include references to the letters, by number, without giving the text; very annoying, if the reader does not possess them. . . Let the addict persevere, however; it improves as it goes on. Dr. Chapman is nothing if not sensible and just, as well as immensely erudite, in his study of such topics as Jane Austen's preference for privacy, or her character, emergent from the few remaining personal letters and traditions, and much more from the novels. Above all, he gives soberly all the evidence there is for the Teignmouth romance, and surmises shrewdly that that blow caused the long gap in her writing."

+ — New Statesman & Nation 37:387 Ap 16 '49 260w

"With rare and admirable self-restraint the editor of the only annotated edition of Jane Austen's works and the best edition of her letters has now written her life. . . Not the least miracle that Mr. Chapman has performed is the description in less than twenty pages of Jane Austen's interminable family connections. Readers of her very domestic letters will realize what a service he has rendered by this compact arrangement of dispersed information. . . To devotees of the novelist, and that includes most literate people, Mr. Chapman's compilation will be most welcome." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p19 My 8 '49 320w

"[The lectures] are gentle polemics, defending Jane against the charges that personally she was a 'harpy,' a 'husband-hunting butterfly,' or 'a perpendicular piece of single blessedness,' and that artistically she was narrow or unimaginative. Dr. Chapman seems more ardent, if possible, about the girl than about the writer, and this makes the book chiefly a book for specialists, for Janeites." Donald Barr

N Y Times p5 My 1 '49 800w

"A lucid and useful summary."

+ New Yorker 25:102 Ap 23 '49 60w

"To Dr. R. W. Chapman readers of Jane Austen owe already, besides a number of essays and introductions, the standard edition of her Works and Letters, a model of scholarly editing. So thoroughly has he performed this great task that he has hardly left himself scope for fresh discoveries, but the welcome extended to the publication of his Clark Lectures delivered some months ago at Trinity College, Cambridge, will be no less eager because they cannot offer any sensational revelations. . . It is a book for Janeites (and whom does the term exclude?), who will be delighted to find so many of their questions lucidly answered, so many problems authoritatively solved by careful marshalling of facts gleaned from obscure corners or gathered by erudite detective work."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p136 F 26 '49 3000w

CHAPMAN, WILBERT MCLEOD. Fishing in troubled waters. 256p $3 Lippincott

639.2 Fishing—Solomon islands. World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, American 49-7467

"A West Coast professor of ichthyology cheerfully describes his efforts, as a civilian attached to the Army, to start a one-boat commercial fishery in 1944 in the Solomon Islands, an operation designed to vary the monotonous Spam diet of our personnel stationed there. He found the red tape in that quarter of the globe nearly as luxuriant and impenetrable as the tropical forests, but we have his word that the project was eventually a success." New Yorker

---

Booklist 45:223 Mr 1 '49

"Not 'war,' not 'sport,' but a most unusual book that will have wide appeal. Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 73:1816 D 15 '48 100w

"Humorously entertaining piece of reading. Being a scientist, Dr. Chapman does not confine his tale to men. Throughout the book he tells of the strange sea creatures he studied and collected, the giant clams, the curious fish and the busy life of the coral reefs. Nor does he fail to convey the beauty of that world of islands, water and sky." John O'Reilly

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Mr 6 '49 600w

"Its history unquestionably makes interesting reading, both as a different sort of war story and as a different sort of fishing story."

+ New Yorker 25:96 Mr 5 '49 110w

"What I hope is that the bookstores won't classify this under 'Ichthyology.' It belongs among those highly personal narratives that defy classification, the books people read and recommend to others simply because they reflect a warm and interesting personality. That's really what makes this book what it is, too—the lively, good-natured, broad, full-packed mind of the man who writes it." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Mr 12 '49 390w

"In going through Dr. Chapman's volume I did two double-takes, from real anticipation, to disillusionment, and finally a shift to enjoyment of a most excellent yarn." William Beebe

+ Sat R of Lit 32:29 F 26 '49 360w

"In this informal narrative, Dr. Chapman, a fishery expert who makes no claim of here adding to the knowledge of ichthyology, gives a colorful account of the government's wartime effort to supply fresh fish to the K- and Spam-rationed troops stationed in the New Georgia Islands, Solomons."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:161 Je '49 280w

"His story is a good one—the trials and tribulations, the dependence on the knowledge of natives, the military red tape and the methods of cutting it, the catching of fish (including specimens that were rare and even new to science), his personal observations and random speculations, all these make for pleasant reading." Daniel Merriman

+ Yale R n s 38:545 spring '49 240w

CHARLTON, HENRY BUCKLEY. Shakespearian tragedy. 245p $3.75 Macmillan (for the Cambridge univ. press)

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation [A49-5387]

These essays on Shakespeare's tragic dramas were first delivered as lectures at Trinity College, Cambridge. After an Introduction, the first two deal with Apprentice pieces (Titus Andronicus, Richard III and Richard II) and with Experiment and Interregnum (Romeo and Juliet, King John, Julius Caesar). These are followed by separate essays on Hamlet, Othello, Macbeth, and King Lear.

"Professor Charlton's pages are tremendously stimulating." W. P. Sears

+ Churchman 163:17 F 15 '49 200w

"As criticism of Shakespeare's plays the book is hardly to be reckoned as a 'landmark,' but it contains some acute observations on individual characters and the detailed examinations of Shakespeare's deviations from his sources are valuable. Professor Charlton gives a chapter to each of the Great Four Tragedies, and a shorter notice of six others—of which three are Histories. Librarians doubtless will catalogue Shakespearian Tragedy under 'Shakespeare' in the subject index; it should be included also under 'Theology—miscellaneous.' " G. B. Harrison

CHARLTON, H. B.—Continued

+ Commonweal 49:523 Mr 4 '49 700w

"Recommended for large Shakespearean and theatre collections only." George Freedley

Library J 74:310 F 15 '49 30w

Reviewed by George Rylands

Manchester Guardian p3 N 15 '48 480w

"One's final impression is that this is a sound and solemn little piece of exegesis, but not one which greatly enlarges our conception of Shakespearean tragedy." S. C. Chew

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 Mr 6 '49 850w

Times [London] Lit Sup p698 D 11 '48 1200w

CHARM, SUMNER D. Wage policy for management [pub] in association with Modern industry magazine. 224p $2.75 Funk

658.32 Wage payment plans. Wages 49-7114

A discussion of job evaluation, job analysis, wage incentive plans, merit rating, and collective bargaining. Each topic is considered from three viewpoints: that of the employer; the employee; and the personnel director. Index.

Booklist 45:257 Ap 1 '49

"The executive seeking guidance in the formulation of a wage policy for his concern will receive little aid except for the author's well-presented and continued reiteration that the reaction and attitudes of the employees and their unions should be considered in the determination of such a policy. The student of labor relations or personnel work will only be confused by the inadequate discussion of the techniques involved and their application, and the practitioner attempting to apply these techniques in industry and commerce will find little that is of help to him. All in all, this book offers scant contribution to the existing management literature in this field." R. C. Smyth

— Management R 38:345 Je '49 200w

CHASE, ALLAN. Shadow of a hero. 317p $3 Little

49-2145

The story of a newspaperman's pursuit of a "story," one that brings him into conflict with civic corruption and a big city's underworld masters.

Booklist 45:295 My 1 '49

"The materials, their pattern and even the rather willfully inserted romance of Rome are all familiar detective story matters while the ultimate explosion will sound to mystery readers like the detonation of a pop gun. Meanwhile, although it has been plain that Chase has a Purpose, he implements it raggedly in his hero's mutterings about intolerance and fascism." James Sandoe

— Chicago Sun My 8 '49 280w

Kirkus 17:69 F 1 '49 150w

"Much of the story is entirely plausible and the inconclusive end is only too natural. A mysterious but unreal lady sociologist helps supply the romantic element in a neat, unimportant story." Donald Wasson

Library J 74:662 Ap 15 '49 80w

"The story has suspense and plausible sleuthing, but one's emotions are never greatly stirred. 'Shadow of a Hero' has the substance of a dossier."

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Ap 24 '49 140w

"As social commentary the book is less successful than as straight adventure. If the story sounds a bit familiar, it is. The reader finds himself absorbed in the hunt, so that the Bigger Issues, which Mr. Chase apparently had in mind, become submerged. The result is an exciting thriller, in which somebody like Dana Andrews can play the movie-version lead." Herbert Mitgang

N Y Times p16 My 1 '49 250w

New Yorker 25:105 Ap 16 '49 110w

"Mr. Chase is stark of purpose. He writes to set down facts, not to deliver sermons. Yet, because those facts are so cleverly juxtaposed, the message is all the more hard hitting. He is excited, he is angry, and all this comes over beautifully, for an angry man does not waste time on useless words. And as an angry man is exciting, so also is Chase as he tells this story, so much so that at times it becomes necessary for the reader to slow himself down in order not to race too quickly over the full impact of the book." Marion Reeves

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 10 '49 600w

"In 'Shadow of a Hero' Allan Chase has adapted to his purposes some aspects of the technique of the mystery story. As a result, his book has much of the suspense and excitement of Eric Ambler's 'A Coffin for Dimitrios' (which it also resembles in other ways), but does not succeed in reaching some higher level of significance to which it appears to aspire." Milton Crane

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:45 My 21 '49 550w

"A crusading newspaperman in a setting of civic corruption with all its most Fascist-like implications seems a stock theme today. Allan Chase, however, adds enough fast-moving and intense action to hold his readers." W. R. Manchester

+ Springf'd Republican p6D My 22 '49 210w

Wis Lib Bul 45:88 My '49

CHASE, JOHN CHURCHILL. Frenchmen, Desire, Good Children, and other streets of New Orleans; in words and pictures by [the author]. 246p il maps $4 Robert L. Crager & co, 7221 Zimple st, New Orleans 18

976.335 New Orleans—History 49-48566

New Orleans studied from a new angle: the nomenclature of its streets. "[The author] uses each street name as a kind of window into which he peeks. And inasmuch as N'Orleans has almost as characteristic a set of street names as Paris itself, he peeks plenty. . . Many a writer about the Crescent Bend, who takes himself more seriously than his subject, might well draw a lesson from this latest scribe who takes his subject more seriously than himself and less seriously than his readers. More of the N'Orleans that actually and interestingly was and is may be found in his pages than in this or that masterpiece of—shall we say?—mere dates, dalliance and deadliness." (Chicago Sunday Tribune)

"It was our humble opinion that N'Orleans had been written up from just about every viewpoint. . . But here comes a certain John Chase to put the old town yet again on the literary map by presenting it from a hitherto untried angle. . . Result: fresh evidence of the fitness of the title 'fabulous' which the late Lyle Saxon gave the quaint realm near the mouth of the Mississippi and 'north north-west' of the human brain where everybody, like Hamlet, is just a bit mad." E. F. Murphy

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 N 6 '49 550w

"History in its most painless form. Just as New Orleans street names would be downright educational if they were not so irreverently pronounced—even Xantippe stopped short of calling him Sokratz—so Mr. Chase's sober facts are lightened not only by cartoons but by narrative approach. . . A fresh, new kind of book about the most written-out city in America." E. H. Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 11 '49 450w

"Mr. Chase's is an irreverent history, if I can dignify it as a history, written in the totally brash, or Earl Wilson formula. It began as a series of lectures and there are traces of the delivered wisecracks scattered through the prose. New Orleans readers will find it frequently hilarious, and it should even be found amusing by the people who consider the most exciting city in the United States to be Philadelphia." H. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 32:37 D 31 '49 110w

CHASE, JOHN WADDELL, ed. Years of the modern. See Years of the modern

CHASE, MARY ELLEN. Plum tree. 98p $2 Macmillan
49-11252

The plum tree stood on the lawn of The Home For Aged Women. It happened to be in full bloom on a day when three of the old ladies, all over eighty, were to be transferred to an insane asylum. The story is of the loving understanding of the matron and nurse who had presided over the home for thirty years. They turned the day into a gala occasion with a special dinner and a tea party, so that what had promised to be a nightmare ended well for all of them.

Booklist 46:25; 82 S 15 '49; N 1 '49
Bookmark 9:81 Ja '50 50w

"A wise, perceptive but slightly eerie accomplishment." Mary Sandrock
+ Cath World 170:313 Ja '50 160w

Reviewed by Dorothy Sparks
Chicago Sun N 12 '49 180w

"The book is filled with tenderness, with such patience and tact and understanding as the old people sorely needed. . . One may rejoice to welcome Mary Ellen Chase in her new role." Margaret Williamson
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 27 '49 450w

"Mary Ellen Chase's devoted followers will welcome this tale for its charm, its mingling of humor and pathos, its graceful style. It is not an important milestone in her writing career. But it is a nice book for a plus sale."
+ Kirkus 17:440 Ag 15 '49 180w

"The story is not long. Since it is well done it is excellent for reading aloud and is particularly a tale for women, young and old." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 74:1201 S 1 '49 100w

"It requires only 98 quick pages for the author to construct her delicate, perfect little parable. She has poured into the pages grief and comedy, compassion and wisdom. Using fully her talent for creating intelligible symbolism and haunting mood, Miss Chase has written a small classic, which you will read in an hour and remember for years." Joanna Spencer
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 27 '49 450w

Reviewed by Nona Balakian
N Y Times p4 O 16 '49 360w
New Yorker 25:134 O 15 '49 70w

"Miss Chase's delicately done little story, written with the beautiful economy characteristic of her style, has a moral. Yet the moral never intrudes. 'The Plum Tree' is not for the young—no. But it will mean to older readers far more than is apparent on the surface. It will be a comforting reminder, as Miss Chase puts it, of the 'unassailable knowledge of those who, waiting upon God, can run and not be weary, can walk and not faint.' " J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 24 '49 700w

"Brief in the telling; a capsule of compassion made memorable by Miss Chase's almost unbearable awareness of the human heart." C. M. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 32:26 D 17 '49 170w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter
Springf'd Republican p8C N 13 '49 300w

CHASE, RICHARD, comp. Hullabaloo, and other singing folk games; il. by Joshua Tolford; with six piano settings by Hilton Rufty. 57p $2; pa $1.25 Houghton
796.13 Singing games 49-8127

A well-known folklorist here presents eighteen English-American dances including singing games for children, and folk games for young people and adults. Includes tunes, verses, and full instructions for performance.

Booklist 45:285 Ap 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun Jl 9 '49 270w

"It will be used with pleasure in schools, playgrounds and camps." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:210 My '49 50w

"A refreshingly different folk game book, by [an] authority."
+ Kirkus 17:153 Mr 15 '49 90w

"Essential for school and public libraries." Clara Adams
+ Library J 74:738 My 1 '49 80w

"Place among the most cheering spring items this very happily practical book. . . Clever little sketches suggest the players' attitudes, and even more clever are the tiny figures which show clearly the design and action of each dance. To folk-dance people all this will be easygoing. To the novice it is made so clear he can hardly resist starting. Whether you dance or no, these wonderful old words will long ring in your head, the bright currency of the oldest living folk poetry." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 8 '49 190w

"It is a useful collection for schools, camps and recreation centers, as well as a valuable contribution to American folklore." Elizabeth Hodges
+ N Y Times p16 Jl 24 '49 200w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:35 N 12 '49 20w
Wis Lib Bul 45:90 My '49

CHASE, RICHARD VOLNEY. Herman Melville: a critical study. 305p $4.50 Macmillan
813 Melville, Herman 49-11341

"Exhaustive analysis of myth and symbol in Melville's work, by a member of the Columbia University faculty. . . It is also intended as a contribution to 'the new liberalism': Mr. Chase suggests that certain neglected works of Melville—The Confidence Man chief among them—'offer the continuous act of imaginative criticism which we need to perform ourselves.' " (Library J) Index.

Booklist 46:120 D 1 '49

Reviewed by Russell MacFall
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 D 25 '49 360w

"During and since the 1920's, Melville studies have multiplied. Dr. Chase's is the most complete and the best that has come to this reviewer's attention." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 67:51 Ja 11 '50 420w

"This is a book for Melville specialists and for those with a morbid interest in the lengths of 'scientific' obscurity to which fashionable literary criticism can be carried today." Mason Wade
Commonweal 51:252 D 2 '49 260w

"Competent dissection. Student market."
+ Kirkus 17:500 S 1 '49 120w

"As commentary, a subtle and learned study; although its revaluations (of Billy Budd, for instance) may be disputed by some critics, this is likely to be judged a major contribution to the Melville library." H. W. Hart
+ Library J 74:1193 S 1 '49 100w

"Some of the best pages in Mr. Chase's book explore Melville's understanding of America, his knowledge and use of American folklore, and the resemblances in 'Moby Dick' between some of its characters and American folk heroes. Many other insights are valuable indeed. Mr. Chase has probably plucked out, for example, the interior secret of 'The Bell-Tower' and he has certainly demonstrated

CHASE, R. V.—Continued
why Benjamin Franklin, John Paul Jones and Ethan Allen turn up in 'Israel Potter.' For those who know Melville this book will be both exciting and irritating. It is no primer for novices." Willard Thorp
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p27 N 6 '49 1200w

"Mr. Chase's 'Herman Melville' is a work of boldness, subtlety, and originality. It will annoy the conventional and delight the more progressive, and to both kinds of readers it will be of great profit. Mr. Chase writes in a graceful, fluid style which is a cruel contrast to the viscosity of most scholarly and critical writing." H. P. Vincent
+ N Y Times p9 N 13 '49 650w
Springf'd Republican p7C N 6 '49 120w

CHASE, RICHARD VOLNEY. Quest for myth. 150p $3.25 La. state univ. press
291 Mythology 49-8988

"Development of the theme that 'myth is literature and therefore a matter of aesthetic experience and the imagination.' The author (Connecticut College), discusses some philosophers, historians, and psychologists to prove that 'myth is the aesthetic activity of a man's mind.' There is also suggested a theory of poetry predicated on some poems of Donne, Wordsworth, Yeats, and W. H. Auden." (Current Hist) Index.

Current Hist 17:37 Jl '49 70w

"Myth is always a frontier where claims can be staked, although like all frontiers it attracts some fairly rough characters. Richard Chase, in this elegantly and easily written survey of mythical studies from Zeno to Boas and Benedict, is a settler with more personal resources than most and far less superfluous baggage. The book is both delightful and useful, solid and tentative, youthful and fullblown. Human and humanistic." R. W. Flint
+ Nation 169:139 Ag 6 '49 700w

"Interesting, somewhat disputatious, and admittedly inconclusive book."
New Yorker 25:99 Je 11 '49 120w

CHASE, STUART. Proper study of mankind. 311p $3.50; text ed $3 Harper
301 Social sciences 48-8642
For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Reviewed by W. R. MacLaurin
Am Econ R 39:1304 D '49 1050w
Reviewed by Thomas Le Duc
Am Hist R 54:648 Ap '49 200w

"A very readable, challenging book, which all social scientists and many others may read with profit, even though some of them will find it irritating in spots." F. N. House
+ — Am J Soc 54:557 My '49 800w
Reviewed by D. G. Haring
Am Soc R 14:167 F '49 1850w

"The book will arouse discussion. The author's lively observations on economics as social science are likely to engender vigorous dispute and certain sections on polling might have been written differently had the manuscript been prepared since last November. On the other hand, the admirable analysis of the cultural approach to social research seems beyond question." M. M. Willey
+ — Ann Am Acad 262:242 Mr '49 440w
Foreign Affairs 27:505 Ap '49 30w

"This is an important and timely book. It might have been called a 'Report of the State of the Social Sciences'. The project was suggested three years ago by the present executive heads of the Social Science Research Council and the Carnegie Corporation. It has been carried forward with the help of these two, and of some seventy-five other representative men, by means of a questionnaire, of interviews (individual and group) and of correspondence. Finally, it represents extensive and well-guided reading by the author. Thus it has been far from a one-man undertaking." C. R. Noyes
+ Pol Sci Q 64:113 Mr '49 1200w

Reviewed by E. C. Lindeman
Social Forces 27:312 Mr '49 1200w
Reviewed by N. C. Brillhardt
Social Studies 40:231 My '49 900w
Reviewed by P. L. Gamble
Springf'd Republican p9B F 6 '49 550w
Wis Lib Bul 45:44 Mr '49

CHAUCER, GEOFFREY. Portable Chaucer; selected, tr, and ed. by Theodore Morrison. (Viking portable lib) 600p $2 Viking 821 49-48275

"Professor Morrison—a poet himself and member of the English Department at Harvard —has provided a modern verse rendering of the best parts of the 'Canterbury Tales' (twelve are translated in their entirety); a somewhat compressed version of 'Troilus and Criseyde' (mostly in blank verse), and excerpts from some of the other long poems, together with translations of several of the shorter ones. In addition, there is a long general introduction to Chaucer." N Y Times

Booklist 46:173 Ja 15 '50

"This book has a number of very real merits but also an enormous defect. One merit is that the selections made could not be much improved on, except by the substitution of the exquisite ballade, 'Hyd, Absolom, thy gilte tresses clere,' from 'The Legend of Good Women' for one or two of the minor pieces included. Another merit is the admirable introduction. . . Nobody has ever been equal to the task of translating Chaucer, or ever will be. This book may be useful as a kind of crib for lazy students in college, but any translation spoils Chaucer, and no translation is really necessary, for anybody can read Chaucer who will do so with his ear." Theodore Maynard
+ — Commonweal 51:75 O 28 '49 750w

"In his version of the 'Canterbury Tales,' Professor Morrison seems to me to have succeeded better than any of his predecessors in utilizing the sort of modern English that would correspond to the language of Chaucer. There is a blessed scarcity of archaisms and sentences turned upside down for the sake of a rhyme. The version of the 'Troilus' I find less satisfactory. Except for a few passages, the translator has abandoned Chaucer's use of rhyme royal and substituted blank verse for it." Chad Walsh
+ — N Y Times p6 N 27 '49 400w

CHAVCHAVADZE, PAUL. Family album; drawings by Alajálov. 237p $3 Houghton
914.7 Russia—Social life and customs 49-11771

Episodes in the author's youth in Tsarist Russia, spiced with tales of his grandparents, uncles, aunts, and cousins. The final chapter of the book is about the author's experiences in World war II, in which he served as liaison between the American and Soviet forces. He is now an American citizen and lives in Wellfleet, on Cape Cod.

Booklist 46:51; 120 O 15 '49; D 1 '49
Christian Science Monitor p11 D 22 '49 390w

"A peculiar charm hangs over this account of baronial villages in which there are only two classes, with well established responsibilities on the nobles as well as the peasants. . . Probably the Georgian side of the family comes through the picture with more fire and zest, strongly individual in everything they did. . . This is a plum pudding of a book, studded with delectable tidbits. The picture that emerges of the Russian aristocrats and the Russian peasants is astonishingly similar." Lorine Pruette
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 11 '49 1100w

"The multitude of characters that troop across his pages, the flashbacks, the total disregard of time sequence, the difficult Russian names, combined with the fact that the book really has no beginning and no ending may prove bewildering to the average reader. However, with a little patience, and several grains of salt, an earnest seeker after entertainment will find plenty of it in this completely mad life history." Oriana Atkinson

+ — N Y Times p6 N 20 '49 500w

Reviewed by Edmund Wilson
New Yorker 25:74 Ja 7 '50 650w

Springf'd Republican p7D D 11 '49 120w

CHENNAULT, CLAIRE LEE. Way of a fighter; the memoirs of Claire Lee Chennault; ed. by Robert Hotz. 375p il maps $4.50 Putnam

B or 92 World war, 1939-1945—China. World war, 1939-1945—Aerial operations 49-845

Autobiography of the leader of the Flying Tigers in China. He stresses his military campaigns and surveys critically the conduct of the war in the East and the present situation in China. Index.

Booklist 45:207 F 15 '49

Reviewed by Keith Wheeler
Chicago Sun F 15 '49 650w

Reviewed by Graham Peck
Christian Science Monitor p11 F 17 '49 750w

"The reader who can battle his way through 350 pages of the first person singular may conceivably find something of interest in this book. That, however, is very probably something few people would care to guarantee. . . Without doubt Chennault was in some respects an extremely able man in the position he held. And equally certainly he has much of value and interest to tell about his experiences. But these facts only make this particular presentation all the more unfortunate. A little less preoccupation with himself might have made Chennault better qualified to tell the story." J. O. Frederick

— Commonweal 49:572 Mr 18 '49 190w

Foreign Affairs 27:692 Jl '49 60w

Reviewed by J. K. Fairbank
Nation 168:244 F 26 '49 1400w

"In Way of a Fighter, [the author] shows himself a spiteful, vindictive, incredibly self-satisfied and insufferably arrogant man, who was always right while everyone else—save Chiang Kai-shek and Madame Chiang—was always wrong." Richard Watts

— New Repub 120:23 Mr 7 '49 1000w

"Discounted for an intense personal bias and a great deal of obvious exaggeration, it is still a remarkable story by an uncommonly able, arrogant man. . . By his own account, Chennault was a great aerial genius all but lashed to the ground by a host of Lilliputians who stumbled, bumbled, mismanaged and misplanned all around him, thwarting him at every turn. . . The prize villain was General Stilwell, on whose head he heaps contempt, contumely and all varieties of vilification. . . In Stilwell's recently published diaries there are only a few references to Chennault. There were a number of others that were apparently edited out. . . To any one who knew Stilwell, with all his weaknesses and limitations, Chennault's portrait of him is an absurd and grotesque fabrication." H. R. Isaacs

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ja 30 '49 1600w

"These memoirs are so interestingly schizoid that they seem to be the product of three different men. First is the valiant Chennault who led the Flying Tigers and later the Fourteenth Air Force to spectacular victories against the Japanese. Second is the vindictive Chennault, who manufactured feuds where he found none ready-made. . . And third is the Chennault who, after his book was finished—and after the Chinese Communist victories, which seem to have taken him completely by surprise—added a foreword contradicting much of what he had already said." Annalee Jacoby

N Y Times p1 Ja 30 '49 1550w

New Yorker 25:105 Mr 12 '49 160w

Reviewed by Milke Capraro
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Mr 6 '49 850w

"In many ways this is a forthright and courageous book. Much of it was written fairly recently in Shanghai, 'with China crumbling before my eyes,' as Chennault phrases it, and much of the author's high indignation is justified. But he writes as an avowed partisan of Chiang Kai-shek's China, and as an impatient and irascible critic of American policy in the Far East. The poorly-edited text indicates that he also wrote in great haste, but haste and the pressure of tragic events do not justify his many misstatements of fact." Hallet Abend

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:16 Mr 5 '49 1100w

"The book, though by no means always accurate, is valuable in proportion as it is frank and detailed; it offers to the military historian, for careful weighing and sifting, abundant details of operations and tactical opinions. For the general reader, there are heroic stories of combat and, more important, perhaps, a challenging historical perspective on the present problem of China."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 5:177 Je '49 380w

CHERINGTON, CHARLES RICHARDS. Regulation of railroad abandonments. 277p $4 Harvard univ. press

385 Railroads and state 48-8311

"The study is based upon an extensive analysis and classification of more than 2,000 railroad abandonment decisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Federal experience in the regulation of abandonments has dated from the passage of the Transportation Act of 1920, when the Interstate Commerce Commission was first vested with authority in this area. In the period of nearly thirty years, in which have come the great depression and the Second World War, the Commission's activities have reached into almost every conceivable variation of this problem. . . The actual process of applying so vague a standard as public convenience and necessity to specific cases is described and analyzed by Professor Cherington as effectively as is done anywhere in the literature of administrative regulation." (Am Pol Sci R) List of cases cited. Index.

"This book represents a worthwhile contribution to the field of study of administrative regulation, one whose usefulness is enhanced by the excellent style of writing. But it is by no means a complete study of the railroad abandonment problem, from the standpoint of economic welfare considerations involved. It should be pointed out that the author's primary interest is in the field of political science, not economics. But there remains the fact that the author has undertaken to criticize the Commission's policies upon the basis of economic criteria without making clear what the latter are." J. F. Due

+ — Am Econ R 39:820 Je '49 900w

"The book is valuable not only as a substantial authoritative work in its special field; it also presents many general lessons in the fields of administrative law and government and business." J. M. Ray

+ Am Pol Sci R 42:1239 D '48 550w

"The record of the Commission in interpreting 'convenience and necessity' under the pressure of conflicting private and public interests is here carefully examined and, as virtually the only book in its field in recent years, the study should prove valuable to ICC practitioners, lawyers, economists, and railroad officers, as well as to students of governmental administration and regulation."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:468 D '48 260w

CHERIOLI, JOSEPHINE. Beauty culture, its science and practice. 305p il $3 Bruce pub.

646.7 Beauty shops 49-1841

A textbook on hairdressing and cosmetology by an instructor in beauty culture. The book is divided into four sections: scientific background, practice on hair, practice on skin, and business practices. Glossary. Bibliography. Answers to review questions. Index.

Booklist 45:291 My 1 '49

CHERIOLI, JOSEPHINE—Continued
"The book will have vocational value in most collections."
+ Wis Lib Bul 45:85 My '49

CHERNEV, IRVING, and REINFELD, FRED. Fireside book of chess. 400p il $3.50 Simon & Schuster
794.1 Chess 49-6902

"The first part of the book consists of stories and articles culled from a variety of sources. . . The second and third parts of the book are entitled 'The Magic of Chess' and 'Chess as It Is Played.' Here the authors have collected a number of fascinating anecdotes, games, problems, end games and positions. Throughout the emphasis is on brilliancy and surprise. Almost all the games are short, sprightly, and full of dash and vigor. The choice of material, which is drawn from all ages and all countries, reflects the vast knowledge that went into the writing of this book." N Y Times

Booklist 46:118 D 1 '49

" 'The Fireside Book of Chess' is one of those beautiful, beautiful books and within its handsome covers there are 400 pages of superlative chessiana. It is impossible for a chess addict to be less than ecstatic about a collection like this." R. L. Hanson
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p32 D 4 '49 370w
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '49
Kirkus 17:355 Jl 1"'49 80w

"Irving Chernev is popularly referred to as the Ripley of chess. Fred Reinfeld is famous for his encyclopedic knowledge of the literature of the royal game. These two, both well known for their previous publications on the subject, have combined their talents to produce a lush treasury of entertainment for all classes of chess players. . . There are a few minor inaccuracies. The statement that Gideon Stahlberg holds the world's record for simultaneous play with his 400-game exhibition at Buenos Aires in 1941 is not true because the games were played consecutively, not simultaneously." Reuben Fine
+ — N Y Times p36 O 30 '49 450w

CHESNUT, MARY BOYKIN (MILLER). Diary from Dixie; ed. by Ben Ames Williams. 572p $5 Houghton
973.782 U.S.—History—Civil war—Personal narratives, Confederate 49-11694

A new edition of this Civil war diary, which was written day by day during the course of the war. The author was a South Carolina belle, wife of a brigadier general of the Confederacy. This edition contains much material which was not included in the original edition (1904). Index.

Booklist 46:173 Ja 15 '50

"A rewarding background book because of its intimate portrayal of a period, place and people, a natural for those to whom diarists' revelations are fascinating, for the history-minded market."
+ Kirkus 17:498 S 1 '49 150w

"Filled with gossip, risqué stories, laughter and tears, it points up gaieties and tragedies of a nation at war with itself. Entertaining yet constantly reflecting the gravity of these years, this holds much interest for the thoughtful reader and deserves a glance from historians seeking to interpret this tragic era." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 74:1458 O 1 '49 210w

"The publication of her diary as she wrote it is not only, not even primarily, a scholarly milestone. You need not be of Mrs. Chesnut's political or geographical persuasion to enjoy it, either. You need only to enjoy light, fast, charming reading, guns in the background and gossip in the fore. Mrs. Chesnut says in some other connection, 'It made me cry, and I have no gift that way. Laughing is my forte.' It was through laughter rather than tears that she saw the whole Civil War." E. H. Smith
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 6 '49 900w

"Mary Boykin Chesnut steps out alive from the pages of her journal as beautiful, vivacious, flirtatious, warm-hearted, cool-thinking, astonishingly frank and wonderfully articulate. . . The book is very quotable. It is a book that 'you can put down.' And the reader should. It is too rich in content to be absorbed in a reading or two, for each passage is a complete unit in itself." Betty Smith
+ N Y Times p18 O 30 '49 650w
New Yorker 25:169 N 19 '49 160w
San Francisco Chronicle p28 Ja 8 '50 300w

"It is hardly too much to say that what Samuel Pepys's diary is to the reign of Charles II, Mary Boykin Chesnut's is to the Confederacy. To thousands now and in years to come it will be a fascinating source of information, an invaluable aid to the understanding of a great period, and a lasting delight." A. H. Bill
+ Sat R of Lit 32:19 D 31 '49 900w
Springf'd Republican p3D Ja 22 '50 210w
Time 54:110 N 14 '49 700w

CHEVALIER, HAAKON MAURICE. For us the living. 400p $3.50 Knopf 48-11714

"A detective story that is also an economic parable. It is a little history of the struggle which stirred the nation and the world between the crash of 1929 and the bombing of Pearl Harbor. Its detective is a professor of philosophy who ponders the effects of an action which brought three separate people under indictment for murder and at the same time affected or was used to affect thousands of others caught in the economic and social pincers of that day and of this one." Chicago Sun

Booklist 45:192 F 1 '49

"Although it is an absorbing story it is a story too carefully ordered for its own good. . . Its materials are all familiar and all have been used more tellingly by writers as diverse as John Steinbeck and Dorothy Sayers. Their combination here, though, is fresh." James Sandoe
+ — Chicago Sun p38 Ja 14 '49 270w

"The author should be given credit for his serious purpose and for his energy. He has worked hard at the structure of his book, with all its interconnected happenings and its climaxes. He is also very much on the side of faith and freedom. But his idealism is not enough to give human dimension to fictional events; and it tends toward that humorless, excited brand which allows no reality to get in its way." John Hay
— + Commonweal 49:475 F 18 '49 260w

"A scanning of the main stream of American thought and action, this merges considerable ideological content with the external drama of its story, achieves substance and realism if however without subtlety."
Kirkus 16:578 N 1 '48 180w

"A fruitful first novel, perhaps overpacked. . . Recommended." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 74:127 Ja 15 '49 80w
Manchester Guardian p4 N 11 '49 80w

"As with any other detective story the reviewer feels debarred from giving away more than a teasing outline of the plot; sufficient to add that, strictly by crime-fiction standards, 'For Us the Living' is excellently written, intelligently reasoned, and reasonably exciting. One senses, however, that Mr. Chevalier has intended a good deal more than merely to titillate or divert. . . Yet to do what Mr. Chevalier obviously would like to do (namely, to drive home his social message effectively) requires the reader to be moved; and 'To Us the Living' does not in this sense move." James Hilton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ja 16 '49 700w

"Working backward through the medium of an enormous number of characters, the book suffers from lack of immediacy. Instead of action, we have discussion of action—instead of emotion, analysis. There are few genuinely moving moments in the whole novel. The trouble is that, despite our intellectual absorption, we don't really care enough about the nine main actors to take them seriously to heart. Mr. Chevalier has an uncanny gift of getting inside a character's mind, but he gets inside too many minds. We look in vain for a center of dramatic feeling." Dorothy McCleary

— + N Y Times p22 Ja 16 '49 360w

"Unfortunately, the issues become a bit unclear as the tale runs off on some side paths of murder, detection, and young love, and as Mr. Chevalier produces characters whom he connects rather arbitrarily with each other and with the case."
New Yorker 24:80 Ja 15 '49 140w

"It is interesting that this sort of novel should be written again—it seems almost anachronistic—and significant that it must return to a picture of the 30s for its material. It is, on the other hand, very likely the best way to chronicle the history of that gradually less unhappy period. This book is an indication that, if he can succeed in cleaning up a sometimes swollen prose style, and in subordinating sympathy to judgment, Mr. Chevalier, with his aptitudes for dramatic situation, character and panoramic handling is a man who could write such a chronicle." Vance Bourjaily
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ja 16 '49 750w

"When he is writing at his graceful best, Mr. Chevalier writes very well indeed, and sometimes with brilliance. He is at his worst when he is being doctrinaire, when his characters become symbols, and the dialogue becomes tractual. This is a book about The Good People and The Bad People, and although I once believed every word the brothers Grimm told me, I no longer like books about The Good People and The Bad People. I like books about people. It is a pity that Mr. Chevalier, in his passion and caring, should allow himself to become sentimental and to indulge in special pleading, and to so idealize his heroes and so blacken his villains. I remember all the colors of San Francisco, and what is called the Bay Region, but Mr. Chevalier has added two more, which are not there, or any place, and he has painted his characters those colors, either all black, or all white." John Woodburn
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:40 Ja 29 '49 600w

CHEVALIER, MAURICE. Man in the straw hat; my story [tr. by Caroline Clark]. 245p il $3.50 Crowell

B or 92 Actors and actresses—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-10911

Autobiography of the French music-hall singer and actor from his poverty-stricken childhood in Paris in the 1890s to the end of World war II.

Booklist 46:1; 62 S 1 '49; O 15 '49

Reviewed by Ben Kartman
Chicago Sun O 20 '49 220w

"Simplicity and apparent candor help this autobiography, but it's engaging mainly for its subject." Rod Nordell
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 O 11 '49 420w

"Not important, but a readable account of hard-won success which has an appeal for movie, theater and trans-oceanic entertainment followers."
Kirkus 17:450 Ag 15 '49 200w

"This is one of the most engaging autobiographies to appear in print in a long time. . . Recommended for paid collections as well as for theatre and cinema collections. Well illustrated." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:1604 O 15 '49 60w

"Chevalier's little book, which is primitively simple, written as if he were talking about himself to a sympathetic visitor in his dressing room, offers some clues to the ingredients that give his artless and beguiling stage work a sense of real style and something that might be called purity." Harold Clurman
+ New Repub 121:29 S 26 '49 650w

"In a translation by Caroline Clark, not always successful in scuffles with the French idiom, Chevalier recites chronologically the Alger story of his rise from obscurity to the perilous heights of stardom. At times his tale has an unbecoming modesty, at odds with the scope of his fame and the tenacious and unrelenting fashion in which he has preserved it." Richard Maney
N Y Times p53 N 20 '49 500w

San Francisco Chronicle p31 N 20 '49 140w

Reviewed by Russell Rhodes
+ Sat R of Lit 32:27 O 22 '49 950w

CHEVALLIER, GABRIEL. Affairs of Flavie (Les héritiers Euffe) tr. from the French by Jocelyn Godefroi [Eng title: The Euffe inheritance]. 280p $3 Doubleday 49-8145

Satire on middle-class life in France. The head of a rich Grenoble family is killed by a vase falling from the house of one Flavie Lacail. The rest of the novel describes the effects upon each of the heirs of M. Euffe.

Kirkus 17:39 Ja 15 '49 150w

"This amusing satire of bourgeois life in modern France is full of lush sophistication. . . The characters portray well the moral decadence of the age, but the author does nothing about the decadence, and the characters are uninteresting. . . Good, well managed plot but not for the unsophisticated." Katharine Shorey
Library J 74:494 Mr 15 '49 110w

"A little forced and false." Iris Barry
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ap 24 '49 430w

"The book suffers in translation, and from other faults as well, particularly in the telling of the straight, or non-satiric, love affairs—of which there are even a couple so commonplace that they end in marriage. Here the satire loses itself completely and leaves the reader with little solace except for one character." Cleveland Amory
N Y Times p20 Ap 3 '49 270w

"The main defects are a rather stiff translation and a bit too much heavy farce."
New Yorker 25:120 Ap 9 '49 160w

"Despite the inept title and the abysmally false dust jacket, this book should not be plowed under. It says what the indestructible French alone can say, obliquely, pungently, and with manner." C. M. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 My 7 '49 100w

CHEVIGNY, HECTOR. Woman of the Rock. 288p $2.75 Wyn 49-7789

This novel tells the life story of a woman evangelist, beautiful, appealing and successful in her public career, unhappy and tragic in her personal life. "Obviously based on Aimee Semple McPherson's career, including the notorious disappearance with a lover." (Booklist)

Booklist 45:241 Mr 15 '49

"This story is not without a certain curious fascination, and handled sympathetically rather than satirically."
Kirkus 17:10 Ja 1 '49 180w

"For those who ever saw or heard Aimee McPherson preach this story will prove fascinating, for others, readable." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 74:311 F 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by Carey McWilliams
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ag 7 '49 700w

"The author has devised a narrative method which pretends to be the compilation of three different sources, the recollections of the narrator, the 'official biography' of Ruth Church and her own posthumously discovered testament. Unfortunately, Mr. Chevigny has developed this detachment to so great an extent that the book lacks drama and the characters are inanimate. Mr. Chevigny, in an attempt to avoid sensationalism in a potentially lurid narrative, has gone to the opposite extreme and written a treatise rather than a novel." Ann Schakne

CHEVIGNY, HECTOR—Continued

— + N Y Times p22 Mr 13 '49 170w

"'Woman of the Rock' is not as good a book as 'The Lost Empire' or 'Lords of Alaska,' Mr. Chevigny's last two, but it is worth reading for the period it portrays. Los Angeles readers won't want to miss it." J. Q. Adatto

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 1 '49 600w

"Hector Chevigny's 'Woman of the Rock' is prefaced by the conventional brief warning: 'Any resemblance to any person living or dead is entirely coincidental.' It is then a coincidence that his heroine, blonde and beautiful Ruth Church, founded a religion of sorts . . . and was the greatest revivalist preacher of her day, during the years when blonde and beautiful Aimee Semple McPherson built Angelus Temple in Los Angeles. . . Mr. Chevigny attempts to make of this fantastic story a serious study of a woman whose gifts as an actress and a show-woman overwhelm her conscience. . . The reader may not be convinced that this fabulous story is worth writing, except as a sardonic glance at revivalist religion or as a choice example of Americana." Harrison Smith

Sat R of Lit 32:29 Mr 19 '49 430w

CHEYNEY, PETER. Dark wanton. 233p $2.50 Dodd

49-7656

Mystery story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 F 6 '49 170w

"Altogether there are some astonishing adventures and enough complications to keep you guessing." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p32 F 27 '49 130w

"Under par."

— New Yorker 24:96 F 12 '49 70w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p21 F 20 '49 100w

"Good thriller."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 F 5 '49 40w

CHEYNEY, PETER. Man nobody saw. 242p $2.50 Dodd

49-10587

Detective story.

"Able detection, amour and liquor in about equal parts." Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 S 11 '49 180w

"As always, Cheyney knows how to keep a story moving, even if it is hardly worth the telling. Admirers of the fine series of such novels as 'Dark Duet' will find little here to interest them." Anthony Boucher

N Y Times p43 O 30 '49 180w

"A disappointing job on the part of a usually capable and conscientious practitioner."

New Yorker 25:116 S 17 '49 120w

CHICAGO. UNIVERSITY. Graduate library school. Library institute. Youth, communication and libraries; papers presented before the Institute, Aug. 11-16, 1947; ed. by Frances Henne [and others]. (Studies in lib. science) 233p $3.50 A.L.A.

027.625 Libraries, Young people's 49-7499

Papers and discussions given at the University of Chicago's 1947 Library Institute. There are sixteen contributors; the subject: library work which will meet the social, cultural, and educational needs of young people. Index.

Booklist 45:204 F 15 '49

"The people whose papers were presented differ widely in their philosophies and in their approach to the problem of children's and young people's reading. The result, therefore, is a most interesting and varied compilation. Everyone will not agree, of course, with all the techniques or practices presented nor with all the conclusions drawn. In spite of personal reactions to the book, however, librarians will be quick to recognize the significance of this vital and forward-looking program. More children and young people of the future will have good library service if librarians will re-examine their work in the light of the goals set forth in this book." Christine Gilbert

+ Library J 74:950 Je 15 '49 350w

"There is little at which one can cavil and much which one can praise. The volume makes a valuable contribution to library and educational literature by its inclusion of participants from different fields and viewpoints and its integrated approach to the area of youth, communication, and libraries. . . The book ought to be required reading for all librarians working with children and young people and for all administrators charged with responsibility for these services." F. E. Hammitt

+ Library Q 19:301 O '49 1150w

"A must book for every librarian, administrator or children's librarian, interested in work with children and young people."

+ Wis Lib Bul 45:92 My '49

CHICAGO. UNIVERSITY. Harris foundation lectures on international relations. World community. See Wright, Q., ed.

CHILD, HAROLD HANNYNGTON. Essays and reflections; ed. with a memoir by S. C. Roberts. 185p $2.50 Macmillan (for the Cambridge univ. press)

824 English literature—History and criticism [49-1686]

A selection from the critical writings and from the more personal sketches of the co-founder of The London Times Literary Supplement, who died in 1945. The book includes a biographical memoir by the editor. Partial contents: The triumph of Ben Jonson; The mystery of Yeats; Anthony Trollope; Stevenson after fifty years; What happens in Hamlet; J. M. Barrie as dramatist; The good life—thoughts for Christmas; Meals in the train; Tailors and men; Reading in bed; The decay of the music-hall; Courage to believe.

New Yorker 24:111 D 18 '48 180w

Reviewed by J. M. Brown

Sat R of Lit 32:34 Ja 29 '49 360w

"In reading his critical essays we are constantly delighted by a skilful diagnosis in a phrase, a phrase which is not worked up to but takes its place quietly, casually. . . In Child's companionship you can breathe deeply and laugh while expanding the mind. And in whatever garden path he leads you, he never forgets his job as a critic."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p556 O 2 '48 1850w

CHILD STUDY ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA, INCORPORATED. Read me another story; comp. by the Association; il. by Barbara Cooney. 161p $2 Crowell

49-11094

"The stories in this volume have been selected by the Children's Book Committee of the Child Study Association of America, not only for the nursery listener but with an eye also on the beginning reader who welcomes easy yet interesting stories on which to try out his newly acquired skill." (Pref) Among the authors chosen are: Margaret Wise Brown, Christina Rossetti, Irma Simonton Black, Adele and Cateau de Leeuw, Dorothy Aldis, Erick Berry, Le Grand Henderson, Robert Louis Stevenson, Elizabeth Madox Roberts, Victor Hugo.

Booklist 46:85 N 1 '49

+ Chicago Sun p9X N 13 '49 70w

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 N 13 '49 60w

"A collection of very simple and well done stories and poems."

+ Commonweal 51:189 N 18 '49 20w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ja 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by Lois Palmer

+ N Y Times p12 N 13 '49 140w

"A very nice collection of stories and poems for reading out loud to the two-to-six-year group. . . The versatile black-and-white illustrations are just right, and the well-designed pages of large type are inviting to beginning readers."

+ New Yorker 25:181 D 3 '49 80w

CHIPPERFIELD, JOSEPH E. Storm of Dancerwood; il. by Helen Torrey. 309p $3 Longmans

Dogs—Legends and stories 49-9995

Story of animals and nature in the English countryside. The action centers around the dog called Storm, who is torn between his love for human beings and the wild life of his Alsatian ancestors.

Reviewed by Jane Cobb

Atlantic 184:104 D '49 180w

Booklist 46:51 O 1 '49

"A book that brings a real feeling of open country, of wild life and of understanding between men and animals. Excellent drawings." A. T. Eaton

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 O 13 '49 210w

"Dog lovers will not be alone in their appreciation of this story of a kennel-bred dog who sensed his kinship with the animals of the wild and yet remained a friend of man. There is great beauty in the descriptions of different seasons in the English countryside; great sensitivity in the feeling for the wild creatures of the West Country." A. M. Jordon

+ Horn Bk 25:421 S '49 110w

"A quiet but effective dog story. . . There really is not much plot for adventure in the story, but it is an unusual character study of a dog, and as such children in the lower teens will like it."

+ Kirkus 17:362 Jl 15 '49 150w

"A beautifully written story." J. M. Smith

+ Library J 74:1612 O 15 '49 70w

"The descriptions of the wild are fascinating, giving a rich sense of this beautiful part of England. The pictures and bookmaking live up to the distinction of the writing in every way." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 O 23 '49 180w

"The descriptions of the beautiful countryside are stirring and satisfying; indeed the setting is an intregral part of the story. Mature readers of any age who love animals and nature, will take much pleasure in the story." G. C. C.

+ N Y Times p28 N 13 '49 140w

"It is a story that will appeal to older boys and girls who are sensitive to unusual writing and to wild life. The black and white drawings of animals and birds native to this part of England are convincing and lovely in design." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:46 O 22 '49 170w

"This is a book for anyone who loves animals and appreciates nature. It has a lyric quality, so beautiful it might be poetry, so real it might be biography."

+ School & Society 70:46 Jl 16 '49 40w

Wis Lib Bul p12 N '49

CHOATE, FLORENCE, and CURTIS, ELIZABETH. Linda takes over [il. by the authors]. 183p $2.50 Lippincott

49-10730

"A Vermont farm with elderly relatives living under the fear of their home's being condemned for a flood control project is the scene of Linda's activities. At fifteen as the oldest member of the little family of five, Linda feels responsibility for the care of the younger ones: she shares in the community work and play; she rejoices in the substitute plan to save the village from destruction. At the same time she is a normal girl and has her first beau." (Horn Bk) For older boys and girls.

Bookmark 9:31 N '49 50w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 25:529 N '49 80w

"Linda's adjustments to country living are well done; her wit and courage are happily rewarded at the end. There is a nice, honest, country flavor to the book." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 29 '50 70w

"A remarkably fine picture of young people with enough elder authority and no sugar coating." S. M. N.

+ Springf'd Republican p8C N 27 '49 110w

CHRISTENSEN, HAAKEN. Little Bruin; pictures and story; tr. from the Norwegian by Gudrun Thorne-Thomsen. [24p] $1 Abingdon-Cokesbury

49-9813

Story of three brown bears who got up too early from their winter naps, and had to find shelter in a deserted house until spring really came. Translated from the Norwegian by Gudrun Thorne-Thomsen, the well-known storyteller and author.

Booklist 46:103 N 15 '49

"All children should have some translations in their library, and this is a choice one. The illustrations are unusually fine—the bears' expressions tell you just how they feel!" E. W. Kunkle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 N 13 '49 130w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 20 '49 180w

Horn Bk 25:405 S '49 50w

Kirkus 17:426 Ag 15 '49 90w

"In books for the beginning reader it is always a satisfaction to come upon a real story in which action and incidents and personalities exist, for the youngest readers enjoy plot and characterization, conflict and climax. . . Little Bruin is satisfying for these readers." A. G. Zebker

+ Library J 74:1532 O 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. W. Turpin

Library J 74:1827 D 1 '49 100w

"The little tale is charmingly translated by Gudrun Thorne-Thomsen. The brown and black and white pictures are delightful. With this book we welcome a popular Norwegian picture bookmaker to America." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 13 '49 140w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:21 N 12 '49 140w

CHRISTIE, AGATHA (MILLER) (MRS M. E. L. MALLOWAN). Crooked house. 211p $2.50 Dodd 49-8190

Detective story.

Booklist 45:355 Je 15 '49

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun Ap 8 '49 110w

"Mrs Christie is a marvel. Crooked House is her forty-ninth contribution to detection, and her sleight of hand is still impeccable." Ralph Partridge

+ New Statesman & Nation 38:252 S 3 '49 950w

"Inspector Taverner thinks he has a case and sticks to it, when we could have told him otherwise. You can take the finish as stuff and nonsense, an exciting if ghastly surprise, or what you will, and you'll be ahead of the game, thanks to Mrs. Christie's deft use of mystery material and her always readable style." Will Cuppy

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 Mr 13 '49 200w

CHRISTIE, AGATHA—Continued

"The Greek-English eccentrics in their prodigiously overgrown English cottage are entertaining, but the story moseys along at a mild pace with the thrills packed in the swift finish." Beatrice Sherman
N Y Times p14 Ap 17 '49 150w

"Sticklers for mystery conventions will be disappointed to find that everything is finally explained by a series of documents rather than by any great amount of deductive work on the part of the enamored detective. The countryhouse trimmings are beautifully handled, though."
New Yorker 25:108 Mr 19 '49 130w

"Agatha Christie will keep you interested right up to the last page even though you decide, long before then, that 'Crooked House' is not in the great Christie tradition." E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 3 '49 170w

"Knock-out."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:35 Ap 2 '49 40w

CHRISTIE, ROBERT. Inherit the night. 409p $3 Farrar, Straus
49-9702

To a village high up in the Andes came a stranger calling himself Kurt Werden. He wanted to go to San Cobar, a mythical pueblo far over the mountain, from which no one had ever returned except a drunken old trader. With difficulty Werden persuaded the trader to guide him. What befell Werden, the personification of evil, in the village of peace, is the story.

"The evil of Kurt Werden is essentially rootless and footless. The goodness of the villagers proceeds from ignorance of evil rather than from rejection of it. Silone had his Fontamarians grow up, and maybe Mr. Christie ought to think about that."
Atlantic 184:88 S '49 180w

Booklist 45:382; 393 Jl 15 '49

Reviewed by Dorothy Sparks
Chicago Sun p8X Jl 24 '49 550w

"In spite of the affirmative ending, which testifies to the ultimate unmasking of the forces of evil, and their inevitable destruction, the story is on the whole an unpalatable admixture of melodrama, sensuality, and violence. The book's best point is the skill with which the author reproduces the mellifluous speech and earthy humor of the natives."
Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 28 '49 150w

"It is unfortunate that Mr. Christie required four hundred pages to relate his comic-strip adventure. It might have made a good short story." James Wey
— Commonweal 50:444 Ag 12 '49 330w

"Individual as well as community disintegration through the poisonous seepage of distrust and fear in a well contrived mosaic."
+ Kirkus 17:257 My 15 '49 170w

"Recommended." Joseph Borome
+ Library J 74:1023 Jl '49 70w

"Mr. Christie's study of good and evil in this first novel is not subtle. His evil is the archvillain, a figure so hated that the author establishes his villainy by merely identifying him. The good is somewhat more interesting—an earthy, almost believable utopia. But the conflict between the two is shown in simplified, large steps, which are not very imaginative. . . In fact, 'Inherit the Night,' which attempts in fictionalized form seriously to study moral values, comes out as little more than a thin, modern fantasy."
— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Ag 7 '49 270w

"An affectionately written novel, and it would be ungracious to suggest that Mr. Christie's people appear more Lilliputian than lifelike, that his Hitler is hardly terrifying, or that his triumph of Good over Evil looks like a set-up job. This is a simple story he has elected to tell, a fairy story, almost, and in such an idiom the realities, the probabilities even, must be suspended." Allen Marple
N Y Times p5 Jl 24 '49 470w

"One of the year's more ingenious and capable first novels."
+ New Yorker 25:67 Jl 30 '49 140w

"I think a fable may be judged in power according to the inevitable claim it makes upon our credence. It must ring true as an impeccable syllogism. On this basis Mr. Christie's is not one of the great fables but remains rooted on a lesser level among the earnest, hopeful fictions about things that ought to be. Here it ranks very well indeed, for Mr. Christie brings to his idealism the powers of a vivacious and colorful narrator. Begging the point at issue you are certain to enjoy the romantic story that illuminates it." N. L. Rothman
+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 Jl 23 '49 550w

CHRISTOPHER, CATHERINE. Complete book of doll making and collecting. 288p il $2.98 Greystone

649.55 Dolls. Collectors and collecting
49-10155

"Explaining, with photographs and full-size patterns, how to make and dress all types of attractive dolls, ranging from the one-piece rag doll to dolls with wire frames and molded faces. Complete with costume and historical dolls. Also contains an illustrated guide to the history and collecting of dolls." (Cover) Index.

Booklist 46:10 S 1 '49

"Thoroughly fascinating and useful book. . . Valuable as reference for costumes of different periods and countries. Recommended for older children and adults." Judith Watts
+ Library J 74:1208 S 1 '49 80w

"For the money, this is one of the best books to date of the growing hobby of doll making and collecting." J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 O 2 '49 170w

CHUJOY, ANATOLE, ed. Dance encyclopedia. 546p $7.50 Barnes, A.S.

793.303 Dancing—Dictionaries and encyclopedias
49-1870

Essential facts about the dance arranged in alphabetical order. Every branch of dancing is included. Contains articles by such experts as: Boris Romanoff, Pearl Primus, George Balanchine, Emily Coleman, La Meri, and others. Bibliography. Discography of theatre dance music.

Reviewed by Ann Barzel
Chicago Sun Je 8 '49 150w

"The book is actually a miscellany of dance culture in abecedarian presentation, uneven in its stresses, and, necessarily, incomplete. As Lincoln Kirstein indicates in his Foreword it would take more than one volume to make a full dance encyclopedia. Accepting Mr. Kirstein's assurance of its accuracy, it is a valuable reference work, and its production is an important step in the annals of American dance." Margaret Lloyd
+ — Christian Science Monitor p13 Je 2 '49 240w

"Any dance enthusiast—and the world is full of them—would welcome this as a precious gift, for when the question comes up, 'Whatever happened to Titania Raibouschinska'? or 'Who wrote Les Sylphides'? or 'Who played the lead in Graduation Ball'?, the complete answer can be quickly found in this volume, in alphabetical order." E. R. Johnson
+ Churchman 163:17 My 1 '49 80w

"This is without doubt an excellent work and it should in time become as familiar and as frequently consulted as Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians." Paul Magriel
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 7:111 D '49 480w

"This is less an encyclopedia than an important first step toward one, for the dance is a subject too broad to be compassed by a book of these dimensions. Even so, Mr. Chujoy has perhaps not used the space at his disposal to the best advantage. The Russian ballet, which is his major interest naturally receives the fullest treatment, and omissions in other departments are sometimes fairly startling. . . A reference work of this general type is much to be desired, and Mr. Chujoy has made a bold beginning, at least, for which he deserves our gratitude." John Martin

+ — N Y Times p14 Ap 10 '49 400w

"A weighty tome which is fascinating even to a confirmed balletophobe." Roland Gelatt

+ Sat R of Lit 32:28 Ag 27 '49 90w

"In spite of its limitations, this book will be welcomed as a reference tool for both its short entries concerning dancers, performances of compositions, and terminology, and its longer articles on outstanding personalities, styles, and trends of the dance. The title, itself, is somewhat misleading since the work is neither a complete nor an impartial encyclopedia. It gives far more consideration to the ballet than to other dance forms, and is much more informative about Europe than about any other part of the world."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 5:286 Je '49 280w

CHURCH, LESLIE FREDERIC. Early Methodist people. 286p $4.75 Philosophical lib.

287 Methodism 49-9452

"This book is part of an attempt to rediscover the first Methodist people, and to see them, not only in groups or as followers of John Wesley, but as individuals with definite personalities and lives of their own. The present survey does not cover the whole ground. It looks at these ordinary men and women who, in the first flush of a new experience, were compelled to worship in farm-kitchens and tumble-down sheds. It watches them as they begin to transform the barns and the cottages into temples, and presently, to build their first chapels." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"Here is an unusual book, because it is based on hitherto unused sources. These are intensely human documents, the kind that puts flesh and blood on the bones of history." W. W. Sweet

+ Christian Century 66:1042 S 7 '49 1200w

"A reading of this book may provide a new incentive for those engaged in the ministry and practice of Methodism. For by recalling the ardor, the devotion of the early Methodist preachers and their consecration to the cause of Christian brotherhood, it will tend to correct the growing compromise with secularism which is rendering Protestantism less effective than it should be to deal with the urgencies of our age." Neil Martin

+ Christian Science Monitor p20 S 3 '49 500w

"A reviewer would be captious indeed to cite extended criticism of so excellent a survey. As a historian, the writer handles his material with capability and interest. He does become the preacher as his chapters in their outline and argument show. The book is not mere citation with exegesis and commentary on these diaries and journals, but rather, topical with some homiletics and apologetics in its treatment." C. D. Benjamin

+ Crozer Q 26:365 O '49 1000w

Times [London] Lit Sup p268 Ap 23 '49 1100w

CHURCHILL, RUEL VANCE. Introduction to complex variables and applications. 216p $3.50 McGraw

517.5 Functions of a complex variable 48-9711

"The major portion of this text outlines the basic concepts and theory of complex variables as utilized in solving linear boundary value problems. Particular emphasis is placed on the theory of residues and conformal mapping. The practical application of these methods to problems in potentials, steady temperatures, and flow of fluids is covered briefly in the four final chapters. The treatment is concise and intended for the use of graduate students in physics, engineering and mathematics." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:1823 D 15 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:8 Ja '49

CHURCHILL, WINSTON LEONARD SPENCER. Maxims and reflections; selected by Colin Coote and Denzil Batchelor; with an introd. by Colin Coote. 176p $2.75 Houghton

B or 92 49-8002

An anthology made up of selections from Churchill's writings. It is arranged in a series of chapters, titled: On himself; On his dislikes; On Russia; On his likes; On war; On Britain and the empire; On India; On foreigners; On politics; Maxims on human conduct.

Atlantic 183:92 My '49 200w

Booklist 45:279 Ap 15 '49

Christian Science Monitor p21 Ap 2 '49 600w

Current Hist 16:230 Ap '49 20w

Foreign Affairs 27:689 Jl '49 10w

Kirkus 17:162 Mr 15 '49 180w

"Recommended to all libraries, especially the smaller ones." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 74:374 Mr 1 '49 100w

"Rich fare; indeed, to take so many plums at a sitting is rather like gulping a whole fruitcake at a meal. Browsing is recommended, and it is a pity there is no index to facilitate it, as the topical arrangement is unavoidably somewhat arbitrary. The brief introductory sketch of Mr. Churchill is, however, very good, and the whole makes a wonderful and delightful little book." Walter Millis

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Mr 20 '49 330w

"This brilliant anthology of Churchillisms, is more revealing of the best of him than any single work by him or about him." Alistair Cooke

+ N Y Times p1 Mr 13 '49 1050w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 24 '49 160w

"The compilers would be the last to maintain that they have presented the whole Churchill. No man can be judged solely from what he is like at the top of his form. If you really want to know Mr. Churchill at first-hand, you must read his current memoirs, his memoirs of the Four Years' War, called 'The World Crisis,' some of his speeches, some of his historical writings, preferably the life of his great ancestor, Marlborough. But this anthology is an interesting one, a book that can be dipped into with pleasure in the briefest of intervals." Crane Brinton

+ Sat R of Lit 32:30 Mr 19 '49 470w

Reviewed by H. L. Varley

Springf'd Republican p18A Mr 27 '49 310w

CHURCHILL, WINSTON LEONARD SPENCER. Second World war. v2: Their finest hour. 751p maps $6 Houghton

940.53 World war, 1939-1945. World war, 1939-1945—Great Britain (48-2880)

The second volume of Winston Churchill's memoirs covers the course of the war from mid-May of 1940, thru early January of 1941. Index. For volume one of the series see Book Review Digest 1948.

"The book has a double value. Firstly, an epic story has been told in epic fashion. . . Secondly, as the head of affairs, Churchill naturally knew many details of the war better than anyone else, and his narrative will confirm, check, or correct the histories of lesser men. No doubt, in turn it will have to be checked and corrected. . . Finally, we have, in the appendix, Churchill's personal memorandums to the various officials of the British war services; keen, witty, practical, and astounding in their variety of topics." Preston Slosson

+ Am Hist R 54:858 Jl '49 1050w

CHURCHILL, W. L. S.—Continued
Reviewed by W. T. R. Fox
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:1047 O '49 650w

Booklist 45:259 Ap 1 '49

Reviewed by Robert Wilberforce
Cath World 169:313 Jl '49 650w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p8X Ap 3 '49 550w

"The year 1940 . . . may truly have been the 'finest hour' in the annals of the British people. But this book in which he tells about it is far from being Mr. Churchill's finest book. In plain fact it is, for much of its great length, a dull and badly arranged book—much such a book as a pedestrian candidate for a Ph.D. turned loose in a prime minister's files, might turn out. It is overloaded with unimportant detail. Future historians will find it a mine of raw material for their researches. But ordinary readers who are Mr. Churchill's contemporaries will wish that he had not tried to conduct them on such a prolonged raid on his filing cabinets." Paul Hutchinson.
Christian Century 66:432 Ap 6 '49 1250w

Reviewed by S. R. Davis
Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 31 '49 1200w

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook
Current Hist 16:286 My '49 850w

Foreign Affairs 27:682 Jl '49 60w

"An essential book for those who want the war from the inside in Britain. But for some indefinable reason, this second volume lacks the verve, the zest, the heady excitement of the first. Nonetheless, a sure best seller."
+ — Kirkus 17:162 Mr 15 '49 320w

Reviewed by Donald Wasson
Library J 74:544 Ap 1 '49 140w

Manchester Guardian p4 Je 27 '49 3050w

"Churchill is a great believer in use of the written work in administration—something for which posterity can be grateful—and the reader will find both in the text and appendix of this book innumerable examples of the 'minutes' that streamed from his desk. They were the medium he used to suggest, prod, question, inspire, and, when necessary, direct; and they provide a fascinating picture of an active and ranging mind working at top speed. . . Because the British people had faith in themselves, their darkest hour became their finest. And in Winston Churchill they found not only the leader they deserved but a chronicler worthy of their deeds." Keith Hutchison
+ Nation 168:393 Ap 2 '49 1400w

"What a feast for the historian, the diarist and the autobiographer. Nonetheless, the second volume falls short of the first. Of course the prose is splendid and the Churchillisms are as apt and as gratifying as ever. Yet some of the magic is gone, perhaps because we, like Churchill have outlived glory." J. R. Newman
+ — New Repub 120:21 My 2 '49 2050w

"A superb piece of narrative." R. H. S. Crossman
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:18 Jl 2 '49 750w

"Not the least absorbing aspect of the book is the singularly clear picture it gives of high command in action, of just what it contributes to the enormous whole of a nation's efforts, of what it can, and occasionally what it cannot, do. . . Another interesting theme running through the book is that of Churchill's relations with Roosevelt. . . Throughout the book there are, of course, estimates of men and events, judgments on the grand process of history, too many to consider here, around which controversy will doubtless always revolve. There are the brilliant sidelights and the vivid personal details. . . But above all this there is the power of the majestic story itself—the story of that 'finest hour' when, as the author says, 'the British people held the fort ALONE till those who hitherto had been half blind were half ready.' " Walter Millis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Ap 3 '49 1900w

" 'Their Finest Hour' is written with simplicity, lucidity and gusto. But when the great phrase is needed, Mr. Churchill has it. Moreover, he avoids Nice-Nelly-isms and scorns the gobbledy-gook of the British public servant. . . This book is history. It is also adventure—adventure for a man, a nation and a way of life. Until now only a few Americans who were there have been able to understand the fire and spirit of Britain in that time." Drew Middleton
+ N Y Times p1 Ap 3 '49 1300w

New Yorker 25:106 Ap 16 '49 130w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 3 '49 1050w

"This is vintage Churchill. The great phrases are all here, dramatically, lovingly prepared. . . Mr. Churchill has in this volume a central and most dramatic theme, Britain alone against her enemies, alone against our enemies, against the enemies of civilization. He makes the most of this theme, with no concessions to the academic notion that the historian is above moral judgments as he is above emotion. . . The reader should come to 'Their Finest Hour,' as to other volumes in the series, in the full realization that he is reading no gossipy memoirs, no easy reflections on life, but history in the grand manner—a kind of history of which Mr. Churchill seems to be one of the last practitioners in these days of textbooks, surveys, theses, and lay versions of the 'City of God.' " Crane Brinton
+ Sat R of Lit 32:13 Ap 2 '49 800w

Reviewed by J. L. Godfrey
Social Forces 27:313 Mr '49 1050w

"This is great history written in a grand manner." J. L. Godfrey
+ Social Forces 28:90 O '49 700w

Reviewed by W. R. Deuel
Survey 85:226 Ap '49 1700w

Time 53:102 Ap 25 '49 1100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p421 Jl 1 '49 4850w

Wis Lib Bul 45:87 My '49

Reviewed by W. B. Willcox
Yale R n s 38:732 summer '49 1050w

CHURCHILL, WINSTON LEONARD SPENCER. Sinews of peace; post-war speeches; ed. by Randolph S. Churchill. 256p $3 Houghton

940.55 Peace. World politics 49-9229

A collection of Winston Churchill's principal addresses, delivered from October, 1945 to December 1946. The speeches are linked together by chronological tables of intervening events.

Foreign Affairs 28:168 O '49 30w

Manchester Guardian p3 S 3 '48 90w

"It need hardly be added that these speeches show no hint of a diminution of Mr. Churchill's genius as a speaker. There is everywhere the grace and solidity of style to which he has accustomed us." August Heckscher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Jl 24 '49 800w

"Readers of this first collection of [Churchill's] post-war speeches should keep in mind the manner in which most of the addresses were composed and delivered, for it makes even more remarkable their finished quality." Clifton Daniel
+ N Y Times p3 Je 12 '49 1050w

New Yorker 25:101 Je 11 '49 100w

Reviewed by C. W. Weinberger
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 3 '49 500w

Reviewed by Crane Brinton
Sat R of Lit 32:15 Je 25 '49 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p628 N 6 '48 280w

CIARDI, JOHN. Live another day; poems. 88p $2 Twayne pubs, inc, 42 Broadway, N.Y. 4

811 49-10624

"An introduction to poetry is to be found prefacing the book of poems, 'Live Another Day.' It states primarily a good working thesis for the appreciation of any art in general and in this case, poetry in particular. In brief it is this. A poet writes to be read, therefore the audience is an essential part in the appreciation of a poem. . . The poems themselves show a great variety of subject matter and technique. They deal with everything—persons, places, and things. There are social satires, love poems, and philosophical themes." Springf'd Republican

"Ciardi is a flexible and varied poet with a caustic wit and his satirical 'Guide to Poetry', a Machiavellian hammer that drives its nail home, should be on all of our reading lists." Gerald McDonald
+ Library J 74:1326 S 15 '49 100w

"John Ciardi is a poet of genuine if unequal gifts, whose best poetry has wit, perception and humanity. His greatest fault is lack of poetic liveliness, which derives not from any dullness of imagery or conventionality of vision but from rhythmic monotony." David Daiches
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 1 '50 800w

"Mr. Ciardi's book is introduced by a 'Foreword to the Reader of (Some) General Culture,' one of the best short essays on the nature of poetry, the attitude of the poet and reader (and the reviewer) that I have ever read. It should be a delight to willing readers who have been driven into confusion by critical cant and by poets who write, apparently, for friends and cliques. The poems present a great deal of experience keenly felt, sharply observed and expressed with wit." Maurice Irvine
+ N Y Times p47 O 23 '49 200w

Reviewed by J. W. Bogan
+ Springf'd Republican p8C O 30 '49 120w

CLAFLIN, BERT. Blazed trails for anglers. 237p il $3.50 Knopf

799.12 Fishing Agr49-431

Reminiscences of an American fresh water fisherman. He began fishing in a small Wisconsin stream as a boy, with a homemade pole and corks stolen from his grandfather's cider jugs. In his recollections of more than a quarter of a century, he includes stories of fishing for salmon in Oregon, and of taking golden trout in lakes above the clouds. Index.

+ Kirkus 17:202 Ap 1 '49 160w

"Good reading by a life-time angler." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:1031 Jl '49 30w

New Yorker 25:87 Je 25 '49 80w

CLAPP, CHARLES. Drinking's not the problem. 179p $2.50 Crowell

616.861 Alcoholism 49-10335

"A layman's discussion of alcoholism and what to do about it. Briefly, the author's thesis is that alcoholics are square pegs who drink to escape round holes, usually without conscious recognition of the situation. His approach, as one problem drinker describing successful remedies to another, gives authority to his advocacy of personal religion, discovering one's true aptitudes and tastes, help from agencies such as Alcoholics Anonymous, and psychiatry." Booklist

Booklist 46:29 S 15 '49

"The contact here is direct, personal, and popularly toned; the advice sound."
+ Kirkus 17:317 Je 15 '49 90w

"As Mr. Clapp sees it, it is not the bottle but the man or that aspect of the man called personality which is the core of the problem. While there is nothing new or novel to this thesis, its statement and restatement serve a useful function until more people act on it. Unfortunately, Mr. Clapp neither fully develops this thesis nor goes sufficiently beyond it to make the book as broadly appealing and generally useful to the public as it might have been." Joseph Hirsh
Sat R of Lit 32:21 S 17 '49 650w

Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 14 '49 60w

CLAPPE, MRS LOUISE AMELIA KNAPP (SMITH) (DAME SHIRLEY, pseud). Shirley letters, from the California mines, 1851-1852; with an introd. and notes by Carl I. Wheat. 216p il maps $3.50 Knopf

917.94 California—Gold discoveries 49-11095

In 1851 and 1852 a doctor's wife wrote these letters to her sister back in New England, describing in detail life in a California gold mining settlement. The letters were signed "Dame Shirley," at the time they were published serially in The Pioneer magazine of San Francisco, in 1854-55. Illustrated with contemporary prints.

"As a reference authority for other writers, as an honest reporter of the life around her Dame Shirley has now won her place as a true observer of the early days of the gold rush."
+ Kirkus 17:455 Ag 15 '49 170w

"Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:1602 O 15 '49 80w

"The book does not rise above its subject—for, peace to its shades now being so multifariously evoked, the gold rush was only a minor episode of the American Western venture—but it is one of the factual documents of that venture that so far have on the whole made better reading than attempts to deal with it in more ambitious literary forms." Howard Doughty
+ Nation 169:448 N 5 '49 300w

Reviewed by Idwal Jones
N Y Times p7 N 20 '49 300w

"Some of the most observant, detailed and delightful observations that came out of the entire gold rush." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 12 '49 550w

"A stimulating and absorbing recital of men and events as seen by a capable, humorous, and not invariably sympathetic observer. Mr. Wheat's good notes explain the few points that need explaining."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:33 D 31 '49 230w

CLARK, DELBERT. Again the goose step; the lost fruits of victory. 297p $3 Bobbs

943.086 Germany—History—Allied occupation, 1945- 49-10761

The author, after twenty months in Germany, reports on United States government policy there. He states that our program of demilitarization, denazification, and democratization has been changed to one of ultraconservatism which is paving the way for German nationalism.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 184:96 N '49 800w

Booklist 46:1; 45 S 1 '49; O 1 '49

Bookmark 9:54 D '49 20w

Reviewed by Margaret Hubbard
Christian Science Monitor p14 O 11 '49 650w

Reviewed by Waldemar Gurian
Commonweal 51:41 O 21 '49 460w

"Book goes a long way toward helping the American citizen to understand present day developments in Germany, and supplies plenty of road signs along the path of disaster. Highly recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 74:1194 S 1 '49 140w

"Evidently this is not the last word on what has happened in Germany; even for a contemporaneous account it is incomplete and sketchy. But it does represent the reactions of one civilized and discerning watcher, capable of both pity and indignation. It is a halfway report—Mr. Clark, I am afraid, would say it is half way down." August Heckscher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 O 9 '49 750w

CLARK, DELBERT—Continued

"The subtitle of this book is 'The Lost Fruits of Victory,' and anyone who nourishes the illusion that Germany will be on our side in World War III had better read the record of the occupation by a man who has lived through it. This is not a pretty story. But it is a story every American must know—if he is to graduate from the kindergarten level in knowledge of what is going on in a not-too safe world." J. C. Harsch

N Y Times p4 S 18 '49 750w

"Although Mr. Clark is understandably perturbed over this situation, which he fears it may be too late to correct, he has not pulled a long face in writing about it. His book is loaded with personalities (including an exhaustive, cool, and fair-minded portrait of General Clay) and stories that are both significant and entertaining."

+ New Yorker 25:111 O 8 '49 180w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 14 '49 750w

Reviewed by E. A. Mowrer

Sat R of Lit 32:40 O 8 '49 1050w

CLARK, ELECTA. Pennywinks; il. by Albert Orbaan. 180p $2 Bobbs

49-10445

There were ten Pennywinks, all boys, so they were delighted when eleven-year-old Katie arrived at their house by mistake. When the mistake was cleared up Katie still stayed with the Pennywinks to the satisfaction of all.

+ Horn Bk 25:412 S '49 80w

"This pleasant story of a large family living at top speed in a big barn of a house has appeal for both boys and girls from 8 to 12." S. C. G.

+ N Y Times p20 D 11 '49 150w

"Mrs. Pennywink is wonderful—a calm, serene lady who loves and trusts her boys and is never unduly bothered by them. Her control of the food problem alone makes the story worth reading. . . This is a book that would be great fun to read aloud in a family circle. Undoubtedly, however, a good many boys and girls will read it for themselves with profit and pleasure." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:25 N 12 '49 180w

CLARK, ELMER TALMAGE. Small sects in America. rev & enl ed 256p $3 Abingdon-Cokesbury

280.973 Sects. U.S.—Religion 49-10200

"A book first published in 1937, and out of print for several years, appears with minor changes. Statistics have been brought up to date and an index of religious bodies has been added. Contents: The sectarian spirit in American Christianity; Pessimistic or adventist sects; Perfectionist or subjectivist sects; Charismatic or pentecostal sects; Communistic sects; Legalistic or objectivist sects; Characteristics of the small sects." Booklist

Booklist 46:65 O 15 '49

"The original edition of this highly useful book, which has been out of print for several years, appeared in 1937 and at once filled a very definite need. . . The author has seen no reason to change his classification in the new edition. He has made his meaning a little clearer by calling the first class pessimistic or advent; his second, perfectionist or subjectivist; his third, charismatic or pentecostal; and his fifth, legalistic or objectivist. The revision consists mainly in bringing the information concerning the various movements down to date. There are some additional bodies described under most of the five classes; for example, under the legalistic Judaism in its various branches is well described." C. S. Braden

+ Christian Century 66:1039 S 7 '49 1350w

Reviewed by A. W. Taylor

Churchman 164:17 Ja 1 '50 190w

"Perhaps the major inadequacy of the volume is the author's failure to define what he means by 'sect.' There are at least four divergent but rather widely accepted definitions of a 'sect,' any one of which might have provided a satisfactory basis for a discussion of the small sects of America. But since the book lacks a typology of any sort and uses 'sect' with varying connotations throughout the general result is to add further confusion rather than clarification to the field as a whole. This, of course, is not to impeach the very real contribution it makes in terms of valuable discussions of individual religious bodies." W. S. Hudson

+ — Crozer Q 27:88 Ja '50 400w

CLARK, GLENN. A man's reach; autobiography. 314p $3 Harper

B or 92 Teachers—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-11221

"This is the autobiography of an idea as lived by Glenn Clark, retired professor and coach of Macalester College in St. Paul. He describes 'an authentic experience of answered prayer.' Here's a man who believes steadfastly—and predicates his entire life on that faith—that prayer does accomplish things. He is convincing, even to a doubter, that God has never failed him, that prayer is the mightiest force in the world." Churchman

"The widely known man who here tells his own life story was . . . most notably the teacher of many thousands of people concerning the principles and practice of prayer, both through his writings and by his personal leadership. Those who have known him in this last capacity would be disappointed if his autobiography did not tell, in full, of his own experience with the effectiveness of prayer. They will have no reason for disappointment. Dr. Clark's testimony is complete and explicit. It will find many grateful readers." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 66:1267 O 26 '49 140w

"Fascinating account." J. E. Moseley

+ Churchman 163:16 D 15 '49 150w

"Glenn Clark writes well and there is nothing dull about this book. Since he is scarcely one to hide his light under a bushel, this story of his life will mean much to the many for whom he has cast light upon the path of life. This should be classified with books on prayer and mysticism, for Protestants."

+ Kirkus 17:647 D 1 '49 170w

CLARK, JOHN MAURICE. Alternative to serfdom; five lectures delivered . . . at the University of Michigan, March 1947. 153p $3 Knopf

338.01 Economic policy 48-5908

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Foreign Affairs 27:332 Ja '49 30w

Reviewed by C. D. Edwards

J Pol Econ 57:449 O '49 1100w

Manchester Guardian p3 F 8 '49 270w

"If the reader hopes for something as interesting as The Road to Serfdom, he will be sadly disappointed. This is an extremely dull book. . . [However] this a dignified and honourable contribution to the subject. It is wise over a wide range of subjects, where it is hard to avoid folly. It is important as a declaration by an American economist of standing that laissez faire is not enough, that Keynes has his place and that there are great problems in the field of economic relations which need thinking out anew."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p119 F 19 '49 550w

"This slim volume poses a major contemporary issue. That question is: How can the inevitable necessity of large-scale economic organizations for production and distribution be brought into balance with man's no less urgent need for the maximum of personal freedom and of free participation in planning and control of his own activities? Upon this question the author brings to bear rich practical experience as well as wide observation and sharp analysis."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:59 Mr '49 320w

CLARK, JOHN MAURICE. Guideposts in time of change; some essentials for a sound American economy. 210p $3 Harper

338.973 U.S.—Economic policy 49-7507

The basis of this book was six lectures delivered at Amherst college. The author, a professor of economics at Columbia university, discusses the threat of totalitarianism, and a way to get along with the Russians; he outlines our own objectives; and takes up such subjects as spending, employment, wages, prices and costs, collective bargaining, etc. Index.

"The book is packed with penetrating analysis, wise reflections, and challenging explorations. A reviewer can single out for comment only those things which seem to him of special importance or interest. Other readers would give a different emphasis, but none will fail to find in this book a great deal that is significant and interesting." D. H. Wallace
+ Am Econ R 39:1317 D '49 3000w

Reviewed by B. H. Beckhart
Ann Am Acad 263:247 My '49 420w

"For the more serious reader, this also demands a certain understanding of economic cause and effect."
Kirkus 16:652 D 15 '48 160w

"Professor Clark—Professor of Economics at Columbia University—has been a major figure in his profession for as long as most economists can remember. He has achieved this eminence partly by always having something to say and by saying it with moderation. It is pleasant to report that these durable virtues have not gone unnoticed and also that, lectures or not, this is a good book." J. K. Galbraith
+ N Y Times p3 Mr 13 '49 950w

"These solemn suggestions for survival are set forth by a man who can think in large terms and yet refrain from making proposals so sweeping as to be useless; who can sympathize with the aspirations of labor and yet recognize that wages can rise to a point at which the resistance of management becomes something other than mere selfish perversity. . . Professor Clark, finally, is a thinker so remote from dogmatism that he at last only commits his ideas to 'the hopper, with the hope that they include some useful ingredients . . .' These are not inconsiderable virtues." G. T.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 17 '49 270w

Reviewed by Asher Brynes
Sat R of Lit 32:33 Je 4 '49 900w

Reviewed by I. B. Kravis
Springf'd Republican p21A Jl 10 '49 550w

CLARK, LE MON. Sex and you. 203p $2.75 Bobbs

392.5 Sex. Marriage 49-1711

"The purpose of this book is to show that sex can be talked about objectively, sanely, reasonably, and openly; that one may deal with it with an element of humor without making a ribald jest and seek to establish sane habits of thought and action where sex is primarily concerned which will contribute to the happiness of the individual and the welfare of the race." (School & Society) No index.

Booklist 45:257 Ap 1 '49
School & Society 69:271 Ap 9 '49 80w

CLARK, MRS MARGUERITE (SHERIDAN). Medicine on the march; a progress report. 308p $3.50 Funk

610 Medicine 49-9727

A survey of the progress made in the medical sciences during and since World war II. Contents: High blood pressure; Heart disease; Cancer; Tuberculosis; Psychiatry; Mental health of children; Rehabilitation; War medicine; Allergy; Infantile paralysis; Alcoholism; Epilepsy; New drugs and techniques; Mother and child health; Health in old age. The author is medical editor of Newsweek. Index.

Booklist 46:8 S 1 '49

"This is a capable concentration, and, if you're predisposed, fascinating one, of the knowns, and still to be solved unknowns, of our major health hurdles. . . The market will be the interested lay medic."
+ Kirkus 17:262 My 15 '49 120w

"The subjects are presented factually and without any attempt to stress 'wonders'. It is good and also safe reading for all laymen." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 74:1329 S 15 '49 60w

"Marguerite Clark has accomplished two difficult objectives. The first is the excellent documentation of the scientific and medical advances made during the past few years. The professional reader, if analytical, will be appalled at the tremendous number of hours of research necessary for such an authoritative offering. The second is the skill the author has exercised in translating statistics, scientific terminology and clinical observations into bright, interesting prose that reads like fiction." H. A. Rusk
+ N Y Times p6 Jl 17 '49 850w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 S 11 '49 200w

"Mrs. Clark is primarily a reporter, and a good one. In fact her judgment on what should be reviewed in a paper like Newsweek and hence in this book is at least as good as that of many a medico. She proclaims no 'cures' where there are only alleviations. She does not gasp in astonishment at what has been accomplished by organized effort at a certain critical time. . . Mrs. Clark is right up to date, so that she even has something on the recently announced Huggins test for cancer. Indeed, her chapter on cancer is an excellent review of what has been accomplished in recent years in the treatment of the most dreadful disease." Waldemar Kaempffert
+ Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ag 20 '49 450w

CLARK, PHILIP. Dark river. 233p $2 Simon & Schuster

49-9150

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Je 10 '49 60w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 My 22 '49 130w

"There are good characterization and moments of hidden-danger tenseness in this above-average book." E. B.
+ N Y Times p11 Je 12 '49 200w

New Yorker 25:96 Je 4 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Je 12 '49 60w

"Feverish."
Sat R of Lit 32:34 Jl 9 '49 40w
Springf'd Republican p7B Jl 17 '49 90w

CLARK, SYDNEY AYLMER. All the best in Hawaii. 337p il $4 Dodd

919.69 Hawaiian Islands—Description and travel 49-10966

"Presents first, the plain facts of travel life to and within the islands. . . The second portion of the book presents a short, swift history of the islands, from their discovery by Captain Cook to their trial by bombs on December 7, 1941, and their postwar surge toward statehood." (Foreword) The third and fourth sections of the book contain guidebook information.

Booklist 46:122 D 1 '49

"Gives you just enough history to make things lively, tracing the islands from the days when to be caught eating with your wife, or letting your shadow fall on a chief, or—if you were a woman—to be found eating a banana, meant death."

CLARK, S. A.—Continued
+ Sat R of Lit 32:52 N 19 '49 170w

CLARK, SYDNEY AYLMER. All the best in Scandinavia. 413p il $4 Dodd
914.8 Scandinavia—Description and travel 49-7832

A tourist's guidebook to Norway, Sweden and Denmark, containing advice on travel, sightseeing, eating, etc. in those countries. Small maps on end papers. Index.

Booklist 45:239 Mr 15 '49
Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '49

"Entertaining traveler's guide. . . A wealth of up-to-date information is presented in appealing form by author who has done many similar writing jobs successfully. Heartily recommended for travel collections in public libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 74:305 F 15 '49 100w

"Endowed with exceptional perceptions and a great capacity for observing and understanding, Sydney Clark has long displayed a combination of talents that has made him one of the best, as he is one of the most prolific, writers of books on travel. To date he has produced over a score of them. . . His latest book on Scandinavia is one of the very best in his long list." J. H. Wuorinen
+ N Y Times p22 Ap 24 '49 450w
San Francisco Chronicle p16 My 15 '49 450w
Sat R of Lit 32:48 Mr 19 '49 140w

Reviewed by Janet Sabloff
Survey 85:451 Ag '49 140w

CLARK, THOMAS DIONYSIUS. Rural press and the new South. 111p $2 La. state univ. press
071.5 Newspapers—South 48-10642

Three of the Walter Lynwood Fleming lectures, delivered at Louisiana State University. In them the author gives a resumé of his book The Southern Country Editor (Book Review Digest 1948). It is an appraisal of the part played by the country editor in the civilization of the South after the Civil war.

Reviewed by F. M. Green
Am Hist R 54:622 Ap '49 150w

"The author has done much tedious research and has written in an interesting style. This book should be widely read." G. C. Osborn
+ Ann Am Acad 265:188 S '49 400w

"The reader who lacks time to give to the 350-odd pages of the larger volume may find in the smaller one the gist of what Mr. Clark has to say. . . However, compression has served to squeeze out most of the human juices that make the larger volume not only diverting but a highly instructive document in American psychology." G. W. Johnson
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p21 Ja 30 '49 170w
School & Society 69:135 F 10 '49 30w

CLARK, WALTER VAN TILBURG. Track of the cat. 404p $3.50 Random house 49-9031

Symbolic novel depicting the struggle between good and evil. The action takes place in three days on a remote Nevada ranch. Only one family lives in the secluded valley. The first snowfall of the season brings the knowledge that a panther has been killing the cattle. Two of the Bridges brothers go out to track down the panther and both meet death. The story of the effects of this upon the other members of the family is on two levels: the realistic and the symbolic.

Booklist 45:305; 335 My 15 '49; Je 1 '49

"Strong, compelling story, with some rough language."
Bookmark 9:5 O '49 40w

"The story of the hunt for the cruel beast parallels the fight between good and evil in the minds and hearts of a group of white people and one silent, mysterious old Indian who are trapped together in a ranch house by a blizzard. As the author examines the acts and motives of the group with ruthless, but compassionate, scrutiny, the reader follows breathlessly through 400 pages of tense, exciting action, cleverly contrived suspense, and deep and violent emotion. The language is forthright, but nothing is dragged in for the sake of sensationalism. Whatever is there belongs. . . The Track of the Cat is a book for mature readers. It does not belong in the high school library." B. J. Thompson
Cath World 169:317 Jl '49 220w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Je 1 '49 400w

"The grim tension, so often effective, is weakened by being overextended. The intentionally slow pace is sometimes bogged down to a complete halt by the use of so many similar incidents and by some very wordy and repetitious introspective passages. . . A character's folksy conversation with himself in the familiar dialect is interspersed with passages in which his thoughts are conveyed in stilted, rather literary language. But the novel's unity is seriously disrupted by the description of Curt's hunt. Knowing his power of evoking suspense, Mr. Clark unfortunately overdoes it here in an impossibly long passage of more than one hundred pages. However, these shortcomings fail to negate the effect of this starkly compelling novel." Murray Krieger
+ — Christian Science Monitor p18 Je 11 '49 500w
Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '49

"Rates 'excellent' in western fiction, in the slow and steady building up of character and emotional atmosphere."
+ Kirkus 17:186 Ap 1 '49 210w

"A well-delineated harsh Western mountain locale is combined with almost psychotic characters to produce this very strange novel. . . Vivid descriptions of delirious dreams, family hatreds, and violent emotions without a shred of humor contribute to the heavy atmosphere. It all adds up to a repulsive, yet quite suspenseful, tale." Clarence Gorchels
Library J 74:817 My 15 '49 80w

"This is an ambitious book to which the word effortful might be applied in an attempt to pin down what is sometimes wrong with it—that it seems to overstrain for stature, and at such times has its longeurs; or to speak more plainly, the total intended effect does not, for one reader, always quite come off. But it is nevertheless aimed for with integrity, so that 'The Track of the Cat' constitutes a true exploit of the mind, probing deeply, if perhaps too dourly, beneath the surface of its own excitements." James Hilton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Je 5 '49 900w

"For one reader, at any rate, this is the real beauty of Walter Clark's masterful prose—its wonderful capacity to evoke from the homeliest circumstances the quality of grief and loneliness that exists deep in or under every human effort. The sharp visual clarity and the consequent fulness of evocation in scene after scene—many of them sustained in the most lavish detail for page after page—are a constant delight." Mark Schorer
+ N Y Times p1 Je 5 '49 1350w

"Mr. Clark knows his Nevada, as 'The Ox-Bow Incident' proved, and he knows how to tell a good hunting story. I'm afraid, though, that his wish to write a latter-day, landlocked 'Moby Dick,' in which the black mountain lion takes the place of the white whale, has made him overreach himself. Merely to talk about evil in a novel about evil isn't enough. It has to be shown at work, evil doing as evil does, and while Mr. Clark's mountain lion is a remarkably ornery one, I never felt, despite his unusual color, and the ominous buildup he is given, that he transcended the form and behavior of a mountain lion." Hamilton Basso
+ — New Yorker 25:84 Je 4 '49 380w

"The reason why 'The Track of the Cat' will last, the reason why it is, finally, a novel of the first rank, is that its author says something of universal significance. The black panther is there; that is the long and short of it. It has always been there since the beginning of Man's existence in the world. It will always be there, looming over Man and always to be hunted though never killed. Each man, so to put it, must hunt his black panther in his own way. It is because Mr. Clark knows this and has made the universal problem the core of his novel that the book is the fine thing it is." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 5 '49 1800w

"There is artistic unity and simplicity in 'The Track of the Cat,' but there is also some of the looseness and apparent capriciousness of events which are in life. The actions have implications that go far beyond their limited context. It is masterful, consistently sustained story telling, and it purges with pity and terror." Edmund Fuller

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:9 Je 4 '49 1200w

"How much readers like The Track of the Cat will depend on how much of Author Clark's forced symbolism they can swallow. Every movement of every character is set down in meticulous, tiresome detail, so that the lifting of a tool or the pouring of a glass of whisky becomes almost a rite, and a wearying one. Clark writes in clear, carefully composed sentences that command the respect any fine workman deserves. . . The Track of the Cat is a splendid failure in which a simple tale has been smothered in a stew of inarticulated meaning."

— + Time 53:104 Je 6 '49 700w

"Harsh, tense, full of suspense, well written though repulsive in the opinion of some reviewers. For the mature reader."

Wis Lib Bul p8 N '49

"His story is continuously and wonderfully exciting. He is able to bring before the reader with extraordinary vividness the clash of stubborn wills in the snow-bound ranchhouse, the unpopulated mountain landscape, the snow and cold, and above all, the hunt itself. In spite of carefully deploying his characters to represent various attitudes towards his theme, Clark's moral position is essentially very simple —too simple, I think to deal adequately with the ambiguities inherent in the situation." Paul Pickrel

+ — Yale R n s 39:190 autumn '49 600w

CLARK, WILLIAM BELL. Captain Dauntless; the story of Nicholas Biddle of the continental navy. 317p il $4.50 La. state univ. press

B or 92 Biddle, Nicholas. U.S.—History, Naval 49-2725

"The first Philadelphian to bear the name of Nicholas Biddle was a Quaker born in 1750 who went to sea at fifteen, succeeded Esek Hopkins as commander of the first American Fleet at twenty-six, obtained command of one of the first frigates in the Continental Navy at twenty-seven, and was killed a year later in 1778, when, in his first major encounter with the enemy the magazine of his ship blew up." (Sat R of Lit) This biography of him is based on all the records available. Bibliography. Index.

Current Hist 16:344 Je '49 40w

"An unfamiliar figure, Biddle is established here as a worthy partner of John Paul Jones. The market however will be chiefly among students of naval history."

Kirkus 17:229 Ap 15 '49 130w

"Mr. Clark deserves the highest praise for his painstaking researches in a very difficult field, as well as for creating a sympathetic and credible picture of his subject. The author has a weakness for 'reconstructing' conversations, but he has generally cited his sources, and has been discrete in his use of nautical terminology. It is possible, in the latter connection, to object to his use of 'main deck' to describe the Randolph's berth deck. . . But 'Captain Dauntless' should hold no little interest for the general reader, while those especially concerned with naval history will receive it with real gratitude." Harry Baehr

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ag 7 '49 750w

"'Captain Dauntless' will find a welcome in the naval historian's collection. While it is not an important book for the general reader, aside from imparting the information that John Paul Jones wasn't the only captain in the Continental Navy, it is probably the definitive piece of work on Nicholas Biddle." R. W. Daly

+ N Y Times p18 My 22 '49 400w

"Mr. Clark brings to his task a considerable store of erudition on the Naval side of the Revolutionary War . . . and 'Captain Dauntless' is perhaps more valuable for its wealth of miscellaneous detail on the Navy of the Revolution than for its portrait of Biddle himself." R. S. West, Jr.

+ Sat R of Lit 32:42 My 14 '49 800w

"Mr. Clark has done a remarkably thorough job of research on Biddle and has written a most absorbing book on his life and times, as well as of the early days of the American Navy." R. F. H.

+ Spring'd Republican p5D Je 5 '49 160w

CLEAVER, DENIS. Pongo the Terrible; il. by G. W. Backhouse. 96p $1.50 Presbyterian bd.

Dogs—Legends and stories 49-8397

Story of two dogs, Mr Willis and Mr Wallis, who lived in Epping Forest in England. A gypsy dog persuaded them to go out to see the world, and there they all met Pongo the Terrible, a malicious circus poodle. When the poodle played a mean trick on little Mr Wallis, his friends came to the rescue. For ages six to ten.

"Children will enjoy this dog world with no humans to speak of; the story is unpretentious and not too well written, but the idea is original and the development entertaining."

+ — Kirkus 17:150 Mr 15 '49 90w

"Here is a book about dogs written by a man who obviously loves and understands them, and who has also a sense of fun. . . A lively story for 6 to 10-year-olds." R. A. Gordon

+ N Y Times p30 My 8 '49 150w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:39 Je 11 '49 50w

CLEAVES, FREEMAN. Rock of Chickamauga; the life of General George H. Thomas. 328p il maps $3.75 Univ. of Okla. press

B or 92 Thomas, George Henry. U.S.—History—Civil war 48-11913

"The military career of a notable Civil War general, who, though born in the South, served the Union forces and earned a reputation as an outstanding tactician though denied the glory achieved by other northern leaders." Publisher's Weekly

"A competent, well-documented volume. Cleaves writes well; and if his narrative sometimes lacks color, so did General Thomas." F. H. Harrington

Am Hist R 54:892 Jl '49 480w

Reviewed by William Barrett

Atlantic 183:91 Mr '49 360w

Booklist 45:191 F 1 '49

Reviewed by H. S. Commager

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 D 19 '48 850w

"The Cleaves volume is generously illustrated, handsomely made, and furnished with a formal bibliography. On one important phase of the life of Thomas, Cleaves' book is quite superior. That phase is the conduct of the general in Reconstruction, and it is significant in an examination of the life of the man because it throws light on what must have been the darkest recess of his heart." W. B. Hamilton

+ N Y Times p6 D 19 '48 500w

CLEAVES, FREEMAN—Continued
"The book is more soberly written than Mr. O'Connor's and is more straightforward, but it lacks the other book's excitement and verve."
+ New Yorker 24:112 D 18 '48 80w

Reviewed by Luther Nichols
San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ja 30 '49 430w

"Each of the two biographies is a distinct improvement upon the four that have been given Thomas in the past. Mr. O'Connor's is the more brilliant in portraiture and color, Mr. Cleaves's the more instructive as to military movements. Both books belong on the shelves of readers curious about war in general and the Civil War, in particular, for while they do not perform the impossible and open the locked lips of the man, they each deepen the sculptural lines which bring dimension and detail to the massive 'Rock of Chickamauga.'" Lloyd Lewis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ja 15 '49 320w
Time 52:60 D 2 '48 350w

"The first scholarly study of the Civil War leader, George H. Thomas, this biography will do much to restore a neglected man to his rightful stature as one of the great soldiers of the United States."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:42 Mr '49 380w

CLEMENS, CYRIL. Mark Twain and Franklin D. Roosevelt; with a foreword by Eleanor Roosevelt. 22p il $2; pa $1.50 Int. Mark Twain soc.

B or 92 Clemens, Samuel Langhorne. Roosevelt, Franklin Delano

"With a foreword by Eleanor Roosevelt, and dedicated to the Right Honorable W. L. MacKenzie King, this is an account of the interview of the author with the president when presenting him with the Mark Twain Gold Medal." School & Society

School & Society 70:223 O 1 '49 40w
Springf'd Republican p8C N 27 '49 110w

CLEMENS, SAMUEL LANGHORNE (MARK TWAIN, pseud). Love letters of Mark Twain; ed. and with an introd. by Dixon Wecter. 374p $5 Harper

B or 92 Clemens, Olivia (Langdon) 49-11711

"By giving Mr. Wecter the go-ahead signal on this collection, the Mark Twain estate, which has been sitting on these letters for nearly fifty years, has made it possible for Twain's fans at last to roam the inmost quadrangle of his private life. They will find there, among other things, a humorist so desperately in love that he writes without regard for the boffolas, a confirmed freethinker so distraught during pre-troth that he fumblingly embraces Congregationalism, and a Mississippi river-boat character so keen to make romantic headway in Elmira, New York, that he willingly suppresses his best verbal instincts." New Yorker

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 185:82 Ja '50 600w
Booklist 46:157 Ja 1 '50
Bookmark 9:77 Ja '50 40w

"If all the world still loves a lover, then this large and important collection of letters is destined to go down as the most endearing piece of Twainiana that has ever been published." Edward Wagenknecht
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 20 '49 550w
Kirkus 17:535 S 15 '49 140w

"Of all Mark Twain's posthumous publications this is the most revealing of his innermost nature." DeLancey Ferguson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 N 27 '49 1400w

Reviewed by S. T. Williamson
+ N Y Times p53 N 13 '49 1050w
New Yorker 25:159 N 12 '49 160w

Reviewed by R. E. Spiller
Sat R of Lit 33:17 Ja 28 '50 750w
Springf'd Republican p10B D 25 '49 390w

CLEMENS, SAMUEL LANGHORNE (MARK TWAIN, pseud). Mark Twain to Mrs. Fairbanks; ed. by Dixon Wecter. 286p il $5 Huntington lib.

B or 92 Fairbanks, Mrs Mary J. (Mason). Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-9860

Mrs Mary Mason Fairbanks was one of the party of "Innocents" who traveled to Palestine in the summer of 1867 on board the Quaker City. She became, on that trip, a friend and mentor to Samuel Clemens. In the years which followed, until her death in 1898, they kept up a more or less faithful exchange of letters, greetings and visits. Mark Twain's side of the correspondence is given here, with an Introduction and many interpolated editorial notes to relate the letters to his other activities. Index.

Booklist 46:32 S 15 '49
Current Hist 17:161 S '49 60w

"With the exception of the correspondence with William Dean Howells, this is the most revealing series of letters to any one outside the humorist's own family which has yet been published. . . To all this varied record Dixon Wecter has added commentary and elucidation which make the book a little masterpiece of humane scholarship." DeLancey Ferguson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 14 '49 600w
New Yorker 25:110 S 10 '49 140w

"For any Twain fan [these letters] will be vastly entertaining reading, just on the surface. For the Twain student, they will help enormously toward further interpretation of the character of one of America's greatest writers." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 14 '49 1000w

"Mr. Wecter's editing is in all ways a superb job. He knits the letters together with a narrative which is unobtrusive yet which keeps the letters from seeming to be, as indeed they are, fragments scattered over a long range of time and topic. He provides supporting documentation from published and unpublished Twainiana; and in judging any controversial issues, he looks with the judicious and accurate eye of a perfect umpire. Such editing, along with such excellent printing, is a happy circumstance for Twain's correspondence." Robert Halsband
+ Sat R of Lit 32:17 O 22 '49 500w

Reviewed by J. W. Culver
Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 14 '49 420w
Times [London] Lit Sup p752 N 18 '49 850w

CLEWES, HOWARD. Mask of wisdom. 346p $3.50 Dutton 49-7174

"A mixture of drama, fantasy and satire. The scene is the capital of a defeated European country; a Dictator has been succeeded by an ageing Liberal President. . . Thea Njemcova, who works as assistant secretary to the Commission, has in the past unwillingly borne one of the Fascist leaders an illegitimate son; this boy is discovered and denounced by the people, some of whom demand his execution. The Commission hesitates, and then compromises by handing the boy over to the puppet Government; he is kidnapped by Communists, but escapes and immediately performs a miracle. The people then acclaim him as their saviour." Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by Nelson Algren
Chicago Sun p6X Ja 30 '49 130w

"'The Mask of Wisdom' approaches a complex problem with great earnestness of purpose, expressed in mature and thoughtful prose." M. W. Stoer
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 F 12 '49 600w

"This may find a selective and special audience, but for the general reader, the philosophic, metaphysical intention may be confusion."
Kirkus 17:9 Ja 1 '49 150w

"Readers who like novels on two simultaneous levels, realistic and symbolic, may admire this. Others are likely to find it fluent, accomplished, and rather dull." E. F. Walbridge
Library J 74:125 Ja 15 '49 70w

"Mr. Clewes, in line with his proclivity for symbolism, has made of the boy, Stefan Miller, and his mother, Thea Njemcova, the secretary, poignant expressions of the abused and tormented innocence of a people. Almost as obvious are the meaning of the self-exiled professor whom Thea once loved, her articulate neurotic brother, Charles, and the baronial violator, Miller. But beyond them, clarity falls prey to belabored writing, and the difficulty in following the story is increased by the preponderance of unimportant characters and Mr. Clewes's lack of feeling for time and place." Bennell Braunstein
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ja 23 '49 600w

"In working out this story Mr. Clewes successfully avoids both blasphemy and the cheaply edifying. But he is less successful in other respects. His purpose, for one thing, is inscrutable. The precise degree of Stefan's divinity is never unequivocally told; his mission remains obscure. . . Indeed, we are often made aware that characters represent much more than themselves, but we are never sure just what." Donald Barr
N Y Times p23 F 27 '49 470w

"Thea is the main victim of Mr. Clewes' symbolistic bent, and it is a pity; some of the minor figures, less heavily underscored, come off much better. The story, which covers only a few days, is recounted in a rapid and significant undertone that sometimes bogs down in its own irony and sometimes rises on a quick, keen note of description. One has the feeling at the last that everyone in the book, having spoken and been heard, has turned back to stone."
— + New Yorker 24:66 Ja 29 '49 200w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Mr 16 '49 900w

"Howard Clewes's fourth novel is a book its readers are likely to remember. The admirable construction which shapes its growth and bears its story along makes for avid interest while one is reading, and later one is enlightened by the dawning of its very personal message. What lifts this book above the mediocre horde is that its message is at once personal and universal. In spite of us the book takes hold. . . The book is somewhat shy on color (local, if you like) and rather distressingly so on texture, so that frequently it reads like notes jotted down on a case history." Paul Hollister
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:12 F 5 '49 450w

"Mr. Clewes weaves several difficult themes into an interesting and more or less convincing whole. The political and spiritual implications are kept secondary to the personal drama, but the satire is sharp and the matter of the miracle, which might have been a stumbling-block, is well handled."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p593 O 23 '48 270w

CLEWES, WINSTON DAVID ARMSTRONG. Journey into spring. 223p $3 Knopf 49-9451

"[Novel] about a troubled British veteran's assumption of his duties as a village squire. The ex-soldier, who is, with good reason, feeling quite unsociable after a long imprisonment at Sachsenhausen, finds when he returns to Britain that he has unexpectedly inherited a title, a crumbling Gothic manor house, and the traditional social leadership of the hamlet around his estate. Being indifferent to all these prerogatives, he angrily rebuffs his fellow-townsmen. His involvement in the affairs of an unhappy couple at last drives a sense of civic and personal responsibility into him." New Yorker

---

Booklist 45:355 Je 15 '49

"This is not a novel to be read rapidly for entertainment, but rather one to be savored and profitably scanned as an example of spiritual rebirth, and a lesson in tolerance. If the execution does not always live up to the author's undeniable earnestness of purpose, by reason of an oversimplification of action and characterization, it still contains much that is praiseworthy in its form. Best of all, it succeeds in being both comfortable and comforting." M. W. Stoer
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 5 '49 600w

"Lightweight, mildly entertaining novel of rural England today." Richard McLaughlin
Commonweal 50:346 Jl 15 '49 390w

"For a discriminating audience, rather than a popular one."
+ Kirkus 17:279 Je 1 '49 170w

"There is power and distinction in Mr. Clewes' writing. Highly recommended." H. R. Forbes
+ Library J 74:955 Je 15 '49 70w

"Human and humane, this original treatment of the returned soldier is very likely the best novel of irascibility soothed since peace came to Mr. Polly." Harold Brighouse
+ Manchester Guardian p3 My 28 '48 150w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 121:26 Jl 11 '49 220w

"The situation is real enough. . . Moreover, the setting is real enough. . . But this is not enough to prevent the novel from giving an impression of artificiality. . . Fletton is not a character at all, he is a disposition. The lesser creatures in the story have the bewildered demeanour of people taken over from some less pretentious narrative and then chased round to do and say much they would have preferred to forgo. Mr. Clewes runs them very hard and there is, as a result, hardly a page of his book that does not give off squeaks under the strain." P. H. Newby
— + New Statesman & Nation 35:528 Je 26 '48 180w

"Another of that crop of post-war English novels that have more than their intrinsic qualities to recommend them. For it is not only well written and very readable, but it points up a typical English preoccupation during a period of change—the quest for threads of continuity between past and future." James Hilton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Je 19 '49 700w

"Winston Clewes imagines the inner compulsions of his hero and the outer decay of the estate of Fletton extremely well and with great authenticity of detail. And the whole novel is very readable, for the other ingredients are such old and welcome friends that it seems impolite to ask what they are doing there. But the village types who come bobbing on with their set speeches, and Mr. Clewes' melodramatic determination to have every scene settled exactly at the third-act curtain, finally destroy in 'Journey Into Spring' the illusion of serious drama." R. G. Davis
— + N Y Times p7 Je 19 '49 600w

"Although the unwilling peer's misanthropy seems overdrawn at times, Mr. Clewes' treatment of the returning-soldier theme and of contemporary Britain is thoughtful and precise."
+ — New Yorker 25:83 Je 18 '49 160w

"Most American readers will remember Winston Clewes for his first-rate novel of Jonathan Swift, 'The Violent Friends.' Now he has done another first-rate job." W. S. Lynch
+ Sat R of Lit 32:17 Jl 16 '49 500w

"The atmosphere of the house and the English village is well conveyed by the stern sinewy writing. And though one may occasionally be allowed some impatience with Mr. Clewes for not moving faster, there is never the slightest doubt that he knows where he is going and why." Robert Kee
+ Spec 180:716 Je 11 '48 140w

CLEWES, W. D. A.—Continued
"Fletton himself, on whom all depends, never comes really to life, and the other characters remain pale. Most of Mr. Clewes's very considerable skill is expended in contriving the background and a kind of muffled-drum undertone in his style."
Times [London] Lit Sup p313 Je 5 '48 360w

CLINCHY, EVERETT ROSS. Handbook on human relations; with il. by Marshall Lee. 146p $2 Farrar, Straus

301.15 Antipathies and prejudices. U.S.—Race question 49-11889

"The president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews offers to workers in labor and management and to all others interested in developing a program for better intergroup relations simple answers to everyday questions about race, prejudice, etc. Questions for discussion at ends of chapters, bibliography." Bookmark

Booklist 46:136 D 15 '49

Bookmark 9:52 D '49 50w

Kirkus 17:502 S 1 '49 150w

"Highly recommended." Margaret Monroe
+ Library J 74:1819 D 1 '49 80w

"There are many approaches to a solution of our racial problem. Certainly to present material and establish a mechanism for furthering the spread of these ideas is logical and legitimate. But there is the necessity to engage in some definite and incisive action against this evil; discussion alone will not suffice. This could have been stressed more." H. R. Cayton
N Y Times p46 N 27 '49 400w

"Written for use by industrial and labor groups."
School & Society 70:251 N 26 '49 30w

CLYMER, ELEANOR LOWENTON (JANET BELL, pseud). Latch key club; il. by Corinne Dillon. 282p $2.50 McKay 49-10999

"Voluntarily sacrificing their summer plans and moving to a less expensive apartment to help their doctor mother, the five young Bennetts face a long and lonely vacation. In addition, their neighbors are suspicious and unfriendly. The Bennetts, however, under the leadership of their older brother, Robert, a social work student, overcome this hostility, discover mutual interests and needs, organize a neighborhood club in an empty school building, and have a happy summer." N Y Times

Booklist 46:68 O 15 '49

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p13 Ja 26 '50 120w

"A constructive idea dealing with a nationwide problem, this might easily have been intolerably preachy, but instead is good entertainment, with an idea back of it."
+ Kirkus 17:471 S 1 '49 160w

"A warm and richly human account." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 74:1762 N 15 '49 70w

"Valuable for its social slant, this story about the recreational problems of a group of city children of working mothers has meaning for children everywhere." H. K. Lippmann
+ N Y Times p26 N 13 '49 110w

"Eight to 12ers will enjoy this saga of a summer in the lives of the five Bennett children."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 N 13 '49 80w

COATSWORTH, ELIZABETH JANE (MRS HENRY BESTON). Creaking stair [verses] graphic accompaniment by W. A. Dwiggins. 110p $5 Coward-McCann

811 49-48761

"Ghostly little poems in which the poet has assumed a Gothick disposition. Under cover of darkness she sings of haunted houses, errant cats, and the restless spirits of the dead." Library J

Library J 74:1327 S 15 '49 50w

"Weird, haunting, rather startling poems. Almost all have the quality of ghostliness, some of them particularly compelling."
Library J 74:1563 O 15 '49 20w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ja 8 '50 20w

Reviewed by H. E. Paine
Springf'd Republican p10B Ja 1 '50 120w

COATSWORTH, ELIZABETH JANE (MRS HENRY BESTON). Little haymakers; il. by Grace A. Paull. 80p $2 Macmillan 49-50063

A story of a little boy and his pair of oxen. Terry trained the steer to pull and work together, but they failed to win first prize at the fair. Terry's confidence in himself and his pets was soon restored after a nearly disastrous swimming party. For ages 8 to 10.

Booklist 46:161 Ja 1 '50

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 10 '50 170w

"A good story, with nice country life feel."
+ Kirkus 17:466 S 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid
Library J 74:1536 O 15 '49 70w

"This short story, in big type for younger readers, breathes of the farms and fields of Maine. . . It proves again Elizabeth Coatsworth's (Mrs. Beston) rare ability to write a good tale in a style both simple and beautiful, yet serious in its implications." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 18 '49 250w

"An appealing story with an honest core, for children 6 to 10." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p18 Ja 22 '50 130w

COBB, HUBBARD, ed. Complete home handyman's guide; hundreds of money-saving, helpful suggestions for making repairs and improvements in and around your home. 500p il $3.95 Wise

643.7 Dwellings. Building—Repair and reconstruction 48-1211

"This volume embraces everything from burglar alarms to the intriguing operation of removing furniture dents with a warm iron. It has directions for the repair of all types of home equipment, and clear descriptions of the fundamental systems of heating, wiring, plumbing, and so forth. . . One can learn the secrets of house-owner's liability, why to wash clapboards from the bottom up, and—the greatest challenge to the patience of man—how to hang wallpaper on the ceiling without stealing the act from the Marx Brothers. Here is a family stand-by which belongs on the shelf with Fannie Farmer." (Atlantic) Glossary. Index.

"This book has a solution for every household mystery which has plagued us, and the explanations are both lucid and economical. Profusely illustrated, comprehensive, and clearly detailed. . . The book is simply written and well cross-referenced." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 181:108 My '48 360w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '48

COBLENTZ, CATHERINE (CATE) (MRS W. W. COBLENTZ). Blue cat of Castle Town; il. by Janice Holland. 123p $2.75 Longmans

Cats—Legends and stories 49-9614

Fantasy about the central figure in a rug, fashioned by a girl of Castleton, Vermont, over a hundred years ago. The figure is of a blue cat, and the rug hangs in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. This story tells about the cat's wanderings thru the town, and his adventures here and there, and how he changed the course of Castleton's early history.

Reviewed by Jane Cobb
+ Atlantic 184:103 D '49 60w
Booklist 46:15 S 1 '49
Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun Ag 27 '49 120w

"As the river sang to the kitten and the kitten to the people of Castle Town, so will this enchanting tale sing its way into the hearts of imaginative children and grownups, too." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p28 D 4 '49 280w
Commonweal 51:187 N 18 '49 130w
Horn Bk 25:412 S '49 80w

"An imaginative, poetic and often amusing story, written with great skill, this successfully treads that thin line that wavers between fantasy and realism. . . An unusual and lovely book which could so easily have degenerated into sentimentality, but which sets and holds its own pattern."
+ Kirkus 17:268 Je 1 '49 220w

"Recommended for children up to 12 as a fine story. An older group will appreciate the philosophy and the picture of a bygone America. Splendid drawings." Clara Adams
+ Library J 74:1105 Ag '49 100w

"There will be some, like this reviewer, who wish the story could have been more straightforward, with the fantasy of the little cat perhaps concentrated in a lyric introduction, instead of carrying it through the book, but we hope that many more living towns and old museum objects will be so well served imaginatively as they have been here. To make children of today consider thoughtfully the problem and character of the hand craftsmen is no mean attempt; in fact, it is so noble an aim that the adult reader forgives the excessive sentimentality. Excellent unusual illustrations." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ag 7 '49 290w

"This is an unusual story for unusual readers. The practical-minded may miss the philosophical overtones which give it meaning and thus find it a little too simple. But the imaginative child of 8 to 12 will respond to the poetic feeling expressed in singing prose which makes reading aloud a joy." Marjorie Burger
+ N Y Times p24 Ag 28 '49 230w

"This is an American allegory, beautifully told. . . It is a significant story, but to the children it will be a fairy tale with a lovable little blue cat as its hero."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 S 17 '49 320w
School & Society 69:439 Je 18 '49 70w
Reviewed by Ethel Dexter
Springf'd Republican p7C O 16 '49 210w

COBLENTZ, STANTON ARTHUR. Garnered sheaves (selected poems). 224p $2.75 Wings 811

"The title symbolizes the choice of Stanton A. Coblentz from thirty years in the field of poetry. Mr. Coblentz, as editor of Wings, a magazine of poetry, has served his fellow bards and has been identified with the campaign of the non-obscurantist school of verse making." Sat R of Lit

---

"Mr Coblentz is not a poet of one idea or a single groove. For thirty years he has been ranging in many fields and harvesting good grain in all of them. . . The present volume contains the best from his earlier books and many new poems." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:1173 O 5 '49 80w

"Mr. Coblentz attacks big subjects, treats them in clear, adequate, and rhythmic language. He is always discursive, technically accurate, but not always inspired in his treatment of enigmas of mankind. I prefer Mr. Coblentz when he is profound by accident rather than intent as in his satirical ballad of 'The Merry Hunt'—the nimrod who became the quarry." A. M. Sullivan
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:33 O 22 '49 290w

COBLENTZ, STANTON ARTHUR, comp. Unseen wings; the living poetry of man's immortality. 282p $4.50 Beechhurst press
808.81 Poetry—Collections. Immortality
49-8805

An anthology of poetry about immortality, the world of dreams, visions, and the supernatural. Index of authors, with biographical notes.

Booklist 45:332 Je 1 '49
Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 18 '49 80w

" 'Unseen Wings' stays within the careful framework of the collector, and should be a rewarding volume for the meditative moment." A. M. Sullivan
+ Sat R of Lit 32:20 Je 4 '49 300w
Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 3 '49 120w

COCHRAN, THOMAS CHILDS. Pabst brewing company; the history of an American business. 451p il $5 N.Y. univ. press
663.3 Pabst brewing company, Milwaukee, Wisconsin 48-7477

"This volume is the first in a series of business histories projected by New York University's Graduate School of Business Administration. With the advantages of a thorough knowledge of the broader historical background and unrestricted use of company records to 1933, Professor Cochran has produced a detailed study of the policies and operations of a major business concern over the past century. He covers the principal stages in its development, the advances made in the art of brewing and distributing a quality product, the problems of marketing in a national and worldwide market, the competitive situation facing Pabst and the other big western shipping brewers, and the relations of the firm with other breweries as well as with labor, the government, and the community." J Pol Econ

---

"On the whole, it can be said that business corporations have been quite unbusinesslike in preserving records from a sense of their historical value, particularly for the formulative and early-development periods. The researcher has to be not only diligent but imaginative in his pursuit and recognition of sources. Professor Cochran has set a sound example of awareness as he has explored and used a vast amount of primary and secondary material. Other writers of this type of monograph may gain an excellent idea of what to look for by consulting his study." H. J. Thornton
+ Am Hist R 54:635 Ap '49 500w

"Cochran has produced a straightforward history of an American business, a highly competent and painstaking piece of research." W. T. Easterbrook
+ J Pol Econ 57:271 Je '49 550w

"Economists and businessmen will find particularly valuable the statistical data, the accounts of the importance of technology in manufacturing, and the marketing methods used, especially in early years, to gain wide acceptance of the company's products. The text should also impress upon businessmen the importance of preserving company records, to be used in improving business decisions. Perhaps the greatest contribution made by the book is the account of the resourcefulness with which the company adapted its operations to a unique situation—the prohibition of the sale of its products."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:204 Je '49 280w

COFFIN, GEORGE STURGIS. Fortune poker. 198p $2.50 McKay
795.41 Poker 49-9641

"A world-wide roundup of the traditional American game. Complete with new laws according to Hoyle." (Subtitle) Intended for the player who knows the game. Glossary of poker terms. No index.

Booklist 46:30 S 15 '49

COFFIN, G. S.—Continued

"Excellent book with its commendatory foreword by Ely Culbertson." G. S. Hellman
+ N Y Times p28 S 18 '49 360w

COFFIN, ROBERT PETER TRISTRAM. Coast calendar; decorations by the author. [99p] $3.75 Bobbs

917.41 Maine

A saga in prose and drawings, celebrating the passage of a year on a Maine coastal farm.

Booklist 46:95 N 15 '49

"This is a big book, a beautiful book, one to give away, one to treasure, one to share with others in reading aloud, and its sentences will do with pondering for many of them have the intensity of a poem." Elizabeth Yates
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 1 '49 850w

"He has accommodated every reader except the one who has some imagination and enjoys having it engaged. But who am I to say that his memory and desire have created a mythical Golden Age before lobstermen cleared a hundred dollars a week and bought electrical appliances for their over-worked wives? I live sixty miles farther Down East than Mr. Coffin where we have less snow and more fog, where the annual revolutions of sun and planets include occasional human lapses." Florence Codman
Commonweal 50:539 S 9 '49 350w

Reviewed by Allan Taylor
N Y Times p13 D 25 '49 180w

"I confess a great liking for this vigorous substantiality. We are living in an age of the abstract mood, and of 'ideals' which are but a reflection of a fear of life, and it is spiritually wholesome to be able to 'stand and stare' before a 'rugged' and vital picture of one phase of existence." Henry Beston
+ Sat R of Lit 32:17 S 3 '49 550w

" 'Coast Calendar' is a book to keep and enjoy, a lasting book." Ethel Dexter
+ Springf'd Republican p8C O 30 '49 240w

COFFIN, ROBERT PETER TRISTRAM. One-horse farm; Down-East georgics; il. by the author. 109p $2.50 Macmillan

811 49-3107

Poems about life on a one-horse Maine farm. The illustrations are by the author.

"Of all the volumes of mediocre verse that Coffin has turned out in the last ten to fifteen years, this one is about his poorest and feeblest."
— Kirkus 17:245 My 1 '49 90w

"It is largely surface writing, over which the eye sails easily from couplet to couplet, taking with relaxing pleasure the richly varied country images. The humor is broader, warmer than that of most New England poets."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ag 21 '49 200w

"The collection is very uneven and a number of the poems are not successful. The verse limps badly at times . . . syntax is often strained, and the rhyme of his couplets often falls unhappily on a trivial and unemphatic word. For this reason the poems in quatrains are sometimes a relief to the reader, for Mr. Coffin's verse does not rely very much on skilled metrical technique. When we consider his other fifteen volumes of poetry and a score of other books, he seems to spread his best qualities too thin." M. H. Irvine
— + N Y Times p25 Je 5 '49 380w

New Yorker 25:140 O 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p21 S 18 '49 80w

"Mr. Coffin is the chief lyricist of Maine—and of boys, beans, barns, and boats. He is a prolific poet and a poet who plays but one tune, that of the seasons and of sons. Yet as a pastoral poet he has, I think, few equals today; and if his theme has about it a certain monotony, his approach is usually fresh, and his work has a singular charm." Martha Keller
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:10 Jl 16 '49 360w

"The sense of humor which has characterized his other poems appears at its best here, and all who enjoyed his stories and jokes here last winter as he rolled and smoked cigarets while answering questions after his lecture will be pleased by 'One-Horse Farm.' " J. W. C.
+ Springf'd Republican p6D Je 19 '49 240w

COHEN, I. BERNARD. Science, servant of man; a layman's primer for the age of science. 362p il $4 Little

500 Science 48-3708

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"For those persons who would like to learn more about the methods as well as the results of science, this book will prove very stimulating. It will also broaden the thinking of scientific specialists by giving them a glimpse into what is happening in other important fields, and it does these things in a manner which fascinates the reader's attention. It is a most timely book." G. J. Esselen
+ Chem & Eng N 27:637 F 28 '49 240w

"Certain minor reservations may be entered for the sake of the record: the case of Claude Bernard is almost certainly inapposite as an illustration of the 'happy accident' in research; the relations between Watt and Joseph Black do not appear to have been decisive for the history of the steam engine in quite the way Dr. Cohen makes out; and Hahnemann's colossal error ought not to be juxtaposed with Franklin's mistake about the effect of lightning rods. But the book has everything to commend it: attractive style, wide and accurate learning, beautifully clear exposition of scientific principles for the layman, and a whole troop of good stories; plus a basic idea that is sound, and needs to be spread." Donald Fleming
+ — New Eng Q 22:425 S '49 700w

"Mr. Cohen is over-fond of such slap-dash remarks as 'Science is a way of looking at the external world and uncovering its fundamental truths'; the ends of science need more precise definition than that. And he nowhere attempts to relate scientific to other forms of knowledge. Yet within his limits he has written a good book. . . A better guide for the laymen to methods of research could scarcely be imagined. And—what is of cardinal importance—by following specific researches in detail, and with the same kind of detail as that by which the political or social historian works out the pattern of a period of history, Mr. Cohen quite triumphantly strips his subject of any suggestion of the magical which is the curse of most popularisations of science, even the best intentioned." Walter Allen
+ — New Statesman & Nation 38:131 Jl 30 '49 900w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:14 Ja '49

"The whole thing is excellently done, with that 'slickness' which we have come to look upon as typically American. The excitement which lies behind most pieces of fundamental research is well brought out, and the reader who wishes to find out what scientists do, and how they do it, could not hope for a better guide than Dr. Cohen. His book is, however, comparatively superficial."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p400 Je 17 '49 300w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:496 D '48 360w

COHEN, JEROME B. Japan's economy in war and reconstruction; with a foreword by Sir George Sansom; issued under the auspices of the International secretariat, Institute of Pacific relations. 545p $7.50 Univ. of Minn.

330.952 Japan—Economic conditions. Reconstruction (1939-)—Japan. World war, 1939-1945—Japan 49-9272

"Strangulation rather than atom bombs defeated Japan, this author contends. Our destructive blockade of the home islands' vulnerable economy was the decisive weapon of victory. . . Surveying the 10 years of preparation before Pearl Harbor, and the disastrous functioning of her wartime economy, he ends with an analysis of Japan's present-day vicious circle, which is essentially lack of raw materials, low production, rising inflation, almost no foreign trade, and the consequent inability to pay for raw material imports—the only basis for economic recovery." (San Francisco Chronicle) Indexes.

"This comprehensive study of Japan's economy from the early 1930's through 1948 is an outstanding contribution. . . This book contains certain errors and inconsistencies, mostly small and of minor significance. One weakness is that, despite a long and very useful index, it is at times hard to locate information in the book, which appears to be organized and written as much for consecutive reading as for reference purposes. Also the charts, placed together at the end and not very attractively reproduced, are much less useful than they could be. Such minor limitations do not seriously detract from this major work." W. S. Hunsberger

+ — Am Econ R 39:1308 D '49 900w

Am Soc R 14:828 D '49 120w

Reviewed by C. D. Carus
Ann Am Acad 266:200 N '49 400w

"It is [Japan's] war economy, and its postwar remains, upon which Dr. Cohen, formerly of the United States Strategic Bombing Survey and now at the College of the City of New York, performs an admirably competent economic autopsy. . . Dr. Cohen documents his thesis with a wealth of data from the United States Strategic Bombing Survey." A. D. Morgan

+ Nation 169:140 Ag 6 '49 750w

"This book gives anyone enough facts, figures and perspective to uncloud considerably the confused and conflicting economic reports that emerge from occupied Japan. The author, an assistant professor of history at the College of the City of New York, went to Japan with the United States Strategic Bombing Survey after the war. He includes material from survey reports and United States Navy interrogations to round out an exhaustive picture of the Japanese economy." N. H.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 31 '49 290w

COHEN, MORRIS RAPHAEL. Dreamer's journey. 318p il $4 Beacon press

B or 92 Philosophers—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-7881

Reminiscences of a teacher of philosophy at the City College of New York, who began life as the son of Russian-Jewish immigrants. "This is the life of a thinker. Barring minor excursions into the world of affairs, Morris Cohen analyzes in this book the influences that shaped his thinking, not about the problems and panaceas of the day, but concerning the ultimate inquiries into how men think about them." (N Y Times) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:260 Ap 1 '49

Kirkus 17:174 Mr 15 '49 180w

"It is both ironic and fitting that with the posthumous publication of his autobiography, even though it was left unfinished and the last chapters are fragments, there appears the book by which Morris Cohen will be longest and most widely remembered. It will demand a permanent place among the classics of immigrant narrative, and one not too far behind the greater classics of intellectual biography. And because it reveals in human terms, with humility and yet with a touch of vanity, the sources from which his strength was gathered, it explains why he conspicuously succeeded in writing philosophy that can be read as literature." Perry Miller

+ Nation 168:447 Ap 16 '49 750w

Reviewed by L. S. Feuer
New Repub 120:21 Mr 28 '49 1500w

"The book not only gives insight into the making of a significant mind; it also gives another deep glimpse into the makings of America. It joins the company of Jacob Riis' 'The Making of an American,' Booker Washington's 'Own Story,' and Mary Antin's 'The Promised Land.' This autobiography is an effort, and a triumphant one, as was Morris Cohen's whole life, after things that are of 'perennial value.'" Felix Frankfurter

+ N Y Times pl Mr 27 '49 1850w

New Yorker 25:117 My 14 '49 120w

Reviewed by Robert Bierstedt
Sat R of Lit 32:25 Ag 13 '49 800w

School & Society 70:95 Ag 6 '49 40w

COHEN, MORRIS RAPHAEL. Studies in philosophy and science. 278p $4.50 Holt

104 Philosophy. Science—Philosophy 49-7309

"Essays of late Morris R. Cohen, noted professor of philosophy at City College, N.Y. . . They range from discussion of Hegel's rationalism and of modern concepts of philosophy to logical foundations of the exact sciences. Most fascinating to the layman is autobiographical essay on philosophy of a logician, which amounts to personal confession of faith." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by C. W. Churchman
Ann Am Acad 264:161 Jl '49 480w

Booklist 45:255 Ap 1 '49

"Cohen writes invitingly and lucidly. This volume is one the reader will be glad to have for his own, for he will delight in reading it again and again." D. P. Dryer

+ Canadian Forum 29:189 N '49 300w

Reviewed by H. W. Steiger
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 1 '49 700w

"These are papers written from time to time, some a little dated, some with minor inaccuracies, always giving the impression that you are listening to a wise and thoughtful man. But the new illuminating insight that makes you stop short in your tracks and reconstruct your own thinking to meet the challenge is so rarely found here that it troubles me. The later papers are the best, I think, particularly the one on Hegel and the brilliant criticism of Dewey. The summary of his views in the paper reprinted from Contemporary American Philosophy (1931) comes nearer to doing him justice than any of the rest." H. T. C.

+ J Philos 46:678 O 13 '49 430w

Kirkus 16:651 D 15 '48 110w

"While he was best known for such books as Faith of a Liberal and Introduction to Logic and Scientific Method, these smaller pieces deserve also wide reading. . . Recommended for college and large public libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 74:55 Ja 1 '49 130w

Reviewed by Perry Miller
Nation 168:447 Ap 16 '49 320w

Reviewed by L. S. Feuer
New Repub 120:21 Mr 28 '49 1500w

"The outstanding exhibit in this collection is entitled 'Some Difficulties in John Dewey's Anthropocentric Naturalism.' Here, as in some of the other essays, we find Cohen at his best, criticizing with shafts both pointed and profound what he conceived to be the erroneous emphases of his contemporaries. . . There is really only one word for Cohen. He was brilliant. No one who enjoys watching an agile mind at work can fail to find excitement and even high intellectual adventure in these essays." Robert Bierstedt

+ Sat R of Lit 32:19 Ap 23 '49 550w

"The subjects with which they deal are as varied and interesting as the mind and times which produced them."

+ School & Society 69:197 Mr 12 '49 40w

COHEN, MORRIS RAPHAEL, and DRABKIN, ISRAEL EDWARD. Source book in Greek science. 579p il $9 McGraw

508.2 Science—History—Sources 48-9579

"This volume consists of passages translated from Greek and Roman writers on mathemat-

COHEN, M. R.—Continued
ics, astronomy, physics, chemistry, physiography, geography, biology, medicine, physiology, and psychology. The editors have selected the material on the basis of its being scientific in method. They have provided valuable comments, explanatory notes, and bibliographies. This is not a formal systematic history of Greek science; its intention is to make available something of the original sources on which the historian relies." (Chem & Eng N) Index.

"Teachers and students can profit from an acquaintance with the treasures displayed here. . . The book is recommended to historically minded readers, not primarily for its bearing on chemical history, but because it provides an opportunity to read, in readily understood language, the classic papers and passages that constitute some of the foundation stones of the cognate sciences." R. E. Oesper

+ Chem & Eng N 27:242 Ja 24 '49 320w

"This is an admirably conceived and executed volume, perhaps the most distinguished addition to the Source Books in the History of the Sciences, and it will be without question a source of instruction and delight to its readers." E. N.

+ J Philos 46:715 O 27 '49 330w

School & Society 69:302 Ap 23 '49 30w

"This source book of passages may well become a standard work in its important field."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:265 Je '49 240w

COHEN, ROSE NAOMI. Financial control of education in the consolidated city of New York; with special reference to interrelations between the public school system, the municipal government, and the state. 212p $3 Teachers college

379.11 Education—New York (city). School finance 48-7739

"Many of the major problems in local educational administration are the outgrowth of political interaction of local government agencies and local educational agencies. The present study shows the steps followed in the process of resolving such major financial issues as the basis of administrative authority for the public schools of New York City, and control of the budget and accounting. It also treats critically and with historical perspective the responsibility of the state for education, and the division of responsibility between state and local community for support of education." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. No index.

School & Society 68:358 N 20 '48 70w

"The volume should be of interest to taxpayers generally as well as to educational administrators and boards of education."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:64 Mr '49 200w

COHEN, SANFORD. State labor legislation, 1937-1947; a study of state laws affecting the conduct and organization of labor unions. 150p $2.50 Ohio state univ. Bur. of business research

331.88 Labor laws and legislation. Trade unions

"Presents a concise and critical analysis of state labor legislation and state judicial decisions (an hitherto neglected field) during the decade, 1937-1947. This period represents a complete cycle in the attitudes of state legislatures toward labor unions. The object of this book is to summarize recent trends in state labor law, to point out the geographic similarities and differences, to show the similarities to and contrasts with Federal labor legislation and to analyze the current directions of labor legislation and their implications for employers, employees and the public at large." (Special Libraries) Bibliography. No index.

"One wonders what prompted the Ohio State University Bureau of Business Research to publish this book. With additional work, and a good deal more thought, it might have made a creditable law journal article. In its present form, it is of value neither to the lawyer nor to the social scientist." Walter Galenson

— Ann Am Acad 265:213 S '49 310w

Special Libraries 40:187 My '49 130w

"The book will be especially useful to students of the rapidly changing rules within which American labor relations are worked out. As these rules are increasingly the subject of legislation rather than the accreation of precedents, and each legislature is under different and changing pressures, periodic summary may help to bring some order out of seeming chaos."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:227 Je '49 280w

COHON, BERYL DAVID. Judaism in theory and practice. 243p $3.50 Bloch

296 Jews—Religion. Jews—Rites and ceremonies 48-4466

"Tells of the sources of the Jewish religion, the synagogue, theology, ethics, rituals and holy days. . . The synagogue, says Mr. Cohon, is the 'heart of Israel.' It springs from the people, is based on the people and serves the people. Consequently, it is democratic, vital, independent of autocratic authorities and of states. The synagogue—as current Judaism—is said to be divided into three main branches: Orthodox, Reform and Conservative. All three are presented. . . The problems of these three branches of Judaism are discussed." Christian Science Monitor

"This excellent book fulfills the promise of its title; it describes what Judaism is and how it has developed. . . [It] presents Judaism in a genial, objective, reverent, interesting manner. . . The concluding five-page supplement on 'Why the Jews Rejected Jesus' seems to this reader almost the only inadequate section. . . This book should aid persons seeking understanding and brotherliness. Both Jews and Gentiles would profit from reading it." R. H. Markham

+ — Christian Science Monitor p16 S 25 '48 550w

"We need more books such as this. Written ostensibly for Jewish readers, this volume is also admirably suited to meet the needs of the non-Jewish world for information and enlightenment concerning Jews and Judaism." K. M. Chworowsky

+ Churchman 163:16 Ja 15 '49 110w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '49

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:37 Mr '49 160w

COLBERT, EVELYN SPEYER. Retaliation in international law. 228p $3 King's crown press

341 Reprisals. International law 48-9489

"Study of the practices of states in various periods or situations, discussing the purposes of retaliation, both private and public. The author goes back to the thirteenth century or thereabouts for some of the material. The Napoleonic Wars, offering liberal examples of the subject, are discussed at length, and World War I in some detail." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index.

"A careful, if not exhaustive, study of the actual practice of states with regard to retaliation. . . That the section labeled 'Conclusions' really squarely answers questions may be open to some doubt, but there can be none that the book as a whole evidences able scholarship and is clearly and concisely written. Incidentally, not only those concerned with reprisals as such, but likewise those interested in the historical development of certain of the concepts today commonly associated with the rubric 'Responsibility of States,' should find this volume of value." Valentine Jobst

Am Pol Sci R 43:396 Ap '49 550w

"In this pioneer work on coercive retaliation, Mrs Colbert has made a valuable contribution to the literature of international law and relations. She has judiciously and concisely blended principle with practice, and the historical with the topical. Although the work is scholarly and devoid of dogmatic assertion, and despite the technical nature of its subject matter, it is consistently interesting and challenging." A. N. Dunlap

+ Ann Am Acad 264:131 Jl '49 330w

Current Hist 16:169 Mr '49 40w

Foreign Affairs 27:680 Jl '49 10w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:83 Mr '49 280w

COLBY, MERLE ESTES. Big secret. 375p $3 Viking 49-8635

"An energetic jab at Washington bureaucracy, written by a veteran of paper-pushing government agencies. Mr. Colby's chief character is a youthful physicist who stumbles through the Potomac maze trying to prevent the issuing of a powerfully backed regulation that would forbid the free exchange of scientific information." New Yorker

Booklist 45:313 My 15 '49

Chicago Sun p7X Je 5 '49 130w

"As June selection of the Literary Guild it is off to a good start, and the follow through will depend on the live interest in books debunking Washington bureaucracy. In that category this ranks high, though it suffers from the attendant inadequacies of stock figures, caricature, oversize—or undersize—drawing, and plot contrived to fit the pattern of the runaround given any earnest seeker of a fair deal from government."

+ — Kirkus 17:154 Mr 15 '49 280w

"A lively, crusading story with many sharp thrusts at Washington bureaucracy in general and the Un-American Activities Committee in particular, that reminds one of the novels Elmer Davis used to write. Recommended for all fiction collections." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 74:735 My 1 '49 80w

"In showing man's objectives, Mr. Colby says many important and necessary things about scientific research and scientific and other freedom, drawing on wisdom from Galileo and Francis Bacon down the line through Thomas Jefferson. I am sorry, however, that he has farced Dan's adventures and the government scene so lavishly. To a public already amazed by pumpkin papers and the like, it is hard to decide what of this book to take as pure extravaganza and what as based on at least a mustard seed of fact." David Tilden

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 My 22 '49 550w

"Mr. Colby's intentions are so good and his performance is so inadequate that this becomes a particularly exasperating kind of book—as soap opera is exasperating. Mr. Colby cares, he really cares, about some important and basic problems of politics and philosophy. The great question of how freedom and responsibility are to be related comes forth from his hands as mangled as do life, love and death from the authors of 'Young Widder Brown.'" Elizabeth Janeway

+ — N Y Times p21 My 15 '49 450w

New Yorker 25:110 My 7 '49 180w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles

San Francisco Chronicle p19 My 22 '49 500w

"Mr. Colby's book is a new thing, as new as tomorrow; it is a novel dealing with the devotion of an atomic scientist to the discipline of his subject and with a political struggle for control of the industrial uses of atomic power. In both undertakings it is an informed, skilful, and highly readable book." Walter Havighurst

+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 My 28 '49 650w

Springf'd Republican p6D Je 26 '49 190w

Wis Lib Bul 45:106 Je '49

COLE, GEORGE DOUGLAS HOWARD. World in transition; a guide to the shifting political and economic forces of our time. 646p il $6 Oxford

330.904 Economic conditions. World politics 49-8001

In this study a British economist surveys the political and economic forces at work today in each of the major countries of the world. It is his contention that "we are at the crisis of our civilization and . . . the hope for the future depends on our success in keeping the knowledge of what is good alive." Index.

Reviewed by Stephen Enke

+ — Am Econ R 39:1034 S '49 850w

Reviewed by M. E. Oatman

Am Pol Sci R 43:1052 O '49 550w

"His chapters upon Germany, the differences between Soviet communism and British socialism, and his criticism of the British Labor government's foreign policy are excellent. This is a factual and opinionated book which is valuable for both reference and discussion." P. W. F.

+ Canadian Forum 29:140 S '49 450w

Current Hist 16:287 My '49 60w

Foreign Affairs 27:678 Jl '49 40w

"Mr. Cole has assembled an immense amount of useful material, some of which is already outdated, but as a life-long Socialist and former chairman of the Fabian Society he tends to adopt a pedagogical or even a parental attitude toward the unpredictable human animal, which stubbornly insists on going its own wilful way."

Nation 168:253 F 26 '49 140w

Reviewed by H. B. Parkes

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 Mr 27 '49 800w

"It would be pleasant to report that the enterprise is a success. . . Moreover, Professor Cole's point of view is one that I find congenial. . . Unhappily Professor Cole does not quite bring it off. Maybe the trouble is that the world is too big for his kind of circumnavigation. In any case, though meticulous on matters of historical detail, 'World in Transition' is often superficial, its generalizations to the point of absolute error. Its method of organizing material contributes to superficiality. . . When some of his chapters were done, Professor Cole must have been surprised at the ground he had covered." J. K. Galbraith

— N Y Times p25 F 27 '49 1200w

San Francisco Chronicle p27 My 1 '49 300w

School & Society 69:102 F 5 '49 40w

Reviewed by J. B. Condliffe

Survey 85:278 My '49 750w

COLE, TAYLOR. Canadian bureaucracy. 292p $5 Duke univ. press

351.1 Civil service—Canada 49-9544

"A study of Canadian civil servants and other public employees, 1939-1947." (Subtitle) Index.

"The organization of the book is systematic; its writing, clear; the treatment, scholarly and thorough; the appraisal, judicious and fair. The conclusions, which are in places highly critical, flow logically from the evidence discovered and not from arbitrary preconceptions. And a work of real discovery it was—as anybody who has intensively studied a British Dominion will sympathetically appreciate." Leslie Lipson

+ Am Pol Sci R 43:1287 D '49 700w

"Unquestionably, this study makes a substantial contribution to the information on Canadian government. It is a thorough exposition, encyclopedic in its detail. Footnote references to original sources are extensive and will provide future researchers into problems of the Canadian bureaucracy with a valuable starting point." Norman Wengert

+ Ann Am Acad 266:221 N '49 400w

COLEMAN, ARTHUR, and COLEMAN, LOIS F. Texas cookbook. 256p $2.50 Wyn

641.5 Cookery 49-10535

"Includes recipes for rattlesnake, crow, possum, smoked turkey, prickly pear cactus, filé, and wild hog-plum jelly, as well as more conventional foods. Not a laboratory tested cookbook, but the recipes truly reflect the Texas

COLEMAN, ARTHUR—Continued
cuisine and the authors' comments convey some idea of the country's folklore and tall tales. Brief glossary of Spanish words." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:43 O 1 '49

"Unfortunately, for the northeasterner or the middle westerner, many of the ingredients and the Spanish names for things will keep them checking back to the glossary, only to find that certain spices, herbs, and other ingredients are not easy to find outside the region. But for a regional cookbook, and a somewhat specialized one (Texan in style, breezy, a bit on the rough side) this has its place."
+ — Kirkus 17:380 Jl 15 '49 140w

"Sometimes outsiders suspect that Texas is a sovereign country. The idea might be lavishly bolstered by 'The Texas Cookbook.' Riding through the crowded fields of anecdote and culinary legend, they will find recipes for cornbread and arroz con pollo, for omelettes and rattlesnake stew." Mary Poore
N Y Times p16 N 6 '49 80w

COLEMAN, JOHN WINSTON. Bibliography of Kentucky history. 516p $10 Univ. of Ky.
016.9769 Kentucky—Bibliography 49-11965

"This is a roster of 3,571 books concerned wholly, or in some part, with Kentucky. The titles are broken down into seventy-six categories and are arranged alphabetically by author within these. Brief descriptions, from a dozen to a hundred words long, are appended. Mr. Coleman lists some sixty works of fiction with Kentucky settings." Sat R of Lit

"Outstanding work of its type in this field, it is indispensable for public libraries serving students of American history and for reference collections everywhere." G. G. Clift
+ Library J 74:1905 D 15 '49 130w

"This is the sort of book the student may want to consult once in fifty years, but when he does want to consult it it becomes worth its weight in platinum."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:33 D 31 '49 110w

COLERIDGE, SAMUEL TAYLOR. Philosophical lectures [1818-1819] hitherto unpublished; ed. by Kathleen Coburn. 480p $7.50 Philosophical lib.
109 Philosophy—History [49-5473]

"In the winter of 1818-19 Coleridge gave a series of lectures on the history of philosophy at the Crown and Anchor Tavern in the Strand. These have now been edited and published for the first time by Miss Kathleen Coburn, of the University of Toronto, from a shorthand version taken down at the time and from Coleridge's own notebooks, and they will supply new material to those interested in Coleridge as a thinker." (Manchester Guardian) Index.

Reviewed by W. K. Wright
Crozer Q 27:90 Ja '50 400w

"As Coleridge's son said, the history is 'not too metaphysical.' He aimed at simplicity, presenting philosophy as part of the history of man and the growth of his ideas as they emerged out of human need. There are gaps and inadequacies to offset brilliant pages, but it should be ordered for philosophy or English literature collections." G. D. McDonald
+ — Library J 74:1087 Ag '49 160w

Reviewed by D. M. Emmet
Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 8 '49 500w
New Yorker 25:109 S 10 '49 200w
San Francisco Chronicle p26 O 23 '49 330w

"It is unique in being the only verbatim record of any of his courses of lectures. They do not make easy reading because of his prodigious and ill-concealed learning, his tendency to digress, and his turgid style. Besides, they lack the grace and persuasiveness that radiated from one of the greatest talkers in English letters. But they are important for an understanding of the great poet who was half metaphysician and half bard." Robert Halsband
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:38 O 8 '49 200w

"This book is undoubtedly of great importance, not as a philosophical exposition, but as a very necessary component in the understanding of Coleridge. For Coleridge himself never had a clear view of any system, and was repelled by the austerities of logic." C. E. Vulliamy
Spec 183:90 Jl 15 '49 500w

"Miss Coburn has done what even E. H. Coleridge tried in vain to do—to reconstruct a continuous text of [the essays]; she has come as near to it as may be, if we allow that some correction will be forthcoming when philosophical readers scan the work. In the introduction and the other editorial pages she gives information in plenty, and passes beyond it into noteworthy considerations on the animating principle of Coleridge's intellectual life."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p538 Ag 19 '49 1900w

COLES, MANNING, pseud. of ADELAIDE FRANCIS OKE MANNING and CYRIL HENRY COLES. Diamonds to Amsterdam. 223p $2.25 Doubleday 49-49308

Detective story.

Bookmark 9:82 Ja '50 30w
Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p67 D 16 '49 200w
Kirkus 17:592 O 15 '49 70w

"This latest Hambledon is pleasant as always, but it lacks the real terror and suspense of the war adventures."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 D 18 '49 210w

"Thomas Elphinstone Hambledon was the brightest creation of modern espionage fiction—the most audacious and inventive adventurer since Arsène Lupin. . . But these weak and piping times of peace proffer few situations worthy of Tommy's peculiar talents; and he has been wasting his time for several books. . . To newcomers this may seem a slightly brighter than usual formula British detective story; to us Old Hambledonians it's a pretty sorry excuse for what Tommy and his creator are capable of." Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p25 D 11 '49 200w

"An agreeable adventure but not the Tommy Hambledon of our salad days." E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p27 Ja 8 '50 70w
Wis Lib Bul p8 N '49

COLES, MANNING, pseud of ADELAIDE FRANCES OKE MANNING, and CYRIL HENRY COLES. Not negotiable. 190p $2.25 Doubleday 49-7188

Tommy Hambledon has changed from hunting spies to hunting counterfeiters in Brussels and Paris, and has his usual success.

Booklist 45:263 Ap 1 '49
Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ja 21 '49 50w
Kirkus 16:606 N 15 '48 90w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ja 9 '49 180w

"Grade-B Coles, when compared to other Hambledon derring-do, is still Grade-A entertainment for readers who like their mystery-melodrama fast and furious." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p28 Ja 23 '49 110w

"A disappointing piece of work; Hambledon is obviously not at his best in mufti."
— New Yorker 24:88 Ja 22 '49 100w

"Recommended."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 Ja 22 '49 40w
Wis Lib Bul 45:47 Mr '49

COLLIER, JOHN, 1884- Patterns and ceremonials of the Indians of the Southwest; with over 100 lithographs and drawings by Ira Moskowitz; with an introd. by John Sloan. ltd autog ed 192p $15 Dutton

970.4 Indians of North America—Rites and ceremonies 49-49198

Over a hundred lithographs and drawings of the ceremonial dances and customs of the Indians of the southwestern United States. To these is added a text describing their culture.

"This handsome volume will speedily become a collector's item. No other book so captures the poetry, the drama, the cultural range and variety of the American Indian Southwest. No sensitive person could look at Mr. Moskowitz's pictures without understanding why New Mexico and Arizona and the Indian life in those states have stirred so many imaginations, brought such peace and fulfillment to outlanders, stimulated so much artistic creativity." Clyde Kluckhohn

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ja 8 '50 750w

"It is a stimulus, to encounter such fervor as Mr. Collier's, accompanying such drawings and lithographs as these by Ira Moskowitz, which are the body of the book. Mr. Moskowitz, living among Indians—Pueblo, Hopi, Navajo, Apache—made many straight-seen drawings of tribal types; and in his impressive lithographs, especially those depicting ceremonies where human figures combine with elemental background of earth, sky or fire, he has caught not static or merely decorative grouping but the very motion of Indian life infused with the flow of the natural world. To paraphrase Lawrence, one feels the drum-beat living in the stone." Witter Bynner

+ N Y Times p20 Ja 1 '50 700w

COLLIER, JOHN, 1913- , and BUITRON, ANIBAL. Awakening valley. 199p il $6 Univ. of Chicago press

980.3 Otavalo Indians. Indians of South America—Social life and customs. Indians of South America—Textile industry and fabrics 49-48719

A photographic record of the life of the Otavalo Indians of Ecuador and the commercialization of their crafts which has caused a "social miracle."

Booklist 46:121 D 1 '49

"The story of this deeply moving drama is told here in two mediums—in Buitron's simple, vivid, and authoritative prose, and in Collier's magnificent photographs. Both narratives, the verbal and the pictorial, are equally stirring, and provide one of the most impressive accounts of American ethnological recovery and moral rebirth that has been produced in many years." M. D. Zabel

+ Nation 169:474 N 12 '49 850w

"This white man, reviewing, remembers Otavalo. In typical white-man fashion, he recalls items of sanitation, the condition of teeth. He remembers the 'ancient patterns of plowing and harvesting,' and wonders whether it deserves such aura of holiness. . . So, with due respect to 'mountains, rain, sun and wind' and to 'primitive mysteries,' . . this soulless reviewer lists this lovely volume under Poetry. The time will come when Otavalo must choose between Poetry and soap." Hubert Herring

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 11 '49 650w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 N 27 '49 100w

COLLINS, DALE. Robinson Carew—castaway; with pictures by Christine Price. 208p $2.25 Rinehart

49-7334

Robinson Carew was the son of very wealthy people, and consequently led a coddled, pampered life. But when the huge liner he was on, sank in the Atlantic, Rob became a castaway on what seemed like a desert island. How Rob played Robinson Crusoe, how he made friends with a sea gull and a mouse, and how Girl Sunday came to his rescue is told in this story for young readers.

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 11 '49 120w

Kirkus 16:366 Ag 1 '48 90w

"Well-written, modernized combination of Robinson Crusoe and Captains Courageous with a definite English flavor and good ethical background. Will appeal to the imaginative child but is too improbable to be plausible to realistic young readers. Ages 9-10." Harriet Morrison

+ — Library J 74:499 Mr 15 '49 80w

"Hard-headed young realists will likely find this story over-whimsical, but to those who like to romanticize with a touch of tomfoolery it offers an unusual kind of entertainment." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p28 Ja 30 '49 180w

Wis Lib Bul 45:49 Mr '49

COLLINS, MRS MARY (GARDEN). Dog eat dog. 208p $2.50 Scribner

49-9569

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun Jl 15 '49 110w

"A pleasant entry in the apprehension school."

+ Kirkus 17:312 Je 15 '49 70w

"Two more murders lead to a sensible conclusion, all told in a comforting, straightforward style that calls for cheers." Will Cuppy

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Jl 17 '49 180w

"Some stretches of routine plotting and Iris' tendency to burst into tears are offset by the unusual and interesting milieu and the author's ability to write with a sense of humor." Elizabeth Bullock

+ — N Y Times p13 Jl 24 '49 130w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Jl 10 '49 200w

"Entertaining."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:31 Jl 23 '49 40w

COLLINS, RUTH M. Septimus, the St Bernard. [64p] il $2.50 Dodd

Dogs—Legends and stories 49-10588

Pictures and prose tell the story of a flighty young St Bernard dog, owned by the good monks of a Swiss hospice. In a determined effort to reform, Septimus rescued an unwilling villager, and thereby did a good turn for a rising young cowherd.

"A slight but delightfully humorous story." B. J. Thompson

+ Cath World 170:212 D '49 40w

"Subtle humor in a series of well-drawn pictures." A. G. Zebker

+ Library J 74:1533 O 15 '49 40w

"Not a must; expensive for content." M. J. Meade

Library J 74:1760 N 15 '49 70w

"Ruth Collins tells his story in a few very well-chosen words and in line drawings which make good use of space to indicate the mountainy background, the traditional details of Swiss life. They also enhance considerably the intrinsic humor of the story." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p26 O 16 '49 150w

"Younger children should find this amusing; ditto, the first few times, the parents who read it to them." Eleanor Breed

+ San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 13 '49 250w

"A very amusing story. . . For all boys and girls who like dogs." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:33 N 12 '49 30w

COLVIN, FRED HERBERT, and STANLEY, FRANK ARTHUR. Drilling and surfacing practice; drilling, reaming, tapping, planing, shaping, slotting, milling and broaching. 3d ed 523p il $5 McGraw

621.9 Machine tools 48-9359

"Incorporates information on the improved methods, tools, and machines introduced during the past 12 years. The Wartime Data Supplement to the second edition is now included in the main text, with 30 pages of new material." Booklist

Booklist 45:244 Mr 15 '49

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 74:200 F 1 '49 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:23 Mr '49

COMAN, EDWIN TRUMAN. Sources of business information. 406p $6; to schools $4.50 Prentice-Hall

016.65 Business—Bibliography. Economics —Bibliography 49-1280

"The purpose of this book is to provide the businessman with the means both of locating elusive statistics or essential bits of information to answer a specific problem, and of gaining a broad picture of the business situation that will enable him to evaluate his own position. Furthermore, an attempt is made to provide him with the key to many storehouses of information—public libraries, special libraries and the reference sources presented in yearbooks and handbooks." (Special Libraries) Index.

Booklist 45:367 Jl 1 '49

"This book will be helpful to those learning how to search, and to those who wish to develop a business library." Julian Sohon
+ Library J 74:1100 Ag '49 80w

Management R 38:581 O '49 100w

"This is a valuable and unique work, and one which will repay well those readers unversed in research and those who have been forced to give up attempts to keep abreast of the rising tide of new publications affecting business." C. W. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 Jl 17 '49 300w

"The user of this book probably will not become an accomplished research worker, but by thoughtfully observing the suggestions and comments made he should be able to work through his problems in the field of business publications with a minimum of wasted effort and time."
Special Libraries 40:186 My '49 150w

COMFORT, ALEXANDER. On this side nothing. 192p $2.50 Viking

48-28216

"A grim picture of the ghetto closing in on a terrified group of Jews living in a part of a North African town, as the Germans come, relentless in their scorn of the Italians who were in possession. . . Shmul, newly returned to face the challenge with his people, though the choice had been his to go instead to America, tries, with a few others, to organize the limited supply of space, of food, of water, for the over-surfeited humanity, as the ghetto shuts down again, the walls are guarded, exit forbidden. . . Finally, the Germans retreat—the British come—Shmul hopes things will be better. But he still has only his Jewishness at stake. His family, his people, his city are matters of indifference. And at the end, he leaves, secretly, bribing his carrier—as he had come." Kirkus

Booklist 45:210 F 15 '49

Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Chicago Sun p8X Ja 23 '49 180w

Reviewed by M. H. Ley
Commonweal 49:358 Ja 14 '49 600w

Kirkus 16:581 N 1 '48 240w

"The author's abrupt episodic technique provides swift but not smooth narration." Harold Lancour
Library J 73:1817 D 15 '48 130w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Jenkins
Manchester Guardian p3 F 11 '49 180w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 120:24 Ja 24 '49 320w

Reviewed by Julian Strachey
New Statesman & Nation 37:160 F 12 '49 90w

"Because the lean story is told in the soul-searching and self-indulgent manner of distressed Shmul, it seems rather torpid and inactive. Both the characters and places lack precision. But the reader who is not afraid to be displeased and who values the rare experience of feeling just as Shmul did when he set out from the North African city at the end, will reap his reward. He will feel that nothing really matters. Nothing." Bennell Braunstein
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ja 9 '49 450w

"Weinstock is entitled to his beliefs, but as a fictional character he is not a very persuasive advocate of them. Mr. Comfort can write. His naturalistic details and images are almost always concrete and effective. And his thoughts on such Koestlerian themes as the nature of the Jews' role in history and the responsibility of the individual for a world he never made, would be interesting if they were not so often incoherent. Indeed, the book as a whole suggests an inferior copy of a Koestler novel—second-hand where Koestler is authentic, immature where he is completely adult. This is too bad because (despite the opinions of Shmul Weinstock) it may be that men of good-will can influence the course of events they recognize as critical." M. S. Hurst
N Y Times p16 Ja 9 '49 400w

"Dr. Comfort sees, beyond the tragedy of the protagonist and his racial group, the tragedy of the present-day individual, and he examines both themes in a style that is unexcited but wonderfully accurate. He offers scant hope for the individual but a good deal of hope for the modern novel."
+ New Yorker 24:78 Ja 15 '49 200w

"It is rather a stimulating book to read, in spite of its author's awkward position between the stools of narrative and idea." V. B.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p20 F 20 '49 350w

"Some readers are certain to feel that Mr. Comfort has gone out of his way to present the case objectively by choosing a not very attractive type of hero, one who is more often given to soul-searching moods than decisive action. Still had he chosen a more militaristic type, we might not have had the rare insights into human character, or even the lyrical flights of imagination which manage occasionally to light up Shmul Weinstock's numb nightmare days and the pages of this compelling work." Richard McLaughlin
Sat R of Lit 32:18 Ja 29 '49 750w

"An interesting and, at times, deeply-moving excursion into the heart and mind of European Jewry. But it is more than that; it is the rebuke of an intelligent and sensitive man to our whole civilisation." Robert Kee
+ Spec 182:166 F 4 '49 60w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p22A F 27 '49 150w

Time 53:92 Ja 17 '49 440w

"[Dr Comfort] does not make the mistake of saddling his Jewish characters with certain traditional attributes and leaving it at that, although various contrasted racial characteristics are convincingly represented; and he avoids the tendency towards over-simplification to which the novelist with sociological or political obsessions is sometimes prone. Although concerned with a subject about which much has been written in other fields, On This Side Nothing makes no contribution to the problem but remains as it is intended to be, purely a novel; vivid, unpleasant, occasionally poetic and always well told."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p69 Ja 29 '49 180w

COMFORT, WILLIAM WISTAR. Quakers in the modern world. 212p $2.50 Macmillan

289.6 Friends, Society of 49-841

A book on the Society of Friends, its history, philosophy, beliefs and ways of life, and its place in today's world. The author is president emeritus of Haverford college, and also president of Friends historical association. Bibliography.

Booklist 45:235 Mr 15 '49

"The president of Friends Historical Association and a distinguished scholar and teacher, Dr. Comfort is well qualified to write of the Quakers' contribution to the world of today. . . All who read the thrilling account will gain a better knowledge and a deeper admiration for those remarkable men of sincerity, zeal, and insight." E. L. Pennington

+ Churchman 163:15 Je 1 '49 180w

"Simple and persuasive story of a quiet religious faith quietly and effectively put into action."

+ Kirkus 17:55 F 1 '49 260w

Reviewed by G. D. McDonald

Library J 74:55 Ja 1 '49 130w

"Dr. Comfort discusses Quaker weaknesses as well as Quaker virtues—and non-Quaker readers will doubtless question some aspects of Quaker doctrine. Yet the analysis here presented of the ills of modern society and the part that Quaker faith can play in relieving them is helpful and stimulating." N. K. Burger

+ N Y Times p28 F 27 '49 230w

Reviewed by H. H. Wagner

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 300w

COMMAGER, HENRY STEELE, and NEVINS, ALLAN, eds. Heritage of America. rev enl ed 1227p il $5 Little

973.082 U.S.—History—Sources 49-48565

"New edition of a book first published in 1939 [Book Review Digest 1939]. Largely in the words of men and women of the times, it tells the story of the growth and development of the United States, from the time of Leif Ericson and Columbus to the end of World War II. There are selections from Columbus' journal, from Benjamin Franklin's autobiography, from the diary of a British officer who fought at Lexington, and from William E. Lawrence's report in the New York Times on the dawning of the Atomic Age." Chicago Sun

Booklist 46:173 Ja 15 '50

"'The Heritage of America' is an informal, intimate but remarkably sound history of the United States." Ben Kartman

+ Chicago Sun p10 D 4 '49 120w

"Wherever the words of the pivotal figure in a given event are not available, the editors quote from the closest witness they could dig up. An absorbing book, though indifferently illustrated."

+ New Yorker 25:124 D 17 '49 120w

Wis Lib Bul p10 D '49

COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC DEBT POLICY, New York. Our national debt; its history and its meaning today. 182p $2.50 Harcourt

336.3 Debts, Public 49-2308

"Appraisal of the national debt, with analysis of its effects on the American economy. Some suggestions are given for control of the budget, reducing and distributing the debt, restoring flexible interest rates, and encouraging a dynamic economy. The Committee, made up of financiers, industrialists, and educators, is not alarmed at the size of the public debt." (Current Hist) Index.

Booklist 45:367 Jl 1 '49

Current Hist 16:344 Je '49 50w

"The Committee has not proved its case. Decisions concerning current taxes and appropriations should be geared to the current economic situation; they should not be influenced by irrational fear of the national debt. But the debt will undoubtedly continue to be an ideological symbol invoked in every public debate. The purpose of this book, the advancement of popular understanding of the debt, remains unfulfilled." James Tobin

— Harvard Law R 63:555 Ja '50 1250w

"As a piece of presentation, the work is well done. The text is understandable and the graphs and charts are good." E. E. Hoyt

+ J Home Econ 41:586 D '49 70w

"The book has much useful material and gives some needed warnings. In its emphasis on the monetary causes of inflation and on the inflationary potential in budgets and deficits, it helps to restore a balance in economic analysis of the causes of price increases. Yet the over-all result is disappointing. The economic analysis is careless or defective at too many points, and the last chapter has a tone that seems out of keeping with the spirit of economic research." F. W. Fetter

J Pol Econ 57:550 D '49 850w

Management R 38:591 O '49 100w

"The professional economist is likely to find little in the volume that is new, although he may find the charts, tables, and clear organization and succinct expression useful. Other serious readers, for whom the volume is primarily intended, should find it interesting and challenging—they will certainly find it informative. Yet it can be recommended only with reservations. The attempt to be objective and to reconcile different points of view has led to a lack of toughness and vigor which the non-economist may not detect." G. L. Harriss

— + Survey 85:688 D '49 650w

COMMITTEE ON THE FUNCTION OF NURSING. Program for the nursing profession, by the Committee [Eli Ginzberg, chairman]. 108p $2 Macmillan

610.73 Nurses and nursing 48-11956

"The report presents in terse form the current nursing situation in its social and economic aspects now familiar to professional groups, but goes far beyond the present. It sets a goal for 1960 of a ratio of two practical nurses, trained by a year of preparation in an approved school of practical nursing, to one professional nurse, prepared in a 4 year program in a college or university with school of nursing affiliation. It assumes the gradual complete disappearance of the present 3 year course from which four-fifths of professional nurses are now drawn. Under this plan a total of 600,000 nurses would be anticipated in 11 years." (Am J Pub Health) Selected bibliography.

"Coming as it does from a thoughtful group of experts and as a partial corollary of the Brown report (Nursing for the Future), these recommendations deserve very careful study and discussion and quick action if they are to be implemented in time to realize the goal. The most serious lack in the report seems to this reviewer, scant attention to the possibility of (a) failure to recruit the 56,000 practical nurses needed each year to supply the quota in 1960, and (b) the difficulty of covering the necessary training in 12 months in what will be converted professional schools. . . If ever a report presented—that well worn word—'a challenge,' this is it." Dorothy Deming

+ Am J Pub Health 39:397 Mr '49 410w

Booklist 45:172 Ja 15 '49

COMMONWEAL (periodical). Commonweal reader; ed. by Edward S. Skillin; with an introd. by Anne Fremantle. 310p $3.50 Harper

810.8 American literature—Collections 49-6282

"Commonweal is a Roman Catholic weekly edited by laymen. This latter fact does not make it any the less Catholic in the treatment of religious topics and the interests and concerns of the church, but it does make a great difference in its general tone and in the variety of its contents. Its editorials and contributions cover a wide cultural field—essays on current social topics, literature and art, short stories and distinguished verse. . . The present volume is an anthology of materials selected from the issues during the 25 years of the paper's existence, 1924-49." Christian Century

COMMONWEAL—Continued

Booklist 46:170 Ja 15 '50

"The Commonweal Reader is attractive in format as well as content and will be read with especial interest by those who have followed The Commonweal fortunes for the last twenty-five years." B. J. Thompson
+ Cath World 170:237 D '49 400w

"No periodical in the country maintains a higher literary standard. . . Felicitations and admiration to Commonweal on the completion of its first quarter-century." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:1200 O 12 '49 160w

"Not only Catholics but other thoughtful citizens will welcome this anthology and thereby pay tribute to a noteworthy contribution to American thought and life."
+ Kirkus 17:543 O 1 '49 160w

"The Commonweal has been distinguished, among periodicals professing the same creed, for its consistently intelligent and mature interpretation of ideas and affairs." J. F.
+ New Repub 121:19 O 24 '49 190w

"Some of the non-fiction pieces are excellent, among them a charming reminiscence of Carry Nation, by E. A. Braniff; a brilliant study called 'The Analyst and the Confessor,' by the Reverend Victor White, a psychologist and Dominican priest; and several specimens of the militant Catholic liberalism for which the Commonweal is famed. . . The verse, except for poems by such standbys as W. H. Auden and Robert Lowell, is undistinguished."
+ — New Yorker 25:136 O 15 '49 220w

COMMUNITY SERVICE SOCIETY OF NEW YORK. Family in a democratic society; anniversary papers. 287p $3.75 Columbia univ. press
392 Family. Hygiene 49-4903

"This volume includes papers presented at the one-hundredth anniversary of the Community Service Society of New York, held in the spring of 1948. It consists of two major parts. The first is made up of nine articles, brought together under the general caption of 'The Human Sciences and the Family.'. . Six of the nine articles deal with the problems of child development, including the adolescent span. . . Part II consists of twelve articles on the health aspects of family life." Ann Am Acad

"All [the] authors are undoubtedly better represented in their other written works. Nevertheless, because the papers cover such a wide range of topics, any reader will find at least several of them instructive. This reviewer liked especially the papers on adolescence by Jones and Ackerman, and Dollard's negative answer to the question: 'Do We Have a Science of Child Rearing?' "
+ Am Soc R 14:825 D '49 120w

"The specific articles presented are excellent, but balance of analysis of the field as a world is obviously lacking. Sociologists will look in vain for a presentation of their work of recent years, as will marriage counselors—to mention but two professional groups who have contributions to make to an understanding of the family." J. H. S. Bossard
Ann Am Acad 266:242 N '49 280w

School & Society 69:455 Je 25 '49 30w

COMPERE, MOIREE SCOTT, ed. Living literature for oral interpretation. 451p $3 Appleton
808.5 Recitations and readings 49-8308

Prose and poetry selected from literature published in recent years, edited for reading aloud. Partial contents: The little black boys, by Clara Laidlaw; Mr. Kaplan and Shakespeare, by L. Q. Ross; The unselfish hostess, by E. M. Delafield; To mother, with love, by William Saroyan; The odyssey of Runyon Jones, by Norman Corwin; A robe for the king, by Heywood Broun; The flight into Egypt, by Thornton Wilder; Courtship through the ages, by James Thurber; Do you make these mistakes? by Robert Benchley; No room at the inn, by Edna Ferber; How come Christmas? by Roark Bradford; They have yarns, by Carl Sandburg; Cape Horn gospel, by John Masefield; Look what you did, Christopher! by Ogden Nash; Song for a brand-new house, by Phyllis McGinley; The young dead soldiers, by Archibald MacLeish; Refugee in America, by Langston Hughes. Bibliography. Indexes.

Booklist 45:372 Jl 1 '49

School & Society 69:236 Mr 26 '49 70w

COMPTON-BURNETT, IVY. Two worlds and their ways. Am ed 311p $3.50 Knopf 49-9169

The two worlds are the world of home and the world of school, and the time and place are England in the 1890's. The action begins with Sir Roderick Shelley and his second wife conferring about schools for their young son and daughter. The school episode is not a success: the children are caught cheating and are sent home. And then it comes to light that Sir Roderick and his lady have not been above cheating in different ways, themselves. The novel is carried forward by means of a series of scenes and dialogs, as in the author's Bullivant and the Lambs (Book Review Digest 1948).

"Clearly, Miss Compton-Burnett's is a highly stylized art, and its conventions may seem hard to swallow, but they yield extraordinary results. The author has created a world of her own in which the real and the absurd blend to produce a climate supercharged with irony, a continual fluctuation between tragedy and farce. A world in which the innermost recesses of the heart and mind are searchingly explored in terms of the daily exchange of trivialities. A world that is glacially sophisticated and whose language is indescribably witty." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 183:88 Je '49 950w

Booklist 45:325; 335 Je 1 '49

Reviewed by Dorothy Langley
Chicago Sun Je 7 '49 360w

"This is comedy and compassion à la Compton-Burnett. Admittedly, hers are morality plays for the tough-minded. Readers whose wits go into hibernation during the summer season will find her scrupulosity of language, her austerity of manner, and her incisiveness of mind unsuited to the hammock. Others, one hopes many others, will find an encounter with this excellent and original novelist amusingly provocative, and eminently rewarding." Theodore Kalem
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 16 '49 1000w

"A timeless, unworldly, juggling of ordered conversations, a refinement of the nuances of family life—these add up to a book for highly selective palates, a conditioned audience."
Kirkus 17:187 Ap 1 '49 250w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 74:891 Je 1 '49 140w

"Why is it so inescapably compelling? Its structure is exposed like a skeleton clock's, its tint is verdigris, the taste it leaves on the mental palate is like that of sucking pennies. It demands an intense concentration, and when one's faculties are released from the unnatural element one comes up gasping. The work is frightening because it is in the true descent of English fiction—and this is what the family has come to." Elizabeth Jenkins
Manchester Guardian p4 Je 17 '49 270w

Reviewed by Ernest Jones
Nation 169:15 Jl 2 '49 2000w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 120:18 Je 13 '49 750w

Reviewed by Philip Toynbee
New Statesman & Nation 37:677 Je 25 '49 1150w

"As before, a late-Victorian world is stripped bare and scrutinized with such candor that the spectacle might be embarrassing were it not so devastatingly and unmistakably true, so curiously instructive. This English author is undeniably an original. Not easy to read, outrageously disrespectful of many of the conventions (including some of the conventions of fiction), she is too deeply enamored of the study of mankind to be a true satirist. While there is a large sense of caricature present throughout her work there is also, if less immediately evident, a wry but epically humorous admiration for mankind. While Miss Compton-Burnett reveals her characters at their very worst, she does more than endear them to us—she makes them heroic." Iris Barry

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Je 5 '49 650w

"I believe 'Two Worlds' to be one of Miss Compton-Burnett's most successful novels. In it she overcomes some weaknesses that have beset her in the past: she has at last created a masculine man (Sir Roderick Shelley); all the characters are clear in outline; the plot is distinct. On the other hand, two faults are obvious: physical appearances are too perfunctorily described; the canvas is too quickly—even negligently—filled. Worse still, the opening chapter (a long one) is glaringly bad." Edward Sackville-West

+ — N Y Times p4 Je 5 '49 1400w

"The mystery with which we are left is two fold: How has Miss Compton-Burnett contrived to turn these tragic perversities into the stuff of comedy? And how, for our part, have we dared to laugh at the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth about ourselves? We can only beg the question by calling that mystery the mystery of the source and function of art and, in place of explanations, extend our thanks to Miss Compton-Burnett for having persuaded the comic spirit, which has spent so much of the last decade flat on its back, neither giving nor receiving nourishment, to kick off the bed-clothes and take this captivating turn about the room." Brendan Gill

+ New Yorker 25:94 Je 11 '49 1300w

"This latest novel of Miss Compton-Burnett's is superior to last year's 'Bullivant and the Lambs,' if that is possible." Richard McLaughlin

+ Sat R of Lit 32:11 Je 4 '49 700w

"For myself I am soon fatigued by the relentless flow of formal and semiarchaic dialogue, unvarying in tone and rhythm, of her masters and servants, grown-ups and children. It seems to me to have not so much wit as a mere flavour of wit. But each to his taste." R. D. Charques

Spec 182:866 Je 24 '49 90w

Time 53:104 Je 13 '49 800w

"Miss Compton-Burnett is an adept at indicating inadequacies of human relationship and she knows much of the torture of social humiliation. Two Worlds and Their Ways is perhaps not so complete in its effect as [Bullivant and the Lambs], but it has many passages for those who find the author's talent a rare and delightful one."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p393 Je 17 '49 420w

CONANT, JAMES BRYANT. Education in a divided world; the function of the public schools in our unique society. 249p $3 Harvard univ. press

370.973 Education—U.S. Education—Aims and objectives 48-8522

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"Dr. Conant, a distinguished chemist and president of Harvard University since 1933, has set an example to scientists and educators by his notable services to the United States during the second world war. 'Education in a Divided World' is another example of the clarity of his thinking and of his devotion to democracy and freedom." A. A. Potter

+ Chem & Eng N 27:636 F 28 '49 550w

Current Hist 16:101 F '49 60w

"This is an important book for anyone concerned with English education. Its author is, of course, President of Harvard, and here he attempts some diagnosis of the errors of American education and proposes some remedies for them. As there seems every prospect that many English educationists may seek to reproduce these errors here, there is much that can be learned from Professor Conant's book regarding our own problems, even though he himself is neither particularly clear nor consistent in his views on education." Eric James

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 12 '49 550w

Social Studies 40:240 My '49 30w

Reviewed by John Lowe

Spec 182:652 My 13 '49 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p299 My 6 '49 650w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:64 Mr '49 280w

"Many of the things said by President Conant in these lectures on the American system of public education take their importance from the fact that he is the one who says them. In the schools of education they have been said for a generation." Lyman Bryson

+ Yale R n s 38:548 spring '49 500w

CONIBEAR, FRANK, and BLUNDELL, J. LINACRE. The Wise One; il. by Michael Bevans. 265p $2.75 Sloane

Beavers—Legends and stories 49-10386

The life story of a beaver, from the day of his birth, until grown old and less wary the Wise One was caught in a trap.

Booklist 46:43 O 1 '49

"An authoritative animal story has universal appeal, and connoisseurs of good writing will find that poetry, inherent in the subject and native to its author, flows through the text of this one. Fine black-ink drawings, depicting the dark, underwater world of the beavers, add strength and drama to a distinguished book which should instruct and delight many types of readers." C. B. Burnett

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 S 8 '49 550w

"Frank Conibear has for more than thirty years been a trapper and woodsman in the Canadian northwest, and it is obvious that his beaver-lore is extraordinary and enormous. Had this book been written simply and unaffectedly, it might have been a memorable animal-tale. Unhappily, Mr. Conibear (or perhaps Mr. Blundell; his role in the authorship is not clear) has chosen to recount the beaver's story with a pretentiousness and ornateness seldom found outside the New Yorker's 'Rich, Beautiful Prose' department." A. F. Wakefield

— + Commonweal 50:541 S 9 '49 450w

"Authentic background and fine storytelling."

+ Library J 74:1563 O 15 '49 20w

Nation 169:238 S 3 '49 50w

"An excellent, well written, rather serious nature story. . . Good reading for high school age and adults, not for younger children." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 O 23 '49 230w

"To get inside an animal's cranium is a feat many writers attempt but few carry off. Jack London and Albert Payson Terhune did it with dogs. . . The beaver, however, is an elusive resident of pond and windfall, and what man can comprehend the beaver's reaction to sight, to mating, to hunger and to the whispering approach of death? Frank Conibear, who has lived three decades in the Canadian solitudes, is such a man. With the assistance of J. L. Blundell, he has turned out a book that may well become the classical story of an animal which always has had a special fascination for adolescents and adults alike." R. L. Neuberger

+ N Y Times p12 Ja 1 '50 380w

"It is easy to affect a scorn for this kind of writing, which has its place and is deservedly popular. Even though, in the case under review, the beaver's inner life is purely human, there is certainly a great deal of beaver lore in the tale of his movements. That tale is smoothly written, and it is good reading." L. J. Halle, jr.

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:23 Ja 7 '50 360w

Wis Lib Bul p8 N '49

CONNELL, JOHN, pseud. See Robertson, J. H.

CONNETT, EUGENE VIRGINIUS, ed. Wildfowling in the Mississippi flyway; chapters by Frederick C. Lincoln [and others]. 387p il maps $12 Van Nostrand

799.244 Hunting—U.S. Water birds 49-11620

"Each chapter by 'men who know', the whole making an authentic story of the flight of ducks and geese from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico. Shooting in each area, with emphasis on conservation." Library J

"This is the newest and most comprehensive book for midwestern waterfowl hunters. . . It is the kind of well illustrated and authentic book that every midwestern duck hunter will want to own." Bob Becker

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 D 4 '49 90w

Kirkus 17:454 Ag 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 75:48 Ja 1 '50 50w

CONNOLLY, CYRIL. Enemies of promise. rev ed 265p $4 Macmillan

820.9 English literature—History and criticism 48-9692

"This is a revised edition of a book that came out in 1938 [Book Review Digest 1939] when it more or less escaped notice in the profusion of light criticism and memoirs by young literary Englishmen. . . The book consists of three studies. The first is a discussion of contemporary writing. . . The second part is a description of the pitfalls that make it difficult for a young writer nowadays to get the best out of his talent. The third is an entertaining account of the author's 'Georgian boyhood,' with a year-by-year record of his experience at Eton." New Yorker

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 182:110 D '48 950w

"Had I a son, whether destined for Eton, Dalton or the dogs, I would place a copy of Enemies of Promise in his hands at an early age. For this book is an education, a warning, an encouragement, a preparation for the literary life written by a man who, through analyzing himself unsparingly, has analyzed us all, who has lived on intimate terms with all the evils of which he speaks, who has gazed into the face of Despair and saved his soul alive by sheer honesty, humor and convulsions of hard work." James Stern

+ New Repub 120:25 Ja 31 '49 1350w

"The way of the Perfectionist is hard; the hours of the day pass as he decides what not to be, as he tutors himself in the delusions of choice. But Mr. Connolly is a militant Perfectionist; in flights the arrows come down from the tower. Nothing stings like Taste. And as a critic, not only does he write with more spirit and wit and idiosyncrasy than anyone else living, but he has the virtue of being against the current, of not escaping from literary questions by calling them something else." V. S. Pritchett

+ New Statesman & Nation 37:616 Je 11 '49 1950w

"Mr. Connolly's literary opinions have lost little of their freshness and this new edition is better written than the first—for the reason, interestingly, that Edmund Wilson said it was not a 'very well written book' and that Mr. Connolly has 'retouched the writing itself' on almost every page. I still find the third part of the work, the autobiographical narrative of the author's Georgian Boyhood, more engaging than his other two parts of literary criticism. But I always prefer biography to criticism."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 F 27 '49 230w

+ New Yorker 24:94 F 19 '49 160w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 32:30 Ja 29 '49 380w

Time 52:65 D 27 '48 950w

COOK, ALBERT SPAULDING. The dark voyage and the golden mean; a philosophy of comedy. 188p $3.50 Harvard univ. press

808.7 Comedy 49-10387

"The Dark Voyage and the Golden Mean is not so much a 'philosophy of comedy,' its subtitle, as an attempt to analyze the difference between comedy and tragedy, in special terms. On the one hand there is the 'probable,' the normal in life, that which can be expected; and on the other there is the 'wonderful,' that which is unpredictable, beyond common experience." Commonweal

"It seems to me that his criticism is very successful in bringing art into the human, social pattern, especially in an interesting chapter on the plays of Aristophanes, who 'in his exploration of human nature versus convention, city versus country, tradition versus intellectualism, failed to reform Athens but produced an eternally symbolic comedy of ideas.' . . But the author is over-faithful to his premises, and he works his categories too hard. He has a habit of using virgules and parentheses to excess." John Hay

+ — Commonweal 50:588 S 23 '49 420w

"Scholarly, yet immediately readable. Recommended for university libraries, large public libraries, literature and theatre collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 74:1604 O 15 '49 50w

"It is difficult to evaluate a book that is so careless of its organization. It suffers from the shortcomings of a literary approach to philosophy which can never replace a philosophical approach to literature." J. K. F.

N Y Times p26 N 20 '49 180w

COOK, BEATRICE GRAY (MRS WILLIAM COOK). Till fish us do part; the confessions of a fisherman's wife. 249p $3 Morrow

799.12 Fishing Agr49-412

The experiences, not all of them laughable, of a doctor's wife who found that she would have to become either a fish-wife or a fish-widow. She chose the former and learned to fish with one hand while holding the baby with the other.

Booklist 45:258 Ap 1 '49

"For the professional fisherman, the book is perhaps too simplified. But for the average Walton-lover it will provide many a delighted chuckle and many a helpful hint. The humor throughout is thoroughly engaging, for the author has the heartwarming, indispensable ability to laugh at herself, so that the reader can regard her with affection while he laughs, too." R. B.

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Ap 15 '49 230w

"Men will like this as much as women, for the accounts of Washington coast and inland fishing are in the best sporting tradition, while the family problems of not missing any fishing dates are completely and devastatingly all too human."

+ Kirkus 17:47 Ja 15 '49 180w

"Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 74:737 My 1 '49 20w

Library J 74:1558 O 15 '49 30w

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 Ap 3 '49 150w

"These 'Confessions of a Fisherman's Wife' make very funny reading. Beatrice Cook writes with gaiety and with an enviable command of the descriptive phrases. All in all, she has done for the fish what Betty MacDonald did for the egg." P. A. S.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 Je 5 '49 350w

Springf'd Republican p18A Mr 27 '49 150w

COOK, CANFIELD. Color movie making for everybody. (Whittlesey house publication) 315p $3.75 McGraw

778.5 Color photography. Moving picture photography 49-9942

"'Everybody' in this title is not meant to include professional movie makers, but the book is aimed at everybody else who owns or is thinking of owning a movie camera. Practically all phases of the subject which enter into the taking of pictures are covered, including the more technical aspects of lenses, light filters, etc.; but most of the exposition is cast in the form of questions and answers, and the answers should all be intelligible to the amateur movie maker who takes his hobby seriously." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:10 S 1 '49

"An excellent question and answer guide to moving picture procedure which takes into account an amateur's ignorance as well as more expert information. The proper study of this, or reference to it, should cut out much waste, not only of film but also of expense (lenses and other equipment)."

+ Kirkus 17:227 Ap 15 '49 130w

"There is a good bibliography. Surprisingly, there are no illustrations." R. R. Hawkins

Library J 74:1329 S 15 '49 100w

COOK, MRS FANNIE (FRANK). Long bridge. 255p $2.75 Doubleday

49-10801

Tom Carr's ambition was to become a great painter, his philosophy was that commercialized art was wrong. Tom's progress was further complicated by his love for the girl, Dandy, and his mother's position as cook in the household of the well-to-do Timothys. The scene of the story is St Louis in the early 1930s, the depression years.

Booklist 46:124 D 1 '49

Reviewed by Richard Blakesley

Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 D 18 '49 170w

Kirkus 17:372 Jl 15 '49 210w

"Mrs. Cook writes with her usual vigor and briskness. In this case, however, as she oversimplifies her thesis, she also oversimplifies her characterizations. In fact, 'The Long Bridge' adds little to the impressive bulk of literature about the artist in relation to the world he lives in."

— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p46 S 25 '49 230w

Reviewed by Janet Schane

— N Y Times p35 O 9 '49 140w

"Mrs. Cook has written novels in which structure and characterization are better handled but none that are more pulsingly alive than this one." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 N 6 '49 300w

COOK, HARTLEY KEMBALL. Free and independent; the trials, temptations and triumphs of the parliamentary elector. (Library of English thought and life) 191p il $2.50 Macmillan

324.42 Elections—Great Britain. Great Britain. Parliament [49-48474]

"The work does not purport to be either a comprehensive chronicle of the growth of the suffrage or a profound analysis of the social and economic factors that have influenced the parliamentary electoral system. Instead, Mr. Cook has been content to sketch, rather episodically, some of the more striking characteristics of English voting practice beginning with the days when the knights of the shire were first summoned to attend the king's parliament. The gradual extension of the suffrage receives a major share of attention, and the election practices of the twentieth century are contrasted favorably with the bribery and corruption of previous times." Am Pol Sci R

"The author tells his story of elections lightly and entertainingly, and in this he is aided by the inclusion of fourteen political cartoons. The bribery and corruption of the eighteenth century are sufficiently gross and sufficiently remote to be diverting rather than revolting." L. D. Epstein

+ Am Pol Sci R 43:1069 O '49 300w

Current Hist 17:227 O '49 50w

"Mr. Cook has got together a good deal of information, some of it not easily accessible to the general reader, about the franchise and the persons who have exercised it from the days of Edward I's Model Parliament until today. This does not pretend to be a systematic history of the franchise, but it does give both an adequate and an interesting picture of the changing electoral basis of Parliaments during seven centuries." H. B.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Je 14 '49 230w

COOK, JAMES ALLAN. The marketing of surplus war property. 211p $3.25; pa $2.50 Public affairs press

336.12 U.S.—Government property 48-7056

"Limited to the marketing of property located in the United States and assigned to the War Assets Administration for disposal, this study describes and analyzes disposal activities through 1946. A brief Preface summarizes accomplishments during the first three-quarters of 1947. The scope and method of the study are indicated by the titles of its four parts: Part I, Magnitude and Complexities of the Marketing Problem; II, Government Policies; III, The Marketing Organization, Policies, and Procedures; IV, Summary and Conclusions." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

"Dr. Cook not only fails to recognize the importance of correct inventory records but makes contradictory statements about it. . . Another pair of contradictory statements reflects the conflict not only in the minds of the officials of the War Assets Administration, but also in the mind of Dr. Cook, with respect to the primary objective in the disposal of surplus property. . . This book, in the opinion of the reviewer, fails to bring out in sharp focus the major issues of surplus disposal. No penetrating analysis is offered, for example, of the role of the military in handling a civilian job (there is a passing reference on this point on page 127) or the importance of planning on a broad scale. Dr. Cook has made the serious mistake of relying for his information on Congressional hearings and reports." J. J. Kaufman

— Am Econ R 39:814 Je '49 1200w

"A detailed, technical analysis of this gigantic venture. . . This treatment of a major government postwar problem is a valuable addition to the literature on democratic emergency administration." C. H. Dillon

+ Am Pol Sci R 42:1028 O '48 300w

"The volume has immediate usefulness in suggesting changes which would, the author believes, aid in removing obstacles to the efficient disposal of remaining inventories. If the government is ever called upon again to assume a comparable burden, the study will be invaluable for persons charged with the responsibility for the policy making and administration of the task."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:299 S '48 280w

COOK, MARY E. Blackie and his family; il. by Michael H. Bevans. 69p $2 Harcourt

Blackbirds—Legends and stories 49-7904

Two blackbirds living in a California orchard are the subject of this story for ages eight to ten.

Booklist 45:285 Ap 15 '49

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 26 '49 170w

"Good true nature material."

+ Kirkus 17:109 Mr 1 '49 110w

"This intimate story of bird life provides good supplementary reading for nature study. Recommended for ages 8-10." J. F. Kennedy

+ Library J 74:555 Ap 1 '49 80w

"Into the story Miss Cook has woven the details common to the lives of many familiar birds and it is apparent that she has watched with interest and amusement the ways in which the birds cope with the exigencies of their life. Although 'Blackie and His Family' cannot be classed with the exceptional science books about familiar animals by Wilfrid S. Bronson, it is a pleasant, informative tale for readers up to 10." G. C. Castor

COOK, M. E.—Continued
+ N Y Times p20 Mr 27 '49 180w

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 70w

"Easy reading type and pleasant black and white illustrations make a good title for third and fourth grade readers."
+ Wis Lib Bul 45:67 Ap '49

COOK, REGINALD LANSING. Passage to Walden. 238p $3 Houghton

B or 92 Thoreau, Henry David 49-8084

Nine essays about Thoreau which attempt "neither to tell the story of [his] life, nor to evaluate his relationship to 'the golden day.' . . Its chief aim is to penetrate the essential quality and evoke the richness of his correspondence with nature." (Pref) The author is professor of American literature at Middlebury College.

Booklist 45:278 Ap 15 '49

"The book is rich in quotation and would form an excellent introduction to Thoreau, who is still caviar to the general." T. M. Longstreth
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 28 '49 600w

"This book, which gives the impression of rather woodenly rewritten lecture notes, is not as satisfactory an introduction to Thoreau as Joseph Wood Krutch's recent volume, which is far more penetrating and much more comprehensive in scope." Mason Wade
Commonweal 49:646 Ap 8 '49 120w

Kirkus 16:656 D 15 '48 130w

"A useful and persuasive work of appreciation, which retains much of Thoreau's own bracing poetic quality." H. W. Hart
+ Library J 74:491 Mr 15 '49 80w

"Though Mr. Cook cites and compares extensively this is no fruitless attempt to explain the subject away. Instead it is one more effort to penetrate to the heart of a man. . . There is a final chapter on Thoreau's style and the sum total is an eminently readable and penetrating survey of his temperament as well as of his thought. . . Thoreau is often funnier than Mr. Cook seems to think it important to notice. His book is, nevertheless, a valuable commentary on a writer who probably irritates more readers than he pleases but who rarely leaves any one indifferent. Even those least willing to admit the fact will usually feel at least what Mr. Cook calls 'the implied criticism of their private way of life.' " J. W. Krutch
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ap 3 '49 1200w

"Professor Cook is best when he deals most concretely with his subject. In a chapter called 'Correspondence with Nature,' he talks about Thoreau's five senses. . . Here, the reader realizes, is one of Thoreau's special qualities, and, as Cook makes clear, he carefully cultivated it. The discussion of Thoreau's prose is also specific and revealing, and again Cook shows that Thoreau consciously strove for the results he got. Many of the larger issues, however, slip away from the author, even when he has something helpful to say about them." Granville Hicks
+ — N Y Times p26 Ap 3 '49 750w

New Yorker 25:106 Mr 19 '49 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ag 21 '49 380w

"Perhaps here and there in the first eight chapters there are a few occasions where the author somewhat obscures his points under too great a welter of illustrations. But by and large everything falls neatly into place, for this is a discerning, stimulating book." Townsend Scudder
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:52 Ap 16 '49 650w

Reviewed by H. L. Varley
Springf'd Republican p7C Je 12 '49 500w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:154 Je '49 240w

COOKE, DAVID COXE, ed. Best detective stories of the year, 1949. (V4) 252p $2.50 Dutton

Short stories—Collections (46-5872)

Contents: The green-and-gold string, by Philip MacDonald; Murder in one scene, by Q. Patrick; Sentence of death, by Thomas Walsh; Calling all cars! by Karl Detzer; The black door, by Henry Norton; The death position enigma, by Roy Vickers; Silent witness, by Harold Goldman; The defense rests, by A. V. Elston; Neighborhood killer, by William Holder; The laughing butcher, by Fredric Brown; Being a murderer myself, by Arthur Williams; Crime in plastics, by Harry Klingsberg.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun S 2 '49 30w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun N 18 '49 120w

Kirkus 17:341 Jl 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 S 4 '49 150w

"An indispensable volume—not for rental but for purchase." Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p14 S 4 '49 270w

Sat R of Lit 32:37 S 17 '49 40w

COOLIDGE, MRS OLIVIA E. Greek myths; il. by Edouard Sandoz. 244p $2.75 Houghton

292 Mythology, Greek—Juvenile literature 49-5593

"The most familiar myths are given lively treatment by editor Coolidge and artist Edouard Sandoz. Table of chief Greek gods, list of proper names, and pronunciation guide are included." Library J

"The author's style is fresh, direct, simple, creating fine word pictures of early Greece and the people who feared, revered, or dared to compete with Apollo, Poseidon, Hera, Dionysus and the lesser gods."
+ Chicago Sun p9X N 13 '49 40w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p14 D 8 '49 230w

Commonweal 51:191 N 18 '49 70w

"The author, while retelling the old favorites, a generous selection of them, with a certain zest and artistry, all too frequently injects a sophisticated note, a double meaning that only adults would appreciate. The gods and goddesses emerge, fairly well stripped of dignity and responsibility, as they indulge in spite and jealousy, passion and anger, and too rarely use their power for good. . . I'd choose rather the Edith Hamilton Mythology as the best among the modern versions."
Kirkus 17:301 Je 15 '49 220w

"A new version seems unnecessary, since Gayley's Classic Myths in English Literature, Benson's Stories of the Gods and Heroes, and Hamilton's Mythology cover the fields in classroom style, popular treatment, and on the scholar's level. Recommended where these other titles are not available or there is great need for another collection. Age level, approximately 10-14." Clara Adams
Library J 74:1334 S 15 '49 100w

"Olivia Coolidge retells the well-known tales with a vivid freshness. Myths are usually associated with younger children, but a certain realism in the handling puts these in an older group. The print and illustrations add to the attractiveness of the book." Esther Gorey
+ Library J 74:1615 O 15 '49 80w

"Each story is short, told in a brisk style, clear and readable, but far from noble or beautiful. Any such new approach to the classic myths and literature is interesting and important in these days when they are widely neglected. But it would be too bad if this were the only version of the myths children were to know." L. S. Bechtel

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ja 1 '50 290w

"Both readable and attractive. By skillful choice, spirited retelling and convenient grouping of the stories, the author provides a happy introduction to classical mythology. . . Though Bulfinch, Gayley, Hamilton, Sabin and others have done admirable reference volumes of mythology, there is always need for a new collection intended for general reading. This book is excellent for the latter purpose." Elizabeth Hodges
+ N Y Times p24 N 13 '49 110w

"A retelling of the Greek Myths that manages to take from them a large part of their strength and beauty. It is a handsome book with full-page illustrations and excellent type, but we would hesitate to give it to young people when older and much better sources are available." M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:24 N 12 '49 70w

COOMBS, MRS ANNA OLSSON. Smörgåsbord cookbook. 240p $2.50 Current bks.

641.5 Cookery, Swedish. Cookery (hors d'oeuvres) 49-10778

Describes the food customs of Sweden, and includes 200 recipes for traditional dishes. Contents: Smörgåsbord etiquette; Swedish holidays; Herring and anchovies; Fish; Småvarmt: little warm dishes; Meats; Vegetables; Desserts; Cookies, cakes, and breads; Beverages; Suggested menus; Glossary. Index.

Booklist 46:60 O 15 '49

+ Bookmark 9:26 N '49 30w

"Not an all round cookbook, but one that fills some important niches. With buffet meals a popular way of entertainment, this should have a special market."
+ Kirkus 17:386 Jl 15 '49 130w

"It is a pleasure to have these specialities written out clearly and—so my favorite Swedish cook assures me—with authority. There are fine recipes for the famous fish and meat combinations, vegetables and desserts, but the high point of the book is the chapter on smavarmt. These are the 'little warm dishes' such as the Jerusalem artichokes with ham, the asparagus custard, the shrimp rolls, etc. Nothing is quite like their suave virtuosity." Mary Poore
+ N Y Times p16 N 6 '49 140w

"Mrs. Coombs has adapted all these [recipes] to the American kitchen and uses only American foods, easily obtainable anywhere. An excellent point is that most of these dishes may be prepared the day before they are to be eaten—an important matter when the hostess is getting ready for a party." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 4 '49 80w

COOPER, MARTIN. Opera comique. (World of music ser) 72p il col il $2.50 Chanticleer

782.6 Operettas [50-2041]

"Opéra Comique is essentially a French art-form, and we are shown its crude, spontaneous origins in the bawdy sideshows of the great Parisian fairs of the Middle Ages, and offered musical quotations characteristic of the sly, chaffing witticisms of these popular entertainments in which the musical element appears to have been a mere tag to horse play and double entendre. Gradually this changeling child of plebeian and royal blood, nurtured by Italian foster parents, claims its musical birthright, outrages authority, and laughs its way into the Court." Spec

Booklist 46:99 N 15 '49

"Recommended for theatre and music collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:1910 D 15 '49 60w

"This book, though written for the layman, presupposes some knowledge of the literary and musical background of the period covered. . . [It is written] in a readable style. . . One can reproach Mr. Cooper with the fact that, in his lively sketch of the many-faceted nature of this genre, he should have neglected discussion of Offenbach and the operetta, a discussion which is promised but imperfectly fulfilled. It is regrettable that there are so few books in English on the opéra comique, for Mr. Cooper's little essay arouses a desire on the part of the reader to investigate further this fascinating subject, a desire which could easily be thwarted by a language barrier." Charlotte Villanyi
+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 7:118 D '49 320w

"Mr. Cooper is a writer of first-rate quality. . . [The book is] admirably illustrated by many appropriate black-and-white drawings, prints and reproductions in colour." Eric Fenby
+ Spec 183:120 Jl 22 '49 230w

"Excellent and well illustrated little study of the growth and evolution of an art-form which has never yet been accurately defined because it has never stood still long enough to crystallize into any permanent form."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p476 Jl 22 '49 650w

COPELAND, THOMAS WELLSTED. Our eminent friend Edmund Burke; six essays. 251p il $4 Yale univ. press

B or 92 Burke, Edmund 49-49177

"Six essays on Burke which are chiefly devoted to what would-be biographers and editors don't know about this elusive, famous and protean man, but incidentally tell a good deal about him. Three of them take up his relations with Boswell and Thomas Paine and his editorship of The Annual Register." (Library J) Index.

"A complete biography of Burke is not possible until thorough examination of his papers, only just released by the Fitzwilliam family to the Sheffield (England) Public Library. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:1194 S 1 '49 80w

"The present book, vigorous, well written, brushing aside old myths and too easy assumptions—save for its occasional uncritical acceptance of McCormick's rubbishy 'Memoirs of Burke,' printed in 1797—ought to give Burke scholarship a needed shot in the arm." Dixon Wecter
+ N Y Times p40 D 4 '49 950w

COPELOF, MAXWELL. Management-union arbitration; a record of cases, methods, and decisions; foreword by John R. Steelman. 345p $5 Harper

331.154 Arbitration, Industial 48-3090

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"The cases presented here are interesting, and are clearly and concisely set forth. They should be very helpful to the student and beginning arbitrator in showing how to manage arbitration proceedings and reach equitable decisions, and occasionally how not to decide." N. J. Ware
+ — Ann Am Acad 261:202 Ja '49 280w

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:550 Ap 1 '49 40w

"The case summaries are presented in narrative form to improve readability. Occasionally, readability is achieved at the expense of full understanding because of the brevity of the summary and the absence of analytical comment. One of the chief defects of this handbook is the virtual absence of any analytical discussion of the nature and scope of arbitration." H. W. Davey
— + Management R 38:229 Ap '49 200w

"This is a book which the ever growing number of arbitrators, no less than employers and unions, should read and ponder. One does not often get such a distillation of practical experience and genuine understanding of the complexity of union-management relationships." E. M. Herrick
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 Ap 3 '49 850w

COPELOF, MAXWELL—Continued

"This is a fascinating book in an important new field, and it cannot be recommended too highly." G. W. Alger

+ Survey 85:115 F '49 200w

"The book should prove both absorbing and instructive to those interested in labor relations."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:239 Je '49 280w

COPPERSMITH, FRED, and LYNX, J. J. Patent applied for; a century of fantastic inventions. 100p pl $3 Technicosmos co, 124 W. 80th st, N.Y. 24

608 Inventions [49-6035]

"Skates equipped with headlights, a chair that rocks the baby and churns the butter, a dog-power sewing machine, a bicycle that runs along telegraph wires, a singing lamp—these are some of the devices to the evolution of which the human brain has misapplied itself over the years. Seventy-odd of these contraptions, all of them very odd indeed, are pictured in this slender compilation. The illustrations are accompanied by informal text which makes it plain that the screwball school of invention is international in scope, with Americans, Englishmen, Frenchmen, and Germans all well represented." Sat R of Lit

"It is impossible not to feel a grudge against the authors of this book. They have done their best to ruin a delightful joke. Preposterous inventions are nearly always funny, if they are left to speak for themselves. Sometimes in Patent Applied For their voices can be heard. More often we hear Mr. Coppersmith and Mr. Lynx, whose humour is like the frolic of elephants. If this book had consisted only of well-captioned illustrations, it would have been more entertaining." John Richardson

— + New Statesman & Nation 38:130 Jl 30 '49 600w

"An informal, brief, well-illustrated and witty history." Rex Lardner

+ N Y Times p5 Jl 17 '49 400w

"The effect is both hilarious and saddening—a fantastic and pathetic commentary on that supreme gadget, the mind of man." J. T. Winterich

Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ag 20 '49 130w

"This is at once a delightful and a disappointing book. It is delightful because the authors have got together a most diverting collection of illustrations; and it is disappointing because they have failed to provide an adequate text with which to set them off. The brightest heaven of invention has been attained, but the Muse of fire is conspicuously absent."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p231 Ap 9 '49 700w

CORBETT, ELIZABETH FRANCES. Eve and Christopher. 253p $2.50 Doubleday

49-7588

Story of a handsome, wilful woman, daughter of a Wisconsin lumber baron and the apple of his eye, who brought tragedy to all the men who loved her. The time is the 1890's.

Kirkus 16:644 D 15 '48 130w

"A reasonably entertaining novel." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 74:58 Ja 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p19 Ap 3 '49 180w

"Miss Corbett writes with the ease and authority of one who has done this sort of thing a good many times before. . . Even so, Eve, and her father, do emerge as something a little more than puppets." Philip Hewitt-Myring

N Y Times p22 Mr 13 '49 160w

"This is glamor of the rose-in-the-teeth variety, prose of the below-stairs type, with an avid eye on pulp. No holds barred." C. M. Brown

Sat R of Lit 32:30 Mr 26 '49 130w

Wis Lib Bul 45:47 Mr '49

CORBETT, MRS MARGARET DARST. Help yourself to better sight. 218p il $2.50 Prentice-Hall

617.75 Sight. Eye—Care and hygiene 49-8847

Popular exposition of the Bates method of eye education. The author teaches the method in her Los Angeles School of Eye Education.

"The whole tone of the work is to encourage self-diagnosis and treatment without any advice as to the desirability of a check-up in order to rule out the possibility of pathological eye conditions, the early recognition of which might permit the saving of eyesight. The book, therefore, is likely to have pernicious effects." F. M. Foote

— Am J Pub Health 39:1361 O '49 370w

"The presentation here, and the evidence, carries a certain conviction even if it will not find credence in many circles."

Kirkus 17:133 Mr 1 '49 160w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p6D Je 19 '49 160w

CORCORAN, GEORGE FRANCIS. Basic electrical engineering for students of electrical engineering. 449p $4.50 Wiley

621.3 Electric engineering 49-7895

"For beginning students on the sophomore level. Introduction to basic laws, theoretical development and definitions, and problems relating to electrical engineering, electronics, wave propagation, and communication circuits. 400 problems." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 74:200 F 1 '49 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:38 My '49

CORLE, EDWIN, ed. Igor Stravinsky. See Armitage, Merle, ed.

CORLE, EDWIN. In winter light. 209p $2.75 Duell

49-1507

Novel describing Trader Stockwell's Christmas barbecue for the Indians and the private eggnog party for the visiting whites. During the festivities Mrs Stockwell has an affair with the hospital dentist, a physician and a medicine man discuss racial problems, an Indian couple become engaged, and a radio script writer gets atmosphere for a new serial.

Booklist 45:241 Mr 15 '49

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg

Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 3 '49 270w

Kirkus 16:648 D 15 '48 150w

"Navajo customs are interestingly portrayed but the book is not recommended because of its many crudities." H. G. Kelley

— + Library J 74:197 F 1 '49 80w

"The style varies with the theme, most of the novel being rather depressingly vulgar in tone and the spokesman of the Navajo way being a little incredibly elevated and poetic. . . Should be of interest to those who know the Southwest or are attracted to a poetic, if insubstantial, rendering of the Navajo tribal ways." B. D. Wolfe

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Mr 6 '49 600w

Reviewed by Ruth Page

N Y Times p26 Mr 6 '49 300w

"A charming, warmhearted, yet sharp-eyed account of a Christmas celebration at a trading post on the Navajo reservation."

+ New Yorker 25:111 Mr 26 '49 160w

"I have always admired Mr. Corle's talent for saying something in his novels without once seeming to lecture, and here he demonstrates again how shrewdly he can do this. . . As a novelist, he is interested in focusing light on the problem, that's all. And this he does beautifully. . . Best of all, it's quite possible that you'll understand the Navajo better than you've ever understood him after you have read 'In Winter Light'; in fact, you may discover that your whole attitude toward the Indian in general has changed when you finish this sharp little story. At the same time, you'll have been carried along by a fast-paced tale which in some respects will remind you of James M. Cain's shorter fiction. It would be a cantankerous reader who'd ask for more." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 28 '49 900w

"There are passages of Indian humor which are charming, and considerable color. But the book is too light for really serious fiction and the action too diverse and casual to induce any urgent suspense." Stanley Vestal

Sat R of Lit 32:43 Mr 19 '49 430w

CORLE, EDWIN. Royal Highway (El camino real). 351p il $4 Bobbs

979.4 California—History 49-10590

The Royal Highway is El Camino Real, now U.S. route 101, which extends from Lower California up along the California coast to San Francisco, and across the Golden Gate to Sonoma. This is a brief history of the highway from the days of the Spaniards to the present. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:1; 45 S 1 '49; O 1 '49

"His story is swift and readable, too flippant at times, too sketchy at others, but always interesting and provocative. One regrets, for instance, that he leans so heavily on the testimony of Laperouse, no friend of the Missions, without counterbalancing with Vancouver's observations." J. L. Duff

+ — Commonweal 51:222 N 25 '49 330w

"Author is best known as a novelist; he writes with jaunty style. Interesting but unimportant as a contribution to California history." G. D. McDonald

+ Library J 74:1194 S 1 '49 80w

"Of the current batch of books [on California], Edwin Corle's is surely one of the best. It succeeds in avoiding, up to a point, the excessive romanticism of the version which Stewart Edward White, Gertrude Atherton, and George Wharton James made popular; and it is based upon later, and more reliable, historical research. The chapters are pleasantly written and efficiently organized; there is not an anticlimax in the book." Carey McWilliams

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p36 S 25 '49 800w

"It is amusing and profitable reading." Idwal Jones

+ N Y Times p24 O 2 '49 450w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 22 '49 750w

"Authentic and well told."

+ Wis Lib Bul p6 N '49

CORTNEY, PHILIP. Economic Munich; the I. T. O. charter, inflation or liberty, the 1929 lesson. 262p $3.75 Philosophical lib.

380.611 International trade organization (proposed). Economics 49-7939

"Author contends that Havana I.T.O. Charter promotes nationalism, totalitarianism, thus threatening human freedom, 'hence the title of the book.' Deals mainly with monetary aspects of international economy. Chief target is Keynes' philosophy, main attack following the line of Hayek and Mises." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by Clair Wilcox

Ann Am Acad 263:245 My '49 400w

Reviewed by Rodney Grey

Canadian Forum 29:92 Jl '49 470w

Foreign Affairs 27:680 Jl '49 30w

"Of ephemeral value and recommended only for very large public and business libraries." H. H. Bernt

Library J 74:491 Mr 15 '49 130w

"Mr. Cortney, a manufacturer and frequent writer on economics, discusses the causes of the great depression and the economic theories of the late Lord Keynes. While this reviewer agrees with many of Mr. Cortney's views on these matters, their relevance to the Havana Charter is obscure. There is a detailed index to the book, but no reference therein to the Havana Charter or to the ITO. The few pages devoted to the Charter present no description or analysis of any of its major provisions. There are some 400 paragraphs in the Havana Charter, but Mr. Cortney confines his attention to two." W. L. Clayton

N Y Times p5 Mr 20 '49 800w

"The aggressive style of Mr. Cortney's work may make the author unpopular in some circles, as he states in his preface, but Mr. Cortney may render a great public service by provoking serious thought on urgent problems." R. F. Timken

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 8 '49 650w

Reviewed by I. B. Kravis

Springf'd Republican p6D Je 26 '49 420w

CORWIN, EDWARD SAMUEL. Liberty against government; the rise, flowering and decline of a famous juridical concept. 210p $3 La. state univ. press

323.44 Liberty. U.S.—Constitutional history 48-8664

"Analysis of the shift from the ancient European and early American concepts of liberty—protection of property rights—to the present emphasis on labor's rights and privileges, and the attitude of the New Deal administration. Dr. Corwin discusses some of the law cases in American history bearing on the subject." (Current Hist) Index.

"An excellent, readable, and brief account of the judicial theory of a 'higher law' by which judges avoided the enforcement of statutes which they found particularly offensive." C. D. Williams

+ Am Hist R 54:898 Jl '49 900w

Reviewed by V. M. Barnett

Am Pol Sci R 43:140 F '49 1150w

"Mr. Corwin's book, besides tending to arouse interest in a vital and timely question, has several excellent qualities. Throughout most of it the style is simple and clear, the historical references are pertinent and illuminating, the logic is convincing, or at least challenging. It is to be hoped that the example thus set will stimulate the output of a type of study which, especially in the present critical condition of the world's liberty, is all too rare." J. P. Pritchett

+ Ann Am Acad 262:205 Mr '49 400w

"A really first-rate piece of illuminating scholarship. This little book might serve as a model to admonish some of our popularizers that a large subject does not demand inflated treatment." William Barrett

+ Atlantic 183:89 Mr '49 750w

Reviewed by F. D. G. Ribble

Columbia Law R 49:872 Je '49 550w

Current Hist 16:35 Ja '49 50w

Reviewed by R. K. Carr

Harvard Law R 62:1258 My '49 1050w

"Professor Corwin writes with his usual distinction and wit, but also with that complicated obliquity of allusion with which lawyers tend to hide their personal opinions from mere laymen." Arthur Schlesinger, jr

J Pol Econ 57:87 F '49 800w

Nation 168:24 Ja 1 '49 40w

"In this small volume Professor Corwin has condensed, and to a certain degree revised, a number of his earlier contributions to legal periodicals. Persons familiar with those distinguished essays are unlikely to feel that the revisions here effected are important, and scholars seeking the full benefit of Professor Corwin's learning will turn to the essays in their original form. That does not mean, however, that this condensation of earlier writings is valueless. For the general readers anxious to learn something of the sources of American constitutional theory and of the distortion of ancient concepts by the laissez-faire faith, no more discriminating survey has, I believe, been published." M. D. Howe

CORWIN, E. S.—Continued

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p22 N 7 '48 900w

"Mr. Corwin is the most learned of all our commentators on constitutional history, and the most perspicacious. He has here dealt with a significant chapter of that history with his customary lucidity and learning. To historians one of the chief values of this little book will be its recapitulation of the long history of the concept of natural law limitations on government. To lawyers it will reveal the dangers that flow from the perversion of constitutional principles to class purposes. To laymen it may well demonstrate that, with a mature people, sound doctrine triumphs in the end over unsound." H. S. Commager

+ N Y Times p6 Ja 16 '49 1400w

School & Society 69:197 Mr 12 '49 80w

Reviewed by Murray Levin

Springf'd Republican p18A Mr 27 '49 210w

"The scholarship evidenced here is admirable, whether Mr. Corwin is dealing with the pre-American origins of the concept of fundamental law, with its pre-Civil War development, or with the expansion of the Fourteenth Amendment. Less impressive are the treatment of recent trends, and the analysis of the problem presented by liberty in its contemporary setting."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 5:84 Mr '49 200w

CORWIN, EDWARD SAMUEL. The President, office and powers, 1787-1948; history and analysis of practice and opinion. 3d ed rev 552p $6.75 N.Y. univ. press

353.03 Presidents (U.S.)—Powers and duties. U.S.—Politics and government. U.S.—Constitutional law 48-7474

"First published in 1940 and now partly rewritten, with new material added. 'It is primarily a study in American public law. The approach is partly historical, partly analytical and critical. The central theme is the development and contemporary status of presidential power and of the presidential office under the Constitution.' Preface." Booklist

---

"In organization and method of treatment, the book follows closely the pattern of the first edition. It is still true of it, as stated by Lindsay Rogers in reviewing the first edition, that 'although the volume is well made and the typography is attractive, it is extremely difficult to read.' The difficulty seems to derive in part from the separation of the footnotes from the text, in part from the literary style, and in part from an authoritarian tone which tends initially to give to opinion the weight to which only facts may legitimately lay claim. Some distortions of terminological meanings still need correction. . . In spite of such limitations as the book possesses, however, it remains the leading work on the American presidency in terms of an approach from the field of public law." C. B. Swisher

+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:168 F '49 430w

"This book in the third edition is a fine book made better. It fairly bristles with succinct statements of principles and points of view that are the product of a rich historical scholarship, of an analytical mind, and of a lively and constructive interest in life and politics of the society of which the Presidency is a part. Readers are the better served by the patient and careful work that Professor Corwin has put into this revision, and only those who have revised their own books can know how much more fun it is to write the first edition than the third edition." O. P. Field

+ Ann Am Acad 264:144 Jl '49 600w

Booklist 45:140 D 15 '48

Kirkus 16:592 N 1 '48 100w

"Authoritative, thorough study of the development and present status of the Presidential power and office, under the Constitution. With new emphasis on re-election, immunity of executive personnel from Congressional loyalty inquiry, intervention (particularly through interjunction) in labor disputes, the President in Foreign Relations and in War. . . Highly important and urged for most collections." R. E. Kingery

+ Library J 73:1591 N 1 '48 130w

Manchester Guardian p3 Je 10 '49 180w

Reviewed by Allan Nevins

Sat R of Lit 32:26 F 12 '49 70w

"Serious and scholarly work. . . Dr. Corwin has written a good, solid, dependable story of the development of the institution of the presidency. But I think it would have been a better book if he showed in it as much understanding of the American passions and pressures which have created the institution as it exists today as he does of the legal changes which great Presidents have brought about in their own powers and in the powers of the people acting through the instrument of presidential leadership. The story he tells indicates that the Constitution is not merely what the judges say it is, but what the people wish it to be. The presidency today is the best example of their will." Jonathan Daniels

+ Survey 85:115 F '49 850w

"A well-integrated study of the presidential office and powers as viewed in 1948, not a mere revision consisting of new paragraphs tacked onto an outdated version."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:84 Mr '49 360w

COSSERY, ALBERT. House of certain death; tr. by Stuart B. Kaiser. 186p $1.50 New directions

49-11979

A novel of life in a dilapidated Egyptian tenement house which is about to fall down. The landlord and the government dismiss the pleas of the tenants. Each day the house develops new cracks, but the people remain hoping that those who survive will avenge their deaths.

"The hardships [the tenants] experience from hunger and cold and pain and need are clearly described, but never really recreated. As a result of the book's tone the struggle between the miserable tenants and the callous landlord never reaches an important level. . . That there are social and political implications to be derived from the story is apparent, and that the incidents and dialogue which are intended to convey these implications are ordinary and ineffective is also apparent." George Miles

— + Commonweal 51:370 Ja 6 '50 140w

Kirkus 17:634 N 16 '49 120w

"The lack of action in this story is, almost certainly, intended to produce its most powerful effect. Unfortunately, as is often the case in parables, the characters are neither vitalized nor given dimension. And while Mr. Cossery writes skillfully, and often with considerable evocative powers, his talents cannot overcome the difficulties produced by a static situation and undifferentiated characters. The excellent translation, by Stuart Kaiser, indicates Mr. Cossery's notable expressive abilities." Lloyd Morris

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ja 29 '50 420w

New Yorker 25:150 D 10 '49 160w

"It would be hard to think of another novel in which the miseries of the very poor are so vividly pictured." J. C.

+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 Ja 7 '50 320w

COSTAIN, THOMAS BERTRAM. The conquerors. (Pageant of England, v 1) 430p maps $4 Doubleday

942 Great Britain—History 49-10858

Popularly written history of England from the Conquest to the death of King John in 1216. This is the first in a series of volumes in which the author purposes to chronicle "The Pageant of England." Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:80 N 1 '49

"As attested by the long bibliography, Costain worked hard at this book but the end result is that like so many of its genre, it is neither history nor novel." Mary Sandrock
Cath World 170:316 Ja '50 170w

"By and large it is a book of merit, albeit not three-dimensional as the author hoped. In his recent fiction Thomas Costain has been drifting toward the historical approach. In 'The Conquerors,' a historical book, the trend is toward the fictional. For some the result may seem to be neither flesh, fish, nor good red herring." F. N. Litten
Chicago Sun N 1 '49 600w

"Thomas B. Costain has brought to his first work of history the narrative skill of an experienced writer of popular historical fiction. It is not surprising, then, that 'The Conquerors' should be an absorbing history. . . It is scholarly, too, though without footnotes, exhaustive, yet packed with action. Here is color and drama and suspense, but often a stage too crowded for easy reading." O. D. Hormel
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 27 '49 700w

"The book is orderly and has a fund of information of the kind that does not usually appear in works of this category. Color and vivacity are here, and I certainly do not consider them faults, for even historians are (or should be) writers, and writers are, almost by definition, people who hope to be read. As against the professional historians, who are sure to attack this book, I am willing to defend it, at any rate for its claim of a right to avoid the usual stuffy manner. I also commend it for a fairer treatment of Catholic issues . . . than is usual among the top-lofty professionals. Having said as much, however, I must register a few animadversions of my own. . . My objections are of two main sorts: one is that Mr. Costain's efforts to be interesting at all costs are a little too strained and obvious; the other is that those efforts are not always successful. It boils down to this: Mr. Costain, though he has great competence, does not always show good taste and judgment, and his literary style is far from equal to the task he has attempted." Theodore Maynard
+ — Commonweal 51:219 N 25 '49 800w

"An exhaustive and scholarly and eminently readable study."
+ Kirkus 17:445 Ag 15 '49 280w

"Mr. Costain has more than vindicated the task he laid upon himself of 'making the story of the period live again for the casual reader.' Thomas Costain belongs to the school of Michelet in his conviction that history ought to be a resurrection of the flesh, and he is in the great tradition of Scott and Dumas in his ability to make it fascinating. Every descriptive passage in this unflagging pageant is a triumph of sensuous detail. . . This glowing book is the proper stuff of history, but not all of it as written is history proper, if Mr. Costain will permit the distinction." Geoffrey Bruun
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 20 '49 850w

"'The Pageant of England' is straight, if not pure, history. . . It is not altogether pure because the novelist in Mr. Costain has supplied the missing color, dialogue and background where he deemed it necessary. This is permissible when done, as in this instance, on the basis of painstaking research. Pedants may object, but others will find Mr. Costain's history illuminating and easy to assimilate. . . On the level of scholarship Mr. Costain rates high praise. This opening volume is notable for its lucid delineation of emerging political forces, buttressed by a mass of minutiae that gives depth to the crowded canvas." John Barkham
+ — N Y Times p12 O 16 '49 500w

"The author has trouble with his royal protagonists, who refuse to exercise any sort of discretion in their amours and are just as recalcitrant about being fitted into any of the conventional pigeonholes of the historical novelist. In addition, Mr. Costain is probably the only living writer who could make the murder of Thomas à Becket seem dull."
— New Yorker 25:110 O 29 '49 120w

"It is not standard, text book history, but a moving, highly colored, brilliant drama, alive and glowing with the reflected enthusiasm of the author for his subject matter. It is a work which reads as if its author thoroughly enjoyed himself writing it, and as an inevitable result, it is a delightfully easy and rewarding book to read—that is, that result is inevitable, where the author has the skill, craftsmanship, and very solid and scholarly background possessed by Mr. Costain." C. W. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p9 N 27 '49 700w

"Thomas Costain is a fine man for the job. He knows how to manage a smooth, simple, fast-paced narrative; he has a genuine gusto for action and adventure and pageantry and all the romance of the past, a sharp eye for the vivid, colorful detail and the memorable word or incident." Garrett Mattingly
+ Sat R of Lit 32:11 N 12 '49 1000w

"Though not a well-rounded picture of the times, it is a successful presentation of strong and diverse personalities. Useful with young people."
+ — Wis Lib Bul p6 N '49

COSTAIN, THOMAS BERTRAM. High towers. 403p $3 Doubleday
48-9680

Historical novel based on the early history of Canada. The leading characters are the Le Moynes, whose chief claim to fame was based upon the efforts to establish a French empire in America. The interest centers particularly on two of the ten brothers: the Sieur d'Iberville, who explored the Mississippi; and the Sieur de Bienville, founder of New Orleans. Romantic interest is supplied by Philippe, an orphan, and Félicité, a ward of the Le Moyne family.

Booklist 45:129, 158 D 15 '48; Ja 1 '49

"High Towers is one of the few historical novels recently published which bases its bid for public favor on solid critical and historical ground. . . The author describes life in Montreal in 1697 with vividness and accuracy. . . Mr. Costain, as the best-seller lists bear witness, is expert in this genre, and if his situations sometimes seem contrived, he nevertheless tells a good story."
+ Cath World 168:415 F '49 200w

Reviewed by F. N. Litten
Chicago Sun Ja 5 '49 330w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 20 '49 240w

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '49

"The great potentialities of its subject make the deficiencies of this novel especially disappointing. Mr. Costain relies too much on his ability as a narrator and the reader's spontaneous interest in the romantic past and too little on the creative aspects of the novelist's art. Both characterization and plot in this work lack the slightest degree of subtlety." C. A. Cline
— + Commonweal 49:357 Ja 14 '49 360w

"There is adventure here, and for that the book will be welcomed, and romance too. But somehow the characters, for this reader at least, remained static, and the convincing panoply of history was not enough to bring them to life. This will carry small weight, however, with his followers, and the American setting will widen his market."
+ — Kirkus 16:575 N 1 '48 360w

"Intensely interesting although slightly melodramatic historical novel. . . Characters are dashing but convincing and book can be recommended to the readers of popularly written historical fiction." Katharine Shorey
+ Library J 74:58 Ja 1 '49 70w

Library J 74:1556 O 15 '49 50w

"'High Towers' gives an exciting picture of a frontier life in which one had to be on constant guard against Indian raids, pestilence and hunger, on the one hand, and, on the other, the machinations of the corrupt French court across the sea. Both the scene and the people are real. . . Here is romance and humor as well as high adventure. . . 'High Towers' is illuminating as a picture of the French aspirations and ambitions that had a part in the winning of the continent and, quite aside from history, it is a good story. It seems more than likely to share in the popularity of its predecessors." Mary Ross

COSTAIN, T. B.—Continued
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ja 2 '49 600w

"Here is Thomas Costain at his best, in a well-constructed novel clearly destined to be the first big hit of the new year. 'High Towers' has something for all: historical solidity, biographical interest, glamour. It is rich with learning, alive with adventure." Charles Lee
+ N Y Times p5 Ja 2 '49 800w

"Carefully shaped history and romance, riveted together perhaps a trifle more hurriedly than is Mr. Costain's wont."
+ — New Yorker 24:76 Ja 8 '49 140w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ja 2 '49 650w

Reviewed by William Soskin
Sat R of Lit 32:11 Ja 1 '49 850w

Time 53:86 Ja 10 '49 250w

Wis Lib Bul 45:47 Mr '49

COTHRAN, MRS JEAN, comp. Magic bells; favorite tales; il. by Peter Burchard. 142p $2 Aladdin 49-11143

"Eleven folk and fairy tales in which bells play a part. Included are stories by Howard Pyle, Anita Brenner, Ralph Steele Boggs, Walter de la Mare, Katherine Gibson. Grades 4-6." Booklist

Booklist 46:128 D 1 '49

"The stories of bewitchment, giants, ghosts and enchantments will appeal to the fairytale reader who likes thrills, and they are short enough for this age group." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ja 22 '50 110w

" 'How Tepozton Hung the Bells' might well have been omitted. However, the book is one all libraries will want. It is good! Recommended for ages 9 up." D. M. Blasco
+ — Library J 74:1827 D 1 '49 80w

"It is a charming idea, but we doubt whether modern children feel the romance of those bells as much as adults do." L. S. Bechtel
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ja 1 '50 30w

Wis Lib Bul p13 D '49

COTT, TED, ed. Treasury of the spoken word; introd. [by] Louis Untermeyer. 384p $3.50 Hermitage
808.81 Poetry—Collections 49-1316

"A collection of familiar poems annotated and interpreted for reading aloud." (Subtitle) The collection grew out of a radio program conducted by Mr Cott. There is a Catalogue of dramatic recordings, and an author and title index.

"Although there are some unexpected things here . . . so many of the selections are of 'the boy stood on the burning deck' variety (with heavy doses of Longfellow and Tennyson) that even the infectious enthusiasm of Mr. Cott's instructions couldn't induce this reader to open her mouth. Serious readers of poetry may, in fact, find in his interpretations (with their repeated references to football and the movies) a source of unkind amusement." Hilda Lake
N Y Times p16 Ap 10 '49 320w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 29 '49 40w

COTTEN, EMMI. Clothes make magic. 215p il $5.95 Dutton 646 Clothing and dress. Beauty, Personal 49-6218

"The main factors in the selection of becoming clothes, according to this book, are line, color and mood. Diagrams and illustrations assist in finding your own type of figure, shape of face, posture, coloring, and so the clothes that suit you." Wis Lib Bul

Booklist 46:92 N 15 '49

"It really is good, though it demands interest and attention. . . And people who have time, and interest, should find this rewarding study."
+ Kirkus 17:351 Jl 1 '49 180w

"Most girls will be entranced with this practical guide to clothes and color combinations. Advanced students of costume design will be interested in the many diagrams and sketches of the right clothes for each type of person."
+ Library J 74:1563 O 15 '49 40w

"Requires time and study but repays it."
Wis Lib Bul p7 D '49

COTTRELL, ALAN HOWARD. Theoretical structural metallurgy. 256p $5.25 Longmans
546.3 Metallurgy [49-1548]

"[This volume] is written to provide professional metallurgists and students with an understanding of the structure and properties of metals as based on the modern theories of atomic structure. The treatment is largely theoretical, and although some introductory material is included, it is assumed that the reader has a good background knowledge of physical metallurgy and atomic physics." (N Y New Tech Bks) Some chapter references. Index.

Chem Eng 56:282 Ag '49 30w

"The modern mineralogist will find much of interest to his science in this handy and concentrated textbook." T. F. W. B.
+ J Geol 58:90 Ja '50 160w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:41 My '49

COULSON, JOHN, and CARTER, FELICITY WINIFRED (MRS JOHN COULSON). Dead lion, by John and Emery Bonett [pseuds]. 189p $2.25 Doubleday 49-9323

Detective story.

Booklist 46:35 S 15 '49

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Je 24 '49 60w

"A civilized touch to all this."
+ Kirkus 17:189 Ap 1 '49 70w

"A clever plot, authentic background and interesting characters highly recommend this one."
+ New Repub 121:20 Jl 25 '49 130w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 38:528 N 5 '49 120w

"The Bonetts start with a fantastic set-up promising that we're in for more or less of a lark, and they stick to the mood pretty well throughout, in spite of the harmless necessary puzzling. The fable should attract those in need of a serio-comic bracer and also creeps who are crazy to know whodunit." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 Je 12 '49 230w

"Although 'Dead Lion' is not a book to set the mystery world on fire and the insight into character is more predictable than penetrating, there is enough engaging amiability and ingeniousness about the doings of Simon and Professor Mandrake to leave you pleasantly satisfied." E. B.
+ — N Y Times p11 Je 12 '49 180w

"Notable more for its peeks into the seamy aspects of London literary life than for its technical skill."
New Yorker 25:103 Je 11 '49 120w

"One of the season's neatest thrillers." E. D. Doyle

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 Je 26 '49 140w

COUNTS, GEORGE SYLVESTER, and LODGE, MRS NUCIA (PERLMUTTER). Country of the blind; the Soviet system of mind control. 378p $4 Houghton

947.084 Russia—Intellectual life. Communism—Russia 49-11573

"A study of the way in which the Central Committee of the All-Union Communist Party controls Russian cultural and intellectual life by rigid surveillance and direction of literature, drama, music, science, and education. Quotation of Committee resolutions and directives, of apologies and retractions of men who have been accused of departing from the party line in their creative work, and of other speeches and writings, are used as evidence of the method by which control is effected, particularly since the war. The indictment of Soviet procedure concludes, however, with recommendations of specific strategy for Americans to achieve a free world society." (Booklist) Indexes.

Booklist 46:57; 94 O 15 '49; N 15 '49

Reviewed by Agnes Jacques
Chicago Sun N 17 '49 320w

"The story is almost entirely told in soviet language. This leaves no reasonable doubt as to its authenticity, altho it makes the going a little hard at times, because soviet official denunciations are somewhat repetitious and are neither original in thought nor brilliant in style. Still it is a great public service to have within the covers of a single book such rich reference material." W. H. Chamberlin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 13 '49 600w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p14 N 22 '49 700w

"Whatever the underlying motivations may be, the authors perform a valuable service in presenting the Soviet crusade for cultural conformity in all the ruthlessness of the original documents. . . And if the Western nations are to survive the present struggle with the Soviet Union, they must indeed follow the author's prescription of correcting their own myopic conditions of prejudice and reaction, and through every avenue of peaceful competition, demonstrate the superiority of clear-sightedness over the warped and distorted vision of the Russian leaders." C. H. Weiss

+ Commonweal 51:323 D 23 '49 800w

"A book for the students of power, for the aware citizen today, for the unbeliever, this will have a wide hearing."

+ Kirkus 17:456 Ag 15 '49 170w

"Although lengthy quotations of party resolutions, articles and speeches may weary some readers, book is recommended for public and educational libraries as a valuable contribution to our understanding of mysterious Soviet Russia." H. H. Bernt

+ — Library J 74:1316 S 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by Walter Kerr
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Ja 29 '50 550w

"What the foreign observer needs for an understanding of the 'cultural purges' which have punctuated recent Soviet life, is above all the facts themselves. That is precisely what Professor Counts, with assistance of Mrs. Lodge, now brings to the American reader." Alexander Dallin

+ N Y Times p7 O 23 '49 750w

"It is unfortunate that the authors of 'The Country of the Blind' did not choose to digest and recast the enormous amount of valuable information which is packed into this book in a manner which is unattractive and, for the average reader, will prove difficult of assimilation. . . The facts which the authors have assembled are thrown at the reader in huge, raw chunks . . . and as a result reading this important book is a tedious and laborious task." Hallett Abend

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:48 D 3 '49 900w

COURANT, RICHARD, and FRIEDRICHS, KURT OTTO. Supersonic flow and shock waves. (Pure and applied mathematics, v 1) 464p il $7 Interscience

533.6 Aerodynamics. Supersonic waves 48-9737

"The authors, professors of mathematics at the Institute for Mathematics and Physics at New York University, have based this volume on a report which they prepared for the Office of Scientific Research and Development in 1944. Intended as an advanced text for mathematicians, engineers and physicists, it presents in mathematical form the principles and theories regarding the behavior of fluids and gases when subjected to extremely high pressures. Particularly important is the detailed development of the theory of nonlinear wave motion. The extensive bibliography is limited to non-restricted war-time reports and other readily available material." N Y New Tech Bks

---

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1516 O 15 '48 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:1 Ja '49

"This book is the most complete and up-to-date presentation, from a unified and mathematical point of view, of a large part of the recent theoretical work on the subject of supersonic flow. . . Physicists and mathematicians who wish to gain an insight into modern theories of the nonlinear mechanics of gas flow will find the book useful; it is a necessary reference work for scientists and engineers working in the field it covers."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:124 Mr '49 320w

COUSINS, JOHN. Secret valleys. 277p $3 Knopf 49-10216

Three ex-soldiers, keeping a promise they had made five years before, return to the Island of Crete to seek out the guerrilla leader they had supplied with arms during the war. The search is made difficult by the prevalence of suspicion and civil strife in the island.

Booklist 46:34 S 15 '49

Reviewed by Theodore Kalem
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 22 '49 480w

"There's a certain beauty in the telling of this story; while it lacks the pace of the adventure tale it might have been, it has some of the quality of a folk saga in modern dress. I found it quite enchanting reading."

+ Kirkus 17:333 Jl 1 '49 230w

"Whether read for its love story, manhunt, or moral implications, many readers will find this engrossing. Recommended." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 74:1093 Ag '49 80w

"Mr. Cousins writes a clean, sensitive prose, and he knows and loves Crete. For the first half of the book . . . he very successfully integrates his play of ideas with the elements of narrative suspense. The political issue of freedom in Greece, indeed, seems inseparable from his plot. Thereafter, however, in the mountain stronghold of Akhilles, the novel dwindles into debate and declamation. The final battle with the police, Angus's love for the guerrilla's daughter, Persephone—all these fail to move the reader with any real urgency." Hiram Haydn

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 S 4 '49 750w

"There are technical flaws in this book, but Mr. Cousins writes beautifully, with much evocative feeling for the bleak Cretan landscape and its humorous and hard-bitten peasants, some of whom have the souls of poets." Jonathan Kilbourn

+ N Y Times p4 Ag 28 '49 470w

New Yorker 25:104 S 17 '49 150w

COUSINS, JOHN—Continued

"It is a simple tale of a monumental struggle, but at the same time terrifying, and, as one reads along, the gooseflesh creeps up one's back, not only because of the story itself but because of its implications. Mr. Cousins has a way of drawing his characters finely, and imbuing them with a heroic stature that is rare in modern writing." Marc Rivette

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 Ag 28 '49 800w

"As a story of adventure with three British fliers, 'Secret Valleys' is often exciting, but as a treatment of the contemporary Greek scene it lacks the perspective which an important novel must possess." Siegfried Mandel

Sat R of Lit 32:15 S 3 '49 650w

COUSINS, NORMAN, ed. Writing for love or money. See Saturday review of literature. Writing for love or money

COVE, JOSEPH WALTER (LEWIS GIBBS, pseud). Admirable Lady Mary; the life and times of Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, 1689-1762. 255p il $4 Morrow

B or 92 Montagu, Lady Mary (Pierrepont) Wortley 49-10463

A sympathetic but candid biography of this eighteenth century beauty and blue stocking who lived the last twenty years of her life in exile on the Continent for reasons which have never been revealed but which the author here examines in some detail. Bibliographical appendix. Index.

"Mr. Gibbs writes with a fine dry wit; he is sympathetic but as unsentimental as the Age of Reason itself. He is graceful, occasionally caustic, always the acme of common sense, and both knowledgeable and tolerant of human foibles—just such an author, surely, as the eighteenth century would choose as its assessor. Yet for all his poise, he can warm to an honest glow of admiration, particularly when he contemplates that loyal and long-suffering gentleman, Mr. Montagu." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 16 '49 650w

"An accomplished mirroring of an English lady of quality, whose life . . . offers reading of vivid interest."

+ Kirkus 17:350 Jl 1 '49 100w

"Mr. Gibbs has written a good biography." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 74:1088 Ag '49 150w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield

Manchester Guardian p4 Je 7 '49 180w

Reviewed by J. I. M. Stewart

New Statesman & Nation 38:47 Jl 9 '49 1050w

"Mr. Gibbs has, of course, his own solutions to the mysteries of Lady Mary's life and character. As always, he writes with understanding, scholarly care, and skill, persuasively re-creating his heroine in her time and place, in a solid and entertaining biography." C. G. Stillman

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p28 S 25 '49 1100w

"The life of Lady Montagu remains an amazing story, the struggle of a brilliant woman for personal emancipation in the distant, conservative eighteenth century, and Mr. Gibbs has retold it with relish. His 'Admirable Lady Mary' is a shrewdly devised and delightfully written biography." T. Q. Curtiss

+ N Y Times p37 O 2 '49 850w

"Mr. Gibbs' biographical study of the not entirely admirable Lady Mary Montagu, the queen of eighteenth-century blue-stockings, is a triumph of scholarship and imagination."

+ New Yorker 25:134 N 26 '49 200w

"A blend of understatement, wit, urbanity and excellent informal prose. It is in fact a perfect style for the subject of his latest biography." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p30 O 23 '49 850w

"Mr. Gibbs goes to great lengths to point up the two great unsolved mysteries of Lady Mary's life; why did she quarrel with Pope, and why did she leave England in 1739? He sets forth the problem in great detail without coming any nearer to the solution than previous biographers. But his style is light and graceful and he has excellent taste in quoting from the letters. He has written an interesting if superficial study of the (sometimes) admirable Lady Mary." Robert Halsband

+ Sat R of Lit 32:11 O 1 '49 800w

"Mr. Lewis Gibbs's biography is a great deal more sensible than its title. His viewpoint is fair and moderate; he makes no attempt to conceal the faults of Lady Mary's character, or to suggest that she was not in many ways a very disagreeable and exasperating woman: but he does full justice to her exceptional talents, her vitality, her determination and her sterling courage."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p440 Jl 8 '49 1150w

COWIE, J. S. Mines, minelayers and minelaying. 216p il maps $4.50 Oxford

623.9 Mines, Military [49-48143]

"Captain Cowie traces the development and employment of the sea-mine from the XVIth century to the present day. He also directs attention to the legal aspect of mine warfare, and to the contributions of the scientists and the engineer. The British minelaying campaigns of both the world wars are considered in detail." (Publisher's note) References. Index.

"There is nothing in this book too technical for the ordinary reader; he is, in fact, likely to wish for more detail than he is given, and particularly for a fuller description of one typical mine-laying operation. But perhaps even such a small diversion has no place in a serious contribution to naval history." G. P. Griggs

+ Spec 183:24 Jl 1 '49 550w

"It is a serious contribution to the history of British prowess in war at sea; and moreover, like every account of the work of the Royal Navy, it is a story of high endeavor and no mean achievement."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p442 Jl 8 '49 750w

COWLES, VIRGINIA SPENCER (MRS ALDAN MERIVALE CRAWLEY). No cause for alarm. 333p $3.75 Harper

942.084 Great Britain—Politics and government 49-6871

An American correspondent, married to an English M.P., is the author of this study of "what lies behind England's peaceful revolution." The sections of the book are titled: The way of life; Government; The party system; The social pattern; Freedom of speech; Industry; The state of the nation. Index.

Booklist 46:94 N 15 '49

Bookmark 9:52 D '49 30w

"An overall picture on the pro-Labour side, which would serve as an interesting primer."

+ Kirkus 17:421 Ag 1 '49 180w

"All who are sure to disagree with Miss Cowles's conclusions should read her optimistic account of England today. She has set a pattern for this type of book which will be popular as election seasons approach in many countries." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 74:1603 O 15 '49 140w

"No one who knows England well will dispute Miss Cowles main thesis. . . There are a number of inaccuracies. . . However, the indications of a rightwing standpoint do not detract from the value of this book, which provides a great deal of solid information spiced with a certain amount of amusing political gossip. It is well designed for shipboard reading, and I can recommend it to Nation readers as a perfect bon voyage gift to conservative friends setting out, a little fearfully, to explore the wilds of Socialist Britain." Keith Hutchison

+ — Nation 169:447 N 5 '49 650w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman
New Statesman & Nation 38:627 N 26 '49 450w

"This picture of England today, under a Socialist government is timely, informative, easy to read and vastly entertaining. Unlike many articles and reports which have recently appeared in American newspapers and magazines about the discomforts, confusion and expense of nationalization and government interference, of restrictions and austerity, of the 'Welfare State' and socialized medicine, it shows the English scene and its participants with matter-of-fact simplicity, devoid of prejudice and propaganda, in quiet colors enriched by apt quotations and lively personal anecdotes." Walter Duranty
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 20 '49 900w

"She uses the Gunther method, more or less. She both burrows and borrows. When she does quote, she quotes only the best. When she does gossip, she is always strictly within reason. She is quite brilliant, reportorially, at the trick of turning facts into people, people back into yet larger facts. . . For Britons in the mass, Miss Cowles marches the whole length of Fleet Street and never stops hauling up signs of humorous admiration and enthusiasm. The pound may be devalued, but her belief in its earners and spenders stays constant. It is a very able writing-hand she stretches homeward from across the sea." G. W. Gabriel
+ N Y Times p43 O 23 '49 800w

"A thoroughgoing piece of exposition, some of which might have been more effective in reportorial form; Miss Cowles' eyewitness account of the vote-canvassing for a Hammersmith by-election provides, in a relatively short space, a far better notion of the British character than does a longer chapter crammed with random facts designed to make the same points."
+ New Yorker 25:114 O 29 '49 190w

Reviewed by Richard Uhlig
San Francisco Chronicle p30 D 4 '49 600w

"This is a delightful book; well written, witty, and penetrating. . . There is a great deal of hard work in this book, but it does not intrude. Miss Cowles lightens her research with some of those delightful items which distinguish the English tradition." J. M. Minifie
+ Sat R of Lit 32:46 D 3 '49 900w

Reviewed by Peter Fleming
Spec 183:894 D 23 '49 950w

Reviewed by J. W. Culver
Springf'd Republican p9D D 4 '49 420w

"A shallow and over-simplified version of British private, political and economic life which may persuade the Americans that Labour is not so red as it is painted, but which is neither complete nor acute enough to add to our own self-knowledge."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p853 D 30 '49 900w

COXE, GEORGE HARMON, Inland passage. 246p $2.50 Knopf 49-10820

Detective story.

Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 N 20 '49 70w

Kirkus 17:408 Ag 1 '49 70w

"It lacks the suspense of some of Coxe's best mysteries. Competent, however, as always."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 D 18 '49 180w

"A notably well-integrated and suspenseful mystery novel, rich in locale and atmosphere. . . Resolved that all loyal aficionados of the detective story extend to George Harmon Coxe their warmest felicitations on this Silver Anniversary." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p39 O 2 '49 160w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p27 Ja 8 '50 100w

COXE, GEORGE HARMON. Lady killer. 235p $2.50 Knopf 49-8191

Detective story.

Kirkus 17:70 F 1 '49 70w

"Careful puzzle, speedier towards the end, with mounting interest about the hot jewels and critters who seem capable of anything." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 Mr 27 '49 130w

"The yarn moves swiftly with a veracious newspaper background and a delayed-action, double-cross ending. 'Lady Killer' contains plenty of suspects and an intricate, deftly handled plot. Fans of George Harmon Coxe will not be disappointed." Dom Frasca
+ N Y Times p27 Mr 20 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 8 '49 90w

+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 Ap 30 '49 40w

COYLE, DAVID CUSHMAN. Day of judgment; the economic and political challenge to the West. 212p $3 Harper

901 Civilization, Occidental. Liberty. Democracy 49-9121

"The meaning and purposes of our destiny form the main theme of this book. Explanation of this is carried out by means of six sections entitled: The Western World; Freedom; Standard of Living; Production; Democratic Form of Government; and Ideology of Democracy. Mr. Coyle believes that in order for our civilization to survive, we are going to have to learn to distinguish between good and evil, to succeed in organizing human relationships, and be able to manage material things." (Library J) Index.

"Any review of a book by this author may properly open with an expression of gratitude for his never failing dry humor and the piquant expressions freely used, even when discussing the most serious and involved questions of our complicated day. Always an intriguing conversationalist and controversialist, he has a rare capacity for transferring his chatty, terse, and thought-provoking style to the printed page." M. L. Cooke
+ Ann Am Acad 266:228 N '49 550w

"Mr. Coyle has an incisive, trip-hammer style—each sentence a telling blow—which leaves us in a battered but ruminating condition. He wins our confidence at the outset by establishing a practical standard of values: his index figure is the degree of actual freedom available to the individual. . . Up to a point, Mr. Coyle's yardstick keeps his reasoning clear. But as he extends it from domestic to wider applications, his own argument runs into bigness trouble." Henry Sowerby
+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 28 '49 750w

"Timely political economics, on the Sunday supplement level."
Kirkus 17:134 Mr 1 '49 170w

"All these ideas seem oversimplified, but generally are sound." Donald Wasson
Library J 74:814 My 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by C. E. Noyes
Nation 168:687 Je 18 '49 1000w

Reviewed by H. S. Commager
N Y Times p29 Ag 28 '49 1050w

"A lively and stimulating discussion of positive and negative freedom, political democracy and the pitfalls of carrying the concept of democracy over into the economic sphere, abuse of our limited natural resources and the specter of modern Malthusianism, good economic planning and bad economic planning, and the curse of bigness whether it be bigness of business concerns, labor unions, or government bureaucracies." P. M. O'Leary
+ Sat R of Lit 32:9 Ag 13 '49 750w

COYLE, D. E.—Continued

"This book is certainly not the answer to all the world's perplexities, which are too complicated to be resolved merely by efforts to curtail monopolies in industry, trade, or politics. But Mr. Coyle writes sanely and thoughtfully about the economic and other difficulties ahead of us. Even when he oversimplifies he is fair, and at all times he writes skilfully. So whatever one may think of its conclusions, his volume is sound enough to be sobering and provocative enough to be downright interesting." Donald Derby

+ — Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 3 '49 420w

Reviewed by C. S. Ascher

Survey 85:562 O '49 550w

COYLE, GRACE LONGWELL. Group work with American youth; a guide to the practice of leadership. 270p $3.50 Harper

301.1584 Group work. Youth. Leadership 48-9490

"This book is addressed to those who have undertaken to work as leaders with leisure-time groups of youth. . . [It] is written primarily for the professional worker employed in an organization offering recreation or education activities, or for those in training for such positions. . . I have not included here any material on supervision or administration, with which many professional workers are largely occupied. This omission is due to no lack of recognition of its importance but only to a considered decision to concentrate here on the direct problems of group leadership." (Pref) Index.

"Dr. Coyle's training in sociology stands her in very good stead. Her book clearly shows her appreciation of sociological literature, her keen reflections upon the social problems, social processes, and principles of leadership and education of youth through leisure-time activities. . . Her chapters on the art of programmaking and on the guideposts to leadership show a well-integrated philosophy as far as her materials permit. Her style of writing is clear, interesting, and challenging. Dr. Coyle would have done herself more justice if she had defined such frequently used terms as 'insight,' 'understanding of social problems and needs,' 'social order,' and many other complex terms which she treats as essential factors in controlling educational activities of youth." P. V. Young

+ — Am J Soc 54:555 My '49 750w

Reviewed by J. L. Greifer

+ Ann Am Acad 264:178 Jl '49 480w

Booklist 45:171 Ja 15 '49

"This is for serious workers and lay boards."

Kirkus 16:565 O 15 '48 100w

School & Society 68:358 N 20 '48 40w

"Teachers interested in helping students mature emotionally and intellectually will find Group Work with American Youth both practical and stimulating." M. A. Markert

+ Social Educ 13:303 O '49 350w

"Group work is still one of the areas of social work in which volunteer personnel is widely utilized. This book, while scientific, is presented in such a fashion that the volunteer, as well as the professional, can use it to great advantage." M. H. Diggs

+ Social Forces 28:223 D '49 390w

"Although the book seems to be somewhat narrowly focused on group work with young persons in leisure time agencies, the basic assumptions and principles have wider application. The reader might ask why Miss Coyle did not expand that portion of the book devoted to the philosophical assumptions underlying group work as a method. Nevertheless, the book is a 'must' for all practitioners of group work and especially for students and teachers in professional schools training for group work and for those responsible for agency training programs." C. A. Kaiser

+ Survey 85:178 Mr '49 500w

Wis Lib Bul 45:63 Ap '49

CRABB, ALFRED LELAND. A mockingbird sang at Chickamauga; a tale of embattled Chattanooga. 297p $2.75 Bobbs

49-10419

Historical novel about Chattanooga and the country around it in the summer of 1863. The battle of Chickamauga as seen from the Confederate side is the focal point of the book. General Bedford Forrest is one of the characters.

Booklist 46:47 O 1 '49

"Whatever may be its status as a literary art work, 'A Mockingbird Sang at Chickamauga' is at least excellent entertainment for the quiet relaxation of days off." Henry Cavendish

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 15 '50 550w

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 29 '49 80w

"Though based on actual events as are Crabb's previous books, this is a tale of humorous and dare-devil adventure. It holds the reader's interest. Boys also should enjoy it and it is pure in deed and in language." J. L. Ross

+ Library J 74:1201 S 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by N. K. Burger

N Y Times p34 O 9 '49 110w

"Mr. Crabb writes simply, easily, and with color; and his humor and wit, wherever he intends them, are usually successful." Benjamin Fagan

+ Sat R of Lit 32:44 N 19 '49 200w

CRAIGIE, DAVID, pseud. See Craigie, D. M.

CRAIGIE, DOROTHY M. (DAVID CRAIGIE, pseud). Voyage of the Luna I; il. by [the author]. 252p $2.50 Messner

49-11389

"The account of the flight through space by a rocket ship, the wonder of the night sky—its beauty and terror—and breathless adventures at the termination of the journey—the moon." Library J

"More and more young readers are turning toward science-fiction for their reading pleasure. Those who like the thrills and adventure of this specialized kind of fiction will enjoy Mr. Craigie's story of two young stowaways, Jane and Martin Ridley, on a rocket ship to the moon." August Derleth

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 N 13 '49 160w

"Mad as the story is, there is scientific fact behind it, and the style is clear and credible. The net result is good bridging for comic-book-minded-boys."

+ Kirkus 17:472 S 1 '49 120w

"The author, with an innate instinct for the dramatic and highly developed imaginative powers, gives the story remarkable credibility." Alice McQuaid

+ Library J 74:1538 O 15 '49 70w

"[The author] doesn't worry too much about scientific possibilities, but 8 to 12 year olds will be delighted by [her] fertile imagination." Creighton Peet

N Y Times p14 Ja 15 '50 180w

CRAMER, JOHN HENRY. Lincoln under enemy fire; the complete account of his experiences during Early's attack on Washington. 138p il $2.50 La. state univ. press

B or 92 Lincoln, Abraham 48-10805

An account of the Confederate attack on Washington in July, 1864, and of President Lincoln's visit to the vicinity of the battle. Bibliography. Index.

Current Hist 16:36 Ja '49 30w

Social Studies 40:192 Ap '49 10w

"The reader will not find much in the content of the book that is of great value. Rather, his major interest will be in the fascinating and scholarly method used by a patient and painstaking historian." G. S. Greene

+ Social Studies 40:275 O '49 470w

CRAMPTON, GERTRUDE. Pottlebys; il. by Anne Merriman Peck. 92p $1.50 Aladdin

Stories of the gay but harebrained experiences of the Pottleby family. For ages five to nine.

"The Pottlebys strain too much for a laugh, and the general impression is wacky rather than funny, and somehow it doesn't come off."
— Kirkus 17:148 Mr 15 '49 90w

"Good fun for all ages. Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges
+ Library J 74:895 Je 1 '49 70w

"Youngsters from 5 to 9 (still too young to know the stylistic superiority of 'Peterkin Papers') will laugh over and love the Pottlebys." S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p20 Ap 17 '49 160w

CRANAGE, DAVID HERBERT SOMERSET. Cathedrals and how they were built. 42p il pl $2.50 Macmillan (for Cambridge univ. press)

726.6 Cathedrals. Architecture, Gothic [49-5849]

"While the former Dean of Norwich is well aware that 'the chief object of cathedrals must always be to serve as religious centers,' the object of this volume is to tell, as clearly as possible, how they are built, from the foundations up. He shows the development of Gothic and Renaissance architecture as the result of meeting successive structural necessities." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 65:1401 D 22 '48 380w

"The little book is so well illustrated by diagrams and photos that it makes easy reading; as a matter of fact, the illustrations are the thing that make this book worthwhile. Since it seems to address itself to the clergy, amateurs and beginners, it is obviously meant for a large public. I would say: a large British public. This is 'evidenced' by an attitude which makes only polite nods toward other styles, but a profound prostration before English Gothic, plus a few French and Spanish specimens as a sort of background. These strictures should not prevent any of my readers from buying it, because the book really makes a good contribution to architectural appreciation in a narrow field and whets the appetite for more. . . With these restrictions, this makes a handsome gift for your priest or seminarian friend, or the good sister who teaches art and history." H. A. Reinhold
+ Commonweal 49:621 Ap 1 '49 350w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Mr 20 '49 130w

CRANE, MRS FRANCES (KIRKWOOD). Flying red horse. 218p $2.50 Random house 49-9271

Detective story.

"One of the less successful of the Abbott murder mysteries, but as always a thoroughly readable story in its own right."
+ — Kirkus 17:242 My 1 '49 70w

"Frances Crane is a life-saver in a mysterious world. Here she is with another top-drawer story, completely furnished with everything it takes to delight fans of the better sort." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Jl 10 '49 100w

"If you're willing to look on the (for lack of a better word) plot, as simply an awkward formality, you will find the latest adventure of Pat and Jean Abbott a quite charming guide book to Dallas. As she has done before with cities . . . Mrs. Crane has visited Dallas, steeped herself in its topography and atmosphere, eaten at its best restaurants, shopped at Neiman's and served up her itinerary with color and taste, if under the somewhat misleading label of 'mystery novel.'" A. B.
+ — N Y Times p19 Jl 17 '49 230w

"Just right for Crane admirers, who insist on good plotting as well as on the flash of diamonds."
+ New Yorker 25:68 Jl 9 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 14 '49 220w

CRANSTON, MRS RUTH. World faith; the story of the religions of the United nations. 193p $3 Harper

290 Religions 49-10464

"The object of this book is to present an account of the great world religions in simple form for laymen of all faiths. Although the author is a Christian, she has written appreciatively of the other religions, her thesis being that the nations and races of the world must understand and appreciate each other's philosophy of life and basic ideals if we are to achieve a world society. The study includes Hinduism, Buddhism, Confucianism, Judaism, Christianity and Mohammedanism and concludes with a chapter outlining the principles underlying all religions. In the consideration of each religion there is given a brief sketch of the life of the Founder, the basic principles taught by the Founder, the way these principles are applied in social and practical life, the chief sources of strength and weakness and the position of each faith in the world today." (Kirkus) Index.

Booklist 46:42 O 1 '49

"Timely, unbiased summary of the fundamentals of the great religions."
+ Bookmark 9:3 O '49 40w

"Mrs. Cranston is exceptionally well qualified to write of the various religions with insight and sympathy, for she has lived for many years in different parts of the Orient and is equipped with first-hand experience as well as knowledge derived from the literature of the field." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:1361 N 16 '49 340w

"Mrs Cranston, free herself from religious dogma, and writing from the vantage point of a broad faith and a rich experience, has made a truly helpful contribution to better understanding among the peoples represented in the United Nations." N. M.
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 13 '49 850w

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '49

"This is a readable and valuable book for the laity rather than the clergy."
+ Kirkus 17:294 Je 15 '49 150w

"Sometimes Mrs. Cranston gets lost herself in religious jargon, and too often the reader gets the impression that she is skimming over the surface. . . On the whole, this is a simple, straightforward analysis of the world's major religions, and it contains the kind of stuff all of us should read and digest." George Barrett
+ — N Y Times p10 O 30 '49 360w

School & Society 70:159 S 3 '49 20w

Reviewed by Edward Chandler
Survey 85:690 D '49 650w

Wis Lib Bul p6 D '49

CRAVEN, WESLEY FRANK. The southern colonies in the seventeenth century, 1607-1689. (History of the South) 451p il maps $6 La. state univ. press

975 South—History 49-3595

Volume one in a proposed ten-volume History of the South, altho this is the third in the series to be published. The author is a professor at New York University, and a native of North Carolina. In this introductory volume he stresses the English influences on life in the Southern colonies, especially Virginia, Maryland, and the Carolinas. The volume ends with the year 1689. "Critical essay on authorities." Index.

Booklist 46:11 S 1 '49
Current Hist 17:36 Jl '49 140w

CRAVEN, W. F.—Continued

"Excellent introduction to a very promising project. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:893 Je 1 '49 130w

"A major merit of Mr. Craven's comprehensive and close-knit book is that he orients this era of settlement and colonial development with expert skill in the larger Atlantic world. He himself has made original contributions to the history of the period in notable studies of the Virginia Company and the Bermuda settlement, and he is thoroughly familiar with the vast body of scholarly writing, American and British, in this field." Dumas Malone
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Jl 10 '49 1300w

"His work can be highly recommended to every serious student of American history. It will probably remain for years the standard one-volume account of the political and economic development of the Southern colonies during the seventeenth century." Douglas Adair
+ N Y Times p10 Jl 17 '49 700w

"There are minor differences of fact or interpretation. Among scholars there should be no disagreement that this is the best one-volume synthesis of the early colonial South that has yet been written." R. B. Morris
+ — Pol Sci Q 64:633 D '49 1000w

Reviewed by Clement Eaton
Sat R of Lit 32:28 Jl 30 '49 900w

Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 14 '49 650w

CRAWFORD, PHYLLIS (JOSIE TURNER, pseud). Let's go! il. by Theodore Guerin. 73p $1.50 Holt 49-3393

Tom, a small boy, was always in a hurry, until the day he fell into the land of Quick. After that he was glad to go back to the everyday world.

"Somehow it falls short of being either convincing fantasy or entertaining moralizing, there's a patronizing tone, a talking down, that seems strangely out of date. . . From Phyllis Crawford, who can do much better, it is a disappointment."
Kirkus 17:233 My 1 '49 70w

"This is an ingeniously contrived fantasy, one which tickles the funny bones of small boys and helps them to work off vicariously some of their own limitless energy." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p30 Je 19 '49 170w

Springf'd Republican p6D Je 26 '49 100w

CREASEY, JOHN (ANTHONY MORTON, pseud). Case for the Baron. 254p $2.50 Duell 49-48770

Mystery story.

Kirkus 17:488 S 1 '49 70w

"The 'Baron' is somewhat reminiscent of the 'Saint' but lacks the latter's wit."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 20 '49 120w

"For an enthusiast, it's good standard Morton; others approach it only at the risk of learning precisely how dull a 'thriller' can be." A. B.
N Y Times p51 N 20 '49 150w

CREASEY, JOHN (ANTHONY MORTON, pseud). Rope for the Baron. 255p $2.50 Duell 49-7340

Detective story.

Booklist 45:263 Ap 1 '49
Kirkus 16:606 N 15 '48 50w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 Ja 30 '49 170w

"A first-rate thriller." B. S.
+ N Y Times p32 F 27 '49 100w
Sat R of Lit 32:32 Ja 22 '49 40w
Wis Lib Bul 45:47 Mr '49

CREDLE, ELLIS. Adventures of Tittletom [il. by the author]. 79p $1.75 Oxford 49-10076

Tittletom was a Southern farm boy, aged five. His adventures, five in number, were liberating his sister's goldfish, acquiring a goat and wagon, fishing and eating catfish, trapping a skunk, and traveling to town in search of birds.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p25 Ja 7 '50 70w

Reviewed by Agatha Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 D 4 '49 30w

"Ellis Credle enters warmly into the feelings of a small boy of long ago and her simple text with its amusing and realistic pictures will captivate the younger children." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:405 S '49 80w

"Not as satisfactory as her previous books."
Kirkus 17:392 Ag 1 '49 180w

"Recommended." D. M. Blasco
+ Library J 74:1464 O 1 '49 40w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker
Library J 74:1532 O 15 '49 30w

"This author-artist continues to interpret Southern child life, but this time perhaps more merrily than ever. Less dramatic in format than her other books, Tittletom has a longer story. The pictures are lively and amusing." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 S 11 '49 170w

"These five stories, designed to be read aloud to 4- to 6-year-olds, have an unpretentious charm, an authenticity of experience and the kind of humor that appeals to small children." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p26 Ag 21 '49 140w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:27 N 12 '49 30w

CREDLE, ELLIS. Here comes the showboat! written and il. [by the author]. 95p $2.50 Nelson 49-11650

A story for children about life on the Pasquotank river in the North Carolina low country. The annual visit of the show boat and the prize for the best song motivate the story.

Booklist 46:144 D 15 '49

"This is one of the best books out of the south and dealing with the south that we've had for some time. And one of Ellis Credle's most successful books. The relationship between white children and Negro servants is kept on just the right key. The story is fun."
+ Kirkus 17:604 N 1 '49 120w

"Delightful story." Alice McQuaid
+ Library J 74:1540 O 15 '49 100w

"An entertaining book about modern life in the South showing a nice relationship between white children and Negro servants. Recommended for children 8-11." M. M. Smith
+ Library J 74:1917 D 15 '49 70w

"Boys and girls of eight to ten can read it themselves, but it would be great fun, for a family to read aloud and then make up a song, too. And probably every school music teacher should read at least the last twenty pages to elementary classes. It would illumine the music hour more than any lesson in scales could do." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 27 '49 260w
N Y Times p14 Ja 15 '50 180w

CREEKMORE, RAYMOND. Ali's' elephant; story and lithographs. [40p] $2 Macmillan 49-9170

Picture-story book describing how Ali and his elephant came to lead the Maharaja's tiger hunt. For ages 6-8.

Booklist 45:377 Jl 1 '49
Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '49

"An up to date approach to the 'children of other lands technique'."
+ Kirkus 17:207 Ap 15 '49 150w

"Recommended for the 6-8-year-old readers and picture book collection." A. M. Wetherell
+ Library J 74:1034 Jl '49 70w

"Mr. Creekmore already has done picture-stories of Alaska ('Lokoshi') and of China ('Young Fu'). His books give the six to nine age realistic short tales, and many facts chosen for them cleverly. The lithographs are pleasant enough, but not really distinguished. Some day he should do a much richer book for older children, using the more delightful pen style here used on the charming end-papers." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Jl 3 '49 200w

Reviewed by M. R. Brown
N Y Times p28 Je 5 '49 150w

New Yorker 25:167 D 3 '49 80w

"Beautiful lithographs make this a picture book that even little children will enjoy, but story and pictures tell boys and girls of any age a great deal about India and the people who live there." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:39 Je 11 '49 110w

Springf'd Republican p5D Je 5 '49 70w

CREEL, GEORGE. Russia's race for Asia. 264p $2.75 Bobbs

951.042 Russia—Foreign relations—China. Communism—China. U.S.—Foreign relations—China. China—Politics and government 49-1462

"Mr. Creel, who was in China last year, claims that the Chinese Communist Party is now in its thirtieth year, that it has always been steered from the Kremlin, and that its victory over the Nationalist Government will put Russia in a position to gain mastery of half the world's population. In the course of his survey, he defends Chiang Kai-shek as a great and often betrayed leader, . . belittles the charges of corruption in the Kuomintang, and winds up with the opinion that our only hope lies in officially recognizing that a Red China will be a Russian China, and in acting accordingly." (New Yorker) Index.

Booklist 45:259 Ap 1 '49

Canadian Forum 29:91 Jl '49 400w

"Mr. Creel's small volume is of particular interest for its brief appraisal of several Chinese organizations not well known to the average American. All in all, it is a book well worth reading and preserving."
+ Cath World 169:78 Ap '49 200w

"It is a fascinating job of scissor and paste work, of slashing frontal attacks and of gaudy but certainly not neat knives in the back. The end result might have been entirely successful and devastatingly persuasive if nobody but Creel, and perhaps General Chennault, had ever been to China in recent years or had ever studied that nation's history." R. E. Lauterbach
New Repub 120:20 Ap 11 '49 1000w

Reviewed by Christopher Rand
— N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p19 My 8 '49 950w

"George Creel has an old and honored name as a worker in liberal fields, a fighter for high causes. It is a pity, therefore, that he has allowed himself to be drawn into an area with which he cannot be sufficiently familiar, and it is painful to say that he has written a rather foolish book. He could not possibly have written the same kind of book on a subject in which he had had more experience." Nathaniel Peffer
— N Y Times p10 Mr 13 '49 450w

New Yorker 25:106 Mr 12 '49 190w

Reviewed by E. R. Hughes
Pacific Affairs 22:307 S '49 1100w

Reviewed by Eleanor Breed
San Francisco Chronicle p25 Mr 13 '49 550w

"Mr. Creel's not very original purposes may be entirely worth while and conceivably his arguments might be proved. But he has defeated them by a technique of heavy special pleading, based upon a hasty regurgitation of poorly digested material. The result is hardly more convincing than the 'shoddy propaganda' of the Communists which he abhors. Mr. Creel's imagination has perhaps been excited by a too-literal interpretation of his own title. After all, Russia's race for Asia has been going on for at least four centuries, but it is still led by 'the Bear that walks like a man.'" Edgar Snow
Sat R of Lit 32:11 Ap 9 '49 1150w

CREEL, HERRLEE GLESSNER. Confucius, the man and the myth. 363p $5 Day

B or 92 Confucius and Confucianism 49-8440

"A re-examination of Confucius and Confucianism based on pre-Confucian books and those written within two centuries of his death. Rejecting traditional sources as unreliable, Prof. Creel has used his detailed knowledge of Chinese literature to furnish an authoritative study of Confucius and the later perversion of his philosophy to orthodox state Confucianism. Analysis of his sources brings the author to the conclusion that Confucius represents a 'forerunner of democracy.' Included is an illuminating discussion of the impact of Confucianism upon Occidental thought." Library J

"A book which supersedes all extant English sources; and though other biographies of the sage will in time be written, they will have to take this one into account." A. W. Hummel
+ Am Hist R 55:145 O '49 320w

"Sound as a dollar; intriguing as a whodunit. But I may be biased by my estimate of Confucius at the apex, with Ghandi and Jesus the base angles of the pyramid, of the great teachers of men." D. H. Kulp
+ — Am Soc R 14:691 O '49 400w

Booklist 45:201; 280 F 15 '49; Ap 15 '49

Chicago Sun p8X My 22 '49 220w

Reviewed by C. H. Hamilton
Christian Century 66:917 Ag 3 '49 900w

"A well-documented critical study presented to appeal to layman and scholar alike, it represents the most readable work on the subject to date." Philip Yampolsky
+ Library J 74:491 Mr 15 '49 140w

"Professor Creel has a gift for scholarly popularization that enables him to write with as much gusto as if he were working out a detective thriller. A large part of his work is in fact detective work. He hunts out spurious texts and interpolated passages, discards them, and then, never slackening in the zest of his pursuit, turns to the elucidation of what remains." Owen Lattimore
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 S 11 '49 800w

"A book of timely interest apart from its intrinsic quality as a piece of scholarly detective work. . . [Creel] wields an enormous critical apparatus of textual exegesis and yet contrives to keep his hundreds of footnotes and reference citations out of the reader's sight, although within the scholar's reach at the back of the book. The result is a triumph of clear and nontechnical exposition for the layman. . . Questioning of some of Professor Creel's interpretations may be left to other Sinologists, who have a long and fascinating fight on their hands. Meanwhile there is no doubt that we have in this book the most scholarly, vivid, and all-around view of Confucius the man now available." J. K. Fairbank
+ N Y Times p7 My 8 '49 900w

"This job has meant a staggering amount of research. The result has been one of those triumphs of sound scholarship—material effectively marshalled and richly interpreted." J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 Jl 10 '49 210w

"A book I would like to have written myself—probably the greatest compliment a reviewer can pay an author. 'Confucius, The Man and the Myth' is a book which should reorganize the curriculum of every university in America. Whether it will or not is anybody's guess." C. P. Farnsley

CREEL, H. G.—Continued
+ Sat R of Lit 32:13 My 21 '49 900w
Springf'd Republican p9B F 6 '49 170w

CREIGHTON, THOMAS HAWK, ed. Building for modern man; a symposium. 219p $3.50 Princeton univ. press

720.4 Architecture. City planning 49-8478

"A conference of architects and planners at Princeton University in 1947 was the beginning of this book, but the original papers have been rewritten and amplified. 'The sequence of topics follows a logical pattern. The first three sections have to do with "analytical inquiry," the fourth is an interlude devoted to the subject of education, the fifth and sixth are concerned with application of principles." '—Preface. A debate between Frank Lloyd Wright and Robert Moses, a summary and conclusions follow. The papers are short and most of them are provocative." (Booklist) Partial contents: When we know man, then we can plan, by E. J. Kump; Prefabrication: a freedom from limitations, by Walter Gropius; Architectural form and visual sensations, by Adelbert Ames; The values of visual education, by F. N. Severud; Urban replanning, by T. T. McCrosky; The need for change, by W. W. Wurster.

Booklist 45:330 Je 1 '49

"The forty or more contributors include some of the ablest and most original men in this field."
+ Christian Century 66:1107 S 21 '49 210w

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:1033 Jl '49 80w

"Mostly shop talk, but with occasional flashes of illumination for the layman, particularly in the exchange between Frank Lloyd Wright and Robert Moses."
Nation 169:45 Jl 9 '49 40w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Jl 17 '49 230w

"The discussion is lively, readily understood, and of great practical value for the average reader." D. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 24 '49 150w

CRISPIN, EDMUND, pseud. See Montgomery, R. B.

CROCKETT, LUCY HERNDON. Popcorn on the Ginza; an informal portrait of postwar Japan [with il. by the author]. 286p $3.50 Sloane

915.2 Japan—Description and travel. Reconstruction (1939-)—Japan 49-7179

The experiences of an American Red Cross worker who spent eighteen months in Japan. In the course of the book she discusses such matters as the economic crisis, labor problems, overpopulation, the distribution of food, and the Japanese reaction to Western customs. Illustrated with drawings by the author.

Booklist 45:190 F 1 '49

Reviewed by Frayn Utley
+ Chicago Sun F 7 '49 360w

Reviewed by Toru Matsumoto
Christian Science Monitor p11 F 17 '49 650w

"Of all the books about Occupied Japan, this is the one I would buy. It's fair, it's balanced, and it's intensely human!" R. L-G. Deverall
+ Commonweal 49:476 F 18 '49 390w

"A lively, entertaining and sympathetic, if not profound account." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 25:159 Mr '49 70w

"The whole effect is a very human picture of the impact of the new 'jeep world' on isolated people, of life in Japan today, and of the forces, official and otherwise, that are influencing the country's future. An interesting footnote to other professional books along the same, but more impersonal lines."
+ Kirkus 16:589 N 1 '48 170w

Reviewed by H. S. Taylor
Library J 73:1816 D 15 '48 130w

"Non-critical, anecdotal, lightly readable."
Nation 168:137 Ja 29 '49 70w

Reviewed by Dorothy Woodman
New Statesman & Nation 38:364 O 1 '49 850w

"Miss Crockett is at her best when she is describing Japanese plumbing, food and servants. She includes most of the famous anecdotes and a number of amusing stories which were new to this writer at least. She is never cruel, however, and displays warm sympathy for the women and children who must try to rebuild their lives in the bitter aftermath of military defeat. . . She makes an acute observation concerning relations between Americans and Japanese when she says that even though we may not get to like them, 'it's difficult to remember to hate them.' One could wish, though, that she had not chosen to refer to them as 'Nips' and 'gooks.' " Ralph Chapman
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ja 16 '49 550w

"This is not a book in which to seek a profound understanding of the problems of the Occupation. It is beguiling, however, for the personal warmth it radiates about the everyday aspects of the Occupation. The line drawings with which the author sprinkles the pages add to the charm." Dale Pontius
+ — N Y Times p5 Ja 16 '49 800w

"Her book, decorated with her own brush drawings, is informative and often shrewd, but she has an enervating predilection for jaunty phrases."
+ — New Yorker 24:95 F 5 '49 60w

Reviewed by W. M. Ball
Pacific Affairs 32:302 S '49 550w

"Miss Crockett is a professional and knows what she's about. Her reflection of Japan today is broad, lively and readable. . . Here, with typewriter and sketch-pad, she functions as a reporter rather than as an analyst; her purpose is not to produce 'inside stuff,' but to tell the reader what she herself, a trained observer, has seen. The attitude is sensible and refreshing, and results in some sharp pictures and vivid impressions." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ja 20 '49 800w

"Entertaining and informative as Miss Crockett's text is, her perfectly charming brush drawings scattered throughout the book are masterpieces in miniature. With an art perfected in her books for children she catches with deft and economical lines the very essence of Japanese life, the spirit and temperament of the people. . . 'Popcorn on the Ginza' adds nothing to our knowledge of Japan. But if the many thousands of parents and relatives of Occupation personnel want to know what it's like to live there these days, they can do no better than to buy Miss Crockett's lively little book." Bradford Smith
+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 Ja 15 '49 700w
School & Society 69:214 Mr 19 '49 30w

Reviewed by Mervyn Horder
Spec 183:368 S 16 '49 650w

Reviewed by G. E. Lyon
Springf'd Republican p4D S 25 '49 300w
Wis Lib Bul 45:28 F '49

CROFT-COOKE, RUPERT. Another sun, another home [Eng title: Wilkie]. 240p $3 Holt 49-7945

A picture of present-day England, as seen by a retired English colonel, who had spent most of his adult life in India. When he retired, shortly after the close of World war II, he went "home" expecting to settle down in a country house to enjoy his reunion with his only son, whom he had not seen in many years. He was swiftly disillusioned on both counts, and when his son was put in jail for black-market activities Colonel Wilkes (Wilkie) returned to India, to lead a useful life among people he respected and who respected him.

Booklist 45:185; 242 F 1 '49; Mr 15 '49

Reviewed by M. W. Stoer
Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 16 '49 650w

"For those who want a full report on present day conditions in England—this fills the bill, in human terms."
+ Kirkus 16:648 D 15 '48 190w

"Will please opponents of the Labor Government." Anne Whitmore
Library J 74:312 F 15 '49 100w

"It is clear that 'Another Sun, Another Home' invites evaluation by other than literary merits, so that a critic must say immediately that these are high; the novel is excellently written, its characters live, and there is a passionate sincerity that gives the reader an impression that it simply had to be written to ease some stress in the author's mind. Furthermore, any one who (like myself) has not seen England for a dozen years can only question the portrait as he would that of some one he used to know—i.e., not is it a good likeness, but is there technical evidence that it might be? And from such a scrutiny Mr. Croft-Cooke emerges far from unscathed. . . Perhaps 'Another Sun, Another Home' can best be regarded as a whoppingly effective minority report. Too bad these things often make livelier reading than the other side's." James Hilton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Mr 27 '49 1000w

"In telling Colonel Wilkes' story, the author gives us unsullied a glimpse of India as we have been allowed to see over the shoulder of an Englishman. . . No doubt, Mr. Croft-Cooke has idealized and exaggerated much in his attempt to contrast two dissimilar scenes. But his characterizations always ring true." Isabelle Mallet
N Y Times p31 Mr 27 '49 270w

"Although the book closes with a pious hope for Britain's future, its strongest implication is that an England unfit for people like its hero will have a hard time remaining great."
New Yorker 25:101 Mr 12 '49 220w

"As a report of England today, one hopes that the lag in time between its writing and its publication here makes it out of date. As a study of two or three sorts of people, it is splendid." Vance Bourjaily
+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ap 17 '49 600w

Reviewed by A. F. Wolfe
Sat R of Lit 32:14 Mr 12 '49 700w

"It would have been a more effective story if the picture of post-war England had been less crudely painted and if the Labour Government had been apportioned a little less of the blame." Robert Kee
Spec 181:540 O 22 '48 80w

Times [London] Lit Sup p85 F 5 '49 700w

CROFT-COOKE, RUPERT. Rudyard Kipling. (English novelists ser) 107p $2 Swallow, A.

B or 92 Kipling, Rudyard 49-9419

A brief biographical chapter is followed by chapters on the prose works—short stories, novels and children's books. Chronology. Index.

Booklist 45:394 Jl 15 '49

Manchester Guardian p3 S 17 '48 70w

Reviewed by Joseph Kraft
Nation 169:187 Ag 20 '49 180w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
— New Repub 121:18 Jl 4 '49 470w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Wk Bk R p11 Ag 28 '49 70w

"In spite of some shrewd points and many apt quotations, Mr. Croft-Cooke never seems able to project Kipling's essential qualities as a writer. One has the feeling throughout that he is too much on the defensive, and this leads him to all sorts of tentative assertions. This is an interesting but not a wholly satisfying book." David Daiches
+ — N Y Times p17 Jl 24 '49 140w

New Yorker 25:110 S 24 '49

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 32:18 Ag 20 '49 320w

"Kipling was more complex, both as a person and as a writer, than is usually conceded, and Mr. Rupert Croft-Cooke is to be congratulated on having given more than a little sense of this in so short a book. His study is sympathetic, sensible and discerning; pleasantly written, but never thin in matter or texture. Moreover, he is able to weave things together besides being able to analyse." Bonamy Dobrée
+ Spec 181:214 Ag 13 '48 600w

"Mr. Croft-Cooke is, like so many other people, a Kipling 'fan,' and has a good knowledge of the Collected Works, but he throws no new light on Kipling's life or intention or place in the English literary tradition. His pleasantly produced little book, written in an easy colloquial style, may serve to instruct the new generation who Kipling was, though they will hardly glean from these pages a hint that he wrote verse as well as prose."
Times [London] Lit Sup p584 O 16 '48 480w

CRONIN, JOHN FRANCIS. Catholic social action. 247p $3.50 Bruce pub.

261 Church and social problems—Roman Catholic church 48-10330

"Presents an up-to-date guide to the art of dealing with some current American social problems. There is nothing mystical or esoteric in what Dr. Cronin has to say about Catholic social action—a term rather broadly defined as 'the promotion of the common good by consistent and coherent programs of general betterment in the socioeconomic field.' Half of the volume deals with social education and organization. . . The other half of the book is devoted to a consideration of labor-management relations, economic assistance to workers, cooperatives, farm-city relations, and the promotion of tolerance between religious and racial groups." Ann Am Acad

---

"Its discussion of policy extends far beyond the experience level of college freshmen, who generally need to know more about the functioning of modern economic society before they are asked to cope with the correction of some of its ills. Apart from this reservation, Catholic Social Action is a worthy contribution to the literature on social reform and is recommended to those interested in doing something about our troubled society." F. J. Lewand
+ — Ann Am Acad 261:218 Ja '49 360w

"This book has the considerable merit of being concrete and immensely practical. If it is permissible to use the expression in these pages, I think it can best be described as a manual of 'know-how.'" J. S. Kennedy
+ Cath World 168:215 D '48 70w

CROSFIELD, DOMINI (ELLIADI) lady. Dances of Greece [il. by Doreen Renbold after drawings by Athena Tarsouli; music arr. for the piano by Ferdinand Rauter]. (Handbooks of European national dances) 40p $1.25 Chanticleer

793.31 Dancing—Folk and national dances [49-19757]

Brief introduction discusses Greek dances—their traditions and history, general principles, music and costume. This is followed by technical descriptions of four dances.

Reviewed by Maria Cimino
+ Library J 74:668 Ap 15 '49 40w

"The material is useful to those interested in the topic, and the specialist will have no trouble in working out the dance analyses proper." Rosalyn Krokover
+ Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ap 30 '49 40w

CROSS, SAMUEL HAZZARD. Mediaeval Russian churches; ed. by Kenneth John Conant. 95p 113pl $7.50; to members $6 Mediaeval acad.

726 Churches—Russia 49-7753

"Based on a series of lectures by Harvard's late distinguished professor of Slavic languages and literature. . . Professor Cross traces the subject from the earliest wooden chapels built by the Vikings at Kiev." Sat R of Lit

"A fascinating chapter in the history of art is provided by these lectures, which will stand as a monument to a gifted scholar." Solomon Katz

+ Am Hist R 55:194 O '49 360w

"Valuable publication. . . Professor Cross was an outstanding scholar in the field of Slavic culture, highly equipped both linguistically and historically for his task. He had also a direct perception, an artist's intuition, of Russia's mediaeval world and atmosphere." Helene Iswolsky

+ Commonweal 50:101 My 6 '49 330w

New Yorker 25:114 My 7 '49 100w

"This volume will be of interest almost exclusively to students of Russian church architecture." L. R. Sanders

Sat R of Lit 32:33 My 7 '49 70w

CROUCH, WILLIAM GEORGE, and ZETLER, ROBERT L. Guide to technical writing. 401p il $4 Ronald

651.7 Technical writing 48-7756

"Designed as a practical aid for the undergraduate student and for practicing technical men. Book covers the techniques of various kinds of communications, a review of the principles of writing and a grammatical index. Shows types of successful business letters, technical and semi-technical articles, reports, and abstracts. Speech material and language essentials are included. Index of English Usage is drawn from business letters. Written in an informal style." Library J

Booklist 45:236 Mr 15 '49

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:1516 O 15 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:31 Mr '49

CROWLEY, MAUDE. Azor and the haddock; pictures by Helen Sewell. 63p $2 Oxford 49-11223

"Azor of Marblehead is back again, that rare small boy who could talk to animals. Here he wants to keep a four-pound haddock for a pet, the fish he caught on his seventh birthday. This determination gets him into a peck of trouble, and almost causes him to lose his life in the fog. But the haddock talks, and the most exciting day in Azor's life ends happily." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 46:103 N 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun p25 Ja 7 '50 150w

"A better book than last season's Azor, to which it is a sequel; utterly delightful on all counts. . . One of the year's nicest books."

+ Kirkus 17:586 O 15 '49 110w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker

Library J 74:1533 O 15 '49 50w

"Young readers, 4-8, will find Helen Sewell's illustrations exactly right. Recommended." Margaret Miller

+ Library J 74:1827 D 1 '49 80w

"This writer knows her Marblehead and her small boys. She has a rare, dry, witty style, most refreshing in books for this age. It makes one read the little book right over again to be sure one has not missed some New Englandism, or some whiff of Marblehead air." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 27 '49 150w

"This story isn't quite as fresh nor as absurdly logical as was 'Azor,' but it is very funny and quietly touching." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p11 D 25 '49 140w

"The combination of down-to-earthness and fancy will tickle children as much as did the earlier 'Azor.' Miss Sewell, a first-rate illustrator, provides adroit and comical drawings."

+ New Yorker 25:168 D 3 '49 90w

CROWTHER, JAMES GERALD, and WHIDDINGTON, RICHARD. Science at war. 185p il maps $6 Philosophical lib.

623 World war, 1939-1945—Science 48-9612

"Officially sponsored by the Scientific Advisory Committee to the Cabinet, this volume records the vital service rendered by British scientists to the armed forces of their country during the late war. . . It brings into sharp relief the desperate plight of an island nation that was an enemy target, and the brilliant contribution of its scientists to the ultimate victory. Obviously, the whole story cannot be told within the compass of a small volume, so the authors have confined their attention to four topics: radar, operational research, the atomic bomb, and science and the sea." (Chem Eng) Index.

Am Soc R 14:192 F '49 170w

"Explanations, although necessarily involved, are clear, and the interested lay reader can obtain a sufficiently good understanding of the developments described. The book is too packed with information, however, to make it easy reading." A. H. Waitt

Chem & Eng N 27:1004 Ap 4 '49 350w

"Laymen who are interested in science will derive considerable satisfaction from reading this book, particularly the chapters on radar and the atomic bomb. Both give a clear exposition of the scientific basis of their subjects and the history of their development." H. C. Parmelee

+ Chem Eng 56:324 Mr '49 650w

Reviewed by Julian Sohon

Library J 74:551 Ap 1 '49 60w

Reviewed by Gerald Wendt

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p19 My 1 '49 700w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:30 Mr '49

CROXTON, FREDERICK EMORY, and COWDEN, DUDLEY JOHNSTONE. Practical business statistics. 2d ed 550p il $6.35; to schools $4.75 Prentice-Hall

311.2 Statistics. Business 48-10338

"Elementary statistical procedures for students of business first published in 1934 [Book Review Digest 1934] now almost completely rewritten, with the charts redrawn." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 45:213 F 15 '49

"Recommended." Julian Sohon

+ Library J 74:821 My 15 '49 70w

CROY, HOMER. Jesse James was my neighbor. 313p $3.50 Duell

B or 92 James, Jesse Woodson 49-9690

"Mr. Croy was born in the Jesse James country a year after the desperado's death. . . In this book, he sets out to round up the whole story of the James boys, from the Civil War days, when Jesse and Frank were riding with Quantrill's guerrillas, to Jesse's death, at the hands of Bob Ford, while the outlaw was dusting a picture on the wall. . . The author names every one of his sources and has traced all the surviving members of the James family, in addition to visiting the scenes of many of Jesse's crimes and talking to eyewitnesses, and he even gives a necrology of the twenty-eight bandits who at on time or another rode with the gang." (N Y Times) Sources. Index.

Booklist 45:375 Jl 1 '49

"Mr. Homer Croy is a good storyteller, and he tells this one con amore. . . Like most good storytellers he is not too queasy about sifting fact from fiction. Some of what he states as fact is surely folklore." Horace Reynolds

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Je 23 '49 480w

"As straight story telling, Mr. Croy's book on the Missouri lone rider is one of the most fascinating pieces of Americana to come off the press in years. . . But, unfortunately, the book misses badly in giving us any deep character analysis of Jesse who could pillage on Saturday and, without any feeling of hypocrisy, worship on Sunday." Harold Preece
+ — Churchman 163:17 O 1 '49 150w

"A forever fascinating figure and story, this has an appeal particularly for men and boys."
+ Kirkus 17:222 Ap 15 '49 200w

Reviewed by L. R. Etzkorn
Library J 74:814 My 15 '49 140w

"Mr Croy probably knows more about Jesse James than any other man, and the present work is doubtless the most accurate that has appeared. I found the anecdotes, which Mr. Croy has the good judgment to indicate may not be authentic, less interesting than some of his discoveries in the main James canon." Stewart Holbrook
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Je 26 '49 800w

"The most comprehensive biography that has ever been written of Jesse and Frank and their families. . . Some may object to Croy's wisecracks, most conspicuous in the book's index, but 'Jesse James Was My Neighbor' is must reading for any student of the American scene." Hoffman Birney
+ — N Y Times p12 Je 19 '49 500w

"An exceedingly thorough job of winnowing facts from the apocrypha, impostures, myths, and plain lies that make up the James legend. . . Although Mr. Croy does not gloss over Jesse's cold-blooded murders, he is still pretty indignant about the craven way he was brought to earth, and it is obvious that Jesse is still a hero to him. The writing is deplorable."
+ — New Yorker 25:87 Je 18 '49 200w

Reviewed by Edith James
San Francisco Chronicle p10 Je 11 '49 800w

"Exactly as you would expect from the title and from the fact that Homer Croy wrote it, here is a rocking-chair history, and one of the first order. Mr. Croy rocked on porches in dozens of Middlewest towns from Minnesota to Texas, from South Dakota to Tennessee, soaking up stories from people who had known Jesse James, and finally the time came when Mr. Croy himself had to start talking about the hero of his childhood. So here we have, from Mr. Croy's own front porch, the straight goods about an outlaw who has become a favorite American folk hero." D. L. Morgan
+ Sat R of Lit 32:18 Je 25 '49 950w

CUGAT, XAVIER. Rumba is my life; il. by the author. 210p $3.50 Didier pubs.

B or 92 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-1540

The "King of the Rumba" tells the story of his career and illustrates the account with his caricatures.

Booklist 45:260 Ap 1 '49

"Amusing, chatty, for modern dance music fans especially."
+ Kirkus 16:567 O 15 '48 100w

"[Cugat's] autobiography is a gay, gossipy reflection of the showmanship—as well as the musical attributes—of its subject."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Weekly Bk R p21 My 1 '49 140w

CULLITON, JAMES WILLIAM. Management of marketing costs. 166p $2.50 Harvard univ. Division of research

658.15 Marketing. Business management 48-9330

"A preliminary study of manufacturers' marketing costs. Emphasizes the need for discovering which costs in a business are true marketing costs and deals with the day-to-day operations concerned with marketing decisions." (Management R) Index.

Management R 38:237 Ap '49 40w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:59 Mr '49 300w

CUMBERLAND, MARTEN. Man who covered mirrors. 218p $2.25 Doubleday 49-11787

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p67 D 16 '49 100w
Kirkus 17:564 O 1 '49 70w

"This reads more like a real case history than a manufactured puzzle. It lacks the ingenuity of some of the puzzles, but makes up for it in its straightforward and interesting account of French police work."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p42 D 4 '49 150w

"In spite of the general bloodiness, this is pretty tame stuff, and it is not helped by the many interpolated French phrases and a curious air of being a bad translation."
New Yorker 25:136 N 26 '49 120w

CUMBERLAND, MARTEN. Policeman's nightmare. 191p $2.25 Doubleday 49-7628

Detective story.

Kirkus 16:649 D 15 '48 60w

"The quiet humor of the writing, the fact-crime plausibility of felony and ferreting, and the unpretentiously convincing character sketches show why Mr. Cumberland in these days of the psycho-thriller is one of the few hopes for the survival of the simon-pure detective story." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p26 Mr 27 '49 110w

"A disappointing addition to this series."
— New Yorker 25:100 F 26 '49 90w

"Variety of pungently portrayed people assist redoubtable Saturnin—also lead him down garden path—in swift and colorful Gallic tale. Flavorsome."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:33 Mr 5 '49 40w

CUMMINGS, PARKE, ed. Dictionary of sports; editorial advisory bd: Grantland Rice [and others]. 572p $7.50 Barnes, A.S.

796.03 Sports 49-8923

"This Dictionary does not duplicate, but supplements Menke's New Encyclopedia of Sports [Book Review Digest 1944]. It includes over 9000 terms, arranged alphabetically, briefly. . . defined, with occasional cuts where needed." Library J

Booklist 45:371 Jl 1 '49

"The descriptive matter is comprehensive enough to make it virtually a small, one volume encyclopedia, more than adequate for the reference shelves of athletic clubs, schools, etc."
+ Kirkus 17:264 My 15 '49 120w

"Cross references are plentiful. The list of experts and authorities consulted is long and impressive, indicating painstaking care, ensuring accuracy and authority. The whole field of sport is covered. . . But the book is excellent, well organized, lucidly written—indispensable." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:819 My 15 '49 170w

"Recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:1031 Jl '49 40w

"'A Dictionary of Sports' is an extremely worthwhile book for anyone interested in that vast and technical field." Rex Lardner
+ N Y Times p9 My 29 '49 380w

"Most of its articles are extremely short, but they give good, compact statements that tell what exactly the individual terms mean." Louis Shores
+ Sat R of Lit 33:42 Ja 21 '50 230w

CUMMINGS, SAMUEL, comp. Golden legends; great religious stories from ancient to modern times; introd. by Alson J. Smith. 541p $4 Pellegrini & Cudahy

808.83 Religious literature—Collections. Short stories—Collections 48-8644

"An anthology of 45 short stories reflecting the religious motif, from the Old Testament classics to moderns like Dreiser and Steinbeck. The tales deal exclusively with the Judeo-Christian tradition. All-time favorites are represented, like Dickens' 'A Child's Dream of a Star,' Hawthorne's 'The Great Stone Face,' Anatole France's 'The Juggler of Notre Dame,' and others. The great masterpieces of fiction have a place here, too, from Dostoevsky, Tolstoy, Bunyan and Swift." Springf'd Republican

Reviewed by John Cournos

Commonweal 49:180 N 26 '48 350w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 N 7 '48 40w

"An excellent thing about these stories is that Mr. Cummings does not claim too much for them. . . This is a book for browsing; perhaps a bedside book. The printing is good and the stories are not only religious but good reading. It is rather a relief to read stories that are seriously meant and at the same time intelligible." E. M. T.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 N 28 '48 170w

"It is a splendid book to own for research and illustrative material, or for leisurely perusing. Beautifully bound and printed, it will make an appreciated and appropriate gift." H. H. Wagner

+ Springf'd Republican p9C Ap 10 '49 240w

CUNNINGHAM, ALBERT BENJAMIN (GARTH HALE, pseud). After the storm. 320p $3 Dutton

49-4132

Cynthe Laird was the happy wife of the Dean of Brokaw University, when unexpectedly, the man who was the father of her illegitimate daughter, came back into her life. The problem he posed to her and the solution she finally found are told in this story.

Booklist 45:345; 376 Je 15 '49; Jl 1 '49

Chicago Sun p8X Jl 24 '49 140w

"An absorbing story, sensitive in appreciation of character and ethical values, though probably carrying too heavy a load of collegiate discussion."

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 21 '49 170w

Kirkus 17:242 My 1 '49 170w

"Academic atmosphere authentic—character development excellent. Recommended." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 74:1024 Jl '49 80w

"It is regrettable that the more important episodes lack the balance and proportion of the lesser events. Although the realism for which the author is noted distinguishes certain parts of the novel, that quality is missing from the projection of the emotional scenes." Joan Andrews

+ — N Y Times p16 Jl 17 '49 270w

" 'Should a woman tell?' is the question they used to flash on the old silent screen to announce next week's soul-probing drama of a woman's heart. . . It didn't make much sense then, and it makes less now." N. L. Rothman

— Sat R of Lit 32:34 Jl 30 '49 220w

CUNNINGHAM, ALBERT BENJAMIN (GARTH HALE, pseud). Murder without weapons. 222p $2.50 Dutton

Detective story.

"The case grows slowly and soundly with detail of that rich sort which makes Cunningham a very considerable writer about the Southern mountain region and its people. The book is richer stuff than a good many 'serious' writers serve their readers." James Sandoe

+ Chicago Sun Jl 29 '49 180w

Kirkus 17:260 My 15 '49 70w

"An enjoyable jigsaw." Will Cuppy

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 7 '49 140w

"Followers of Mr. Cunningham's Jess Roden can, as usual, be sure of a solid and absorbing story, with plenty of interesting and rarely obtrusive local color." Elizabeth Bullock

+ N Y Times p19 Jl 17 '49 150w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 4 '49 80w

CUNNINGHAME GRAHAM, ROBERT BONTINE. Horses of the conquest; ed. by Robert Moorman Denhardt; with il. by J. Craig Sheppard. 145p $5 Univ. of Okla. press

972.02 Horses. Latin America—History 49-11675

The first American edition of a book published in England in 1930. It describes the Spanish conquest of the New World in terms of the horses the Spaniards used as mounts. The author gathered all the references to the horses made by the Spaniards in their letters and from them compiled this story. Bibliography.

"Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:48 Ja 1 '50 60w

Reviewed by H. I. Brock

+ N Y Times p22 N 6 '49 160w

+ New Yorker 25:153 D 10 '49 290w

"Readers who love the horse, readers who are interested in the Spanish Conquest, and readers who know something of old Cunninghame Graham himself will be eager to get the book partly for its good design, partly because of its subject, and partly for the tart flavor of the author, the half-Spaniard, half-Scot who wrote only on subjects that he knew and gave to every word he put on paper a sharp singularity which has made him for half a century the special favorite of a small but enthusiastic audience." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 N 18 '49 1000w

" 'The Horses of the Conquest' is more than a glamorous piece of tapestry; it is a sound study of the importance of the horse in gaining for Spain a toehold in the New World and extending it to continental dominion. The Spaniards themselves were fully aware of the important share played by the horse in consolidating this accomplishment. A frequent phrase in the records of contemporary chroniclers, Don Roberto points out, was 'For, after God, we owed the victory to the horses.' The new edition is a fine example of bookmaking."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:27 Ja 21 '50 200w

CUNZ, DIETER. Maryland Germans; a history. 476p il $5 Princeton univ. press

325.243 Germans in Maryland 48-11111

"History of the immigration of German nationals to the State of Maryland, beginning with the Colonial period. Professor Cunz (University of Maryland) enumerates the reasons for the emigration from Europe and the settling here; the way of life in the new country; amalgamation into the American scene, and sometimes the aloofness from it (the Amish). It is the record of German activities in Maryland for 300 years." Current Hist

"Objectivity, not always a characteristic of studies of national groups, is maintained throughout this work, which is characterized by careful and most extensive research. . . Very full documentation, an excellent bibliography, and occasional translations of excerpts from sources interspersed through the text increase the value of this study." W. R. Steckel

+ Am Hist R 54:948 Jl '49 320w

"Such a brief review cannot do justice to the many interesting items of new information and interpretation to be found in this volume. What makes the book even more worthy of praise, is that it has been so thoroughly and objectively done. The author does not claim too much, as unfortunately so many others who have written about immigrant groups to which they happened to belong, have done. His judgments are penetrating, sane and well balanced." Carl Wittke
+ Ann Am Acad 261:214 Ja '49 550w
Christian Century 65:1403 D 22 '48 270w
Current Hist 16:36 Ja '49 70w
Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 4 '49 360w
N Y Times p44 O 30 '49 180w

"An interesting and useful but disappointingly incomplete book. The author, Associate Professor of German at the University of Maryland, refrains from the special pleading which has so often marred writings on local immigrant groups and their 'contributions.' While avoiding the usually endless catalogue of prominent names, he nevertheless devotes much space to individual Germans, particularly ministers and editors: he is a better storyteller than sociologist." Robert Ernst
+ — Pol Sci Q 64:317 Je '49 490w

Reviewed by A. D. Graeff
+ Social Studies 40:280 O '49 500w
Times [London] Lit Sup p383 Je 10 '49 800w

"Dr. Cunz's narrative includes little economic or sociological analysis, and no statistics; nevertheless, the book is important for anyone concerned with American immigration or nationalism, or with Maryland."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 5:70 Mr '49 300w

CUPPY, WILLIAM JACOB. How to attract the wombat; with il. by Ed Nofziger. 226p $2.75 Rinehart 817 49-11671

Brief humorous essays about mammals, insects, birds, etc. In each essay there is a bit of correct information. Some of the articles appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, one in the New Yorker.

Booklist 46:57; 93 O 15 '49; N 15 '49
Bookmark 9:52 D '49 30w

"Mr. Cuppy was one of those rare writers who can make nonsense, delightful, warming nonsense out of the most unlikely subjects. His serious approach, his enchanting use of footnotes to add non sequiturs to cliches and his gentle but rather deadly spoofing of the human race give him a literary stature that is not often achieved in the field of humor. Read him a little at a time, slip around thru the book as the mood indicates. Take it all at one sitting and you're apt to have wombats in your belfry." Will Davidson
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 D 18 '49 230w

"His style is light, easy, fluent, casually intimate, with a loose-wristed twist. But the humor lies more in the sub-heads than in the reading matter."
+ — Kirkus 17:530 S 15 '49 120w

"This is, regrettably, the last of what Joseph Wood Krutch once called 'Will Cuppy's strange books of more or less natural history' (he died September 19). It is also one of his best. . . Recommended to all and sundry, as Will would say." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:1599 O 15 '49 100w

"You may not learn much about how to attract wombats in this book, if that is your heart's desire, but you will be apt to have a fine time reading it. You will spend 226 pages in the company of as bizarre a cast of beasts, birds and insects as has been assembled since 'Through the Looking Glass,' or since Cuppy's earlier books. And 'How to Attract the Wombat' is enriched by illustrations by Ed Nofziger, thoroughly in the mood of the master's text." Frank Sullivan
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 20 '49 1350w

Reviewed by Charles Poore
N Y Times p8 N 13 '49 370w

CURETON, THOMAS KIRK. Fun in the water; aquatic stunts, contests, games & exhibitions for recreation; with il. by Felix Pfeifer. 143p $4 Assn. press
797.2 Swimming. Aquatic sports 49-8329

"This manual describes nearly three hundred activities which supply entertainment and develop confidence and skill in the water. Sketches, diagrams, and photographs help to make the directions easy to follow." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index of activities.

Booklist 45:282 Ap 15 '49
Library J 74:1679 N 1 '49 20w

"For directors of aquatic entertainment as well as for swimming instructors and camp counselors, this book is a most complete recreational guide." L. B. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p4D My 29 '49 300w

CURRENT trends in social psychology [by] Wayne Dennis [and others] 299p $3.50 Univ. of Pittsburgh
301.15 Social psychology 49-1406

"Eight lectures from the second conference on trends in psychology sponsored by the Department of Psychology, University of Pittsburgh, on the following subjects: The New Psychology, A Program of Experimentation on Group Functioning and Group Productivity, Cultural Diversity and World Peace, An Approach to Social Perception, Experimental Sociometry and the Experimental Method in Science, The Social Psychology of Housing, Communication Research and the Social Psychologist, Psychological Approaches to the Prevention of War." Survey

School & Society 69:159 F 26 '49 30w

"The chapters are, on the whole, well chosen and well done. Though the topic is surely important, I do not think having two sections on social psychology as it applies to world peace is warranted. A section on race or intergroup attitudes would have been preferable. . . Both researchers and teachers, nevertheless, will find this a provocative work." Melvin Seeman
+ — Social Forces 28:93 O '49 600w
Survey 85:287 My '49 100w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:237 Je '49 280w

CURSITER, STANLEY. Scottish art to the close of the nineteenth century. 134p pl col pl $5 Chanticleer
759.2 Painting, Scottish 49-7956

An illustrated history of Scottish painting from the earliest authentic work done in the fifteenth century, to the 1890's. The author, who is himself a painter, was for eighteen years a director of Scotland's National gallery. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:277 Ap 15 '49

"Has a definite place in art book collections." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 74:1324 S 15 '49 70w

CURTI, MERLE EUGENE, and CARSTENSEN, VERNON ROSCO. University of Wisconsin; a history, 1848-1925. 2v il ea $6; set $10 Univ. of Wis. press
378 Wisconsin. University 48-47638

"History of the founding of the university, as a state institution, with a brief salute to the earlier pioneers of the state idea. The authors, both of the faculty, review the detailed story of organization, faculty, finance, and the changes brought by the years in studies, students, and college life. The history is in commemoration of Wisconsin's hundredth anniversary." Current Hist

CURTI, M. E.—Continued

"[The authors] have gone to the original documents, have sought the assistance of the participants still alive and of experts in specialized fields, and have attempted to relate the history of their university to that of higher education in general. And yet, unhappily, this treatise is not good history. The undertaking fails primarily because of its faulty plan of organization." W. H. Cowley

— + Ann Am Acad 266:231 N '49 650w

Current Hist 16:288 My '49 50w

Current Hist 17:162 S '49 80w (Review of v2)

Reviewed by G. E. Mowry

Sat R of Lit 32:12 D 17 '49 800w

"This monumental work is impressive in several respects: extent and quality of supporting documentation, splendid balance with emphasis on those matters which are the proper province of a university, logical and chronological smoothness of presentation, frequent objective comparisons with other universities, detailed special background material, and tasteful format." W. W. Brickman

+ School & Society 69:387 My 28 '49 270w

School & Society 70:15 Jl 2 '49 50w (Review of v2)

CURTIS, MRS ALICE READY (PARTLOW). Is your publicity showing? a handbook for the nonprofessional publicity chairman; cartoons by Nick Carroll. 211p $2 Int. textbook

301.154 Publicity 49-11445

"The book covers the kinds of material needed for different media and the means of contact for each. The arrangement is from the simpler to the more complex duties in connection with publicizing club activities. Glossary." Booklist

Booklist 46:115 D 1 '49

"Here's a decidedly useful book for those nonprofessionals whose labor of love it is to see that clubs, committees and other social and civic organizations get publicity." J. M. Flynn

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 13 '49 140w

CURTIS, BRIAN. Life story of the fish; his morals and manners [drawings prepared by Jeanne Russell Janish]. rev ed 284p pl $3.75 Harcourt

597 Fishes 49-7384

A rewritten and revised edition of a book which first appeared eleven years ago (Book Review Digest 1938). "Since then new facts have come to light about the homing of salmon, about the spawning of tarpon, about the dynamics of fish populations, about the many ways in which man and fish affect each other. . . The book has therefore been rewritten, with extensive revisions and additions, reference reading lists for those who wish to consult source material, and one entirely new chapter." (Pref) Selected references. Index.

Booklist 45:213 F 15 '49

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy

Chicago Sun p7X D 11 '49 80w

Library J 74:1561 O 15 '49 20w

"I know of no account of the mysterious life story of eels which is more precise and satisfying than Mr. Curtis's telling of that story."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 F 27 '49 50w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 F 27 '49 170w

"Mr. Curtis's simple, fascinating account of the remarkable experiments that have been made to settle all doubts in favor of the theory that fish can change color shows him at his best. He is also good when he takes up the nervous system of the fish and almost makes his readers live vicariously in water and in imagination experience the fears and pleasures of fish—and all without being too anthropomorphic. . . Mr. Curtis has cast a rather big and fine-meshed net for the deliberate purpose of catching as his readers anglers, aquarists, and city folk who never held a rod or gaff. . . But it is the ordinary, intelligent reader with the kind of mind that asks whether or not fish feel pain when they are hooked . . . who will probably enjoy this well-written book most." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ Sat R of Lit 32:28 Ap 2 '49 600w

"Mr. Curtis tends towards zoological generalities which are not obscured by minutiae; these he handles in popular and extraordinarily able style, using apt similes and giving his wry sense of humor full play. . . While the strict scientist may quarrel with occasional interpretations, this limited revision of Mr. Curtis's earlier 'Life Story of the Fish' (1938), for the most part, sets a high standard." Daniel Merriman

Yale R n s 38:543 spring '49 350w

CURTIS, LIONEL. World revolution in the cause of peace; with a foreword by Owen J. Roberts. 135p $2.50 Macmillan

341.1 International cooperation. Federal government 49-6235

"An appeal, by the author of Civitas Dei, for a United Europe, based on the program for a supra-European state launched by Churchill at Albert Hall in May, 1947 and further elaborated at the Hague Conference in May, 1948. Removing the fear of war is the primary task today and Mr. Curtis feels that the people themselves, not national governments, have the best chance of accomplishing this. Draws parallels with the successful activities of the American Constitutional Convention to replace the Articles of Confederation. Reminiscent of persistent century-old plans to achieve a United World through a United Europe." Library J

Current Hist 17:226 O '49 50w

"Written primarily for a British public this has a certain validity of purpose but is a very dull presentation of the cause [of] world federation."

Kirkus 17:344 Jl 1 '49 100w

"Controversial, didactic but indicative of the reaction against the world's present quality—technological efficiency combined with political ineptitude." J. H. Berthel

+ Library J 74:1020 Jl '49 150w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn

N Y Times p16 S 25 '49 450w

Reviewed by August Heckscher

Sat R of Lit 32:8 S 3 '49 750w

Reviewed by F. H. Hinsley

Spec 182:796 Je 10 '49 800w

Reviewed by Donald Derby

Springf'd Republican p7C O 9 '49 420w

Reviewed by Bennet Skewes-Cox

Survey 85:622 N '49 450w

"Here is yet another plea for federalism, but this time from an author whose serious and prolonged study of international problems commands the respect which cannot always be accorded to his fellow federalists."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p179 Mr 19 '49 950w

CUTHBERT, NORMA BARRETT, ed. Lincoln and the Baltimore plot, 1861; from Pinkerton records and related papers. 161p il $3 Huntington lib.

B or 92 Lincoln, Abraham 49-8846

A resumé of the known facts about the supposed conspiracy to assassinate Lincoln in Baltimore as he traveled thru there, bound for his first inauguration. Contains the account of the affair given by Allan Pinkerton, famous private detective. Index.

Current Hist 17:227 O '49 60w

"Miss Cuthbert does not offer this collection as proof, or disproof, of the reality of the Baltimore 'plot.' Her purpose is the more limited yet completely laudable one of making all the significant material generally available, and of allowing 'real detectives [to] tell about their own cloak-and-dagger operations.' Therein lies the book's broadest appeal—an appeal, incidentally, that is strengthened by unintentional humor." P. M. Angle

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Ag 7 '49 430w

CUTHRELL, MRS FAITH (BALDWIN). See Baldwin, F.

D

D., H. See Doolittle, H.

DABNEY, VIRGINIUS. Dry messiah; the life of Bishop Cannon. 362p il $4 Knopf

B or 92 Cannon, James, bp. Prohibition

Biography of James Cannon, bishop of the Methodist church from 1918 to 1938, who led the fight for prohibition and was instrumental in the passage of the 18th amendment. In the later years of his life he was accused of gross misconduct in financial and personal affairs. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:294 My 1 '49

Reviewed by Harold Preece
Churchman 163:18 N 1 '49 120w

"A well authenticated, sharply written study."
+ Kirkus 17:101 F 15 '49 180w

"Will interest students of American life, but will have little popular appeal. Smaller libraries will not need." G. W. Wakefield
Library J 74:491 Mr 15 '49 140w

"The chief defect of 'Dry Messiah' is a lack of editing. . . Mr. Dabney's obvious animus and his heavy-handed attempts at Menckenese irony tend to divert the reader's interest from what is really an amazing story of the life of a fanatic." McAlister Coleman
Nation 168:536 My 7 '49 950w

"The author is distinctly a non-admirer of the Bishop; but the editor of 'The Richmond Times Dispatch' is too old a hand at controversial writing to allow his personal preference to betray him into rash assertions. Every statement of fact is carefully documented; and in nothing is Mr. Dabney more careful than in giving credit to the Bishop for his very considerable merits. Courage, shrewdness, agility and almost fabulous energy Cannon had. His sympathy with the underdog seems to have been genuine and he had no taste for luxury." G. W. Johnson
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ap 17 '49 1100w

"The book will not be welcome to Cannon's followers. It is a devastating and well-documented story of a crusader whose ardor blinded him to certain standards of candor, accuracy and conduct. Except in two chapters, it is unrelieved in its portrait of a harsh man. Bishop Cannon did lead a praiseworthy attack on child labor and later showed sympathy for the victims of nazism. Mr. Dabney gives him his due in these respects. . . Mr. Dabney is convincing and exhaustive in marshaling the evidence on Cannon's financial operations. As for the charges against his domestic morality, neither the case for nor the case against can be summarized here. Mr. Dabney deals with it fully." C. McD. Puckette
N Y Times p3 Ap 17 '49 1100w

" 'Dry Messiah' is the work of a fairminded, humorous, and well-seasoned journalist." Vance Bourjaily
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 My 15 '49 800w

"Penetrating study by a distinguished Southern editor and Pulitzer Prize winner. The part that Bishop Cannon played in putting over the 18th Amendment and the Volstead Act is pretty well known, and the facts are available for anyone who cares to look them up. Mr. Dabney goes into them in detail, but he also gives us, slyly, ironically, and without rancor, the low-down on the Bishop's fascinating private life. What a man! He appears clearly in Mr. Dabney's pages as one of the outstanding hypocrites in American religious history, a holy scalawag who consistently practised the iniquities which he righteously and thunderously denied to others." Herbert Asbury
+ Sat R of Lit 32:19 Ap 16 '49 900w
Time 53:113 Ap 18 '49 650w

DACHS, DAVID (DAVE STANLEY, pseud), ed. Treasury of golf humor; il. by Cobbledick. 383p $3 Lantern press (N Y)

Short stories—Collections 49-50064

Collection of nineteen short stories devoted entirely to those who play golf. Partial contents: Old hole in one, by Sam Hellman; McWhinney shoots a birdie, by C. B. Kelland; Tee time, by Ring Lardner; The golfomaniac, by Stephen Leacock; Montana golf, by E. P. Butler; Murder at the thirteenth hole, by Wallace Irwin; Jane gets off the fairway, by P. G. Wodehouse.

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:49 Ja 1 '50 30w

Reviewed by Rex Lardner
+ N Y Times p14 Ja 8 '50 180w

DAICHES, DAVID. Study of literature, for readers and critics. 240p $2.75 Cornell univ. press

804 Literature 48-7813

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"One of the very best of recent books in its field."
+ Atlantic 183:88 Ap '49 190w

"This book should help to restore a sense of values, particularly in the anomalous field of fiction." H. I'A. F.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 11 '49 180w

"One can forgive any occasional lapses in judgment, in view of the brilliant exegesis of Milton's 'Lycidas' which Mr. Daiches has contributed to his discussion of the nature of poetry. It is a superb example of critical study, by itself. Elsewhere in the book are other rich commentaries on Milton, enough to suggest that Mr. Daiches might well devote a whole book of studies to that figure. In all, the present work offers good, stimulating discussion for students, the literate readers and critics of tomorrow." Elizabeth Bartlett
+ — N Y Times p3 Jl 3 '49 650w

"Professor Daiches has stimulating new thoughts about his subject, knows what he wants to say, and writes it down without recourse to any of the special jargon that blights so much contemporary critical writing."
+ New Yorker 25:67 S 3 '49 160w

"In general Professor Daiches book is a sensible discussion of critical first principles; it is a pity that it does not as a whole maintain the level of the chapters on the novel."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p399 Je 17 '49 850w

"In simple, persuasive language, Mr. Daiches presents his humanistic esthetic. . . His argument is clear and comprehensive, his manner undogmatic and without condescension, and his conclusions are in general sensible. He has rather more to say to the 'common reader' and student of literature than to the critic, who will be familiar with both matter and position. Nevertheless, the critic might well be interested in the remarks in the book on the novel and in the thematic analysis of Milton's Lycidas."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:413 D '48 260w

DALBERG-ACTON, JOHN EMERICH EDWARD, 1st baron ACTON. See Acton, J. E. E. D.-A.

DALE, EDWARD EVERETT. Indians of the Southwest; a century of development under the United States; pub. in cooperation with the Huntington library, San Marino. (Civilization of the Am. Indian) 283p il maps $4 Univ. of Okla. press

970.4 Indians of North America—Government relations 49-10762

"A broad general survey of the more important aspects of one hundred years of Indian administration in the Southwest, with special emphasis on those activities which have proved of permanent value. The chief purpose of this volume is to give to the general reader a better knowledge and understanding of the Southwestern tribes as they are today by tracing briefly the story of the events which have helped to create present conditions. It is also hoped that the volume may be of value to scholars interested in the Southwest by furnishing a body of information which will serve as a background for the preparation of more detailed studies on special subjects touching the Indians of this area." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:80 N 1 '49

Current Hist 17:286 N '49 60w

"A frank and honest account with much statistical data supplemented by numerous footnotes, this is fairly heavy reading. It is not likely to be popular but is an excellent basic book for any collection on Southwest history." L. R. Etzkorn

Library J 74:1461 O 1 '49 140w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 14 '49 320w

"The book is a thoroughly enlightened, scholarly, and readable work. Handsomely turned out and lavishly illustrated with well chosen photographs, old and new, it contains an adequate bibliography and index." Stanley Vestal

+ Sat R of Lit 32:20 O 15 '49 550w

School Arts 49:2a N '49 150w

DALGLIESH, ALICE. The Davenports and Cherry Pie; il. by Flavia Gág. 196p $2.50 Scribner

49-48408

Continues the story of the Davenport family begun in The Davenports are at Dinner (Book Review Digest 1948). They still live in the Connecticut barn and broadcast their dinner conversation. But their lives are complicated and their quarters more crowded by the arrival of the poodle they called Cherry Pie. When the difficult little step-sister Lyn falls hard for Cherry Pie, they are all glad, and when the poodle makes a hit on television, they both definitely become members of the family.

+ Bookmark 9:56 D '49 40w

"Always dependable, Alice Dalgliesh gives us this year another story of the popular Davenport family." B. J. Thompson

+ Cath World 170:210 D '49 110w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 N 13 '49 180w

"The incidents of family life provide room for continual action, and plenty of fun spices the book. The chapter on the dog's Beauty Parlor is particularly amusing." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:526 N '49 70w

Kirkus 17:469 S 1 '49 190w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid

Library J 74:1541 O 15 '49 30w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 27 '49 170w

"For most children of 9 to 12 this second story of the Davenports will come to an end much too soon." V. H. Mathews

+ N Y Times p34 O 30 '49 190w

"Throughout the book the children are throughly human and understandable. . . Probably every child has, at one time or another, wished his family would be a little more unorthodox and exciting. Here then, for his edification and amusement, are the Davenports."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p8 N 13 '49 320w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:25 N 12 '49 140w

DALLIN, DAVID JULIEVICH. Rise of Russia in Asia. 293p maps $5 Yale univ. press

327.47 Russia—Foreign relations—East (Far East) 49-9059

A companion volume to the author's Soviet Russia and the Far East (Book Review Digest 1948). This book fills in the historical background of the events which are taking place in China today, dealing with Russia's Far Eastern policies from the middle of the nineteenth century to 1931. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:347 Je 15 '49

"This is essential background material for any intelligent study of Soviet policies in the Far East in the last 20 years, and for forecasting what may happen next. The picture is not one which will diminish the apprehensions with which the future may be regarded." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 66:824 Jl 6 '49 280w

"This thorough and sound work is no piece of propaganda but a very precise account of a neglected chapter of history. Because it deals with a settled period, it could be written from a greater distance and in a more objective manner than the second volume dealing with the most recent developments. Through his sober way of presenting the facts, Mr. Dallin gives a very clear picture of modern power politics in the wide spaces of Asia. . . Dallin's book abounds in little-known information. . . Dallin's book illuminates the prehistory of Russian efforts for domination of Mongolia and Manchuria. Light is also shed on recent events. There is, for instance, the very interesting biography of Li Li-San, the Chinese Communist leader. . . Such personal portraits, as well as the integration of Russian events into the background of the whole Asiatic history, make Dallin's book not only a useful source of information but a brilliant and most fascinating story." Max Fischer

+ Commonweal 50:177 My 27 '49 850w

Current Hist 17:36 Jl '49 90w

Kirkus 17:199 Ap 1 '49 180w

"Recommended." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 74:658 Ap 15 '49 130w

"This is important history because it gives us something of the background of what has become the major factor in Far Eastern affairs. It gives some clew as to the nature of Russian power, its development, its attitudes, its methods. It is only a pity that Dr. Dallin has not been able to be more illuminating about it than he has. Unfortunately, he has written what amounts to a cursory sketch, a bare-bones summary." H. R. Isaacs

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 Je 12 '49 1100w

Reviewed by Tillman Durdin

N Y Times p6 Je 12 '49 800w

New Yorker 25:115 My 21 '49 160w

Reviewed by P. E. Mosely

Pol Sci Q 64:442 S '49 750w

"A volume of high scholarship. It must be noted, however, that, although the range of his study was wide, it might have been wider. Some sources of information which are pertinent to the subject and available in this country are not in evidence. Other sources which were employed were apparently not adequately tapped. But it may be carping to ask for more than has been done. What David J. Dallin has done is a major study on a subject whose immediacy is all too clear." Sidney Harcave

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:12 Jl 2 '49 900w

Times [London] Lit Sup p843 D 23 '49 1850w

DALLIN, DAVID JULIEVICH. Soviet Russia and the Far East. 398p maps $5 Yale univ. press

327.47 Russia—Foreign relations—East (Far East) 48-9035

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"Professor Dallin's point of view is, on the whole, carefully documented in his book. While some of his conclusions, such as those expressed with respect to the extent of Russian control over the selection of the leaders of the Chinese Communist party . . . are inferential and thus not directly documented, the fact of relationship (which has sometimes been denied) between Moscow and the Chinese Communists throughout the entire period of the study is documented both from Soviet and Chinese sources. It is this documentation, as well as the carefulness of the analysis, which makes this both an important and a timely study. Until comparable evidence to the contrary has been as well assembled and as ably presented in support of the other point of view, Professor Dallin's conclusions as to Soviet policy, and the utilization of local Communist parties as its instruments, must be accepted." H. M. Vinacke
+ Am Hist R 54:607 Ap '49 650w

"Mr. Dallin's book is warmly recommended to all students of international affairs." W. M. McGovern
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:598 Je '49 300w

"The account of Soviet policies is detailed and documented. It reflects the author's well known views. It is a useful and timely book; more useful on Soviet diplomacy than on the dynamics of Communism in Asia." H. H. Fisher
+ — Ann Am Acad 263:217 My '49 480w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '49

"Mr. Dallin is more convincing in his reconstruction of the events of the prewar period, for which documentation is more ample, than for the last ten years."
Foreign Affairs 27:518 Ap '49 40w

"The massive advances of the Chinese Communists since Mr. Dallin published his book in the United States last year have given an even greater topicality to its subject and, in spite of Mr. Dallin's occasional lapses into statements that are at best unverifiable, it is a book which deserves a wide public." Max Beloff
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 9 '49 390w

"The author's clear-cut anti-Soviet convictions explain a certain selectivity in his use of material. As a result the reader is presented with a well-digested brief rather than a complete survey of the evidence." Violet Conolly
Pacific Affairs 22:207 Je '49 1100w

"He covers a great deal of ground, but the total impression is rather bewildering, and further blurred by the formlessness of his style and its complete lack of distinction. There is little attempt to portray British or American policy as seen and interpreted by the Kremlin. . . As a reference book, however, Soviet Russia and the Far East is invaluable; there is certainly no comparable work available in English." Jane Degras
+ — Spec 183:708 N 18 '49 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p843 D 23 '49 1850w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:71 Mr '49 280w

" 'Soviet Russian and the Far East' is not only an outstanding contribution to the history of the Soviet Union in the Far East since 1930; it is superior to any work heretofore published. As it is based on a wide and thorough acquaintance with the best sources, Communist and non-Communist, which have appeared in print, no student of the last two decades of Far Eastern history or of the contemporary scene can afford to be unaware of its intrinsic value." R. J. Kerner
+ Yale R n s 38:532 spring '49 850w

DALRYMPLE, BYRON W. Doves and dove shooting. 243p il $4.50 Putnam

799.24865 Pigeons 49-49549

"First complete book covering all phases of subject, in good style. Special sections on the three dove species that are legal game in the U.S." Library J

"Of interest to both naturalist and sportsman." R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:48 Ja 1 '50 30w

"The author has studied his subject thoroughly, from the demise of the passenger pigeon to plans for maintaining a hunting population of doves, and his conclusions are sound, although they may be too drastic for the thoughtless hunter. A work of this character, representing much conscientious study and effort to get the facts straight, deserves an index. It would then be more useful to the professional wildlife biologist, who buys as many of these books as the hunters." J. W. H.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p26 N 27 '49 120w

DALRYMPLE, BYRON W. Ice-fishing for everybody; with an introd. by Francesca LaMonte. 257p il $3.50 Lantern press (N Y)

799.1 Fishing 49-7024

A fully-detailed discussion of the sport of ice-fishing including such matters as clothing and equipment, where and when to fish, laws and regulations, weather and ice-conditions. Written in easy, informal style with many personal reminiscences and observations.

Booklist 45:258 Ap 1 '49

"Only book—and an excellent one—on ice-fishing." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:379 Mr 1 '49 50w

Springf'd Republican p6B D 26 '48 210w

DALTON, MRS BLANCHE H., comp. Sources of engineering information. 109p $4 Univ. of Calif.

016.62 Engineering—Bibliography 48-9071

"This compilation is the revised edition of a syllabus originally written to be used with lectures on the use of the library presented for Engineering, faculty members and graduate students of the University of California who wished to learn how to make effective use of library facilities when engaged in research." (Pref) Contains sections on: Indexes to periodical and serial literature; Abstracts; Location of articles; Bibliography; Reference books; Trade catalog collection; and Standards and specifications.

Booklist 45:98 N 15 '48

Chem Eng 56:289 Jl '49 110w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:22 Mr '49

Special Libraries 40:30 Ja '49 40w

DALY, ELIZABETH. And dangerous to know. 218p $2.50 Rinehart

49-10320

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun S 16 '49 150w

"These Gamadge stories are good reading, even when they don't come off, and this has too much misdirection, too many people, too many loose ends."
+ — Kirkus 17:375 Jl 15 '49 80w

"Henry Gamadge, bibliophile-detective, seems more fun to read about this time, maybe because he's taking a vacation from musty old manuscripts. Anyway, he's all over the place with the light touch but no lack of solid brainwork." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 S 18 '49 150w

DALY, ELIZABETH—Continued

"'Gentility' is a word rarely used seriously in these days, but nothing else quite so well describes the atmosphere of Elizabeth Daly's novels. Henry Gamadge, her charming and sympathetic bibliophile-detective, is a man so well-bred as to make Lord Peter Wimsey seem a trifle coarse." A. B.

+ N Y Times p29 S 18 '49 170w

"Although his final interpretation is sound enough, his method of trapping the scoundrel may seem, even to his admirers, to be on the shaky side. Agreeably written and moderately wry."

+ — New Yorker 25:116 S 17 '49 100w

DALY, SHEILA JOHN. Blondes prefer gentlemen; brunettes, too—redheads included! il. by Bill Charmatz. 260p $2.50 Dodd

395 Etiquet 49-10484

Advice on etiquet for the high school boy emphasizing the preference of all kinds of girls for well behaved young gentlemen. Partial contents: Talk tactics; Telephone technique; Tips on tipping; Smoking and drinking; Guide to grooming; Date data.

Booklist 46:49 O 1 '49

"Presented in the bright, direct, tactful, understanding Daly manner." M. B. King

+ Chicago Sun Ag 27 '49 80w

"Sprightly, straightforward handling of etiquette problems of the teen-age boy." Margaret Miller

+ Library J 74:1465 O 1 '49 70w

"Although Miss Daly's advice is given a bit breezily, her reasoning is sound and there isn't a male teen-ager who wouldn't profit by even a quick scanning of the volume. Miss Daly is right on her toes and never forgets, as so many of the older etiquette advisers do, that this is 1949."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p9 N 13 '49 90w

DAMPIER, SIR WILLIAM CECIL DAMPIER. History of science and its relations with philosophy & religion. 4th ed rev & enl 527p $3.95 Macmillan (for Cambridge univ. press)

509 Science—History. Philosophy. Religion and science 49-7999

Fourth revised and enlarged edition of this history of science. "In converting the third into the fourth edition of this book, most of the subjects treated under the heading '1930 to 1940' have been distributed among earlier chapters. Some new work, especially in England and America, done to solve definite war problems, has led incidentally to an increase in scientific knowledge. An attempt has been made to describe the more important published discoveries." (Pref to 4th ed) Index. For third edition see Book Review Digest 1943.

"This work's very high reputation will be continued and increased by the new edition."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 Mr 13 '49 130w

"This fourth edition has been thoroughly revised. . . On the social aspects of science Sir William is not so strong. Lopsided as the materialistic doctrine of Marx may be, there is no question that he performed the important service of indicating the kind of social pressure to which scientists are subject and of which they are usually unaware. Yet Marx is not mentioned, nor is any latter-day authoritarian of the Mussolini-Hitler stripe. These omissions detract not a whit from the most useful history of science that has appeared since Whewell a century ago wrote on the history and philosophy of the inductive sciences." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ — N Y Times p14 Ap 3 '49 600w

"Combines in an amazing way, wide historical scholarship with profound knowledge of modern physics, a really comprehending outlook on modern biology, and a natural gift of religious feeling."

+ School & Society 69:102 F 5 '49 50w

DANA, EDWARD SALISBURY. Minerals and how to study them; rev. by Cornelius S. Hurlbut, jr. 3d ed 323p il $3.90 Wiley

549 Mineralogy 49-7833

"A well-known manual of mineralogy for the amateur appears in a revised, partly rewritten edition. Many illustrations." (Booklist) The work was first published in 1895, with a second edition in 1906. Index.

Booklist 45:316 My 15 '49

Bookmark 9:12 O '49 20w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 74:200 F 1 '49 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:25 Mr '49

DANENBERG, ELSIE FLORENCE (NICHOLAS) (MRS LEIGH DANENBERG). Get your own home the co-operative way. 182p il $2.50 Greenberg

334.13 Housing. Cooperation 49-9051

"Outlines types of cooperative housing plans, and describes in detail the operation of several outstandingly successful low-cost plans, some of which provide for individual ownership. An additional chapter briefly surveys about 70 other cooperatives situated in all parts of the U.S. No index." Booklist

Booklist 45:368 Jl 1 '49

Springf'd Republican p5D O 2 '49 90w

DANIEL-ROPS, HENRY, originally HENRY JULES CHARLES PETIOT. Sacred history; tr. by K. Madge. 433p maps $4.50 Longmans

221.95 Bible. Old Testament—History of biblical events 49-7899

"Old Testament history interpreted in its relationships to history of civilizations and empires existing simultaneously with Israel. Beginning with Abraham's summons to a new destiny and ending with messianic fulfillment in sight, story would seem incomplete unless compared objectively with other contemporary societies of antiquity." (Library J) Chronological table. Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '49

"It is an abstract and rearrangement and abridgment of vast material, but an immensely rich and leading work. Its manner is authoritative but by no means ponderous, and scholarly only in the best, civilized French way, which brings the reader along by its attractiveness and clarity. A reader enjoys while he learns, and then feels definitely educated to study history and to read the Bible and to consider religion with more fruitful comprehension." Philip Burnham

+ Commonweal 50:248 Je 17 '49 850w

Reviewed by J. B. Pritchard

Crozer Q 26:369 O '49 700w

"This is a work of great scholarship by one of France's outstanding writers, and its narration of the history of Israel in contact and conflict with the great ancient civilizations of Mesopotamia, Babylonia, Egypt, and Greece (to name only a few) will make an appeal to all students and scholars."

+ Kirkus 16:509 O 1 '48 190w

"Recommended for all libraries." O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 73:1507 O 15 '48 130w

"The French scholar Daniel-Rops, making full use of modern research, has written an interesting account of both Jewish history and the religion of Judaism." G. R. Stephenson

+ N Y Times p21 Ap 24 '49 450w

DANKERT, CLYDE EDWARD. Contemporary unionism in the United States. 521p $6.65; to schools $5 Prentice-Hall

331.88 Trade unions—U.S. 48-10478

"This is a study of the present-day labor movement, with enough historical material to make the current activities of unionism understandable. There is treatment of union structure, government, and administration; principles and activities of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations; collective bargaining and strikes; union leadership and union-management cooperation. Dankert relies heavily for his data on Bureau of Labor Statistics reports and studies by academic specialists." (Ann Am Acad) Index.

"This volume has many merits, and it is a usable text in courses on trade unionism. Its greatest shortcoming is the failure to carry through in discussion of issues. Many times the points are given for and against a particular view, but the question is not examined beyond the point of stating the issues. It is frequently more desirable to err, especially if the error is suggestive, than to allow a question to remain 'up in the air.' Consequently, a teacher will have to be ever watchful to supplement the material. Labor problems of various kinds can be illuminated by different types of analysis, but some explanation beyond stating that groups prefer different alternatives is essential if a volume is to be more than a mere handbook." Philip Taft

+ — Am Econ R 39:826 Je '49 600w

"[The author] has read widely in the literature, his treatment is generally objective and balanced, and the book is well organized and well written." Joel Seidman

+ Ann Am Acad 263:250 My '49 380w

DARINGER, HELEN FERN. Pilgrim Kate; il. by Kate Seredy. 252p $2.50 Harcourt 49-7754

Character study of Kate Endicott, who lived in Scrooby, England, over three hundred years ago. Kate at fifteen was full of life and untroubled by adult worries. After the marriage of her older sister to a member of the separatists, and during the months following, Kate grew up. As the book closes Kate, her parents, and her younger sister are setting out on the ship bearing them to Holland. For grades seven to nine.

Booklist 45:247 Mr 15 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun Jl 9 '49 150w

"The author has built up a careful, vivid picture of life at Scrooby. Miss Daringer is sensitive to word and phrase, and it is a pleasure to be able to put into the hands of young readers a book written with real beauty. Kate Seredy's drawings have caught the gracious quality of the text." A. T. Eaton

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 Mr 31 '49 270w

Churchman 163:3 Je 15 '49 30w

"In spite of its underlying seriousness, this story of an impetuous girl is full of lively action." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:216 My '49 120w

"There's excitement in the decision to join the pilgrims and flee from England, and for the reader, it is a new sensation to feel a personal intimacy with one family on the Mayflower. The characterization is good, Kate is forthright, likable, something of a tomboy. Excellent background reading."

+ Kirkus 17:112 Mr 1 '49 160w

"Illustrations by Kate Seredy are lively but pen and ink is not her best medium. Recommended." Elizabeth Johnson

+ Library J 74:500 Mr 15 '49 90w

"The book is listed for 'older readers,' which its mental approach and amount of historic detail justify. But its type and make-up, the very indifferent sketches by Miss Seredy, and the broken up short sentence structure would indicate to the casual buyer that it is for younger readers. With its really excellent character study, and thoughtful treatment of religious freedom, one hopes that it will nevertheless reach its right audience." L. S. Bechtel

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Mr 6 '49 240w

"Kate's conversion doesn't seem entirely convincing, so the story lacks the tension and fire which the theme calls for. Yet the book is well-written, warm and appealing, with many good times in Jacobean England laced in to lighten the serious theme. For girls of 12 and up." E. L. Buell

+ — N Y Times p30 F 27 '49 180w

"Helen Daringer has succeeded in creating a memorable character. . . As in her two previous books, Miss Daringer seems to get inside the heart and brain of her heroine, following every change of thought and emotion, building up slowly a character who is truly alive. . . Kate Seredy has made some expressive drawings of Scrooby and its people, and the type is particularly clear and readable."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 Mr 12 '49 360w

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 150w

Wis Lib Bul 45:68 Ap '49

DARROW, WHITNEY. Please pass the hostess. [112p] $2.75 Random house

741.5 Caricatures and cartoons 49-11071

Collection of cartoons reprinted from the New Yorker.

Booklist 46:92 N 15 '49

"A valuable addition to any collection of cartoon books." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 75:44 Ja 1 '50 80w

"This artist is adroit in craftsmanship, rich in wit, and possessed now and then by a sort of scrambled panic in the presence of women and children—which adds frenzy to his fun. . . Mr. Darrow draws his cartoons often in rough ovals like a thumb-print. This suits his artistic purpose and we are for it, but we would like to go on record against some of his captions, solely because of length." Lisle Bell

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 4 '49 230w

San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 27 '49 50w

DARYUSH, MRS ELIZABETH (BRIDGES). Selected poems; selected and with a foreword by Yvor Winters. 63p $2.50 Morrow

821 49-7288

"This volume is intended to introduce to American readers the work of Elizabeth Daryush, daughter of the late Robert Bridges, Poet Laureate of England. Mrs. Daryush has published nine collections of verse, the first three of which she has discarded. The others are Verses, Verses: Second Book, Verses: Third Book, Verses: Fourth Book, The Last Man and Other Verses, and Verses: Sixth Book. The poems here included have been selected from the volumes just named, except that the selection has been made from a revised manuscript, and many of the poems are offered in forms which are partly or even very largely new." Foreword

Reviewed by Peter Viereck
Atlantic 184:68 O '49 380w

"Mrs. Daryush is a controlled and modest poet." Rolfe Humphries

+ Nation 168:191 F 12 '49 250w

"The poems are characterized by fresh and clear descriptions of nature, supple but not over-loose rhythms, and an ever-present didacticism. This frank didacticism—all things in nature and in domestic life being seen as occasions for moralizing—is a somewhat disturbing feature of the collection, and sorts ill with the precise, clear-eyed descriptions and effective metrics. There is a delicacy of observation matched with metrical skill in the best of these poems, but for the moral to be put across effectively we need more than its statement in clean verse—it must flower from the poem more subtly and more cogently than it does in anything Mrs. Daryush seems able to achieve. The reader is further disturbed by echoes of an outmoded poetic diction which do not fit with the unassuming, almost conversational tone of many of the poems. There is a fine simplicity about the best of Mrs. Daryush's poems and in them one catches glimpses of a most attractive sensibility." David Daiches

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 Ap 3 '49 360w

DARYUSH, E. B.—Continued

"In general, this collection of verse by the daughter of Robert Bridges is ordinary in epithet and idea, flat in sound, and lukewarm in feeling."

New Yorker 25:108 Mr 12 '49 60w

"Many of the poems included in this selection have undergone thorough revision since their first appearance in her books, and always for the better. But [Mrs. Daryush] has not felt her way towards a confident idiom which would match the intricacy and originality of her metrics." Richard Ellmann

— Poetry 74:306 Ag '49 270w

"Her poetry has a delicacy and a quiet lucidity which I find quite lovely. It is not the kind of thing, perhaps, that devotees of the contemporary school of poetry will particularly admire; it is distinctly the technique of another day, slight, graceful, full of archaisms and stylized inversions, often much less simple than its apparent simplicity suggests." S. H. Hay

+ Sat R of Lit 32:40 Mr 19 '49 600w

"If modern poetry has any common denominator, it is probably the sense of full but precarious moments—a conviction that beauties are transient, leaseholds short, attitudes fated, and all the foundations mined. Against this conviction Mrs. Daryush, like many another contemporary, balances faith in the precarious art of poetry. Her lyrics are those of a gentlewoman . . . but, like her father's, her poems have responded to public occasions."

+ Time 53:96 F 7 '49 320w

DAS, SONYA RUTH (SKLAR). The American woman in modern marriage. 185p $3.75 Philosophical lib.

396 Marriage. Women in the U.S. 48-9524

"In this revision of a doctoral dissertation originally presented at The Sorbonne, Dr. Sonya Ruth Das has set the development of the American woman's relation to marriage in the large perspective of western civilization. She has presented a solid base of statistics and factual information within a frame of values which may briefly be described as freedom and equality of the sexes in a cooperative, mutually advantageous pattern of relationships." (Social Educ) Bibliography. Index.

"Although one may wonder how the author —Russian-born wife of an Indian—arrived at many of her sweeping conclusions, she has managed to pack much information of a factual nature, as well as many original ideas, into this little book."

Am Soc R 14:445 Je '49 180w

"Of the author's three objectives—to describe the rise of a new individuality among American women, to trace the transformation of the American family from a patriarchial to a democratic institution, and to interpret American family institutions to the rest of the world—the third has, perhaps, been most successful." Jessie Bernard

Ann Am Acad 262:244 Mr '49 400w

Reviewed by J. F. Bender

N Y Times p23 Ja 16 '49 350w

"It would be difficult, if not indeed impossible, to find within such a brief compass such a well-informed, clearly presented, and sensible treatment of the subject, for Dr. Das has brought to it a vivid, forceful, and rich personality. The book should be especially welcome to teachers of the social studies, for it provides the basis for an intelligent, practical, and yet idealistic treatment of an area unfortunately neglected in our secondary schools." Merle Curti

+ Social Educ 13:46 Ja '49 210w

DAVENPORT, MRS GWEN (LEYS). Family fortunes. 278p $3 Doubleday

49-10485

The forebears of the Brackenwoods had been among the first settlers in Kentucky, but now in the years following World war II, the family, like the old home, was rapidly falling into decay. But the means of rejuvenation, of giving each his heart's desire, are found in the old house and all ends well.

Booklist 46:47 O 1 '49

Kirkus 17:334 Jl 1 '49 190w

"'Family Fortunes' is deft and amusing, especially in showing old Simon's bewildered retreat before the forces of historic restoration. He is a figure over whose fate you will chuckle, and yet be a little sorry." George Conrad

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 O 2 '49 270w

"A sturdy, honest novel." J. P. Quehl

+ N Y Times p6 S 4 '49 250w

DAVENPORT, MILLIA. Book of costume. 2v 468;469-958p il col pl $15 Crown

391 Costume 48-9980

A chronological survey of costume from the time of the Sumerians in 3000 B.C. thru the American Civil war. The volumes are illustrated with 2778 pictures, some in color. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:256 Ap 1 '49

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

Library J 74:819 My 15 '49 190w

Reviewed by George Freedley

Library J 74:959 Je 15 '49 70w

"The comment is lucid, searching, and as the book approaches our own time and personalities increase their influence, increasingly lively to read. But the feature is, and was meant to be, the number and nature of the pictures. The well known saying that a single illustration can save pages of print was never better shown than by this set of near three thousand pictures." M. L. Becker

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ja 16 '49 750w

"Nothing quite like it has ever been published in any language. Even the best of the earlier costume studies lack the scope of Miss Davenport's illustrative material and concentrate on a smaller section of the subject or approach it from a more localized point of view. Almost all of them, good or bad, lack translation into English or are prohibitively expensive. By avoiding pretentious format and material, and by concentrating on the essentials, the two volumes have been produced at what might reasonably be considered a fraction of ordinary cost. This economy has brought with it a number of poorly reproduced plates, especially those in color; but in view of the magnitude of the task this is but a minor fault." W. G. Dooley

+ — N Y Times p3 Ja 16 '49 1400w

"The book belongs as a matter of course in any collection on costume, theater or art. Museums and libraries will want it for reference. As for the general reader, much depends on his or her special interests, but there is little doubt that the handsome, boxed set will find many private purchasers." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 19 '49 800w

Time 53:88 Ja 10 '49 650w

"The book has, unfortunately, certain rather serious defects as a work of reference. Although some bibliographical material appears in the Appendix, there is no general bibliography, there are no glossaries of terms. . . Indeed, the central subject might have been treated more fully and fewer discursions made into the fields of architecture, furnishings, economic history, and the personalities of the people depicted in the illustrations. As a pot-pourri, however, this work is most interesting."

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:3 Mr '49 320w

DAVID, ARMAND. Diary: being an account of the French naturalist's journeys and observations in China in the years 1866 to 1869; tr. and ed. by Helen M. Fox. 302p col il $5 Harvard univ. press

574.951 China—Description and travel. Natural history—China 49-3609

Father Armand was a French missionary priest and naturalist who made several trips of exploration in China for the Museum of Natural History in Paris. This book contains somewhat abridged translations of the diaries he kept on two trips, the first in Mongolia in 1866; the second in central and western China in 1868-69.

Reviewed by John Oughton
Canadian Forum 29:143 S '49 140w

"The book is a little unusual both in material and the author's treatment of it."
+ Current Hist 17:37 Jl '49 90w

Kirkus 17:171 Mr 15 '49 160w

Reviewed by H. P. Linton
Library J 74:733 My 1 '49 140w

Reviewed by J. W. Krutch
New Repub 121:18 Jl 25 '49 900w

"As is fitting, numerous species, including the graceful Pére David Deer, have been named for the naturalist. In addition to its scientific interest, Abbé David's diary provides an insight into the conditions and manners in the interior of China at the time." E. W. Teale
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Je 26 '49 650w

"Father David produced no epochal formulation like Darwin's, nor did he make any single famous discovery, as did his stay-at-home brother of the cloth, Abbé Mendel. But his diaries are immensely attractive, and their translation by Miss Fox a real contribution to scientific annals. His writing is excellent—dry and clear and tonic. He has a gift for noting human, as well as ecological, relationships. No amount of hardship can blunt his amused interest in Chinese customs and psychology." E. B. Garside
+ N Y Times p7 Je 5 '49 700w

"The book has a delightful and different flavor. Its readers will be grateful to Mrs. Fox and the New York Public Library for introducing them to Father David, a man of sharp eye, devout spirit, and a stout and gentle heart." Eleanor Breed
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 24 '49 900w

DAVIDSON, DAVID ALBERT. Hour of truth. 336p $3 Random house
49-599

William Harmon, an American lawyer, is the hero of this novel set in a South American country called Alba. Harmon had been too much harried by his clever doctor mother, his pretty wife, his two exceedingly knowing small daughters. To add to his distress a woman lawyer had won a case from him. So the chance to go on a technical mission to Alba was a life saver to him. During the struggle with the primitive conditions in Alba, he met two women, one a peasant, the other an aristocrat, and his experiences with them sent him back to his home, once more master of himself.

Booklist 45:210 F 15 '49

Reviewed by Enid Sheppard
Canadian Forum 29:71 Je '49 210w

"A novel marked by graphic description, keen perception of character, and swift-moving plot which makes very interesting reading for the emotionally mature."
+ Cath World 169:158 My '49 170w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun F 2 '49 340w

"A book that is not only an absorbing story of one man's personal redemption, but, in addition, a valuable study of a peculiarly complex problem in human relationship. . . Above all, it is an urgent plea to man to live as man, with honor, strength of purpose, and great lovingkindness, thereby finding his hour of truth." M. W. Stoer
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 1 '49 650w

"A direct and incisive approach to often combustible elements, this is never gentle in its scenes of political derision or personal passion, and may not pass all censure with conservatives."
Kirkus 16:605 N 15 '48 180w

"Talk is sometimes as sultry as the climate, and may lacerate the feelings of some readers and librarians. Recommended nevertheless." E. F. Walbridge
Library J 74:58 Ja 1 '49 80w

"A sweet-intentioned performance and uncommonly readable—swift, lively, dramatic." Diana Trilling
+ Nation 168:164 F 5 '49 900w

"In Alba, William Harmon's personal emotions found stability in a sudden, disconcerting transfer of affections which is the book's one really false note. Perhaps it stems from another, more basic weakness, which is the whole rakeish analogy between Harmon's diplomatic and marital problems. Otherwise, however, David Davidson has written a fine novel." Richard Match
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ja 23 '49 1150w

"David Davidson, author of 'The Steeper Cliff' [Book Review Digest 1947] here tells a story that should appeal to adventure-lovers, armchair-travelers and Hollywood scouts. He tells it well, he tells it easily. And in the telling, he displays a shy concern with one of the great themes of modern fiction: the discovery of the price, as well as the value, of the good life." M. H. Ley
+ N Y Times p10 Ja 23 '49 850w

"Not, perhaps, as incisive as Mr. Davidson's 'The Steeper Cliff,' but the problems the book discusses are outlined with clarity and perception."
New Yorker 24:93 F 5 '49 160w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 9 '49 750w

"This story of redemption is told, as was Mr. Davidson's first novel, in terms of action. His writing is direct and forceful, at times sardonically amusing. It assures the author of an established and firm place among that small group of young novelists to whom the public can now look, confident of their destiny." Harrison Smith
+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 Ja 22 '49 850w

"Except for the paper-thin figure of Ernestina, the novel abounds with brilliantly sketched characters. The prose is bright and economical, and its story is peppered with helpful melodrama. A year and a half ago Author Davidson published The Steeper Cliff, a fine first novel. In The Hour of Truth, he has cleared that dangerous hurdle, the second."
+ Time 52:90 Ja 24 '49 500w

"His plot is neatly developed. His local atmosphere is excellent. If his hero were as interesting as his disreputable associates, and his personal problem as interesting as the mission's general problem, The Hour of Truth would be a fine novel. Even so it is a clever and entertaining one." Orville Prescott
+ Yale R n s 38:575 spring '49 270w

DAVIDSON, EDWARD HUTCHINS. Hawthorne's last phase. 174p $3.75 Yale univ. press
813 Hawthorne, Nathaniel 49-1858

A monograph on Hawthorne's declining years describing his attempts to write from the time of his return from abroad in 1860 to his death in 1864. The book is based on a mass of hitherto unpublished notes, sketches, story drafts, etc., covering the period 1858 to 1864. Partial contents: The Romance of England and The Ancestral Footstep; "Doctor Grimshawe's Secret"; "Septimius Felton"; "The Dolliver Romance". Bibliography. Index.

"Hardly a season goes by without at least one new item of Hawthorniana. Mr. Davidson's 'Last Phase' is the most solid addition in years." Ralph Thompson
+ N Y Times p5 My 1 '49 550w

"Mr. Davidson has edited the fragments conscientiously, and no doubt they are useful to an understanding of the craft of Hawthorne's fiction. But it is difficult to ascertain exactly why he failed, and Mr. Davidson's hypotheses are not entirely convincing. Hawthorne was not as deliberate and self-conscious an artist

DAVIDSON, E. H.—Continued
as James (who left a series of acute prefaces to display the processes of his magic); and the commentators have a freer hand in explaining both his successes and his failures." Robert Halsband
Sat R of Lit 32:12 My 28 '49 180w

"Mr. Davidson has given us a most exciting, touching, and in a way, terrible glimpse into the literary workshop, and into the mind of a human being who was very nearly great." Bonnamy Dobrée
+ Spec 183:84 Jl 15 '49 750w
Times [London] Lit Sup p770 N 25 '49 650w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:155 Je '49 360w

DAVIDSON, HENRY ALEXANDER. Short history of chess. 228p il $2.75 Greenberg
794.1 Chess 49-48744

"The author gives first a capsule history of the game, with an additional chapter on each piece, tracing changes in nomenclature, design, moves, and power on the board. There is a chapter on etymology and a polyglot dictionary; a detailed chapter on the geography of chess; a discussion of the I.Q. of chess players, with lists of champions; and miscellaneous legends plus a 'mythical' pre-history of chess." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:153 Ja 1 '50

"While there is an immense library on chess play, Mr. Davidson has compiled what may be the first real treatise on its historical background, and on its relentless march around the globe." C. A. Russell
+ Springf'd Republican p10B D 25 '49 170w

DAVIE, MAURICE REA. Negroes in American society. (Whittlesey house publication) 542p $6; text ed $4.50 McGraw 325.26 Negroes 49-11574

A textbook for college use. It is a sociological study of the Negro from Africa to America, thru slavery into freedom. Analyses the economic, educational, religious, political, and social aspects of the development of the Negro in America. Chapter references. Indexes.

Booklist 46:115 D 1 '49

"Professor Davie is particularly interested in white-Negro inter-relationships and throughout his book stresses the situations arising from these as constituting not a Negro but a Negro-white problem in the U.S. A readable, objective book that well compliments Frazier's The Negro in the United States." Joseph Borome
+ Library J 74:1753 N 15 '49 130w

DAVIES, BLODWEN. Gaspé: land of history and romance. 233p pl $4.50 Greenberg 917.1479 Gaspé district, Quebec 49-9642

Descriptive and historical tour of the Gaspé Peninsula, from Riviere du Loup on the North Shore, over the Gaspé Road, to the Matapedia Valley on the South. Does not list places to stay in the Peninsula. Illustrated with photographs. Map on lining papers. Index.

Booklist 45:374 Jl 1 '49

Reviewed by D. M. LeBourdais
Canadian Forum 29:235 Ja '50 600w

"This attractive travel book goes into historical back-grounds a good deal more than most. . . Miss Davies seems to value the habitants for what they are and to have a real grasp of their unpretentious but soul-satisfying way of life; her book is something more than a tribute to the quaint and primitive."
+ Commonweal 50:278 Je 24 '49 230w

"Mrs. Davies knows the territory and its people well; her book not only is of general interest but should be especially valuable to the tourist who likes to know something about what he is looking at. Many good photographs."
+ New Yorker 25:68 Jl 9 '49 160w

"The Gaspé has become something of a tourist trap, and perhaps it would have been more practical to include the pitfalls and the preferences which travelers usually seek in a travel book. All of that has been sacrificed in the name of history and romance, which to my mind limits the book's appeal." C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 32:25 Jl 23 '49 140w

"The sincerity of this informative account of scenery and inhabitants, legends and actual history, and especially of 'The Island of Birds,' makes a rewarding book about a vacation land of natural beauty." D. B. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 3 '49 330w

DAVIES, DAVID RICHARD. On to orthodoxy. new ed 219p $2.50 Macmillan 230 Christianity—Evidences

"Several editions of this book have appeared under British imprints, but this is the first to be made available through an American publisher. It is the account of the author's transition from Humanism to orthodox Christianity." (Booklist) Index of names.

Booklist 45:367 Jl 1 '49

"Like others whose Christian faith has been forged on the anvil of the contemporary conflicts in our culture, this theological emphasis is on the doctrine of man (he is first-rate on Original Sin), salvation and eschatology. Since little space is devoted to such other elements of Christianity as the doctrines of God, Christ and the Holy Spirit, the reader will have to look elsewhere to gain a full understanding of the orthodoxy which Mr. Davies professes." J. A. Pike
N Y Times p28 N 20 '49 360w

DAVIES, DAVID RICHARD. Secular illusion or Christian realism? Am ed 111p $2 Macmillan
233 Christianity. Man 49-1458

"[The author], whose ideas seem drawn about equally from Reinhold Niebuhr and William Temple, late Archbishop of Canterbury, rejects both animal heredity and social conflict as satisfactory explanations of why man does evil. He locates the origin of evil rather in the free will of man. . . His book, though small, touches on many topics: war, communism, fascism and medievalism, among others. He suggests that in the history of man war has been a normal condition, peace abnormal. He does not mean, however, that war is good; rather, it reveals the contradiction at the root of man's nature, a contradiction that can be removed only by repentance, belief, disciplined confession and prayer—all within the church. His conclusion seems to be that 'there is hope for man, but not in man.'" N Y Times

"The value of this book cannot be adequately appraised by this reviewer because he is probably as irrationally an optimist as the author is a pessimist. It can be honestly said, however, that probably no previous volume from the Barthian camp has achieved greater lucidity of statement or contrived to make more obvious the despair of those Christian thinkers whose reading of world events has almost convinced them that Satan is 'hardly less powerful and much more interesting than God.'" M. C. Westphal
Crozer Q 27:91 Ja '50 300w

"Pungent, vigorous writing characterizes this new book from the pen of the British divine, D. R. Davies, vicar of Holy Trinity Church, Brighton. He leaves no one in any doubt as to his convictions and his belief, and whether the reader agrees or not he cannot but respect and admire the forthright exposition of his views. . . This is a book for ministers, theologians and other thoughtful Christian leaders."
+ Kirkus 17:56 F 1 '49 180w

Reviewed by G. R. Stephenson
N Y Times p30 My 22 '49 260w
Springf'd Republican p9C Ap 10 '49 170w

DAVIES, JOHN GORDON. Theology of William Blake. 176p $4 Oxford

821 Blake, William. Religion in literature [49-4602]

"In successive chapters Mr Davies describes Blake's attitude to the Church and analyses his debt to Swedenborg and Boehme, the two thinkers who alone can be said to have influenced him deeply. He then considers in detail his doctrines of God, of Christ, of creation and redemption, of man and of ethics. Most illuminating of all, perhaps, is his discussion of Blake as mystic. He concludes that, though Blake's theology was fragmentary, and though as a Protestant he had 'an inadequate conception of the Church he repudiated,' his doctrines as a whole fall within the general tradition of Christianity." Hibbert J

"This argument is sustained throughout with admirable lucidity. It is convincing. Perhaps inevitably, it is too convincing, in that it suggests too strong a sense of design in a mind so arrogantly independent. Blake was practical—Mr Davies does well to remind us at the outset that he is 'the only man who has ever written, printed and illustrated his own books.' But he was also the most incalculable of geniuses, with more than his share of the naïveté of genius." P. A. Spalding

+ Hibbert J 47:202 Ja '49 600w

"A book which should be useful to any student of Blake's poetry, and one which should also be illuminating to church historians and theologians dealing with the effect of deism on the later eighteenth-century practice of Christianity." Douglas Knight

+ J Religion 29:161 Ap '49 600w

DAVIES, MANSEL MORRIS. Physical principles of gas liquefaction and low temperature rectification; with diagrams and four folding charts. 205p $6.25 Longmans

542.79 Gases—Liquefaction. Low temperature research

"A rather thorough review of the knowledge pertaining to the liquefaction and rectification of gases. Except for the final chapter, the discussion is conducted from the standpoint of the production of liquid air and the separation of its principal gases, but much of the material applies, of course, to other gases which become liquid only at low temperatures." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"This book is regarded by this reviewer as a useful text for students wishing to acquire a degree of familiarity with the general field of low temperature technology. It is considered to be less than adequate either as an engineering treatise or as a survey of the existing knowledge. The physical principles are in general treated sketchily, and many fairly important ones are not discussed at all. . . In spite of its incompleteness, the book has a certain value for the casually interested reader. It is readily readable and fairly well organized." H. O. McMahon

+ — Chem & Eng N 27:2796 S 26 '49 160w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:68 S '49

DAVIES, VALENTINE. It happens every spring. 224p $2.50 Farrar, Straus

49-9348

Fantastic story of a young chemistry teacher who satisfies a secret yearning and becomes a phenomenally successful baseball player. Based on the film of the same name.

Booklist 45:359 Je 15 '49

"An innocuous novel that is also inane. The characters have all the depth of cut-out paper dolls, the prose is on the level of a third-grade reader; incidentally, a third-grader could read it for there is not a scene to make the Johnson office squirm."

— Cath World 169:480 S '49 160w

"The book is not just a scenario synopsis . . . and is fresh and fetching entertainment."

+ Kirkus 17:238 My 1 '49 90w

"This story is a sheer delight from beginning to end. It has romance, sport, surprise and suspense—saturated with an irresistible humor. A first class evening's entertainment." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 74:955 Je 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 74:1031 Jl '49 30w

"Written first as a film—Mr. Davies may be a fantasy writer, but he is pretty astute about working both sides of a medium—'It Happens Every Spring' is brisk and sentimentally agreeable, and likely to be read with a certain wistfulness by middle-aged dreamers whose best pitches are batted out of the lot every Sunday afternoon by the neighborhood eleven-year-olds. Managers of major-league clubs now dozing in the second division will read it with something fiercer, such as envy." John Hutchens

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Je 19 '49 320w

"The characters are charming but one-dimensional. And while their story is pleasant and diverting, it is strictly a shallow entertainment, which could easily have stemmed from the tall-story spinners of the Hot Stove League. It is a coincidence not beyond understanding that both book and film are appearing simultaneously." A. H. Weiler

+ — N Y Times p18 Je 26 '49 350w

"This neat, competent, trivial bit of novel shows what can be done with a perfect idea for a neat, funny moving picture, working both ways from a competent, sure-fire scenario. It isn't much if you don't care particularly for innocent celluloid love, lots of well-described baseball, and just the right amount, for the average American temperament, of whimsical magic. But a lot of people will enjoy themselves tremendously." M. S. Douglas

Sat R of Lit 32:14 Jl 9 '49 440w

DAVILA, CARLOS G. We of the Americas. 264p $3.50 Ziff-Davis

341.147 U.S.—Foreign policy. U.S.—Foreign relations. Latin America—Foreign relations. Pan Americanism 49-8043

"A one-time Chilean ambassador to the U.S. analyzes, in the main, the economic interdependence of this country and Latin America. Despite his criticism of U.S. policy in this respect he has some very kind things to say about the vision of that much-berated Secretary of State, James G. Blaine—the real father of Pan Americanism—and his doctrines of hemispheric economic cooperation." (Library J) Bibliography. No index.

Booklist 45:235 Mr 15 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '49

Foreign Affairs 27:695 Jl '49 20w

"Recommended." Joseph Borome

+ Library J 74:306 F 15 '49 130w

Nation 168:368 Mr 26 '49 60w

"Altogether I find Mr. Davila's onslaught singularly unconvincing. He proves too much, too quickly, too easily." Hubert Herring

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p19 Ap 3 '49 700w

Reviewed by Duncan Aikman

N Y Times p21 My 1 '49 850w

"This is a brilliant, thought-provoking book." Carleton Beals

+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 Mr 26 '49 800w

"The book has its defects—sometimes generalizations are too easy and broad; there is a deplorable lack of accent marks on proper names; the extensive bibliography is, unfortunately, incredibly haphazard and inaccurate in detail. But these are essentially mechanical points and should not be allowed to obscure the stimulating and challenging nature of the study." R. H. Fitzgibbon

+ — Survey 85:400 Jl '49 470w

DAVIS, ALLISON. Social-class influences upon learning. 100p $1.50; pa $1 Harvard univ. press

370.193 Learning, Psychology of. Mental tests. Class distinction 48-9626

"Davis has here briefly summarized the Warner data on our middle and lower class sub-cultures, and argues for the need to consider their influence upon learning by children. A cultural bias favoring middle class children currently exists, he contends, in school curricula and teaching methods and in the use of tests to rate intelligence. Thus middle class standards in linguistic aptitudes redound to the detriment of lower class children. Not much new material is given in this brief monograph, first delivered as the 1948 Inglis Lecture in the Harvard Graduate School of Education; but Davis does report preliminary findings of a 5-year study of the influence of class upon intelligence scores of children in four school grades in a midwestern city." Am Soc R

Am Soc R 14:190 F '49 110w

Reviewed by R. S. Lynd
New Repub 120:25 Mr 21 '49 250w

School & Society 68:414 D 11 '48 20w

DAVIS, ARTHUR KYLE. Folk-songs of Virginia; a descriptive index and classification of material collected under the auspices of the Virginia folklore society. 389p $4 Duke univ. press

784.4 Folk songs—Bibliography. Folk songs, American 49-10554

"It is the purpose of this book to give as accurate an idea as is possible, short of in extenso publication, of the varied folk-song material collected by the Virginia Folklore Society since its last major publication. If to the material here listed are added the contents of Traditional Ballads of Virginia, the full extent of the Society's folk-song collection may be seen. The total number of folk-songs collected by the Society is now well over three thousand. The present volume differs sharply from the former one, not only in its abbreviated method of presenting each song, but also in the fact that it covers the entire field of folk-song, including all available types current in Virginia. . . The following data, where they are available, are given for each song: the local title, the first line, the name and address of the collector, the name and address of the singer, the Virginia county in which the song was sung, the date, the number of stanzas. Where there is music, the fact is stated, with the name of the person who noted the tune." (Introd) Index of titles and first lines.

"In the making of any classification, there are occasions when the creation of a main division or a subdivision or even the placing of a given song become matters for arbitrary decision. There will be those, consequently, who will take exception to certain of Professor Davis's groupings—I am not myself in agreement with many song entries, with several of the subdivisions, and with at least two of the main divisions. But any other system of classification which may be proposed instead of Professor Davis's must inevitably take his into consideration, and will in all probability be based upon his as a revision or extension of it. In other words, Professor Davis has made a distinct contribution to the systematic organisation of folk song studies." Duncan Emrich
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 7:112 D '49 1350w

"It is a solid contribution to the scholarship of Southern folklore." Coleman Rosenberger
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 18 '49 90w

DAVIS, BURKE. Whisper my name. 282p $2.75 Rinehart 49-8667

"The inner workings of a small North Carolina town are explored by a very ambitious, though not completely conscienceless, businessman. The merchant, coming to live in the South . . . conceals his Jewish ancestry. After prospering for twenty-odd years, he tires of his hypocrisy and reveals his secret, only to find out that most of the townspeople have known it all along and thought little about it." New Yorker.

"Mr. Davis's theme is but a variant on an old and recently much exploited one. . . His people come alive, his knowledge of small-town life in the South is enormous, his story-telling skill considerable, so that one does not boggle too much at the several cliché-situations which he exploits. The quality of his writing is not uniform; at its lowest, however, it is good reporting; at its highest it is oddly reminiscent, in its evocative ability, of the work of Thomas Wolfe, but without Wolfe's habit of running on." A. S.
+ — Canadian Forum 29:120 Ag '49 280w

Kirkus 17:214 Ap 15 '49 200w

"The story of Daniel's agonies is convincing. The author, a newspaper man who has spent most of his life in North Carolina, has used his reporting skill to make both Daniel and the town he lives in vividly real." Doris Schneider
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 My 29 '49 360w

"Mr. Davis writes simply and straightforwardly, without stylistic flourish, but when he wants to, he can evoke the demons of a bitter and remorseful mind, or the terror of a pitched battle among strikers, strikebreakers and police. His book has quieter moments, too, that catch the look of the North Carolina hill country; and it boasts at least one wonderfully humorous character in Hawes Bradford, a cultured backwoodsman." Jonathan Kilbourn
+ N Y Times p24 My 22 '49 320w

New Yorker 25:111 My 14 '49 120w

"The story of the Jew who denies his heritage . . . is a theme not new to American letters. That Burke Davis, in 'Whisper My Name,' has managed to write a novel of freshness, and a first novel at that, is a tribute to his ability as a writer; yet no small part of the book's success, to this reader at least, lies in the fact that this theme is only incidental in the larger story of a small Southern town." Bucklin Moon
+ Sat R of Lit 32:14 Jl 2 '49 470w

DAVIS, CLYDE BRION. Playtime is over. 432p $3 Lippincott 49-8192

Novel in which the narrator, an ex-soldier of fortune looks at his past and realizes that he has been playing at life. He sees his present existence on a run-down Arkansas farm as a new beginning.

Booklist 45:273; 281 Ap 15 '49

— Cath World 170:159 N '49 200w

"Significance of idea and trenchant writing make the book a 'must' for all who savor life." F. N. Litten
+ Chicago Sun Je 27 '49 300w

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 1 '49 240w

"A thoughtful study of a man seeking in retrospect a philosophy of life. . . Definitely recommended for mature readers." Clarence Gorchels
+ Library J 74:817 My 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
— New Repub 120:18 Je 27 '49 230w

"The purpose is admirable and the blueprint is clear, but the novelist's intent is not fulfilled in the character he has created. In the summing up—'an orgy of retrospective introspection,' to quote the ornate phrase Mr. Davis attributes to Steve, who thinks that he might have been (and may still be) a novelist himself—there is no lack of colorful adventure, roisterings and combat, but little distillation of human wisdom." Lisle Bell
— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Je 19 '49 310w

"A genial and readable book which shares Stephen's characteristics—it fails to take root anywhere; but the sympathetic and appealing figure of Steve Lewis does emerge." Myron Gelewski

+ N Y Times p40 Je 19 '49 320w

"A pleasant combination of salty reminiscence and unhurried bucolic incident. An apt characterization."

+ New Yorker 25:83 Je 18 '49 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Je 16 '49 550w

"If Clyde Brion Davis had decided to make his hero a comic figure, or had designed his novel as satire, he could not have invented incidents or a character that would better have suited his purpose. Instead he tells his story with a straight, if slightly lugubrious, face. The book has reality because the reader is convinced that there are countless men like Stephen Lewis, men who are always trying to escape and always involving themselves deeper and deeper in tragedies that are so flamboyant that they are laughable." Harrison Smith

Sat R of Lit 32:9 Je 18 '49 1000w

DAVIS, DOROTHY SALISBURY. Judas cat. 227p $2.50 Scribner

49-7029

Detective story.

Booklist 45:246 Mr 15 '49

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun p38 Ja 14 '49 150w

Kirkus 16:583 N 1 '48 70w

"Mrs. Davis knows small towns; she also knows how to tell a story." E. H.

+ New Repub 120:27 F 7 '49 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ja 23 '49 90w

"An excellent, well-controlled piece of work."

+ New Yorker 24:84 Ja 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p21 F 20 '49 80w

"Above average."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 Ja 29 '49 40w

Wis Lib Bul 45:48 Mr '49

DAVIS, HAROLD LENOIR. Beulah land. 314p $3 Morrow

49-9058

Historical novel of the American frontier. "Starting out in the Cherokee country of western North Carolina, two young people—an impulsive, trigger-tempered half-Indian girl named Ruhama and a devoted, superstitious, Indian-bred foundling white boy called Askwani—go cross-country to the Mississippi, down it to Natchez, up it to Illinois, then westward across Missouri and Kansas, and south to their own Beulah Land, in what was the Indian Territory. They are accompanied for part of the journey by Ruhama's father, Ewen Warne, to whom Askwani is deeply attached, and by an Indian woman, Sedaya. Mr. Davis's novel is essentially the story of the two young people and their long, hazardous journey." (New Yorker)

"A good story for the family to read aloud, competently written and completely engrossing."

+ Booklist 45:335 Je 1 '49

Cath World 169:318 Jl '49 200w

"As an attempt to represent the consciousness of pioneer men and women, the book is not successful. Not one of the main characters . . . comes clearly into focus. They remain representations, not individual men and women. Mr. Davis is unable to particularize feeling, give it a home in an individual. It is a pity that Mr. Davis here lacks the dramatic sense, the ability to create character and suspenseful action, for he has, in addition to his knowledge of America's past, integrity, sincerity, and a feeling for beauty. As it is, he is historian rather than novelist." Horace Reynolds

— + Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 14 '49 500w

"An original and powerful handling of an old theme."

+ Kirkus 17:185 Ap 1 '49 280w

"Recommended." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 74:818 My 15 '49 90w

"'Beulah Land' is a passionate apprehension of American experience told plainly, lyrically, tragically, sometimes comically and, above all, inevitably by a man deeply sensible of the energies that make history. . . Davis has written as compelling a love story as I have read in a long time. Not the love and passion that have been perverted by bosomy historical romances. In that sense there's not a single love scene in 'Beulah Land,' and while there are a few erotic episodes, they are incidental. The love themes come through Davis's lean vernacular, never emotional." T. H. Ferril

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Je 5 '49 1050w

"It covers a long span of years and it is rooted in a deep, thorough knowledge of American history and culture. But, unfortunately, it is not a good novel; it lacks vitality and animation. In spite of the author's earnestness and sincerity, historical acumen does not compensate for dramatic inadequacy. Yet there is material here for an exciting book." Ann Schakne

+ — N Y Times p22 Je 5 '49 380w

"I found it interesting nearly all the way. Besides the ability to write of the past without sounding like a historical novelist, Mr. Davis has a quiet, irreverent humor, and one passage in the book, describing a backwoods wedding, is almost as hilarious as anything in Mark Twain. I also like the parts that have to do with life as it was then on the Mississippi. . . There were times, however, toward the end of the book, when I felt that the author's power of invention was showing signs of strain." Hamilton Basso

+ — New Yorker 25:84 Je 4 '49 650w

"Mr. Davis is a first-rate writer. If this novel lacks form a little, so did the period it reflects and interprets. So, mostly, do people's lives; they're not tied off neatly in a bowknot. What you get here is the sense of a great drive that spent itself and faded out. That, in its way, is history, and when it is mirrored in fiction form as it is here, the reader finishes with the feeling that he has participated in history. If he is reminded, as he also is, that a human being can do his possible, no more and no less, that's worth remembering also." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 24 '49 950w

"A fascinating story, filled with a sense of the richness and vastness of mid-continental America as it existed a century ago, and memorable for its portraits of the extraordinary folk already energetically occupied in forever destroying this primeval America. A particular highlight of the journey is a backwoods wedding." D. L. Morgan

+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 Je 11 '49 750w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 3 '49 300w

DAVIS, HENRY P., ed. Modern dog encyclopedia. 626p il col pl $10 Stackpole & Heck

636.703 Dogs—Dictionaries and encyclopedias

Agr49-441

Illustrated encyclopedia covering all phases of dogdom. Traces the history of dogs from prehistoric times to most modern breeding practices. Contains the rules and regulations of the American Kennel Club. Index.

Booklist 46:92 N 15 '49

"Easily the dog gift book of the season." Bob Becker

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 D 4 '49 50w

DAVIS, H. P.—Continued

"An excellent reference book, for all sorts of information, collected from experts and dependable sources, on all matters canine."
+ Kirkus 17:448 Ag 15 '49 150w

"Highly recommended."
+ Library J 74:1679 N 1 '49 20w

"This is a completely rounded book on the dog and should interest the professional dog handler, the veterinarian and the private owner." E. J.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 O 9 '49 100w

DAVIS, JOSEPH STANCLIFFE, ed. Carl Alsberg, scientist at large; contributors: Alfred L. Kroeber [and others]. 182p $2 Stanford univ. press

B or 92 Alsberg, Carl Lucas 49-7027

Tributes by five friends of this American chemist, and three of Alsberg's own papers. Contents: The making of the man, by A. L. Kroeber; Work in the natural sciences, by D. D. Van Slyke; Chief of the Bureau of chemistry, by F. B. Linton; University professor and administrator, by R. D. Calkins; Social scientist beyond the university, by J. B. Condliffe; Progress in chemistry and the theory of population, by C. L. Alsberg; What the social scientist can learn from the natural scientist, by C. L. Alsberg; Commencement address at Reed college, by C. L. Alsberg. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by H. S. Harned
Ann Am Acad 264:179 Jl '49 470w

"The book includes three of Alsberg's own papers, exemplifying his delightfully simple style, the broad field of his interests, and his innate modesty." P. B. Dunbar
+ Chem & Eng N 27:637 F 28 '49 210w

"This is a well-written, interesting and unpretentious set of essays which present a rounded picture of a scientist who did much to bridge the gap between the physical and social branches of science." C. W. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 27 '49 500w

School & Society 68:463 D 25 '48 50w

"This book deals competently with a career which in breadth of design must be emulated far more often than it now is if we are to escape social strangulation by specialization. I heartily wish that some means could be found to put a copy of it in the hands of everyone who essays to counsel bright young men and women on the good and useful life." D. M. Keezer
+ Survey 85:280 My '49 650w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:178 Je '49 250w

DAVIS, KENNETH SYDNEY. General Eisenhower, soldier of democracy; from boyhood to supreme commander. 217p $1 Doubleday

B or 92 Eisenhower, Dwight David—Juvenile literature 49-9338

This biography of General Eisenhower is adapted from the author's Soldier of Democracy (Book Review Digest 1945, 1946). It gives a full picture of his life to his appointment as supreme commander. A final chapter brings the story up-to-date.

Booklist 45:377 Jl 1 '49

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 11 '49 50w

"The great general of World War II with all his appealing average American boy attributes, becomes here the hero of an excellent young teen biography."
+ Kirkus 17:209 Ap 15 '49 170w

"Davis's book will find a place in most larger collections, but smaller libraries might well consider the Maurois." A. B. Weber
Library J 74:1035 Jl '49 130w

"The author has told his story with sympathy and understanding and yet with no tendency to fall into the blind hero-worship that weakens so many biographies for young people. There is a wealth of minor detail that will appeal to young readers and the style is clear and always interesting." R. A. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 N 12 '49 130w

DAVIS, MRS LAVINIA (RIKER). Come be my love. 245p $2.50 Doubleday

49-10217

Story of nineteen-year-old Jib's experiences during a summer in the Berkshires. She discovers that she has been placed as social secretary to the Appersleys, not to work but to attract young people to their home. She leaves them to live with relatives in a neighboring village. There she works as gardener and newspaper reporter, falls in love with a soil conservationist, and becomes interested in the labor problems of the town.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun S 3 '49 120w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 S 8 '49 150w

"A fine book for teen-agers." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 25:422 S '49 70w

"Throughout the story there are some realistic but pretty adult love scenes; the dialogue may shock some purists who like to pretend that young people don't talk as these (and their ilk) do. But girls will be thrilled by the handling of problems they all face, and feel that here is an author not afraid to show them as they are."
Kirkus 17:363 Jl 15 '49 210w

"Most mature of author's stories in subject matter and approach, it is weakened by heavy-handed drawing of capitalist and agitator and melodramatic climax. Good for growing awareness of community life and problems and recognition of what constitutes a good marriage. Older girls will appreciate the fairly realistic love story. Recommended for YP collections, high school girls." Eleanor Kidder
Library J 74:1209 S 1 '49 80w

"The opening chapters in which [Jib] cannot adjust to a group of horrible rich people, are overdone and definitely unpleasant, but they begin an excellent story, which deepens into a community drama, involving Communism vs. cooperative ownership of the local paper mill."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 S 4 '49 300w

"So many narrative elements would, in less skillful hands, become confused. The romance, it must be admitted, is a little contrived and sentimental, but the novel as a whole adds up to a story which teen-aged girls will find both stimulating and engrossing." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p22 Ag 7 '49 230w

Sat R of Lit 32:29 N 12 '49 80w

DAVIS, MRS LAVINIA (RIKER). Wild birthday cake; pictures by Hildegard Woodward. [49p] $2.50 Doubleday

49-9854

Picture-storybook about one day in the life of a small boy who is very fond of nature study. When he realizes he has forgotten the seventy-fifth birthday of his friend, the Professor, it almost spoils his day. But when he catches the wounded wild duck, his day is saved.

Booklist 45:377 Jl 1 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun Jl 16 '49 70w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Jl 12 '49 210w

"Pictures and story will be liked by younger children though the book does not measure up to Roger and the Fox by the same collaborators." A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:284 Jl '49 80w

"A picture book—a story book—good for reading aloud to the picture story book age level and up."
+ Kirkus 17:268 Je 1 '49 220w

"There is an understanding picture of a relationship between an adult and a child, and beautiful pictures by Hildegard Woodward make it an outstanding book." N. L. Rathbun
+ Library J 74:1034 Jl '49 70w

"The gentle story has leisurely country charm, well interpreted by the many illustrations. Miss Woodward is such a good artist that one regrets the lack of success here with her interesting two-color pictures." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Jl 3 '49 170w

"This seems a somewhat unreal situation, but certainly Miss Davis knowingly portrays the emotions of a young boy. The descriptions of spring in the country are delightful. And Miss Woodward's illustrations in color will make Johnny and his adventures seem even more interesting to youngsters up to 8." Marjorie Burger
+ N Y Times p10 Jl 3 '49 180w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:22 N 12 '49 20w

Wis Lib Bul 45:107 Je '49

DAVIS, MARJORIE (VEITH). Guide to American business directories. 242p $3.75 Public affairs press

650 Business—Directories 48-6009

"The Guide to American Business Directories is substantially a reissue of the second edition of American Business Directories by the same compiler, issued by the United States Department of Commerce in 1947 as its Industrial Series No. 67, with some slight changes in organization and indexing and a few additions. The latter title consisted of 198 pages including 1446 items reproduced from typewritten copy, issued in paper covers. The first edition of this work was published in 1942. . . The Guide to American Business Directories is a listing of 1468 directories of firms arranged under the names of 127 subdivisions of the business world. The headings used for subdivisions are uniformly well-chosen and well-organized. . . Under each subdivision the directories are listed alphabetically by title with the title in boldface type. Each entry includes: the date of the most recent issue of the directory or a statement as to the frequency of issue if it is issued periodically, the name of the publisher and his address, the editions available if more than one, the list price, and a brief description of the contents of the directory. After the last entry in each subdivision, a list of directories in related fields is given, with instructions to consult the index for the number of the page on which the full entry for a directory mentioned may be found. . . The table of contents of the volume is an alphabetical listing of the headings used for the subdivisions, which is also the arrangement of the text itself. The index is an alphabetical listing of the titles of the individual directories." Subscription Bks Bul

---

"The Guide to American Business Directories is reasonably comprehensive and well-organized. . . However, since the Guide largely duplicates the second edition of the Department of Commerce publication (at a considerably higher price), and differs from it chiefly in providing access by title as well as by broad subject, few libraries will need both works. For those to whom the title approach and cloth binding are worth the difference in price, Guide to American Business Directories is recommended."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 20:5 Ja '49 800w

DAWSON, CARL ADDINGTON, and GETTYS, WARNER ENSIGN. Introduction to sociology. 3d ed 764p il maps $5 Ronald

301 Sociology 48-9396

"This third edition of a popular textbook in sociology, reorganized, largely rewritten, and improved, has incorporated many of the studies published since its last revision. But the new materials have been fitted to an old pattern, since the authors cling to their original theoretical structure based on the concepts of ecology, social interaction, and Cooley-Mead social psychology." (Am Soc R) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1930.

"Personally, I liked this book when I had finished it, though I could wish that the earlier chapters had been better written." F. N. House
Am J Soc 55:222 S '49 700w

"Without doubt this book is the most faithful up-to-date version of the Park and Burgess tradition available."
+ Am Soc R 14:188 F '49 100w

Reviewed by E. P. Link
Social Educ 13:206 Ap '49 500w

"Largely theory with illustration rather than generalization with supporting evidence, the book stimulates, orders observations, and provides a most adequate set of constructs for continued study. But in ignoring the psychological aspects of the learning of customs, and in consciously omitting social planning, even in minimizing the predicative power of sociology, the text denies the student some of our most dynamic and challenging tools." A. L. Ferriss
+ — Social Forces 27:447 My '49 450w

"A highly successful college sociology textbook."
+ Social Studies 40:192 Ap '49 10w

DAWSON, CHRISTOPHER HENRY. Religion and culture. 225p $3.50 Sheed

290 Religion. Culture 49-7957

"[This book] contains the Gifford Lectures delivered by Christopher Dawson at the University of Edinburgh in 1947. They embody his belief that religion is the key element in all cultures, past and present." (San Francisco Chronicle)

"Those readers are right who say that the Gifford Lectures of Christopher Dawson contain for the most part ideas to be found in previous works of the great English student of civilization. But nevertheless this volume ought to be read by philosophers and historians, by anthropologists and sociologists—by anyone eager to understand the background of the crisis in our culture." Waldemar Gurian
+ Commonweal 50:202 Je 3 '49 1550w

Reviewed by Robert Pegram
N Y Times p25 Je 12 '49 410w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 My 15 '49 250w

"This is a fine piece of work, occasionally difficult but always stimulating." Keith Guthrie
+ Spec 181:784 D 10 '48 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p190 Mr 19 '49 1250w

DAWSON, JOSEPH MARTIN. Separate church and state now. 220p $2.50 Smith, Richard R.

261.7 Church and state in the U.S. 48-8592

"The Rev. Dr. Dawson sees the threats from the observation post of one who helped to form the organization Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State, and is its recording secretary. He believes religious liberty in the United States 'was never more at stake than now.' He holds, with PAOU, that there is a historic American principle of separation of church and state which, if properly applied, would refuse any financial subsidy to private religious schools and impel the recall of the President's ambassadorial representative at the Vatican." (Christian Science Monitor) Index.

"Dr. Dawson writes quite frankly from the standpoint of one who regards the Roman Catholic view of the ideal church-state relation as contrary to the essential American tradition, and the Roman Catholic campaign for the change of our traditional practices as a menace to American liberties. . . The book contains a great amount of material which will be useful in the study of this subject. As a Baptist, the author inherits the purest line of free-church tradition, and as a passionate lover of freedom he writes with the conviction that the maintenance of our American liberties, civil and religious, demands that the state shall keep its hands off the church and vice-versa." W. E. Garrison

DAWSON, J. M.—Continued
Christian Century 65:1240 N 17 '48 800w

Reviewed by Tully Nettleton
Christian Science Monitor p16 N 12 '48 500w

Reviewed by H. M. Gehr
Crozer Q 24:153 Ap '49 800w

Reviewed by J. H. Nichols
J Religion 29:80 Ja '49 120w

Reviewed by Paul Blanshard
Nation 169:285 S 17 '49 550w

"Dr. Dawson is a leading Baptist minister, and an editor of The Christian Century. He states the Protestant point of view with clarity, logic and force. He works hard to be objective, sometimes to the point of bending over backward. His book is positive and factual." H. H. Wagner
+ Springf'd Republican p8C My 15 '49 190w

DAWSON, MITCHELL. The magic firecrackers; il. by Kurt Wiese. 192p $2.50 Viking 49-11501

In the summer of 1878 Greg's Uncle Dick came back from China with a retinue of a hundred coolies, and some fire crackers which supposedly dated back to the days of Kublai Khan. This story for nine to twelve year olds tells what happened on Greg's father's farm when the magic fire crackers started to go off.

Booklist 46:144 D 15 '49

"Boys and girls 8-12 will thoroughly enjoy this story and the great show which Uncle Dick stages for the local community." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun N 19 '49 180w

"A good part of the fun is the matter-of-fact way in which the story is told and its engaging combination of fancy and reality." A. T. Eaton
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 17 '49 240w

"An unusual, original and entertaining story, often very funny, and with just enough magic to make it mysteriously exciting."
+ Kirkus 17:510 S 15 '49 130w

"Highly recommended to boys and girls of ten to thirteen, is this nonsense fantasy that sounds so true." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 13 '49 330w

"This is the kind of extravaganza which youngsters like to dream up for themselves on lazy afternoons. The homely setting makes the boys' adventures and misadventures all the more comical. It is a grand story for 9-to-12-year-olds, piquing the imagination, yet leaving one with both a comfortable sense of the rightness of reality and the feeling that adventure may be right around the corner." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p24 N 6 '49 220w

New Yorker 25:172 D 3 '49 100w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:24 N 12 '49 40w

"An exciting book that combines the fantasy of wishes granted by magic and the reality of school and farm chores with a most unusual skill."
+ Wis Lib Bul p10 N '49

DAY, ALBERT M. North American waterfowl; sketches by Bob Hines. 329p $4.75 Stackpole & Heck 799.244 Water birds. Birds, Protection of Agr49-445

An account of the efforts at conservation of North American waterfowl, with studies of sanctuaries, refuge systems, etc. The author is director of the fish and wildfowl service of the United States department of the interior. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:118 D 1 '49

"Excellent account."
+ Library J 74:1679 N 1 '49 50w

DAY-LEWIS, CECIL (NICHOLAS BLAKE, pseud). Head of a traveler. 244p $2.50 Harper 49-8924

Detective story.

Booklist 45:355 Je 15 '49

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun My 27 '49 200w

"Tops in good English."
+ Kirkus 17:122 Mr 1 '49 50w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 38:252 S 3 '49 100w

"Another grade A detective story of the right old jigsaw persuasion." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 My 22 '49 270w

"If I cavil at a book by Nicholas Blake, it is because, ever since his 'Shell of Death,' I have come to expect nothing short of perfection from him. . . But even in the failure, the author achieves many acute observations on the creative mind; and even in the over-plotted puzzle he infuses a moving human story. If this is not the best Blake, it is still likely to have few rivals this season in taste and subtlety." Anthony Boucher
+ — N Y Times p31 My 8 '49 200w

"A neat, pleasantly written product of the English school."
+ New Yorker 25:119 My 14 '49 110w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Je 2 '49 130w

"Top-drawer."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:45 My 21 '49 40w

Wis Lib Bul p11 D '49

DAY-LEWIS, CECIL (NICHOLAS BLAKE, pseud). Otterbury incident; il. by Edward Ardizzone. 160p $2 Viking 49-10537

A thriller for boys and girls. The scene is an English small town. Two rival school groups bury the hatchet so they can join in earning money for the replacement of a window, broken by a classmate. The money is stolen, and in the investigation which follows the boys are instrumental in capturing some real crooks.

Booklist 46:36 S 15 '49

Bookmark 9:31 N '49 40w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun S 9 '49 230w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p17 N 26 '49 60w

"This thrilling detective story that has plot, noteworthy characters, suspense, everything, is eloquently told in the first person by a cocky schoolboy who convinced me that the tale is a bonafide one." H. F. Griswold
+ Christian Science Monitor p15 S 29 '49 240w

"This is no run-of-the-mill mystery but a well-written, unusually good story by a distinguished English poet and novelist." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 25:414 S '49 80w

"I feel no enthusiasm for The Otterbury Incident, although I was drawn to the book by the delightful drawings of small boys by Edward Ardizzone. It seems to me that Mr. Lewis has taken a field day of writing at the expense of the small boy of eight or nine while the characters he describes are between twelve and fourteen years old." A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 25:523 N '49 80w

"A swell yarn from an exceptional writer."
+ Kirkus 17:431 Ag 15 '49 120w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid
Library J 74:1538 O 15 '49 100w

"Unusual American children will like this unusual book, but it will not fall into the 'popular' category. Recommended, however, for ages 10-14, even though the emphasis is a little on the breaking-law-and-order side." S. J. Johnson

+ — Library J 74:1681 N 1 '49 80w

"This new thriller is, as one might expect, very well written. . . An effective thriller, but hardly for children from nine to thirteen for whom apparently it is written." L. S. Bechtel

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 S 18 '49 250w

N Y Times p28 O 2 '49 230w

"An expertly written mystery story. . . [It] contains one of the most violent and most credible villains I've ever encountered in mystery fiction, juvenile or adult, and I wouldn't advise giving it to any child under twelve who isn't an incorrigible monster."

+ — New Yorker 25:162 D 3 '49 80w

"Well told in the words of the 'historian' of one of the gang, this story has excitement enough to hold any reader. The fact that a few carefully screened sisters are allowed to help will not spoil the story for boys and may add a satisfying touch for girl readers." R. H. Viguers

+ Sat R of Lit 32:26 N 12 '49 260w

Reviewed by K. Hornaby

Spec 181:504 O 15 '48 70w

"The author appears as a chatty, lively narrator, with a journalist's eye for effective detail, a dash of sentimentality and a sensible, no-nonsense point of view. Although this story is not a disappointment, it is a shock. The characters are memorable and clearly seen: and the climax is extremely alarming."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p712 D 18 '48 1600w

DAY-LEWIS, CECIL (NICHOLAS BLAKE, pseud). Poems, 1943-1947. 82p $2.75 Oxford

821 48-9136

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Booklist 45:332 Je 1 '49

"Some of the poems are quite interesting and good, others not even that. Few lines startle us into attention. . . The exception is 'The Revenant.' Written in a complex stanza form, it is a simple but new treatment of the ancient Orpheus myth. For once, colloquial expression really strengthens the poetry." F. D. Hoeniger

+ — Canadian Forum 29:23 Ap '49 240w

Reviewed by Giles Romilly

New Statesman & Nation 37:62 Ja 15 '49 850w

"Though the poetry lacks neither skill nor charm, it is curiously unexciting, the pressure is low; there seems to be no flaming heart at the center. And in spite of a very different point of view and a more complex and varied technique, it is oddly reminiscent of the Georgians." David Daiches

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Mr 6 '49 230w

"From a poet who has been as good as Day Lewis has, this is a disappointing collection. The first thing that strikes one is the decline in his technique. . . While in Day Lewis' earlier work there was a spirited mixture of antique words like 'frore' and 'ferly' with such interlopers as 'gasometer' and 'sticking-plaster,' now that friskiness of diction is all gone and the choice of language is cautious, genteel. . . Having lost his intellectual orientation, Day Lewis has also lost his breadth of reference, his presumptive auditory, his imaginative purchase on the modern world." Richard Wilbur

— Poetry 74:114 My '49 1100w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril

San Francisco Chronicle p15 F 13 '49 60w

DEAN, ABNER. And on the eighth day [drawings]. 111p $2.95 Simon & Schuster

741.5 Caricatures and cartoons 49-6390

"Dean, a successful commercial artist and nephew of revolutionary Sculptor Jacob Epstein, has some of the humor of a Thurber or a Steig: but he is not trying to be funny. This is his third book of drawings. . . Like the others, it is a grim search through the weird subconscious levels of John Doe, a search that altogether misses heart & soul but finds a spirit crushed and shriveled by what Abner Dean considers the terrors of everyday 20th Century life." Time

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

Library J 75:44 Ja 1 '50 110w

"This latest Dean book is called 'And on the Eighth Day.' Is it funny? Yes. As funny as his former books? I don't think so. As a student and critic of mankind, his probing and prodding have become deeper. Some of it is too deep for me." Oscar Hammerstein

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 O 9 '49 800w

"It is, as you probably recall, humor with a terrible psychological twinge. This time, however, the pictures tend to lack the immediate comprehensibility of the earlier cartoons and consequently they lose in impact. . . If you are an Abner Dean fan, this is the genuine, unsimulated article." R. T.

San Francisco Chronicle p29 N 6 '49 120w

"Abner Dean's book of cartoons is not apt to get spontaneous guffaws from its readers, but is bound to amuse after the sketches and tag lines are given a bit of analytical thought." R. T.

+ Springf'd Republican p8B S 18 '49 150w

Time 54:108 S 12 '49 280w

DEAN, AMBER. Snipe hunt. 219p $2.25 Doubleday

49-11469

Mystery story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun N 11 '49 30w

Kirkus 17:563 O 1 '49 70w

"A good chase story even though there's not much mystery to it."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 O 30 '49 130w

"The pace is rapid, but nothing seems real—the long arm of coincidence reaches out in all directions, and there is a love interest that will leave you cold." E. B.

— + N Y Times p51 N 13 '49 140w

DEAN, LEON W. Royalton raid. 241p $2.50 Rinehart

49-8360

Gideon Smart, a seventeen-year-old Vermont boy, captured by raiding British and Indians in 1780, is the hero. This is the story of his stay in Canada, with the Indians, and his two years in prison, until he and his friends managed to tunnel their way out and escape.

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 25 '49 180w

"The escape from Canada is a well-written episode, and there is shock in the realization that even so-called civilized men were not above using the primitive methods of savages on each other."

+ Kirkus 17:180 Ap 1 '49 130w

"Recommended." R. M. McEvoy

+ Library J 74:962 Je 15 '49 80w

"The plentiful action and narrative suspense, strong details and colorful characters should afford little cause for complaint among teenage boys." F. C. Smith

+ N Y Times p28 Je 5 '49 180w

"The perils and suffering of their captivity and escape and the well developed characterization make this not only exciting but easy reading."

+ Wis Lib Bul 45:90 My '49

DEAN, ROBERT J. Living granite; the story of Borglum and the Mount Rushmore memorial. 128p pl pa $1.75 Viking

978.3 Borglum, John Gutzon de la Mothe. Mount Rushmore memorial 49-5260

"The dramatic story of Gutzon Borglum and of the creation of the South Dakota Memorial, of the gigantic figures on the side of a mountain at the center of our continent, of early disappointments and [eventual] success." Library J

Booklist 46:80 N 1 '49

"Written somewhat elegiacally but interestingly. . . Useful for technique and also as Americana." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 74:1822 D 1 '49 80w

DE ANGELI, MRS MARGUERITE (LOFFT). Door in the wall [il. by the author]. 111p $2.50 Doubleday

49-11491

A story of the time of Edward the Third of England. Robin de Bureford, the new page for Lindsay Hall, arrived limping on crutches and in the company of the monk who had befriended him when his servants had fled in fear of the plague. However Robin had learned patience and courage in his sufferings, and when the castle was beseiged by the Welsh it was he who secured help in the town. For grades 4-7.

"The life of the times is faithfully and interestingly drawn, the people are real, and the illustrations lovely. As for the plot, we read it with breathless interest." Jane Cobb

+ Atlantic 184:104 D '49 110w

Booklist 46:85 N 1 '49

Bookmark 9:83 Ja '50 50w

"Mrs. de Angeli's stories are always entertaining and her illustrations colorful and authentically detailed. It is hard to believe that she is the mother of five children and the grandmother of five more. Mothers who think they have no time to read to their children might ponder how she does it." B. J. Thompson

+ Cath World 170:212 D '49 100w

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun p17 N 26 '49 190w

"A stirring and poetic tale. Children will love it too, for the pageantry of the day, the authentic sense of the period." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 13 '49 240w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:536 N '49 100w

"One has a feeling of the authenticity of the pageantry and atmosphere of medieval England; the lavish color and detailed black and white illustrations are beautifully handled, but the story seems contrived and at times difficult for age for which it is written. . . There should be sustained interest, mounting tension, but somehow the story fails to enlist the interest or sympathy of the reader, as the plot bogs down and wears thin."

— + Kirkus 17:552 O 1 '49 140w

Reviewed by E. W. Turpin

Library J 75:50 Ja 1 '50 70w

"The pictures are as lovely as Mrs. de Angeli ever made, and Robin will prove a fine hero, especially for handicapped children." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 22 '50 180w

"An enthralling and inspiring tale of triumph over handicap. Unusually beautiful illustrations, full of authentic detail, combine with the text to make life in England during the Middle Ages come alive. Unfortunately, however, although the content of the book is of interest to older boys and girls its youthful format limits its appeal to readers of 9 to 11 years." H. K. Lippman

+ — N Y Times p58 N 20 '49 200w

"A poignant story, full of action, and a strongly painted canvas of the times as well. The illustrations, some in full color, are entirely satisfying."

+ New Yorker 25:175 D 3 '49 50w

"This is a moving story of young Robin. Perhaps its greatest value lies in the distinction of the drawings." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:42 N 12 '49 180w

DEASY, MARY. Cannon Hill. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 310p $3 Little 49-9385

A story of two households in Cannon Hill, an Ohio valley town. At Cannon House Rhoda Beauchamp kept a boarding house for factory men and encouraged one of them, a miner, in his medical studies. On Sherman street her brother, Virgil Beauchamp, was a business failure dominated by in-laws. The young people of the story, the miner's daughter and Virgil's son, leave the town for a farm and so find what they want out of life.

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 16 '49 270w

"Unrelievedly dull and flat, with no sense of vitality."

— Kirkus 17:216 Ap 15 '49 140w

Reviewed by Katharine Shorey

Library J 74:818 My 15 '49 70w

"This story of individuals is distinguished by its simplicity and directness. There is little that is extraordinary in either the persons or the events of this book. Most Midwestern towns hold examples of similar ups and downs of family fortunes, similar crisscrossing of status and nationality. The warmth and unassuming particularity of the telling, however, arouse and hold one's interest in these people and make 'Cannon Hill' a novel that is likely to linger pleasantly in one's memory." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Je 19 '49 700w

"The author of 'Cannon Hill' has richly fulfilled the promise of her earlier novel, 'The Hour of Spring' and of her short stories. It is a pleasure to come upon so substantial a novel as she has given us now. In the writing, in character and in plot, this story of the American Midwest before and after World War I is an achievement of which Miss Deasy can be proud, and for which fiction readers can be grateful." J. P. Quehl

+ N Y Times p4 Je 26 '49 380w

"The author's style and characters are vaguely and attractively reminiscent of D. H. Lawrence, but in a politely urbanized way that that master would undoubtedly have scorned."

+ New Yorker 25:83 Je 18 '49 140w

"Her writing, setting, characters and their problems are all distinctively different. Yet they are so well integrated that the finished product stands as a remarkable example of quality work, with no seams showing." L. A. Potts

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 15 '49 650w

"It has been proved dangerous to list alleged literary antecedents of a writer; so often the writer denies having read the works from which he is said to have learned. But it seems to me that Mary Deasy may have learned much—and not always to her advantage—from D. H. Lawrence. . . But I must not leave the impression that the book is wholly derivative, imitative. If Mary Deasy has imitated Lawrence (and I cannot be sure of it), she has done so creatively, using Lawrentian devices to recreate a world that is truly her own, learning thus as one artist always learns from whatever other artist is accepted as master. Certainly the book she has written has rare values of is own, and it points the way toward future work of an even higher order." K. S. Davis

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:17 Jl 16 '49 750w

Springf'd Republican p7B Jl 17 '49 200w

"Good character delineation."

+ Wis Lib Bul p8 N '49

DE BEAUVOIR, SIMONE. See Beauvoir, S. de.

DE BENOUVILLE, GUILLAIN. See Guillain de Bénouville, P.

DEBRETT, HAL. Before I wake. 211p $2.50 Dodd

49-8705

Mystery story.

"The tale's intention is a sound departure from custom and the author has had the fortitude to make his epistolary narrator a steadily disagreeable miss. Unfortunately too few other qualities emerge to make a compelling person of her or of her very shadowy stepmother. In consequence the book must be marked down with admiring regret as an interesting failure." James Sandoe
— + Chicago Sun My 13 '49 130w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p24 My 8 '49 110w

N Y Times p29 My 22 '49 110w

DE BRUNHOFF, LAURENT. See Brunhoff, L. de

DECKER, DUANE WALTER. Hit and run. 188p $2.50 Mill

49-1915

Baseball story for older boys. It is the story of two boys: a white boy with a quick temper, and a Negro. The two help each other conquer their difficulties.

Booklist 45:297 My 1 '49

"Big league baseball and pretty exciting stuff, which fathers will enjoy along with their sons."
+ Kirkus 17:112 Mr 1 '49 160w

"This last effort, although not so good perhaps as Starting Pitcher, which was a little gem, is worthwhile and should be popular with the baseball following." Lillian Morrison
+ Library J 74:827 My 15 '49 80w

"Probably the best baseball story of this spring." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Jl 10 '49 60w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown
N Y Times p10 Jl 3 '49 140w

"Regrettably for the sake of American literature, the national game does not lend itself to prose too well, but Mr. Duane manages to capture the zest of sports reporting in an entertaining novel."
Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 24 '49 110w

Wis Lib Bul 45:108 Je '49

DECKER, MALCOLM. The rebel and the turncoat. (Whittlesey house publication) 250p $2.50 McGraw

49-8501

Historical novel of New York and Philadelphia during the Revolution. The hero is young Henry Prince, nephew of a New York Tory bookseller. For some time Henry could not decide where his loyalty lay, but eventually he chose the side of the Colonies. Two girls helped in his decision—one a Tory belle, the other a spy for General Washington.

Booklist 45:297 My 1 '49

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 28 '49 270w

"A mature, well-written story of the American Revolution with an appealing and likable hero. . . Better written, too, than most of its ilk."
+ Kirkus 17:62 F 1 '49 190w

"Recommended for junior and senior high school." Elizabeth Burr
+ Library J 74:828 My 15 '49 90w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p8C My 8 '49 210w

DEE, SYLVIA, pseud. See Proffitt, J. M.

DEES, JESSE WALTER. Flophouse; an authentic undercover study of flophouses, cage hotels, including missions, shelters, and institutions serving unattached (homeless) men; a sociological study that includes English origins of mass relief, samples of American mass relief and a modern investigation of public and private policies in Chicago. 170p il $4 Jones, Marshall

362.51 Chicago—Charities 49-1589

"This addition to the sparse literature on the homeless man summarizes several earlier works in the field as background for a fifty page report of the author's own field experience as a participant observer. A suggestive if inadequately developed thesis concludes that, in order to avoid the stifling effects of 'shelterization,' outdoor relief should be substituted for the prevailing system of regimented relief in public shelters." Am Soc R

"Despite a certain redundancy and lack of organization, this book should provide useful supplementary reading in the field of social maladjustment."
+ — Am Soc R 14:331 Ap '49 80w

"Although published in 1948, the book concerns itself almost exclusively with the development of provisions for homeless men during a period ending ten years earlier. Virtually no mention is made in the text of any aspect of the total problem during the war years or in the postwar period until the author presents, after his recommendations, a very brief section on developments in Chicago in the Forties. . . The literature would have profited from a thoroughgoing study of the impact on the problem of the homeless men of the war and the subsequent dislocations, the effectiveness of special wartime social services, the role of the veteran, and so on." Edward Galway
Survey 85:181 Mr '49 650w

DE FORD, MIRIAM ALLEN (MRS MAYNARD SHIPLEY). Psychologist unretired; the life pattern of Lillien J. Martin. 127p il $3 Stanford univ. press

B or 92 Martin, Lillien Jane 49-152

The life story of Dr Lillien Martin, whose varied life ended in 1943, at the age of ninety-one. In her busy life Dr Martin had several careers. She was first a school teacher; next assistant professor of psychology at Stanford University; then head of the first mental hygiene clinic for normal preschool children; pioneer in rehabilitation techniques for the aged; and traveler. Bibliography. No index.

Booklist 45:191 F 1 '49

Reviewed by Eleanor Breed
San Francisco Chronicle p19 D 5 '48 850w

"Miriam Allen deFord, a San Francisco writer, gives a friendly candid portrait that makes stimulating reading." R. J. Havighurst
+ Survey 85:397 Jl '49 800w

DE FRANCE, JOSEPH J. Direct current fundamentals. 279p il $4.30; to schools $3.25 Prentice-Hall

537.5 Electric currents 49-1551

"A basic course to give practical background for electronic technicians and radio mechanics and servicemen. Textbook format with questions at close of chapters. Based on courses given at the New York State Signal Corps Training School and the Coast Guard Training Station, Groton, Conn. Appendix of tables." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 45:308 My 15 '49

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:1033 Jl '49 40w

DE GOUY, LOUIS PULLIG. Pie book. 380p $4.50 Greenberg

641.631 Pastry 49-7542

Over four hundred tested recipes for dessert pies, with the author's own pie-making techniques added. Contains advice on shortenings, fruit preparation, baking procedures, etc. The index refers to number of recipe, not to page.

DE GOUY, L. P.—Continued

Booklist 45:236 Mr 15 '49

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 30 '49 100w

DE GRAZIA, SEBASTIAN. Political community; a study of anomie. 258p $4 Univ. of Chicago press

320.15 Political science 48-9544

"Professor de Grazia (Chicago) discusses past and present cultures in relation to man's need for beliefs, and the effect of community changes of opinion or organization on man. It is a plea for a more idealistic society, in opposition to current tendencies toward disintegration." (Current Hist) Indexes.

"This is a well-written book. The concrete noun and the active verb have been used wherever possible, and the style has both grace and force. Nowhere is to be encountered that peculiar combination of dulness and elephantine pedantry that blemishes so much current writing in the social science field. . . Unfortunately, the conjunction of skilled argumentation, good writing, and erudition, however happy, is still not enough to make this a good book from the standpoint of careful scholarship and sound science. In fact, I think that it is a bad book." Howard Becker
— + Am J Soc 55:210 S '49 1550w

Reviewed by M. E. Oatman
Am Pol Sci R 43:612 Je '49 450w

"Much of the striking quality of De Grazia's work lies in the insistence that psychological security and a transcendent morality are inseparable. . . But De Grazia, with a hostile eye on the pluralists, refuses to differentiate between state and social organization. He hints at a succeeding volume in the tradition of Plato. One looks forward to it but with the hope that his pen will draw also from the analyses of the Platonic community made by Barker, Kelsen, and, more recently Popper." R. A. Nisbet
+ — Am Soc R 14:328 Ap '49 900w

Reviewed by Morris Ginsberg
Ann Am Acad 264:149 Jl '49 550w

"DeGrazia has drawn upon the knowledge of the centuries to put together an extremely interesting study of these common religious and political beliefs."
+ Chicago Sun p6X Ja 30 '49 60w

Reviewed by Earl Cranston
Crozer Q 26:358 O '49 800w

Current Hist 16:35 Ja '49 40w

"There has been no systematic theory applying the psychological approach to the phenomena which have constituted the central subject matter of traditional political thought. It is the important contribution of a new book by Sebastian de Grazia. . . that it does take at least the basic steps toward such a systematic theory. In so doing, it makes highly skillful use of the most recent work in the various branches of psychology, combining these with relevant materials from anthropology and sociology." Alan Gewirth
+ — Ethics 59:211 Ap '49 4600w

"This book, written by a talented young Chicago professor of sociology, will be of interest not only to fellow-sociolgists. It covers a wide range of problems, though its main concern is to investigate social disintegration. It draws from a multitude of sources: theological, historical, anthropological, psychological, and medical. It is not a ponderous tome; written fluidly, occasionaly in a conversational tone, this study is more than just another sociological monograph. . . It is comprehensive, sometimes penetrating, discerning, and in parts subtle in its analysis. But it is lacking in vision and in constructive suggestions as to how to overcome the difficulties and to heal the wounds of which a society threatened by disintegration is suffering. The diagnosis is made, but we miss indications of a therapy." J. Wach
+ — J Religion 29:157 Ap '49 1000w

School & Society 68:439 D 18 '48 60w

"On the whole this is an impressive piece of work, for the most part simply and agreeably written, and massively documented."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p621 S 23 '49 1150w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:85 Mr '49 300w

DEJONG, DAVID CORNEL. The desperate children. 311p $3 Doubleday

49-10219

A psychological study of two young boys, one eleven, one sixteen, exploring the ramifications of their friendship and their relations with the adults of the community—teachers, parents and others.

"One of the distinctive elements in Mr. de Jong's latest novel is the ingenuous method of his word-stitching, which carefully and constantly avoids following the design of commonplace prose. This does not mean that it belongs to the experimental, and frequently unintelligible, type of work of a few contemporary authors who assault traditional forms of literary expression. Mr. de Jong does not pummel language out of all meaning; rather, he demonstrates the elasticity of a style of composition that has been freed of the knots and ragtags of hackneyed phraseology. The reader may, or may not, find the result to his taste." M. W. Stoer
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 1 '49 490w

Kirkus 17:334 Jl 1 '49 170w

"'The Desperate Children'—a title which seems rather out of key with the real tenor of the novel—is at once robust and tender, full of perception but also often extremely funny. Its summer and winter, its country and city scenes are vivid, the people as sharply brought to view as through binoculars and with something of the same sorcery." Iris Barry
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 S 4 '49 800w

"Taking this bizarre group of characters seriously—which calls for some effort—one must still note that the unmarried, aging female teacher as clinical material in fiction has begun to disintegrate. So has the rather nasty old woman in the role of a feminine Robin Hood. Mr. De Jong's prose is excellent, if humorless, but it cannot disguise the odor of formaldehyde that clings to his pathological specimens." Josephine Lawrence
— + N Y Times p6 S 4 '49 500w

New Yorker 25:106 S 24 '49 100w

"I feel the end of the book to be more than a little crowded by Mr. De Jong's large and controlling hand. But the quality of the internal drama which makes his book is subtle, mature, and uncompromising. He has built up his personalities and situations by means of long stretches of stream of consciousness, all of it well written and some of it profound." N. L. Rothman
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:18 O 15 '49 290w

DE JONG, MEINDERT. Bible days; il. by Kreigh Collins. 80p $2.95; text ed $2.65 Fideler

225.91 Palestine—Social life and customs
48-9856

Tells how the people of Palestine lived and worked in the time of Jesus. Contains chapters on the geography and government of Palestine at the time of Jesus' birth, on home life, school life, the synagogue, the work of carpenter, fisherman, farmer, etc. Full page illustrations in black and white.

Booklist 45:247 Mr 15 '49

"Coming out of an authoritative knowledge of the Holy Land, Bible Days will be of real value in church schools and in homes where the Bible is cherished." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:139 Mr '49 90w

Reviewed by E. W. Turpin
Library J 74:205 F 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Mr 27 '49 200w

Springf'd Republican p14A Ja 23 '49 150w

DE JOUVENEL, BERTRAND. See Jouvenel, B. de

DE KRUIF, PAUL HENRY, and DE KRUIF, RHEA BARBARIN. Life among the doctors. 470p $4.75 Harcourt

610.9 Medicine. Physicians 49-10896

"A decade of medical advance in terms of some of the doctors who have contributed to it, rather than in terms of the scientific discoveries. The interest, as in most of de Kruif's writings, lies largely in the human terms, the anecdotal quality, the stories of the battles doctors have made against prejudice and ignorance. Here are a few of the men he has chosen: Dr. Tom Spies and his war against chemical starvation; Dr. Alvin Coburn and rheumatic fever; Col. O. C. Wenger and venereal disease; Dr. Herman Kabat and his neuromuscular work; Nurse Regina Kaplan and rheumatoid arthritis; Chicago's health commissioner, Herman Bundesen; 'Cy' Young, and his Public Health laboratory in Lansing; Leo Loewe and subacute bacterial endocarditis; and the nameless 'grand old man of cancer'. The final section deals with plans for group medical insurance—and Dr. Sidney Garfield and his Permanente Hospital in California." (Kirkus) Index.

Booklist 46:41; 62 O 1 '49; O 15 '49

Reviewed by R. E. K. Pemberton
Canadian Forum 29:237 Ja '50 430w

"Despite an extravagant instinct for sensationalism which crops up endemically, De Kruif writes effectively about such men as the builder and guiding spirit of the Public Health Laboratory of a neighboring state and the physician who has made outstanding contributions in the treatment of anemia and the nutritional deficiency diseases. . . The portion of the book which deals with poliomyelitis and multiple sclerosis can be read as unadulterated drama rather than as an accurate account of current medical knowledge. . . Unharrassed by De Kruif's insistent demands for quick, unsubstantiated cures, medical science will contribute to the better health of mankind in its own cautious, sure-footed way." Noah Fabricant, M.D.
— + Chicago Sun O 11 '49 650w

"As always, De Kruif writes with zest and zip, popularizing his material without cheapening it and putting it into a literary form as easy to follow as a novel, and not unlike one. It is probable that a man who walks with such a confident and swinging stride treads on some toes. The avoidance of such minor casualties is the least of his concerns. What he aims to do is to arouse and inform the public with regard to the issues of health and disease; and that is what he does." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:1328 N 9 '49 350w

"For the layman, this will win the usual popular acceptance; while the scientist may feel that some of his sweeping generalities should be challenged."
+ — Kirkus 17:453 Ag 15 '49 180w

"Despite the time-worn appearance of the formula, the essays are exciting reading with a potentially wide appeal." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 74:1458 O 1 '49 100w

Nation 169:450 N 5 '49 40w

"There is the possibility that this book will do the kind of harm that the doctors fear. It may multiply the unsubmissive patients who think they know more than their physician does. It may increase the clamor for new and unproved remedies in the hands of obscure researchers. But it should also stimulate 'organized medicine' to make it impossible for an intelligent and sympathetic insider to launch such a sincere and fervent attack—not by still more and tougher censorship but by a more liberal attitude toward heresy and by a major effort to educate medical and science writers in the whole truth of the physician's awesome responsibility for life and death." Gerald Wendt
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 O 9 '49 1050w

"An arresting series of character sketches and biographies which will stir up resentment in medical circles (it is not considered good form to glorify the heroes of clinics) and confirm the suspicions of uncritical lay readers that organized medicine throttles the pioneers who discover ways of treating hitherto intractable diseases. . . As a popularizer of medical science de Kruif has few peers. His method is that of the melodramatist. There is no more satisfying spectacle than the triumph of virtue over wickedness. De Kruif applies the formula effectively. He knows the importance of suspense, of timing, of slow music at the right moment. . . There is no question about the skill with which he draws his characters. He is verbose, slangy, sometimes ungrammatical, but never dull." Waldemar Kaempffert
— + N Y Times p16 O 9 '49 800w

San Francisco Chronicle p28 N 27 '49

Reviewed by R. J. Collins
Springf'd Republican p8C N 20 '49 480w

DELANGLEZ, JEAN. Life and voyages of Louis Jolliet, 1645-1700. 289p maps $5 Inst. of Jesuit hist, Loyola univ, 6525 Sheridan rd, Chicago 26

B or 92 Joliet, Louis 48-4742

"Professor Delanglez not only devotes a full-length biography to Joliet, but even gives his name an additional 'l'. Jolliet, in every extent genuine signature discovered by the author, spelled his name with two 'l's. Condensed from articles previously issued in a periodical, five of the eleven chapters are concerned with the discovery of the Mississippi; others describe Jolliet's trip to Hudson Bay and his two trips to Labrador." U S Quarterly Bkl

---

"This biography of Jolliet is a work for the specialist and not the general reader." G. L. Nute
Am Hist R 54:881 Jl '49 750w

"Hitherto the standard life of Jolliet has been that by Ernest Gagnon. . . Professor Delanglez's book will undoubtedly supersede M. Gagnon's as a definitive study of Jolliet, but it is doubtful if it will ever be read. It embodies a great deal of scholarly research, it gives all the facts that are likely to be discovered about Jolliet and his explorations, and those facts have every appearance of being accurate. It is reasonably impartial, though the author obviously does not like Parkman, and the very definite bias against Frontenac which was to be found in his previous work, Frontenac and the Jesuits (1939), is still present. . . What, then, is the matter with this book? In part its troubles lies in Mr. Delanglez's literary style, which is just dull." E. R. Adair
+ — Canadian Hist R 29:425 D '48 410w

"Mr. Delanglez gives no 'literary frills' at all; he does provide, however, much interesting information about Jolliet and his time. The statements are backed up by conscientious and copious references to contemporary sources. The author has examined with care source material in the Archives of the Province of Quebec, in those of Three Rivers and the Séminaire of Quebec, and in the Judicial Archives of Quebec."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:435 D '48 340w

DE LA ROCHE, MAZO. Mary Wakefield. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 337p $3 Little

49-7004

This eleventh volume in the Jalna series is the second in point of time. The setting is Jalna in 1893, and the heroine is Mary Wakefield, the beautiful English girl engaged by Ernest Whiteoak to be governess for Philip's motherless children. Adeline in her sixties is still able to put on a good show, and does it when Philip wants to marry Mary. When Philip stands out against his mother, Adeline gives in gracefully, for once. The book ends with the wedding.

DE LA ROCHE, MAZO—Continued

Booklist 45:149, 158 Ja 1 '49

"Needless to say the setting is 'Jalna' pictured with all the charm Miss de la Roche packs into her favorite Canadian locale. For those who do not know the Whiteoaks the story is complete in itself; for those already acquainted with this fascinating family there is added pleasure. Assured craftsmanship and amusing situations keep a somewhat naive tale from palling on a sophisticated generation of readers."
+ Cath World 168:495 Mr '49 150w

Reviewed by F. N. Litten
Chicago Sun Ja 5 '49 140w

"For all the ingenuousness and featherlight touch, there is a certain roguish element which gives frequent unexpected touches of robust humor; there is a sudden mischievousness in the dialogue, or a provocative turn of phrase, all of which are the inevitable hallmarks of the work of Mazo de la Roche." M. W. Stoer
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Ja 14 '49 480w

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '49

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 25:160 Mr '49 90w

Kirkus 16:601 N 15 '48 200w

"The qualities that have endeared the Jalna stories to countless readers are here unabated in this latest volume—freshness, liveliness, keen characterization, and invigorating setting and good story telling. Clearly Miss de la Roche likes and enjoys this family with which, as an author, she has spent more than twenty years. To her readers, likewise, the Whiteoaks have become old friends whom one knows all about and still likes. I suspect, moreover, that some one who hits on 'Mary Wakefield' as his introduction to the clan will also find it beguiling." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ja 9 '49 450w

Reviewed by Barbara Bond
N Y Times p21 Ja 30 '49 120w

"The story is so silly and so feebly written that only the family's most fanatical admirers will want to be bothered with it."
— New Yorker 25:94 F 26 '49 80w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 F 6 '49 350w

"Miss De la Roche has invested some of her 'Jalna' volumes with more charm than this one; but she has never told a swifter, more dramatic, or more absorbing story. Dramatic is indeed so much the word for it that it could be converted to the stage or screen with little trouble." Allan Nevins
+ Sat R of Lit 32:17 Ja 29 '49 600w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p22A F 27 '49 240w

Times [London] Lit Sup p785 D 2 '49 120w

Wis Lib Bul 45:48 Mr '49

DE LAUBENFELS, MAX WALKER. Pageant of life science; 748 drawings by the author, 276 photographs [school ed pub. under title Life science]. 4th ed 407p $5.95; to schools $5.75 Prentice-Hall

574 Biology 49-6162

"Although primarily an introduction to biology written for college students, this book is truly a fascinating experience for anyone beginning the study of biology and also anyone who just likes to read about living things." Library J

Chicago Sun p25X O 9 '49 100w

"Though not encyclopedic, it is unusually inclusive. The usual fare of standard knowledge is leavened with curious facts and with more than 1,000 illustrations. The book is highly suitable for library use." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 74:1606 O 15 '49 80w

DELDERFIELD, RONALD FREDERICK. Seven men of Gascony. 361p $3 Bobbs
49-7543

Historical novel about the time of the Napoleonic wars. The action is concerned with a group of men from Gascony who went thru the Austrian, Spanish and Russian campaigns, were captured by the English, and finally disappeared one by one. The story purports to be told by the one survivor, an old man when Napoleon's body is brought back to France in 1840.

Booklist 45:335 Je 1 '49

"Well-conceived and well-executed, Mr. Delderfield's story of Napoleon's last six years pulses with the devotion of unnamed hundreds of thousands and the horrors of a Continent at war—all expressed in realistic terms of ordinary, naturally decent men."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 3 '49 270w

Reviewed by Donald Wasson
Library J 74:125 Ja 15 '49 80w

"The author has achieved a war chronicle of breadth and vigor admirably more devoted to the sources of human behavior than to the mechanics of warfare." George Conrad
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 F 13 '49 360w

"A rousing good story." Andrea Parke
+ N Y Times p26 Mr 6 '49 170w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 32:31 Mr 26 '49 180w

Times [London] Lit Sup p533 Ag 19 '49 180w

DE LEEUW, ADELE LOUISE. Curtain call. 213p $2.50 Macmillan
49-11575

Story of a stage struck young girl who goes to New York to study acting and does not succeed in getting a job. Back in her own home town she starts a Little Theater group with all its attendant trials.

"Adèle De Leeuw can always be counted on to do an interesting and unhackneyed type of 'career story' for young people. She has the knack of good natural dialogue, success never comes too easily, and there are always really helpful suggestions worked into the book. . . Here, as in 'Boarding School,' I feel that one girl is out of key, oversnobbish, overarrogant, but the comradeship of the other boys and girls is well done." F. C. Darling
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 N 10 '49 180w

Kirkus 17:512 S 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 29 '50 70w

"Miss DeLeeuw's story runs right along with no dull places and nothing outlandishly improbable. Teen-age girls should be delighted with it, especially since it ends with, 'And he kissed her again.' "
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 N 27 '49 90w

DE LEEUW, CATEAU (JESSICA LYON, pseud). For a whole lifetime. 221p $2.50 Macrae Smith co.
49-6497

A love story for older girls, in which Karen Moore, brought up in a wealthy family, has to decide between the socially prominent youths her mother recommends, and the fine young garage mechanic whom she really loves.

Booklist 46:101 N 15 '49

"The author handles her characters realistically and spins her tale well—thus giving the young reader much valuable food for thought about marriage, all within the context of an absorbing story." A. R. Brooks
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 N 13 '49 110w

"This is just the sort of story we've been wanting for teen-age girls, mature, realistic and full of fascinating characterizations. . .

This is highly recommended for girls of 14 and up as a perfect antidote for trashy, slick magazine stories and because it is very, very good."
+ Kirkus 17:398 Ag 1 '49 180w

"Author's solution is sound, but she has stacked the cards so strongly that I am not sure that many girls would not prefer to hunt up the nearest millionaire." Esther Gorey
Library J 74:1552 O 15 '49 80w

"Realistic and, on the whole, logical situations and a good sense of values are the major virtues, although the style leaves something to be desired." Siri Andrews
+ — Library J 74:1830 D 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 29 '50 100w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:30 N 12 '49 30w

DE LISO, OSCAR. God's thumb down. 313p $3 Scribner
49-2627

"[Describes] the postwar miseries of a southern Italian village very similar to the one in 'Christ Stopped at Eboli.' . . The book's principal figure is a meditative lawyer who has no practice and whose hopelessness reflects that of his fellow-townsmen, threatened by Communist partisans in the hills above, and by the river below, into which the soil of the village is quietly sliding." New Yorker

"There is a power here that forces the despair, the hunger, the vile, the frustration down one's throat, there is a mystical tenderness that offsets the harsher tones, and the whole, with some of the searing scenes, makes for memorable reading. En garde, PLs!"
+ Kirkus 17:96 F 15 '49 220w

"Pretty strong meat for most tastes. Not recommended for most libraries." H. R. Forbes
— Library J 74:735 My 1 '49 100w

"'God's Thumb Down' is tragic, pessimistic, dark in its forebodings; a ruinous landscape dominates an exhausted people; but also in common with that literature it is vivid and fierce with a seemingly inextinguishable life. . . What is most astonishing in this literature . . . is the energy displayed by the art that has been created to depict so crumbling and so exhausted a world." Alfred Hayes
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 My 8 '49 750w

"'God's Thumb Down' would unquestionably be important for its sociological content alone. But since it is also the polished work of a gifted new writer, its publication is a literary event." W. F. Weaver
+ N Y Times p6 My 1 '49 600w

"The author presents various inhabitants and their pithy conversations with skill, but the final assault on the community, by a renegade partisan band, is a trifle too bloodcurdling.'
+ — New Yorker 25:110 My 7 '49 130w

Reviewed by William Hogan
San Francisco Chronicle p25 My 1 '49 800w

"Although God's thumb seems to be down on the Italy of today, it is unlikely that any reader's thumb will be down on this novel, which, to my mind, is one of the best and most creative 'first' efforts in recent years. . . Oscar DeLiso lived in Italy for ten years and [his] book has caught the idiom, the robust humor, and the pathos of Italian town life." Siegfried Mandel
+ Sat R of Lit 32:21 My 21 '49 550w

DE MADARIAGA, SALVADOR. See Madariaga, S. de

DEMAITRE, EDMUND, and APPLEMAN, MARK J. Liberation of Manhattan; il. by Paul Galdone. 223p $2.75 Doubleday
49-11788

A satire on the Russians. It purports to show the reactions of the population of New York city to a Russian invasion, which was launched with intent to "liberate" the poor, oppressed New Yorkers.

"The book is a witty satire on the Russian mind and is ably illustrated by Paul Galdone." R. L. Blakesley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 D 25 '49 150w

"A spoof, not always funny, but amusing enough in its cartoon picture of ideological clashes."
Kirkus 17:519 S 15 '49 150w

Reviewed by Rex Lardner
N Y Times p44 N 27 '49 290w

DEMING, DOROTHY. Sharon's nursing diary. 272p $2.50 Dodd 49-10591

Describes one year in the life of Nurse Sharon Bruce, during which she learns about different types of nursing, and ends with her promise to marry a young public health doctor. For older girls.

Booklist 46:126 D 1 '49

"Interesting story and will be popular with teen-age girls." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 74:1682 N 1 '49 80w

"Miss Deming has had a distinguished career herself in public health nursing. All her books are full of sound, interesting information, and this is no exception. . . Nurses in training would learn a lot from this book, and high-school girls considering nursing could not read a better one." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 13 '49 230w

DENBY, EDWIN. Looking at the dance. 432p il $4 Pellegrini & Cudahy
792.8 Ballet 49-2988

A collection of the author's articles which have appeared in Modern Music, Dance Index, The Kenyon Review, and other periodicals, and from the New York Herald Tribune, on which he has served as dance critic. Together they form a history of the dance in recent years. Index.

Reviewed by Ann Berzel
Chicago Sun Je 8 '49 60w

Reviewed by Margaret Lloyd
Christian Science Monitor p13 Je 2 '49 180w

Kirkus 17:102 F 15 '49 120w

"Recommended for dance and theatre collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:959 Je 15 '49 60w

Nation 169:93 Jl 23 '49 1250w

"Represents some of the most distinguished, luminous, tactful and penetrating criticism in any field of the arts that we have ever had in this country. . . The great virtue of 'Looking at the Dance' is the splendor and light and edge of the thought, the glow of the interpretation, the easy culture and delight of its very approach to the art involved and often, too, of the writing itself. The great rarity in this criticism of Mr. Denby's is that it is written from inside the art." Stark Young
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 My 29 '49 900w

"Edwin Denby is a brave man. Having reviewed dance performances for The New York Herald Tribune for several seasons, he has now had the courage to assemble in a volume a great many of these pieces, written with a midnight deadline hovering over them, and to face them in the cold light of the morning after. As a matter of fact, they prove to be not at all hard to face. To be sure, they have been selected carefully from his total output. . . But they stand up surprisingly well alongside those other pieces which were written with more leisure for various periodicals." John Martin
+ N Y Times p27 Je 5 '49 600w

DENBY, EDWIN—Continued

"This is no book for beginners. Rather, it is a reward for perfect attendance by bright pupils and, as such, is a refresher course for postgraduate balletomanes. For them, it focuses the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House in the mind's eye. Denby's peculiarly authoritative position owes much to his professional experience as a dancer in Europe before the war and, subsequently, as a choreographer, dance director, and operetta librettist in this country. His enthusiasms are heavily on the side of ballet." Russell Rhodes

+ Sat R of Lit 32:20 Ap 30 '49 850w

DEN HARTOG, JACOB PIETER. Strength of materials. 323p $4 McGraw

620.11 Strength of materials 49-9725

"An introductory college textbook written by a professor of mechanical engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. . . Among the topics covered which are lacking in some of the older books are electric strain gauges and photoelasticity. In a sense the book is a sequel to the author's Mechanics." (Library J) Index.

"The book is designed for use in a first course in the subject for engineering students. However, it contains some material that might be omitted from such a course initially and taken up later in a more advanced course. Included also are 350 problems, with answers, at the end of the text, indexed to the section to which they apply."

Eng N 143:76 N 10 '49 200w

"From the viewpoint of librarians selecting books for reference use and self instruction, the book has the advantages of being up-to-date, reliable and plentifully supplied with problems and their answers." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 74:1329 S 15 '49 80w

DENISON, BENJAMIN WEBSTER, and others. Alaska today. 374p il maps $5 Caxton printers

917.98 Alaska 49-9563

For the man or woman who is considering a pioneering venture in Alaska this book contains information about Alaska's resources, opportunities in business, farming, fishing, lumbering, mining, and living conditions. Index.

Booklist 45:345; 374 Je 15 '49, Jl 1 '49

Reviewed by Jay Monaghan

Chicago Sun p8X Ag 7 '49 270w

"This seems to be the book you want if you are thinking of going to Alaska, especially if you are serious about it and want to know about resources, opportunities, economic and industrial conditions, people, schools and politics."

+ Christian Century 66:1106 S 21 '49 130w

"As a handbook, and a guide, this, without pedantry, should fill the bill for all those interested in a current report on Seward's Folly."

+ Kirkus 17:172 Mr 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by R. E. Kingery

Library J 74:544 Ap 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. G. Eastman

Springf'd Republican p4D S 25 '49 240w

DENISON, MERRILL. Harvest triumphant; the story of Massey-Harris. 351p il $3.50 Dodd

631.35 Harvesting machinery. Massey-Harris company, limited 49-7310

"Follows through one hundred years of the history of Massey-Harris Company, Ltd., in peace and war, to the drone of aeroplanes and the hum of self-propelled combines. The book is a vivid portrayal of rugged individualism in the last half of the nineteenth century, gradually replaced by the more modern twentieth century joint stock corporations." (Canadian Forum) Index.

"It should make particularly good reading for students of agricultural economics, and others interested in the political and economic history of Canada." A. C. S.

+ Canadian Forum 29:23 Ap '49 220w

Reviewed by Russell Lord

N Y Times p4 F 13 '49 800w

DENISON, WEBSTER. See Denison, B. W.

DENKER, HENRY. I'll be right home, Ma. 278p $2.75 Crowell

49-7616

A first novel. It records the life story of a slum boy whose whole outlook on life was warped by his mother's infidelity to his father, and his father's suicide. He becomes a prize fighter, kills a man, and is labeled Killer Callagan. But his heart is not in the easy adulation he has earned and when a paralysis affects his right arm he finally straightens out some of the kinks in his life.

Booklist 45:242 Mr 15 '49

"A not too subtle, but an effective, picture of the way up the rosin row which encounters some credible—and creditable—characters en route."

+ Kirkus 16:647 D 15 '48 150w

"In spite of sordid spots, necessarily associated with subject, an absorbing, tense, poignant story, from both boxing and adolescent-psychological angles. Characters are hauntingly disturbing. For mature readers." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 74:125 Ja 15 '49 90w

"Henry Denker's novel is authentic stuff, raw, resinous and rich in the jargon of the fight mob. It also poses a problem of inner conflict for which Mr. Denker has a psychiatric answer, but, to expand excellent short-story material into book length, the author has let his characters go in for quite a bit of shadow-boxing dialogue."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ap 17 '49 150w

Reviewed by Rex Lardner

N Y Times p10 F 13 '49 450w

"There's plenty of drama in 'I'll Be Right Home, Ma.' Mr. Denker is a good craftsman. His novel is fast-paced, very readable, but his characterizations are regrettable. The author creates 'characters' instead of people." Robert Mende

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:31 Je 18 '49 550w

Springf'd Republican p18A Mr 27 '49 120w

DENNIS, NIGEL FORBES. Sea change. 372p $3.50 Houghton

49-4830

Portrait of a so-called "liberal" journalist. After graduation from a New York university, where he learned to discard his middle west upbringing, Max Divver became foreign correspondent and editor of the progressive Forward, owned by wealthy Mrs Morgan. In the spring of '39 Max went abroad to report on the Polish crisis, taking with him Mrs Morgan's epileptic son. In Poland Max shows up in his true colors, and practically turns Nazi. But young Jimmy Morgan proves to be more of a man than Max. When Max is killed, Jimmy escapes.

"The writing is crisp, the wit is fresh and original and delivered in absolute deadpan. Mr. Dennis's all-around performance is, I think, a stunningly good one." Harvey Breit

+ Atlantic 184:85 S '49 480w

"Mr. Dennis writes beautifully when describing the simplicity and charm of the cathedral town of Mell. His novel bogs down when he concentrates on Divver and Morgan. Both are rather dull and stupid characters. . . A Sea Change will provoke and interest its readers, the majority of whom will not particularly care, however, what eventually happens to either Divver or young Morgan." W. M. Burke

+ — Cath World 169:475 S '49 350w

"This novel gets off to an admirable start, but develops one basic weakness as it goes along. Dennis relies too much on speeches to develop Divver's character. As Max Divver becomes more uncertain of himself, so does the reader. Despite this fault, the book is strong enough to hold the reader's interest to the end." Edward Uzemack
+ — Chicago Sun p8X Ag 7 '49 290w

"The intellectual tangles in which Divver involved himself and the maturing experiences of young Morgan in a foreign city are transmitted through the medium of an adroit, satiric style, which is, indeed, at times so very clever as to veil the meaning."
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 1 '49 240w

"Mr. Dennis is often as amusing as he is savage. He has the ability to tell a tale, to rouse interest in his leading characters, to create atmosphere and suspense. When all these gifts and skills are brought to bear on discrediting a type of journalism long held in high esteem in this country, the effect is devastating. The truth behind his exaggerations is persistent. When he applies his talents to the depiction of the one grubby escapade in the book, he makes the tryst very graphic indeed. . . Mr. Dennis has hit often and hit hard—quite possibly because this is a political recantation. It will be interesting to see how the objects of his scorn react to these undisguised, if humorous, fulminations." E. S. Skillin
+ Commonweal 50:468 Ag 19 '49 350w

"Perverse, ironic, this is essentially dull."
— Kirkus 17:241 My 1 '49 190w

"Tough, unpleasant reading." R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:891 Je 1 '49 100w

"'A Sea Change' is deft and often very funny. Its malice and wit are effortless. Its strangely unpleasant picture of a certain level of Manhattan intellectual society sounds as if it were the result of extensive experience, although it never degenerates into the mere roman à clef or into simple vituperation. . . The final wisdom in this novel is neither startling nor reassuring." Ernest Jones
+ — Nation 169:184 Ag 20 '49 700w

Reviewed by A. L. Goodman
New Repub 121:19 S 5 '49 650w

"This is surely one of the best written, most thoughtful novels of the last few years. In ironical, dead-pan prose that sometimes reminds one of the way Norman Douglas made fun of an earlier generation, Mr. Dennis pokes our own ribs so adroitly that it is hard to tell whether he is trying to tickle the patient or to diagnose the case." Herbert Kupferberg
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Ag 14 '49 1050w

"'A Sea Change' is sophisticated and irreverent entertainment for intellectuals, with some of the deceptive sprightliness of the early E. M. Forster though with none of Forster's economy. It is 'A Room With a View' rewritten for our darker modern world. . . Intellectually, this is a cool and brilliantly conceived novel, and at times a very funny book. It offers, when the author makes a serious effort, a polished and pungent style. Unfortunately, he does not often make this effort. He can manage a major scene in a few incisive pages, only to devote the same number of pages to describing an automobile." Albert Guerard, Jr.
+ — N Y Times p5 Ag 14 '49 650w

New Yorker 25:106 S 10 '49 200w

"Dennis's civilized, sardonic prose pursues the hapless Divver relentlessly throughout the book, leaving no doubt of his courteous, almost kindly contempt for all the Divvers everywhere, and all their sorry ilk. He can also create charming diversions: the town of Mell is an extraordinary imaginative conceit, as bright and lingering as a Bemelmans drawing; there are passages of crabapple tartness, and characterizations as crisp and bright as the air in Mell. Dennis, having ground out many a review of many a lesser novel, may now, it would seem, settle back and comfortably read many a lauding review of one of his own."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 S 10 '49 850w
Time 54:85 Ag 22 '49 900w

DENNIS, WAYNE, and others. Current trends in social psychology. See Current trends in social psychology

DENVER. UNIVERSITY. Social science foundation. See Woodward, E. L., and others Foundations for world order

DE ONG, ELMER RALPH. Chemistry and uses of insecticides. 345p il $6 Reinhold
632.951 Insecticides 49-7092

"A broad treatment of the subject. In it are discussed most of the chemicals, including the older ones, which are still useful as insecticides. Specific data are given on chemical properties, history of use as an insecticide, uses, methods of application and dosages. The work is written in the style of a monograph with important statements in the text keyed to bibliographies in which citations of the sources of the information are given. It will be useful chiefly as a reference book and as an agricultural college textbook." (N Y New Tech Bks) Chapter bibliographies. Dictionary of insecticides. Indexes.

"This book treats of insecticides from the practical point of view. . . The usefulness of the book is enhanced by a discussion of the legal requirements covering the manufacture and sale of insecticides and fungicides; interstate regulations for their transportation; and the listing of the official antidotes of the California State Board of Pharmacy. There is little theoretical discussion in de Ong's book." R. C. Roark
Chem & Eng N 27:636 F 28 '49 370w

"Recommended." Julian Sohon
+ Library J 74:1033 Jl '49 100w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:7 Ja '49

DE POLNAY, PETER. Into an old room; a memoir of Edward FitzGerald. 305p $3 Creative age
B or 92 FitzGerald, Edward 49-8345

A rambling memoir of Edward FitzGerald, the translator of the Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyām. In 1946 the author went to live in Boulge Hall, the FitzGerald home, and while there he attempted to piece together a picture of FitzGerald from all available local sources. Bibliography. No index.

Booklist 45:312 My 15 '49

"The study is a hybrid form of scholarship more closely related to the familiar or reminiscent essay than to the tightly organized traditional biography. The obvious pitfall of this manner of approach is the temptation of the author to intrude upon his material; Mr. de Polnay, in his twentieth-century enthusiasm, too often bursts in upon what might otherwise be an authentic nineteenth-century atmosphere." C. T. Houpt
Christian Science Monitor p18 Ap 16 '49 550w

"This book, rambling, personal, but not without charm, grows in interest as FitzGerald gradually comes to dominate the narrative. It should be placed in all the larger library collections of English literature." G. D. McDonald
+ Library J 74:491 Mr 15 '49 80w

"For all his efforts Mr. de Polnay produces answers which are not only dusty but unconvincing. Seeking explanations of FitzGerald's eccentricity, he has ignored the most obvious one—that eccentricity was the badge of FitzGerald's time and class. . . Henry Adams recorded of FitzGerald's generation . . . 'Eccentricity was so general as to become hereditary distinction.' FitzGerald was a gentleman born, and the possessor of an independent income; as such, he could afford to do as he liked, and he did it. Genius apart, he was about as mysterious as the Albert Memorial. More irritating than his theorizing is Mr. de Polnay's constant importation of himself into his narrative." Delancey Ferguson
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 S 11 '49 1050w

DE POLNAY, PETER—Continued

"As readers of his three novels might expect, de Polnay's FitzGerald is interesting and human. Whether he is the real FitzGerald, readers and scholars can decide for themselves. I do not believe that they can prove that de Polnay is wrong, but then neither can he prove that he is right. He is rather contemptuous of 'scholarship' . . . but he, just as surely as the scholars, is trying to tuck FitzGerald neatly in a pigeonhole. FitzGerald alive refused to follow any expected pattern. I think that in spite of de Polnay's efforts the ghost is equally intransigent." Charles Weir
N Y Times p7 Ap 17 '49 550w

"It is a smooth-running literary exercise, which brings the old gentleman to life in perceptive flashes. . . It is all very pleasant but probably not very memorable."
+ — New Yorker 25:110 Ap 30 '49 140w

Reviewed by Carlos Baker
Sat R of Lit 32:27 Ap 30 '49 800w

DE POLNAY, PETER. Out of the square. 375p $3 Creative age
49-11326

A story of life in a Florentine square shortly after the end of World war II. It concerns chiefly the fortunes of two beggars, Mario, the boy, and Giovanna, the strange, innocent girl whose talk of angels worked a miracle in the lives and hearts of the callous and wealthy.

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p26 N 13 '49 320w

"Out of the Square is Mr. De Polnay's fourth novel in as many years and shows evidence of haste. Sometimes the idiom is curiously inappropriate. . . Despite these flaws the author deserves credit for attempting a difficult religious theme and he does succeed, to some extent, in capturing the low-life aspects of a European tourist city. He has a restrained, detached way of saying things and is capable of gentle social satire." J. J. Wey
+ — Commonweal 51:138 N 4 '49 420w

"Perhaps too modulated for the general reader, but a discerning, appealing portrayal."
Kirkus 17:517 S 15 '49 180w

"De Polnay's strength is characterization and this sustains plot, which although arresting, sometimes moves slowly across the large canvas upon which it is spread. Recommended." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 74:1460 O 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by David Tilden
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p30 N 13 '49 550w

"One is inclined to disregard the story's formal pattern and move instead along with the individual characters. The author develops them into believable, unhappy people and then, in a short burst of plot, tries to make the reader forget their life-long—or book-long—conduct. It is hard to have the last seventy-five pages miraculously overturn the first 300, since the same author is responsible for all." Herbert Mitgang
+ — N Y Times p50 O 30 '49 270w
New Yorker 25:150 N 12 '49 70w

Reviewed by Robert Pick
Sat R of Lit 33:33 Ja 7 '50 270w

DERLETH, AUGUST WILLIAM, ed. Other side of the moon; with an introduction. 461p $3.75 Pelegrini & Cudahy

Short stories—Collections 49-2147

"The stories in the present collection have been chosen to serve as supplementary reading after Strange Ports of Call [Book Review Digest 1948]. They are designed . . . to illustrate the most recent developments in the field [of science fiction]." (Introd) There is one short play: The appearance of man, by J. D. Beresford. The stories are: The star, by H. G. Wells; The thing on Outer Shoal, by P. S. Miller; The strange drug of Dr. Caber, by Lord Dunsany; The world of Wulkins, by F. B. Long; The city of the Singing Flame, by C. A. Smith; Beyond the wall of sleep, by H. P. Lovecraft; The devil of East Lupton, by Murray Leinster; Conquerors' isle, by Nelson Bond; Something from above, by Donald Wandrei; Pillar of fire, by Ray Bradbury; The monster, by Gerald Kersh; Symbiosis, by W. F. Jenkins; The cure, by Lewis Padgett; Vault of the beast, by A. E. Van Vogt; The earth men, by Ray Bradbury; Original sin, by S. F. Wright; Spiro, by E. F. Russell; Memorial, by Theodore Sturgeon; Resurrection, by A. E. Van Vogt.

Booklist 45:313 My 15 '49

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
Chicago Sun Je 3 '49 130w
Kirkus 17:116 Mr 1 '49 130w
Library J 74:1558 O 15 '49 20w

"Mr. Derleth has put together a book that is entertaining. It should find a ready market in the thousands of science-fiction addicts who have increased so marvelously since the end of the war." R. B. Gehman
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p60 S 25 '49 380w

"This work, considering its wild lack of limitations, is ingenious and often literate fiction."
+ New Yorker 25:116 My 21 '49 130w

DE ROOVER, RAYMOND ADRIEN. The Medici bank; its organization, management, operations and decline. 98p il $4 N.Y. univ. press

332.1 Banks and banking—Florence 48-7478

"This book gives a brief account of the Medici Bank and its activities. Part I deals with the structural organization and management of the bank, and includes chapters describing the Florentine banking system, and the management of those industrial establishments in Florence that were controlled and operated by the bank's management. Part II deals with the financial and commercial operations of the bank and with the industrial interests controlled by it. Three of the five chapters are titled The Alum Cartel; The Sources of Invested Funds; and The Causes of the Decline. Following the main text is a series of nine appendices." U S Quarterly Bkl

Reviewed by R. S. Smith
J Pol Econ 57:270 Je '49 800w

"An excellent contribution to the early history of an important institution—the modern bank." Julian Sohon
+ Library J 74:551 Ap 1 '49 80w

"Well-written and scholarly. . . The study is based mainly on the records of the bank, and it is remarkable that so much detail has been elicited from them. Although necessarily technical in many places, the book should be interesting to the layman as well as to the professional economist and banker."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:444 D '48 160w

DE ROOVER, RAYMOND ADRIEN. Money, banking and credit in mediaeval Bruges; Italian merchant-bankers, Lombards and money-changers; a study in the origins of banking. 420p il $8.75; to members $7 Mediaeval acad.

332.1 Banks and banking—Bruges

"From the business records of Collard de Marke and Guillaume Ruyelle at Bruges and from subsidiary documents, de Roover has drawn a surprisingly circumstantial picture of the monetary aspects of business in Bruges through the second half of the fourteenth century and parts of the fifteenth. The work is divided into three parts, the first of which concerns the Italian merchant-bankers whose experience and acumen was such that 'foreign trade in Western Europe became virtually an Italian monopoly.' The second section is devoted to the Lombards or 'Cahorsins' who were engaged in a rather large-scale pawn-brokerage business. And, third, there were the money-changers engaged not merely in manual exchange but also in local exchange more or less as it existed in the United States before the introduction of the Federal Reserve System as well as in foreign exchange." J Pol Econ

"A noteworthy synthesis of financial history in an area where capitalistic institutions were relatively mature in the fourteenth century." R. S. Smith

+ Am Econ R 39:771 Je '49 800w

"Such a job is a supreme challenge to the industry, imagination, ingenuity, and critical skepticism of any scholar; but from that challenge Professor de Roover has emerged with flying colors and much rich booty. . . Needless to say the Mediaeval Academy has given this masterly study the setting it deserves, even to the ten delightful reproductions of old maps, pictures, and photographs of the kind of document that was used." Herbert Heaton

+ Ann Am Acad 263:230 My '49 420w

"Criticism by a reviewer of de Roover's historical narrative is extremely difficult because quite properly his story is closely bound to the documents he uses. He, moreover, has developed a judicious mixture of constructive imagination and historical caution in the use of this information. Despite the difficulties of reconstructing a business picture with any accuracy of detail at such a distance in time de Roover has done a highly commendable job." B. W. Dempsey

+ J Pol Econ 57:357 Ag '49 600w

"Carefully documented, this scholarly study is well organized and well written. Its sixteen chapters contain a wealth of information which should be of great interest to all students of money and banking as well as to students of medieval social organization."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:192 Je '49 260w

DESMOND, MRS ALICE (CURTIS). The talking tree; il. by Ralph Ray. 177p $2.50 Macmillan

49-10434

A story of the adventures of an Alaskan Indian boy who must obtain and carve a special totem pole in order to succeed his uncle as chief of the clan. For grades 7-9.

Booklist 46:68 O 15 '49

"Rich in native customs, here is an exciting adventure tale about a tree that talks and a plucky boy who earns a new name."

+ Bookmark 9:57 D '49 60w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p6 O 27 '49 230w

"It is a swift-moving story in an unusual setting and ends happily." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:537 N '49 120w

"A book that will rate a long life."

+ Kirkus 17:326 Jl 1 '49 150w

"Recommended especially for junior high school age." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 74:1465 O 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 13 '49 140w

"Around the totem pole, fast-vanishing symbol of family pride among the Indians of the Pacific Northwest, Mrs. Desmond has built an exciting story which includes some fascinating Indian lore." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p20 Ja 29 '50 180w

Reviewed by Eleanor Breed

San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 13 '49 80w

"A story that moves rapidly and is, like all good adventure stories, a record of growth. Through various events in which fascinating information on Indian lore is given the young Indian comes to appreciate the rich heritage of his race. We feel sure that he will make the Tlingit tribe a good chief." B. W. S.

+ Sat R of Lit 32:42 N 12 '49 150w

Springf'd Republican p8C O 30 '49 60w

Wis Lib Bul p12 N '49

DESSAUER, FREDERICK E. Stability. 273p $3.50 Macmillan

320.1 Political science 49-9292

"Thoughtful and comprehensive survey of the various theories and expedients by which mankind has maintained its precarious balance on the political and economic tight-rope of life, ranging from Aristotle through the monarchic state, Judaism, the Catholic Church, cartels, the New Deal, Marxism and Leninism. Stability need not be reactionary; it is merely 'the awareness of limits.'" (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by A. G. Huegli

Am Pol Sci R 43:1078 O '49 300w

Booklist 46:7 S 1 '49

"A book for only the thoughtful, intellectual humanitarian, or perhaps even for the conservative who will be able to find solace in seeing how stability can be linked with progress."

+ Kirkus 17:172 Mr 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 74:814 My 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by S. H. Beer

N Y Times p28 Ag 28 '49 650w

DEUCHER, SYBIL. Young Brahms; il. by Edward and Stephani Godwin. 152p $2.75 Dutton

B or 92 Brahms, Johannes—Juvenile literature 49-10486

"A biography of Johannes Brahms from his childhood to his sixteenth year when he had already earned himself the reputation of a gifted composer and musician. Selections of music are included in the text." Cleveland Open Shelf

---

Booklist 46:68 O 15 '49

"A well-written biography."

+ Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '49

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 25:538 N '49 80w

"A good story and of course of particular interest and value for young musicians."

+ Kirkus 17:470 S 1 '49 120w

"There is a technique for writing good biography for children, but unfortunately Miss Deucher has not yet discovered it. I don't mean to imply that she errs in her facts, because I am sure she does not, no matter how heavily she may embroider them. I do mean that in her attempt to produce a palatable dish she has added far too much sugar." Virginia Cunningham

Music Lib Assn Notes 7:122 D '49 180w

Reviewed by N. B. Baker

N Y Times p26 N 27 '49 120w

"Though the style is a trifle ecstatic, children who have been exposed to music will find this story of Brahms' early struggles both solid and thrilling."

+ New Yorker 25:185 D 3 '49 70w

"The general tone of the book is as delightful as the endpapers and charming illustrations by the Godwins. Some of the compositions of Brahms are included in the text—two waltzes and several songs with accompaniment."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 N 13 '49 200w

DEUTSCH, ALBERT. Mentally ill in America; a history of their care and treatment from colonial times. 2d ed rev & enl 555p il $5.50 Columbia univ. press

362.2 Insane—Care and treatment 49-7527

"Enlarged by 25 pages to cover developments since the first edition [Book Review Digest 1937] particularly those during and since the war." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

"While its great length and detail make the book somewhat ill-adapted for use as a sociology text, its usefulness as supplementary reading in courses on social maladjustment and social psychiatry is obvious. Students of social work and welfare should likewise find value in the materials which Deutsch has skillfully assembled."

+ Am Soc R 14:569 Ag '49 150w

Booklist 45:282 Ap 15 '49

DEUTSCH, ALBERT—Continued

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 Ap 24 '49 30w

School & Society 69:102 F 5 '49 60w

DEUTSCH, ALBERT. Shame of the states. 188p il $3 Harcourt

362.2 Mental diseases—Hospitals 48-9247

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"This book should be required reading in our schools and colleges. Also, every public spirited legislator would more clearly see the urgent need to direct public funds into the field of preventive mental health—if he took time to learn the shocking facts, briefly outlined in this small, well written volume." S. B. Wortis

+ Am J Pub Health 39:1053 Ag '49 270w

"The author, who has much experience as a reporter in this field, and who can be called a lay expert, is to be congratulated. I believe he is accurate. The photographs are not faked. . . Let us hope the book will be widely read." J. A. Kindwall

+ Ann Am Acad 262:236 Mr '49 600w

"Mr. Deutsch makes it clear that the blame for the sorry plight of mental patients in the United States rests with us, the easygoing, well-intentioned citizens who allow state legislatures to neglect these unfortunates, and he earnestly tries to enlist us in a crusade for better hospitals. It is to be hoped that 'The Shame of the States' will be as effective as were his earlier reports on veterans' hospitals." J. H. Spingarn

+ Nation 168:282 Mr 5 '49 800w

"Introductory, and somewhat journalistic in tone, the book is nevertheless a valuable contribution to a complex subject."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 5:106 Mr '49 140w

DEUTSCHER, ISAAC. Stalin, a political biography. 600p il $5 Oxford

B or 92 Stalin, Iosif 49-9604

The author of this "political biography" has been a specialist in Russian affairs since 1926. "Born near Cracow in 1907, he lived in Poland until 1939, when he went to London as a correspondent for Polish newspapers. In Warsaw he was active as a literary critic, economist, and political publicist and had the opportunity to travel in Russia and in the Ukraine. Mr. Deutscher has been a member of the editorial staff of The Economist since 1942. . . From 1942 through 1946 he was also on the staff of the Observer as a special writer on diplomatic affairs and roving correspondent in Europe." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

"This lucid, massive, and highly readable book is bound to appeal to a wide audience. . . In any book on the complex theme of Russia, some gaps or errors are perhaps unavoidable. The treatment accorded some topics, the Constituent Assembly or the Communization of Eastern Europe, for example, appears one-sided. . . There never has been, and there is not yet, any habeas corpus in the U.S.S.R., and the new positivism on law is not intended as a limitation on the powers of the highest rulers. These weak spots do not, however, detract from the general excellence of the book. Students of government in particular will find it very stimulating and profitable reading." Julian Towster

+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:1290 D '49 700w

Booklist 46:1; 32 S 1 '49; S 15 '49

Bookmark 9:26 N '49 60w

"Deutscher has mastered his source materials, in Russian and in other languages. He writes well and often excitingly. He has historical perspective, psychological in sight, and a talent for shrewd evaluation. All in all, this is the most readable, fair, informative, and generally useful of all the biographies of Stalin thus far published." F. L. Schuman

+ Chicago Sun S 29 '49 550w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko

Christian Science Monitor p14 O 8 '49 950w

Reviewed by Paul Kiniery

Commonweal 50:537 S 9 '49 800w

"The author is interested primarily in Stalin's part in the Russian revolution and his leadership since, both in national and world affairs. The book can also serve as a textbook on Soviet history of the period."

Current Hist 17:97 Ag '49 70w

Kirkus 17:377 Jl 15 '49 460w

"Author has obviously done a thorough research job, which with his objective style of presentation, has resulted in a splendid book. Essential to all libraries." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 74:1194 S 1 '49 130w

"It is difficult to give brief expression to the criticisms that Mr. Deutscher's book calls for without seeming to do an injustice to his achievement. . . To put it at its bluntest, the inadequacies of the book fall under two heads. One is perhaps inevitable. The very fact that Mr. Deutscher chronicles, the transformation of revolutionary Russia into a totalitarian State, has cut off all possible sources for the inside political history of the regime after the date at which the process becomes complete. . . The other main stumbling-block is Mr. Deutscher's very objectivity. He can write of the Russian Revolution objectively because on the whole he is 'for' rather than 'against.' . . For those who think in personal and moral terms this will be a rather cruel book." Max Beloff

+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Je 14 '49 700w

"A first-rate reporter's job, it corrects many of the distortions which pro- and anti-Stalinists continually produce and is for this reason alone of great value. It prepares the ground for productive thinking and should help those innumerable people everywhere who are groping toward a new social philosophy." Franz Hoellering

+ Nation 169:328 O 1 '49 1150w

"Mr. Deutscher has written an admirable book, a serious book which holds one's attention all the time for nearly 600 pages. . . And finally what crowns Mr. Deutscher's work is his intellectual balance. He has his own opinions and he never hesitates to state them; but if there are facts which tell against them, he states those too, and he never pretends to more knowledge or more certainty than he possesses. The book will, no doubt, be put upon the Communist Index, but the more one reads it, the more confidence one gets in its author's historical impartiality." Leonard Woolf

+ New Statesman & Nation 38:46 Jl 9 '49 1250w

"This book is highly valuable for its patient and frequently illuminating analysis of the first eight volumes of Stalin's 'Collected Works' but contains too much skillful special pleading to be safely used by the lay reader without a simultaneous reading of Souvarine's 'Stalin' and the official 'Stalin' of the Marx-Engels-Lenin Institute. . . I cannot close this review without paying tribute to Mr. Deutscher's remarkable command of the English language, which is not his native tongue. It is by any test stylistically a skillful and well written work." B. D. Wolfe

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 30 '49 1600w

"He is careful to call it a political biography. He is concerned, above all, with establishing the facts of Stalin's actions; he has tried, with quite astonishing success, to build up the portrait of a ruler by tracing and assembling the outward events of his life; but it remains the portrait of a ruler, not of a man. Thus, the book is less than a political biography, since its central figure is a mask; but in another sense it is more than that—it is the story of an epoch built round the mask of Comrade X, who, while appearing to dominate the epoch, was yet made by it." Edward Crankshaw

+ — N Y Times p1 O 2 '49 850w

"A fascinating treatment of what is, when you come right down to it, the success story of the twentieth century."

+ New Yorker 25:88 O 1 '49 200w

Reviewed by R. G. Colodny

San Francisco Chronicle p19 O 2 '49 800w

Reviewed by Martin Ebon

Sat R of Lit 32:10 O 1 '49 1100w

"The querulous reader might notice some curious omissions, some minor errors of fact, and some confusion in the dating of events between the revolution and the reform of the calendar. But these are slight defects in a most lucid, scholarly and readable work. Mr. Deutscher has maintained an admirable balance, organising his complex material with mastery and appreciation, and placing in their historical perspective those ambiguities of character and action which made Stalin's 'anti-Bolshevik critics accuse him of plotting for world revolution, while his Bolshevik critics charged him with plotting against it.'" Jane Degras
+ Spec 182:826 Je 17 '49 1250w

"A careful study of Mr. Deutscher's important book will convince most readers that Stalin still adheres to his faith, voiced three decades ago, and does not desire, as Mr. Deutscher seems to hope, a peaceful co-existence of the forces of light and human happiness, embodied in him, and those of utter darkness and human degradation represented by the West, though, very much contre coeur, he may have to accept such a co-existence as he accepted it in the Twenties and Thirties." Hans Kohn
Survey 85:684 D '49 1700w

Time 54:110 O 10 '49 750w

"Every biography of Stalin is necessarily a 'political biography'; for Stalin is a politician to his fingertips, and there is no other capacity in which either contemporaries or posterity are likely to interest themselves in him. What Mr. Deutscher means by giving his new biography of Stalin this sub-title is, perhaps, not so much that he has wasted less time than the hagiographers of Moscow or than hostile biographers like Souvarine and Trotsky on more or less mythical episodes, creditable or discreditable, of Stalin's youth and personal life, but rather that he intends his book as an analysis of his hero's political achievement. This is in fact what it is; and the intention has been brilliantly executed."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p373 Je 10 '49 5000w

Reviewed by David Shub
Yale R n s 39:155 autumn '49 850w

DEVENISH, DOROTHY. Wiltshire country home; a study of Little Durnford; introd. by Edith Olivier [Eng title: Wiltshire home]. 115p il $3.75 Batsford

914.231 Country life. England—Social life and customs [49-7544]

Description of life on an English country estate as the author knew it in the days of her childhood. The house was situated in Wiltshire not far from Salisbury. The quiet, gracious way of living has largely disappeared now, under the rigors of war and its aftermath. Illustrated with many photographs.

Booklist 45:279 Ap 15 '49

"She is at her best writing about the servants and their doings. . . There is not in her book the evocative-nostalgic quality—to combine two reviewers' clichés—that one finds in such childhood accounts as Elizabeth Bowen's. It is a somewhat pedestrian literary style that is at times more mannered than alive. Nevertheless, the Works and Days life of Durnford, of the farms, the keepers and the shepherds, of the recurring springs and harvests, forms a solid pattern." Francis Russell
+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 9 '49 480w

"It is an agreeable book, written in cool, agreeable English, like the Constable light over the water-meadows. And it is something more than that—the testimony of one who can see beyond the losses suffered by her particular class to the life of the countryside as a whole, which is changing, but assuredly not dying."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p54 Ja 22 '49 650w

DEWAR, MICHAEL JAMES STEUART. Electronic theory of organic chemistry. 324p $7.50 Oxford

547 Chemistry, Organic. Chemistry, Physical and theoretical 49-8789

"The stated purpose of Dewar in this book is 'to give as complete an account as possible of organic chemistry in the light of modern quantum theory, covering all known types of electronic processes and considering, by way of example, all the main organic reactions.'" Chem & Eng N

"On the advanced level in a field such as theoretical organic chemistry, books should be written by only two classes of authors—mature scholars bent on accuracy and young enthusiasts with fresh viewpoints. The claims of Dr. Dewar to a hearing are under the second classification. In a clearly and vigorously written book, he sweeps across theoretical organic chemistry with a point of view which, while by no means evolutionary, is fresh enough to be stimulating. . . The book shows broad interest in fundamentals and an unusual feeling for reaction mechanisms. However, the problems are often not simple and the facts are not treated in as careful a manner as is usually necessary for reliable conclusions to be reached." P. D. Bartlett
+ — Am Chem Soc J 71:3859 N '49 500w

"The reviewer was dismayed at the considerable evidence of carelessness and even irresponsibility in preparation of the book. . . Sir Robert Robinson, in the foreword, recommends the book to students as the best available account of modern theory of the mechanism of the reactions of carbon compounds. This reviewer is somewhat worried as to its effect on the student. Dewar writes with confidence and finality on debatable questions and is inclined to utter generalizations and propose mechanisms for reactions which have not been put to any tests. . . The book deserves close reading by all active in the field and many other organic chemists. It contains much not found elsewhere in book form and should stimulate research." Saul Winstein
Chem & Eng N 27:3440 N 14 '49 500w

DEWEY, JOHN. Wit and wisdom; ed, with an introd. by A. H. Johnson. 111p $2 Beacon press

191.9

Over 270 excerpts, many of them not more than a sentence in length, culled from the writings of John Dewey. The book contains a biographical sketch of Dewey, with an estimate of his works, by the editor.

Christian Century 67:18 Ja 4 '50 140w

Reviewed by A. H. Larrabee
Sat R of Lit 32:44 O 22 '49 270w

DEWEY, JOHN, and BENTLEY, ARTHUR FISHER. Knowing and the known. 334p $4 Beacon press

121 Knowledge, Theory of 49-48030

"Mr. Dewey's latest book, published on his ninetieth birthday, is a series of studies in epistemology, the theory of knowledge, written in collaboration with Arthur Bentley and reprinted from various philosophical journals. . . The authors' special butts are such semanticists as Rudolf Carnap and Charles W. Morris, whom they find full of 'confusions' and 'linguistic disease,' and their praise is mainly reserved for Dewey's old hero Charles Sanders Peirce and the Gestalt psychologist Max Wertheimer." (New Yorker) Index.

"The work is both technical and difficult, but it should reward anyone willing to engage in the struggle."
+ New Yorker 25:115 O 29 '49 180w

Reviewed by H. A. Larrabee
Sat R of Lit 32:15 O 22 '49 800w
School & Society 70:336 N 19 '49 30w

DE WOHL, LOUIS. Throne of the world [Eng title: Attila]. 288p $3 Lippincott

Attila—Fiction 49-1262

Historical novel depicting the decline of the Roman Empire during the years 425 to 452. Attila, leader of the Huns, is the central male character, and his love affair with the Roman Princess Honoria, daughter of the Empress Placidia, provides the motivation for the invasion of the Western Empire by Attila.

"On the whole this dramatic story gives a substantially true picture of a disintegrating empire; of crafty, ferocious hordes attempting, but not until later effecting, its destruction; and of the Church's role in temporarily staving off disaster and in permanently saving for posterity much that was priceless in the heritage from old Rome." Joseph McSorley
Cath World 168:492 Mr '49 270w

"There is a temptation to believe that the author wrote with a tongue-in-cheek attitude, but it is all too obvious that he was serious. It is a pity. A little humor, a touch of irony, and Throne of the World could have been a delightful parody on the current fad for dull novels about an exciting era." E. A. Cooper
Commonweal 49:549 Mr 11 '49 350w

Library J 74:1556 O 15 '49 50w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset
Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 28 '49 90w

Reviewed by Rayner Heppenstall
New Statesman & Nation 38:705 D 10 '49 260w

"Readers addicted to highly romanticized versions of history will probably be entertained. 'Throne of the World' fuses sex, battle, religion, Roman decadence and Asiatic savagery to produce a kind of gory fairy-tale, an adult comic-book. Excepted from this label are Mr. de Wohl's revivifications of the greedy and destructive Hunnish swarms astride their long-maned horses and in their spare, tented villages. But the heavy, intrigue-ridden love interest between the untamed Attila (variously described as a lizard, an unwieldy bird, thunder and molten iron) and the Empress' passionate daughter Honoria, has virtually no relation to known fact." Myles Green
N Y Times p22 F 20 '49 290w

"This present book is Mr. De Wohl's second in that field, and I think it demonstrates that he is one of its most accomplished practitioners; for he has many qualities beyond a facile romanticism. He wields, for one thing, a very capable scholarship that gives backbone to his work; and for another, he has a flair for the creation of tension upon any desired scale. I must bear witness to having been utterly engrossed in his dynamic novel of fifth-century Rome, even while I was quite aware that it had not the intellectual integrity of the Roman novels of Robert Graves." N. L. Rothman
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:26 Mr 19 '49 700w

"Mr. de Wohl's novel, set in the fifth century A.D., requires a larger canvas than he has chosen to work on. . . Mr. de Wohl comes too close to his individual characters to make the reader conscious of the scene as a whole. . . [He] treats Asia perfunctorily, but his picture of the West is remarkable for the shrewdness with which Pope Leo I is drawn. Pope Leo defends Christian doctrine in passages of admirable vigour and conciseness, and these, more than anything else in the novel, throw light on what was happening in Europe at that time."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p69 Ja 29 '49 280w

DICKENS, SIR GERALD CHARLES. Bombing and strategy; the fallacy of total war. 90p $1.75 Macmillan

358.4 Strategy. World war, 1939-1945 [48-15652]

"Admiral Dickens takes the position that an air force is not even the military answer to security. What he presents is an analysis of bombing and strategy from the British viewpoint, based upon Britain's experience in World War II; but the doctrine of warfare is the same everywhere, and the lessons of World War II, while sharper to the British, can remain no less meaningful to Americans. The cardinal rule of war, runs the admiral's theme, is to destroy the enemy's primary weapon, whatever it is—an army, a fleet, or a field of rocket-launching platforms. With the enemy's weapon blunted, supplementary warfare can then be carried on—with effect—through strategic bombing attacks on industrial-civilian objectives. But if the enemy's armed forces are not first checked, his offensive effort thus blunted, strategic attacks behind the lines will not be decisive ones." Christian Science Monitor

"While this book was written as a military study, it is, by implication, more than that. Total war is a fallacy, the author states in his subtitle. But this sane and humane admiral has said something that goes beyond that. He has made a strong case for those who hold that not total war but war itself is, in the final analysis, the fallacy." Roland Sawyer
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 31 '49 550w

Reviewed by H. W. Baldwin
N Y Times p1 Jl 3 '49 650w

"Admiral Dickens is moved to challenge, and refute, the legend—to state it at its briefest—that 'bombing won the war'; for it seems that there is danger of that legend being accepted to-day. . . The late Admiral Sir Herbert Richmond, just before his death, contributed a brief foreword to Sir Gerald Dickens's book, in which he expressed the opinion that the author had proved his case; and indeed the evidence adduced from German and other sources available since the war is impressive. The subject is of grave importance; for on the judgments formed on these questions depends the shape of the national defence structure of the future."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p60 Ja 31 '48 900w

DICKEY, ROLAND FRANCIS. New Mexico village arts; drawings by Lloyd Lózes Goff. 266p $7 Univ. of N.Mex. press

745 Arts and crafts. Folk art 49-9212

"The author covers the folk arts of New Mexico, their history, their development, their variations, the ultimate shouldering aside of folk styles for the cheap and gaudy manufactured article of the Age of Industrialization, and finally the efforts made to retain at least some of the handcrafts—efforts stimulated by the fiery zeal of people like Frank Applegate, Mary Austin and others." (San Francisco Chronicle) Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:371 Jl 1 '49

"A beautiful book which will prove valuable in its particular field."
+ Kirkus 17:292 Je 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1324 S 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by Lincoln Kirstein
New Repub 121:27 D 12 '49 50w

"Honestly done and handsomely mounted book. . . Mr. Dickey has not only presented a warm and sensible account of New Mexico's unique arts and cultures but into the accounting has woven a highly acceptable ethnic and political history of the state itself." P. P. Kennedy
+ N Y Times p18 Jl 31 '49 420w

New Yorker 25:115 S 17 '49 100w

"The point about this whole study, really, is that it is not done by some notebooky outside observer taking a rapid look at New Mexico in order to 'do' a book or write a thesis. It's done from the inside out, and by a man who has both the knowledge and the feel for what he's doing. The scholar will find it authentic; the general reader who has any interest in the subject will find it thoroughly readable and astonishingly informative. And anyone who likes a beautiful job of book design and bookmaking will cherish the volume for the drawings and decorations by Lloyd Lozes Goff and for the creative thinking that went into the execution of the entire project." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 13 '49 1050w

DICKSON, CARTER, pseud. See Carr, J. D.

DICKSON, HELEN (MRS HELEN [CAMPBELL] DICKSON REYNOLDS) (DICKSON REYNOLDS, pseud). Fire patrol. 192p $2 Nelson 49-9658

"When Barry Elwell and his pal, Bruce Todd, junior forest wardens, get summer jobs in a forester's camp they pick up some highly valuable knowledge and Barry has a string of adventures with bears, cougars and cheap sportsmen. The climax is a terrific forest fire which the boys help conquer." N Y Times

"An exciting description of one of the greatest forest fires in the Northwest, as well as many adventures with wild animals, make this book absorbing reading for older boys." B. J. Thompson
+ Cath World 170:211 D '49 60w

+ Kirkus 17:327 Jl 1 '49 140w

"The story of the forest fire seems real and is exciting and impressive. Recommended for ages 12-16." F. W. Butler
+ Library J 74:1107 Ag '49 70w

"The story contains a great deal of authentic and somewhat unusual information about the Junior Fire Warden Service of the Northwest, which deserves to be better known. There is also much first-hand lore that makes pleasant reading and exactly fits the nature of the book. It is well written, the characters are naturally developed and the situations, while sufficiently exciting, are not overdone." M. P. Allen
+ N Y Times p22 Ag 7 '49 140w

DICKSON, MRS MARGUERITE (STOCKMAN). Turn in the road. 224p $2.50 Nelson 49-10538

Story of the year which meant a turn in the road for the Worthington family. Beginning with the move from Shanty Row and pushed along by the hopes and energy of seventeen-year old Isabel, the family comes up out of the depths they had fallen into, to take their rightful place as respected members of their Maine community.

Booklist 46:49 O 1 '49

"Mrs. Dickson has written a plausible and excellent story." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:529 N '49 100w

"Girls like stories of human relationships, and this has all the prime ingredients, skillfully blended. It has an adult look about it too."
+ Kirkus 17:512 S 15 '49 130w

"This is one of the best—full of the heart-warming affection of a large family, a plausible victory for Isabel, and a very nice picture of a small town library and what it can mean to young people." Esther Gorey
+ Library J 74:1550 O 15 '49 100w

"Isabel is very likable, and the tale holds one's interest without any great excitement, because of the reality of her daily problems. The treatment of 'family pride' is excellent and the tone throughout unusually sane and thoughtful. Probably it will appeal to girls of thirteen rather than to those of the age of the heroine." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 13 '49 230w

"Once again, Mrs. Dickson has proved that she knows what teen-aged girls like to read, for she has written another story of modern young people which gives credit to their understanding, their intelligence, initiative and capabilities." V. H. Mathews
+ N Y Times p29 N 13 '49 180w

DICKSON, SAMUEL. San Francisco kaleidoscope [il. by David Hendrickson]. 293p $3.50 Stanford univ. press

979.461 San Francisco—History. San Francisco—Biography 49-11966

Human interest stories about people who have been connected in some way with San Francisco, rewritten from the scripts of the author's radio program "This is your Home." Partial contents: Henry Meiggs; Lord George Gordon; Tom Maguire; Stephen J. Field; Catharine Hayes; Madame Anna Bishop; Bummer and Lazarus; Asbury Harpending; The great diamond hoax; The cable cars; Isadora Duncan; Night life; Tivoli opera house; Frank Norris. Index.

"Most of them are good stories told by a man who loves his city. It is unfortunate that there are also occasional stylistic touches to remind one that they have been rewritten from the author's radio program." Allen Taylor
+ — N Y Times p13 D 25 '49 110w

"This is a good popular history in its way and easy and pleasant reading." Macalister Jones
+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 D 25 '49 420w

DIEKE, GERHARD HEINRICH, and DUNCAN, ALBERT BENJAMIN FORD. Spectroscopic properties of uranium compounds. 290p il $2.75 McGraw

535.84 Uranium. Spectrum analysis
49-6248

"This volume is one of a series of some 60 volumes which are to be issued through the Atomic Energy Commission on declassified technical reports. It presents a digest of the works of Dieke and Duncan and others associated with them in the Manhattan Project together with a thorough literature survey, on the subject of absorption and fluorescence spectra of uranium compounds." (Chem & Eng N) Bibliography. Indexes.

"The interpretation of data and assignment of classifications are not too clearly or completely given. The accuracy of wave-number values of six significant figures for weak fluorescent or absorption lines is open to question. There is an admitted lack of sufficient data to permit an acceptable interpretation of the spectra of uranium salts." W. R. Brode
Chem & Eng N 27:3518 N 21 '49 240w

"It is a very technical book, but an essential one for physicists and chemists who are doing research in the uranium compounds, particularly those researchers who are employing spectroscopy." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 74:1606 O 15 '49 60w

DIES, EDWARD JEROME. Titans of the soil; great builders of agriculture. 213p il $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press

926.3 Agriculture—Biography 49-8546

Brief biographical sketches of seventeen American statesmen, scientists, inventors, and practical farmers who have made contributions to American agriculture. Contents: Food and freedom; George Washington, farmer of Mount Vernon; Thomas Jefferson, farmer of Monticello; Elkanah Watson, father of state fairs; Eli Whitney, immortal mechanical genius; Henry L. Ellsworth, soldier of the land; Edmund Ruffin, father of soil chemistry; John Deere, he turned the prairies; Cyrus Hall McCormick, man with the reaper; Justin S. Morrill, he "lighted candles of wisdom"; Samuel W. Johnson, genius of the test tube; Wilbur Olin Atwater, master of nutrition; Seaman A. Knapp, schoolmaster of agriculture; Stephen Moulton Babcock, the jolly scientist; Theobald Smith, conqueror of Texas fever; Mark A. Carleton, wheat explorer; Harvey W. Wiley, apostle of pure food; George Harrison Shull, creator of hybrid corn; And these, too, served; Prelude to future. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by E. D. Ross
Am Hist R 55:226 O '49 400w

Booklist 45:391 Jl 15 '49

Commonweal 50:158 My 20 '49 130w

"An easy reference book for farm schools and libraries, useful in its concise presentation of its material."
+ Kirkus 17:220 Ap 15 '49 150w

DIES, E. J.—Continued

"Of some value in highlighting the advance of food production, but material in better form is readily available in other sources. Not recommended." J. E. Cross

— + Library J 74:733 My 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by H. S. Commager

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Ja 8 '50 650w

"This book is too short. I wouldn't know just how much longer it ought to be, but I feel that the author surely must have limited or cut certain of these sketches of American heroes of husbandry to a point where he himself bled inwardly; and there are points where even the reader suffers mildly, wanting more. . . I suspect that the author knew Mark Carleton as a friend, so what is said here is more heavily charged emotionally than most of the sketches in his book of heroes. But it brings to a peak, in my mind, what this book has to say, and says well, in these frantic times. Among Government servants, in particular, the most productive heroism is not always that of the military." Russell Lord

+ N Y Times p3 My 15 '49 700w

DIETERLEN, PIERRE, and RIST, CHARLES. Monetary problem of France; with a foreword by Antonin Basch; pub. for the Carnegie endowment for int. peace. 98p $2.50 King's crown press

332.4944 Money—France. Reconstruction (1939-)—France 48-9175

"A description of the monetary situation inherited by liberated France in 1944, and a critical analysis of the policies pursued since then. The authors, distinguished French economists with wide practical experience, have considerable fault to find with the monetary record of the Fourth Republic." (Foreign Affairs) Bibliography. No index.

Reviewed by M. A. Kriz

Am Econ R 39:787 Je '49 1250w

Current Hist 16:35 Ja '49 70w

Foreign Affairs 27:510 Ap '49 40w

"A somewhat sketchy review of the current monetary situation in France." C. R. Whittlesey

— J Pol Econ 57:355 Ag '49 110w

DIETZ, ALBERT GEORGE HENRY, ed. Engineering laminates. 797p il $10 Wiley

620.19 Building materials 49-8479

"Properties of materials formed by bonding two or more laminates of the same or different substances are discussed in twenty-two chapters in this book, each written by an authority on the subject. . . The first chapter presents the applied mechanics of laminates, including formulas for stress and strain in orthotropic materials based on a generalized form of Hooke's law. The second chapter covers the theory of adhesion, characteristics of the common types of adhesives and methods of applying, testing and curing. This is followed by two sets of chapters—one group devoted to laminates of essentially the same materials, such as wood or metals, and the second devoted to laminates of several different substances. The concluding chapter contains a description of methods of forming various laminates and sandwich materials." (Eng N) References at ends of some of the chapters. Index.

Booklist 45:369 Jl 1 '49

"The extreme variety of materials covered by this book is most impressive. . . Obviously, to obtain authoritative coverage of this broad range of subjects the editor has had to enlist the aid of many experts. The 22 chapters were written by 24 authors all of them well known in their respective fields. The editor has done an excellent job in welding these separate contributions into a unified presentation with the main emphasis on the engineering properties of the materials." G. M. Kline

+ Chem & Eng N 27:2224 Ag 1 '49 350w

Eng N 142:80 Je 9 '49 180w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:40 My '49

"Authoritative and comprehensive book. . . Although it is addressed primarily to the engineer or technically trained worker, the book will be useful also to the beginner and to the expert."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:280 Je '49 120w

DIETZ, LEW. Jeff White: young woodsman [il.] by Bruce Adams. 214p $2.50 Little 49-10188

"When Jeff White was 17 he forsook the city and went back to the Maine woods where he was born and where his father, a game warden, had met a mysterious death. There he found some real friends and some genuine enemies, one a killer bear and the other an outlaw." N Y Times

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 12 '50 240w

"Well-made book. Will be popular with teen-age boys." A. M. Wetherell

+ Library J 74:1334 S 15 '49 80w

"It is a good story, unusually well told. There is much information about the woods, the animals and the warden service, but none of it is forced or dry. . Every character is effectively handled and stands out as an individual." M. P. Allen

+ N Y Times p38 N 13 '49 110w

"It is not only a good story, but an informed guide to life in the North woods and to the 'still hunting' of deer." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:29 N 12 '49 50w

DILL, WILLIAM C. Statehood for Hawaii. 134p $2 Dorrance

342.969 Hawaiian Islands—Politics and government 49-11735

"Written from a legal and historical point of view [this book] attempts to determine whether or not Hawaii has met the requirements and qualifications for admission to statehood under the American political system. The author finds that there are three main criteria, namely economic, political and cultural. His thesis is that if the peoples of any territory subject to the control of the United States meet these requirements, it is essential to the maintenance of our concepts of justice and law that these people be granted equal rights with the citizens of the states, or be freed from American domination to pursue their own destiny." (Springf'd Republican) No index.

"Mr. Dill's book is well documented and convincing except that he does not meet one argument of the opposition—namely, that if Hawaii, dominated by the 'Big Five' industrially, becomes a state the result will probably be to put two standpat conservatives in the United States Senate. Unfortunately the book bears evidences of hasty writing and careless editing." Hallett Abend

+ — Churchman 164:17 Ja 1 '50 230w

Springf'd Republican p9D D 4 '49 150w

DILLARD, DUDLEY D. Economics of John Maynard Keynes; the theory of a monetary economy. 364p $5; to schools $3.75 Prentice-Hall

330.1 Keynes, John Maynard. Economics 48-11097

"This book is an exposition of the economics of John Maynard Keynes. . . The present discussion . . . focuses on the forces which determine the volume of effective demand, an insufficiency of which leads to unemployment, and an excess of which causes inflation. The plan has been to follow the outline of the General Theory and to bring in at appropriate points the other aspects of Keynes' work which contribute to his fundamental position. Restatements and modifications made by Keynes in articles after 1936 have been incorporated into his general theory, with the last statement being taken as definitive. The chapter on war and postwar inflation is based mainly on Keynes' How to Pay for the War (1940). In the concluding chapter, an interpretation is given of the meaning and significance of Keynes' entire contribution to economic theory and policy." (Pref) Bibliographies. Index.

"Dudley Dillard, in his recent volume on Keynes, has pointed out in the preface that the General Theory of Employment, Interest and Money is not very intelligible to the undergraduate and general reader. It can safely be said that the author has remedied this lack of communication by producing a competent and thorough text for elementary students. It is particularly suitable for students because it avoids the major pitfalls and false problems that have plagued so many of the post-1936 discussions about Keynes' theories, especially those debates of literary economics." L. R. Klein

+ Am Econ R 39:1291 D '49 1450w

"It is, of course, an author's privilege to write the kind of book he wants. Because of this emphasis on policy, the book is probably easier to teach and to read than if it were written from the standpoint, say, of a critical appraisal of the Keynesian system. Given his purpose, Professor Dillard has done a superior job. Yet it is the privilege of the reviewer to wonder whether this emphasis on policy as against theory is not really defeating the aim of the book." W. F. Stolper

+ — Ann Am Acad 266:198 N '49 750w

Foreign Affairs 28:158 O '49 20w

"Professor Dillard's simplified restatement is well suited for an undergraduate course in aggregate economics with a strongly Keynesian slant and might even be recommended to an intelligent nonacademic reader who is curious concerning Keynes's economics and is willing to spend both time and mental effort in the attempt to satisfy his curiosity. The principal weakness for these uses is that the distinction between planned and realized savings is not made explicit, so that very few nonprofessional readers will be able to tell when the author is speaking of equality through definition and when of equality through an equilibration process." H. M. Oliver

+ — J Pol Econ 57:267 Je '49 460w

"The Economics of John Maynard Keynes will be valuable to students. Whether it will appeal to a wider audience is questionable because its tone is academic and the presentation is in somewhat too great detail for general consumption. From the point of view of the student, if not from that of the general reader, Dillard's book would have been improved if he had taken note of the more important criticisms of Keynes, even if only to refute them. Keynes's system, after all, was not quite perfect." Theodore Norman

+ — New Repub 121:24 Jl 11 '49 1400w

DILLON, DOROTHY RITA. New York triumvirate; a study of the legal and political careers of William Livingston, John Morin Scott [and] William Smith, jr. 217p $3.25 Columbia univ. press

974.7 Livingston, William. Scott, John Morin. Smith, William, 1728-1793. New York (colony) 49-7571

"William Livingston, William Smith, and John Morin Scott were lawyers of New York, whose vigorous and effective cooperation in public affairs during the years 1753-71 led their enemies to dub them a triumvirate. Miss Dillon's book illustrates the Whig stand on controversial issues of the era through the activities of these shrewd lawyers, ready penmen, and capable politicians." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by R. V. Harlow

Am Hist R 55:233 O '49 320w

"The latter part of her book suffers from a fault common to many recent biographies; it tends to become a general history with only occasional and not very detailed references to the acts and attitudes of its protagonists."

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:178 Je '49 320w

DILWORTH, ERNEST NEVIN. Unsentimental journey of Laurence Sterne. 115p $2.25 King's crown press

823 Sterne, Laurence 48-8593

Study of the works of Laurence Sterne, especially Tristram Shandy and Sentimental Journey, to determine the extent of Sterne's sentimentality. It is the author's conclusion that his work is really a very clever parody of the sentimental tradition. Bibliographical notes. No index.

Booklist 45:85 N 1 '48

"Mr. Dilworth's book, rather than 'encouraging a few timid sophisticates to read Sterne,' as he hoped, will rather, if taken seriously, drive intelligent readers away. In short, he has done nothing to advance us toward any kind of satisfying formulation of Sterne's literary achievement. That formulation can come only from the critic who is willing to treat the works as something other than haphazardly written autobiography." W. C. Booth

— Mod Philol 46:280 My '49 1650w

"Mr. Dilworth's Unsentimental Journey, though well informed and energetic, is in many ways a pernicious little book. . . He argues that a hypocritical public has conspired to neglect and misunderstand Sterne, that Sterne is a jester, that anyone who gets anything but a laugh from reading him is a dunce, that hitherto critics have missed half his jokes; and his own criticism goes little farther than repeating these statements over and over again. . Mr. Dilworth's point of view is so narrow that it is impossible to see what he has added to the appreciation of Sterne. Indeed, one can only suppose that anyone who has not read Sterne will be repulsed by the idea of a writer so esoteric that he has just been understood for the first time in one hundred and eighty-eight years."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p232 Ap 9 '49 260w

"It is useful to have this statement of the comic element in Sterne. The book is, however, an oversimplification of both the man and his art. For the present generation the definitive evaluation of Sterne will be written by a critic who is aware of the complex nature of Sterne's works and of their author's capacity to achieve more than one dimension of meaning at a time. Such a critic will find, none the less, that Mr. Dilworth has preceded him in ably analyzing some of the comic elements in Sterne's works."

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:413 D '48 250w

DIMOCK, HEDLEY SELDON, and TRECKER, HARLEIGH BRADLEY. Supervision of group work and recreation. 280p $4.50 Assn. press

301.15 Group work. Recreation 49-11576

"The authors emphasize those purposes, functions, principles, procedures, and practices of supervision that are essentially the same in all settings: youth agencies, camps, churches, schools, community centers, parks and playgrounds, etc. They develop a concept of supervision that embraces the total range of factors and conditions that affect the learning and growth of the participants in an agency's program." (Publisher's note) Selected readings. Index.

School & Society 70:272 O 22 '49 50w

"A major contribution to a meager literature." C. E. Hendry

+ Survey 85:687 D '49 600w

DIMOCK, MARSHALL EDWARD. Business and government. 840p $6.25 Holt

338.973 Industry and state 49-3966

A textbook for students of economics, political science and business law. "The arrangement of the book employs a nine-fold classification of topics as follows: (1) 'Limits of State Intervention,' including chapters on the free enterprise system, pressure groups, and relations with other countries, (2) 'Recurring Depressions,' with chapters on inflation and depression, and on the counter-depression policies of the New Deal, (3) 'Labor,' containing three chapters, (4) 'Agriculture,' two chapters, (5) 'Monopoly and Free Enterprise,' dealing with antitrust and trade regulation, three chapters, (6) 'Public Utilities,' transportation and communication, three chapters, (7) 'Financial Controls,' including treasury, banking and insurance, and stock market regulation, three chapters, (8) 'Government Ownership,' in natural resources and utilities, two chapters, (9) 'Competitive Forces,' dealing with economic planning, cooperatives, and industrial mobilization for war, four chapters. The concluding chapter places . . . emphasis upon basic conflicts between the public's insistence upon regulation and its demand for administrative efficiency in government." (Am Pol Sci R) Bibliographies. Index.

DIMOCK, M. E.—Continued

"It is a work of exceptional merit by a keen analyst of national problems." E. W. Carter
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:1033 O '49 800w

"Discussions in this area too frequently suffer from an artificial dichotomy between economics and politics; economists, whether of neoclassical, Keynesian, or Marxist persuasion, pursue their abstractions oblivious to political realities. . . Purists and doctrinaires in both camps may object that he fails from lack of an integrative principle, but pragmatists and evolutionists, who demand no such absolute, will welcome this competent and valuable addition to the literature." H. M. Gray
Ann Am Acad 266:202 N '49 400w

"It has the merits and (for general readers) the drawbacks of a textbook. It is solid, thorough, scholarly, judicious and unbiased; and it is heavy and, while written with scientific clarity, devoid of any appeal other than that of the importance of the material and the competence of its presentation." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:1328 N 9 '49 320w

"Libraries, teachers of government who wish their students to have more knowledge of economics, and teachers of economics who wish their students to have an appreciation of politics and administration will find this volume useful." Herbert Emmerich
+ Survey 85:691 D '49 320w

DINNEEN, JOSEPH FRANCIS. Purple shamrock; the Hon. James Michael Curley of Boston. 331p $3.75 Norton

B or 92 Curley, James Michael 49-10270

Biography of a Boston politician who has been in politics for fifty years, as ward leader, congressman, governor of the state and mayor. Author is a Boston Globe reporter who has "covered" Curley most of the time for thirty years. Chronological tables. Index.

Booklist 46:46 O 1 '49

"This book does justice neither to the talents of its author, nor to the significance of its subject." W. V. Shannon
— Commonweal 50:637 O 7 '49 420w

"A book that has the courage of its convictions, heavily weighted in favor of Curley."
Kirkus 17:354 Jl 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by L. R. Etzkorn
Library J 74:1194 S 1 '49 140w

"A readable, journalistic account of a fortunately unique career."
Nation 169:333 O 1 '49 30w

"Mr. Dinneen's book is a fascinating study of a political boss who has been less dangerous than Huey Long, more colorful than Frank Hague, less domineering than Tom Pendergast. . . Ungovernable, unmanageable, irrepressible, incorrigible, James Michael Curley buccaneered his way through more than half a century, upsetting Boston's traditions, shocking its defenders, defying everything within reach of his mellifluous voice. And even Mr. Dinneen, for all his insight into Boston politics and his understanding of the 'Boston Irish,' does not quite know why." Karl Schriftgiesser
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 S 11 '49 1000w

"Whether morals are pertinent to politics may be a somewhat old-fashioned question, but Curleyism has apparently made it archaic in Boston. It is a question left untouched by Mr. Dinneen (who covers the night club beat for a newspaper column) because he has followed in this book the prevailing journalistic custom in Boston of taking Curley at face value. The book has verve and color suitable to its subject, but the reader with reasonable skepticism will have little trouble making the moral judgments which did not occur to the author." L. M. Lyons
N Y Times p31 S 11 '49 800w

"His biography is, unfortunately, banal in its wide implications; in detail, it is both amusing and infuriating. All very readable."
New Yorker 25:110 O 8 '49 120w

Reviewed by Robert de Roos
San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 25 '49 550w

"Mr. Dinneen has written a biography which is fair, objective, and thoroughly readable." Cleveland Amory
+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 S 17 '49 1000w
Springf'd Republican p4D S 25 '49 480w

DISERENS, LUDWIG. Chemical technology of dyeing and printing; vat, sulfur, indigosol, azo and chrome dyestuffs and their auxiliaries; tr. and rev. from 2d German ed. by Paul Wengraf and Herman P. Baumann. 500p $11 Reinhold

667.2 Dyes and dyeing. Textile printing 48-11647

"The literature and current knowledge of dyestuffs and dyeing techniques are summarized in this book. References are made directly in the text to the pertinent books, periodical articles and patents. Molecular diagrams are reproduced freely, and there are ten tables of data on such topics as coupling components; fast color salts and bases; and metal salt mordants. The book was published originally in Paris in 1937 and was translated into German in 1941. This translation is based on the first part of the second German edition. . . Many literature references that did not appear in the French and German editions have been added." N Y New Tech Bks

"This book is an excellent English translation of the treatise by the French dyeing authority Louis Diserens. Dr. Diserens is noted as a skilled chemist-colorist having worked in printing and dyeing plants of pre-war Russia as well as in one of the leading Alsatian print works which produces textile fabrics for the world wide trade. . . This informative volume should be a welcome addition to the libraries of textile printing and processing plants and research laboratories and will be of especial interest to organic chemists, colorists and others interested in the technical aspects of dyes and colors." T. J. Tully
+ Chem Eng 56:330 Mr '49 350w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:84 N '48

DISNEY, CHARLES P., and LEGGET, ROBERT FERGUSON. Modern railroad structures. 213p il $5 McGraw

625.1 Railroads—Construction. Bridges. Railroad engineering 49-4502

"The 'structures' described in this book are chiefly bridges, bridge piers and turntable walls. . . The book opens with a concise statement of the application of soil mechanics to railroad work and it contains a chapter on the stabilization of roadway and embankments by grouting. . . The latter part of the book is given over to detailed descriptions of the 'intrusion-prepakt' method for repair of bridge piers and other masonry structures." (Eng N) Chapter references. Index.

Booklist 46:78 N 1 '49
Eng N 143:32 S 8 '49 160w

"All of the material is presented from the viewpoint of railroad engineers in charge of such work; nevertheless the text is clearly written and is exceptionally well illustrated. Although the book is an excellent one for its intended audience, our suspicion is that model railway builders will be heavy borrowers of it in libraries as soon as word about it gets around."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 54:59 Jl '49

DISNEY, DORIS MILES. Count the ways. 214p $2.25 Doubleday 49-11447

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun N 4 '49 30w
Kirkus 17:563 O 1 '49 70w

"Miss Disney specializes in character rather than strictly plotted mystery. But in this new book, her characters are so routine that their emotional problems fail to induce the proper suspense."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 O 30 '49 130w

"The first half of Miss Disney's novel is an admirable study in cumulative emotional tension among four characters. . . The major interest during this first part is: Which of the many possible motivated murders will come to pass? But once the murder happens the novel shifts to a slow and groping choice between two possible murderers. Miss Disney evinces much of the ironic character-perception which makes her an interesting individual among modern murder-mongers; but the total effect is that of a good straight novel twisted (though not quite far enough) into the whodunit pattern." Anthony Boucher
+ — N Y Times p20 N 6 '49 180w

"Miss Disney's quiet, well-behaved prose makes this problem just a little bit more than routine, but not much."
New Yorker 25:128 O 22 '49 100w

"Amiable and urbane." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p27 N 6 '49 140w

DISNEY, DORIS MILES. Family skeleton. 188p $2.25 Doubleday 49-3812

Detective story.

"Ranks high in idea as well as execution."
+ Kirkus 17:97 F 15 '49 80w

"This is a picture of pettiness almost Lardnerish in its acid etching of the everyday, and a welcome relief from the emotional lushness of standard suspense fare." A. B.
+ N Y Times p29 My 22 '49 180w

"Satisfactorily sinuous, gruesome, and wryly amusing tale."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:43 My 7 '49 40w

DISNEY, DOROTHY CAMERON (MRS MILTON MACKAYE). Hangman's tree. 277p $2.50 Random house 49-7482

Detective story.

Booklist 45:263 Ap 1 '49
Reviewed by James Sandoe
— Chicago Sun F 11 '49 180w

"Good going."
+ Kirkus 16:648 D 15 '48 100w
New Repub 120:26 Mr 21 '49 70w

"Multiple confessions cloud the issue toward the end, then Miss Disney reveals all with a deft twist of the wrist. Fine for the matinee trade." Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 F 20 '49 140w

"This book maintains the high standard Miss Disney has established for herself." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p31 F 13 '49 200w

"Well above average."
+ New Yorker 24:95 F 12 '49 100w
Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p17 F 13 '49 140w

DIWAKAR, RANGANATH RAMACHANDRA. Satyagraha: the power of truth. (Humanist lib) 108p $2 Regnery 301.1532 Government, Resistance to 48-9504

"Despite the fact that Gandhiji attempted no philosophical treatise, he did have a very definite working philosophy. The two ruling principles of his life were truth (Satya) and nonviolence (Ahimsa). . . In this book, Ranganath R. Diwakar, a fellow countryman and close follower of Gandhiji, [attempts to give] a systematic, concise treatment of the basic ideas of Satyagraha and an outline of its history, from its first beginnings in South Africa to the final triumph of Indian independence. Mr. Diwakar writes both as a student of Gandhian literature and as a disciple who has himself experienced the reality of the self-discipline and sacrifice inherent in the battle of truth." (Introd) Glossary. Selected bibliography.

Reviewed by Milton Mayer
Chicago Sun p8X My 8 '49 600w

"This is the best study of Gandhi's methods and philosophy which has yet been published in this country." Anne Fremantle
+ Commonweal 49:452 F 11 '49 200w
Current Hist 16:231 Ap '49 40w
Reviewed by Richard Hocking
J Religion 29:244 Jl '49 350w

"Lucid and interesting book."
+ Nation 168:283 Mr 5 '49 100w

"Two things recommend this condensation of an original Indian text (published, 1947, in Bombay): the author was a personal friend and disciple of Gandhi; and he examines Satyagraha as a movement under its own moral power, discounting, wherever legitimate, the glamour lent it by Gandhi's own life and practice. It is a stimulating little volume, though prolix and repetitious in spots." J. G. Hitrec
+ — N Y Times p25 Ja 30 '49 600w

"'Satyagraha: The Power of Truth' is a valuable contribution to our understanding of Gandhi and his philosophy of life." O. J. Aldrich
+ Springf'd Republican p22A F 27 '49 420w

DIXON, JOHN. How to speak, here, there, and on the air; a guide to successful speaking [il by Julian Brazelton]. 249p $2.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury
808.5 Public speaking 49-558

This book is designed for the occasional speaker, for the man or woman who is inexperienced but knows he may be called upon to address a committee, a public gathering, or a radio audience. The book is in three sections, speech preparation, speech delivery, and self-preparation, the last including overcoming self-consciousness, developing the voice, learning pronunciation, enlarging the vocabulary, etc. Index.

Booklist 45:206 F 15 '49

"Mr. Dixon has taught public speaking for a good many years. He says it is an art that anyone can learn. His book is addressed especially to those who realize that they know nothing about public speaking, and it takes nothing for granted. But it contains many hints that would be helpful to some who think they are already experts." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 66:81 Ja 19 '49 80w
Reviewed by T. F. Opie
Churchman 163:15 Mr 1 '49 70w
Wis Lib Bul 45:45 Mr '49

DOANE, ETHEL MARY. Antiques dictionary. 290p $3.95 The author, 1096 N. Main st, Brockton 20, Mass.
708.051 Antiques—Dictionaries

"Begun as a 'dictionary note-book' this volume is the result of a teacher's habit of painstaking research. Items listed range from 'Abracadabra' to 'Zsolnay'; little-known words such as 'gallybawk,' 'tappit-hen,' 'whisken' are carefully defined. There are also descriptions of textiles, glass, and pottery of many sorts, architectural terms, the Barberini vase, the Jacquard loom, Revere silver, scrimshaw work are given paragraph and topic treatment." (Library J) Bibliography.

DOANE, E. M.—Continued

Booklist 46:118 D 1 '49

"Most helpful for double acrostics, crossword puzzles, and quiz programs. One might wish for library use that geographic derivations and foreign word origins had been more frequently included. However one should be delighted to have such pleasant and unusual riffling available." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 75:44 Ja 1 '50 130w

DOBB, MAURICE HERBERT. Soviet economic development since 1917. 475p $4 Int. pubs

330.947 Russia—Economic conditions 49-271

"The present work treads the ground of [the author's] study of Russian Economic Development since the Revolution, [Book Review Digest 1928], written twenty years ago, and goes beyond it. Some of the material from this earlier work . . . is embodied in Chapters Four to Nine; as are also a few passages from a war-time booklet, Soviet Planning and Labour in Peace and War, in Chapter Sixteen. But the historical story of the first decade after the Revolution has been completely re-worked and re-written as well as being extended over a further twenty years, and the design of the book as a whole has been changed." (Pref) Indexes. Glossary.

"Soviet Economic Development since 1917 is smoothly written and well organized. If used with reserve—and this limitation applies to almost all works on the U.S.S.R.—it should prove valuable not only for those new to the field but also for those who seek a convenient summary of familiar material." Sidney Harcave

+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:618 Je '49 340w

Foreign Affairs 27:687 Jl '49 30w

"With all its faults of orthodoxy (though these are less marked for the twenties than is usual with Communist writers) it remains an extremely valuable survey. His chapters on the planning mechanism are especially interesting."

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Je 18 '48 170w

"Dobb is often controversial, but the book is an outstanding piece of scholarship and probably the best study of its kind available." Abram Bergson

+ New Repub 120:22 Mr 7 '49 1350w

"Mr. Maurice Dobb is a careful and in general an objective chronicler, and those who read his earlier books on the development of the Soviet economic system will know what to expect. Facts and figures they will find woven into the text to an extent that makes it often very gritty; for Mr. Dobb makes very little use of tables, and takes all the statistics in his stride. Probably this is due largely to the inconvenient Soviet habit of presenting figures not in any continuous sequence from year to year, but with continual fresh starts on new bases. . . Mr. Dobb is much more readable in his later chapters, when, his annals done with, he turns to considering the structure and development of Soviet planning and to making plain the relations between the production plan . . . and the financial plan." G. D. H. Cole

+ — New Statesman & Nation 36:177 Ag 28 '48 650w

"Maurice Dobb has long been noted among economists for the quality of his scholarship—and for his open sympathy for the Soviet Union. His latest book (successor to a similarly titled volume of two decades ago) derives its importance from both these facets of the author's work. It is a significant contribution to our knowledge of the Soviet economy. And it is a reasoned justification, and in spots encomium, of the policies and men who have brought the U.S.S.R. to its present economic position. . . Despite [his] candor, Mr. Dobb basically exaggerates the real gains achieved by the Soviet economy and minimizes the costs, both human and economic at which they have been bought. . . A valuable corrective to certain types of writing about the U.S.S.R. in recent years, this book nevertheless falls significantly short of the 'objective study' promised in his introduction." Harry Schwartz

+ — N Y Times p3 Ja 30 '49 650w

"In view of the author's previous performance, Soviet Economic Development since 1917 . . . is somewhat disappointing. . . The book is well organized and well written. . . The earlier portion of Mr. Dobb's study is based largely on his 1928 book and contains much valuable information, including an admirable account of Lenin's views and of the ideological conflicts that rocked the Communist party. The subsequent chapters devoted to the analysis of the Five Year Plans are dogmatic and abstruse, and they lack the broadness of approach and wealth of significant details that one expects to find in Mr. Dobb's writings." M. T. Florinsky

+ — Pol Sci Q 64:140 Mr '49 1000w

Times [London] Lit Sup p311 Je 5 '48 950w

DOBIE, JAMES FRANK. Voice of the coyote; il. by Olaus J. Murie. 386p $4 Little 599.74442 Coyotes 49-8879

"Here, as a result of more than thirty years of careful observation and study, and through conversations with trappers, ranchers and sheepmen, the author portrays the character, habits and life history of an animal which has always been identified with life in the foothills and on the plains of the West. The book offers a delightful combination of scientific fact and imaginative story telling." (Library J) Parts of the book have appeared in magazines. Bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 45:329 Je 1 '49

Reviewed by Lorus J. and Margery Milne

Christian Science Monitor p12 Je 27 '49 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '49

"A natural history book of unusual interest which if it is for a defined market is nonetheless reading of sustained interest."

+ Kirkus 17:134 Mr 1 '49 90w

Reviewed by J. E. Brown

+ Library J 74:733 My 1 '49 130w

"Wisely, the author has not relied on other books entirely for his material. Although he has apparently combed the literature for facts about coyotes, he also has talked to pioneers, to old trappers, to those who have spent their lives in close association with the coyote. Not all they said, of course, is to be taken without the proverbial seasoning of salt. Tales grow tall along the border. But these first-hand accounts, together with the author's own memories, give the book a freshness that is one of its charms." E. W. Teale

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Je 5 '49 1400w

"This is not by any means a book that tells you more about one animal than you really want to know. Still, if there is any adverse criticism to be leveled at 'The Voice of the Coyote,' it is that the material is so voluminous. Perhaps a rather more mathematical classification and organization might have been desirable." I. T. Sanderson

+ — N Y Times p17 Je 26 '49 330w

"Mr. Dobie has done for the coyote what he did for the longhorn in his book about that breed. He's been some 30 years gathering this material, moreover; the coyote has fascinated him for all that time, and he has taken notes, talked to all sorts of people, read all the literature there is on the coyote including the folklore of which there is a surprising amount, and then put the whole business together in this personal, intimately written, and enormously fascinating volume." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 My 15 '49 700w

"J. Frank Dobie is so well known for his admirable works on Western life and folklore that another volume from his pen is sure of a warm welcome. . . The book represents not only a life-long interest in the beast, but wide and comprehensive research both in the library and great outdoors. Mr. Dobie was born and has spent most of his life in coyote country and many a time has been sung to sleep in his bed roll by the strange music of the little wolf." Stanley Vestal

+ Sat R of Lit 32:26 Je 18 '49 600w

"Author Dobie's book is saturated with the lore of the range, the brush and the border country. It is the final word on its subject, and very nearly one of those classic studies that seem to sum up everything that has been written before it. A lack of focus weakens it, a discursiveness, and an argumentative mood about the anti-coyote policy in Washington. But at its best, it reads the way oldtimers talk, with a fine earthy mixture of courtesy and superstition, wisdom and independence."
+ — Time 53:116 My 16 '49 700w

DOBKIN, ALEXANDER. Principles of figure drawing. 258p il $4.95 World pub.

743.4 Figure drawing 49-86

"Useful as supplementary material. Illustrated with numerous examples from the work of the author, other modern artists, and the old masters. Text, aided by sketches, discusses the principles evolved by these artists, and indicates methods to be followed to achieve characteristic effects." (Booklist) Index of artists.

Booklist 45:189 F 1 '49

"There are few books which contain such excellent working drawings of the masters, both old and modern. The number of these sketches from rare and generally inaccessible sources is the prime value of this book. . . Instructor Dobkin's text indicates an authoritative and liberal knowledge of draughtsmanship. His selection of plates reflects his sensitivity and taste." H. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ja 30 '49 120w

DODGE, DAVID. Crazy glasspecker; or, High life in the Andes; with il. by Irv Koons. 249p $2.75 Random house

918.5 Peru—Description and travel 49-11553

Humorous account of the year or so the Dodge family spent in Arequipa, Peru.

"His ironies are heavy-handed. . . And everything is doused in hyperbole. To follow Mr. Dodge thru the Andes is to tramp thru some pretty thick corn—Andean corn, he might call it. And yet one comes to find a certain charm in this brash and breezy travelog. Some of the people are engaging, especially the author's imperturbable 7 year old daughter, Kendal, and his wife." J. F. Nims
— + Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 20 '49 400w

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 22 '49 170w

"A fast and funny account which takes on a new territory with all the old bounce of its predecessors."
+ Kirkus 17:534 S 15 '49 150w

"A delightful book which contains a few regrettable expressions." Joseph Borome
+ — Library J 74:1316 S 15 '49 130w

"We have some true reporting on plumbing, salesmen, revolutionists, archeological piles. It is all quite irreverent. The book will be of no earthly use to any one save to make them all laugh at themselves as they wander in unfamiliar lands."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p32 D 4 '49 200w

N Y Times p22 N 6 '49 140w

"Readers who are acquainted with Mr. Dodge's mysteries, set against much the same South American backdrop, will find themselves yearning for the straightforward approach that characterizes his fiction and that is replaced here by consistent overstatement."
New Yorker 25:59 D 31 '49 160w

"Told with the utmost good humor, an eye for local color, a willingness to inform the reader about Peru—but never too much—and an extravagant sense of the ridiculous. (Dodge's account, for example, of the water-heating apparatus, the fumes from which made them all as drunk as lords every time they took a bath, is a bit you'll cherish and remember)." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 15 '49 850w

Reviewed by Carleton Beals
Sat R of Lit 32:30 D 24 '49 290w

DODGE, DAVID. Plunder of the sun. 245p $2.50 Random house 49-2294

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Jl 8 '49 110w

"Never a dull moment, and many that are accelerated and absorbing."
+ Kirkus 17:189 Ap 1 '49 80w

"A readable travel-mystery, violent in spots, with a sketchy background deriving from 'The Conquest of Peru.' " Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Je 5 '49 200w

"When you've recovered your breath at the end, you'll know more than you did about the past and present of Peru and you'll have read some fine, hard-packed, hard-hitting prose." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p25 Je 5 '49 190w

"Good, solid stuff."
+ New Yorker 25:95 Je 4 '49 100w

"It's pure escape, moves at a fast clip, and will provide its readers with an hour or two of suspense and excitement." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 28 '49 300w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Je 12 '49 60w

Sat R of Lit 32:34 My 28 '49 40w

DOERNER, MAX. Materials of the artist, and their use in painting; with notes on the techniques of the old masters; tr. by Eugen Neuhaus. rev ed 435p pl $4.50 Harcourt

751 Painting. Artists' materials 49-9996

"The translator has revised this book, adding some of the author's notes and deleting unessentials." (Booklist) For earlier edition see Book Review Digest 1935. Index.

Booklist 46:65 O 15 '49

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1326 S 15 '49 30w

Reviewed by L. R. Sander
Sat R of Lit 32:35 N 5 '49 180w

DOHERTY, BEKA (MRS MARTIN DAVID KAMEN). Cancer. 327p $3 Random house

616.994 Cancer 49-11891

Subtitle reads: "New light on [the] causes, detection, treatments, cures and the brilliant promise of today's research" on cancer. It is considered from the viewpoint of the patient, physician, and research worker, as well as a public health problem.

Chicago Sun p9X D 18 '49 50w

"By far the most intensive, comprehensive book on cancer for the layman which has been done."
+ Kirkus 17:592 O 1 '49 160w

"The book is one that can well be added to all public libraries from small to large." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 74:1912 D 15 '49 100w

"Miss Doherty shows how the disease is best attacked and lists hospitals and clinics now concentrating upon this work. If for nothing else than this information—and there is much more—this is a fine book on an important subject." F. G. Slaughter
+ N Y Times p45 N 20 '49 180w

"This is by far the most intensive and comprehensive book on cancer for the layman which has been done. The first informed and intelligent presentation of this disease, this should fill a real need."
+ Wis Lib Bul p5 N '49

DOLMAN, JOHN. Art of acting. 313p il $4.50; college ed $3.50 Harper

792 Acting 49-9629

A companion volume to the author's The Art of Play Production (Book Review Digest 1947). Contents: The genesis of acting; The actor's relation to his audience; The attitude of the audience; The dual function of the actor; Emotion in acting; Imagination in acting; The actor and the play; The actor and his part; Rehearsing; Reading the lines; Comedy; Tragedy; Reaction and by-play; The actor's voice; Stage diction; Bodily action; Performance. Bibliography. Glossary of stage terms. Index.

Booklist 46:44 O 1 '49

"Mr. Dolman is content to lay down the rules—and very useful rules many of them are—which he believes young actors will find helpful. Occasionally, he pays tribute to his theatrical lineage by citing experiences of his acting grandparents. . . He has written a useful and conscientious book—one which will have a narrower appeal than Stanislavski's since Mr. Dolman lacks the artist's capacity to invest technical explanations with the transcendant, glowing sense of life itself." John Beaufort

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 8 '49 480w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '49

"Not for professionals but of great interest to every aspiring actor, whether his goal is Broadway or the Harrisburg (Pa.) Little Theatre. Handsomely illustrated. Highly readable and of general interest. Highly recommended." George Freedley

+ Library J 74:1099 Ag '49 70w

"It is a comprehensive book—a conscientious blend of general theory and specific counsel. . . [The author] devotes considerable space in an already crowded book to commenting upon the current metropolitan success of a play which he coyly declines to name and which he himself has never seen. . . One can loathe and fear the theatre's current 'Hit or Flop' psychology as intensely as I do; one can deplore, as I do not, the crude idiom of our contemporary culture; one can hope, as so many do, that Tennessee Williams will not stunt his stature as a dramatist by limiting his themes to crises of neurotic frustration—and still regret that Mr. Dolman should have marred a valuable book with such shallow, bigoted balderdash." John Houseman

+ — N Y Times p21 Ag 28 '49 1100w

"The author, descendant of many famous actors, and the writer of the highly authoritative 'The Art of Play Production,' knows the theater and respects it highly, and he has produced a brilliant and polished text that, studied with care and intelligence, should go far to raise the level of the American stage." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 Jl 31 '49 400w

DONALD, DAVID HERBERT. Lincoln's Herndon; introd. by Carl Sandburg. 415p il $5 Knopf

B or 92 Herndon, William Henry. Lincoln, Abraham 48-8469

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"William Herndon has always been a highly controversial figure in American history, and an authoritative portrait of the man has been badly needed. Mr. Donald has given it to us in a book which is scholastic, yet intensely human and interesting." Otto Eisenschiml

+ Am Hist R 54:623 Ap '49 480w

"This scholarly and vitally written 'first book-length biography of Herndon' is on the must list of masterpieces for teachers and serious students of history and biography." J. P. Dix

+ Social Studies 40:138 Mr '49 600w

"Dr. Donald, in his brilliant study, has provided a touchstone by which to separate the colorful Herndon and Lincoln personalities. Careful documentation does not obtrude upon the interest of this absorbing redaction, which is entitled to a distinguished place in historical literature."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:454 D '48 200w

DOOB, LEONARD WILLIAM. Public opinion and propaganda. 600p $5; text ed $3.75 Holt

301.154 Public opinion. Propaganda 48-6783

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Foreign Affairs 27:332 Ja '49 20w

"As is perhaps to be expected in a work of this sort, the quality varies somewhat from section to section. The material on the mediums of communication is treated in a rather pedestrian fashion, whereas the chapter on the propagandist, based upon the author's own experience and observation in certain propaganda agencies of the government during the war years, provides many useful insights and hypotheses." Bernard Berelson

+ — Library Q 19:230 Jl '49 1050w

"Doob has written his book in extremely lively fashion. It is peppered throughout with amusing analogies and with actual examples of public opinion and propaganda as revealed by modern research studies in the fields of politics, advertising, and war. It should serve not only as a stimulating guide to the curious layman, but also as a useful text for students who want to understand the nature of public opinion and propaganda." P. B. Sheatsley

+ School & Society 69:302 Ap 23 '49 750w

"The coverage of the book is broad, especially in techniques of investigation, but it lacks any significant analysis of the nature of public opinion as something more than the attitudes of individuals toward an issue."

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:347 S '48 280w

DOOLEY, ROGER BURKE. Days beyond recall. 446p $3.50 Bruce pub.

49-10675

"This is the story of the Irish Catholics of Buffalo, during the early part of the twentieth century; and above all of Rose Shanahan. In contrast to his heroine's spiritual and emotional development, Dooley shows us the deterioration of the stout-hearted, self-reliant group into which she was born. . . Since his protagonist is a young woman and he writes through her eyes, Dooley emphasizes the social rather than the political and economic changes in Buffalo during her youth." Cath World

"Although it is a period piece in setting and costume, its characters are plausible and moving, its spirit, optimistic and strong. In Rose Shanahan, Dooley has drawn a woman of which any age and group might well be proud." Clorinda Clarke

+ Cath World 170:158 N '49 170w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 N 6 '49 110w

"'Days Beyond Recall' shows a sentimental affection for the bygone days. It is a pleasant, readable book with a keen insight into many types of Irish-American character. The general reader may feel that the comparative gentleness of Mr. Dooley's 'big' scenes does not warrant so comprehensive a treatment. But there is no mistaking the reality of his atmosphere —or the authenticity of the over-all picture he has presented." Barbara Bond

+ N Y Times p32 D 11 '49 360w

DOOLITTLE, HILDA (H.D.) By Avon river. 98p $2.50 Macmillan

811 Shakespeare, William. English poetry—History and criticism 49-9626

In this memorial for Shakespeare Day, 1945, the book is divided into two parts. The first is a long poem in three parts; the second half is an essay on Elizabethan lyrics and lyricists.

"The author's taste makes the selection of lyrics delightful, but the value of the comment varies considerably. Least satisfactory for me are the concluding pages, where the author rhapsodizes through Shakespeare's thoughts during that last 'merry meeting' with Drayton and Ben Jonson." M. W.

+ — Canadian Forum 29:190 N '49 170w

"A small literary curiosity, of interest only to Shakespeare students and collectors of remote Shakespeariana."
Kirkus 17:173 Mr 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by George Freedley
+ Library J 74:1099 Ag '49 40w

"The poem has the characteristic delicacy and grace for which the writer is distinguished; a little more extended than her usual efforts, and weaving in considerably more rhyme, it is an airy, sometimes wandering, performance." Rolfe Humphries
+ Nation 169:44 Jl 9 '49 270w

"H. D.'s latest book has a charm and delicacy not often found among the tougher ironies of our modern poets and critics. . . The poems have a clear, yet slightly muted, tone, pleasing though occasionally slightly monotonous to the ear; they show a restrained, classical skill." David Daiches
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 S 11 '49 370w

Reviewed by Herbert Barrows
N Y Times p10 Jl 31 '49 550w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 18 '49 230w

"It is as difficult to define this beautiful little book as it is to give any real impression of its charm in the limited space of a review. I should say that it is best described as a sort of Elizabethan contemplation in verse and prose." Martha Bacon
+ Sat R of Lit 32:29 Ag 20 '49 600w

DOOLITTLE, JESSE SEYMOUR, and ZERBAN, ALEXANDER HAMILTON. Engineering thermodynamics; theory and applications. 429p il $5 Int. textbook

621.101 Thermodynamics 48-8861

"Engineering college textbook. The greater part of the space is devoted to basic principles and phenomena but important applications are described in sufficient detail for beginning students. The first author is Professor of Mechanical Engineering at North Carolina State College and his co-author holds a similar position at the Pennsylvania State College." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1823 D 15 '48 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:94 N '48

DORFMAN, JOSEPH. Economic mind in American civilization; v. 3, 1865-1918. 494p $6 Viking

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions. U.S.—Economic policy (45-11318)

Volume 3 of a series on the economic development of the United States. "This book covers the period from the end of the Civil War to 1918, a time of intense ferment in political and economic thinking, both here and abroad. The author discusses the complex of economic problems that arose from the Civil War, the growth of industrialization, and manifold other factors, all of which produced many new and conflicting schools of economic philosophy, from those of Edward Bellamy, Henry George, and the early Socialists to those of Thorstein Veblen and his heirs. Mr. Dorfman carries his study through the First World War." (New Yorker) Bibliographic notes. Index.

"All things considered, Professor Dorfman has presented the best work yet written on the development of American economic doctrines. It is a source book of absorbing materials useful not only to the student of economic thought but to anyone, economist or otherwise, desiring information on the most significant and formative years in the development of economic doctrine." J. F. Bell
+ Ann Am Acad 266:229 N '49 850w

Reviewed by R. R. Berridge
Christian Science Monitor p14 My 3 '49 550w

"It seems likely that Dorfman's book will become a classic in its field. It is to be hoped that the additional volumes contemplated will be written, so that we may have a complete presentation and analysis of economic thought in America." Paul Kiniery
+ Commonweal 50:179 My 27 '49 230w
Current Hist 17:37 Jl '49 80w
Kirkus 17:26 Ja 1 '49 210w

"Thoroughly organized, carefully documented. Extensive bibliographical notes and an independent index. Essential in all except very small collections." R. E. Kingery
+ Library J 74:545 Ap 1 '49 130w

Reviewed by Joseph Kraft
Nation 169:139 Ag 6 '49 1000w

"Here is no mere compilation of facts but rather an exhaustive and objective discussion of the many diverse and frequently overlapping and tangled strains of economic thinking which characterized the United States during those turbulent years from 1865 to 1918." H. J. Carman
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 My 1 '49 1250w

Reviewed by J. K. Galbraith
N Y Times p7 My 15 '49 850w

"Volume III of what is obviously destined to be an important and enduring work of scholarship."
+ New Yorker 25:101 Ap 23 '49 140w
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Je 19 '49 300w

"It is a fascinating story, and one that has never before been so well, or so completely told." C. E. Ayres
+ Sat R of Lit 32:19 Ap 23 '49 600w

DORFMAN, WILFRED, and JOHNSON, DORIS. Overweight is curable. 160p $2.75 Macmillan

616.39 Corpulence. Diet 48-11643

Discussion of the relation of overweight to disease. The causes of overweight are considered first; then the effects of overweight in certain diseases; and finally the treatment of overweight. The authors are a practicing New York city physician, and a teaching dietitian on the staff of New York's Presbyterian hospital. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:152 Ja 1 '49
Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '49
Kirkus 16:297 Je 15 '48 100w

DORIS, LILLIAN, and FRIEDMAN, EDITH JUDITH. Corporate secretary's manual and guide; a manual of legal principles involved in corporate organization and management and a guide to corporate procedure with forms; prepared with the coöp. of the editorial staff of Prentice-Hall, inc, completely revised by Howard Hilton Spellman. 1520p $12.50; to schools $9.50 Prentice-Hall

347.7 Corporation law

"This revised edition brings the original text up to date, omits matter that became obsolete since the original edition, adds new material (including some entirely new subjects). . . Covers the following 10 major divisions of subject matter: corporate meetings; forms relating to corporate meetings (with numerous examples); corporate resolutions; capital stock; transfer of securities; dividends; borrowing; corporate management; corporate administrative records; stockholder relations." Management R

"A practical tool for all persons engaged in corporation administration." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 74:1462 O 1 '49 80w

"An up-to-date reference and practical working tool for corporate officers and persons interested in corporate affairs."
+ Management R 38:582 O '49 150w

DORIVAL, BERNARD. Cézanne [tr. by H. H. A. Thackthwaite]. (Prometheus ser) 172p 184pl $12.50 Continental bk. center

759.4 Cézanne, Paul 48-9301

"M. Dorival, conservateur of the Musee National d'Art Moderne, Paris, has put forth a study of the artist's character and work, the biographical section being a critical interpretation, studded with reproductions of work by painters who perhaps influenced Cézanne, along with examples of his own work for comparison, and examples of work by later artists whom Cézanne in turn influenced. . . There are appended carefully selected passages from Cézanne's letters and opinions, his judgments on other artists, a brief chronology for ready reference and an exhaustive bibliography, together with analytical notes on the reproductions." N Y Times

---

"A distinguished art book, very slightly marred by a certain stylistic quaintness in the scholarly text and by glaring typographical errors."

+ — Atlantic 183:91 F '49 90w

"His book is abundantly and usefully illustrated and it should prove indispensable. If combined with the capably annotated—though somewhat unimaginative—treatment of Rewald, it should give more support to the whole cause of modern art. Even the nibblers now trying to undermine this achievement in America will have some difficulty in undoing what Messrs. Dorival and Rewald have reaffirmed. For it still can be said that Cezanne was the Primitive of the Way—and that his way, despite all antagonists, will yet be rediscovered for some time to come." Jerome Mellquist

+ Commonweal 49:430 F 4 '49 260w

"An interesting section called Notes and Documents gives critical judgments, chronology, and analytical notes; there are also excerpts and letters, etc. Language rather stilted; formidable amount of information. Worthwhile." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 74:61 Ja 1 '49 140w

"No disparagement of other volumes on Cézanne is intended in recommending Bernard Dorival's recent study over almost anything in the field. . . The approach is both scholarly and popular. . . The book should prove almost indispensable to all lovers of Cézanne's work and to students of modern art." Howard Devree

+ N Y Times p10 D 19 '48 220w

"This is an adequate and helpful study, and perhaps something more. The author has not been too fortunate in his translator, and the translator has been unfortunate in his proofreader. In a matter of a hundred-odd pages some twenty slips or misprints can be found, as well as what appear to be some very queer renderings of the original. . . Probably neither M. Dorival nor his translator is in any way responsible for the coloured illustrations. They are lamentable: not only are they misleading, like most coloured reproductions, they are downright ugly."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p766 N 25 '49 3700w

DÖRNER, MAX. See Doerner, M.

DORTORT, DAVID. Post of honor. (Whittlesey house publication) 315p $3 McGraw

49-7923

"We are introduced to young Max Gerard in 1934: agitation-propaganda director of the Brownsville branch, Young Communist League of America. Max Gerard believed passionately in the Communist ideal, brotherhood as an end. But he began to have his doubts about Communist means when he saw Young Communist leader Barney Price deliberately provoke a police attack on a peaceful picket line. . . From that first split we follow Max through the stages of his disillusionment—job in Harlem, Spanish civil war, United States Army after Pearl Harbor—to the point where he casts aside all ideologies and arrays himself 'on the other side of power, whatever that power is. On the people's side.'" N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R

Booklist 45:313 My 15 '49

Reviewed by Jack Conroy

Chicago Sun Jl 26 '49 550w

"His characters rarely take on life; the ordering of his incidents suggests the random of existence rather than the form and structure of art; his prose, largely unimaginative and flat, is heightened only by an occasional effort that is highly self-conscious and somewhat annoying. To give us the flavor of the Communists, whom he opposes, he endlessly quotes their jargon in full. The speeches are as false and meaningless to him as they are to us. . . It should be said, however, that there is an intense sincerity in this volume, which seems to be Mr. Dortort's 'apologia' for not being a Communist." Murray Krieger

— + Christian Science Monitor p16 My 13 '49 600w

Kirkus 17:64 F 1 '49 180w

"Power corrupts. Lord Acton said it in a half-dozen words. David Dortort's new novel says it again in three hundred pages. The lesson bears repeating; but, unhappily, what Mr. Dortort's novelized paraphrase of Lord Acton lacks in succinctness, it never makes up in the rewards of successful fiction." Richard Match

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p21 My 8 '49 450w

"Like Mr. Dortort's first novel, 'Burial of the Fruit,' his present effort is poignant and muddled by turns, and badly overwritten all the distance. . . This time, however, his protagonist finally escapes the slum for slightly cleaner air. . . If the purpose seems as vague as Mr. Dortort's over-all thesis, put that down to the occupational hazards of his trade. Problem novels often hide their heads in rhetoric when their heroes seek a way out in the final chapter." C. V. Terry

+ — N Y Times p22 Ap 10 '49 240w

"While the author is indisputably on the side of the angels, he cannot be said to have told his story with any special skill or art, unhappily. The prose is filled with distressing mannerisms, the characters are all too often made of wood, and the whole effect is strikingly reminiscent—in reverse—of the proletarian literature which had its brief vogue in the Thirties." David Davidson

— + Sat R of Lit 32:29 Mr 19 '49 600w

DOS PASSOS, JOHN RODERIGO. Grand design. 440p $3.50 Houghton

49-7005

The final volume of a trilogy, the first two volumes of which were Adventures of a Young Man, and Number One (Book Review Digest 1939, 1943). This novel tells the story of the New Deal years in American life, and some of the characters are evidently based on well-known public figures.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 183:84 F '49 1000w

Booklist 45:178 Ja 15 '49

"The novel is a competent one. The main characters are well handled; their stories skillfully told. But they are, little or big, merely parts of the design. Dos Passos seems more concerned with atmosphere than with people, and this preoccupation with setting and tone rather than with humanity may explain why, in spite of its technical excellence, we experience disappointment in reading the book. What Dos Passos does bring out very powerfully, however, is that quality in the American tradition that made for whatever highmindedness and generosity there was in the New Deal." M. R. Grennan

+ — Cath World 168:409 F '49 500w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon

Chicago Sun p8X Ja 2 '49 600w

"On the dividing line between journalism and fiction stands the 'documentary' novel. The contemporary reader's cult of the plausible combined with the modern writer's lack of creative imagination, fosters the literature of surface realism. Sad to relate, John Dos Passos' new novel fits neatly into this category. But if 'The Grand Design' is not particularly rewarding as a work of art, it is illustrative of a popular genre." Theodore Kalem

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 6 '49 1150w

"Certain modern writers such as Silone and Koestler have shown that it is possible to integrate a criticism of political and economic injustices within a good, powerful work of fiction. In this novel Dos Passos does not show evidence of the insight and the talent necessary to accomplish this kind of book. The dialogue is extremely forced, the prose poems which head each chapter have a cheap radio-drama tone, and there is a definite lack of economy in the descriptions of actions and motive. Finally, the continuous jeering gives this thing an embarrassing, immature truculence. The Grand Design has not much design, it seems rather to be the outcome of a strained contrivance." George Miles

— Commonweal 49:402 Ja 28 '49 390w

"The style is Dos Passos'—stream-lined a bit and less staccato than in Manhattan Transfer, but with the same sense of sharply etched vignettes, flashes of recognizable talk, captured mood, the tempo of the times. It might be considered as doing for the New Deal period in Washington what Manhattan Transfer did for the period following World War I and USA for the feverish twenties. But the pattern is tauter, the pace faster."

+ Kirkus 16:575 N 1 '48 210w

Reviewed by H. W. Hart

Library J 74:58 Ja 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset

Manchester Guardian p4 Je 24 '49 120w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling

Nation 168:107 Ja 22 '49 1500w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley

— New Repub 120:23 Ja 17 '49 1800w

Discussion by Malcolm Cowley

New Repub 120:21 F 28 '49 2350w

"An angry, embittered book, 'The Grand Design' is primarily a provocative political tract. In the long series of its author's works, it sets up a minor monument commemorating his arrival at an unforeseen destination. Once the most militant and rebellious of contemporary American novelists, the most uncompromisingly radical in his criticism of our existing social order, John Dos Passos with this book enlists among the arch-conservatives. . . In his earlier novels Dos Passos often etched portraits with acid. In this one he has preferred to carve some of them out of a substance oddly like mud." Lloyd Morris

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ja 2 '49 650w

"I do not know where the events of these years have been made more dramatic or interesting as fiction. Dos Passos has smoothed out and integrated the experimental techniques of his earlier work; he has developed a remarkable technique of narrative suspense, he is undoubtedly one of our best contemporary prose stylists. Unfortunately I must add that 'The Grand Design' also seems an entirely superficial novel—and that it represents what may be called a modern collapse of values." Maxwell Geismar

+ — N Y Times p4 Ja 2 '49 1350w

Reviewed by J. M. Lalley

New Yorker 24:69 Ja 8 '49 900w

"Dos Passos, through the years, has become a better and better writer; but the appeal of his point of view has grown narrower and narrower. For a work of literature, at its best, is a creation; and 'The Grand Design,' with its caricatures and its atmosphere of intangible bias, is merely an interpretation." Vance Bourjaily

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ja 9 '49 1050w

"Time was, when the publication of a novel by John Dos Passos called for the lighting of bonfires on promontories. But no triumphant flare will greet the appearance of his latest work. . . Kindly reviewers may regard the book as a temporary lapse of energy—a trough, so to speak between waves. But Mr. Dos Passos deserves something more constructive than mercy; he is quite capable, I think, of hearing a few tough-hearted truths about his recent novel. The weakness of 'The Grand Design' proceeds not so much from the waning of Mr. Dos Passos's creative powers—though there is a marked decline here—as from the exhaustion of the genre in which he is working." H. M. Robinson

— Sat R of Lit 32:8 Ja 8 '49 1000w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p18A Ja 30 '49 240w

"The book's chief value, I think, is that of criticism. The criticism is valid but not profound. For evocation of times past, the fact writers are still doing it better—e.g., 'Roosevelt and Hopkins.'" George Britt

Survey 85:232 Ap '49 300w

"As brisk, top-of-the-mind journalism, The Grand Design is fun. . . But as a novel, The Grand Design seldom clicks. Characters wander in & out of its pages, drifting on the political tide. A few, easily recognizable, will cause gossip, but not many are vivid enough to arouse much interest."

Time 53:62 Ja 3 '49 850w

Times [London] Lit Sup p457 Jl 15 '49 550w

Wis Lib Bul 45:48 Mr '49

"The Grand Design is . . . respectful of the inner core of New-Deal idealism, contemptuous of the politics, confusion, jealousy, corruption, and inefficiency which accompanied it. A dozen characters weave in and out. Most of them are weak, foolish, or unscrupulous. Some of them indulge in exceedingly messy sex lives; some bore from within for Communism. Not one is interesting as a human being. Dull and mechanical as fiction, The Grand Design's only interest is for the record, to show what the New Deal seemed like to Mr. Dos Passos." Orville Prescott

— Yale R n s 38:573 spring '49 300w

DOSTOEVSKII, FEDOR MIKHAILOVICH. Diary of a writer; tr. and annotated by Boris Brasol. 2v 1097p $12.50 Scribner

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-8890

"First English translation of a major work by the Russian novelist. The Diary, published as a series of articles in 1873, 1876 and 1877 (single issues also appeared in 1880 and 1881) contains literary reminiscence and criticism, autobiographical anecdotes, short stories, accounts of court trials; the largest portion is Dostoievski's comment on current political events." (Library J) Index.

"These turbulent volumes are streaked with incoherent thinking and sloppy writing. A good many pages are dull stuff, but the work as a whole offers reward enough—the reflected portrait of the great novelist; the picture of an exciting world in revolutionary ferment; the illuminating material about Russia and the Russians; and such remarkable passages as the speech on Pushkin and the critique of Anna Karenina." C. J. Rolo

+ — Atlantic 184:85 Ag '49 900w

Booklist 45:354 Je 15 '49

Reviewed by Theodore Kalem

Christian Science Monitor p16 Jl 23 '49 650w

Reviewed by John Hay

Commonweal 50:439 Ag 12 '49 1350w

"The Diary is an important work for literary and political students, but its length will inhibit the wider reading public. It is a work, however, assured of both critical interest as well as a permanent place on library shelves."

+ Kirkus 17:129 Mr 1 '49 180w

"Dostoievski as journalist and prophet is on a different level from Dostoievski as novelist; but his Diary is a document of first importance for all who would understand the author of The Brothers Karamazov." H. W. Hart

+ Library J 74:814 My 15 '49 140w

Nation 169:210 Ag 27 '49 180w

DOSTOEVSKII, F. M.—Continued

"The student of Dostoevsky will find in the Diary some light on his career and his personality and, not unnaturally, echoes of the ideological passages in the novels. To the psychiatrist the book will present ample evidence of a morbid temperament marked by a large capacity for hatred and an overcompensating love. To the general reader this confused and self-contradictory miscellany has little to offer. The best of it has long been available in better English and much of the rest should have remained decently buried in the editions of Dostoevsky's collected works." Avrahm Yarmolinsky

New Repub 121:15 Jl 4 '49 3250w

"Public taste in diaries and in political commentary has changed (and surely there has been no loss in our modern preference for brevity), but there is a good deal to be found in these two volumes which is rich in meaning for a contemporary world of which Dostoievsky never dreamed." Joseph Barnes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 My 22 '49 1250w

"There is a good deal of bad journalism and loose thinking in 'The Diary,' but it is well to remember that journalism and creative writing were closely allied in Dostoevsky's mind. . . The acuteness and compelling rightness of the psychological truth in his fiction fail to impress us as logical truth in his journalistic writings. Perhaps the difficulty arises from the fact that he remains the artist in his journalism, in which he brings the attitude of the omniscient author to the treatment of entirely controversial ideas." E. J. Simmons

N Y Times p3 My 22 '49 1850w

"As a document of Russia's always uneasy relations with the outside world and itself, the 'Diary' is invaluable; as a literary performance, it is often highly exasperating, yet finally overwhelming in its personal force." Alfred Kazin

+ New Yorker 25:81 Je 25 '49 2200w

"Of course there is repetition in 'The Diary of a Writer,' but amongst things that are distant and unfamiliar there is a tremendous amount that gives us the shock of recognition, for Dostoievsky is telling us of all the steps and leaps of a revolution that came to pass in our time, the effects of which have made the world we live in today, and about which we have only the most cloudy understanding." M. M. Colum

+ Sat R of Lit 32:11 My 28 '49 1350w

"The Diary of a Writer is one of those books that is alternately fascinating and dreary, tinglingly exciting and unendurably boring. . . [It] is a vast jumble of rants, stories, articles, sketches, criticisms, polemics—some completely dated, some as fresh and troubling as The Brothers Karamazov."

+ — Time 53:100 My 23 '49 1350w

DOUGHTY, OSWALD. Dante Gabriel Rossetti; a Victorian romantic [Eng title: Victorian romantic]. 712p il $10 Yale univ. press

B or 92 Rossetti, Dante Gabriel A49-9876

A biography of the Pre-Raphaelite poet and painter "which sets Rossetti against his background and throws new light on many dark passages of his work and career. Professor Doughty has based his views on a detailed study of all the available material, published and unpublished, and has arranged it chronologically, fitting into his text the examination of poems and pictures that bear on the life, avoiding sensationalism as such, and sticking closely to attested facts." (Manchester Guardian) Bibliography. Index.

"The value of the book does not lie in any striking 'revelations' but rather in its attempt to set the whole story in perspective against the widest possible background of knowledge." Edward Wagenknecht

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 D 11 '49 500w

Reviewed by Vivian Mercier

Commonweal 51:420 Ja 20 '50 1050w

biography on a large scale." Lawrence Haward
"A skillfully composed, attractively written
+ Manchester Guardian p4 O 14 '49 480w

"The portrait of Rossetti drawn in this full-scale biography of the Victorian poet-painter is not fundamentally at variance with established tradition; but using hitherto unpublished letters and other documents, correlating many authorities and drawing inferences from the internal evidence of poems and paintings, Professor Doughty has strengthened the tradition at some points and shifted the emphasis at others. . . Upon one of the most celebrated figures of the Victorian period it sheds new light. Yet many shadows remain, and some of them may never be dispelled." S. C. Chew

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 D 25 '49 1450w

"Professor Doughty leaves no doubt of Rossetti's personal magnitude, his energy and his sincerity, his deep devotion to the cause of art and his endearing love of fun. What he does not explain is Rossetti's fall." Peter Quennell

+ — N Y Times p3 N 20 '49 800w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles

San Francisco Chronicle p17 D 25 '49 550w

"At last, Professor Oswald Doughty has written the biography which the subject deserves. The legend in this work gives way to facts and, through the gradual accumulation and skilful arrangement of relevant and extremely interesting information, Rossetti comes to life. . . At times, it is true, the narrative blurs and a hesitancy invades the analysis, but generally the work is a remarkable success." Douglas Grant

+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 Ja 7 '50 600w

"This book is a most welcome example of scholarship and accuracy in biographical writing. I think it will be widely read; not only by those who fancy they know something about the Victorians, but also by all those who enjoy the fascination of a well-constructed and authentic narrative." C. E. Vulliamy

+ Spec 183:428 S 30 '49 850w

DOWNES, MRS ANNE (MILLER). Eagle's song. 320p $3 Lippincott

49-8193

Historical novel covering the period from colonial times to the end of the first World war. The scene is an upstate New York town on the Mohawk river, and the struggles between two families provide the action. The families are the Ayres, founders of the town, who provided men and women of integrity and loyalty to the dream in every generation; and the Colcords, exponents of dishonesty and greed.

Booklist 45:253; 295 Ap 1 '49; My 1 '49

"An interesting tale of an American town and its citizenry. It is a good, wholesome story, and we could well stand more of the same kind."

+ Cath World 169:320 Jl '49 160w

"Style is simple, and the plot has sufficient incident and drama to hold the attention of the mature reader."

+ Library J 74:1557 O 15 '49 80w

"A novel more praiseworthy in purpose than in performance."

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p70 S 25 '49 140w

"The whole novel is based on the shining faith in democracy that has highlighted American history. Earnestness and integrity have gone into its writing. But overemphasis on the lofty message loads the story with more weight than its characters can carry." Barbara Bond

+ — N Y Times p24 My 22 '49 230w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown

Sat R of Lit 32:34 Jl 30 '49 140w

DOWNEY, FAIRFAX DAVIS. Dogs of destiny; with pen-and-ink il. by Paul Brown. 186p $2.50 Scribner

636.7 Dogs—Legends and stories 49-6249

Companion volume to Horses of Destiny (Book Review Digest June, 1949). It contains brief stories about dogs, going back to ancient history for some of the stories, and ending with stories of famous dogs of World war II.

Booklist 46:85 N 1 '49

Kirkus 17:327 Jl 1 '49 100w

"Valuable collection containing information not easily found elsewhere. . . Almost purely narrative, however, these stories lack the charm of personalized dog stories." J. M. Smith

+ — Library J 74:1762 N 15 '49 70w

"Mr. Brown's pictures are grand in their variety of mood and background and they are faithful portraiture. He picks out enchanting, amusing, and exciting moments to portray, adding fifty per cent to the charm of the book." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 13 '49 200w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:33 N 12 '49 40w

DOWNEY, FAIRFAX DAVIS, and BROWN, PAUL. Horses of destiny; with pen-and-ink il. by Paul Brown. 186p $2.50 Scribner

636.1 Horses Agr49-420

Stories of famous horses of all times, written for young people. Among the horses included are Bucephalus, charger of Alexander the Great; Caesar's horse; Joan of Arc's charger; Black Bess, highwayman's horse; Justin Morgan; Marengo, Napoleon's favorite; Goldsmith Maid; Traveller, Lee's beloved gray; Commanche, survivor of Custer's last stand; Man O' War.

Booklist 45:298 My 1 '49

"A book for men to share with boys." M. B. King

+ Chicago Sun Ap 23 '49 50w

"The author knows the records and he writes with the enthusiasm of one who understands and loves horses. His stories, brief and clearly told, can be easily read from eight years on, while the dramatic situations which a great horse so often provides and the interesting facts which the author has brought together, will appeal to older boys and girls, and to adults as well." A. T. Eaton

+ Christian Science Monitor p4 Je 30 '49 240w

"True stories all, succinctly told. . . There's surprising unevenness in the quality of the telling. . . But practically any horse book has a sure market, and Paul Brown's drawings guarantee the additional fan market."

+ — Kirkus 17:181 Ap 1 '49 140w

"This book contains valuable information, but the narrative style and skeletal form lack the appeal of personalized horse stories." J. M. Smith

+ — Library J 74:962 Je 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1031 Jl '49 20w

"Paul Brown's sketches, of course, are excellent. . . The style is easily readable by any one over eight, but never childish." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 My 22 '49 140w

"Older children and teen-agers with developed interest in horses and horsebreeding will find in this volume a ready source of information as well as a wide new field for casual browsing in their special subject." Irene Smith

+ N Y Times p22 Je 26 '49 220w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:38 Je 11 '49 80w

Wis Lib Bul 45:90 My '49

DOWS, OLIN. Franklin Roosevelt at Hyde Park; documented drawings and text. 181p il $5 Am. artists

B or 92 Roosevelt, Franklin Delano 49-8383

"An album of drawings and an accompanying text about President Roosevelt's life on his family estate. Mr. Dows, a close friend of the President's and a fellow-member of the Hudson Valley landed gentry, has drawn, from life, memory and imagination, more than a hundred and seventy pictures, most of them intimate scenes of Roosevelt's days at home." New Yorker

Booklist 45:294 My 1 '49

"There is no particular distinction to the writing—it seems almost that of an amateur. But there is a certain rounding of the portrait we know, a filling in of personal and anecdotal material, a feel of the community life. . . There is no attempt to measure values. It is simply the chronicle of a lifelong neighbor and friend."

+ Kirkus 17:193 Ap 1 '49 210w

"The book is an unapologetic sentimental journey into the past, but it convincingly recreates the atmosphere of Hyde Park while Roosevelt lived there, and the drawings have charm."

+ New Yorker 25:104 Ap 23 '49 130w

"This is a lovely book to handle, to look at, and to read." J. T. Winterich

+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 Je 25 '49 100w

"All the circumstances associated with the preparation of this book contribute to its delightful individuality. The 174 illustrations are masterfully reproduced in photogravure and reveal the artist as a modern realist who tempers his realism with a sensitive imagination. His book is an artistic and literary gem." R. S. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 180w

DOYLE, RICHARD. God's Englishmen; the forty drawings from Manners and customs of ye Englyshe: to which be added some extracts from Mr Pips hys diary by Percival Leigh (1849) introduced by Michael Sadleir. 89p $2 Batsford

914.2 England—Social life and customs [49-7545]

"A hundred years ago young Richard Doyle was making a name for himself as a humorous artist. In 1849, besides drawing the cover which Punch still uses, he contributed to that journal the series called 'Manners and Customs of ye Englyshe,' with amusing commentary by Percival Leigh writing as 'Mr. Pips.' The drawings and text, which make brilliant fun of the England of their day, appeared as a book in the same year; and they are here reassembled and presented under the new title God's Englishmen." Publisher's note

Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 14 '49 70w

"Allowing for difference in costume, they would most of them do very well for the English of today. The reason is partly Richard Doyle's gift for catching the essence of character, and partly the character of the English. The Exhibition at the Royal Academy is amusingly up to date in everything but haberdashery; when the band plays in Kensington Gardens it still has an audience nearly related to that on page 33. This hundred-year-old family album could not still be recognizable without a well integrated national character."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Mr 27 '49 270w

"Doyle's scenes are densely populated, but each figure is complete with individuality and expression. Like a candid camera the author sweeps through the audience of a comic play and exposes a score of attitudes with which his country-people face the inescapable fact of humor. . . This is all done gently, with the wry affection with which the English take themselves to pieces. Only in the matter of blood sports does the artist turn caustic." Isabelle Mallet

+ N Y Times p20 Je 5 '49 500w

"The drawings were well worth reviving and make a most entertaining and instructive volume, which could with advantage have been printed on slightly thicker paper."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p118 F 19 '49 550w

DREPPERD, CARL WILLIAM. ABC'S of old glass. 282p il $4 Doubleday
748 Glassware 49-8384

An introduction to the various kinds of glass manufactured in the United States from before the Revolution to the early twentieth century. Arrangement is alphabetical. Illustrated with line drawings.

Booklist 46:331 Je 1 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '49

"Some of the rather arbitrary definitions will find challengers, but on the whole, it should prove an exceedingly useful handbook and reference tool."
+ — Kirkus 17:46 Ja 15 '49 130w

"An informative work. . . Mr. Drepperd knows so much about American glass that it is probably captious to wish that he knew a little more about writing."
+ — New Yorker 25:102 Je 11 '49 90w

"The alphabetical arrangement of the contents makes this book a handy reference for the collector. . . As interesting as the text are the 700 illustrations which include drawings of a Henry Ward Beecher bottle . . . blown seahorse bottles and a Globe-Liberty compote, to name only a few. The introduction, which will be especially helpful to the amateur collector, is written with that ease and sprightliness that has made the reading of Mr. Drepperd's books on antiques a pleasure to all collectors." J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 10 '49 170w

DREPPERD, CARL WILLIAM. Pioneer America: its first three centuries. 311p il $7.50 Doubleday
917.3 U.S.—Social life and customs. Antiques 49-10623

Study of the way in which the "pioneering state of mind" of the American colonists created the objects we now collect as antiques. Copiously illustrated. Bibliographies. No index.

Booklist 46:57; 80 O 15 '49; N 1 '49

"Fascinatingly told."
+ Bookmark 9:26 N '49 40w

Reviewed by W. P. Tryon
Christian Science Monitor p24 N 30 '49 420w

"This is a definite contribution to better understanding of the pioneer scene."
+ Kirkus 17:24 Ja 1 '49 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 27 '49 100w

DRESSER, DAVIS. Call for Michael Shayne, by Brett Halliday [pseud.] 231p $2.50 Dodd 49-10273

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ag 19 '49 220w

"A such-people item with Shayne's ratiocinations the main exhibit." Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ag 21 '49 130w

"Tough-minded himself, Halliday can tell a harsh, rough story with complete conviction. . . It's easy to see why the Shayne stories, while contributing nothing new to the private-eye formula, run well ahead of the field. This latest problem of amnesia, alibis and anguish in Miami Beach is one of the best of the series, admirably paced, rich in action, and as readable as they come." A. B.
+ N Y Times p22 Ag 28 '49 150w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 18 '49 50w

"Satisfactorily hard-boiled."
Sat R of Lit 32:31 Jl 23 '49 50w

"Mike Shayne, Brett Halliday's tough, hard-drinking private detective is at his best in 'Call For Michael Shayne.'" D. F. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p5D S 11 '49 100w

DRESSER, DAVIS. Taste for violence [by] Brett Halliday [pseud]. 215p $2.50 Dodd 49-7838

Detective story.

"Because Halliday has often tended to forget detection in hurly burly, it's pleasant to add that his puzzle here is surprising and well prepared." James Sandoe
+ Chicago Sun Mr 18 '49 90w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 Mr 6 '49 140w

+ N Y Times p28 Ap 3 '49 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p24 Mr 27 '49 80w

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 24 '49 150w

DREW, ELIZABETH A. T. S. Eliot, the design of his poetry. 216p $3 Scribner
811 Eliot, Thomas Stearns 49-1640

"Miss Drew's book is the first detailed chronological survey of all of [Eliot's] poems, omitting only the plays and the light verse. . . The Eliot devotees will be delighted to find restatements, often in a single sentence, of old discoveries that may in their first form have required a whole essay. . . He will find also new observations and elucidations, from 'Mr. Apollinax' to the 'Four Quartets.' . . Miss Drew is aware both of his artistic and his moral ideas. Her poem-by-poem discussions consider the artistic 'design' or drift of his developing thought. She is as interested in 'the mythical vision' as in the mythical 'method,' the subjects of her first two chapters. She traces the stages of Eliot's satiric disgust, revulsion, fear, despair, doubt, belief." N Y Times

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '49

"The distinguishing marks of this volume are the close acquaintance with each of the poetical works and their elucidation in chronological order; and the tying up of the poet's works with the Jungian philosophy and the integration of the personality. While this might be enlightening to some who are not familiar with T. S. Eliot as a poet, or who are insensitive to his poetic appeal, it seems too bad that he is not elucidated in a more penetrating and delicate way. Schools and colleges may find this work useful criticism, but those reading it for purely literary appreciation will not find it rewarding."
Kirkus 16:641 D 1 '48 190w

"The practical value of Elizabeth Drew's elucidation is worthy of applause. It may be taken as a guide in the analysis of individual poems and as a key to a fuller appreciation of the body of his work." Gerald McDonald
+ Library J 74:496 Mr 15 '49 80w

"Miss Drew's book is useful and lucid, astonishingly open considering the complexity of its subject, but as an application of Jungian concepts to the body of Eliot's work it marks merely a beginning." L. A. Fiedler
+ — Nation 169:42 Jl 9 '49 2000w

"The point we have to remember is that Miss Drew has compared Jung's list of images connected with the integration of the personality, and her own list of images to be found in Eliot's poems, and has decided that the two lists are nearly identical. On this subject she might have written an interesting long essay for publication in one of the scholarly reviews; I think she was wrong to make a book of it. . . In this expository field there were better critics before her; and although Miss Drew has added something of value to their researches, she has also added many useless conjectures and a number of what seems to me positive errors." Malcolm Cowley
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Mr 13 '49 340w

"As her other books on poetry have shown, Miss Drew is sensitive to modern originality and variety in poetry. But also she insists on understanding and being understood, preferably in good clear English." D. A. Stauffer
+ N Y Times p27 Mr 27 '49 500w

"Except for the fact that she has gratuitously dragged in a number of parallels between Eliot's symbology and the unconscious images described by Jung and his school, it must be admitted that she has pretty well brought off the job."

+ — New Yorker 25:123 Ap 9 '49 100w

"In Miss Drew's analysis of the poems one feels at times that more novel and valid interpretations would have been more stimulating. Her analysis of The Waste Land combines Brooks and Mesterton; her Gerontion makes little advance over Miss Bailey; and her Sweeney Among the Nightingales emphasizes her more undisciplined moments. Perhaps, too, even the sacred wood can be obscured by the trees. But in general, within the limitations of her method, her analyses give illuminating results; her failures are commonly the result of overlooking elements to which her method did not direct attention. Even where we cannot agree, her interpretations provide a means of testing our understanding of the poems. Finally, her book must be put down as a positive gain to the reader of Eliot, when the psychic graph does not distort the poem." George Williamson

+ — Poetry 75:112 N '49 420w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril

San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 29 '49 270w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 32:9 Mr 12 '49 750w

DREWRY, CARLETON. Sounding summer. 64p $2.75 Dutton

811 48-8594

A collection of lyric poems by an American poet. "The close connection of man with the earth, the mystical meaning of earth and its beauty, the depth and sadness of love—these things pervade the volume." (Publisher's note)

"An easy mellifluous music, some grace, nothing scary, not an ounce of viciousness—and very sincere." Rolfe Humphries

+ Nation 167:731 D 25 '48 30w

"Rich, rounded feeling and fastidious craftsmanship are consistently present in the poems of Carleton Drewry. In recent years a poem of his in a magazine was a rewarding place to stop; the experience of reading it was satisfactory. Gathered now, in the sixty-four pages of 'Sounding Summer,' they constitute a quietly distinguished record of a sensitive and thoughtful man's experience—his encounter with forms of nature and forms of thought." David Morton

+ N Y Times p36 Je 19 '49 290w

"His better poems are marked by a clear philosophic concept, and a sober spiritual intention. His less successful poems are inclined to be conceits, and reveal the pat phrase of an easy rhetoric. . . But at his best, and the level is consistently high, Carleton Drewry is a commendable lyric poet, a maker of quiet music, and the unusual epithet." A. M. S.

+ Sat R of Lit 32:25 Ja 22 '49 180w

DROOZ, MRS IRMA GROSS. Doctor of medicine. 308p $3 Dodd

B or 92 Physicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-8703

Autobiography of a young woman doctor, which shows the steps in her education which may be a help to others who wish to follow her profession. She is now a neuro-psychiatrist, and lives in Brooklyn.

Booklist 45:318 My 15 '49

"Highly recommended, especially for high school and young people's collections." J. L. Ross

+ Library J 74:658 Ap 15 '49 100w

Library J 74:1559 O 15 '49 60w

Reviewed by Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ag 7 '49 360w

"Told with wit and dash. Evidently being a specialist in neuro-psychiatry has not killed Dr. Drooz's sense of humor." I. W. Voorhees

+ N Y Times p12 Je 26 '49 320w

"Irma Gross Drooz, M.D., relates with humor, warmth, and intelligence the process of realizing her life-long ambition to become a doctor. . . Her story is full of entertaining human anecdotes and interesting medical facts, and provokes admiration for the author and others like her. Extremely lively reading, it is a book for prospective medical students, doctors, and non-medical readers alike." A. L. Zinsser

+ Springf'd Republican p6D My 22 '49 120w

DRUMMOND, ALEXANDER MAGNUS, and GARD, ROBERT EDWARD. Cardiff giant; with The Cardiff giant: a chapter in the history of human folly, 1869-1870, by Andrew D. White. 114p $2.25 Cornell univ. press

812 49-9668

In 1869 a New York farmer dug out of a hillside a gigantic figure and thus began a nine days' wonder—was the figure a petrified giant of prehistoric times, an ancient statue, or—a hoax. This volume contains a play written and produced under the New York State Plays project, based on the story of the Cardiff Giant hoax. In addition the book contains an article on the subject written in 1905 by Andrew D. White, first president of Cornell University, who had interested himself in exposing the hoax.

Reviewed by George Freedley

Library J 74:1100 Ag '49 50w

"At the back of the book is reprinted from Andrew D. White's autobiography his sober account of this famous hoax. Reading it, and recalling 'The Man Who Corrupted Hadleyberg,' one thinks what a biting comedy Mark Twain could have made of this theme by concentrating on character and motive. Instead, there is about the circus-like farcing of the two professors what seems like a self-conscious condescension of 'folk' audiences, and the satire the theme cries out for evaporates in historical pageantry." W. P. Eaton

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Jl 17 '49 230w

DRUMMOND, VIOLET H. Flying postman; il. by [the author]. [48p] $1 Houghton

49-7589

Picture-storybook about an English postman who delivered mail from a helicopter and did stunts for the children on the side. When one of his stunts landed his helicopter in the church tower he was discharged. However, his wife's special brand of pink ice cream so pleased the Postmaster-General that Mr Musgrove finally was forgiven and reinstated.

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 25:129 Mr '49 80w

"Amusing story and hilarious illustrations will appeal to six to nine-year-olds. Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges

+ Library J 74:555 Ap 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 My 8 '49 60w

"A slight but satisfying story. The illustrations are sophisticated in line, brilliant in tone and very funny." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p24 Mr 13 '49 90w

"This is a good story. The pictures, printed in bright colors, are lively and amusing." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:43 F 12 '49 170w

DRUMMOND, VIOLET H. Miss Anna Truly; il. by [the author]. 40p $2 Houghton

49-5471

Anna, aged six, is sent off to London to consult with the king about some disputed land between her father's property and the property of Mr Purse. The gay adventures of the child and the friends she picks up on the way are illustrated with small colored drawings. For ages six to eight.

DRUMMOND, V. H.—Continued

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun O 29 '49 220w

Reviewed by Agatha Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 D 4 '49 30w

+ Horn Bk 25:405 S '49 70w

"Completely satisfying nonsense which the author's illustrations make even more enchanting. Original and refreshing story for six-eight-year-olds that reminds this reviewer of A. A. Milne." M. J. Meade
+ Library J 74:1333 S 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker
Library J 74:1533 O 15 '49 30w

"The utter silliness of the tale may not prove as funny to American children as it would to English ones. But Miss Drummond's pictures are irresistible; the more you look at their delicate lines the more laughs you see. The pages are pretty, with their many gay colors, but you discover they are full of caricature. The train that went to sleep, the picnic on Albermarle Street, the masks at the ball, all are very funny." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 O 2 '49 180w

"All these happy absurdities are recounted in a matter-of-fact gravity that emphasizes their essential merriment, as do the funny, sketchy pictures." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p58 N 20 '49 180w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:27 N 12 '49 50w

DRYDEN, CECIL. Up the Columbia for furs; il. by E. Joseph Dreany. 309p $4 Caxton printers

917.95 Fur trade. Columbia river. Cox, Ross. Ross, Alexander. Northwest, Pacific 49-9021

"This book contains the true experiences of two fur traders who braved the dangers of the forest, Indian attacks, and the whims of a big river—all for furs and high adventure, and the hope of riches. These men are Ross Cox and Alexander Ross who hunted furs on the Columbia during the years 1812 to 1821." Pref

Kirkus 17:167 Mr 15 '49 120w

"The book should be especially useful to young people who would know about the Indians, animals and pioneering of the Columbia Basin, without having to struggle through dry texts to do so." R. L. Neuberger
+ N Y Times p12 Jl 24 '49 350w

"Their observations of aboriginal life and character are interestingly frank and objective. Striking illustrations." E. G. E.
+ Springf'd Republican p8B S 18 '49 60w

DRYER, BERNARD VICTOR. Port Afrique. 237p $2.50 Harper
49-8511

A novel of love, mystery and intrigue laid in French Africa in the immediate post-war days.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun My 6 '49 180w

"A sultry, often stormy excitement here gives this its high score on readability."
+ Kirkus 17:95 F 15 '49 150w

"Mr. Dryer tells a suspense story which runs a rather familiar course against a fresh, new background. The characters are stock, but the suspense is there, nevertheless."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 My 22 '49 240w

"Mr. Dryer's hero suffers in comparison with the condottieri of Hammet and Chandler, who originated the diet of rough amours, beatings and whisky as a fit regimen for the dauntless. But the pace, background and unexpected dénouement lift 'Port Afrique' above the average for novels of this genre." L. M. Parrott
+ — N Y Times p22 My 1 '49 200w

"The ingredients of 'Port Afrique' are well worn—though they have worn well—but such is Mr. Dryer's skill as a teller of tales that these ingredients are burnished so brightly that they give the appearance of being brand new." V. P. Hass
+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 Ap 30 '49 750w

DUBLIN, LOUIS ISRAEL, and others. Length of life; a study of the life table. rev ed 379p $7 Ronald

312 Longevity. Mortality. Statistics 49-6170

"A completely rewritten and enlarged edition of the authors' earlier work on the same subject [Book Review Digest 1936]. The new volume, which will be of great value not only to those in the insurance field but also to medical, public-health and social workers, brings together information on the duration of human life and what affects it. The relations between longevity and sex, age, marital status, body build, physical condition, medical history, occupation and family history are all discussed. The book surveys the improvements in longevity and public health from ancient times to the present and has a new chapter on forecasts for the future. In the appendix are life tables for all of the 48 states and most of the countries of the world and a long bibliography." (Special Libraries) Indexes.

"In the rewriting, a good book has been made still better. . . Many vigorous years have been added to the length of life of the book by the new edition." Margaret Merrell
+ Am J Pub Health 39:1480 N '49 320w
+ Am Soc R 14:824 D '49 170w
+ Special Libraries 40:345 O '49 180w
Survey 86:47 Ja '50 20w

DU BOIS, CORA ALICE. Social forces in southeast Asia. 78p $2.50; text ed $2 Univ. of Minn.

309.159 Asia, Southeastern—Social conditions
49-428

"Before World War II Dr. Du Bois was anthropologist at Sarah Lawrence College. During the war she was associated with the Office of Strategic Services in charge of Indonesian and south Asian research, with headquarters at Kandy, Ceylon. . . [In these lectures she] considers the impact of European colonization on the region, analyzes the tensions created by value differences between East and West, and offers predictions on the course Southeast Asia will take in the future." Publisher's note

"Social Forces in Southeast Asia is an excellent introduction to a rich and varied cultural area; the book arouses a strong desire in the reader for more analysis from the same pen." J. F. Embree + Am Anthropol 51:489 Jl '49 700w

Reviewed by J. H. Boeke
Am J Soc 55:201 S '49 420w

"Though brief, the volume is a good introduction to the subject, and an excellent commentary on the nature of area studies in general."
+ Am Soc R 14:330 Ap '49 70w

"The volume is suggestive, and all persons interested in southeastern Asia will read it with pleasure and profit." Amry Vandenbosch
+ Ann Am Acad 264:140 Jl '49 240w

"Dr. DuBois is an anthropologist of note who writes without jargon, without pretension, and without obsessive theory. She has kept her eyes and her mind open, her imagination and heart warm but disciplined." R. P.
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 F 17 '49 800w
Foreign Affairs 28:170 O '49 20w
Kirkus 17:19 Ja 1 '49 160w

"This is a small book, but it is an eminently wise and important one." R. G. C.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 F 20 '49 320w

Reviewed by Edgar Snow
Sat R of Lit 32:21 My 14 '49 1050w
School & Society 69:214 Mr 19 '49 80w

"Here in seventy-eight pages is a succinct, lucid, and highly intelligent work which could have been made even more compact by eliminating the generalizations contained in the opening section." Virginia Thompson
+ Survey 85:182 Mr '49 350w

DU BOIS, MRS THEODORA (MCCORMICK). It's raining violence. 217p $2.25 Doubleday 49-11672

Detective story.

Kirkus 17:563 O 1 '49 70w

"Amusing dialogue and good characterization makes this new McNeill mystery one of Miss Du Bois's best."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p42 D 4 '49 200w

"This story is by no means as suspenseful and exciting as the author's 'Rogue's Coat,' but it is well above average, none the less." Elizabeth Bullock
N Y Times p25 D 11 '49 180w

"Fast and gay, with a good, intricate plot."
+ New Yorker 25:135 N 26 '49 140w

DU BOIS, MRS THEODORA (MCCORMICK). Rogue's coat. 189p $2.25 Doubleday 49-8962

An adventure novel with a Florida setting.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Je 10 '49 70w

Kirkus 17:161 Mr 15 '49 100w

"By introducing romance, the author hasn't altered the adventurous pace of 'Rogue's Coat.' It goes on its suspenseful way to the end with only once in a while an overly sentimental line of dialogue or an overly feminine adjective to mar it. But these are trivial flaws, indeed, in what is otherwise an exciting book." Elizabeth Bullock
+ N Y Times p11 Je 12 '49 200w

"Very brisk stuff, if a little haphazard."
New Yorker 25:120 My 21 '49 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p26 Je 26 '49 100w

"Exciting."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:36 Je 4 '49 40w

DUDLEY, EDMUND. Tree of commonwealth; a treatise; ed. with an introd. by D. M. Brodie. 111p $2.25 Macmillan (for the Cambridge univ press)

320.1 Political science. State, The [49-2676]

Edmund Dudley, born in 1462, was an English student of law, who entered the service of Henry VII in 1504. On the king's death he was imprisoned in the Tower and executed in 1510. His The Tree of Commonwealth was written while he was in prison, and is an expression of his political and social views. This edition has been edited from several manuscripts. There is a biographical introduction. Index.

"An extremely competent and scholarly job of editing a text of which there are several manuscripts, involving minor variations. . . Nevertheless, while such editions are always to be welcomed as raw material for the writing of the history of political institutions, so long overdue, this particular book will probably be of interest only to the specialists in the period, with the possible exception of the amateur antiquarian who enjoys quaint phraseology and spelling, and the way in which modern issues and ideas peeped out from behind antique language and ancient forms." T. I. Cook
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:399 Ap '49 550w

"The book well deserves the study of anyone interested in politics generally, or in the politics of the early sixteenth century."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p615 S 23 '49 1100w

DUDLEY, RUTH. Hank and the kitten; pictures by Louis Darling. 62p $2 Morrow 49-9997

Hank, the puppy, resented his master's kitten. When the kitten was chased up a tree by a big dog, Hank, safe at home, realized how much he missed her companionship and effected a rescue. For ages 4-8.

"There is nothing especially new in this amusing little story . . . but it is a welcome addition to the books for beginning readers because it is engagingly told, expressively illustrated, and set in very large type."
Booklist 46:15 S 1 '49

Chicago Sun S 17 '49 70w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p12 S 27 '49 180w

"Louis Darling's delightful black and white drawings are full of action and uncluttered, and reproduction in both pictures and type is refreshingly sharp."
+ Kirkus 17:358 Jl 15 '49 90w

"Recommended." M. A. Webb
+ Library J 74:1207 S 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 25 '49 100w

"Hank's feelings after the kitten is lost are not quite convincing in the light of his great dislike for it before the incident. It is a pity that what started out to be a warm and simple realistic story should strike this false note, especially since the black-and-white illustrations are so nicely done." Elena Baker
+ — N Y Times p40 S 11 '49 140w

Springf'd Republican p8B S 18 '49 60w

DUFOURNIER, DENISE. Ravensbrück; the women's camp of death, pref. by Maurice Schumann [tr. by F. W. McPherson]. 150p $2.50 Macmillan (for Allen, G.)

940.547 World war, 1939-1945—Prisoners and prisons. World war, 1939-1945—Atrocities. Ravensbrück (concentration camp) 48-9332

A French woman's account of her life at the women's concentration camp at Ravensbrück, from early in 1944 until the end of the war.

"It is an odd volume for several reasons, but oddest perhaps in its undesigned revelations about its author; for it is less like the straightforward, journalistic accounts of Nazi brutality than like a diary which your primmest DAR aunt might have kept had she been captured by the Germans. The prose, to begin with, is strictly Victorian, full of sentiments. . . The revelations about the camp are made with honesty but without frankness; we get a general picture and feeling of the place without the accumulation of specific details which would make us live the author's dreadful experience with her." V. B.
San Francisco Chronicle p25 D 12 '48 250w

"Hers is a simple, persuasive, unremarkable record, of which the more purely descriptive features are by this time widely known."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p396 Jl 17 '48 60w

DU GARD, ROGER MARTIN. See Martin du Gard, R.

DUGGAN, ANNE SCHLEY, and others. Folk dance library. 5v il col pl maps $15 Barnes, A. S.

793.31 Dancing—Folk and national dances
49-168

"Each volume in this Folk Dance Library gives the reader directions, diagrams, and floor patterns, music, a discussion of the development of the dances in their particular countries, and is illustrated with colored plates of national costumes and maps. In the first volume (The Teaching of Folk Dance) the authors discuss the basic principles for teaching folk dancing and give suggestions for the production of folk festivals and dances. The other four volumes deal with particular countries [Scandinavia, European countries, British Isles, United States and Mexico]." (Library J) Bibliographies.

DUGGAN, A. S.—Continued

Reviewed by Margaret Lord
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 8 '49 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '49

"Authors are good teachers and know their dances. In their historical and sociological remarks, however, they show themselves sometimes to be ill-informed and not always discriminating. Teachers will find the books useful." Maria Cimino
+ — Library J 74:668 Ap 15 '49 200w

"Attractive printing, as well as authoritative writing, are features of the collection." Rosalyn Krokover
+ Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ap 30 '49 150w

DUGGAN, LAURENCE. The Americas; the search for hemisphere security; foreword by Herschel Brickell. 242p $3 Holt

327.73 Latin America—Foreign relations—U.S. U.S.—Foreign relations—Latin America 49-48265

Posthumously published survey of the interrelationships of the United States and the Latin American countries by a former member of the Department of State. Index.

Bookmark 9:77 Ja '50 40w

"Here is the most authoritative postwar volume, and a handy one at that, on inter-American affairs. But the authoritative advantages may prove to be offset by the lack of judgment as to just what the record adds up to. . . In effect, the restatement of the Welles theme by Mr. Duggan serves principally to satisfy Republican and conservative critics of the Truman Administration and, curiously, also to satisfy Communist propagandists that the Big Neighbor had forsaken the little neighbors. After making whatever discount may be justified, this volume remains a contribution to the field of inter-American cooperation. Mr. Duggan makes a superb summary of the social and historical background of the 21 republics, and his synopsis of inter-American conferences, 1826-1948, is a notable service to citizen and scholar." R. K. Shellaby
+ — Christian Science Monitor p18 N 18 '49 650w

"An argumentative book for experts in the field."
Kirkus 17:497 S 1 '49 180w

Reviewed by Joseph Borome
+ Library J 74:1316 S 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by Scott Seegers
Nation 170:40 Ja 14 '50 1150w

Reviewed by Hubert Herring
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 N 27 '49 1600w

"An able and intelligent guide to the history, developments and still unfulfilled possibilities of the United States' relations with its Latin-American neighbors." B. A. Cohen
+ N Y Times p7 N 6 '49 750w

"The late Laurence Duggan's book, which he had virtually completed at the time of his death last December, wastes little time deploring this situation. Instead, it offers a sense-making blueprint for the United States in its inter-American relations regardless of the intensity with which they are conducted. From the man who in his short but brilliant career in the State Department rose to be both chief of the Division of American Republics and political adviser to the Secretary of State on Inter-American affairs, it is a lastingly useful testament." Duncan Aikman
+ Sat R of Lit 32:14 N 19 '49 800w

DUGGAN, STEPHEN PIERCE HAYDEN, and DRURY, BETTY. Rescue of science and learning; the story of the Emergency committee in aid of displaced foreign scholars. 214p $3 Macmillan

378.12 Emergency committee in aid of displaced foreign scholars. World war, 1939-1945—Displaced persons. Learning and scholarship 48-4595

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"An important part of the book consists of the individual reports as given by the scholars themselves and the heads of the institutions concerned. Their personal experiences shed light on the adjustability of individuals who had to cope, each in his own way, with the difficulties of a totally changed social and personal life situation. . . The authors, characterizing their book as a work of love, do not conceal their admiration for these foreign scientists and their achievements in the new country, including contributions to the war effort." Karl Birnbaum
+ Ann Am Acad 261:196 Ja '49 340w

Reviewed by C. L. Willard
Churchman 163:15 D 1 '49 130w

Foreign Affairs 27:505 Ap '49 30w

"The report has special value to students of educational policy, of relief and rehabilitation, of comparative cultures, and of the institutions and attitudes of the people of the United States."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:65 Mr '49 300w

DUGO, ANDRE, pseud. See Szenes, A.

DUHAMEL, GEORGES. Suzanne [and] Joseph [two novels from the Pasquier chronicles] tr. from the French by Beatrice De Holthoir. 2bks in 1 346p $3.50 Holt

49-7189

Two additional novels of the author's chronicles of the Pasquier family. In the first Suzanne Pasquier, a lovely and talented actress, is the chief character; in the second her older brother, Joseph, a pompous business man, is featured.

Booklist 45:210 F 15 '49

"In the strongly contrasting pictures of Suzanne, the actress, and Joseph, the ambitious millionaire speculator, there is all the author's sureness of touch, subtlety of delineation, and insight into human nature, which loses remarkably little in Miss de Holthoir's skillful translation. . . Yet what one looks for in France of today is a new, more hopeful, less earth-bound outlook, colored by some of the nobility and 'lift' that appeared in the literature of the 'Résistence.'" H. J. S.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 F 8 '49 600w

Kirkus 16:643 D 15 '48 150w

Reviewed by L. R. Miller
Library J 74:59 Ja 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
— New Repub 120:24 Ja 24 '49 420w

"Both Suzanne and Joseph are actually Parisians of the 1920s, real people interacting with others in scenes and events that have the quality of life as we know or would like to know it. . . The beautifully precise observation of the scientist, the concrete and imaginative perception of the poet, and the tranquillity and wisdom of a man who can look at people clear-eyed and still find living good and sometimes gay have gone into the creation of these and the other characters. Their stories are told in glowing, close-textured prose almost as exciting as the matter of the book. It will be a captious or jaded reader of novels, indeed, who does not find 'Suzanne and Joseph' a delight." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 F 13 '49 550w

"If, as the publishers say it does, 'Suzanne and Joseph' really brings the Pasquier series to a close, it is a most abrupt and melancholy close, without a coda, or resolution of themes. The rich experiences of the Pasquiers—much of it autobiographical or based on identifiable figures Duhamel has known—leads to no such spiritual recovery, no such finding of the long and difficultly sought, as in the great climaxes of Proust's 'In Remembrance of Things Past' and Mann's Joseph series. Instead, Duhamel's conclusion reflects the bleak gloom of the war year in which the final volume was published." R. G. Davis

N Y Times p20 Ja 23 '49 1000w

Reviewed by John Broderick
New Yorker 24:64 Ja 29 '49 750w

Reviewed by Vance Bourjaily
San Francisco Chronicle p20 F 13 '49 350w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 32:11 F 26 '49 900w

DU JARDIN, MRS ROSAMOND (NEAL). Practically seventeen. 213p $2.50 Lippincott 49-10520

Written in the first person, this is the story of Tobey Heydon's seventeenth year, her relations with her family—understanding parents, not-so-understanding sisters—and her own love affairs.

Booklist 46:37 S 15 '49

"Books in the first person are traditionally hard to put across, but in Practically Seventeen the 'I' technique produces a welcome spontaneity." Esther Gorey
+ Library J 74:1550 O 15 '49 50w

"A pleasant and frothy story that most girls of 12-15 will love, but some will consider Tobey silly and immature." Eleanor Kidder
Library J 74:1682 N 1 '49 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 29 '50 90w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:31 N 12 '49 30w

DUKE, MRS JANE (TAYLOR). Kenmore and the Lewises; foreword by Harry Flood Byrd. 268p il $4.50 Doubleday
975.5366 Kenmore mansion, Fredericksburg, Virginia. Lewis family 49-8668

Kenmore was the name of the beautiful Virginia estate of Fielding Lewis, and his wife Betty, who was George Washington's sister. This account is based on letters, family papers and diaries. Illustrated with photographs by Harry Bagby. Index.

Booklist 45:390 Jl 15 '49

"A speciality book but an account worthy of its subject."
+ Kirkus 17:128 Mr 1 '49 120w

"Mrs. Duke has made good use of original sources, including the papers presently lodged in the Kenmore Museum; but some of her printed sources are less reliable than others and have led her to repeat certain possibilities as facts. . . 'Kenmore and the Lewises' is an excellent piece of Virginiana, the fullest account to date, and does justice to an historic house of many virtues." E. H. Smith
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Jl 9 '49 320w

DULLES, FOSTER RHEA. Labor in America; a history. (Growth of America ser) 402p $4.50 Crowell
331 Trade unions—U.S. Labor and laboring classes—U.S. 49-8443

"Tells the full story of the growth of the organized labor movement in the United States from its colonial backgrounds through passage of the Taft-Hartley Act. It is written with an historical objectivity that gives full recognition to labor's aims and aspirations without ignoring its responsibility in helping to maintain national economic and political stability. The author, who is professor of American History at Ohio State University at Columbus, has no association with either organized labor or industrial management." (Special Libraries) Bibliographical notes. Index.

"The book provides an accurate, clearly written, sympathetic account of the developments the author has chosen to narrate. In the reviewer's judgment, it is an account that an intelligent newspaper reader would have gathered over the years; and here that record is summarized in pleasing prose for refurbishing insecure memories." C. B. Hagan
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:1281 D '49 550w

Booklist 45:385 Jl 15 '49

"It should prove a standard work for many years to come. Its note of authority, its clarity and conciseness, its dramatic value point to the fact that the author's newspaper training stands in good stead in his current role as professor of American history at Ohio State."
+ Kirkus 17:100 F 15 '49 210w

"This is clearly destined to take its place on the shelf alongside Commons. In most collections, it will be far more useful. Sufficiently detailed to present the picture, not too detailed for general use. Clearly and objectively written. Substantially documented. . . Important for most collections." R. E. Kingery
+ Library J 74:659 Ap 15 '49 80w

"Professor Dulles has managed to crowd the whole sweep of American labor history into fewer than 400 pages. It is a masterpiece of condensation. . . For those who want to learn with minimum investment of time and effort how organized labor got to be what it is, this book should prove most valuable. For those who feel there is no hope, it will be better than an aspirin—or a stomach pump." A. H. Raskin
+ Nation 168:588 My 21 '49 450w

"A brilliant synthesis of the vast literature on the American labor movement has been contributed by Foster Rhea Dulles in his volume 'Labor in America.' To one who was raised on John R. Commons' monumental works this book is a joy. . . Perhaps the refreshing character of this book stems from the fact that it has been written by a historian, rather than an economist, and Mr. Dulles seemingly has not felt compelled to weave any special brand of economic theory into the chronicle of events." Elinore Herrick
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 My 1 '49 1650w

"Professor Dulles' book, written in direct and sometimes lively style, is a 'straight' chronological history of incidents, personalities and struggles. There is a minimum of interpretation, and no new patterns are imposed on the historical material. Anyone interested in the long road which American trade-unionism has traveled—from the sporadic strikes of skilled craftsmen before 1800 to the AFL and CIO of today—could find no better volume." George Soule
+ N Y Times p21 Je 5 '49 550w

"For the person who has no previous knowledge of organized labor in America, Dulles has written a useful volume. Any one-volume study of so vast a subject quite naturally has its limitations. . . The book is largely devoid of analytic material which might have explained the whys and wherefores of organization. Moreover, such analysis would probably give the new student or the general public, to whom the book is addressed, a better understanding of the American labor movement even if the inclusion of such material would have necessitated further condensation of the mass of factual data presented in the book. On the other hand, it is no easy task for an author to determine what should be included and what excluded when he is faced with the mass of available material about the American labor movement." H. R. Northrup
+ — Pol Sci Q 64:637 D '49 380w

"Serene, concise, and well proportioned account." L. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 8 '49 300w

"In the form in which they have been published best, the annals of trade unionism in America fill more than 5,000 pages of fine type. Obviously, to condense such a history into a single volume of reasonable length is a formidable task. Professor Dulles has come close to bringing it off. That he has failed is not an indication that he is unfamiliar with our native labor movement. Rather, it seems to show that a comprehensive account of the development of American trade unions will not fit between the covers of any one book." Wellington Roe

DULLES, F. R.—Continued
Sat R of Lit 32:12 Jl 30 '49 850w

+ Special Libraries 40:187 My '49 100w

Reviewed by S. B. Shear
Springf'd Republican p7C N 6 '49 230w

DUNBABIN, THOMAS JAMES. Western Greeks; the history of Sicily and south Italy from the foundation of the Greek colonies to 480 B.C. 504p maps $11 Oxford

937.7 Greece—Colonies 49-7091

"Mr. Dunbabin begins his book with an account of the establishment of the Greek colonies in Sicily and South Italy. This account should be read together with the discussion on chronology which is found at the end as an appendix, for the chronology of the establishment of these Greek colonies is still a controversial matter. . . The history of Sicily becomes a connective narrative only from 510, and for the period between this date and 480 the careers of the tyrants of Gela, Hippocrates and Gelon, constitute its central theme. The careers of these two powerful individuals, therefore, form the concluding chapters of Dunbabin's book, but there are also three appendixes. One deals with the chronology of the establishment of the colonies; the other two are compilations of objects, with bibliographical references, imported from Rhodes, Athens, and other east Greek centers. In addition, there is a genealogical table of the Deinomenids and another of the Emmenids and four chronological tables." Am Hist R

"The index is neither complete nor analytical, and the bibliography is a select, not a full one. . . Mr. Dunbabin has written a most scholarly book. If there are points with which one may disagree, they are points which concern principally matters of emphasis and interpretation, not matters of fact." Peter Charanis
+ — Am Hist R 54:567 Ap '49 1050w

"Mr. Dunbabin has written an elaborate and authoritative survey of a field of ancient Greek history on which there are few English books available. . . Mr. Dunbabin's work is concerned not merely to coordinate archaeological minutiae but to provide a perspective for his subject as an item in world history."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p55 Ja 22 '49 750w

DUNBAR, CARL OWEN. Historical geology. 567p il maps $5 Wiley

551.7 Geology. Paleontology 49-8024

"This work is a revision of Textbook of Geology, Part II, Historical Geology, fourth edition, by the author and the late Charles Schuchert (New York, 1941). Written for use in a beginning course in historical geology, it offers a survey of the physical and biological changes on the earth from the earliest records to the time of prehistoric man, with emphasis on the North American continent. The organization is the same as that of Textbook of Geology, with the exception of the prologue, which has been rearranged. The text has been reworded in parts and recent advances in the field have been included." (N Y New Tech Bks) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 45:356 Je 15 '49

N Y New Tech Bks 34:6 Ja '49

DUNBAR, HELEN FLANDERS. Your child's mind and body; a practical guide for parents. 324p $2.95 Random house

136.7 Children—Management. Child study 49-8743

"Psychosomatic illness can often be traced to roots in an unhappy childhood and this psychiatrist's practical answers to the many questions asked her can be used as a guide to the care and raising of both parent and child. Her method consists of stating the problem, reviewing good and poor ways of handling it, predicting the adolescent aftermath, and giving a résumé of positive thinking on the subject. A table of reference is appended which covers the emotional problems occurring between the ages of one month and seven years." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:329 Je 1 '49

Reviewed by M. R. Sapirstein
Nation 169:43 Jl 9 '49 190w

"The parent who is disturbed by . . . certain phases of Dr. Dunbar's counsel, may be reminded that in our present imperfect state of knowledge it is not uncommon to find psychiatrists taking widely opposed stands, and that many of their convictions stem from experience, not with children, but with adults recalling how they felt as children. Actually, we have only a moderate body of research dealing with children, and until we know more about childhood than we do, parents will have to pick their way through the cross-fire of opinion and decide for themselves how much of it makes sense." Catherine MacKenzie
N Y Times p12 Je 5 '49 360w

"All through this work is found a sanity of approach which is a tribute to the developing science of 'psychosomaticiatry.' The work is of potential use to parents, as well as students in family and marriage courses, and since [the author] is a physician, ought to find wide acceptance in medical libraries and doctors' offices." C. C. Zimmerman
+ Sat R of Lit 32:11 My 7 '49 270w

"Flanders Dunbar, who is already widely known for her book on psychosomatic medicine, 'Mind and Body,' has written a book for parents in which she touches on all the important problems a parent will meet sooner or later in the difficult and all-inclusive job of being a parent. However, because many common problems of childhood have been discussed widely by other writers, Dr. Dunbar has attempted to answer the 'little' questions about children which most other authors leave unanswered." E. B. Hurlock
+ Sat R of Lit 32:39 S 10 '49 330w

Reviewed by Edward Liss
Survey 85:396 Jl '49 460w

DUNCAN, DAVID. Madrone tree. 230p $3 Macmillan

49-7289

Psychological mystery story.

"A rather clever combination of superstition and fetish as it surrounds criminal impulse and investigation, this is nonetheless for special tastes. And a double sale in the mystery market."
Kirkus 16:627 D 1 '48 130w

"At a $2 price, this would be a mystery novel, although an unconventional one in depth and texture. Tentatively recommended." E. F. Walbridge
Library J 74:59 Ja 1 '49 80w

"Two murders, quantities of Mithraic symbols and love come into a picturesque and sometimes goofy puzzle narrated in strictly whodunit prose." Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 Ja 30 '49 230w

"Being a student of relentless logic, the author takes care to put each individual and his repressions under the microscope—which makes the pace considerably more sluggish than the run of mysteries, but also makes his story more meaningful than most." H. B. Parker
N Y Times p30 F 13 '49 150w

"If we were asked to name the most elegant thriller of the new year, we wouldn't hesitate for one second. Right! 'The Madrone Tree.'" E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ja 30 '49 200w

"Mr. Duncan does have a facility for neat construction, and it must be said that he winds up a number of incredible events into surface plausibility. But his allegory seems curiously old-fashioned these days. Freudian psychology for purposes of mystification has been much better used by others, notably by Helen Eustis in 'The Horizontal Man.' On the other hand, if one wants to read this simply as a story of suspense, the unraveling of some seemingly supernatural events can keep one guessing." Hollis Alpert

— + Sat R of Lit 32:18 Ja 29 '49 550w

"A mystery that is as weird as it is exciting." Ethel Dexter

+ Springf'd Republican p10B F 13 '49 190w

DUNCAN, GEORGE SIMPSON. Jesus, son of man; studies contributory to a modern portrait. 290p $3.50 Macmillan (for Nisbet)

232.9 Jesus Christ—Character 49-7226

"Professor Duncan bids us resume the quest for the Jesus of history, and offers us a series of valuable studies subsidiary to a modern portrait. In a brief first part he justifies the resumption of the quest and relates the teaching of Jesus to its background in Judaism. The second part is concerned with the person of Jesus." (Spec) Indexes.

"This is good historical writing and is an example of the association of theology with history." R. C. Miller

+ Churchman 163:17 S 15 '49 120w

Reviewed by S. V. McCasland

Crozer Q 26:261 Jl '49 650w

"The arrangement of his material is admirable. It marshals the findings of scholars in support of his general theses, but he never loses the reader in a maze of technical detail. This is primarily a volume for ministers and others who wish to see what the rival and often conflicting claims of theological scholars involve for their conception of the central figure of our Christian faith."

+ Kirkus 17:56 F 1 '49 240w

"The main section of Professor Duncan's book, as well as the third part which deals with Jesus and the Church, is full of fresh observations and independent judgments. Not all the conclusions presented will be accepted, but this contribution to a modern portrait of Jesus will be welcomed alike by the specialist scholar and the general reader." H. G. Wood

+ Spec 180:444 Ap 9 '48 650w

"There are numerous points of detail on which Dr. Duncan's book sheds new and often brilliant light; in general, it is not too much to say that we have here a piece of work which, both for far-reaching comprehensive vision and for acute insight into the details of the picture, will do much to advance the study of its great subject."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p586 O 16 '48 900w

DUNCAN, WINIFRED. Webs in the wind; the habits of web-weaving spiders; il. by the author. 387p $4.50 Ronald

595.44 Spiders 49-11518

"Miss Duncan's book is a natural history of one particular group of spiders. . . As such, it recounts both her original observations and methods of studying her friends (and she does look upon her spiders with some affection), and is illustrated with many black and white line drawings." San Francisco Chronicle

"The writing is cast in an intimate, personalized style which bears little relation to the usual language of scientific reports. Whether viewed as a contribution to the knowledge of spiders or as an example of amateur scientific observing, the book ranks among the best."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 34:105 N '49

"Written in a free journal style somewhat after the manner of Fabre. . . At times the informality is a bit precious. . . It is to be hoped that her original observations are more reliable than her information about sea-spiders, which is, to say the least, haphazard and confused, with some strange mistakes." J.W.H.

San Francisco Chronicle p20 N 27 '49 180w

DUNCOMBE, FRANCES. Ghost of Garnet lodge; il. by Mary Stevens. 255p $2.50 Sloane

49-11176

Mystery story for older girls.

"Likable, plausible story."

+ Kirkus 17:557 O 1 '49 100w

"Convincing background of mountains and snow and good characterization place this above the average mystery story for older girls. Recommended." R. O. Bostwick

+ Library J 74:1919 D 15 '49 70w

"A fresh, well written story." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:30 N 12 '49 30w

DUNHAM, ARTHUR. Working with plastics. 225p il $3.50 McGraw

745.59 Plastics 48-9577

Textbook giving general information about plastics. "Basic operations involved in working with two kinds of plastics, cast phenolic and acrylic which includes lucite and plexiglass showing projects from simple to complex ones with explicit directions. Basic information on design and color. List of tools and equipment needed with information of safety. Glossary of terms." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:237 Mr 15 '49

"Excellent vocational text." L. A. Eales

+ Library J 73:1279 S 15 '48 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:11 Ja '49

DUNLAP, MRS KATHARINE. And ride forth singing. 192p $2.50 Morrow

48-9739

A quiet story of postwar France. Monique had been a member of the French Resistance during the war, and was used to taking orders from André, one of the Resistance leaders. But when André practically ordered Monique to marry him she rebelled. At the home of a sympathetic, elderly cousin, living in a quiet country village Monique found her way to happiness.

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 20 '49 180w

"Innocently, inconsequentially ingratiating."

Kirkus 16:577 N 1 '48 100w

"Recommended for those who enjoy a pleasantly simple tale with a bit of French sentiment." M. A. Johnson

+ Library J 74:59 Ja 1 '49 70w

Library J 74:1557 O 15 '49 40w

"If Mrs. Dunlap gives us a decorative rather than a realistic story, it is certainly from no lack of understanding or of sympathy. A hundred little details of rustic life are described with deftness and poetical feeling: the author conveys excellently the importance of timber trees, of fertilizer, piglets and public health. Less effectively, she rather unnecessarily sprinkles some French words here and there, no doubt to emphasize the local setting and speech." Iris Barry

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ja 23 '49 400w

New Yorker 24:79 Ja 15 '49 120w

DUNLAP, ORRIN ELMER. Understanding television; what it is and how it works. 128p il maps $2.50 Greenberg

621.388 Television 48-8796

"Simple direct explanation which will answer the question 'How does television work?' Tells how television accomplishes the magic of bringing into our homes pictures in motion of events, immediately they happen. Glossary." (Library J) Bibliography.

Booklist 45:152 Ja 1 '49

Bookmark 9:11 O '49 10w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:1669 N 15 '48 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:94 N '48

DUNLAP, O. E.—Continued

"An eminently useful book for the layman who has questions to ask about the burgeoning art of television." Jack Gould

+ N Y Times p26 Ja 30 '49 360w

DUNLOP, AGNES MARY ROBERTSON (ELISABETH KYLE, pseud). Mirrors of Castle Doone; il. by Nora S. Unwin. 280p $2.50 Houghton

49-5590

Another mystery story by the author of Holly Hotel and Lost Karin. In this the children of the earlier stories again appear, now interested in solving the mystery of the Mirror Room in a nearby deserted castle.

Booklist 46:68 O 15 '49

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p6 O 27 '49 210w

Kirkus 17:300 Je 15 '49 110w

"Though far better than the average mystery for the 9-12 group, this is not as fresh and real as the first Holly Hotel story. . . Recommended." Anne Izard

+ — Library J 74:1464 O 1 '49 70w

"There are too many children and no time to characterize them; the clues are planted in full view; time is back-stitched to explain the action. The delightful people of 'Holly Hotel' are only names now, needing Nora Unwin's lively illustrations to make them real, and there are few touches of Miss Kyle's wit and understanding. The book is carelessly proofread, which backs up the impression of slipshod writing; Miss Kyle has done a lot better, and doubtless will again." Marjorie Fischer

— + N Y Times p26 O 9 '49 180w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:27 N 12 '49 30w

DUNLOP, JOHN THOMAS. Collective bargaining; principles and cases. 433p $5 Irwin

331.116 Collective bargaining 49-7700

"This book is designed for classroom use at an elementary level. It has grown out of the teaching of the course called 'Trade Unionism and Collective Bargaining,' which, at Harvard, is a one-semester introduction to Labor Economics. The book is divided into two parts: a section comprising a discussion of the elements pertinent to an understanding of collective bargaining, including chapters on the emergence of collective bargaining, a national policy, union-management organization, the labor agreement, and standards for wage determination; and a section comprising a collection of cases arranged by issues, covering discharge and discipline, status of union and management representatives, union security, employment rights, work schedules, vacations, and wages." Am Econ R

"While the introductory discussion is good, the chief merit of the book is the presentation of cases. Although not intended to cover all issues, the selection of cases is balanced and the book should prove useful as a supplement to the traditional type of text in the general Labor Problems or Labor Economics course, or it should prove useful as a text in a course introductory to the study of collective bargaining." V. H. Jensen

+ Am Econ R 39:1060 S '49 1050w

"Excellent text on collective bargaining."

+ Management R 38:584 O '49 150w

DUNNE, PETER MASTEN. Early Jesuit missions in Tarahumara. 276p $3.75 Univ. of Calif.

377.35 Jesuits in North America. Jesuits—Education. Education—Mexico

"This study of another unit of the Jesuit mission system in northern Mexico is the third made by the author for this series of volumes on the activities of the Jesuits in Spanish North America. It follows in logical sequence the second monograph: Pioneer Jesuits in Northern Mexico (1944) [Book Review Digest 1945]. . . The present book describes the extension of the Jesuit mission system north of the country of the Tepehuanes into the territory of the Tarahumares in modern Chihuahua. The facts herein have historical significance, for they form a chapter in the northward advance of Spain's colonial frontier." (Author's preface) Bibliography. Index.

"The author, Father Dunne, is a professed member of the Bolton school of historiography, and here exhibits most of its virtues, as well as its limitations. Based largely on manuscript sources, his volume provides a clear, somewhat pedestrian, detailed narrative, wholly trustworthy in its affirmations of fact. Questions of emphasis and interpretation, as well as the latent problem of values, may not receive such assent." H. F. Cline

+ — Am Hist R 54:958 Jl '49 330w

"Father Dunne's interesting and scholarly study of Tarahumara missions is a significant contribution to the history of colonial Mexico, important alike to the religious and to the frontier historian."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:71 Mr '49 320w

DUNNEY, JOSEPH ALOYSIUS. Mass for boys and girls; pictures by Weda Yap. 171p $2.50; school ed $2 Macmillan

264.025 Roman Catholic church—Eucharist 48-9576

"Detailed description of the Catholic Mass for children of fourth- to sixth-grade level. The interior of the church is described and explained before the Mass starts. Each act of the Holy Sacrifice is clearly interpreted with illustrations." Library J

"Parents and teachers of Catholic children will find this book helpful in bringing young Catholics to an intelligent understanding of their faith."

+ Kirkus 16:511 O 1 '48 130w

"Explanation is complete except for one point: no mention is made of prayers after Low Mass. Highly recommended for parochial school libraries. Would have very limited use in public libraries except in Catholic neighborhoods." M. J. Meade

+ Library J 74:203 F 1 '49 80w

"Told clearly and understandably. The book is well illustrated." J. W. Bogan

+ Springf'd Republican p14A Ja 23 '49 110w

DUNNINGTON, LEWIS LEROY. Something to stand on. 184p $2.50 Macmillan

252 Sermons 49-8569

"At the beginning of the fall term at the University of Iowa an open letter was inserted in two Iowa City newspapers asking students to drop a list of questions about matters which were troubling them into a box at the First Methodist Church. . . The present book gives Dr. Dunnington's answer to the multitude of questions the students asked." Publisher's note

"Here is clean and clear thinking, backed by sound scholarship." J. H. Titus

+ Churchman 163:15 Je 1 '49 150w

"A controversial book which will not be acceptable either to orthodox Protestants or to Catholics, but many students will find in the book answers to many questions which have been bothering them. It is a volume which will be useful to liberal clergymen dealing with students and other young people."

+ — Kirkus 17:141 Mr 15 '49 220w

"Book should be helpful in giving people a firm foundation of religious belief. Useful in daily living. Recommended." R. P. Tubby

+ Library J 74:659 Ap 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich

Springf'd Republican p5D Je 5 '49 240w

DURANT, JOHN. The Yankees; a pictorial history of baseball's greatest club. 122p $2.95 Hastings house

796.357 New York. Baseball club (American league) 49-3073

A pictorial history—one picture at least to every page of text—of the New York American league club from 1903 (when the club was called The Highlanders) to the end of the season in 1948.

Booklist 45:338 Je 1 '49

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1021 Jl '49 20w

"Excellent photographs, lively text."
+ Library J 74:1562 O 15 '49 40w

Reviewed by J. K. Hutchens
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 My 29 '49 110w

Reviewed by D. M. Mankiewicz
N Y Times p12 Jl 3 '49 130w

DURANTY, WALTER. Stalin & co; the Politburo—the men who run Russia. 261p il $3 Sloane

923.247 Stalin, Iosif. Russia—Politics and government. Russia—Biography. Communist party (Russia). Central committee. Political bureau 49-7716

An attempt to portray for Americans the characters and backgrounds of those Russians who, according to the author, "are Russia" so far as American foreign policy is concerned. Men included are: Stalin, Molotov, Voroshilov, Kaganovich, Andreyev, Zhdanov, Mikoyan, Krushchev, Malenkov, Beria, Voznesensky, Shvernik, Bulganin, Kosygin. Index.

"Although this book is inferior to the works of other newspaper men, such as John Scott's descriptive work or the interpretative works of Chamberlin before he embarked on his anti-Soviet crusade, it is not without merit. It represents the honest attempt of an intelligent man to tackle an important problem in a judicious and detached spirit, and as such is free from the nauseating trumpet blasts of much writing on Russia. But it also indicates that long residence and extended travel in the USSR are by themselves inadequate qualifications for making a significant contribution to our understanding of the country." Barrington Moore
+ — Am Pol Sci R 43:596 Je '49 650w

Reviewed by Merle Fainsod
Ann Am Acad 264:135 Jl '49 430w

Booklist 45:220 Mr 1 '49

"Mr. Duranty has indeed given us a fairly interesting summary of relatively unimportant facts; but if he really wished to make a serious contribution to our understanding of the present situation, he would have to be far less vague and much more obviously sincere."
— + Cath World 169:78 Ap '49 250w

"[Duranty] tells the story of the top Soviet leaders. . . Who they are, how they got that way and why, what they do, and what may be expected of them are here set forth in detail, along with shrewd and honest judgments of people and politics. For those still concerned with facts rather than with fear and folly, this volume is timely, necessary, and invaluable. . . On the other hand his failure to discuss the structure of the Party and its long-lapsed Congress and Conference tends to minimize the extent to which the Politburo has become a self-perpetuating and unrepresentative oligarchy." F. L. Schuman
+ — Chicago Sun F 28 '49 650w

"Mr. Duranty . . . has been a sympathetic and understanding interpreter of the Soviet Union, well-informed, penetrating, and at the same time emotionless if not cynical. But this present book, although useful, evidences little of the freshness and flavor of first-hand reporting. It is about 13 men. But the figures do not live. And many of the important aspects of the Kremlin operations are still left unresolved." DeWitt John
— + Christian Science Monitor p16 F 21 '49 600w

Reviewed by James van Zandt
Churchman 163:16 Jl '49 200w

"Thanks are due the author for a sort of whitewashing job, not quite intentional to be sure, for underneath it all there's a warning not to take the hydro-headed monster lightly. . . Here are a dozen heads that think as one, a dozen hearts hardened to a single resolution, a dozen faces which have a startling resemblance to one another. Cold fanatics let us call them, by their looks." John Cournos
Commonweal 49:548 Mr 11 '49 600w

Foreign Affairs 27:687 Jl '49 30w

Kirkus 17:18 Ja 1 '49 190w

"A remarkably unhysterical analysis of one of the great enigmas of the world. . . No sensational revelations, no shocking exposé—recommended." A. J. Gaines
+ Library J 74:305 F 15 '49 140w

Reviewed by Alexander Werth
Manchester Guardian p4 D 16 '49 1100w

"Sober thinking on the basic long-term problems of Soviet communism is extremely valuable in these times of short-range judgments. Duranty's contribution, while it does not measure up to the writings of Sir John Maynard or Edward Hallett Carr in terms of scholarship or depth of perception, is eminently more readable and deserves a wide audience." Richard Lauterbach
+ Nation 168:246 F 26 '49 1150w

"It [is] a cheering book in a grim year, and it is not all false cheer. Nothing is so frightening in the daylight as it is in the dark." Joseph Barnes
+ New Repub 120:20 My 23 '49 1200w

"Duranty is obviously more concerned with educating us than with converting us, more interested in provoking thought than in arousing hate and fear. His is an impartial book, sympathetic with humanity on both sides of the world, and one which refrains 'from passing any moral judgment upon the men whose lives it chronicles.'" Edgar Snow
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Mr 13 '49 750w; p14 Mr 20 '49 180w

"This book about the Politburo will not feed the passions underlying much of the current comment on Russian policy. It is largely an informative book, and, being a discussion of Soviet policy in terms of the men who make it and of their prior achievements in home affairs, it is both instructive and steadying. . . Mr. Duranty's long experience in Russia gives his opinions of Stalin and his associates authority." Raymond Swing
+ N Y Times p10 Mr 13 '49 650w

New Yorker 25:95 Mr 5 '49 140w

"Although 'Stalin & Co.' does not contain a great deal of new material, it is a readable and interesting book. There is some repetition and the author is not always lucid. At times he wanders afield from his subject to rationalize the destruction of the kulaks and to defend the Soviet invasion of Finland, the Nazi-Soviet deal, and the sovietization of the countries occupied by the Red Army. There will certainly be a good many readers who cannot go along with his charge that the Marshall Plan had 'the unfortunate effect of dividing Europe into two unfriendly camps.'" H. C. Wolfe
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:18 F 19 '49 750w

Reviewed by Donald Derby
Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 3 '49 450w

"In spite of the shortcomings, Duranty seems to this reviewer, at least, still to merit considerable attention. He has a curious quality which might be called the feeling of the situation, which many current writers of the USSR never seem to have developed." J. N. Hazard
+ — Survey 85:283 My '49 600w

"Occasionally he has a shrewd political observation to make; occasionally he does not rise above the level of the gossip column. But generally his sketches are readable enough, though they scarcely aspire to anything original or profound. . . Pedantic accuracy is not demanded in a work of this kind. But a little more trouble might have been taken by Mr. Duranty, or on his behalf, to get right the basic facts about the institution of which he is writing."
Times [London] Lit Sup p786 D 2 '49 850w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:227 Je '49 240w

Wis Lib Bul 45:64 Ap '49

Reviewed by P. E. Mosely
Yale R n s 38:754 summer '49 360w

DURER, ALBRECHT. Drawings and water colors; selected and with an introd. by Edmund Schilling; [tr. by Eveline Winkworth]. 82p 57il $2.50 Harper

741.91 Drawings. Water color paintings
49-7741

"The illustrations in the book, together with text and notes, clearly illustrate the development and successive changes in Dürer's work. Among them are 15 reproductions from the famous Albertina museum in Vienna and 21 from German collections; many of the originals were lost during World War II. . . Edmund Schilling, former Curator of the Department of Prints and Drawings of the Staedelsches Kunstinstitut in Frankfort, now lives in England. He is a recognized authority in the field of German art of the Gothic and Renaissance periods." Publisher's note

"Most excellent value even if in rather perishable form." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 74:1325 S 15 '49 80w

"Those drawings originally in color suffer most, particularly the grass, and the landscapes. The famous rabbit, a frontispiece in color, is badly blurred. But the notes are fine, and the book as a whole is appetizing to the eye and agreeable in the hand." Lincoln Kirstein
+ — New Repub 120:29 Ap 18 '49 40w

"The Durer volume is excellent in every respect, an extraordinary buy at the modest price. The fifty-six reproductions of drawings and the color reproduction of the famous hare disclose the great German in his most beloved, and to this reviewer most satisfactory, role—draftsman in pen, silverpoint, charcoal and brush. This admirable visual record is illuminated by succinct and informative notes by Edmund Schilling, former curator of prints and drawings at the Frankfort Museum. The format of the book, which was printed in Switzerland, is wholly pleasing, a paramount virtue in an art book, which is more looked at than read." A. B. Louchheim
+ N Y Times p25 Mr 20 '49 200w

Reviewed by Alfred Frankenstein
San Francisco Chronicle p25 Mr 13 '49 200w

"Mr. Schilling's knowledge and critical judgment make the six pages of text pleasant and informative reading; the paragraphs of comment that accompany each reproduction are models of concise information." L. R. Sander
+ Sat R of Lit 32:32 Jl 2 '49 130w

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 90w

DURLACHER, EDWARD, comp. Honor your partner; musical arrangements by Ken Macdonald; photography by Ira Zasloff. 286p $7.50 Devin-Adair

793.34 Dancing—Folk and national dances
48-7751

"Directions and music for eighty-one dances—squares, circles, quadrilles etc., are included. In addition there are convenient features sometimes not found in square dance publications: most valuable of these is a fine picture sequence of sixty-odd pages of photograph strips which give a clear, detailed account of essential dance figures. These should prove tremendously helpful to the inexperienced dancer who finds diagrams and printed directions difficult to understand." (Library J) List of square dance phonograph record albums. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:222 Mr 1 '49

"This is a stunning book, and while it overlaps a good many other books in the field it is self sufficient in itself, and, in many ways, seems more complete than the others with which I am familiar."
+ Kirkus 17:81 F 1 '49 150w

"Good discography, bibliography and a guest callers section. Libraries with a square dancing public will wear out several copies of this manual before a more useful or more complete one comes along." Genevieve Oswald
+ Library J 74:498 Mr 15 '49 140w

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Jl 3 '49 400w

"Simple line drawings or diagrams would have been more satisfactory than the photographs which, though obviously arranged with care, do little to clarify dance figures for the neophyte. . . Durlacher's painstaking arrangement presents with considerable clarity a complicated business." Phyllis Hogan
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 27 '49 350w

Wis Lib Bul 45:45 Mr '49

DUSHMAN, SAUL. Scientific foundations of vacuum technique. 882p il $15 Wiley

533 Vacuum. Gases, Kinetic theory of 49-695

A volume "dealing with the physical and chemical bases for high vacuum, by the assistant director of the General Research Laboratory, Schenectady, N.Y. It is a fundamental study of all phases of achieving, maintaining, and measuring high vacuum for the scientific investigator and the practical engineer. Among the contents are kinetic theory of gases, steam-jet ejectors and mercury-vapor pumps, manometers for low gas pressures, sorption of gases by 'active' charcoal, vapor pressures and rates of evaporation, dissociation pressure of oxides, hydrides, and nitrides and rates of oxidation." (Library J) Index.

"To those of us engaged in research on high vacuum equipment and applications this book is a classic which will long remain our chief reference work. The book represents a lifetime of research and study by the outstanding authority on the basic physics of high vacuum, and with its publication Dr. Dushman has retired as assistant director of the General Electric Research Laboratories." B. B. Dayton
+ Am Chem Soc J 71:2277 Je '49 600w

"This is not the book to introduce chemical engineers to the high-vacuum field, but those working in it and faced with new problems may find help here." Benjamin Miller
Chem Eng 56:336 My '49 950w

"An outstanding volume, clearly written, well illustrated." L. A. Eales
+ Library J 74:200 F 1 '49 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:16 Ja '49

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:280 Je '49 280w

DU SOE, ROBERT C. Sea boots; il. by Arthur Harper. 186p $2.50 Longmans 49-7572

Adventure story for boys in grades five to eight. In it Pedro stows away aboard a big tuna clipper bound for the fishing grounds off the coast of Lower California, and makes a success of learning to become a fisherman.

Booklist 45:229 Mr 1 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun Jl 16 '49 210w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:134 Mr '49 90w

Kirkus 17:58 F 1 '49 150w

"Recommended for fifth and sixth grades." Anne Izard
+ Library J 74:555 Ap 1 '49 80w

"Refreshing style and true reporting of life at sea. . . Before you are through, you have had a breezy adventure, felt keenly with a small boy among rough men and learned how the great tuna fish are caught. The pictures are good, the end papers very good." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Mr 27 '49 110w

"There are plenty of humor and lively conversation and vivid action in this book. The author, a Navy man who wrote the widely praised 'Three Without Fear,' made a voyage on a tuna clipper to obtain his material, and he has set his sprightly adventure story in an authentic background sure to please boys and girls of 10 to 14." Howard Pease
+ N Y Times p20 Mr 27 '49 140w

New Yorker 25:178 D 3 '49 80w

Sat R of Lit 32:38 Jl 9 '49 120w

School & Society 69:87 Ja 29 '49 30w

Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 90w

Wis Lib Bul 45:49 Mr '49

DUTTON, RALPH. English interior, 1500 to 1900. 192p il $6 Batsford

747 House decoration. Architecture, Domestic [49-8570]

Traces the rise and fall of interior decorations in English upper class homes from about 1500 to 1900. Includes sidelights on the effects of changing habits of dress, diet, marriage and entertainment upon architecture. Illustrated with many photographs, some of them in color. Index.

Booklist 45:371 Jl 1 '49

Reviewed by Wayne Andrews
Commonweal 50:393 Jl 29 '49 260w

"He presents the country and town house interiors of four centuries (1500-1900), and guides the reader so skilfully and wittily through his vast subject that his architectural scholarship and broad understanding of the social influences that were expressed through the changing pattern of the periods never intrude upon the surface of his alert and sensible narrative. Apart from some of the coloured plates, the illustrations are charmingly reproduced."
+ Manchester Guardian p4 My 10 '49 270w

"Learned and witty and pleasantly full of [the] subject."
+ New Yorker 25:118 My 14 '49 250w

"It is a bold undertaking, but within the limits that have been set him he has succeeded extremely well. He tells us that he 'intended to provide readability with information,' always a difficult combination, which he has certainly achieved. He writes with verve and wit, and his style is at the same time distinguished." James Lees-Milne
+ Spec 182:372 Mr 18 '49 650w

"Much about which the author writes has been covered by other experts, if sometimes in a less readable manner, but his observations on Regency and Victorian interiors may be news to many readers. . . The illustrations are abundant and good, with the exception of the coloured plates which have little affinity in taste with Mr. Dutton's manner of describing them. The second criticism concerns the too frequent faulty numbering of the plates."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p246 Ap 16 '49 2300w

E

EAKIN, MRS MILDRED OLIVIA (MOODY), and EAKIN, FRANK. Church-school teacher's job. 233p $2.75 Macmillan

268.6 Sunday schools—Teaching. Religious education 49-7698

"One idea back of this book is that the church school as a whole is of concern to the teacher in each of its departments or classes. Another purpose is to give support to a positive view of the church school and its work. It has to do with people; people are interesting; people are important. The teacher should enjoy herself because of the thrill of being on the firing line! She and her group can be a spearhead for Christianity and for democracy." (School & Society) Reading suggestions. Index.

Booklist 45:274 Ap 15 '49

"This volume will be especially useful to the church school teacher who is interested in doing an intelligent piece of work in accordance with modern pedagogical principles and techniques. . . This book should aid church school teachers to approach their task intelligently and imaginatively. It is crammed full of illustrative material drawn from Mrs. Eakin's own broad experience. Recommended for teachers and other leaders of religious education of the more liberal Protestant schools of thought."
+ Kirkus 17:56 F 1 '49 180w

School & Society 69:287 Ap 16 '49 90w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich
Springf'd Republican p4D My 29 '49 180w

EAMES, MRS GENEVIEVE TORREY. Handy of the Triple S; il. by Paul Brown. 164p $2.50 Messner

Dogs—Legends and stories 49-8194

Dog story for junior high school age. Handy, a pedigreed collie, was sent to a western ranch, to help with the herding. Young Sandy and his little sister loved Handy on sight, but their father thought he would never become a ranch dog. Handy gradually won favor by appointing himself guardian of little Susie, so that when he was stolen by a passing herder, the whole family missed him. The crux of the story is the return of Handy, and its aftermath.

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 25 '49 200w

"Enjoyable enough in process of reading, but quickly forgotten, as neither human nor dog personalities are vital enough to carry a somewhat slow action story."
Kirkus 17:110 Mr 1 '49 120w

"Recommended. Buy in prebound edition if possible." Nelle McCalla
+ Library J 74:962 Je 15 '49 80w

"Whether your shelves have room for another dog book is always a question. This is not one of the best, and it is not as good as 'A Horse to Remember' by the same author. But the children who cannot have enough dog stories will probably like it." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Jl 31 '49 130w

"An enjoyable dog story with a dash of Western adventure just about right for 10-to-14-year-olds." F. C. Smith
+ N Y Times p28 My 22 '49 150w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:39 Je 11 '49 60w

EARLY, ELEANOR. Cape Cod summer. 306p $3 Houghton

917.449 Cape Cod—Description and travel. Cape Cod—History 49-9134

New edition of And This is Cape Cod (Book Review Digest 1936). Contains several new chapters on such subjects as cooking, old houses, antiques, sports, and fishing. Index.

Booklist 45:357 Je 15 '49

"Eleanor Early has revised what was already a good book—'And This is Cape Cod'—and in the revising, has made it an even better one." R. B.
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Jl 7 '49 300w

"Once again my favorite guide has given her particular magic to a holiday handbook, this time for Cape Cod. . . A patchwork, done in casual chatty style; good guidebook and good reading."
+ Kirkus 17:245 My 1 '49 250w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 74:734 My 1 '49 100w

"Miss Early rambles, both geographically and in her writing, with a dash of antiques here, a dash of recipes there, flavored well with burying grounds, or cemeteries, as the city folk call them." Beach Conger
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 S 11 '49 120w

Reviewed by Anne Comfort
San Francisco Chronicle p17 Jl 3 '49 270w

EARLY, ELEANOR—Continued

"A reissue of a book formerly called 'And This Is Cape Cod,' Miss Early's work still bubbles like a sea clam pie with legends, recipes, gossip, and digressions. She writes like some ladies chat, making asides to readers, and the whole thing comes out as if you took Mary Margaret McBride to Cape Cod, transcribed her reactions, and bound them into a book." C. M. Brown

Sat R of Lit 32:25 Jl 23 '49 120w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter

Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 3 '49 440w

EASTON, WILLIAM BURNET. Thinking Christianly. 136p $2.50 Macmillan

248 Christian life 48-9142

"This book concerns itself with the applications of Christian faith to the complexities of modern life rather than stating the fundamentals of the faith. . . The original impetus of the book came as an invitation to give a series of lectures before the Ministers' Graduate School of the Troy (N.Y.) Methodist Conference in June 1946. The material given at that time has been extensively revised and more added." Pref

Reviewed by C. M. Bond

Crozer Q 26:156 Ap '49 700w

Kirkus 16:511 O 1 '48 250w

Springf'd Republican p10C D 19 '48 240w

EATON, ALLEN HENDERSHOTT. Handicrafts of New England [foreword by Dorothy Canfield Fisher]. 374p il $5 Harper

745 Arts and crafts 49-11839

A study of the "place of handicrafts in the economy and culture of the people of New England." It gives the historical background of New England handicrafts from the Pilgrims to the beginning of the Arts and Crafts movement. This is followed by separate studies of several handicrafts of today. Partial contents: Craftsmen in wood; Spinning and weaving by hand; Knitting, netting, lacemaking, and crocheting; Handmade rugs and carpets; New England pottery; Carving and whittling; Toys, dolls, and miniature objects; Metalworking, silversmithing, enameling, jewelry making, and gem-cutting; Nautical handicrafts. Index.

Booklist 46:153 Ja 1 '50

"Fascinating, comprehensive study."

+ Bookmark 9:78 Ja '50 30w

"Recommended both for its detail and for its ideas." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 75:44 Ja 1 '50 150w

"Dorothy Canfield Fisher takes the wind out of a reviewer's sails at the opening of her two-page preface to this truly remarkable book. For she says plainly that it 'combines detailed, accurate factual statements about the present, a luminous historical treatment of the past, and a remarkably fine philosophical and psychological analysis of the underlying bases of hand skills,' adding promptly that there is no nonsense about Mr. Eaton's attitude on handwork, a subject on which a great deal of nonsense has been written. What Mrs. Fisher says is so right that there is nothing for a reviewer to do but quote it."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p53 D 4 '49 360w

+ Springf'd Republican p10B Ja 1 '50 260w

EATON, EVELYN SYBIL MARY. North star is nearer; il. by Ann and John Groth. 232p $2.75 Farrar, Straus

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-8926

The popular novelist continues the reminiscences begun in Every Month Was May (Book Review Digest 1947). There are sketches of a childhood in Canada, embarrassing contacts with royalty in England, life in France and wartime experiences in Africa and China. Four of the chapters have appeared in the New Yorker.

Booklist 45:253; 311 Ap 1 '49; My 15 '49

"Miss Eaton is capable of spinning a slight incident into an entertaining story, as she writes sometimes amusingly, often seriously, of a vendetta in Corsica, a contest of child actors presided over by Sacha Guitry, a literary cocktail party in London, and even of an attempt by an Anglican bishop to exorcise a Catholic ghost—unsuccessful, be it said." B. J. Thompson

+ Cath World 169:239 Je '49 220w

"This book has a cosmopolitan flavor because Miss Eaton has journeyed far and never lived on the tourist's edge of things. . . She became a writer because she had talent and pluck and occasionally extra time in the midst of some very odd jobs. Whenever she could she travelled, not only to see the world but to know its inhabitants; and it is people, not the incidents, that make her book entertaining and satisfying." Marion Chamberlain

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 My 19 '49 240w

"The whole has a great deal of humor and much of personality and offers glimpses of a life story in casual touches."

+ Kirkus 17:101 F 15 '49 120w

"One wishes that so discerning and able a writer had chosen to give her book some depth and profundity by commenting on the many countries and people she has known. Recommended for pleasant pastime." H. S. Taylor

Library J 74:734 My 1 '49 130w

Library J 74:1560 O 15 '49 50w

"'The North Star is Nearer' is delightful and exasperating. Its delight comes from the quality of its separate chapters, its exasperation from the elusiveness of Miss Eaton herself. . . I do not ask Miss Eaton to say put, but perhaps it is not impertinent to ask her to make her traveling a little smoother for the rest of us." Emily Kimbrough

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 My 22 '49 550w

Reviewed by Isabelle Mallet

N Y Times p38 D 4 '49 140w

"Easygoing autobiographical essays, written in an unostentatious style and with humor."

+ New Yorker 25:116 My 21 '49 80w

"Variety of setting and nontypical characters give these sketches the charm of the unexpected." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 10 '49 220w

"Miss Eaton, having written some excellent historical novels, turned in 'Every Month Was May' to personal reminiscences. In this second volume she includes some of the high points along her way, sketches which are lighthearted, extremely amusing, but built on a relish for the inconsistencies and contrasts of modern life." Pamela Taylor

+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 My 21 '49 600w

Wis Lib Bul 45:106 Je '49

EATON, JEANETTE. Buckey O'Neill of Arizona; il. by Edward Shenton. 219p $2.50 Morrow

B or 92 O'Neill, William Owen—Juvenile literature 49-11000

"Biography of Arizona's William Owen 'Buckey' O'Neill, newspaperman, sheriff, promoter, and soldier. The author gives a brisk account of this romantic and magnetic figure whose love and work for Arizona ended only with his death with Roosevelt's Rough Riders at San Juan Hill. . . Grades 7-9." Booklist

Booklist 46:85 N 1 '49

Reviewed by Will Davidson

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p44 D 4 '49 140w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p13 Ja 26 '50 120w

"Plenty of action here, but I don't think the lusty life of the raw west gives Jeanette Eaton play for her particular biographical flair."
Kirkus 17:475 S 1 '49 120w

"There is a rather self-conscious effort to expand the Spanish-American War into something quite dashing and chivalrous, but younger readers will probably concentrate on the man himself." Esther Gorey
Library J 74:1549 O 15 '49 80w

"Recommended." C. W. Field
+ Library J 74:1829 D 1 '49 70w

"'Buckey O'Neill' is another of Miss Eaton's biographies for young people, and is a well-written account of the life of a man who was successively newspaper reporter, editor, sheriff and rough rider." A. R. Bosworth
+ San Francisco Chronicle p5 N 13 '49 90w

"Miss Eaton's book is colorful and interesting. There are excellent descriptions of early days in the American Southwest, of its settlement and its customs. The source material is well organized and well presented. Unfortunately, the book is marred by unnecessary historical errors and, perhaps more seriously, by a tendency to over-sentimentalize." R. A. B.
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:38 N 12 '49 170w

"The story of his life will be an inspiration to young people and will have a place in the list of deeds of valor in American history." J. W. C.
+ Springf'd Republican p10B D 25 '49 100w

EATON, QUAINTANCE, ed. Musical U.S.A. 208p il $4.50 Allen, Towne & Heath
780.973 Music—U.S. 49-8928

"Extended and revised from a series of articles originally published in Musical America. Thirteen authors trace briefly the musical history of as many cities. Those represented, in order of their musical importance, are: New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Baltimore, Cincinnati, Minneapolis, St. Louis, New Orleans, Dallas, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Seattle. Journalistic treatment; entertaining rather than informational." Booklist

Booklist 45:331 Je 1 '49

"Useful and informative, so far as it goes."
+ Kirkus 17:249 My 1 '49 150w

"Physically-attractive anthology in the popular vein. . . Handsomely put together; excellent photographs including a number on subjects difficult or impossible to find elsewhere." C. K. Miller
+ Library J 74:820 My 15 '49 80w

"The volume is good reading, somewhat resembling thirteen different short stories written around the same plot. Stronger editorship and a chapter covering the all-over situation might have eliminated a certain amount of repetition between chapters." H. E. Johnson
+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 6:620 S '49 800w

Reviewed by Roland Gelatt
Sat R of Lit 32:31 Je 25 '49 80w

EBERHARDT, CHARLES RICHARD. Bible in the making of ministers; the scriptural basis of theological education: the lifework of Wilbert Webster White. 254p $3.50 Assn. press
B or 92 White, Wilbert Webster. Bible. Whole—Study and teaching 49-5111

"A scholar-teacher with an idea established at the turn of the century a new kind of theological seminary in the very 'Grand Central' of Manhattan Island. The story of the man, Wilbert Webster White; the idea, a Bible-centered seminary curriculum; and the Biblical Seminary in New York has long been awaited. . . Here is the volume which presents the biography of White (Part I), his methodology (Part II), and the results of his method in the curriculum of the Biblical Seminary in New York, in its hermeneutics and in its doctrinal position (Part III). Part IV contains 'an evaluation of the work of White." J Religion

Reviewed by Manfred Manrodt
Christian Century 66:1040 S 7 '49 500w

"White possessed a prodigious mind and a prolific pen. He amassed several rooms full of collected and original materials. His administrative and teaching schedule left him little time to organize these valuable writings. It remained for a student of his to receive from him shortly before his death the assignment to organize and edit these data. . . Nearly a decade of work with these valuable firsthand materials, after graduate study under the great Bible teacher himself, has qualified the author of this book to write about an experiment whose impact was felt by seminaries around the world." V. D. Melconian
+ J Religion 29:324 O '49 210w

EBERHART, MRS MIGNON (GOOD). House of storm. 243p $2.50 Random house 49-8744

Detective story.

Booklist 45:337 Je 1 '49
Kirkus 17:122 Mr 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 My 15 '49 170w

"The author, to be sure, shamelessly conceals her most vital piece of evidence, and fails to give us any psychological clue to the murderer's character until after he is unmasked; but such technical flaws as these are not likely to bother Eberhart devotees." Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p22 My 1 '49 150w

"You may be a wee bit disappointed in the new Eberhart if you remember, as we do, the wonderful Nurse Keate stories of yesteryear. If you don't, you'll probably rate 'House of Storm' as a Grade A thriller. We'd rate it Grade B or thereabouts." E. D. Doyle
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p23 Je 5 '49 200w

"Agreeable."
+ Sat R of Lit 32:45 My 21 '49 40w

EBERHART, RICHARD. Brotherhood of men [poem]. ltd autog ed 11p $2 Banyan 811

"Richard Eberhart borrows the manner and devices of Old English heroic poetry to tell a story of modern heroism. His half narrative, half philosophical account of the history of the American soldiers taken prisoner on Corregidor by the Japanese is a tale of forbearance and resolution fit for a gleeman to sing in a mead hall. As its title suggests, however, the poem deals not with a single hero but with a fraternity of prisoners, growing steadily in solidarity and interdependence, and in its effort to generalize the situation of a single man, as well as in its elegiac tone, 'Brotherhood of Men' affirms its indebtedness not only to 'Beowulf' but to such shorter lyrics as 'The Wanderer.'" N Y Times

"'Brotherhood of Man' is not well composed, being split right down the middle by the discrepancy of matter and manner. . . The stuntiness of the medium gives the curious and no doubt far from intended effect of making the author seem rather detached and indifferent."
Nation 168:396 Ap 2 '49 140w

"Mr. Eberhart's achievement in the form cannot be termed an unqualified success. It is apparent that he has not attempted to modernize the form by rendering it more flexible or by employing contemporary poetic diction in the manner of W. H. Auden in 'The Age of Anxiety,' that other effort to re-establish alliterative verse as a vehicle for modern poetry. 'Brotherhood of Man' often reads like an uninspired and fairly literal translation from the Old English." Milton Crane
N Y Times p26 My 1 '49 220w

EBERHART, RICHARD—Continued

"A simplicity that sometimes has overtones of mystical insight succeeds in overcoming very nearly all the author's problems, stylistic and otherwise. A handsomely printed pamphlet."

+ New Yorker 25:104 My 28 '49 80w

"I think you are bound to respect the poem for its honest attempt to find significant values in the actual experience of the ordinary soldier; I think too that you will be forced to admit finally that the poem is in every important respect a failure. . . All this is as unfortunate as can be. Mr. Eberhart is a gifted writer. His greatest fault has always been his weakness for moral commonplaces, and the present occasion is ideally suited to bring out this weakness and to allow no play for his considerable virtues." Arthur Mizener

Poetry 74:172 Je '49 750w

EBERLE, IRMENGARDE. Listen to the mockingbird; il. by Sabra Mallett Kimball. (Whittlesey house publication) 64p $2 McGraw

Birds—Legends and stories 49-8806

Story of a year in the life of a mockingbird family.

Kirkus 17:110 Mr 1 '49 80w

"Simple and charming story of one of our most interesting birds. . . Illustrations by Sara M. Kimball deserve special notice, as they are fine, though in black and white; the artist gets much subtlety in light and shadow. Good supplementary reading for ages 9-12." J. F. Kennedy

+ Library J 74:826 My 15 '49 80w

"Children in Texas will like it particularly; other children, of about eight to ten, will gain from it a new feeling for all birds who nest near their homes." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 My 22 '49 230w

Reviewed by S. C. Gross

N Y Times p22 Je 26 '49 180w

Springf'd Republican p5D Je 5 '49 90w

ECKARDT, HANS VON. Ivan the Terrible; tr. from the German by Catherine Alison Phillips. 432p $5 Knopf

B or 92 Ivan IV, the Terrible, czar of Russia 49-11597

Biography of Ivan Vasilievich, born in 1530, who was crowned as Ivan IV in 1547, by grace of God Czar and autocrat of all Russia. His violence and cruelty earned him the name of Ivan the Terrible. The full course of his life is followed up to his death in 1584, and a chapter on his posthumous fame is added. Index.

Booklist 46:171 Ja 15 '50

"The author has made a painstaking search of monastery records and certain isolated documents and offers this book as the best possible story of this strange man. The book, tho heavily weighted with many irrelevant political, historical and religious sidelights, is exceptionally well done and gives us a new view of the man whose name has survived only because of his barbarity." Richard Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 13 '49 370w

"Important contribution to international understanding, for libraries, schools, students."

+ Kirkus 17:570 O 1 '49 190w

"This volume is recommended for public and college libraries of all sizes. Table of dates and bibliographical essay are especially useful features." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 74:1816 D 1 '49 150w

"The author obviously knows his subject and has saturated himself in the period, but he thinks and writes so clumsily that many passages must be read twice for meaning which is not even then always forthcoming. The awkwardness seems so basic, so much a matter of structure and thought as well as of style, that it can hardly all be due to the sins of the translator."

+ — Nation 169:525 N 26 '49 320w

"Professor von Eckardt is to be congratulated, and also the publisher, for making this book available in English, for it advances our knowledge of both the difficult personality of Ivan and of the important period in which he lived. As a political biography, the book is based on extensive research, and combines well the scholarly approach of the historian and the psychological, creative art of the biographer." E. J. Simmons

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Ja 1 '50 1350w

"It may be that a future and happier Russia, living in a clearer realization of the humanist world of ideas, may find Ivan a less satisfying symbol of Russian greatness. But Professor Eckardt's not uncritical appreciation of the violent achievements and ambitious aspirations of the terrible Czar seems to be in line with the prevailing sentiment of the Russians today." Hans Kohn

N Y Times p14 Ja 1 '50 600w

New Yorker 25:58 D 31 '49 180w

"Ivan's strange personality is well understood and ably portrayed by Von Eckhardt. Unfortunately, the same cannot be said of his attempts to analyze the Polish national character and culture, or of his remarks about the Great Russian national traits. Here one hears the echoes of the age-old prejudices of the Baltic Germans, complacently vaunting their own superiority over the benighted Slavs. The translation by Catherine Alson Phillips is excellent, but the editing is uneven." D. F. White

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:12 D 31 '49 600w

Time 55:68 Ja 2 '50 500w

EDEY, MARION. Open the door; rhymes for children; il. by Dorothy Grider. 79p $2 Scribner

811 Children's poetry 49-5616

A book of verses for children. The poems are grouped under the headings: Animal friends; Rhymes for fun; Playtime and out-of-doors; Poems for bedtime.

Reviewed by Agatha Shea

Chicago Sunday Tribune p22 D 4 '49 30w

"The book will be popular with the younger boys and girls who like to hear or read verses and learn them by heart." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 25:425 S '49 50w

Kirkus 17:323 Jl 1 '49 180w

Reviewed by A. G. Zebker

+ Library J 74:1533 O 15 '49 40w

"Miss Edey's little collection is distinguished by a delightful childlike quality and a good sense of the absurd. . . Recommended." Lillian Morrison

+ Library J 74:1612 O 15 '49 80w

"Most of these poems reveal a nice appreciation of the out-of-doors; all of them are childlike; many show originality of subject matter. Criticism of the book lies in the versification. Reader is too often conscious of the effort that went into the construction of the verses; there are too many forced rhymes and several cases of faulty grammar. For these reasons and because of the uneveness of the poems, book is not recommended." Claire Nolte

— + Library J 74:1612 O 15 '49 130w

"There is little irksome sentiment, there are many witty couplets, there is much that all small children will ask for over and over again. The pictures match the spirit of the poems in their direct, childlike charm." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 13 '49 270w

+ N Y Times p18 N 13 '49 60w

New Yorker 25:164 D 3 '49 50w

Sat R of Lit 32:34 N 12 '49 70w

EDGE, WALTER EVANS. Jerseyman's journal; fifty years of American business and politics. 349p $5 Princeton univ. press

B or 92 New Jersey—Politics and government 48-10223

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"Mr. Edge reveals himself in his indiscriminate praise of Harding, Coolidge, and Landon, his invariably harsh references to Wilson and Franklin Roosevelt, and his pride in the authorship of parts of the Hawley-Smoot Tariff. His errors, omissions, and biases have made his memoirs of little value either to historians or to the lay readers." J. M. Blum

— Am Hist R 54:692 Ap '49 240w

"No one seems farther removed from the author's intended audience than the political scientist, and consequently the autobiography contains very little of value for his professional use." J. J. George

— Am Pol Sci R 43:389 Ap '49 160w

"He has but little to say that is new, either by way of fact or insight into the motives of the men he knew. Mr. Edge's record of political successes proves that he understands practical politics, but only an occasional observation on the political process appears in his book." D. D. McKean

— Ann Am Acad 262:215 Mr '49 480w

Reviewed by K. C. MacKay

Pol Sci Q 64:318 Je '49 600w

"It must be admitted that a great deal of this book is highly specialist reading for those who cannot distinguish between Montclair and Camden. . . The main interest of this book comes from its sketches of people and, occasionally, from new light cast on important events."

Times [London] Lit Sup p263 Ap 23 '49 600w

EDGELL, GEORGE HAROLD. The bee hunter. 49p il $2.50 Harvard univ. press

638.1 Bees 49-10045

For fifty years the author has made a hobby of locating trees where the wild bees have stored their honey. In this little book he describes the equipment and process of taking wild honey.

Booklist 46:43 O 1 '49

Kirkus 17:346 Jl 1 '49 100w

"An unusual bit of Americana, engagingly told." B. B. Libaire

+ Library J 74:1087 Ag '49 80w

EDLIN, HERBERT LEESON. Woodland crafts in Britain. 182p il $4.50 Batsford

674 Forest products. Woodwork. Arts and crafts 49-9812

An account of the traditional uses of the various types of timber found in the English countryside. Partial contents: Alder coppice and clog soles; The ash crafts; Beechwoods and chair bodging; Elm in traditional timberwork; Sycamore and maple woods; The cleaving of oak; Willows in craftwork; Craftwork in conifers; Woodland carpentry. Illustrated by many demonstrative photographs. Index.

"Wherever one happens to turn to in this little book—there is a good place to begin reading. . . The book is a pleasant reminder of antique parlance. Did you ever hear of 'bodging' or 'plashing,' the 'dillaxe,' or 'stails, snaths, and snees,' or 'felled, sneeded, measured, and marked'? There are innumerable such curious terms still in use among England's wood craftsmen." Roland Sawyer

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 21 '49 600w

"The author is an expert of wide range and particular knowledge, and he writes like the laureate of these old crafts."

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 23 '49 240w

"The information is extraordinarily complete, though among such a variety of things and places some omissions would be understandable. . . The index is good, though place names are not included, nor is there any list of the many unusual words used, such as the alternative names of tools." Helen FitzRandolph

+ Spec 183:186 Ag 5 '49 470w

"This book has charm. It will take all but the most matter-of-fact readers out of their surroundings and into the woods, where they can remember a man with a billhook or a pile of shavings beside a primitive screen of branches among innumerable white and sharp stumps that marked well-cut underwood."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p431 Jl 1 '49 600w

EDMONDS, WALTER DUMAUX. Cadmus Henry; il. by Manning de V. Lee. 137p $3 Dodd

49-10592

Historical novel of the Civil war told for readers of high school age and over. The tale follows the war experiences of young Cadmus Henry who became a balloonist for the Confederate Army instead of the cavalry officer he had longed to be.

Booklist 46:37 S 15 '49

"Told with the directness and polish for which Edmonds is famous, the events of this tale give a unique picture of a unique era." M. B. King

+ Chicago Sun p17 N 26 '49 230w

"This story is told with the directness and freshness that have distinguished all of Mr. Edmonds' books. He brings to the Chesapeake bay country and its people that same sure understanding that has marked his previous writings about his native Mohawk valley in New York state. Every character in these pages is real and every incident is vividly presented. The story is flecked with humor and sustained with both human and dramatic interest." Walter Havighurst

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 N 13 '49 190w

"Walter Edmonds tells the story of Cadmus Henry's reactions to his strange task in a quiet matter-of-fact way, yet succeeds in conveying a vivid sense of an incident in the Peninsular Campaign. He says that characters and events are wholly imaginary, nevertheless the Virginia setting is certainly a truthful one." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:536 N '49 110w

"There is a wealth of dry humor in this as well as some good philosophy. In a runaway balloon, Cadmus found that North and South looked pretty much alike." Esther Gorey

+ Library J 74:1548 O 15 '49 70w

"A book which defies age and grade placement, but discriminating high school boys and girls and their elders should enjoy it. It is an amusing and, at times, a moving tale about a seventeen-year-old boy who did his best to serve the Confederate Army during the Civil War." M. B. Snow

+ Library J 74:1762 N 15 '49 80w

"It is a lucky year that brings us another good story by Mr. Edmonds. This one is a bit more modest in length and format than some of his other interesting books, but it has the same power to revive the past and is written in the same fine, vigorous, sensitive adult style." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 13 '49 320w

"Written with verve and insight, characterized by superior craftsmanship and sound historical knowledge, this story ranks among the best of the author's works. It will prove interesting to high school readers and to their parents and grandparents." R. A. B.

+ N Y Times p34 N 13 '49 150w

"The account of his aerial experiences has a restrained poetic quality and yet is remarkably graphic. The chapter-head drawings, as well as the rest of the format, are attractive."

+ New Yorker 25:174 D 3 '49 100w

"It would be hard to find a better story of the Civil War for boys and girls than this. Like all of Walter Edmonds's tales, it is exceptionally well written." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:28 N 12 '49 220w

Wis Lib Bul p12 N '49

EDMONDSON, CHARLES HOWARD. Seashore treasures. 144p il $3.50 Pacific bks.

591.925 Marine fauna 49-4709

"This is the story of some of the little 'people' of the Hawaiian seashores—the fishes, the snails, the crabs, the sea stars, and their companions—some of their curious habits, where you find them, and how to make their acquaintance." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"Recommended for school and club libraries." J. F. Kennedy

+ Library J 74:1106 Ag '49 80w

"All the illustrations of the animals are of individual specimens arranged several to a page, a treatment which tends to become monotonous and uninteresting to all but the determined enthusiast. The text is straightforward and competently written." J. W. H.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p25 S 25 '49 160w

EDWARDS, CORWIN D. Maintaining competition; requisites of a governmental policy. 337p $3.75 McGraw

338.973 Competition. U.S.—Economic policy. Industry and state 49-2089

"The purpose of this book is to set forth the content of a policy designed to maintain the competitive system within the United States. It analyzes the existing policy and administration, and offers a practical program of reform, grounded upon economic analysis." (Publisher's note) Index.

"Taken as a whole, the work presents a well-balanced and comprehensive program for the preservation or rejuvenation of a workable free enterprise economy in the United States. Its principal contribution perhaps lies in the elaboration of an array of legislative changes and innovations consistent with the vigorous pursuit of the American antitrust policy and philosophy, and in the testing of each suggestion in the light of empirical limitations and economic logic. Its weaknesses are those generally intrinsic in efforts of this sort." J. S. Bain

+ — Am Econ R 39:1349 D '49 1800w

"An extremely able and significant study." J. M. Clark

+ Ann Am Acad 265:203 S '49 550w

EDWARDS, EDWARD J. The chosen. 280p $3 Longmans

49-10487

"Five young men enter a Midwestern seminary to be trained for the priesthood. They are bound together by close friendship and united in their earnest desire to serve God and help the world. Their temperaments are five, and their conceptions of how ultimately to fulfill their common desire are also five. . . One by one, four of the five drop out. . . The fifth young man chose and was chosen, but only after he had teetered on the brink, wavering between the lure of human love and the service of God." Commonweal

"Told with a simplicity, freshness and sprightliness which makes it somewhat of a 'Rover Boys in the Seminary.' . . The Bronxonians lack depth and the novel is never too profound but there is a definite triumph in Martin's winning his goal. The book keeps moving and it makes light, pleasant reading." Mary Sandrock

Cath World 170:234 D '49 140w

Reviewed by T. O. Sloane

Commonweal 51:77 O 28 '49 230w

"Certain success in Catholic circles, and of definite interest for Protestant readers as well."

+ Kirkus 17:339 Jl 1 '49 200w

Reviewed by N. K. Burger

N Y Times p16 D 18 '49 190w

"Slight but informative novel. . . The five are so indifferently characterized that the novel is well under way before one realizes that 'The Chosen,' as much as it is anyone's, is Marty's story. The seminary—in its joys as well as rigors—lives and breathes, but the author's people do not. They remain apple-cheeked and indistinct." Riley Hughes

Sat R of Lit 32:16 S 24 '49 650w

EDWARDS, JONATHAN. Images or shadows of divine things; ed. by Perry Miller. 151p $2.75 Yale univ. press

230.58 Analogy (religion) 48-7729

"Over a long period of time Jonathan Edwards kept a notebook that he variously entitled 'The Images of Divine Things,' 'The Shadows of Divine Things,' 'The Book of Nature and Common Providence,' and 'The Language and Lessons of Nature.' The notes that he entered therein were part of his preparation for his projected restatement of Christian doctrine. The notebook, which has been preserved in the Yale University Library and consulted by scholars but never published, has now been edited, with a long introduction, by Prof. Perry Miller of Harvard." N Y Times

Reviewed by Robert Peel

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 9 '48 1250w

"A great deal of it is irrelevant to today's problems and of interest primarily to the historian, but other paragraphs are strikingly helpful in relating man to his maker. Edwards was more original than he suspected, and the richness of that originality is here evident." R. C. Miller

+ Churchman 162:16 O 15 '48 80w

"In an admirable and searching introduction Perry Miller, the Harvard authority on Puritanism, sets these fragments in their place in the pattern of Calvinistic thought and culture. This slight volume affords rich insights into a major element of the American tradition." Mason Wade

+ Commonweal 48:551 S 17 '48 260w

Reviewed by Alan Gewirth

Ethics 59:231 Ap '49 160w

J Philos 46:569 Ag 18 '49 800w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr

Nation 168:79 Ja 15 '49 600w

Reviewed by I. A. Richards

New Eng Q 22:409 S '49 1050w

"The introduction makes interesting reading. Dr. Miller, author of 'The New England Mind' and co-editor of an excellent anthology, 'The Puritans,' finds in the notebook evidence of a veritable theological revolution. . . After reading Dr. Miller's account of Edwards' great intellectual adventure, one is likely to be disappointed by the contents of the notebook. If a few of the notes do suggest a vision of the universe that is unmistakably post-Newtonian, many of them are 'spiritualized commonplaces.' " Granville Hicks

N Y Times p4 Ja 30 '49 800w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:429 D '48 320w

EHRENBURG, IL'IA GRIGOR'EVICH. Storm; tr. by J. Fineberg and ed. by Isidor Schneider and Anne Terry White. 508p $3.50 Gaer

49-49307

"In his novel Ilya Ehrenburg has painted a picture of World War II not as the Russians, or he himself, saw it in those years of incredible exertion and heroism, but as they have to see it now on orders from the Kremlin. The scenes of the book are laid in France and Russia. France represents western bourgeois decadence, corruption and defeatism, Russia represents Communist virility, integrity and devotion. Ehrenburg's Frenchmen—with the exception of French Communists—are either being broken by the storm of the war years or are surviving it by collaborating with the Germans. His Russians—brave, unshakable and triumphant—are uplifted by the storm." Christian Science Monitor

"To call 'The Storm' a novel seems to this reviewer a gross misnomer. A novel pictures the development of characters under the stresses of conflict. (The accent lies on the term 'development.') In this book no such development takes place. Its characters are ready-made, immutable, static. They are stereotypes picked from a propagandist's card file, not individuals born from an artist's dream. Since their author once ranked among Russia's most gifted writers, they have the outer appearances of human beings; but if you knock at their chests or foreheads, the sound is hollow. . . As a literary work, 'The Storm' is infinitely inferior not only to the author's earlier writings but also to Russian war novels written and published before 1946." Ernest Pisko

— Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 7 '50 600w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 12 '49 60w

Reviewed by Robert Hatch
New Repub 122:20 Ja 9 '50 500w

"Ilya Ehrenburg, the very official Russian reporter and culture delegate, needs all his tireless pages to work into one novel the propaganda points he appears bursting to remake all at once. By now the points are well rehearsed, outrageously clear, and neatly classified in pungent little thumbnail sketches. The whole card index of them is dumped into 'The Storm.' " Philip Burnham

N Y Times p7 D 4 '49 800w

"The tribute is too general because we are so busy keeping track of the many names mentioned that it is impossible to feel sympathy with any of the people. The story is laid in many parts of Europe, but most of the scenes, even the love scenes, are so obviously contrived as to be meaningless, except in political terms."

— New Yorker 25:119 D 17 '49 120w

"Whatever success it may have had in Russia, Ilya Ehrenburg's massive war novel will not sweep off his feet any American or Englishman who is not a Communist or a fellow-traveler. It is nevertheless deeply interesting for its insight into the official Russian view of the war and into the minds of individual Russians who had known France and Western Europe before 1939. . . Considering all the difficulties in distorting history and writing a novel of vast dimensions that is presumably a record of the greatest war in the history of mankind, Mr. Ehrenburg has nevertheless created a book that should be read for whatever native inspiration it contains, for its contribution to the study of the Russian temperament and credulity, and for a few notable and memorable French and Russian characters." Harrison Smith

— + Sat R of Lit 32:16 D 24 '49 750w

"As a novelist, whose earliest and best work has a rasping and satirical edge, Ehrenburg has always been a shade too facile and too clever, too much the journalist; and in this vast panorama of the Russo-German War he applies himself to the simplified conventions of 'Socialist realism' with fatal ease. . . The novel is a not inconsiderable feat of industry and ingenuity. And a great many small scenes of war in Russia and resistance in France are conceived in acutely dramatic terms though they are pitched for the most part in too high a key. But the general effect is repetitive, standardised and rather lifeless." R. D. Charques

— + Spec 183:276 Ag 26 '49 180w

"Despite its predictable Pravda-line speeches, it is just another conventional multi-decker, patterned after the Europe-in-decay sagas of Jules Romains and Robert Briffault. By scraping off its party froth, a clever U.S. editor could fairly easily tailor it for his circulating-library customers. . . Only when writing about Paris does Ehrenburg drop his didactic monotone and show some winning tenderness and gaiety."

— + Time 54:54 D 26 '49 550w

"The whole book is a political justification of Russian activities and attitudes in the Second World War. Characterization must therefore be limited to heroes (all the important Russian figures), villains (all the important Germans) and vacillators (most of the French). This kind of propaganda cannot easily be commented on as literature; it is possible, nevertheless, to admire the dexterity with which Mr. Ehrenburg parades his puppets, and his desperate attempts to twitch them into the semblance of life."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p517 Ag 12 '49 270w

EHRLICH, BETTINA. Cocolo comes to America [pictures by the author]. [32p] $2.50 Harper

49-11840

Picture story book telling how Cocolo the donkey comes to America, earns money, and marries. The first book in the series is Cocolo (Book Review Digest 1948).

Booklist 46:144 D 15 '49

Bookmark 9:56 D '49 50w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p17 D 3 '49 100w

"Every one—young and old—who loved the little donkey from the Mediterranean island of Ravaya-Reena in 'Cocolo' will find him equally endearing and his adventures even more exciting in this enchanting sequel." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p26 D 4 '49 150w

Commonweal 51:189 N 18 '49 220w

"This sequel to Cocolo is every bit as charming as the first book about the friendly donkey." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 25:401 S '49 90w

+ Kirkus 17:624 N 15 '49 170w

"This story is perhaps more closely related to American children than the first book because of the familiarity of scene and incident made all the more realistic by a combination of gay color and contagious humor." A. G. Zebker

+ Library J 74:1531 O 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Sussdorff
Library J 75:112 Ja 15 '50 60w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 20 '49 170w

"The adventures of Cocolo, the Italian donkey, and his boy-master, Lucio, are exciting but so well paced that children have a chance to savor and enjoy each incident." E. B.

+ N Y Times p12 N 13 '49 130w

"A sequel to the 'Cocolo' of last year, which is equally touching and irresistible. With pictures on every page, half of them lovely water colors full of humorous detail, this big, beautiful book of the adventures of the little donkey and his master in their new home will bring rare joy to any child of from five to ten."

+ New Yorker 25:168 D 3 '49 50w

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 13 '49 100w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:20 N 12 '49 180w

EHRLICH, MAX SIMON. Big eye. 221p $2.50 Doubleday

49-10563

The time of this pseudo-science novel is 1960 to 1963. The big eye is a strange planet which appears in the sky just as Russia and the United States are about to go to war. The scientists figure out that the big eye is due to crash into the earth on Christmas day, 1962. All talk of war ceases as the people of the earth prepare for a new kind of doom.

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
Chicago Sun p56 O 7 '49 40w

"A good yarn, not of real literary importance, but of more dignity than usual super-science tales."

+ Kirkus 17:370 Jl 15 '49 160w

"While book is strictly science fiction, it is a cut above the ordinary." M. D. Read

+ Library J 74:1921 D 15 '49 70w

"The technical details do not interfere with the novel's engaging narrative style. The events leading up to the expected cataclysm are presented tautly, and if the dénouement is less than surprising, it is at least, comforting." A. H. Weiler

+ N Y Times p16 S 18 '49 240w

EHRLICH, M. S.—Continued
Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p24 S 25 '49 290w

"Fascinating novel. . . It is well worth all the attention and is just as much fun and excitement to read as it is to talk to Mr. Ehrlich. Except about politics." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p5D O 2 '49 450w

EINSELEN, ANNE FRANCES (ANNE PATERSON, pseud). Queen Street story. 256p $2.75 Doubleday 49-7297

A novel of Philadelphia in the 1880's and a young doctor's struggle against the ignorance and superstitions of the times. Robert Warwick's problems are intensified thru an unhappy marriage and love for another woman.

Booklist 45:129; 192 D 15 '48; F 1 '49
Kirkus 16:643 D 15 '48 160w

"This is a good book (although the descriptions of illness and surgery should except young readers) and holds one's interest throughout." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 73:1743 D 1 '48 80w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 F 6 '49 180w

"The life of the era is presented vividly, and the portrayal of the Garratt girls (completely dominated by their father) is an interesting study with Freudian overtones." Anne Richards
+ N Y Times p24 F 6 '49 140w

"For those, and they must be legion, whose interest in medical matters is unceasing this novel is just the ticket. The supply of the same will never outstrip the demand. . . Written with some surgical reticence, sparing of certain dramatic details of diagnosis, 'Queen Street Story' can be taken without either an anesthetic or a shudder." C. M. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 32:37 F 19 '49 140w

EINSTEIN, ALBERT. World as I see it; tr. by Alan Harris. new abr ed 112p $2.75 Philosophical lib.
508.1 Physics. Jews 49-10555

"This little volume, a translation of Einstein's Mein Weltbild, portrays the personality of Einstein the man. No attempt is made to deal with the theory of relativity—rather, through a selection of addresses, letters and occasional writings, the book presents his opinions and views on such topics of universal interest as education, peace, war, world politics, and the Jews. Of particular interest is the series of letters, now published in full for the first time, wherein Einstein tendered his resignation from the Prussian Academy of Science, giving his reasons for doing so." (Library J) Earlier edition was published by Covici in 1934.

Booklist 46:66 O 15 '49
Christian Century 67:82 Ja 18 '50 170w
Reviewed by J. L. Brown
Library J 74:1194 S 1 '49 140w

EINSTEIN, ALFRED. Italian madrigal; tr. by Alexander H. Krappe [and others]. 3v il $30 Princeton univ. press
784.1 Madrigal. Music—Italy 49-7773

"This impressive, three-volume history of the beginnings of Italian national music is the result of forty years of research and study by an outstanding musicologist. . . Mr. Einstein sets the stage by showing how non-Italian musicians conquered and dominated Italian music in the fifteenth century. Then, the main portions of the first two volumes show how, in the course of the sixteenth century, Italian music became 'the undisputed leader.' . . [He] follows in careful detail the lives of the important musical figures who took part in this transformation of taste and style. He studies and quotes the texts of the songs at length, and he is generous in his quotation of musical examples in the course of the first two volumes. The third volume is devoted entirely to the reproduction of ninety-seven of the choicest compositions, with complete music and text, from 1470 to 1650." N Y Times

"The definitive work in any language on the primarily Renaissance problem of the Italian madrigal. . . Essential to music libraries of any considerable size." C. K. Miller
+ Library J 74:820 My 15 '49 140w

"Dr. Einstein's book will hold a prominent place in musicology as the first comprehensive history of a musical form. Indeed, there probably is no history of any form that can compare with it in grasp of material and broad historical perspective." M. F. Bukofzer
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 6:460 Je '49 1700w

"Alfred Einstein's 'Italian Madrigal' is the equivalent of a complete wing of an art museum, and this work, perhaps the greatest musicological achievement of the first half of the century, will at once (or rather after considerable reading and study) open territories of music heretofore sketchily known. . . The Princeton University Press is to be commended unreservedly for the care and good taste bestowed on these magnificent volumes. The scores are exemplary in clarity and the text a model of the printer's art." P. H. Lang
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 My 29 '49 1550w

"It is an illuminating contribution not only to musical scholarship but also to our knowledge of life and art in sixteenth-century Italy. . . It would be misleading to suggest that this work is light reading. It is not. Mr. Einstein takes for granted both some knowledge and some power of concentration in his reader. His work will be a valuable source for years to come. It is also, for those with the time and inclination to give it close attention, fascinating reading." Howard Taubman
+ N Y Times p16 Ap 3 '49 450w

"'New Brilliance for the Old Musical Culture' would have been a fitting subtitle for this work by one of the foremost musicologists of our day. Forty years of research have enabled Alfred Einstein not only to sift and synthesize a mass of extant information, but to view his subject from an elevation never before attained, and to add to it discoveries of inestimable value. . . Living portraits of the madrigalists are created by a few documentary strokes, applied while evaluating their abundant output. . . Dr. Einstein has established that this restricted and artificial expression of humanism is artistically and historically as important as the purer forms that preceded it and the freer ones that have outlasted it." K. O'D. Hoover
+ Sat R of Lit 32:21 Ap 30 '49 750w

"Obviously the result of long study, and a real achievement in musical scholarship, this work abounds in interesting observations, extraordinarily detailed analyses, and musical discoveries, maintaining, at the same time, a remarkable equilibrium by means of judicious comparisons of the madrigal with other types and phases of music."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:151 Je '49 300w

"Historians of both music and Italian literature are now fortunate in having the long-needed standard work in a field in which music and poetry once formed a complete harmony. In giving us the first complete history of the Italian madrigal in both its literary and its musical relation, Alfred Einstein displays an enviable mastery over the vast sources, an admirable sense of the overall rhythm of the development of secular music and the connoisseur's insight into the implications of intricate details." Leo Schrade
+ Yale R n s 39:378 winter '50 1050w

EINSTEIN, DAVID G. Emperor Frederick II. 427p $4.50 Philosophical lib.
B or 92 Frederick II, emperor of the Holy Roman empire 49-551

Biography of Frederick II, grandson of Frederick Barbarossa and the last emperor of the Holy Roman Empire. Selected bibliography. Index.

"This book is ignorantly, naïvely, and dully written, and should never have been published." Gaines Post
— Am Hist R 55:192 O '49 240w

Booklist 45:280 Ap 15 '49

"Mr. Einstein does not write well. His style is that of an intelligent man whose knowledge of the English language is not quite adequate. But he is right on the essential matters about Frederick II." W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 66:497 Ap 20 '49 850w

"A prosaic, uninspired, and superficial account of the life of the Emperor Frederick II." W. S. Hudson
— Crozer Q 26:286 Jl '49 50w

"The book lacks insight into the driving forces behind history. The summary definition of eleventh-century Greece as a 'magnificent Saracen empire' reveals strikingly the limitations of both the author's historical and stylistic concepts. Sometimes repetition substitutes for penetration. What remains, then, is a credible image of the Emperor rising out of dim surroundings. His powerful personality is evident, even in a not wholly satisfying biography." Siegfried Kracauer
+ — N Y Times p30 Ap 3 '49 320w

Wis Lib Bul 45:86 My '49

EISEN, ANTHONY FON. See Fon Eisen, A.

EISENHOWER, DWIGHT DAVID. Crusade in Europe. 559p $5 Doubleday

940.542 World war, 1939-1945—Campaigns and battles. World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, American 48-9171

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"A dignified, modest, ingenuous, eloquent, and deeply moving book which deserves the popular acclaim which it has received. . . Only in his account of the Battle of the Bulge—a name which the author does not like—does the book fail to measure quite up to its purpose; on this point Eisenhower seems unduly sensitive, since he gives, on the whole, a good account of himself. . . This book will be read by historians because it is history, because it comments on history, and because it is the work of the best soldier-historian since, perhaps, Caesar and his commentaries." E. M. Earle
+ Am Hist R 54:860 Jl '49 900w

"General Eisenhower's book is a definitive work. If, perhaps, it is not a history, but rather his account as seen from the remote vantage point of Supreme Headquarters, the historian nevertheless will find it a sound and able exposition of the Crusade. It will be treasured by the military as a book of enduring importance and by the layman as war memoirs of the first rank." J. F. Waldie
+ Cath World 168:488 Mr '49 600w

"Some of the qualities that made Eisenhower a great commander of coalition forces—modesty, tact, humanity—are evident in these memoirs of his service in the recent war."
+ Foreign Affairs 27:505 Ap '49 80w

"Crusade in Europe is a straightforward, orderly account of events in North Africa and Europe from the outbreak of the war until the conflict's end. Written without flamboyance or literary frill but with a keen sense of drama, the narrative reflects in many ways the traits which we have come to associate with Eisenhower—such qualities, for example, as modesty, candor, fairness, and tolerance." H. O. Sweet
+ Social Studies 40:230 My '49 750w

"Besides giving an account of his military stewardship General Eisenhower has written a political testament—the political testament of a great soldier, an elder statesman, and a prophet who is honored at home and abroad."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:72 Mr '49 400w

"This is a fascinating and valuable book. A place must be found for it on the small shelf of classical or semi-classical writings in the military field. Jomini, Clausewitz, Grant, and du Picq wrote of war in the pre-machine age. Eisenhower has written the first complete account of transoceanic coalition war waged in a period when the machine was dominant." H. A. DeWeerd
+ Yale R n s 38:534 spring '49 1550w

EISENSTEIN, SERGEI MIKHAILOVICH. Film form; essays in film theory; ed. and tr. by Jay Leyda. 279p il $4.50 Harcourt

791.4 Moving pictures 49-8349

"Eisenstein, who died last year, was an experimenter, an innovator and the possessor of one of the most active minds ever to apply its talents to the film medium. In his way, he was the same stimulative giant to films that Joyce is to literature or Picasso to modern painting. Consequently this book, which supplements his previous 'The Film Sense' (1942), is a vitally important one for anyone interested in motion pictures. It contains 12 essays on his film theories, four of them appearing for the first time, written between 1928 and 1945 and translated and edited by Jay Leyda, who did the same for 'The Film Sense.'" San Francisco Chronicle

Booklist 45:331 Je 1 '49

Reviewed by Nathan Glick
Nation 169:185 Ag 20 '49 1050w

Reviewed by Siegfried Kracauer
New Repub 121:22 S 26 '49 1650w

"To the pitifully small volume of serious writing we possess on the art of the motion picture, this second selection of Eisenstein's essays and speeches comes as a welcome addition. . . The essays presuppose considerable technical knowledge and, to make full sense, they should be read with direct reference to the varied and often troubled course of the author's own creative career." John Houseman
+ N Y Times p7 Ap 17 '49 750w

Reviewed by Luther Nichols
San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 17 '49 800w

"By turns savagely polemical and whimsically humorous, following every twist of the Party line and lashing out against the mediocrities of the new Soviet film makers, Eisenstein's last book, like all his writings, is on fire with imagination. It should be read by all who can swallow their political prejudices and enjoy a rare feast of good film writing. . . Jay Leyda, well-known authority on Eisenstein's work, has done an excellently thorough job of editing and translating." R. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 Ap 9 '49 340w

EKLUND, JANE MARY. The only gift. 278p $2.75 Houghton

49-11577

A picture of family life in a well-to-do household in Chicago. The events of one year, which saw the departure of each of the five children, are presented chiefly as they appeared to the mother of the family.

Booklist 46:58; 97 O 15 '49; N 15 '49

Reviewed by Olive Carruthers
Chicago Sunday Tribune p24 N 13 '49 500w

"'The Only Gift' is an unusually real and mature first novel. Though Miss Eklund's statement is occasionally fuzzy and her transitions are apt to be jerky, her insight is careful and honest. One emerges from the stifling atmosphere of the Lemmings with some increased understanding of their living counterparts."
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 N 3 '49 210w

+ Kirkus 17:518 S 15 '49 210w

"Jane Eklund creates a rewarding first novel. She constructs her narrative with sincerity, her characterizations show insight and sympathy. In fact, she is a careful craftsman who adheres to high standards of composition which readers have a right to expect from novelists." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 74:1460 O 1 '49 80w

EKLUND, J. M.—Continued
Reviewed by F. H. Bullock
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 O 30 '49 500w

"Miss Eklund exhibits a sharp eye for the innuendoes of human behavior, and a real talent for linking past and present. 'The Only Gift' is a nourishing novel—equally successful in its revelation of a family's year of crisis, and that same family's lifetime." Louis Collins
+ N Y Times p49 N 20 '49 140w

+ New Yorker 25:148 N 12 '49 100w

"If it is a first novel, as I believe, it is an extraordinarily good one. Miss Eklund knows how to write; she was willing to think about her theme until she had it straight in her mind before she tackled it; she has in her much of the kind of image-sense that the good poet has. In short, she can be a writer of importance and, I think, will be." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 8 '49 700w

"Miss Eklund's writing is skilful and delicate and mature. She is as good with a milieu as she is with a character and she can get resounding echoes out of what seem to be understatements. If this is, as I believe, a first novel, it heralds an important career." N. L. Rothman
+ Sat R of Lit 32:17 D 24 '49 700w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p10B Ja 1 '50 180w

ELAM, ELIZABETH. Chuffer; pictures by Dan Langford. [48p] $1.25 Winston 49-10593

Picture storybook about a very small engine named Chuffer, who insisted on running with his eyes closed. It took several accidents or near-accidents to teach him manners.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun S 17 '49 50w

"Recommended where more engine stories are needed." F. W. Butler
Library J 74:1609 O 15 '49 70w

ELECTRONICS (periodical). Electronics manual for radio engineers, by Vin Zeluff and John Markus, associate editors. 879p il $9.50 McGraw 621.38 Electronics 49-5311

"Consists of articles reprinted from the periodical Electronics. Altogether 289 articles are reprinted. They are classified under 16 headings such as antennas, circuit theory, microwaves, production and television." Library J

Booklist 46:78 N 1 '49

"The excuse for the book, and it is a valid one, is its convenience for quick reference." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 74:1332 S 15 '49 60w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:68 S '49

ELIAS, ROBERT HENRY. Theodore Dreiser: apostle of nature. 354p il $4 Knopf
B or 92 Dreiser, Theodore 49-7227

A full-length biography of Theodore Dreiser which is also a summary and analysis of the novelist's writings. It is based on a study of the Dreiser papers in the University of Pennsylvania Library and on interviews and correspondence with Dreiser and his friends. The author is a member of the English department at Cornell University. Index.

Booklist 45:224 Mr 1 '49

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p9X Ja 16 '49 450w

Reviewed by George Miles
Commonweal 49:451 F 11 '49 600w

"A book that aspiring authors would find invaluable as a study, that students of contemporary literature will find indispensable. Whether or not Dreiser is of interest to the general public is a question. We rather doubt it."
Kirkus 16:610 N 15 '48 250w

"Dr. Elias's approach is devoted, but objective; his report, clearly written and carefully documented, is a valuable aid to the understanding of Dreiser's work." H. W. Hart
+ Library J 73:1816 D 15 '48 140w

"Mr. Elias has failed almost completely. Were he unknowing or unintelligent or insensitive, it would hardly matter; but he is none of these. His is a failure of method. Mr. Elias is painstaking; he has unearthed valuable material about Dreiser's life. . . Finally, Mr. Elias has adopted the curious procedure of writing a book about a novelist without discussing his novels. This I find hair-raising. . . Mr. Elias blandly says that whether Dreiser 'is a genius or a giant, and whether he wrote great novels, the present book does not attempt to decide.' That is not a modest statement of limitation; it is a confession of irrelevance." Irving Howe
— Nation 168:159 F 5 '49 1350w

"A biography of genuine merit and importance, as absorbingly interesting as it is enlightening. In a number of explicitly autobiographical books, Dreiser revealed himself with greater candor than any other American writer of his generation. And it is obvious that he drew heavily on his personal experience for the substance of his novels. Nevertheless, Mr. Elias greatly increases our knowledge of the man and thereby enlarges our understanding of his work." Lloyd Morris
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Ja 16 '49 1250w

"One of the functions of literary criticism is to create myths—and one test of a writer's value lies in the series of illusions and superstitions that surround his work like a nimbus or a smoke screen. The merit of Robert Elias' scholarly—and sometimes prosaic—biography of Dreiser is in the extent to which it presents evidence that refutes many of the current views about Theodore Dreiser's life and work." Maxwell Geismar
N Y Times p1 Ja 16 '49 1550w

"It is about as detailed and reliable a life of Dreiser as we are likely to get for some time. But since it appears at the time when his reputation is at its lowest, I wonder why Mr. Elias did not explain what has drawn him to Dreiser over such a long period, and so at least define his own pleasure in the novels for a generation that began to read them long after Dreiser's method had gone out of fashion." Alfred Kazin
+ — New Yorker 25:91 F 26 '49 1700w

"Though his sententiousness is apt to be annoying at times, his approach to Dreiser and Dreiser's view of life is both sensible and serious. Professor Elias writes that his book is 'not a full length biography of the kind that some day must be written,' but his publisher, on the jacket, calls it 'The definitive biography' of the author. The reader will come to his own conclusion about that." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 25 '49 800w

Reviewed by N. H. Pearson
Sat R of Lit 32:14 Ja 29 '49 1050w

"Strictly as an account of Dreiser's bitter early years, this is one of the best biographies of an American literary figure since Israfel, Hervey Allen's life of Poe. Its report of Dreiser's last years is perfunctory and its criticism of his work is so noncommittal that the reader has trouble in fathoming Author Elias' own opinion."
+ — Time 52:89 Ja 24 '49 1150w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:179 Je '49 260w

ELIOT, GEORGE FIELDING. If Russia strikes—. 252p maps $2.75 Bobbs
355 Russia—Foreign relations. Strategy. World politics 49-8681

"Major Eliot, basing his book on his conviction that we are in danger of a war right now, outlines what he considers we should do to win it. The Soviet, he says, has about one year to decide whether or not to attack the Western powers; after that the Russians will meet with serious resistance if they try to overrun Western Europe. The United States and its allies have about three years in which to decide whether or not to have a go at Russia; after that the Soviet will have the atomic bomb. In the light of these hypotheses, the author dispassionately sets up practical questions and then answers them." (New Yorker) No index.

"If Russia Strikes, in addition to being timely, is lucid, blunt, and informative." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 183:86 Je '49 650w

Booklist 45:306 My 15 '49

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p18 My 19 '49 650w

Foreign Affairs 28:156 O '49 20w

Reviewed by Walter Kerr
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ap 24 '49 700w

"His volume is 'popular' in form, and the details are undocumented. But they are probably as accurate as available information can make them, and in some cases astonishing. . . Major Eliot has written a lucid and comprehensive book. The intangibles of human behavior, of course, may upset his predictions." H. W. Blakeley
+ — N Y Times p27 Ap 24 '49 550w

"A disturbing book, any way you look at it."
New Yorker 25:109 Ap 30 '49 200w

"This is a depressing book, of course. It is, as a military man's book would be, so largely devoted to exclusive consideration of war and the author's projection of what would be desirable strategy and tactics, that it says little about other aspects of achieving peace. . . Nevertheless, within its limits the book is a more clearly reasoned statement of at least part of our problem than many in which that problem has been discussed." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 3 '49 750w

"Major Eliot's estimate of the situation is based on sound knowledge and thoughtful weighing of known facts. He shows the relative strength of the two conflicting groups. His balance sheet is based on material factors alone, on mere numbers, which would certainly count in the opening stages of any war." Donald Armstrong
+ Sat R of Lit 32:27 My 21 '49 800w

Wis Lib Bul 45:87 My '49

ELIOT, THOMAS STEARNS. Notes towards the definition of culture. 128p $2.50 Harcourt
901 Culture 49-1605

"My purpose in writing the following chapters is not, as might appear from a casual inspection of the table of contents, to outline a social or political philosophy; nor is the book intended to be merely a vehicle for my observations on a variety of topics. My aim is to help to define a word, the word culture. Just as a doctrine only needs to be defined after the appearance of some heresy, so a word does not need to receive this attention until it has come to be misused. I have observed with growing anxiety the career of this word culture during the past six or seven years. . . At the beginning of my first chapter I have endeavoured to distinguish and relate the three principal uses of the word. . . I then try to expose the essential relation of culture to religion, and to make clear the limitations of the word relation as an expression of this 'relation.' . . In the next three chapters I discuss what seem to me to be three important conditions for culture. . . The remaining two chapters of the book make some slight attempt to disentangle culture from politics and education." (Introd) No index.

Booklist 45:390 Jl 15 '49

Reviewed by Alan McSweeney
Cath World 169:154 My '49 400w

"Like all intelligent conservatism, his warnings can be disregarded only at our peril; like all conservatism, his faith in what men have won from the past can furnish no guide to anything better than the present. Taken as the final word, it is death and defeatism, man forever the victim of his own blindness, forever shut out from the liberty of the sons of God. There are many wise things in this book, wise things even about the relation of culture and religion. Yet the deepest spiritual insight is lacking, the insight which faces tomorrow without fear because it has seen beyond the limiting factor of mortality, of 'original sin,' to man in the image and likeness of God." Robert Peel
Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 10 '49 1200w

"A minor masterpiece of rhetoric. If its concern is with decorum, it can rest upon its own salutary example. The manifestation is more subtle than it looks: the manners that Mr. Eliot regards as worth saving are a flowering from morals; and his achievement here is to keep decently to the surface of things, where serious morals reveal themselves with the restraint of good taste as conventional manners." Henry Rago
+ Commonweal 50:122 My 13 '49 2400w

"Interesting and provocative little work . . . by an intellectual, and for intellectuals."
+ Kirkus 17:74 F 1 '49 140w

"While outside the field in which he made his reputation, as Eliot admits, it is a thoughtful inquiry through which his intellectual power and mastery of language will bring rewards to the limited audience that reads for ideas." G. D. McDonald
Library J 74:375 Mr 1 '49 130w

Manchester Guardian p3 D 17 '48 300w

Reviewed by R. P. Blackmur
Nation 168:475 Ap 23 '49 1650w

"Our Eliot-bemused contemporaries may as well use the occasion of their hero's new book to face a grim fact: in the hierarchy of T. S. Eliot's many abilities, including great poetry and almost as great criticism, his social theory is as leaky as a sieve. To be sure, it is a wonderfully wrought sieve—with some features of Victorian handicraft and some of medieval, contrived with far more subtlety and embellished with far more grace than the clumsy modern utilitarian products. But just the same it leaks badly." Max Lerner
New Repub 120:22 My 9 '49 1350w

Reviewed by R. D. Smith
New Statesman & Nation 37:233 Mr 5 '49 1100w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Mr 13 '49 490w

"To one reader, at least, Mr. Eliot's book has not helped to define the word culture, a very important word, too, whether used as a summary name for humanistic values, or as an anthropological term for the whole complex of human activities in a given society. Mr. Eliot has simply used the term for delivering a sermon once again on the 'Idea of a Christian Society.' His book does not clarify the word for all its occasional sensible words on the values of regionalism and the dangers of a political use of culture. But it does make several not altogether unexpected things clear. One of these is that a poet of great sensibility and achievement can talk with confusion and dogmatism about things concerning which he has no special qualifications." Irwin Edman
N Y Times p3 Mr 6 '49 1600w

Reviewed by W. H. Auden
New Yorker 25:92 Ap 23 '49 1500w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 29 '49 120w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 32:9 Mr 12 '49 750w

School & Society 69:182 Mr 5 '49 50w

Reviewed by H. L. Varley
+ Springf'd Republican p8C My 8 '49 500w

"His finest critical works (Selected Essays; The Idea of a Christian Society) were addressed exclusively to literary and religious intellectuals. But his new book is so simply written that any reader may grasp its hopeless message; and even those who furiously reject Eliot's thoroughly reactionary and dogmatic conclusions will be bound to agree that he has forced them into the healthy exercise of having to think furiously, too."

ELIOT, T. S.—Continued
Time 53:104 Mr 21 '49 1650w

ELKINS, FRANK, and HARPER, FRANK, eds. World ski book. 310p il $5 Longmans
796.93 Skis and ski running 49-49517

Detailed guide book to ski places in twenty-three countries, including Hawaii. Contains information on the history and different systems of skiing, and many photographs.

Booklist 46:153 Ja 1 '50
Bookmark 9:78 Ja '50 30w

"Good reference [book]." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:48 Ja 1 '50 40w

"The ever-expanding group of skiers who await eagerly the arrival of snow will find this an interesting and comprehensive guidebook. . . To gather the prodigious amount of information in this book the editors must have worked as hard as cross-country ski racers and with the same enthusiasm for the sport." A. G. Draper
+ N Y Times p6 Ja 1 '50 500w

"If you've been looking for something to buy a skier, man or woman, you don't need to look any longer. A most all-inclusive book on skiing, 'World Ski Book' is now available. . . Seldom has so much authentic, valuable information been packed into the pages of any book on skiing." Leo Marceau
+ Springf'd Republican p8B D 18 '49 470w

ELLIOTT, GODFREY MONROE, ed. Film and education; a symposium on the role of the film in the field of education. 597p $7.50 Philosophical lib.
371.33523 Moving pictures in education 49-296

"Comprises 37 chapters on the present status and uses of the educational motion picture, written by outstanding leaders in the educational-film field. The uses of the film in religious education, business, government, and industry, as well as in education generally, are discussed." (School & Society) Index.

"Teachers, preachers, and health, medical, industrial, business and community leaders will all find stimulation and practical suggestions in the various chapters of the book. It should be a must on their reference library shelves." K. D. Widdemer
+ Am J Pub Health 39:1190 S '49 330w

"Because so many men have contributed to it, the volume suffers from repetition and there is some unevenness in presentation. Nevertheless, the general impression is favorable."
+ — Am Soc R 14:331 Ap '49 60w

"The purpose is laudable, the argumentation weak." Siegfried Kracauer
New Repub 120:23 Je 6 '49 1200w

"Mr. Elliott, in the role of author, has written one of the best chapters in the book, on the genesis of the educational film; and, as editor, has picked his thirty-six colleagues from among the outstanding authorities in each field. However, the condensation of large subjects into fifteen or twenty pages has given a rather breathless feeling to the book. The authors struggle to cover their chosen territories in so cramped a space and often succeed in presenting only a rather dry summary of facts. Some of them are further hampered by a pedagogical 'gobbledygook' which affronts the eye more and more often in educational writings. The best contributions are those in which the authors have spread themselves somewhat."
Sat R of Lit 32:34 Mr 12 '48 350w
School & Society 69:31 Ja 3 '49 50w

"If all of Film and Education were as good as the best in it, it would indeed be a paragon among books. It is unfortunate, therefore, that the reader must search through too much chaff to find the not inconsiderable number of grains of wheat." A. W. VanderMeer
+ — School R 57:383 S '49 1750w

"Objections of the firmest sort may be raised about the appropriateness of having relegated to the very end of the book the chapter on the selection and evaluation of films. If this was done to supply a fitting climax to the discussions, it may be excusable. But, nevertheless, without an understanding of this material, much of the rest of the book can have little or no value. In spite of this minor complaint, here is a book that should long remain a comprehensive source of information about an educational topic of increasing significance." W. G. Tyrrell
+ — Social Educ 13:297 O '49 400w

Reviewed by H. B. Williams
Social Forces 28:227 D '49 450w

"Unfortunately, most of these six hundred pages display the forbidding style of the professional educationist, but the determined explorer will find in the book much valuable information."
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:65 Mr '49 300w

ELLIOTT, WILLIAM YANDELL, and McDONALD, NEIL ALONZO, eds. Western political heritage. 1027p $9 Prentice-Hall
320.8 Political science 49-48179

"An outgrowth of the basic course in government at Harvard. Professor Elliott, outstanding political scientist there, and his younger colleague McDonald, former chief of sections for this course, now teaching at New Jersey College for Women, joined hands in order to produce a novel introduction to Western political thought, from Moses to Truman. Elliott wrote most of the general interpretative essays preceding the selections from the great political classics, while McDonald did most of the editing." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"A remarkable job on behalf of both the student and the contemplative reader has been done by two professors, who tilled and tested the field of political thought for their classes at Harvard university." L. T. Heron
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 N 20 '49 100w

"Fascinating volume which will be useful not only on college campuses, but also in many public libraries, either because they don't own all the important works which Elliott and McDonald quote extensively, or because they wish to help readers in search of deepened political education. Highly recommended, in spite of some disagreement on selection of material. Fairly good bibliography." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 74:1820 D 1 '49 180w

"This book ought to find its way into the library of anyone who has any curiosity about the origins and development of the struggle between tyranny and freedom." T. P.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p31 N 27 '49 440w

ELLIS, HOWARD SYLVESTER, ed. Survey of contemporary economics; pub. for the American economic association. 490p $4.75 Blakiston
330.4 Economics 48-4470

Account by authorities of the development of economic thought in thirteen different fields during the past decade and a half. Partial contents: Value and distribution, by B. F. Haley; Monopoly and the concentration of economic power, by J. K. Galbraith; Price and production policies, by J. S. Bain; The theory of international trade, by L. A. Metzler; Economics of labor, by L. G. Reynolds; Monetary theory, by H. H. Villard; Socialist economics, by Abram Bergson; The prospects for capitalism, by D. McC. Wright. Brief biographical notes on contributors. Index.

"The book provides a very good summary of recent mathematical and statistical attempts to deal with problems of government policy. It contains valuable bibliography for the history of economic thought." L. H. Haney
+ Ann Am Acad 262:222 Mr '49 600w

"Sponsored by the American Economic Association, this book is intended primarily to keep economists abreast of affairs outside their specialties, but it will be of use to anyone who wants to know what economists are thinking about nowadays, especially if his college training stopped with, or short of, Keynes."

+ Foreign Affairs 27:331 Ja '49 80w

ELLIS, LEWIS ETHAN. Print paper pendulum; group pressures and the price of newsprint. 215p $3 Rutgers univ. press

338.47676 Paper making and trade. Wood pulp 48-7704

"Covering the period 1870-1936, this study describes the efforts of manufacturers of pulp and paper to obtain a maximum price for it, and the efforts of newspaper publishers to secure this raw material as cheaply as possible. It examines the effect of manufacturer-publisher relations on supply and demand, and consequently on price. The years covered witnessed a shift from reliance upon a domestic supply of newsprint to dependence upon Canada as a major source." U S Quarterly Bkl

"The most serious weakness of this study stems from the author's exclusive dependence on American information. No complete or accurate appraisal of the actions or motives of newsprint manufacturers can be obtained without the Canadian materials. Apart from this limitation, however, the book is outstanding as a piece of careful research." J. A. Guthrie
+ Am Hist R 54:442 Ja '49 550w
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:445 D '48 280w

ELLMANN, RICHARD. Yeats, the man and the masks. 331p $5 Macmillan

B or 92 Yeats, William Butler 48-9443

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Booklist 45:224 Mr 1 '49

Reviewed by Lawrence Haward
Manchester Guardian p5 D 28 '49 360w

"To present in all its complexity and with a feeling for its unity the story of Yeats's life demands great gifts. Ellmann is equipped with some essential ones. He is possessed of a far finer scholarly and critical apparatus than Yeats's previous biographer, and he seems to have a warmer interest in his subject. He had the advantage of being allowed access to a great deal of unpublished material, including the poet's notebooks, and first drafts of both verse and prose, all of which he has used skilfully. His book is furnished with ample notes and these, like the index, are admirably arranged. There are some ambiguous, some doubtful, and a few contradictory passages, but Ellmann is only rarely guilty of using aseptically malodorous words as 'maladjustment' or 'spasmic' (this with reference to Yeats's poetry), and he has flashes of pleasant wit." Babette Deutsch
+ — New Repub 120:22 Mr 21 '49 1250w

"Mr. Ellmann's book is an admirable attempt, in a world that is still unutterably stupid about the nature of the relation of symbol to spiritual reality, and of the imaginative hierarchies that are the theme of all great poets and all great religions, to understand Yeats's debt to occultism. This is not the sole theme of the book, and Mr. Ellmann does full justice to Yeats's political activities, but certainly the most new and most interesting sections are on Yeats's esoteric affiliations." Kathleen Raine
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:700 D 10 '49 1150w

"As an analytical study, Mr. Ellmann's work is thorough and precise, in other words, scholarly in the best tradition—and yet lively and entertaining. . . Yeats: The Man and the Masks is certainly necessary reading for any student of Yeats' poetry. But the general reader will be occasionally provoked by the book's ambiguous construction." H. C.
+ — Poetry 74:244 Jl '49 320w

"Ellmann has done a first rate job. And one, it should be added, that needed doing. Besides the careful tracing of the growth of ideas in Yeats, Ellmann's book is rich in interpretation of particular poems and symbols—some of it familiar, some not—and his points are supported by many quotations from poems in early draft stages, letters and diaries." U. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 6 '49 320w

"The portrait of Yeats painted in this book by Professor Ellmann is one which will scarcely be recognised by the poet's intimates, some of whom, indeed, will not recognise it at all or will feel that the colours have been too lavishly mixed with heavy Freudian oils. The father complex, for example, is over-worked, and the normal conflict between any adolescent mind and an experienced or settled mind in authority over it is stated almost in terms of a major war." St. John Ervine
Spec 183:640 N 11 '49 1100w
Times [London] Lit Sup p716 N 4 '49 1100w

"It is a matter for some surprise that interviews with Yeats' surviving friends and the use of such a wealth of basic documents should not have yielded a work of greater circumstantiality. . . Yet the book has the virtues of modesty and balance. If it does not give a dramatic or even a compelling analysis of the man in relation to his mighty work, it does give a sensible account, which is, in a rather too literal way, trustworthy."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 5:179 Je '49 230w

Reviewed by George Whalley
Yale R n s 39:165 autumn '49 900w

ELLSBERG, EDWARD. Cruise of the Jeannette; il. by Gerald Foster. 275p $2.75 Dodd 49-10274

The Jeannette was a barque which carried an expedition seeking the North Pole seventy years ago. This adventure tale for older boys is the story of that expedition and is taken from the author's earlier book on the same subject, Hell on Ice (Book Review Digest 1938).

Booklist 46:85 N 1 '49

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 170:211 D '49 40w

"Genuine adventure and very human drama." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun S 3 '49 50w

"Those who like tales of high struggle against fearful odds of natural forces may find full satisfaction in Captain Ellsberg's account of the voyage of the Jeannette." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:541 N '49 150w

Reviewed by Lesley Newton
+ Library J 74:1612 O 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 15 '50 90w

"This homeric tale of man's struggle against nature is swiftly, graphically, objectively told. One might criticize the author for making no attempt at character analysis, for showing the conflicts to be entirely physical, rather than psychological, and for depicting all but one of his heroes as perfect knights." I. H. Freeeman
+ — N Y Times p32 S 25 '49 230w

Reviewed by Felix Riesenberg
San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 13 '49 120w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:46 N 12 '49 40w

ELLSBERG, EDWARD. No banners, no bugles. 370p $4 Dodd

940.548 World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939-1945—Naval operations. Salvage 49-10779

A continuation of the record of the author's war services begun in Under the Red Sea Sun (Book Review Digest 1946). This account covers salvage work done in the Mediterranean ports rendered useless by the scuttling of the French navy after the African invasion in November 1942.

Booklist 46:24; 45 S 15 '49; O 1 '49
Bookmark 9:52 D '49 40w

ELLSBERG, EDWARD—Continued
Reviewed by M. P. Corcoran
Cath World 170:154 N '49 300w

Reviewed by Ben Kartman
Chicago Sun p9X N 20 '49 360w

"The tale is on the windy side, too highly personalized, and ridden with cliches, but Captain Ellsberg has enough sense of the dramatic to make a tale exciting and engrossing when he finally gets down to it." Paul Farrell
— + Commonweal 50:616 S 30 '49 130w

"Breathless entertainment, useful knowledge, and thought-provoking material for all readers."
+ Library J 74:1559 O 15 '49 70w

Nation 169:355 O 8 '49 30w

"For one at all sensitive to words, it must be admitted that at times the writing suffers from threadbare adjectives and overwriting. But even here it has the quality of honesty that wins indulgent respect, much as a worn but neatly pressed uniform might. One feels throughout, the earnestness and the durability of the man." Alfred Stanford
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 S 18 '49 1050w

"A fine and rousing book. . . Ellsberg is no Saint Exupéry, enriching his story with philosophical overtones. But he does know how to make you feel, taste and share his unusual experiences. You read this book and say, this is the way it was at Oran and Algiers and Bone and Arzeu in the bad winter of 1942." Burke Wilkinson
+ N Y Times p28 S 18 '49 600w

San Francisco Chronicle p32 O 16 '49 340w

"It is not a narrative of unalloyed success—the captain recounts his failures fully and fairly—but in addition to being a book about fascinating technical achievements, it is a book about people. The skill with which he identifies the men who worked with and under him, or describes the helpful, bumbling, or vigorous action of officials, is perfectly extraordinary. No reader can fail to be interested though a good many will regret that there is no index." Fletcher Pratt
+ Sat R of Lit 32:30 O 22 '49 500w

Springf'd Republican p7C O 9 '49 600w

Wis Lib Bul p10 D '49

ELLSON, HAL. Duke. 170p $2.75 Scribner
49-8025

A picture of the adolescent gang-life of New York city, presented in a first-person narrative of a Harlem boy, leader of the Counts and runner for a marijuana dealer.

Reviewed by Nelson Algren
Chicago Sun p8X Mr 20 '49 360w

"This is straight reportorial writing, done in the clenched-teeth-curled-lip tradition with clipped sentences and endless use of slang. For strong stomachs and those who like their reading terse and breathless."
Kirkus 17:11 Ja 1 '49 150w

"Author's use of the idiom of the gutter gives a feeling of authenticity. The fact that Duke is a Negro adds to story's poignancy. Alone all day with nothing constructive to do the child falls into evil practices which he vaguely regrets but hasn't the will to resist without guidance. Recommended for mature minded adults only." H. R. Forbes
Library J 74:312 F 15 '49 110w

"The author seems to have relied too heavily on the verbalizations of the juvenile delinquents with whom he has worked, and not to have bridged the gap that lies between such revelations and the actual stream of consciousness—and conscience." Knox Burger
New Repub 120:23 Mr 28 '49 650w

"Mr. Ellson, who has worked as a recreational therapist with juvenile delinquents, is undoubtedly telling an authentic story. He has not, however, managed to give it dramatic form. In trying to make clear society's responsibility for these gangs, the author has his protagonist brood about his underprivileged, uncared-for state, in soliloquies that sound like a social worker's notations. Also Duke's depravity is so complete and inevitable from the beginning that it is hard to understand what the author means when he suddenly tells us in the end that now Duke has become a real criminal. Not a successful novel, this is a little-known, morbidly fascinating and shameful piece of social history."
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 F 20 '49 290w

"The author, who worked for several years as a recreational therapist, has drawn upon case material for his story—including the thorough documenting of Duke's addiction to marijuana. . . The need for the drug, Mr. Ellson implies, derives from Duke's environmental blind alley. But the factors causing Duke's defiance are not sufficiently detailed. . . If it was Mr. Ellson's intention to interpret 'evil as sickness,' he hasn't given us enough of the germinating background." Hollis Alpert
N Y Times p30 F 13 '49 230w

"As the blurb-writer says, this novel is shocking. It is also quite definitely dull." E. D. Doyle
— San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 20 '49 400w

"As a case history, as an honest attempt to shatter a common complacency with the weapon of shock, 'Duke' enlists itself in an excellent cause. As a novel it suffers from the fault of ambivalence, of monotone." John Woodburn
Sat R of Lit 32:14 F 26 '49 800w

School & Society 69:271 Ap 9 '49 50w

ELSON, JAMES HINSDALE. John Hales of Eton. 199p $2.50 King's crown press
B or 92 Hales, John 48-8101

"Although not one of the immortals of the seventeenth century, John Hales of Eton was a 'latitudinarian' divine who achieved an extraordinary reputation among the learned and devout of his time and for years afterward. . . The first chapter deals with Hales' relatively uneventful life and his many friendships with poets and scholars, and summarizes all that is known of him on this side. The later sections deal with such topics, among others, as Christian Humanism, the Synod of Dort, where Hales said 'good-night to John Calvin,' giving up Calvinism in favor of a set of ideas on which he hoped there might be built a church 'broad enough to preserve peace and flexible,' Of Private Judgment in Religion, and Reason and Revelation." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by L. I. Bredvold
Am Hist R 54:662 Ap '49 280w

"Do not pass this book by because you know nothing of John Hales. He is worth knowing: and before you are half-way through the book you will be grateful to Mr. Elson for this admirable account of him and his writings." F. J. Moore
+ Churchman 163:17 F 1 '49 210w

Reviewed by R. M. Vaughan
Crozer Q 24:179 Ap '49 700w

Reviewed by W. S. Hudson
J Religion 29:167 Ap '49 150w

School & Society 68:223 S 25 '48 20w

"Mr. Elson's is the fullest study of Hales yet made, and the only modern one, and as such will be valuable to students of the religious and intellectual history of England."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:430 D '48 240w

EMANUEL, W. D. Your camera; all the steps to good photography. 1st Am ed 240p il $2.50 Focal press
770.2 Photography 49-827

"This is the first American edition of a book that has passed through 17 editions in England in addition to editions in foreign countries. Intended for the beginner, it covers the entire field of photography from an explanation of the component parts of any camera, and a table showing the uses of different types of cameras, to exposure, developing and color photography." (Library J) Index.

"An excellent book for the beginner, with good photographs and numerous diagrams."
+ Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '49

Reviewed by Julian Sohon
Library J 74:822 My 15 '49 70w

EMBREE, EDWIN ROGERS, and WAXMAN, JULIA. Investment in people; the story of the Julius Rosenwald fund. 291p $3 Harper

361.73 Julius Rosenwald fund. Rosenwald, Julius 49-7697

The history of the Julius Rosenwald fund of twenty-two million dollars which was to be used for helping all Americans, but particularly the Negro. The money, which was to be used in a single generation, went toward education, medical service, and race relations. Contains statistics, names of people who used the fund, publications by officers of the fund. No index.

Booklist 45:256 Ap 1 '49

Reviewed by T. H. Wright
Chicago Sun Mr 8 '49 500w

"This is an inspiring story splendidly told, a moving book—increasing one's faith in man and one's active support of good. . . This book aids the reader as a citizen, as a Christian or Jew, as a reformer, as a neighbor. It makes him more attached to America, more devoted to good movements." R. H. Markham
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 F 17 '49 600w

"Informative, interesting in parts, the sum total is too statistical for general popular consumption. Too bad it could not have been presented in more human terms."
Kirkus 16:653 D 15 '48 170w

Nation 168:254 F 26 '49 70w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 14 '49 190w

Reviewed by Hodding Carter
N Y Times p17 Mr 20 '49 700w

Reviewed by E. C. Lindeman
Sat R of Lit 32:24 F 26 '49 850w

Reviewed by S. M. Harrison
Survey 85:395 Jl '49 1150w

EMERSON, SUZANNE GOULD. Off to college; il. by Evelyn Copelman. 149p $2 Winston

376.8 Students. Girls 49-9290

A book of information for the prospective college girl. Partial contents: The clothes you'll need; Packing and transportation; That first day; Co-etiquette; Budgets and allowances; Those men you'll date; School activities and service; The subject of sororities; The academic life; Appendix: List of senior colleges, junior colleges, and teachers' colleges.

"Somewhat sketchy but reasonable and readable."
Booklist 45:359 Je 15 '49

"Good for reference and of interest to parents of college bound daughters."
+ Kirkus 17:88 F 15 '49 120w

"An extremely helpful book for girls considering going to college." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 74:558 Ap 1 '49 60w

Reviewed by V. H. Mathews
N Y Times p16 Jl 24 '49 150w

EMERY, MRS ANNE. Senior year; il. by Beth Krush. 208p $2.50 Presbyterian bd.

49-8568

In this story Sally Burnaby's senior year in high school begins badly—when Sally's best friend goes off to boarding school—goes on worse—when her boy friend begins dating another girl—but finally turns out the best ever.

Booklist 45:298 My 1 '49

"An excellent addition to that too slight shelf of books which reflect growing pains of teenagers." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun My 28 '49 150w

Kirkus 17:152 Mr 15 '49 120w

"Wholesome story for older girls which should be popular." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 74:1035 Jl '49 70w

"As the story unfolds American family life at its best is revealed, with sound values presented in a way that makes its points without preaching." P. A. Whitney
+ N Y Times p18 Jl 10 '49 130w

EMERY, RUSSELL GUY. T-quarterback. 201p $2.50 Macrae Smith co.

49-6498

A college football story for boys. Deals with the problem of over-emphasis on the sport leading to subsidization of the players.

Booklist 46:126 D 1 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun N 5 '49 60w

"Good school story."
+ Kirkus 17:430 Ag 15 '49 130w

"Good football and sportsmanship, but why don't they try another theme? Recommended for children's room and young people's collections." M. D. Read
+ Library J 74:1612 O 15 '49 50w

Reviewed by W. R. White
San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 13 '49 60w

EMMENS, ROBERT G. Guests of the Kremlin. 291p $3 Macmillan

940.547247 World war, 1939-1945—Prisoners and prisons, Russian. Russia—Description and travel. World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, American 49-10676

"Author was co-pilot of one of the B-25's on Doolittle's Tokyo bombing raid. Forced by gas trouble to land on Russian territory near Vladivostock, the crew of five was interned. Finally, after thirteen months, transferred south and permitted to work, they were able to escape across Iran border. This is the story of their stay in Russia and of the conditions they found among the people." Library J

Booklist 46:46 O 1 '49

Christian Century 66:1425 N 30 '49 140w

"Colonel Emmens tells his story vividly and with a frequent touch of humor. It is a good story so far as it deals with the experiences and reactions of himself and his friends. It is of questionable value, however, as an evaluation of conditions in the Soviet Union." Ernest Pisko
+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 S 24 '49 650w

"A fine tale, authentic, honest—if a bit naive—well-written. You won't forget the characters in a hurry. Nor will you forget the odoriferous details of their experience. It leaves an end impression of as good an anti-communist book as any we have seen."
+ Kirkus 17:460 Ag 15 '49 160w

"Recommended for public libraries." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 74:1195 S 1 '49 100w

"Superficial but pleasantly readable."
Nation 169:333 O 1 '49 60w

" 'Guests of the Kremlin' is not primarily a polemic. It is a rapidly paced narrative with many anecdotes and incidents involving unwashed Russian servants and ignorant-looking peasants. The author writes in an easy to read, conversational style, giving equal emphasis to the trivial and momentous. The anti-Soviet major of indeterminate age who hauls out a picture of himself with Voroshilov and Malinovsky rates equal space with the constant references to scatological matters." Richard Lauterbach
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p54 S 25 '49 750w

EMMENS, R. G.—Continued

"The author tells a straightforward story and draws a clear picture of life in 'the land of milk and honey.'" Oriana Atkinson

+ N Y Times p26 S 18 '49 550w

"This book is as it ought to be: simple—like a letter home—, without too much editorializing, and certainly without political sophistication." Mark Eaton

+ Sat R of Lit 32:12 S 24 '49 800w

EMPSON, WILLIAM. Collected poems. Am ed 113p $2.50 Harcourt

821 49-7861

"To American readers Mr. Empson is probably best known as an adventurous and lively critic through his 'Seven Types of Ambiguity' and 'English Pastoral Poetry.' . . He was educated at Cambridge at about the time Auden and Spender were at Oxford; before the war he was Professor of English Literature at the Imperial University, Tokyo, and has also taught in China, where he is at present. . . In the present volume his poems are collected for the first time in the United States. 'Collected Poems' comprise the contents of the two volumes previously published in England as well as a few other poems, including three written since 1940." N Y Times

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Ag 1 '49 60w

"A number of Mr. Empson's poems simply don't get into a climax—they talk about something and after a bit they let go of it. One is not sure that the poem couldn't have continued indefinitely or that it couldn't have ended sooner. But what is more important to say is that, whether ultimately successful or not, there is not a single poem in this book that is not exciting to read." Henry Rago

Commonweal 50:72 Ap 20 '49 420w

Kirkus 17:173 Mr 15 '49 120w

Reviewed by Shirley Barker
Library J 74:497 Mr 15 '49 70w

Nation 168:396 Ap 2 '49 270w

Reviewed by Robert Fitzgerald
+ New Repub 120:22 Ap 25 '49 1250w

"There is a real fascination about Empson's poetry, but it is hardly a poetic fascination. It has little to do with your appreciation of poetry." David Daiches

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 My 22 '49 320w

"If Mr. Empson is sometimes impractically difficult, he is never pretentious and never guilty of the frivolous self-indulgence which may lead a poet to publish verse which was obviously much more fun to write than it can possibly be to read. His poetry has its starting point in wit, but by no means excludes feeling. It is light and tough and hard, and displays an evenness of temperament, a dryness and urbanity that are by no means inconsistent with depth and richness." Herbert Barrows

+ — N Y Times p5 Mr 27 '49 750w

"In his critical volume entitled 'Seven Types of Ambiguity,' he deduced a few rules of complication and obscurity by studying a wide range of English poetry. He has evidently composed his poems according to these rules, and the result is often uncanny, as though certain basic laws of nature were suspended or had at least become Einsteinian or Eddingtonian. The author's notes add to the confusion. Empson does very well, however, with polished light verse; in fact, it is in this form that his true talent seems to lie."

+ — New Yorker 25:115 My 7 '49 100w

"Earth Has Shrunk in the Wash is the revelatory title of one of the most difficult poems in this difficult but rewarding volume." William Troy

+ Poetry 74:234 Jl '49 700w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 29 '49 60w

"Here is a mind at work, examining the faces of familiar things and familiar ideas from odd and unsuspected angles, dredging up new metaphors, on occasion opening paths to sudden heights. 'This Last Pain,' for one, recaptures the splendid insouciance of the Caroline poets, together with some of their compelling lyric elegance." G. P. Meyer

+ Sat R of Lit 32:18 Mr 19 '49 650w

Time 53:108 Ap 18 '49 1000w

Reviewed by Eugene Davidson
Yale R n s 38:723 summer '49 490w

EMRICH, DUNCAN. It's an old wild West custom. (American customs ser) 313p il $3 Vanguard

917.8 West—Social life and customs. Frontier and pioneer life—West 49-10763

"This is not a book of history, of social custom, or of folklore. It has something of each, but not enough of any to be considered a 'volume' on those subjects. It is reminiscent and introductory. The person who has lived in these states will read it as a book to remind him of a thousand things which are not in this book. The person who has never been there will learn something . . . of the past and present pattern of life, and will go on to the reading of the great volumes on the West." Pref

Booklist 46:62 O 15 '49

"A chatty companion book for anyone interested in the background of western lore and distinctive western customs."

+ Kirkus 17:449 Ag 15 '49 100w

"Nothing is left out, and nothing new is added. While entertaining, it is not too important." L. R. Etzkorn

Library J 74:1316 S 15 '49 130w

Library J 74:1563 O 15 '49 60w

"Mr. Emrich describes the latest addition to the rapidly growing American Customs Series as a 'reminiscent and introductory' book, acknowledging that Western readers will be reminded of 'a thousand things' which are not in it. He sets the figure high, but some undoubtedly will wonder why their favorite regional quirks have been passed over. Still, few of these are important and no book could list them all; most readers will find Mr. Emrich's informal guide to Western social patterns adequately interesting and entertaining. . . The chapter on food is disappointing. . . There are a few geographical slips." J. K. Howard

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 O 9 '49 750w

"It all makes excellent reading. To organize a book of this kind is difficult, but the author does the job admirably, grouping his bits of legend and fact in chapters under appropriate heads, making it easy for the reader who may want to thumb back for a tale he would like to read again. Best of all, Mr. Emrich writes with gusto and honest pleasure in what he's doing. Not once does he patronize anything or anybody for being merely 'quaint.' That is his approach and it is eminently the right one." J. H. Jackson

+ N Y Times p31 O 23 '49 360w

"The book is one in which the reader will find careful scholarship, broad knowledge, sincerity and a kind of out-giving good humor that is as Western as the book's subject matter. Which means that Westerners themselves will be the most eager readers of Dr. Emrich's book." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 19 '49 750w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich
Sat R of Lit 32:23 O 22 '49 200w

ENCYCLOPEDIA of world history, ancient, medieval and modern, chronologically arranged; comp. and ed. by William L. Langer; [new ed. rev. with the assistance of Geoffrey Bruun]. 1270p maps $7.50; student's ed $5.60 Houghton

902 Chronology, Historical 48-11571

"This book sticks by Karl Ploetz's original conception in his 'Epitome of History.' The editor has tried to compile a handbook of historical facts so arranged that the dates stand out while the material itself flows in a reasonably smooth narrative. This second edition carries on where the first ended, the outbreak of war in Europe, September, 1939." (School & Society) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1940.

Booklist 45:141 D 15 '48

"I have found 'An Encyclopedia of World History' steadily useful in the past eight years."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 D 19 '48 80w

School & Society 68:439 D 18 '48 60w

"High school students will find this volume helpful in such learning activities as preparing papers or oral reports and in constructing outlines or time lines. An encyclopedia of world history such as this is an essential in every high school and social studies departmental library, desirable for reference in the world history classroom, and a handy volume for the social studies teacher to own." J. C. McLendon

+ Social Educ 13:296 O '49 420w

Social Studies 40:240 My '49 20w

ENGELS, NORBERT. Man around the house. 195p il $2.95 Prentice-Hall

680 Woodwork. Handicraft 49-48642

Advice and suggestions on how to turn a home work-shop into an interesting avocation written by a professor of English at Notre Dame who is famous for his contributions to "hobby" magazines. There is some discussion of tools, and methods, but the greater part of the book gives working drawings and methods for a large number of projects from building a picnic table to doing over an antique chest.

Reviewed by H. P. Smith

Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 N 20 '49 60w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '49

"Some of the pieces are rather ordinary, but many of them are interesting and attractive." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 74:1912 D 15 '49 100w

Springf'd Republican p10B D 25 '49 110w

ERICKSON, PHOEBE. Cattail house; il. by [the author; prepared under the direction of Illa Podendorf]. [35p] $1.50 Childrens press 49-8989

Picture-book showing the activities of small forest animals. It tells of a muskrat who went exploring before building a cattail house for his winter quarters.

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Je 14 '49 360w

"Illustrations are charming; text is pleasant. End papers are valuable as they give sketches of many of the forest leaves and of the tracks of forest creatures." J. M. Smith

+ Library J 74:961 Je 15 '49 60w

ERNST, MORRIS LEOPOLD, and LOTH, DAVID GOLDSMITH. The people know best; the ballots vs. the polls. 169p $2.50 Public affairs press

973.918 Public opinion polls. Elections—U.S. U.S.—Politics and government—1945- 49-702

This discussion of the last presidential election attempts to show the dangers of controlled communications. It is also a study of the influence and mistakes of the newspapers, radio commentators, and the Gallup poll and its imitators, and the dangers to free expression which they imply. No index.

Reviewed by R. C. Myers

Ann Am Acad 264:151 Jl '49 320w

Reviewed by Morley Ayearst

Canadian Forum 29:44 My '49 290w

— Kirkus 17:73 F 1 '49 70w

"Mr. Ernst and Mr. Loth rub it in. Most of their book is a scissors-and-paste collection of some of the wrong things said and written by people who should have known better. At the end some pertinent questions are asked about the nature of polls and the responsibilities of the free press. 'It is a traveler's maxim that if you ask the right question you will find the right way,' they say. Good advice, for writers as well as readers. The book would have been a more useful stimulus if the authors had taken time to think out some of the answers as well as questions." J. C. Smith

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 F 20 '49 360w

"Vigorous little volume... The material was obviously compiled with haste, and the tone is one of righteous wrath. No attempt is made to conceal a bias for the show-me man from Missouri, to whom the tract is dedicated. But many things are said that need to be said, including an eloquent admonition to view our soothsayers with a more critical eye, especially the unrepentant columnists and microphone messiahs." T. A. Bailey

N Y Times p6 Mr 6 '49 700w

Reviewed by A. B. Simon

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 27 '49 350w

"A readable broadside... also performs a public service, using simple arithmetic as a device, to show how the pollsters, particularly Dr. Gallup, play with figures after election to show how right they were before... The Ernst-Loth book is fun for those who like to say, 'I told you so.' It is far from profound; in fact, its content is at least as light as the slenderness of the volume would lead a nonreader to suspect." Warren Moscow

Sat R of Lit 32:10 Mr 26 '49 600w

Reviewed by J. P. Roche

Social Educ 13:351 N '49 350w

"This collection makes both humorous and tragic reading. It is humorous to see the journalistic great who spoke with 'a godlike certainty which ill becomes the mouths of men' fall on their faces, funny like the slapstick of a man in top hat slipping on a banana peel. It is tragic to realize that all the agencies of communication—even most of those papers, writers, and speakers that favored Harry S. Truman's reelection—could have been so wrong... Commentators may shout about their viewpoints, over the air or in print, but if the news columns are uncontaminated, then the public still is free to make up its own mind on the basis of facts. If these columns are tainted, then it really is a sorry day for the American people. The next step may be regimentation. Ernst and Loth have little to say on this vitally important point." Hillier Krieghbaum

Survey 85:178 Mr '49 600w

ERNST, WALTER. Oil hydraulic power and its industrial applications. 366p il $6 McGraw

665.5 Hydromechanics. Hydraulic engineering 49-10208

"This book deals chiefly with industrial applications, although some of the material, particularly the theoretical parts, applies as well to automotive and aeronautical uses. The early chapters in which the fundamentals of fluid mechanics are stated concisely, occupy approximately 70 pages. The remainder of the book is devoted to fairly detailed descriptions of methods, machinery and applications. The book is of interest in a wide range of engineering specialties, but it has particular application to the design of servo-mechanisms and heavy machine tools." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 46:137 D 15 '49

N Y New Tech Bks 34:70 S '49

ERSKINE, MRS DOROTHY. Miss Pettinger's niece. 302p $3 Creative age 49-11072

The story of a Pennsylvania town between the years 1927 and 1947. It is told in episodes about several of the townspeople: Miss Pet-

ERSKINE, DOROTHY—Continued
tinger who loved food and her beautiful niece, Helen; Helen, herself, the central character; the doctor whom Helen married; and others of the town's social lights and trades people.

"An ironic montage where acerbity is heightened by deft human touches, and intimate understanding of human futility. A sophisticated approach to small town lives."
Kirkus 17:404 Ag 1 '49 150w

"The niece is the central character, but the author expends so much time on irrelevant details about other people and things that poor Helen is practically lost in the shuffle. What happens to her is quite interesting, if you have the patience and time to seek it out. Slow but sophisticated, frustrating picture of small town life." Anne Whitmore
Library J 74:1201 S 1 '49 80w

"For the most part, they are a pathetic, unlovely, depressing assortment, and the novelist measures their small souls with cold, gleaming callipers."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p32 D 4 '49 220w

"At her best, Miss Erskine is entertaining, observant, warm and tolerant. On the other hand, she can be very unfunny. She seems to lack the simplicity to suggest powerfully the spirit of simple people. Too many of the older characters, friends and relations, are alive in the 'Arsenic and Old Lace' school." W. M. T.
+ — N Y Times p58 D 4 '49 160w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 32:32 D 31 '49 150w

ERSKINE, JOHN. Venus, the lonely goddess; with il. by Warren Chappell. 155p $2.75 Morrow 49-11471

Venus, the young wife of Vulcan, felt she was not appreciated on Olympus, so she decided to make a trip to Troy and mix with human beings. Displeased with what she found there the goddess returned, determined to be more understanding of her husband. To her dismay she found that Vulcan had consoled himself with another during her absence. So Venus departed once more for Troy.

Booklist 46:58; 97 O 15 '49; N 15 '49

"Nothing can actually be said to happen in the book in the 'novel' sense of the word. . . The book is just a sheerly delightful series of observations about life, told by a past-master at that rare kind of writing with a cynical tenderness toward the human race and its emotions." Fanny Butcher
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 20 '49 600w

"Often witty, always urbane. . . Deftly discursive with the sparkle of civilized chatter, this has its appeal for lighter, brighter moments."
+ Kirkus 17:485 S 1 '49 140w

"A rather pleasant and mellow, though pensive, breath from the past. Its 155 pages should neither harm nor bore anybody." E. R. Walbridge
Library J 74:1602 O 15 '49 80w

"John Erskine has lost none of his finesse with the entertaining juxtaposition of discordant ideas, the sketching of a mood with a few deft lines. His brief excursion with Venus is a grace note to the masterpiece that was Helen, but it is fun in its own right too." Lorine Pruette
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 27 '49 470w

"Those who delighted in his 'Helen of Troy' will find 'Venus' a minor, but welcome, addition to Erskine mythology." Richard Match
N Y Times p45 N 13 '49 320w

"There are a great many arch remarks concerning mankind and love and marriage and women, and after a very short time, Mr. Erskine's comic versions of Juno, Jupiter, Vulcan, and the others begin to pall badly."
New Yorker 25:153 N 12 '49 80w

"For readers who enjoy pedantic wit John Erskine's short novel offers a superior treat." John Cournos
+ Sat R of Lit 33:29 Ja 14 '50 230w
Springf'd Republican p17A Ja 8 '50 190w
Time 54:110 N 14 '49 550w

ERSKINE, MARGARET, pseud. See Williams, W.

ERWIN, MABEL DEANE. Clothing for moderns. 589p il $4.50 Macmillan 646 Dressmaking. Clothing and dress
49-7727

"Although this book is intended for a college text, it is an extremely useful reference for the housewife or career girl who is interested in clothes. There is a triple division of the subject—selection of wardrobe, buying problems of the consumer, and construction and care of clothes. Information is complete and up to date whether the subject is good grooming or the pressing and laundering of fabrics. The section on construction will be helpful to beginners as well as to those who have done a good deal of sewing." Booklist

Booklist 45:236 Mr 15 '49

"Another excellent book to the college clothing field. Its inviting pages offer an interesting approach to the freshman clothing course—as a textbook or as a handy reference volume. . . This book should fill a long-felt need for a basic text or reference for freshman clothing courses." E. C. Stevens
+ J Home Econ 41:330 Je '49 320w

"Though this book was written as a textbook it should have great value in the library collection. It gives excellent assistance with planning the wardrobe, shopping for it, preparing patterns, and sewing. There is a chapter on fabrics that is very good. . . Recommended."
+ Wis Lib Bul 45:104 Je '49

ESAR, EVAN, ed. Dictionary of humorous quotations. 270p $2.95 Doubleday
808.87 Quotations. Humor 49-8652

The quotations are arranged in alphabetical order by author, with dates and identification of each author. Indexed by key words.

Booklist 45:332 Je 1 '49
Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '49

"Useful for reference among writers and speakers, and also for a general market of those interested in a smart crack."
+ Kirkus 17:103 F 15 '49 120w

"One of the wittiest and wisest books of the year. It is a pleasure to look at Mr. Evan Esar's far from evanescent garland of other men's flowers. The best blooms in it have been cultivated by the best minds in the best of all climates, experience. One can find here all the troubles and delights of living expressed in laughter or damnation—but with grace. The book is a triumph of what readers admire, writers deplore: quotation out of context." Charles Poore
+ N Y Times p6 Ap 24 '49 800w

ESKEW, GARNETT LAIDLAW. Salt, the fifth element; the story of a basic American industry; il. by Mary Constance Enslow. 239p $3 J. G. Ferguson
664.4 Salt 48-4378

Anecdotal history of the discovery and making of salt, with emphasis on the salt industry in the United States. Illustrated with photographs and copies of old prints. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:291 My 1 '49
Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '49

"One of the liveliest items in Americana and a perfectly seasoned dish of world history. . . The book is admirably illustrated with old prints and photographs, including one of the citizens of Verona queuing up at their salt rationing board." Ernestine Evans

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 F 27 '49 430w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:30 Mr '49

"This is a popular history, which will not satisfy the demands of economic specialists. But it is the first comprehensive account of an American industry of greater importance than most people realize, and for the general reader it offers a sufficiently thorough story, written in human and entertaining fashion. The chapters on Great Salt Lake and on the salt mines or domes of Louisiana and Texas are especially interesting." Allan Nevins

+ Sat R of Lit 32:23 S 10 '49 300w

ESTORICK, ERIC. Stafford Cripps: master statesman. 342p pl $5 Day

B or 92 Cripps, Sir Stafford. Great Britain—Politics and government. Labor party (Great Britain) 49-11225

This biography of one of Britain's leading statesmen today, gives some attention to his family background, education and early career, but concentrates mainly on his political life, as member of Parliament, member of the Labour Party, diplomat, and Chancellor of the Exchequer. For the author's first book on Sir Stafford see Book Review Digest 1941. Index.

Booklist 46:24; 81 S 15 '49; N 1 '49

Reviewed by S. R. Davis

Christian Science Monitor p14 N 12 '49 750w

"Mr. Estorick succumbs to the occupational disease of biographers and insists that his subject has always taken the wisest course. For all his unusual intellectual ability and tireless industry, Sir Stafford has not staked out a valid claim to omniscience. . . The treatment has the superficial characteristics of an informed newspaper dispatch. . . The author speaks of his human warmth and even boisterous humor, but Stafford Cripps emerges, like the book, very sincere but rather dull." C. H. Weiss

— + Commonweal 51:72 O 28 '49 700w

Commonweal 51:244 D 2 '49 70w

"An excellent, though openly prejudiced (in his favor) biography. . . A book that throws a good deal of light on England now."

+ Kirkus 17:458 Ag 14 '49 150w

"While not completely impartial, this book gives an excellent insight into the character of an unusual man, and explains much concerning the British political scene. Recommended." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 74:1195 S 1 '49 130w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman

New Statesman & Nation 38:489 O 29 '49 750w

"It makes a fascinating story, even when it is told with the full flush of hero worship, as it is by Mr. Estorick. There is hardly a critical sentence in this book. . . In 1941, the same author published a shorter and less complete biography of Cripps. This is a completely new book, and much of its quality comes from extensive quotations which have been made available to the author from letters, diaries and personal records of the Cripps family. These have an authenticity which alone makes the book worth reading." Joseph Barnes

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 O 23 '49 1100w

"The recipe for this book is to take it with a grain of salt. Having done that, there is much to be learned from it about a remarkable man. . . The author is clearly writing about his favorite subject. . . For Mr. Estorick there are no flaws. Fortunately, he gives a wealth of useful and enlightening facts about Sir Stafford's family, upbringing and career that makes the book worth reading for those interested in an extraordinary contemporary." H. L. Matthews

+ — N Y Times p10 O 23 '49 420w

New Yorker 25:157 N 12 '49 120w

"The book is good as a factual account of an important figure in modern times." R. H. U.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p31 D 4 '49 350w

"Mr Estorick's book is written throughout in a tone of admiration and sometimes with a distinctly partisan flavor. But there are certain defects in the mode of presentation. There is insufficient attention devoted to Sir Stafford's conversion from conventional toryism into liberalism. There are far too many long quotations which interrupt the smooth flow of the narrative. And, most of all, it is regrettable to find Mr. Estorick describing the political democracy of the United States as 'dominated by monopoly capitalism or the economic power of the few.' . . Mr. Estorick has brought Sir Stafford nearly up to date; it would be well for him to bring himself up to date on America." Dexter Perkins

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:14 N 5 '49 750w

"No future biographer will be able to ignore Mr. Estorick's work, and readers, to-day, interested in what, by any standards, is one of the most remarkable careers in modern political history will learn much from this careful American study."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p804 D 9 '49 1900w

ETHERTON, PERCY THOMAS. Across the great deserts. (Whittlesey house publication) 184p il $3.50 McGraw

551.58 Deserts 49-6903

Descriptions, based on personal knowledge, of three of the great deserts of the world, the Sahara and the Kalahari in Africa, and the Gobi in Asia. With some history and some personal anecdotes, the author combines a good deal of information about present and past ways of living in the deserts.

Booklist 46:80 N 1 '49

Reviewed by W. B. Hayward

N Y Times p18 O 23 '49 190w

"As interesting as this book is, its title is somewhat more inclusive than it should be, since only the Sahara, Kalahari and Gobi deserts are included. Nevertheless a surprising amount of information on the geography, history and natural history of the three deserts has been packed into 184 pages." J. W. H.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 27 '49 100w

EUSTIS, HELEN. Captains and the kings depart, and other stories. 230p $2.75 Harper 49-10968

Contents: The good days and the bad; In the good old summertime; An American home; The captains and the kings depart; Time's wingèd chariot; Spoil the child; A winter's tale; Honeymoon; Miss Bird and I.

Booklist 46:82 N 1 '49

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 25 '49 130w

+ Kirkus 17:369 Jl 15 '49 160w

"Miss Eustis's approach to her stories is frequently reminiscent of movie photography done with a narrow angle lens: backgrounds blur, while the object in focus emerges as doubly sharp. In a few of her stories this method leaves the reader slightly restless, curious about the periphery that is out of focus. But in others of her stories the method is absolutely and precisely suited to the subject matter. And when one of her stories is good it is very good indeed." Blythe Morley

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p25 O 23 '49 600w

"Helen Eustis, who will be remembered for her successful psycho-thriller, 'The Horizontal Man,' carries over none of the slick flair for plotting or stereotyped emotion of that genre. Whether she is writing fantasy or melodrama, satire or love story, her manner is that of an urbane writer, interested in those hidden facets of relationships which are the actual source of dramatic action. . . Miss Eustis doesn't lack

EUSTIS, HELEN—Continued
the intelligence to cope with [her] theme. But one feels her stories would have been twice as effective if, along with the Mrs. Harringtons, she had included the example of one real woman." Nona Balakian
+ — N Y Times p6 S 25 '49 500w

"Miss Eustis's writing is cool and unimpassioned, in nice accord with the unresisting natures of her subjects."
+ New Yorker 25:106 O 8 '49 90w

Springf'd Republican p8C O 30 '49 110w

EVANS, DAVID (LEWIS ARNOLD, pseud). In beauty like the night [Eng title: Valley of sound]. 288p $3 Bobbs 49-10014

Novel about an English war veteran, blinded in an airplane crash. In his confusion after his recovery he leaves London, and takes up residence in a remote valley, with his wartime batman to help him. In this peaceful retreat he meets a young woman musician, and together they work out his future.

Booklist 46:47 O 1 '49

"A fatuous novel. . . The course of true love is helped by a bombastic Dominican who is irritatingly depicted as roaring 'My son,' to emphasize every other sentence. This baseless confection also maunders wordily about blindness and true vision. Unfortunately, its philosophy is as insipid as its plot."
— Cath World 169:480 S '49 140w

"Author's sympathetic skill in portraying his characters without undue sentiment makes his story natural and readable." M. A. Johnson
+ Library J 74:1092 Ag '49 70w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 O 30 '49 110w

"The suspense is secondary to Alan's difficulty in finding inner peace. This is fortunate because the solution of the mystery strikes the only false note in a mature and compelling narrative. Alan Folsworth is an entirely believable hero, telling his story with such restraint and simplicity that we wish him only well. We may add that in this unusual novel final happiness is no detriment to realism." Joan Andrews
+ — N Y Times p26 Ag 28 '49 210w

"In other hands this twice-told tale could be hackneyed and somewhat moonlit and rosy. In Mr. Arnold's hands it becomes, at its best, sensitive and moving. Moreover, so fully does the author enter into the mind and mood of his hero, that the people Alan learns to know after his blindness are much clearer, much more alive than those he describes from visual memory." M. L. M.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 25 '49 350w

"A readable story not without merit, with appeal for lovers of sentimental fiction." John Cournos
+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 N 26 '49 200w

"It sets out . . . to discover the ultimate values in life—the meaning of God, beauty and truth. Mr. Arnold approaches this difficult theme with sincerity, but in spite of his honesty of purpose, and some convincing descriptions of how a man would behave when blind, the story is not always credible and leaves the reader with many reservations in his mind."
Times [London] Lit Sup p361 Je 3 '49 110w

EVANS, MRS EDNA (HOFFMAN). Bob Vincent, veterinarian; il. by Bernice Oehler. 192p $2.50 Dutton 49-1263

Career story for older boys. Bob Vincent had a love for all animals and wanted to be veterinarian. During one busy summer when he worked in an animal hospital Bob's earnestness and good work won him the wherewithall to finish his education.

"There are good hints as to necessary character traits, duties, etc., but as a story it is dull reading."
+ — Kirkus 17:179 Ap 1 '49 130w

"The plot and style are none too good, but the work done by Bob as helper to Dr. Brean is informative." L. S. Bechtel
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 1 '49 110w

"Although the story may at times seem old-fashioned with its villains—human ones, alas—it is the sort of thing vouched for by people familiar with animal shelters. Not for the squeamish but for the scientific-minded youth, this career book points the way to an interesting and lucrative and important modern profession." Howard Pease
+ N Y Times p24 My 1 '49 170w

EVANS, GEORGE HEBERTON. Business incorporations in the United States, 1800-1943. 184p $6 Nat. bureau of economic res.
338.7 Corporations—U.S. 48-10514

"This study focuses primary attention on one demographic aspect of business corporations: the number of corporate charters granted by states, their industrial objectives, and their size, as measured by authorized capital stock. The compilations of basic data cover sixteen state series of business incorporations drawn from published state documents and the official records of state incorporating agencies. . . The treatment of the material is primarily descriptive, the bulk of the book being devoted to statistical tabulations and charts of the individual state series, usually monthly, on number of corporations, on the total by size and industrial objective, and on capital stock." U S Quarterly Bkl

"Professor Evans has made an invaluable contribution to the fields of economic and business history." D. L. Kemmerer
+ Ann Am Acad 262:225 Mr '49 550w

"In this valuable volume, Professor Evans summarizes the results of his studies in the history of business incorporation in the United States since the opening of the nineteenth century. Laboriously compiled and presented with care, the statistics here set forth will prove most useful tools in the hands of all future students of the American economy." Oscar Handlin
+ J Pol Econ 57:552 D '49 700w

"A significant addition to statistical knowledge of the business corporate population."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:192 Je '49 300w

EVANS, HUBERT REGINALD. North to the unknown; the achievements & adventures of David Thompson; il. by Ruth Collins. 224p $2.75 Dodd
B or 92 Thompson, David—Juvenile literature 49-3819

A fictionized account of the life and adventures of David Thompson, the London charity boy, who first came to North America in 1784, articled to the Hudson's Bay Company. It was his ambition to become a surveyor, and in time he became an explorer, a fur trader, geographer, and surveyor. He located the source of the Mississippi river, and was the first white man to explore the Columbia river from source to mouth. Grades seven to nine.

Booklist 45:377 Jl 1 '49

"Will appeal to boys and girls who demand exciting adventure stories. . . Recommended for older boys and girls." C. W. Field
+ Library J 74:1035 Jl '49 90w

"To present young people and also adults who surely will be interested with such a picture of pioneer map-making is a fine achievement. The book is appealing too for its details of life in the wilderness and for the touching friendship between David and his wonderful Newfoundland dog, Black Boy. Occasional quotations from diaries and letters add greatly to the reality of the exciting tale. Alas, there are no maps!" L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Jl 24 '49 270w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:46 N 12 '49 40w

"This well written biography of a little known figure in North American exploration is filled with dogged courage, loyalty to scientific truth, and adventure."
+ Wis Lib Bul 45:109 Je '49

EVANS, HUGH AUSTIN (HUGH AUSTIN, pseud). Death has seven faces. 219p $2.50 Scribner 49-5187

Mystery story.

"A cleverly conceived and consummated job."
+ Kirkus 17:374 Jl 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 28 '49 90w

— N Y Times p21 Ag 14 '49 90w

"Mr. Austin, having made the entire problem uselessly involved with a lot of mining jargon, clears it up in a wholly unprepared-for fashion."
New Yorker 25:112 S 10 '49 100w

EVANS, JOAN. Art in mediaeval France, 987-1498. 317p pl $17.50 Oxford
709.44 Art, Medieval. Art—France
[48-11637]

"[This book] by a learned English author, one-time librarian of Hugh's College, Oxford, President of the Royal Archaeological Institute, contains an introductory chapter: 'The Dawn of the Middle Ages', several chapters on the various religious orders and accounts of king and court, the people, and the end of the era. Illustrations of examples of architecture, sculpture, fresco, miniature, and tapestry, the many exquisite skills of long ago. An eight-page list of books consulted and an index complement the text which conveys to the reader much of social significance and historical interest." Library J

"Students of the Middle Ages will find Dr. Evans' text peculiarly human; while the profuse illustrations are in themselves a liberal education." Dorothy Adlow
+ Christian Science Monitor p15 D 2 '48 180w

"A strain on the budget but well worth acquiring if the past is in the mind of the present." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 74:1029 Jl '49 130w

"Miss Evans knows the monuments of France so well and loves them so much, she writes with such elegance and verve, and has chosen a multitude of pictures so skilfully, that it is difficult to imagine a better introduction to the art or the history of mediaeval France within the compass of one book." C. R. C.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 23 '48 230w

"Dr. Evans' account of early French panel-painting is impossibly fragmentary and inaccurate. This subject is squeezed into three paragraphs and a few references en passant, generally to pictures that illuminate some other aspect of art. Worse, Dr. Evans does not always reproduce works of French origin. . . Dr. Evans is also far from up-to-date in her information about certain pictures. . . Still, Art in Mediaeval France is the only English book on the subject, and as such valuable to students and travellers. Future visitors to France will be grateful for the map marking all buildings of architectural importance. And if the lyrical descriptions of Cluniac architecture inspire them actually to set foot in the Church of St. Germain-des-Prés, Dr. Evans will not have written in vain." David Carritt
+ — New Statesman & Nation 38:201 Ag 20 '49 750w

"A section of the book is devoted to the medieval city-dweller and another to the villager, and Miss Evans concludes with a study of the Middle Ages in decline. The text is followed by a magnificent series of plates—280 in all—which have the double merit of being excellent in themselves and of thoroughly illustrating the next. One leaves the book reluctantly and gratefully. Miss Evans has justified her method up to the hilt and given us that rather rare thing, a work of genuine scholarship constructed on a plan which is both intelligent and imaginative—historically exact and a delight to the mind."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p692 D 11 '48 1650w

EVANS, JOAN. English art, 1307-1461. (Oxford history of English art, v5) 272p pl $10 Oxford
709.42 Art, British. Art, Medieval 49-11146

This is the first volume to be published (though it will be volume 5 of the completed work) in a new series, The Oxford History of English Art. "The aim of the series is to provide an account of the arts as seen against the background of history. They are addressed to the scholar who has no such general view available; they summarize the most recent research, while including also much new work, particularly on certain of the less known phases of the development of styles in England." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:118 D 1 '49

"Good reading. . . Thoroughly documented, scholarly, but written with a lively sense of human appeal."
+ Kirkus 17:568 O 1 '49 160w

"A vast amount of miscellaneous learning has been closely packed into the survey of this rich heritage. It is of absorbing interest, but does not make easy reading, though Dr. Evans's skill in arranging her material has prevented the details from obscuring the main plan of the book. The numerous plates are as informative as they are beautiful, but references to them in the body of the text in many cases need correction."
+ — Manchester Guardian p4 O 18 '49 330w

Reviewed by Walter Oakeshott
New Statesman & Nation 38:734 D 17 '49 1400w

"To open the series no fitter choice could have been made than that of Dr. Joan Evans, who has joined to a wide erudition a remarkable fecundity of talent, and this book, on a period less familiar to her pen than others, has the distinction that one would expect. It is a work of learning and scholarship as well as of discernment, and it sets in all these respects a very high standard for its successors to maintain. It is wholly free from prejudices and whimsies of every sort, and the rare personal judgments and general observations are of a kind to cause the reader to regret their rarity." David Knowles
+ Spec 183:508 O 14 '49 950w

EVANS, JOHN, pseud. See Browne, H.

EVANS, VIRGINIA. Cautious husband. 218p $2.75 Coward-McCann
49-9060

Story of a marriage that nearly ended in unhappiness, because the young wife looked with distaste on certain traits of character in her husband—a GI veteran in a midwestern college who had definite plans for the future.

"Sometimes mannered, this has a real feeling for young husband and wife relationships, a fresh approach toward marital mishaps."
+ — Kirkus 17:185 Ap 1 '49 170w

"A tiresome tale." H. S. Taylor
— Library J 74:818 My 15 '49 80w

"The maladjustment of a young couple who have been married less than two years and have no serious cause for disagreement seems a rather insignificant theme for a novel. But when that novel is graced with both wit and acute observation, one gladly tosses aside more ponderous considerations to revel in it for a couple of hours of self-recognition and delight." Anne Brooks
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 My 22 '49 550w

EVANS, VIRGINIA—Continued

"The wry comments in the opening chapters have no relationship to the contrived and fancy finish. Even the language changes; at the start, the sentences, like the thinking, are clear, and at the end the unrelated phrases fall apart, as if the reader looked through the wrong end of a kaleidoscope." Marjorie Fischer
+ — N Y Times p18 Je 26 '49 320w

"The author's acute analysis of these unremarkable marital frictions is distinguished by her calm economy of style."
+ New Yorker 25:96 My 28 '49 110w

"Mrs. Evans in her first novel is committed to detail. We know the brand names of every item her young people use. . . The emphasis has the insistence of a drum-beat, but there is no danger of forgetting that it all adds up to Time: the present." Josephine Lawrence
Sat R of Lit 32:28 Je 4 '49 550w

Springf'd Republican p4D My 29 '49 180w

EVATT, HERBERT VERE. Task of nations. 279p $3 Duell

341.13 United nations (organization). World politics 49-5177

The author, an Australian statesman, has played a prominent part in the various meetings of the United Nations, at San Francisco, Lake Success, and particularly in Paris in 1948, when he was president of the General assembly. This book is his personal account of the aims and achievements of the United Nations. Index.

Booklist 46:7 S 1 '49

Bookmark 9:3 O '49 40w

Reviewed by Mildred Burgess
Christian Science Monitor p18 Ag 27 '49 750w

"A record which has a definite documentary and reference value."
+ Kirkus 17:246 My 1 '49 190w

"A good and encouraging book. Recommended." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 74:890 Je 1 '49 110w

Reviewed by John Hohenberg
Nation 169:328 O 1 '49 600w

"The author writes forcefully and well. It is unfortunate, however, that his pungent personality and robust humor, which have impressed themselves so strongly upon the delegates and observers at U. N. sessions, and which have been useful tools in global diplomacy, fail to emerge from his written words. While he does not hesitate to condemn national policies (he is especially severe on America's vacillations during the Palestine dispute) his sketches of the various individuals concerned in the U. N.'s debates are more cautious than colorful." H. W. Baehr
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Ag 14 '49 650w

Reviewed by T. J. Hamilton
N Y Times p9 S 4 '49 600w

"This is a thoughtful, carefully reasoned and solidly informative book on its theme. It comes from a man who believes in lasting peace, has dedicated himself to its attainment if that is possible, and is convinced that the U. N. can win out in its struggle against tyranny, poverty, injustice and war. An Appendix reproduces the U. N. Charter for the reader's convenience." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ag 18 '49 750w

"The book is like the man, immensely forthright, and frequently a little naive. . . Mr. Evatt keeps the image of one world, and the optimism of a man of sanguine and generous disposition. His message is heartening, as well as instructive, as the fourth session tackles its tasks." August Heckscher
+ Sat R of Lit 32:42 N 19 '49 700w

EVEREST, RALPH JAY. Motor tune-up manual. 355p il $5.50 Macmillan

629.25 Automobile engines 49-9630

"This book explains how each part of the modern automobile engine works, how to discover causes of failure, and how to correct or prevent them." (Publisher's note) Glossary of trade terms. Index.

Booklist 46:29 S 15 '49

"Recommended." Julian Sohon
+ Library J 74:1101 Ag '49 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:50 Jl '49

EVERNDEN, MARGERY. Runaway apprentice; il. by Jeanyee Wong. 139p $2.50 Random house

49-10789

Mystery story for boys and girls. The scene is China.

Booklist 46:51 O 1 '49

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun O 29 '49 140w

"A beautifully written story of old China into which are woven many fascinating details about the life of itinerant shadow-players." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:534 N '49 90w

"An utterly delightful story."
+ Kirkus 17:269 Je 1 '49 190w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid
+ Library J 74:1537 O 15 '49 40w

"Recommended." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 74:1680 N 1 '49 70w

"The style is excellent—simple, yet lively and distinguished. As storytelling, it holds the interest throughout. The pictures, done so fortunately by a Chinese artist, are enchanting. It makes an unusually good book for boys and girls of ten to twelve." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 25 '49 190w

N Y Times p12 D 18 '49 180w

"A heart-warming, out-of-the-way story, for ten- to fourteen-year-olds."
+ New Yorker 25:175 D 3 '49 60w

Reviewed by Eleanor Breed
San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 13 '49 70w

"The story itself is well enough constructed to hold the reader's interest throughout and the characters are well drawn, but the book will be remembered for its lovely pattern of color and atmosphere rather than for its simple and well-worn plot." R. H. V.
+ Sat R of Lit 32:44 N 12 '49 250w

Wis Lib Bul p10 N '49

EVERSON, GEORGE. Story of television; the life of Philo T. Farnsworth. 266p il $3.75 Norton

B or 92 Farnsworth, Philo Taylor. Television 49-7979

An account of the life of Philo T. Farnsworth emphasizing his struggles to realize his dream of transmitting pictures thru the air. "Of interest to young people because it is the story of the twentieth-century inventor who had little formal schooling yet commanded the respect and faith of hardheaded businessmen who spent millions of dollars to support his more than 20 years of research." (Booklist) No index.

Booklist 45:276 Ap 15 '49

Reviewed by Don Foster
Chicago Sun My 24 '49 450w

"Although written primarily for adult readers, this book will be of interest also to junior and senior high school students." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 25:295 Jl '49 120w

"A story of perseverance, originality, and a new science, this is told from a personal and intimate knowledge of both the man and his discoveries. Of interest in business as well as scientific fields, written for the layman."
+ Kirkus 17:44 Ja 15 '49 210w

"'The Story of Television' is most valuable as a document that provides some insight into the anatomy of technological progress. It is not, as the title implies, a complete history of the industry. . . But taken in its framework, the book has a good deal to say, because its main figure is one of the pioneers in television research." J. E. Pfeiffer

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ap 2 '49 850w

EWEN, DAVID, ed. American composers today; a biographical and critical guide. 265p il $4 Wilson, H.W.

927.8 Musicians, American 49-8927

"A biographical and critical guide to creative figures in serious music who have been functioning in this country and in Latin America between 1900 and the present day, and whose work has found acceptance in the concert hall, opera house, over the radio, or on phonograph records. The term 'American composer' . . . embraces the following categories: (1) Those composers who were born in the United States, or those of foreign birth who have become naturalized citizens; (2) the major creative figures of Latin America, particularly those whose work is known in this country; (3) those who after 1933 fled from Europe to this hemisphere to find a new home here." (Introd) Arrangement is alphabetical by the musician's surname.

Booklist 45:334 Je 1 '49

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '49

"No reader will, of course, ever be completely satisfied with an editor's choice of subjects, especially of the lesser known composers. Certainly all of the prominent composers on the American scene are included, except for one curious omission, that of Milhaud. There is also one curious addition . . . and that is Paderewski. . . The question to buy or not to buy must be answered in the affirmative, if only for the information about the younger American composers, such as Bergsma, Mennin, Palmer, and Shapero, which is by far the most extensive to come to the attention of this reviewer. This Ewen book, with its emphasis on biographical data and the statements of the composers themselves about their works and musical philosophy, is a useful companion to Claire Reis' Composers in America (Macmillan Co., 1947) with its broader but less detailed coverage of creative musicians in the United States." Lee Fairley

+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 6:615 S '49 800w

"Had more critical evaluation of the composers been included, the book would have greater appeal to the lay reader. As it is, this volume will be of use mainly to music critics and program annotators." Roland Gelatt

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:31 Je 25 '49 50w

EWEN, DAVID. Dictators of the baton. 2d ed rev & enl 310p il $3.50 Ziff-Davis

781.6325 Musicians. Conducting (music) 48-9448

"A 'completely revised and expanded' edition of a volume first published in 1943 [Book Review Digest 1943]. Not only have most of the biographies which have been retained been rewritten and repolished but the list of conductors included has been revaluated. This has led to the deleting of such names as Iturbi, Barbirolli, Goossens and the adding of Szell, Munch, Bernstein, Kurtz, Thor Johnson, Reginald Stewart, Dorati, Herrmann. In the thirty-three biographies which the book contains, Ewen has attempted, in a popular style, to give an intimate but critical portrayal of the leading orchestral conductors in America today." (Library J) Select bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:140 D 15 '48

"The appraisals, which indicate exaggeration and limitation as well as attribute, are balanced, informative and popularly attuned."

+ Kirkus 16:497 S 15 '48 130w

"A good book for the general library." H. E. Bush

+ Library J 74:127 Ja 15 '49 110w

Reviewed by Lawrence Morton

Music Lib Assn Notes 6:308 Mr '49 1150w

"Anecdotage looms more impressively here than critical perceptions, the latter being too pat to satisfy discriminating listeners." Roland Gelatt

Sat R of Lit 32:62 Ja 29 '49 70w

EYRE, KATHERINE WIGMORE. Another spring; the story of Lady Jane Grey; pictures by Stephani and Edward Godwin. 207p $2.50 Oxford

Grey, Lady Jane—Juvenile literature 49-11022

A fictionized biography of Lady Jane Grey, Queen of England for nine days. The period covered is from her marriage to Guilford to her death. For older girls.

Booklist 46:85 N 1 '49

"Jane's brief romance with Guilford is a moving tale, told here with sensitivity and perception that will endear it to many girls." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:537 N '49 120w

"The author has done a skillful job in weaving Jane's innocence, her shyness, her simplicity into the politics and drama of the period. . . A romantic, absorbing biography."

+ Kirkus 17:556 O 1 '49 140w

"Writing is fine, and young readers will find it absorbing." F. W. Butler

+ Library J 75:112 Ja 15 '50 70w

"Through the use of the contrasting characters the tragedy becomes bearable. It is a successful novel for the teen-agers who like 'costume movies'; they will find this tale much better than most they see on the screen." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 8 '50 140w

"Beautifully written novel for older girls." V. H. M.

+ N Y Times p34 N 13 '49 180w

"This is an excellent study of one short but important phase of the Tudor period."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p8 N 13 '49 110w

"The tragedy of Lady Jane's death or the cruelty of the period are not overdrawn, making excellent supplementary reading for junior and senior high school students."

+ Wis Lib Bul p12 N '49

EYRE, KATHERINE WIGMORE. Rosa and Randy; pictures by Mabel Woodbury. 160p $2.50 Oxford

48-8950

Randy Phelps and his father and mother took over a California ranch which had been left them by an uncle. They discovered that they had also inherited a family feud, but the children of the two families patched up the quarrel. For ages eight to twelve.

"Not only are the boy and girl natural but the canyon and the pine-grown country near the little ranch house under cottonwoods and walnuts make this part of California real for boys and girls of the middle age group." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:136 Mr '49 80w

"There's a rather sentimental slant and stock characters, but the pace is good and the values sound if rather obvious."

Kirkus 16:555 O 15 '48 100w

"Though the quality of writing is below that of Star in the Willows, with an unnecessary amount of slang, scattered throughout, this is a book both boys and girls will enjoy as a horse story and a western. Recommended for fifth grade." Anne Izard

+ — Library J 74:132 Ja 15 '49 70w

"This is an excellent book, with children, adventures, animals and background all set down with honesty and affection. The illustrations have a fine warmth and reality." Marjorie Fischer

+ N Y Times p11 D 26 '48 150w

F

FABIAN, BELA. Cardinal Mindszenty; the story of a modern martyr. 207p $2.75 Scribner

B or 92 Mindszenty, Jozsef, cardinal 49-9770

A short biography of Joseph Pehm, son of a Hungarian farmer, who later became Cardinal Mindszenty, Prince Primate of Hungary. The author, who has known the cardinal for years, based his account on personal knowledge of many of the facts. Index.

Reviewed by John Fermatt
+ Cath World 169:474 S '49 360w

"Mr. Fabian's personal acquaintance with the Cardinal has enabled the author to include in his account a number of interesting and touching details of the career of Joseph Pehm. . . Yet the book seriously lacks that critical approach which sets an objective biography apart from a eulogy." Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p16 Ag 10 '49 300w

"The author claims the authority of first-hand knowledge of an old friend. The account is written at times not without deep emotion, in straightforward English, and much intimate knowledge. The Cardinal is a native Catholic of Hungary, and the author a native Hungarian Jew. There is no reason to doubt the friendship. The reviewer is therefore in a difficult position, as there is little or no indication of what is known in modern historical jargon as source material. The admiration and affection are beyond doubt or question. The picture of the Cardinal presented by the author is one of charm. . . The question is how far can the author's worship of his hero be trusted." F. W. Buckler
+ — Crozer Q 26:373 O '49 600w
Kirkus 17:314 Je 15 '49 300w

"Unfortunately, author idolizes the Cardinal to such an extent that he hardly seems to be human. Book does not bring much that is really new, but gives vivid description of internal politics in satellite country behind iron curtain. It is easy reading and will have wide though ephemeral appeal, because Mindszenty's is not a single, individual case, but obviously sets the pattern for the inevitable clash between church and red totalitarianism as we see already in Czechoslovakia. Recommended for public libraries." H. H. Bernt
+ — Library J 74:1020 Jl '49 130w

"Dr. Fabian, a distinguished former member of the Hungarian Parliament, a former judge of the Hungarian criminal court—and coincidentally a Jew who gives the lie to Communist charges that Mindszenty was anti-Semitic—asserts that the 'confession' printed in the Communist government's 'Yellow Book' on Mindszenty 'looks like a particularly praiseworthy exhibition of calligraphy.' He also charges that most of the 'Yellow Book' was prepared in advance of the Cardinal's arrest." Frank Kelley
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Jl 10 '49 750w

Reviewed by N. K. Burger
N Y Times p12 O 23 '49 270w

Reviewed by G. N. Shuster
Sat R of Lit 32:19 Jl 30 '49 450w

FABRE, JEAN HENRI CASIMIR. Insect world; with introd. and interpretive comments by Edwin Way Teale. 333p $3.50 Dodd

595.7 Insects 49-5858

"This volume brings into the compass of a single book the most famous of Fabre's studies, many of them now out of print. In some instances, material has been shortened but nothing has been added." (Foreword) Index.

Booklist 46:92 N 15 '49

Reviewed by W. F. Morse
Chicago Sun S 5 '49 220w

"On half a dozen counts, Fabre has needed popular and scientific re-presentation to our generation. He has now had it at last, under inspired auspices. Mr. Edwin Way Teale, a sound writer, a sound entomologist, and a truly judicious Fabre student, has assembled a practically perfect Pocket Fabre. (It demands, to be sure, a capacious pocket, for the book runs to 333 pages; but it is compactly manufactured, and who shall mind a little coat-bulge when the bulge is Jean Henri?)" Alan Devoe
+ Commonweal 50:518 S 2 '49 330w
Library J 74:1562 O 15 '49 20w

Reviewed by J. W. Krutch
Nation 169:574 D 10 '49 400w

"If a few of Fabre's views were wrong (and Mr. Teale indicates clearly this reservation), he remains one of the great nature-watchers of all time. He has the power to introduce the reader into the insects' world as few if any other naturalists have ever been able to do. He is not out-dated, nor old-fashioned. Fabre was nearly a hermit, wholly a 'nature-nut.' Out of this personality came some of the most vivid and perceptive insect studies ever written. Edwin Way Teale has re-presented them to us with great skill, sympathy and intelligent editorship." Alan Devoe
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 S 4 '49 800w

"This edition is not a re-translation, but from the original English version by Alexander Teixera de Mattos. Fabre admirers are fortunate in having in one volume so able a selection, together with Mr. Teale's charming and sympathetic Introduction and incidental notes." W. M. Mann
+ N Y Times p3 Ag 14 '49 800w
San Francisco Chronicle p28 O 23 '49 150w

"This is a new and fairly compendious selection, if not an 'omnibus,' from Fabre's immortal 'Souvenirs Entymologiques.' For those who do not own a complete set of Fabre's works it will be found a satisfactory collection, made all the more so by the brief but excellent remarks by Edwin Way Teale, which precede each selection." D. C. Peattie
+ Sat R of Lit 32:28 S 24 '49 600w

FABRICANT, NOAH DANIEL. Headaches; what causes them; how to get relief. 149p $2.50 Farrar, Straus

616.84 Headaches 49-9358

Study of the problems of headache, written by a physician for the layman. Partial contents: Headache case history; The headache and eye; Facial neuralgias and pains-in-the-neck; Sinus headaches; Migraine; Psychogenic headaches; Headaches from brain disturbances. Index.

Booklist 45:369 Jl 1 '49

"This small volume is an important contribution to that type of literature whose aim it is to present to the layman honest, scientific information on the subject of what ails him. The text is neither too scientific, nor yet too over-simplified. The author has succeeded in maintaining a happy balance. This book makes good reading; it is interlarded with just sufficient humor to avoid the dullness of a dry, scientific treatise. It should prove of interest to both the doctor and the patient." George Halperin, M. D.
+ Chicago Sun Je 29 '49 360p
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '49
Kirkus 17:226 Ap 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by A. H. Weiler
N Y Times p17 Ag 7 '49 30w

Reviewed by L. A. Potts
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 5 '49 700w

FADIMAN, EDWIN. The voice and the light. 249p $2.75 Crown

Jeanne d'Arc, Saint—Fiction 49-6000

"Mr. Fadiman's voice and light are the voice and light heard and seen by Jeanne d'Arc as she crossed the threshold of childhood, the voice and light which were to guide her to flaming triumph and flaming end. He writes only of Jeanne's early years before she became a warrior and a martyr. It is the springtime of her sainthood which concerns him, the season in which step by painful step she felt herself drawn away from the common fate of her kind, torn from the familiar, friendly village world to be forged, in mystery, as an instrument of God." N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R

Kirkus 17:339 Jl 1 '49 180w

"The story has a simple charm which will appeal to teen-agers as well as adults." H. R. Forbes
+ Library J 74:1093 Ag '49 80w

Reviewed by Virgilia Peterson
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p32 S 25 '49 750w

"The book has but one fault. Joan is real—an inspired, earthy and vivid peasant girl who moved history. But the other characters, on the whole, are shadowy and vague." T. C. Chubb
+ — N Y Times p51 O 30 '49 410w

San Francisco Chronicle p28 N 6 '49 240w

"In his first novel, Mr. Fadiman has succeeded in evoking a well-known France. He has put the solid earth of Domrémy beneath his saint's feet. He has surrounded her with credible characters. It is a picture of the Meuse valley and of the young Jeanne d'Arc for which we should be grateful, but the saint's 'lovely life of service which is Christ's' has never been caught—entirely—by any pen, even in the hand of a saint. In this respect the book may disappoint. In all others it is interesting." Evelyn Eaton
+ Sat R of Lit 32:19 S 24 '49 550w

FAGIN, NATHAN BRYLLION. Histrionic Mr. Poe. 289p $4 Johns Hopkins press

B or 92 Poe, Edgar Allan 49-9270

"[An attempt] to revalue [Poe's] life and literary work. The author, a professor of English and drama at Johns Hopkins, thinks that the key to the riddle of Poe's character was his penchant for acting; which was frustrated in his childhood by his separation from his actor parents and by his upbringing as a Southern gentleman. Using this theory as litmus paper, Dr. Fagin tests Poe's stories and poems, as well as his behavior, and finds that behind everything he wrote and did there lurked what he calls the 'literary histrio'—an actor who, whether he was writing a horror story or making love, was extremely conscious of his effect on his audience." New Yorker

---

"Brilliant and provocative critical evaluation of one of America's most discussed writers." Jack Conroy
+ Chicago Sun My 30 '49 550w

Manchester Guardian p4 S 13 '49 300w

"Mr. Fagin is at his convincing and entertaining best in demonstrating Poe's use of theatrical effect and dramatic construction in the poems and stories. And, accordingly, Mr. Fagin goes a long way toward a rational explanation of what is usually called Poe's 'strange gift' or 'magic touch.'" Joseph Kraft
+ Nation 169:186 Ag 20 '49 270w

"As a new study of the Poe 'myth,' N. B. Fagin's book considers the poet's life and work in relation to the arts of the theatre. Its attitude of amused detachment is a welcome change from the reverent and breathless tone of much work on the subject. . . Fagin's relation of this histrionic person to the writings themselves is excellent in detail, and his critical estimate seems just, perhaps because it is ingratiatingly slight. But his explicit recognition of Poe's limitations argues convincingly the value of the work within those bounds." John Farrelly
+ — New Repub 121:19 Ag 8 '49 700w

"In certain respects, Mr. Fagin has done his job extremely well. . . But this does not mean that full conviction for the special thesis is necessarily carried and the weakest link in Mr. Fagin's argument is certainly the first, which consists in the assumption that Poe's original histrionic impulse came from his mother. . . I am not, however, really quarreling with Mr. Fagin's very arresting book. That is partly because, thesis aside, it presents many facts in a new light." J. W. Krutch
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Jl 31 '49 1650w

"Dr. Fagin's 'The Histrionic Mr. Poe' is a literary study of high merit, containing, in addition to its original and persuasive main theme, a penetrating survey of modern critical evaluations of Edgar Allan Poe." T. Q. Curtiss
+ N Y Times p5 Je 26 '49 800w

"In spite of its blithe title and the fact that it rides one idea pretty hard, this is an earnest critical study of Edgar Allan Poe."
+ New Yorker 25:99 Je 11 '49 220w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 22 '49 850w

"Aside from its literary merits 'The Histrionic Mr. Poe' would be a notable event for three reasons. It appears during the centennial of Poe's death; it is published in Baltimore where Poe is buried; and it is the first trade book among more than 1,300 titles published in seventy-two years by the oldest American university press. . . 'Of all the Poe books ever done in English,' says H. L. Mencken, 'it seems to me the best, and by long odds.' He found the book well informed, shrewd, and convincing in its judgments, and beautifully written." Gordden Link
+ Sat R of Lit 32:20 My 14 '49 450w

"If there is a certain naïveté in the book, this does not detract from its real value, for the blemish after all is a small one, resulting from the warm admiration which gives the book its purpose." Bonamy Dobrée
+ — Spec 183:508 O 14 '49 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p648 O 7 '49 1100w

FAHS, MRS SOPHIA BLANCHE (LYON). From long ago and many lands; stories for children told anew; il. by Cyrus Le Roy Baldridge. 205p $2.50 Beacon press 48-10958

"This collection of stories has been made as a kind of prehistory for children of seven, eight and nine, whose feelings for the long, long ago are still vague, but stretching." (Introd) The tales are from many sources: Aramaic, Hebrew, Arabic, Burmese, Sanskrit, Greek, Italian, German, and others. The purpose of the book is to teach children the brotherhood of man. Indexes.

Booklist 45:182 Ja 15 '49

"A collection of unique and fascinating stories."
+ Kirkus 16:598 N 15 '48 180w

"Could be very useful to religious and public school teachers needing ethical material, but Mrs. Fahs' Unitarian point of view may make certain of her religious legends unacceptable to other faiths; she has deliberately omitted any mention of the miraculous. Recommended with the above reservation." Clara Adams
+ — Library J 74:203 F 1 '49 100w

"A book well worth investigating, whatever your religious beliefs." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 F 27 '49 230w

FAIR, A. A., pseud. See Gardner, E. S.

FAIRBANK, JOHN KING, and others. Next step in Asia [pub. in cooperation with the Int. secretariat, Inst. of Pacific relations]. 90p pa $1.50 Harvard univ. press

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations—East (Far East) 49-11390

Four papers on American policy in the Far East. They are: Communism in China and the new American approach to Asia, by J. K. Fairbank; Problems of economic development in the

FAIRBANK, J. K.—Continued
Far East, by Harlan Cleveland; Japan and Korea as American policy problems, by E. O. Reischauer; The Asiatic context of our Far Eastern economic policy, by W. L. Holland. Professor Fairbank emphasizes the exchange of people and ideas. "Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Holland stress the importance of economic assistance. . . Professor Edwin Reischauer of Harvard retells the story of American difficulties in Korea, points out areas of strength and weakness in the American occupation policy in Japan, and concludes by stressing the importance of Japanese economic recovery." (Nation)

"Highly recommended." H. P. Linton
+ Library J 74:1676 N 1 '49 110w

Reviewed by E. D. Hawkins
Nation 169:578 D 10 '49 500w

Reviewed by Edgar Snow
New Repub 121:28 D 12 '49 360w

FAIRCHILD, HOXIE NEALE. Religious trends in English poetry; v3, 1780-1830, Romantic faith. 549p $6.75 Columbia univ. press

821.09 English poetry—History and criticism. Religion in literature (39-12839)

"The third volume of a series of studies in which trends of religious thought and feeling are to be traced through English poetry from the beginning of the eighteenth century to the present. In scope and method the present volume differs markedly from its predecessors in the series. Instead of discussing a large number of writers, many of them justly unknown to fame, I here examine rather closely the religion of seven major poets: Burns, Blake, Wordsworth, Coleridge, Shelley, Byron, and Keats." (Pref) Bibliography. Index. For earlier volumes see Book Review Digest, 1939, 1943.

"There is really nothing that Professor Fairchild could or should have done that he has not done in order to give us, in this third volume of Religious Trends in English Poetry, an analysis that is complete, readable and fascinating." E. G. Clark
+ Cath World 169:234 Je '49 500w

Reviewed by Emmet Dedmon
Chicago Sun Ag 1 '49 90w

"This is one book which can be bought with trust in the jacket's description and evaluation. It is truly both 'the best scholarship in the field' and 'a judicious mixture of witty urbanity and imaginative sympathy.' The author knows not only the poets and their faith, but what is more rare in a man of letters, he knows religion and theology!" J. S. Dauerty
+ Crozer Q 26:276 Jl '49 600w

"I have examined with care, as a proving ground, the chapter on Wordsworth and have found it, if not above dramatizing the obvious, complete in survey of data, replete with natural piety, and infused with high seriousness for the task at hand." T. V. Smith
+ Ethics 59:302 Jl '49 220w

Reviewed by Lionel Trilling
N Y Times p5 S 4 '49 1700w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 18 '49 110w

"Professor Fairchild is really an anatomist, and he takes these poets to pieces less that we may understand them than that we may understand ourselves. This may be hard on his subjects (using the words in the medical sense), but it is likely in the long run to be most beneficial for us. . . In spite of a certain rigidity of definition and of what sometimes seems a coldness of heart, it is a work the importance of which well justifies the immense labour and care that have been spent on it."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p568 S 2 '49 3300w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:155 Je '49 280w

FAIRFAX, VIRGINIA. Su Won and her wonderful tree; il. by Dorothy Bayley Morse. 151p $2.50 Dutton

Children in Korea 49-10287

Story of a little Korean girl and her success in weaving a wonderful silk out of golden yellow threads from the silkworms fed on the mulberry leaves of a single tree.

"An interesting story of Korean life today." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 25:418 S '49 80w
Kirkus 17:430 Ag 15 '49 130w

"Good background reading for 10-12 year-olds. Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges
+ Library J 74:1464 O 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by Alice McQuaid
Library J 74:1537 O 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 13 '49 180w

"In this modern story of one girl's family and school affairs are many implications of Korea's changing pattern and uncertain future. Su Won struggled for the right her brothers had, to go to school. Her problem illuminates larger aspects of the national life which furnish both the background and the merit of a simple story." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p24 Ag 28 '49 180w

"As told, this is a charming book, which will delight teen-age readers and introduce them to the boys and girls of modern-day Korea."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 N 13 '49 170w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:46 N 12 '49 20w

"Charming story."
+ School & Society 70:143 Ag 27 '49 30w

FALCONER, VERA M. Filmstrips; a descriptive index and user's guide. 572p il $5 McGraw

371.33523 Visual instruction—Catalogs 48-7287

"Complete description of all film strips suitable for instructional use available on or before March 15, 1947." Wis Lib Bul

---

Booklist 45:187 F 1 '49
Wis Lib Bul 45:87 My '49

FARIS, ROBERT E. LEE. Social disorganization. 481p $4.50 Ronald

301.153 Sociology. Social problems 48-7569

College textbook to be used in courses dealing with the subject of social disorganization. "The fifteen chapters of the book begin with social organization, social disorganization, personal disorganization, reactions to economic disorganization and poverty, crime, the vices, suicide, and mental abnormality. Then come chapters on family, religious and political disorganization, and these are followed by the final ones on disorders of mass behavior and mob violence, processes of reorganization, and prospects of stability in the postwar era." (Am Soc R) Index.

Reviewed by A. J. Reiss
Am J Soc 54:561 My '49 1000w

"The book has been put together with care and its relatively objective character stands out from the beginning to the end. . . Faris in this treatise has given the field of sociology a valuable work covering the foundations of social disorganization. Those who teach in this domain should certainly give this book serious consideration when selecting the next text." Verne Wright
+ Am Soc R 13:785 D '48 650w

"The cases and anecdotes used to illustrate conceptual points are timely, well chosen, and add interest to the presentation. Though the volume is intended for college students, others may read it with profit. Faris has written a book that many will find stimulating and informative." E. D. Monachesi

+ Ann Am Acad 261:217 Ja '49 240w

School & Society 68:79 Jl 31 '48 10w

"The scholar will find that there is little which is either new or profound in this book, but Professor Faris' major concern is in developing a text for students of social disorganization. He makes little attempt to survey recent research materials exhaustively or to give any detailed analysis of the nature and extent of the problems involved in such matters, as crime, mental abnormalities, suicide and the like. He gives few statistics and those cited are not always the latest. . . Any book in the field must be selective, perforce, and Professor Faris has seen fit to ignore many important aspects of social disorganization, or at best, barely to mention them. . . On the other hand, he recognizes the implications of war, for in his final chapter he discusses briefly the threat of possible war and the disruptive aspects such a war might involve." M. A. Elliott

Social Forces 27:446 My '49 650w

Social Studies 39:380 D '48 20w

"It is in the last two chapters that Dr. Faris makes a real contribution to the literature of this field. . . Yet, it is in this latter section that this reviewer's negative criticisms lie—that revolutions do not revolutionize is open to attack; that the American nation is 'so responsive to the public will that old-fashioned revolutions from despotism are inappropriate and unnecessary' is inharmonious with other conclusions and data in the book. . . These criticisms aside, it is a very excellent piece of work and usable either on the college or secondary level." F. D. Kellogg

+ — Social Studies 40:271 O '49 600w

FARJEON, ELEANOR. Love affair. 195p $2.50 Macmillan

49-8293

A story of two lovers, an artist and a governess, and their love that changed from ecstasy to agony.

Booklist 45:185; 281 F 1 '49; Ap 15 '49

"This slight novel, has less the effect of reality than of something seen on a stage. The brief story is daintily sophisticated, and wistful, and a recurring chorus of voices or turning wheels heightens the air of adroit composition." W. K. Rugg

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 21 '49 120w

Kirkus 17:39 Ja 15 '49 150w

"Recommended for those who enjoy a slightly bittersweet flavor in romance." H. R. Forbes

Library J 74:494 Mr 15 '49 100w

"'Love Affair' has wisdom, mood and magic."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 My 15 '49 110w

Reviewed by Janet Schane

N Y Times p31 Ap 24 '49 200w

"This is a latticed love affair done in successful stage sets. Miss Farjeon frames scene after shining scene, adroitly destroying the illusion she has created. She sees darkening shadows behind the shimmering canvas. Her glance is skilful and uncompromising."

Sat R of Lit 32:32 Je 18 '49 180w

Springf'd Republican p7C Je 12 '49 190w

FARLEY, WALTER. Black Stallion and Satan; il. by Milton Menasco. 208p $2 Random house

Horses—Legends and stories 49-6117

The latest in the series about the black stallion and his son, Satan, is for grades seven to nine. It is a story of action and suspense beginning with the winning of a third great race by Satan.

Booklist 46:85 N 1 '49

Chicago Sun p9X N 13 '49 90w

Reviewed by Vernon Ives

Chicago Sunday Tribune p21 N 13 '49 150w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p13 Ja 26 '50 180w

"This enthralling book has in it a real knowledge and love of horses, action, courage and suspense woven into a perfectly credible story that can be read independently of the earlier books. It will, of course, be especially welcomed by children who already know the famous black stallion and his son, Satan." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 25:422 S '49 60w

Kirkus 17:473 S 1 '49 120w

"Recommended." M. F. Cox

+ Library J 74:1919 D 15 '49 80w

"Walter Farley has written his fifth nicker-a-page thriller, and all Black Stallion fans had best start looking for a quiet afternoon when they can let their favorite horse breathe fire down their necks. . . The crescendo of final action, as well as the chain of physical and emotional twists throughout, make the implausibilities of the story fade magically away and help the lessons in responsibility to be painlessly taught." William Clifford

+ N Y Times p58 N 20 '49 140w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:32 N 12 '49 30w

Wis Lib Bul p14 D '49

FARRELL, JAMES THOMAS. The road between. 463p $3.50 Vanguard

49-8444

"Another large segment from the story of Bernard Clare, [now renamed Bernard Carr]. Doggedly pursuing his career as writer, Carr comes to New York in 1932 with his young wife; he struggles to survive and to preserve his integrity against commercial and political (Communist Party) pressures; a visit to Chicago for the funeral of his father revives old hostilities and anxieties." Library J

"All of Farrell's familiar crotchets—about publishers, 'literary politics,' the bourgeois life—get an exhaustive and exhausting workout; and he deafens us with bald assertions that his fictional alter ego is a genius. The Road Between sounds as though it were yet another brief in the interminable lawsuit, Farrell vs. America, which was tried in the thirties, not settled to the plaintiff's satisfaction, and is being repeatedly, passionately, appealed." C. J. Rolo

— + Atlantic 183:86 My '49 850w

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley

— Cath World 169:157 My '49 300w

"In this newest novel, 'The Road Between,' which continues the story of Bernard Clare (now Bernard Carr), [Farrell] seems intent only upon proving that he is a genius by the uninteresting method of reiteration. . . The sections in which Farrell shows his real ability are his portraits of the small radical-literary group with which Carr finds himself associated but to whose principles and iron-discipline he is wise enough to avoid subscribing." Emmett Dedmon

— + Chicago Sun Ap 14 '49 500w

Kirkus 17:92 F 15 '49 220w

"Farrell's absorption in Clare may limit the interest in this work; but admirers of his impressive career, aware how much of his power depends on cumulative detail and the total effect of his massive projects, will reserve judgment until the series is completed." H. W. Hart

Library J 74:494 Mr 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel

Manchester Guardian p4 N 4 '49 150w

Reviewed by J. D. Scott

New Statesman & Nation 38:559 N 12 '49 330w

"Of course, there is much of the old Farrell in the book: the world still is too much with him in the form of the drunken Irishman, the superstitious Catholic and the hate-filled Philistine. But there is a leavening of tenderness and sympathy that has not always been apparent in his works, which seems to be gradually mitigating the sordidness associated with the characters who have always peopled his literary world." Herbert Kupferberg

FARRELL, J. T.—Continued
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ap 3 '49 700w

"One cannot help wondering where Farrell will eventually find haven. For his Bernard Carr is a feeble craft whose motor had gone dead and who drifts as a derelict. He has broken from his original mooring and has lost his Marxist rudder. One fears that Farrell is still an absolutist who has broken with Rome and Moscow without finding new values to keep his work on a straight course. It is hardly pleasant for an old admirer of Farrell's to admit these things. But 'The Road Between' may be a negative landmark in our national literature, warning us that we are approaching as complete a dead end as we may find in the ever-narrowing road of American naturalism." Budd Schulberg
— N Y Times p4 Ap 3 '49 900w

"Some of it has the specious interest of a roman à clef, because of the author's uncharitable accounts of many easily recognized figures in the worlds of literature and Left Wing politics in New York during the thirties; for the rest, the book might have appropriately been subtitled 'Portrait of the Artist as a Young Bore.' "
— + New Yorker 25:110 My 7 '49 120w

Reviewed by Vance Bourjaily
San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ap 24 '49 750w

Reviewed by Milton Crane
Sat R of Lit 32:18 My 7 '49 700w

Time 53:113 Ap 11 '49 330w

FARRINGTON, BENJAMIN. Francis Bacon, philosopher of industrial science. (Life of science lib) 202p il $3.50 Schuman
B or 92 Bacon, Francis, viscount St Albans
49-50249

"Although the mention of Bacon's marriage and a number of other personal events probably entitle this book to be classified as biography, it is essentially a study of Bacon's ideas about the significance of technology in human affairs. . . Bacon's expressions of this philosophy, particularly in his The Great Instauration, are analyzed and placed in relation to the history of science." (Library J) Index.

Kirkus 17:567 O 1 '49 180w

"The book is not bright reading as biography, but it is an illuminating study for persons interested in Bacon or in the social relations of science and technology." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1758 N 15 '49 130w

"Mr. Farrington has written a brilliant and creative interpretation of all that is most enduring in Bacon's blueprint for the future. His book, the best in the publisher's valuable Life of Science series, is history with an important meaning for modern readers." J. E. Pfeiffer
+ N Y Times p6 Ja 8 '50 450w

FARRINGTON, SELWYN KIP. Fishing the Atlantic; offshore and on; il. by Lynn Bogue Hunt. 312p $6.75 Coward-McCann
799.1661 Fishing Agr49-475

"The author, holder of five world records, scouts the coast from Nova Scotia's 'acres' of jumping tuna to Venezuela's wahoo grounds, with detailed stopovers in New York, Florida and the Caribbean, plus a side-glance at Europe's waters—including the Scandinavian. The book is packed with tales of those that didn't get away, and tips on gear, bait and accommodations." (N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 46:186 F 1 '50

"Recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:48 Ja 1 '50 40w

"What Mr. Farrington lacks in fine writing he more than makes up in fine fishing." Nate Aleskovsky
+ N Y Times p14 Ja 1 '50 110w

FARRINGTON, SELWYN KIP. Railroads of today. 306p il $6 Coward-McCann
385 Railroads—U.S. 49-9693

Companion volume to the author's Railroads at War, and Railroading from the Rear End (Book Review Digest 1944, 1946). In addition to general chapters on the Modern train, Diesels, and Brake development, the author takes up individually the present status and possible future of most of the first-class roads. Index.

Booklist 45:385 Jl 15 '49

Kirkus 17:223 Ap 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1329 S 15 '49 70w

"Although the author's style is often reminiscent of that of an over-enthusiastic junior copywriter, he covers his subject with remarkable detail." Ruth Teiser
San Francisco Chronicle p19 S 11 '49 200w

FARSON, NEGLEY. Sons of Noah. 314p $3.50 Harcourt
49-8553

"About a doctor who falls in love with the daughter of a small-town prostitute, is distressed because he believes that she is his sister, and at last discovers that he is not related to her. In the background of this tale is the figure of the narrator Fenner, who makes a third side of the curious triangle. Further in the background, and more real than the characters, lie the salt marshes of New Jersey, among which the drama is worked out." Times [London] Lit Sup

Booklist 45:253; 295 Ap 1 '49; My 1 '49

Reviewed by George Miles
Commonweal 50:276 Je 24 '49 290w

"I liked best the parts of the book in which the author makes the reader feel close to the eerie beauties of the marshes and waterways. Farson's facility as a reporter gives a certain flow to his story, but somehow he doesn't cut very deep below the surface. Nonetheless it has much that is worth reading."
+ — Kirkus 17:118 Mr 1 '49 210w

"As distinctive a story as we are likely to read in 1949. . . If Mr. Farson had nothing to offer but his social philosophy his book would be less attractive than it is. He is, for example, angry to the point of unfairness and inconsistency. On one page he will praise immigrant virtues, on another assert that there are 'too many new people in this country.' . . The man who can write as Negley Farson can is more than just a good reporter or a cranky philosopher of the plundered-planet school. He is first of all a poet and second a very fine novelist." Richard Match
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ap 24 '49 900w

"To provide a hull to carry this brackish lore, plus his personal opinions on politics and human nature, Mr. Farson has contrived a thin and unconvincing story. . . Not one character comes to life. . . The dialogue is banal and the narrative sections are undistinguished in style. Even the descriptions of the Delaware Bay country and life aboard a small sailing vessel are not seen with novelist's eye." Leon Dorais
— N Y Times p31 Ap 24 '49. 360w

"A not too important plot is saved from the commonplace by the skillful evocation of some wild coastal atmosphere. . . Shuttling lazily along the coast, Mr. Farson achieves an interesting blend of salty characterization, well-drawn seascape, and nostalgia for the twenties."
+ — New Yorker 25:98 Ap 23 '49 120w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ap 25 '49 420w

"Since Mr. Farson has lived this kind of life himself, and is in addition a magnificent storyteller, his latest book has a gusty kind of reality that overrides the complications of the involved story he has to tell." Harrison Smith
Sat R of Lit 32:19 My 7 '49 650w

"The characters are lost in the landscape. Even the main ones emerge, at the end, from this fog of words as no more than casual acquaintances. It is not that they are not people; they are not people made known to us." Olivia Manning
— Spec 182:198 F 11 '49 230w

"'The Sons of Noah', is a confused but invigorating yarn." L. S. Munn
+ — Springf'd Republican p7B Jl 24 '49 360w

"A short story blown up into a long novel."
Times [London] Lit Sup p133 F 26 '49 100w

FARWELL, MARTHA. Good-luck bell; il. by Clara Lawton Smith. 209p $2.25 Rinehart 49-7337

Story of two Mexican-American children living in California. When their father was absent for a long time looking for work the children helped their mother to eke out their slender means. After Miguel salvaged an old ship's bell from the Pacific things seemed to go better for them.

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:136 Mr '49 50w

Kirkus 17:2 Ja 1 '49 150w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 8 '49 240w

"The story, marred by an undistinguished style and some optimistic improbabilities, does not quite live up to its potentialities. Nevertheless its theme is an appealing one to children of 8 to 12, and the picture of a Mexican family life transplanted to California is sketched in warm colors." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p24 F 13 '49 180w

Wis Lib Bul 45:49 Mr '49

FAST, HOWARD MELVIN. Departure, and other stories. 238p $3 Little 49-10734

Contents: Departure; The old wagon; The shore route; Onion soup; An epitaph for Sidney; Where are your guns? Spoil the child; The little folk from the hills; Who is he? The suckling pig; The rickshaw; The gentle virtue; Dumb Swede; The gray ship; Three beautiful things; The first rose of summer; Wake up glad; The police spy; Thirty pieces of silver.

Chicago Sun p11X O 23 '49 80w

"Fast's narrative gift does not lend itself to the short story medium. Only occasionally does his dramatic emotional genius show in flashes of vivid portraiture, of muted challenge."
Kirkus 17:336 Jl 1 '49 120w

"That Mr. Fast can leave the reservation when he wants to is demonstrated in 'The Gentle Virtue,' a subtly ironic tale of a campus intellectual. It's the best story in the book, and even Mr. Parnell Thomas would concede that it is entirely non-political." Richard Match
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 O 2 '49 700w

"Few of the stories match their locale in color or quality. Most of them, despite the polemical vigor of their author, make dull reading. . . Occasionally, as in the title story and in 'Wake Up Glad,' a grimly moving study of a New York cab-driver, character and situation emerge with a clarity and force well worth any reader's attention. The collection throws a great deal of light on the writer's creative evolution, but it does little to illumine the people and events it skims so lightly." James MacBride
— + N Y Times p8 S 11 '49 400w

"The nineteen stories in this volume constitute a remarkably mixed collection, ranging from such mechanical jobs of hammer-and-sickling as the title story and 'An Epitaph for Sidney' to a charming genre story of adolescence, 'The First Rose of Summer.' . . The principal effect of the collection will be to confirm what many readers of Mr. Fast's historical novels have long suspected—that his works are likely to survive, but only as excellent juveniles for the fourteen-to-eighteen age group."
+ — New Yorker 25:104 S 17 '49 140w

"Mr. Fast gives us a liberal mixture in this new collection of stories, and every time you might think you have him summed up the next story will be something different again. But let it be said that he never fails to be fluently readable and that always (or almost always) he has a story to tell. . . I found the kind of emotion that infuses the title story, 'Departure,' on the phony side." Hollis Alpert
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:27 D 24 '49 320w

FAULKNER, GEORGENE. Melindy's happy summer; il. by Elton C. Fax. 182p $2.50 Messner 49-10651

A sequel to Melindy's Medal (Book Review Digest 1945). In this story Melindy is an "ambassador of good will" from the colored people of her Boston church to the white people of a Maine farm. Melindy is smart and musical, but too inclined to brag. At first the farmer called her Miss Brag but changed her name to Miss Brave when she rescued his baby from drowning. Melindy's summer becomes completely happy after this incident and after she plays the part of Gretel in a music camp's production of Hansel and Gretel. For grades 4-6.

Booklist 46:51 O 1 '49

"A natural, winsome little girl story of a very human child—enjoyment for little girls everywhere."
+ Kirkus 17:395 Ag 1 '49 160w

"A readable book with a good story which also tells of the Experiment in Human relations successfully conducted in Vermont. Recommended for grades 3-4." N. L. Rathbun
+ Library J 75:50 Ja 1 '50 70w

"The ending is forced and slick and the whole is less deeply felt than was that first happy story about Melindy. Nevertheless, the first part of Melindy's experiences is credible and appealing, giving 8 to 12 year-olds an understanding of a fine experiment in democratic living." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p18 Ja 8 '50 220w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:27 N 12 '49 30w

FAULKNER, RAY NELSON, and others. Art today; an introduction to the fine and functional arts. rev ed 519p il pl $6; text ed $4.75 Holt

700 Art. Art industries and trade 49-5351

"Treats of the function of art in the day-to-day life of the average person. . . In the new edition, some sections have been deleted, inadequately developed ones have been enlarged, and new ones have been added. The revised edition contains four sections instead of three. The three original sections remain; but the chapters on painting, sculpture, and architecture now constitute Section IV." (J Home Econ) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1941.

Booklist 46:100 N 15 '49

"[The book] is attractive, logical, and understandable for the non-art major. The new edition, revised and reillustrated, has made an already valuable book up to date." Bess Steele
+ J Home Econ 41:585 D '49 150w

FAULKNER, WILLIAM. Knight's gambit. 246p $2.75 Random house
49-11472

Six stories, all stories of violence. In each of them Gavin Stephens, a county attorney, appears. Contents: Smoke; Monk; Hand upon the waters; Tomorrow; An error in chemistry; Knight's gambit.

"To Faulkner's aficionados, this book will be minor stuff but it should gain him new disciples. For in these stories he has imposed

FAULKNER, WILLIAM—Continued
some check on his penchant for interminable sentences and on his tendency to be obscure." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 185:85 Ja '50 650w

Booklist 46:97 N 15 '49

"Not 'an event of considerable importance' as the book jacket proclaims, but good reading for the many who enjoy the leisurely mystery. Again, Faulkner's prose is not the marvel which some of his partisans assert, but balanced and well paced, it is interesting to follow." Mary Sandrock

+ Cath World 170:314 Ja '50 200w

"Five of these stories concern murders, and in one an intended death-trap is barely avoided thru Stevens' alertness. All exhibit intricate plots and ingenious detection. But they go beyond melodrama. They abound in Faulkner's penetratingly grotesque characterizations and witty dialogs with somber overtones. They display his unique style, like a river in flood, its surface giving the hallucination of slow eddying, but its volume immensely urgent." Warren Beck

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 13 '49 450w

"'Knight's Gambit' is both quieter in tone and better organized than most of its predecessors." Ruth Chapin

+ Christian Science Monitor p20 D 8 '49 650w

"Mostly, they are melodramatic detective-story episodes, but the real knowledge and profundity of William Faulkner occasionally makes itself known and then you've got something."

— + Commonweal 51:246 D 2 '49 40w

"These latest stories, which revolve around a country lawyer, are not ambitious pieces. Gavin Stevens is a duplicate of the usual detective story hero. . . This sentimental, conventional characterization is accompanied by plot structures which fail to rise above the hack level, and the whole attempt becomes a rather miserable and mawkish performance." George Miles

— Commonweal 51:275 D 9 '49 850w

"The enigmatic style is rather piquing, but the end impression is one of irritation."

— + Kirkus 17:485 S 1 '49 250w

"Less complicated and more readily comprehensible than his novels, his stories serve as a good introduction to his writing as a whole. The writing is superior and never becomes the sterile instrument with which less talented men of letters are in the habit of bombarding us." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 74:1321 S 15 '49 70w

"No one is likely to deny that the stories in 'Knight's Gambit' are, at least for Faulkner, second-rate." Irving Howe

— + Nation 169:473 N 12 '49 1000w

"Faulkner has always been a superb storyteller, and these ingenious—of a lesser writer the word would be slick—tales are excellent entertainment. We are grateful, too, for the occasional sharp insight, the sudden illumination, and it's good to renew our acquaintance with Varner's store and Frenchman's Bend." E. H.

+ New Repub 121:19 N 21 '49 150w

"It is the slightest (except 'Mosquitoes') and the pleasantest of all the books that Faulkner has published. . . The tragic note is muted for the first time. There are, it is true, six murders and one justifiable homicide; but this violence is kept in the background and what emerges from the story is the wisdom of Gavin Stevens and the essential goodness of men. 'Knight's Gambit' is not great or even characteristic Faulkner. It does, however, show a different side of his talent; and for those who have never read his work, it perhaps offers the easiest door by which to enter the rich world of his imagination." Malcolm Cowley

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 6 '49 1000w

"Six masterly whodunits hot from the master's hand. And presented in prose possessing something of the fury of the people of these pages: a prose both violent and controlled; leashed and lunging." Nelson Algren

+ N Y Times p4 N 6 '49 470w

"In spite of all one can say against this book, certainly very inferior Faulkner, none of these stories, however farfetched, fails to awaken that anxious suspense as to what is going to be revealed, to summon that troubled emotion in the presence of human anomaly, which make the strength of his finer fiction. So 'Knight's Gambit' does give me a chance to pay tribute to Faulkner's genius." Edmund Wilson

— + New Yorker 25:58 D 24 '49 850w

"The reader who has been put off by Faulkner's reputation for obscurity or for horror (and some are so put off) will find this collection a good first step in comprehending a powerful and uneven genius." H. M. Jones

+ Sat R of Lit 32:17 N 5 '49 950w

"Once in a while, the old Faulkner power comes through in a glaze of language. . . But except for Tomorrow, an effective account of how the family loyalties of a poor-white clan can tangle the job of justice, the stories fall between two stools: they are neither ingenious enough to be good detective yarns nor deep and free enough to be good Faulkner."

— + Time 54:118 N 21 '49 280w

"Pot boilers though they doubtless are, and rather primitive as detective fiction, these stories still hold the reader's attention with brilliant passages describing men and animals and automobiles and landscape." Paul Pickrel

Yale R n s 39:382 winter '50 240w

FAWCETT, MRS CLARA EVELYN (HALLARD). On making, mending and dressing dolls; with il. by the author. 170p $3.50 Harry L. Lindquist Publications, 2 W. 46th st, N.Y. 19

649.55 Dolls 49-8463

"Instructions on how to make rag dolls—the simple 'sox' doll and the more complex one that requires a pattern. Mrs. Fawcett also tells how to carve and how to model dolls. In the parts devoted to the mending of dolls, you'll find directions on how to restore papier-mache and china heads and methods for restoring jointed bisque dolls. Illustrations of elaborate doll dresses go back to Godey's and to early issues of the Delineator for models. . . Full of suggestions are the chapters on period dolls. Mrs Fawcett writes in detail about those perennial favorites, America's First Lady dolls." (San Francisco Chronicle) Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '49

"Although Mrs. Fawcett has written a book that is practical in every sense, it is, nevertheless, a labor of love. Her own 276 illustrations make it a joy for all doll lovers. . . Doll lovers, even passive ones, should not fail to look into Mrs. Fawcett's charming book." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 My 29 '49 200w

FAXON, NATHANIEL WALES, ed. The hospital in contemporary life. 288p il $5 Harvard univ. press

362.1 Hospitals. Medicine—History 49-7655

"The workings of the modern hospital, told by the author and seven other medical men. Psychosomatic treatment and psychiatry are discussed from the standpoint of institutional care. There is a plea against a compulsory government medical system or control." (Current Hist) Index.

Reviewed by I. V. Hiscock

Am J Pub Health 39:807 Je '49 220w

Current Hist 16:231 Ap '49 40w

"Not for a general market."

Kirkus 17:75 F 1 '49 130w

Reviewed by M. M. Davis

N Y Times p51 O 23 '49 500w

"The care and treatment of the patient is now but one of the three major functions the modern hospital fulfills. It is also a key center of medical research and professional training. All three roles are competently discussed in the Faxon-edited volume." Albert Deutsch

+ Sat R of Lit 32:28 Jl 16 '49 500w

School & Society 69:103 F 5 '49 30w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:248 Je '49 330w

FEARING, KENNETH. Stranger at Coney Island, and other poems. 41p $2 Harcourt 811 48-8380

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

"Within the limits of a style which seems to forbid the immediate lyrical expression of personality . . . he has explored the possibilities of irony pretty thoroughly. The ominous note is always present." M. L. Rosenthal
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 Mr 13 '49 700w

"The brilliant staccato surface and rowdy satire have been replaced by a kind of 'poetic' croon, and elegiac sentimentality; the minute particulars, which were at once the justification and device of Mr. Fearing's irony, are here dissolved in a stream of innocuous generality. . . Regretfully one looks back to Mr. Fearing's earlier work, where what was promised was performed." William Abrahams
Poetry 74:118 My '49 360w

"This is his sixth book of verse and a very good one. He has genius for tipping his poems toward stories, yet never anecdotally." T. H. Ferril
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 F 13 '49 50w

"Mr. Fearing's poetry relies, here, on the eye for choosing and placing the object, not for working upon its essence. With their reliance on the cumulative effects of simple notation, these poems are sometimes prolix, sometimes over-expository of an effect. The human figures are less particular, less felt, than generalized; now and then about the edges of the poet's city there sounds a general theme, more philosophic than sociologic, which gives a new dimension."
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:426 D '48 250w

"It is readable, often brilliant writing of innuendo, of things seen out of the corner of his eye, of fears and doubts and strange characters in the background." Eugene Davidson
Yale R n s 38:725 summer '49 210w

FEATHER, LEONARD G. Inside be-bop. 103p il $2 Robbins music corp, 799 7th av, N.Y. 19
781.5 Jazz music. Musicians 49-4866

"There was jazz in the Twenties, swing in the Thirties and, in the Forties—bebop. . . Any history of improvised music leans heavily on personalities. 'Inside Bebop' features Dizzie Gillespie, Charlie Parker & Co., but it is more than a eulogy. . . Mixed with the narrative details is some fairly graphic description of the actual sounds of this taut music: its fevered tempos, unison ensemble passages, off-rhythm bass drum punctuations and Afro-Cuban influences. A useful biographical index is included, listing typical recordings by ninety-two performers." N Y Times

Booklist 46:44 O 1 '49

Reviewed by C. S. Spalding
Music Lib Assn Notes 6:619 S '49 650w

Reviewed by Carter Harman
N Y Times p18 Jl 31 '49 230w

"Much to my surprise, if less perhaps to his, Leonard Feather has done an excellent job of documenting the latest mode in popular music, in a slim volume entitled 'Inside Bebop.'" Irving Kolodin
+ Sat R of Lit 32:45 Jl 30 '49 1050w

FEIBLEMAN, JAMES KERN. Aesthetics; a study of the fine arts in theory and practice. 463p $5 Duell
701.17 Esthetics. Art—Philosophy 49-10259

"In a long book divided into two parts, Mr. Feibleman presents first a philosophy of art based on valid metaphysics, then applies his theories to each one of the seven arts; examples range through the centuries of the masters." (Library J) Index.

"This book is a disappointment, for there is a crying need for a modern philosophy of aesthetics. This turns out to be the tedious meanderings of an amateur who takes himself too seriously."
— Kirkus 17:319 Je 15 '49 80w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 74:1021 Jl '49 100w

"'Aesthetics' is a distinguished, if specialized, performance. It is a thoroughly mature contribution to philosophy and a great benefaction to art." C. W. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p28 O 16 '49 400w

"In a period when so many writers are lightly assuming subjectivism in the values of beauty and art, it is a pleasure to come upon a book whose author is deeply convinced of an esthetic objectivity. . . The book is written in a freely flowing style easily understandable to the layman. Yet it is not a popular book in any disparaging sense." S. C. Pepper
+ Sat R of Lit 32:68 D 3 '49 600w

FEIKEMA, FEIKE FREDERICK. The primitive. 460p $3.50 Doubleday
49-9644

"This is the first volume of a trilogy to be called World's Wanderer. [It] tells of Thurs Wraldson, a huge, awkward farm boy, orphaned and without money, who leaves Siouxland to attend college. It tells of an awakening tragic power within him, a power beyond the strength of his giant's hands, a power that could be used for good or for evil." Publisher's note

Booklist 45:382; 393 Jl 15 '49

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p8X S 18 '49 600w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin
Christian Science Monitor p15 S 15 '49 750w

"Despite his earnestness, it is not possible to take Mr. Feikema very seriously. Like Thurs, who condescendingly reads Aquinas on page 237 and then on page 431 admits he cannot follow him, he is confused. For coping with crude fundamentalism he arms Thurs with even cruder blasphemies, and he reports the most elementary bathos as clear thinking. His idea of 'message' is to call in 'the reporter-trained minds of our society.' It all makes pretty thin intellectual, emotional, and stylistic equipment for Thurs's next chancing." Riley Hughes
— + Commonweal 50:538 S 9 '49 650w

"Evidently an adulator of both Whitman and Thomas Wolfe, Feikema's novel has an almighty sweep and breadth, a style which manifests itself in large square blocks, a basic rhythm that has a primitive echo. . . This has a ferocity and an unbridled basic spirit that will appeal to those who have enjoyed other Feikema titles."
Kirkus 17:370 Jl 15 '49 220w

"Mr. Feikema describes college life with freshness lighted with humor and shaded with poignant little tragedies of youth. In his character building of Thurs he relies over much on Thurs's physical bulk to get a dimensional person. Hero Bernlef, on the other hand, suffers in character portrayal because she is so small. She is a miniature, but the lines of her character are not cut sharp or sure. However, some of the finest emotional writing in the book gives Thurs's feelings, moods and actions on his frustrated love for Hero who for him can be nothing more than a pocket-sized Venus." Paul Corey
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 S 18 '49 850w

"'The Primitive' is enough of a 'college novel' to present such staples of that genre as The Rush, The Hazing, The Game, The Binge, The Prank—all told with zest and illuminating detail. Of more importance, the story reveals Thurs' intellectual development. He gradually sheds his religious beliefs, reads much modern literature, develops prodigiously as a musician. . . The novel is the successful beginning of a trilogy." G. R. Stewart
+ N Y Times p37 S 18 '49 500w

New Yorker 25:106 S 17 '49 120w

Reviewed by Marc Rivette
San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 25 '49 900w

Time 54:108 S 19 '49 600w

FEJTO, FRANCOIS. Heine; a biography; tr. by Melvyn Savill. 301p il $4 Univ. of Denver, University park, Denver 10

B or 92 Heine, Heinrich

"A life of Heinrich Heine that concentrates less on Heine's poetry than on the events of his life and the complexities and contradictions of his character—his tortured romanticism, his pride in being a Jew (which did not deter him from being secretly baptized a Christian), and his strange, disturbed relations with Karl Marx and the revolutionaries of 1848." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Fejtö allows himself considerable imaginative license in his interpretation of his subject's thoughts, and there are moments when one inclines to feel his method more applicable to a novel than a biography. And, in the result, the impression left is slightly blurred. But the book is readable and it certainly sets the main outward events, and the subsidiary characters, clearly before us." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 4 '47 550w

"The book is one of those pleasant biographies in which the author's affection for and understanding of his subject are communicated to the reader. The translation from the French seems all right, but the few lyrics of Heine's that have been put into English are very badly phrased."

+ — New Yorker 25:107 Ap 16 '49 120w

"Rich and fluent biography, written by an anti-Nazi Hungarian." David Hecht

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ap 17 '49 450w

"His method, which is easy-going and conversational, wavers between those of the popular biographer and of the historical novelist. No literary criticism is attempted, dates are infrequent, every third sentence trails off into a line of dots. Little is done to suggest the atmosphere of literary France and Germany in the eighteen-thirties and 'forties and the author labours under a number of unnecessary delusions. . . Many good English translations of Heine's verse are available, from Monckton Milnes and Julian Fane to Louis Untermeyer. Instead of using any of these, the translator of Monsieur Fejto's book has composed his own doggerel jingles, of which both he and the publishers should be deeply and heartily ashamed."

— + Spec 178:218 F 14 '47 190w

FELTON, HAROLD W. Pecos Bill, Texas cowpuncher; il. by Aldren Auld Watson. 177p $2.50 Knopf

398.2 Cowboys 49-11073

"The stories of the Western superman, woven with artistry into a single narrative and accompanied by two-color illustrations as gusty as the text." (New Yorker) Bibliography.

Booklist 46:128 D 1 '49

Chicago Sun p6X N 13 '49 70w

"Nobody seems to know whatever happened to Pecos Bill, but you can get well acquainted with him in Felton's book. The illustrations are elegant." Will Davidson

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 N 13 '49 200w

"There are other Pecos Bill stories, but this is unusually good, not only in the selection of yarns and tall tales, but in the appropriately casual and offhand manner of the telling."

+ Kirkus 17:468 S 1 '49 100w

"The age level is a little higher than that of Leigh Peck's Pecos Bill and Lightning and a little lower than Bowman's Pecos Bill—around grades five to eight. Excellent material." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 75:50 Ja 1 '50 80w

"This is a fine book to come along at the height of the cowboy craze, to show the young that these Westerners do not always take themselves too seriously." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 15 '50 150w

"The prose is more vigorous than is Dr. Bowman's, and Mr. Felton's mock-sober imitation of a scholar's style makes the stories all the funnier. Aldren Watson's rambunctious drawings are exactly in the spirit of the stories. For ages 12 and up." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p14 Ja 15 '50 170w

"Mr. Felton tells tall stories exactly as they should be told, and rarely are told. His restrained humor is excellent; he leaves the exclamations and the knee-slapping strictly to the reader."

+ New Yorker 25:182 D 3 '49 80w

"The legends of Pecos Bill are not new, but Mr. Felton has dressed them in entertaining freshness of style. Above all, he has not written down to his readers, and any adult who has never read of Pecos Bill's early life as a coyote, his inventions—he invented everything from the lariat to the Fourth of July—and his busting of a Texas cyclone, would do well to begin now. The book is charmingly illustrated." A. R. Bosworth

+ San Francisco Chronicle p5 N 13 '49 220w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:24 N 12 '49 30w

Wis Lib Bul p14 D '49

FENISONG, RUTH. Snare for sinners. 189p $2.25 Doubleday

49-9743

Detective story.

"Miss Fenisong seems to be making a slow transition between the sleek competence and readableness of her earlier detective stories and something more serious. This is an earnest but not necessarily direct step on the way." James Sandoe

Chicago Sun Ag 26 '49 80w

"Past history and present crimes competently coordinated."

+ Kirkus 17:242 My 1 '49 90w

"Eccentric Carola and her pet skunk struck us as the most likable critters in this harmless romance." Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Jl 17 '49 140w

"In this new Fenisong novel, as in the preceding ones, it is entirely rewarding to share the writer's interest and her insight into the interwoven lives of people impaled by their individual fates." E. B.

+ N Y Times p15 Jl 31 '49 200w

New Yorker 25:64 Ag 6 '49 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 7 '49 80w

FENNER, PHYLLIS REID, comp. Feasts and frolics [special stories for special days] il. by Helen R. Durney. 159p $2.50 Knopf

Holidays 49-11219

Stories for Christmas, Fourth of July, Easter and other special days chosen from books and periodicals, and including fairy tales, legends, and short stories. Authors include Mary E. Wilkins Freeman, Joseph Jacobs, Lucretia Hale, Jeanette Eaton, Charles Finger, etc.

Booklist 46:68 O 15 '49

Chicago Sun p9X N 13 '49 50w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 25:541 N '49 60w

Kirkus 17:468 S 1 '49 150w

"Any library needing material for holidays will welcome this refreshing collection." F. M. Hensey

+ Library J 74:1609 O 15 '49 70w

"There are more useful books for this purpose available." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ja 1 '50 50w

Reviewed by Irene Smith

+ N Y Times p34 O 30 '49 170w

FENNER, PHYLLIS REID, comp. Horses, horses, horses; palominos and pintos, polo ponies and plow horses, morgans and mustangs; il. by Pers Crowell. 285p $2.50 Watts, F.

Horses—Legends and stories 49-7602

Collection of short stories and chapters from books about horses. For young readers. Contents: Champions of the peaks, by Paul Annixter; The match race, by Walter Farley; King of the range, by Margaret Jamison; The Royal greens, by R. G. Carter; The squeak of leather, by Will James; Can a horse know too much, by G. T. Eames; Scott makes good, by S. P. Meek; The black stallion and the red mare, by G. F. Lewis; High courage, by C. W. Anderson; The roping contest, by Stephen Holt; Such a kind world, by M. L. Hunt; Bucephalus: A king's horse, by Alice Gall and Fleming Crew; Mohawk makes a comeback, by C. W. Anderson; The cutter race, by Stephen Meader; Death dive, by Stephen Holt; Jarvis discovers gold, by G. T. Eames; Corral walls, by David Grew; The pacing mustang, by E. T. Seton.

Booklist 45:229 Mr 1 '49

"An anthology of good stories for any boy or girl who is crazy about horses."

+ Commonweal 51:190 N 18 '49 40w

"Horse stories, varied in tempo and mood, setting and values, but everyone of them a good yarn."

+ Kirkus 17:59 F 1 '49 160w

Reviewed by J. M. Smith

Library J 74:499 Mr 15 '49 70w

"I conclude that it is not only the horse, but the kind of story he inspires which has won the children. They know what they can depend on: no fine writing for its own sake, no dreamy descriptions, no involved psychology; instead, an easy lift to their own courage, and a frank admission of that fundamental in their lives, deep love for another living creature. Miss Fenner has collected the best stories on a twelve and under level." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 F 20 '49 270w

"A sturdy and attractive book, this volume will be a boon to harassed librarians trying vainly to supply their young readers' demands for 'another horse story.' Pers Crowell's illustrations are dramatic and vigorous, showing an intimate knowledge of race track, range and stable. For readers of 8 to 14." Elizabeth Hodges

+ N Y Times p30 F 27 '49 130w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:38 Je 11 '49 40w

Wis Lib Bul 45:68 Ap '49

FENNIMORE, STEPHEN. Bush holiday; il. by Ninon MacKnight. 242p $2.50 Doubleday 49-8777

Story of an American boy's visit to the Australian bush. Martin has many adventures there while lost in the gum forests and fighting a bush fire. For grades 5-8.

Booklist 45:320 My 15 '49

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson

Cath World 170:211 D '49 20w

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun Je 4 '49 270w

"This travel story has real character and suspense and also introduces readers to the Australians, their land and birds and animals." H. F. Griswold

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 My 26 '49 300w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '49

"The author has written a thrilling story in which he has relived his own boyhood in Australia in a memorable way." A. C. Moore

+ Horn Bk 25:282 Jl '49 110w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 25:293 Jl '49 100w

"Topnotch. . . A story that will win approval of adventure-minded readers on all counts."

+ Kirkus 17:178 Ap 1 '49 160w

"Fine, well-written tale of friendship, with characters who really live and atmosphere which makes the reader see, feel, and smell this strange new world. Author's familiarity with the Australian scene is evident." M. A. Herr

+ Library J 74:896 Je 1 '49 70w

"A fine story for boys and girls past the easy-reading stage. . . A slight sub-plot hanging too much on miraculous coincidence, gives Martin a new father at the happy ending. But the book is good reading on every score: style, characters, action to suit the age. To the adult it is chiefly memorable for its fascinating introduction to many aspects of Australia, especially its wild life." L. S. Bechtel

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 My 8 '49 290w

"Mr. Fennimore loves all that he writes about; there is a warmth like sunshine in 'Bush Holiday.' The illustrations are agreeable, and the end-papers, which are made from drawings by the aborigines on the walls of caves, have economy and wit." Marjorie Fischer

+ N Y Times p22 My 15 '49 190w

"There is, unfortunately, a rather silly ending, but it is balanced by a host of bizarre and well-rounded characters, both human and animal."

+ — New Yorker 25:175 D 3 '49 70w

"It is a well-told story with interesting characters and a background unfamiliar to most American boys and girls."

+ Sat R of Lit 32:38 Jl 9 '49 160w

Wis Lib Bul 45:108 Je '49

FENWICK, CHARLES GHEQUIERE. Inter-American regional system. 96p $1.50 McMullen

341.1 Pan Americanism 49-8331

"Three annotated lectures dealing with the system's history, legal status and its relation to the United Nations." (Foreign Affairs) Bibliography.

"Dr. Fenwick, now the director of the Department of International Law and Organization of the Pan American Union, is well known as one of the country's leading authorities on international law, and in the past decade and a half, as not only an eminent student of inter-American affairs but also a contributor to their shaping. Hence, it goes without saying that we may rely with complete confidence on the authority of whatever the author may have to say on such matters." R. H. Fitzgibbon

+ Ann Am Acad 264:130 Jl '49 260w

Foreign Affairs 28:171 O '49 20w

FENWICK, CHARLES GHEQUIERE. International law. 3d ed rev & enl 744p $5 Appleton

341 International law 48-3580

"Third edition of a well-known text on international law. . . Part I traces the historical background of international law and its scope, the 'science of international law,' the determination of the 'rules of international law,' and the 'relation of international law to municipal law.' In Part II, 'The Organization of the Community of Nations,' the author shows several of the more recent trends. . . Part III on 'The Substantive Rules of International Law' gives attention to the traditional topics of international law with the addition of some newer items of more recent vintage. . . Part IV, dealing with 'International Procedure for the Settlement of Conflicts of Claims,' brings in a number of recent developments in the field of international law." (Ann Am Acad) Index. For first edition see Book Review Digest 1924.

"There is every reason to expect that this new edition will receive the same warm welcome that was accorded to the earlier editions of the book, and thus contribute to a better and wider appreciation of the rôle of international law in the family of nations." Leo Gross

+ Am Pol Sci R 43:150 F '49 850w

FENWICK, C. G.—Continued

"Professor Fenwick has produced a scholarly and highly useful text (some 3,000 references are given throughout the volume). His faith and moral courage are reflected here and there throughout the volume without the sacrifice of realism and sound scholarship." J. E. Harley

+ Ann Am Acad 261:182 Ja '49 650w

"A further development and improvement of what is now a leading volume on the subject in the English language. Both the student and the general reader will find here a full, thoughtful, and critical survey of the whole field of public international law, with ample reference to international organization as well."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:337 S '48 160w

FERGUSSON, FRANCIS. Idea of a theater; a study of ten plays; the art of drama in changing perspective. 239p $3.75 Princeton univ. press

809.2 Drama—History and criticism 49-11809

"This book is an authoritative search for 'that dramatic art which in all real plays underlies the more highly evolved arts of language.' And what is this art which comes before language? It is the art of action. And drama is the purposeful imitation of action. In the primal Aristotelian sense, action means the reason for the exertion of power, rather than the mode of its exertion. It is, approximately, volition. . . From a brief outline of premises, objectives, and the reasons for the references in the book to Dante's 'Divine Comedy,' the author moves to the analysis of action and analogue in the great landmarks of dramatic art. Part One concerns itself, in superb linked essays, with 'Oedipus Rex,' 'Bérénice,' 'Tristan und Isolde,' and 'Hamlet.' Part Two treats of partial perspectives from Chekhov to T. S. Eliot." N Y Times

Booklist 46:139 D 15 '49

"Beautifully written, thoughtfully projected, intellectually provocative. Highly recommended for all theatre collections regardless of size," George Freedley

+ Library J 74:1910 D 15 '49 40w

"This book places Mr. Fergusson, who is director of the Princeton seminars in literary criticism, as the foremost living analyst of drama as the imitation of action. A more learned, thoroughgoing and important study of basic theatre could scarcely be produced in our time. . . I believe that 'The Idea of a Theatre' is the most important book on the art of the drama that has been published in the United States. It will rank high among the world's best theatre studies."

+ N Y Times p30 D 4 '49 450w

School & Society 70:447 D 31 '49 70w

FERM, VERGILIUS TURE ANSELM. What can we believe? 211p $3 Philosophical lib.

201 Religion—Philosophy 48-8463

"Prof. Ferm's book was written because of requests made to him by many people to write a small book, giving in the simplest possible terms something understandable about the whys and wherefores of religion, a discussion of what the church is for, something in the spirit of the newer knowledge about the Bible and the value of traditional beliefs and similar questions. His experience as the teacher for years of a course on the philosophy of religion in a college classroom has qualified him to produce this book in which he considers very thoughtfully the question of what we can believe about religion and, more particularly, about Christianity." (Springf'd Republican) Index.

Booklist 45:219 Mr 1 '49

"This, I think, is a most important book and should be widely read by all people honestly concerned with the problems of religion and who have honest doubts and fears about their religion and belief. In it Professor Ferm meets squarely the many questions that arise to perplex us and makes an exhaustive attempt to find an answer that will satisfy all of us. . . It is clearly written and for me leaves no doubt about what he has to say and the way he wants to say it." J. L. Clayton

+ Crozer Q 26:258 Jl '49 1000w

"Dr. Ferm's policy is not to come out with a nice, new, shiny modernist religion of the type that has a new model every year. He prefers to discuss some of the doubts that arise in the minds of men who come to question the church of their childhood. He tries to resolve these doubts but not to turn men back to the faith of their fathers. Rather he seeks to lead to a higher synthesis that incorporates the original basis of doubt." E. M. T.

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 16 '49 270w

"'What Can We Believe?' merits careful reading." O. J. Aldrich

+ Springf'd Republican p10C D 19 '48 290w

FERRARS, ELIZABETH. March Hare murders. 188p $2.25 Doubleday 49-11049

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun p40 O 21 '49 110w

"Smooth setting of stage and well developed characters for first rate puzzle."

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p44 D 4 '49 70w

"Satisfactory suspense."

+ Kirkus 17:444 Ag 15 '49 70w

"[Miss] Ferrars is an old hand at the well polished, reasonaby worked-out mystery. This is slighter than some of [her] others, but just as civilized."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 9 '49 150w

"This is a good, absorbing mystery novel, even if the killer's reason for doing the deed seems a little thin." Elizabeth Bullock

+ — N Y Times p43 O 30 '49 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p32 D 4 '49 50w

FERRI, ANTONIO. Elements of aerodynamics of supersonic flows. 434p il $10 Macmillan

533.6 Aerodynamics 49-8914

"Explains the theoretical fundamentals of two- and three-dimensional flow and shows the application of theory to aeronautical engineering problems such as instruments, diffusors, and wing design. Also includes the aerodynamics of supersonic flow in elementary form, and new material on two-dimensional effusors, supersonic diffusors, drag and lift of supersonic wings." Library J

Reviewed by Julian Sohon

Library J 74:1033 Jl '49 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 34:33 My '49

FESLER, JAMES WILLIAM. Area and administration. 158p $2.50 Univ. of Ala. press

353 Public administration 49-8026

"The volume consists of six lectures delivered at the University of Alabama in December, 1947, as a part of the Southern Regional Training Program in Public Administration. The function of the lectures was 'to place problems of government and administration in an areal framework that is too often ignored.'" (Am J Soc) Contents: The problem of administrative areas; Governmental areas; Field service areas; Areal co-ordination of field functions; Emerging areal patterns of intergovernmental and interagency co-operation; The reconciliation of function and area. Index.

Reviewed by D. M. Cox

Am J Soc 55:213 S '49 550w

"This little book of lectures is in the thoughtful, workmanlike tradition of its author. The whole stock of local-government and public administration literature would be improved if more of us followed Fesler's example and thought before writing a few essays instead of hastily writing full length textbooks." G. C. S. Benson

+ Am Pol Sci R 43:587 Je '49 380w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:228 Je '49 290w

FEY, HAROLD EDWARD. Lord's supper: seven meanings. 117p $1.50 Harper

265.3 Lord's supper 48-9678

"A book on the Lord's Supper, written in devotional temper. . . Dr. Fey finds in the Lord's Supper seven meanings. The sacrament is: (1) a memorial to Jesus, an act of remembrance; (2) an offering of thanksgiving; (3) a convenant between Jesus as living founder and ourselves as participants; (4) an affirmation and renewal of the fellowship of the believer with Christ and with his church; (5) a testimony to the source of spiritual strength in God; (6) a representation of the atonement; and (7) a declaration of hope for immortality. All these meanings are implicitly reflected in the various other names given to the Lord's Supper—Eucharist, Communion, Divine Liturgy, Mass, and the rest." Christian Century

"Scholarly, penetrating and for the most part free of the clichés of pious verbiage which mar many books of this type." E. S. Freeman

+ Christian Century 66:112 Ja 26 '49 950w

Reviewed by R. C. Batchelder

Churchman 163:15 Je 15 '49 180w

"This little volume from the pen of the managing editor of the Christian Century is well worth the most careful consideration of all who are called upon to administer or participate in the Lord's supper in every sectarian connection. . . This Baptist found one flaw in the work. The various names given to this observance of the church as reported by Dr. Fey do not record the word ordinance. Baptists talk of the ordinance of the Lord's supper far more than they do about 'The Eucharist.' " H. W. Smith

+ Crozer Q 24:178 Ap '49 600w

"This should be a most valuable addition to the clergyman's library, and, for the worshipper, an aid to the understanding and appreciation of our central Christian rite."

+ Kirkus 17:53 F 1 '49 100w

FIEDLER, KONRAD. On judging works of visual art; tr. by Henry Schaefer-Simmern, and Fulmer Mood; with an introd. by Henry Schaefer-Simmern. 76p $2 Univ. of Calif.

701.1 Esthetics. Art—Philosophy 49-5352

"This translation of a book published in Germany in 1876 introduces the reader to the creator of the 'pure visibility' theory in painting. Conrad Fiedler (1841-1895) was a member of a serious artistic circle which included Hans von Marees and Adolf Hildebrand. Out of his understanding of the psychology of the painter and his investigation of the creative process Fiedler emerged as pioneer of the idea that art experience is unique, that it is a way of seeing man and nature through the eyes of a genius whose gift is visual perception. . . The long sentences of the original have been cut to much shorter ones. The result sharpens the aphoristic depths in which Fiedler lived his thought." Sat R of Lit

"Those interested in painting will find Conrad Fiedler a very stimulating thinker. Mr. Schaefer-Simmern and Mr. Mood have done a fine, clear job of translation, and the introduction is excellent." J. B. G.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 28 '49 210w

"His book comes to us out of the overly-maligned nineteenth century as one more proof of merit in another of that century's pioneers of the spirit. . . There is a danger that this book may miss the large public it deserves. Yet it offers us a chance to go back to the sources, to the idea of the artist as a man of unusually intense feeling coupled with extraordinary power of mind. When Fiedler ponders the ambitions of science, he speaks for 1876 and for all of us who have been, as Fiedler was, schooled in apprehension." J. F. Kienitz

+ Sat R of Lit 32:67 D 3 '49 550w

FINCH, VOLNEY CECIL. Jet propulsion turbojets. 328p il $5.50 Nat. press, Millbrae, Calif.

629.13338 Jet propulsion 49-7978

"A compact introduction which is suitable for use by intermediate students of engineering and by persons out of school who understand calculus and are accustomed to reading graphs. Fundamental engineering theory is presented from the standpoints of thermodynamics and aerodynamics, and specific data is furnished on such aspects as efficiency, and on design factors. The book is based on the published literature, including a number of papers and reports of wartime research which have been released only recently. Good lists of selected references accompany the various chapters. The appendix contains a range of useful data on alloys, fuels, etc." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 45:276 Ap 15 '49

N Y New Tech Bks 34:7 Ja '49

FINDLAY, ALEXANDER. Hundred years of chemistry. (100 years ser) 2d ed 318p $4.50 Macmillan (for Duckworth)

540.9 Chemistry—History. Chemists [49-1070]

"This historical presentation of trends and developments in the science of chemistry since the 1830's has been revised so that some of the most important advances made since the publication of the first edition [Book Review Digest 1937] could be included. A change to a smaller point type permitted numerous changes and additions to be made in the various chapters, chiefly in the latter ones ('Radioactivity,' 'Physical Chemistry,' and 'Industrial Chemistry'), without increasing the total number of pages. . . The revision also included the addition of a number of footnotes and references, and, by some substitutions and additions, the number of biographical sketches of leading chemists was increased by 10." Chem & Eng N

"These changes make this volume more accurate and up to date in directing attention to the advances based on chemical research." C. K. Deischer

+ Chem & Eng N 27:706 Mr 17 '49 170w

"Although this account of the development of modern chemistry is extremely condensed, it is readable, and even fascinating to persons with some training in chemistry. The reference value is high, for in addition to mentions of all the important discoveries, references are made to the original articles and other pertinent literature, and the appendix contains capsule biographies of the outstanding chemists. In this edition, the work has been extensively revised to cover the great advances of the decade since 1937."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 33:82 N '48

FINEBERG, SOLOMON ANDHIL. Punishment without crime; what you can do about prejudice. 337p $3.50 Doubleday

325.73 U.S.—Race question. Toleration 49-10243

A book discussing the intricacies of racial and religious group prejudice and describing a plan of attack against intolerance. The author is community service director of the American Jewish committee.

Booklist 46:27 S 15 '49

Bookmark 9:26 N '49 20w

Reviewed by Thomas Wright

Chicago Sun p6X S 4 '49 200w

Reviewed by Marie Miller

Churchman 164:16 Ja 1 '50 240w

"Based on many years' experience in this field, this is fully amplified by actual incidents and should be of value to all working towards social reeducation."

+ Kirkus 17:317 Je 15 '49 160w

FINEBERG, S. A.—Continued

"Well-planned, interestingly and forcefully written, but not with heat, without prejudice, not as special pleading, but one of strong conviction and a deep understanding of human relations. . . It carries conviction, and should help to free many from the common dilemma that in disliking individuals they are led to stereotype, as the target of prejudice, the entire group. Highly recommended for all libraries." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 74:1087 Ag '49 130w

"An admirable book—readable, concrete, idealistic." Frances Witherspoon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p19 O 2 '49 600w

"Dr. Fineberg writes earnestly and interestingly. His case illustrations are good. One wishes he could have found some less clumsy word than 'Victimian' for a person who is an object of unmerited discrimination." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p4 S 4 '49 1000w

Reviewed by Irving Babow

San Francisco Chronicle p12 N 27 '49 600w

"The merit of the book is that the author discusses important questions with seriousness and an informed intelligence." M. R. Konvitz

+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 O 1 '49 750w

Reviewed by Julius Schreiber, M.D.

Survey 85:616 N '49 400w

FINEGAN, JACK. Youth asks about religion. (Haddam house bk) 192p $2 Assn. press

230 Religion 49-8332

One hundred questions which young people have asked about religion with answers "given frankly and honestly, in the light of [the author's] present state of knowledge and faith." Questions range from "What is faith?" "What is truth?" "Did Jesus really live?" to "Do you believe in the soul?" "What will heaven be like?" Chapter bibliographies.

Booklist 45:384 Jl 15 '49

"The author is a scholar. He is liberal in his theology, clear in his statements, and up-to-date, with an exposition of neo-orthodoxy. His answers regarding Jesus Christ are not concerned with Christology. Can it be that the deity of Jesus is no longer an issue with our young people? In spite of its brevity this little book touches on practically every religious problem." W. L. Caswell

+ Churchman 163:15 Je 1 '49 90w

"Religious leaders and teachers will differ in the use of Professor Finegan's book. That all of us will find it helpful and stimulating is undoubtedly true. I think it should be used under the guidance of careful and well-equipped leaders. Each one of us will vary or amplify the answers as we face specific situations. No doubt this is what the author intended." C. M. Bond

+ — Crozer Q 26:356 O '49 900w

"Ordinarily, I do not warm up much to a book on the question-and-answer pattern. It is usually chatty, fragmentary, and catechetical. This book by Jack Finegan of the Pacific School of Religion is a delightful exception. . . The book should prove valuable both to laymen who want to understand their faith and to their leaders who want light as to how to communicate it." Georgia Harkness

+ J Religion 29:325 O '49 140w

"The author gives to parents, Sunday school teachers and youth the benefit of his long experience as a minister, professor and writer, stating his answers to the most pressing queries of youth in the plain language adapted to the layman." J. W. Culver

+ Springf'd Republican p5D Ap 17 '49 120w

FINEMAN, IRVING. Ruth. 277p $3 Harper 49-10898

Novelized version of the life of Ruth the Moabite, who followed her mother-in-law Naomi back to Bethlehem after they had both been widowed. The book ends with the marriage of Ruth and Boaz.

Booklist 46:3; 47 S 1 '49; O 1 '49

Bookmark 9:55 D '49 20w

Reviewed by O. D. Hormel

Christian Science Monitor p11 O 13 '49 390w

"There is a strict fidelity to the original story and many quotations from the scriptures are worked into the conversations between the characters. . . Our reviews on his previous books have not tallied with other opinions, but still we found this slow, sober, serious reading and certainly not a too popular rendition."

Kirkus 17:403 Ag 1 '49 140w

"Recommended." L. R. Miller

+ Library J 74:1321 S 15 '49 90w

"When you come to the end of this book you cannot help feeling that the simple Bible story, so rich in overtones, has been elaborated into a complicated one with no overtones at all. Against its embroidered background Ruth herself has disappeared." Doris Schneider

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p36 S 25 '49 700w

"Mr. Fineman has been kinder to his background than to his characters. He has made an honest and successful attempt to give us a picture of life in Israel as it must have been 3,000 years ago. . . But the style is uncertain and uneven. . . Sometimes, as in the very beginning of the book, the style is admirable in its grace and economy. . . Yet at other times it is almost banal." Gladys Schmitt

+ — N Y Times p6 S 25 '49 600w

"'Ruth' is a tender and a peaceful book which, very rightly, neither takes from nor adds to the richness of its source and inspiration." M. L. M.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p34 N 20 '49 250w

"Mr. Fineman's novel [is] a parable of tolerance—a record of the just dealing with which the Jews treated the stranger within the gates and perhaps, though he nowhere says so, a reminder to our world that Jews deserve the fair treatment their laws require them to give to others. This reverence for the way of Israel is clearly the central quality of the book. It is reverence for a world based upon law. . . Mr. Fineman is essentially a moralist, calling for a way of life based upon laws whose justness and efficacy are proven. It is not often that, in a time when violence of motion seems to be the chief requirement of fiction, a novel of such moral earnestness comes along. In that moral core lies the book's dignity and strength." Bradford Smith

+ Sat R of Lit 32:15 S 24 '49 550w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich

Springf'd Republican p8B D 18 '49 290w

FINKELSTEIN, LOUIS, ed. American spiritual autobiographies; fifteen self-portraits. 276p il $4 Harper

922 48-9493

For descriptive note see Annual for 1948.

Booklist 45:209 F 15 '49

"Here is a book which, on the whole, illustrates Oliver Wendell Holmes's observation that 'the best of a book is not the thought which it contains, but the thought which it suggests.'" Neil Martin

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 F 3 '49 750w

"The essays are not startlingly original in philosophic approach but were not planned to be more than informal vignettes. The volume is useful in pointing up again how men who reject each other's most fundamental beliefs can work so well together when they have deep respect for human dignity." A. L. Sachar

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p21 My 1 '49 360w

"The special value of this compilation lies in the fact that it furnishes documentary proof that American unity is possible despite the diverse racial, religious, and national origins of the American population." W. W. Brickman

+ School & Society 69:177 Mr 5 '49 260w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich
Springf'd Republican p9B F 6 '49 550w
Wis Lib Bul 45:29 F '49

FINKELSTEIN, SIDNEY. Jazz, a people's music. 278p il $3 Citadel

780.973 Jazz music 48-9687

"A sociologist's interpretation, Marxian in direction, of jazz as a creation of the Negro in the U.S., an expression of his protest at discrimination, and a reflection of the social and economic misery which he knows. Includes a useful review of the literature on jazz, and lists recordings which amplify the various discussions." (Library J) Partial contents: The blues and the folk song of jazz; Improvisation and jazz form; The pop tune, the hot solo and the large band; The future of jazz.

Booklist 45:189 F 1 '49

"A book for the novice who is often completely confused by the technicalities of more pretentious works on jazz. Mr. Finkelstein explains musical structure, cites the best-known musicians, and lists records which serve as illustrations for his comments in each chapter." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 25:240 My '49 80w

"Recommended for all types of music collections." C. K. Miller
+ Library J 73:1666 N 15 '48 100w

"This book is unorthodox in that it treats jazz with the dignity it deserves—not as a blind carry-over of African traits, not as a simple reaction to slavery and discrimination, not as a kind of musical revolt, but as a type of music expressing the feelings of millions of Americans. . . If only for this reason, the book must be regarded as the most plausible contribution to the subject yet published." R. A. Waterman
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 6:304 Mr '49 500w
Nation 167:584 N 20 '48 230w

"Sidney Finkelstein's 'Jazz' . . . which is exceptional in its organization and handling of jazz as sheer music, fails to achieve a like distinction in its presentation of the thesis that jazz is a music of 'social protest.' . . A word must be said about the attractive way in which the publishers have put this book together, and about the many excellent and meaningful illustrations by Jules Halfant. There are, however, some misspellings and other minor errors in the text and the discography." Morroe Berger
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p29 N 28 '48 600w

"Mr. Finkelstein's book is an earnest study of the background, environment and physiology of jazz. He does not fall for the easy clichés about this indigenous form of American art. . . Whatever your disagreements with his ideas, his book is stimulating." Howard Taubman
+ — N Y Times p30 O 31 '48 550w

"An intelligent but opinionated analytical study of hot music from the blues to bebop, in which the author takes issue with most of those who have already written on the subject. . . There is a certain dialectic at work here, but much of what the author says makes good sense, and he is musically very well informed."
+ New Yorker 24:114 D 18 '48 160w

Reviewed by Dorothy Baker
+ Sat R of Lit 32:25 F 26 '49 600w
Wis Lib Bul 45:64 Ap '49

FINLAY, IAN. Scottish crafts. 128p pl $5 Chanticleer

709.41 Art, Scottish. Arts and crafts [49-7870]

An introduction to the arts and crafts of Scotland. It gives the history of Scottish architecture, sculpture, woodwork, metalwork, textiles, ceramics, glass, manuscripts, and books. Many illustrations, sixteen in color. Index.

Booklist 45:222 Mr 1 '49

